Iowa's U.S. Senate candidates meet in the 1st of 4 debates

Mike Glover
Associated Press
DES MOINES — Iowa's U.S. Senate candidates, peppering the air in a testy opening campaign debate, Sunday used each other of taking money from corrupt corporate interests and split on the issue of using the military to combat drugs.

Democratic Sen. Tom Harkin said he's earned thousands of dollars in campaign contributions, and challenged GOP challenger Tom Tauke to do the same. Harkin bragged that he's tougher than Tauke on fighting drugs, while Tauke insisted U.S. policy must be "smart and prudent."

Tauke said "my opponent was at the top of the list" in campaign contributions from the savings and loan industry.

Harkin said he's given more than $6,500 in contributions from failed savings and loans to Iowa's treasury and challenged Tauke to take a similar step with money he's gotten from corporate interests.

As their initial campaign debate opened, both candidates returned to the basic themes they've stressed in one of the country's hottest Senate races. Harkin charged Tauke refused to pay for important programs like fighting drug traffickers, while Tauke retorted that Harkin is nothing more than a big-spending liberal.

The fast-moving debate was testy and the air filled with accusations of misleading voters and twisting the facts. It was also filled with well-rehearsed one-liners likely to be heard again and again during the campaign.

"Tom Harkin has voted for virtually every spending bill that has come down the pike," said Tauke. "You call for reforms, but you keep voting for all the money."

Harkin said he plays a key role in crafting major education and anti-drug programs that voters are demanding, saying, "Year after year, my opponent votes against them. The issue is priorities, choices, decisions."

In addition, they returned to a split over how far the nation should go in using the military to fight drug trafficking.

Harkin insisted that the flow of drugs threatened the nation's security.

"We should form a partnership with other countries" and create "an international military force" that could be used for interdicting drugs and "going after the people who are trafficking."

"You've got to be smart and prudent," responded Tauke. "I just don't think that's a very bright idea."

Chicago's West Side ransacked in blackout

By Michael Gougis
The Associated Press

CHICAGO — Looting broke out overnight on the West Side after a generating plant fire left 40,000 customers without electricity, authorities said Sunday.

Police put extra patrols on the streets and said they arrested 49 people on looting-related charges after power was knocked out late Saturday. About 15 stores were ransacked, said Detective Luby Novitovic, who cautioned that it was a "rough estimate."

Three people died in a fire started by candles they were using to light their home, authorities said.

Power was restored to about 20,000 customers by 4 p.m. Sunday, said Commonwealth Edison spokesman Steve Hogan. More police officers patrolled the West Side to prevent a repeat of Saturday night's troubles.

"(Looters) just lined up outside the stores, waiting for the police to leave," Officer Rory Ohse said

Sunday. "As soon as the police left, they came back. We couldn't keep up."

But city officials played down the disturbances, saying they didn't expect major problems Sunday.

"There is no need for a curfew. There is no call for the National Guard," said Mayor Richard Daley. "It was only a blackout. There was no riot. There was no heavy looting."

The blackout stemmed from a series of small explosions that began shortly after 10 p.m. in a faulty transformer at a coal-burning plant on the West Side, said John Hogan, another Commonwealth Edison spokesman. The resulting blaze knocked out the cables that route power to most of the West Side. The blaze wasn't extinguished until 6:30 a.m. Sunday.

Work crews continued to work to restore power, but some of the 20,000 customers without electricity Sunday evening might have to

C welcomes RAGBRAI amid persistent rain and humidity

Julie Creswell
Daily Iowan

Despite rainy weather, the spirits of the 10,000 RAGBRAI cyclists rode into Iowa City last Friday night to be dampened.

"The hospitality in Iowa is wonderful," said Jeanette Meek, a cyclist from San Luis Obispo, Calif.

"The rain is better than the wind, now we have to deal with the humidity," she added.

"The rain and high humidity greeted RAGBRAI riders who quickly sought relief at many Clinton Street businesses — to the delight of Mike Maudlin, a shift manager at the Airliner, 22 S. Clinton St.

"It was absolutely great," Maudlin said. "There was not nearly as much food sales as we had hoped to see our regular customers. They didn't get in, but the beer sales went up for that. A lot of people got beer and sat out front to absorb the general party atmosphere... and everyone was so friendly. They would say, 'Meet you at the next bar on the left' and they had no idea where that was," he added.

The Domestic Violence Intervention Program had a tent set up in front of the Gloria Dei Lutheran Church, corner of Dubuque and Market streets, offering a slightly "different" product to the cyclists, according to Barbara Xakellis, a volunteer at the stand.

"I've rode in RAGBRAI for the last eight years, and you can never get a muffin. You can always get a cinnamon roll but never a muffin," Xakellis said. "I thought it would be something different."

Volunteers baked several types of muffins to be sold at the stand with proceeds going directly to the Women's and Children's Abuse Center.

About 72 volunteers helped direct traffic at nine Iowa City intersections. Bicyclists were urged to obey traffic signals, but at many intersections Iowa City policemen were directing traffic.

"Everyone has been real good today," said Officer Robert Happel. "Most everyone says thank you."

Workers at the Iowa State Bank were busy around 11 a.m. handing out juice to the cyclists as they passed by on the street.

"This is the biggest bunch we've seen," said Kathy Mihm, an audit assistant at the bank.

Connie Anderson, a marketing and sales officer, was happy to see the number of Iowa City residents who turned out to see the cyclists, despite the rainy weather.

"The weather really hasn't affected this. You look at the number of people coming out to see the bikers — it's really great," she said. "We're here for fun, to welcome all the RAGBRAI riders to Iowa City and to say 'Hey, we have sugar.'"

Man drowns when boat capsizes

The Daily Iowan

A West Liberty man drowned this weekend after his boat was pulled over the Burlington Street dam, throwing him and another man into the Iowa River, according to the Johnson County Sheriff's Department.

Johnson County officials discovered the body of Marcus D. Wilson, 38, of West Liberty, about 1:20 p.m. Sunday afternoon, south of the dam.

Authorities began dragging the river at approximately midnight Saturday after receiving a call that a boat had capsized near the dam.

The other man in the boat, West

Branch resident David Hansen, 25, was able to swim to shore with the aid of a fisherman, officials said.

Hansen was taken to the UI Hospitals and Clinics emergency treatment center and was released before 1 a.m. Sunday, according to a hospital spokesperson.

Lovetinsky sentenced to 5 years

By Jenny Hanna
The Daily Iowan
and The Associated Press

A North Liberty man was sentenced in Johnson County District Court Thursday to serve two concurrent five-year prison terms for two counts of lascivious acts with a child.

Melvin J. Lovetinsky, 27, arrested in May 1989, posted bail and filed an appeal immediately after his sentencing.

Lovetinsky was found guilty in February on both counts of molestation brought against him. Since then, the 11-year-old girl involved in the incident has recanted her testimony and reportedly said she lied in court.

On June 18, Johnson County District Judge Paul Kilburg overruled a motion for a new trial and did the same Thursday when a second motion for a new trial was filed by Lovetinsky's lawyer, Sally Peck.

Kilburg reportedly said the motion did not contain any new information.

In the motion, the victim's sister said she did not believe that she or her sister were sexually abused.

The motion also said the two girls were pressured to testify.

Muslim rebels hold leaders in Trinidad

PORT-OF-SPAIN, Trinidad — Prime Minister Arthur Robinson Sunday to resign and call for elections if black Muslim rebels free him and about 30 other hostages and end their 10-day attempt, an official said.

At least 27 people have reportedly been killed in the violence. However, there was no official toll.

Robinson apparently made his offer as he and other government officials remained wired to explosives and threatened with death. They were taken captive Friday when several hundred rebels with automatic weapons seized control of broadcast buildings and the Parliament. Government radio said the rebels were optimistic about reaching a settlement with Robinson but that they also wanted immunity from prosecution.

A journalist who was inside the Parliament building when it was stormed said Sunday the rebels shot Robinson in the leg and also shot in the leg the minister of justice, Selwyn Richardson. The two were being treated by Minister of Health Emmanuel Husin, a medical doctor who was in the building.

The journalist, released by the rebels Saturday night, spoke on condition of anonymity.

State-run Radio 610 said Nollie Clarke, an Anglican priest, was

Your roommate moves out, and you're stuck with next month's rent. If this happens to you, you may be held accountable for paying for the full amount of rent due.

Under the "joint and several liability" clause of Iowa's tenant-landlord law, all tenants are held responsible for paying the rent.

"Under most leases it says 'joint and several liability,'" said Tenant-Landlord Association counselor Bliss Eckland. "The landlord has full right to get full rent, and he could take you to court if your name is on the lease."

Target possible hidden costs before renting

By Susan Stapleton
The Daily Iowan

Saving nickels and dimes can be important when it comes to apartment costs.

And renting an apartment is not without "hidden costs."

Landlords and tenants must determine together what those hidden costs are, and the lease should reflect who pays them, according to the Tenant-Landlord Association.

"Leases aren't set in stone and they can be negotiated," said TLA counselor Bliss Eckland. She emphasized that leases are only negotiable before they're signed.

Some costs can run high, such as heat for a drafty house or off-street parking. Other costs, such as the late fee for your rent, may be minimal.

TLA encourages students to consider these hidden

Ames man awarded millions in asbestos hearing

The Associated Press

DES MOINES — A man who said he suffered lung disease brought on from working with asbestos has won a $6.5 million judgment, awarded by a Polk County District Court jury. "It feels good," Joe Beeman, 60, of Ames, said. "I think justice has been had."

suffered lung disease brought on from handling asbestos-laden products manufactured by Keene Corp.

Beeman worked as a plumber and pipefitter for a number of businesses in central Iowa.

He said the verdict was a big victory for him and others in the trade who suffer from asbestos-related illnesses.

Ron Branam, assistant court administrator for Polk County, said the judgment is one of the largest ever awarded in a civil case in Polk County.

The jury ruled Friday that Keene Corp. of New York and Delaware should pay $5 million in punitive damages to Beeman.

The jury also awarded $1.25 million in compensatory damages to Beeman and $250,000 in compensatory damages to his wife, Beverly.

UI institute gives teens a chance to tackle fuel problems

By Dan Zinkand
The Daily Iowan

Clyde Berry, UI emeritus professor of environmental engineering, sat on a step outside the Old Capitol Friday morning waiting to hear what 25 Iowa high-school students had to say about converting paper waste into fuel for low-income Iowa families.

"Kids like this are the ones who are going to inherit the mess we left them. How imaginative are they?" Berry said.

Six of the 25 students presented the group's findings in the Old Capitol Senate Chambers as part of a three-week program in the UI's first Summer Institute for Creative Engineering and Invention.

In their presentation, the students concluded that using paper waste could extend the life of landfills, reduce the $4.7 billion that Iowans spend on fossil fuels and help the state's 255,600 low-income people.

The summer institute was sponsored by the UI's College of Engineering and the Connie Belin National Center for Gifted Education. The primary objective of the institute was to encourage gifted students, especially women and minorities, to study engineering, mathematics or science in college.

Thirteen of the 25 students were women, 12 were men and seven were minorities.

Another goal of the institute was to allow gifted students to meet their peers and work together, according to Nicholas Colangelo, director of the Belin Center.

The participants were nominated by Iowa high schools based on their math, science and creative problem-solving abilities.

As part of the institute, the students took a walking tour of the Iowa City landfill, visited a Muscatine recycling center and talked with residents of a low-income housing complex in Muscatine.

Almost 17 percent of people in Muscatine are below the poverty level, and there is a limited amount of government money available for energy assistance, said Kerry Fetters, a participant from Indianola.

"We all felt strongly (that) providing heat is a basic human right," Fetters said.

After seeing the problem firsthand and collecting data, the students began considering solutions.

According to Louis Licht, institute director, their solution had to meet seven criteria to be considered successful: It had to be feasible, practical, economical, safe, legal, moral and politically acceptable.

The students proposed that paper waste be collected and converted into pellets at low-income housing sites and then burned in home furnaces.

Licht said an Oregon company manufactures furnaces that burn wood pellets and cost about the same as gas models. Licht added the pellet-burning furnaces meet California state emissions standards, which he said are the strictest in the United States.

The students suggested that use of the furnaces be implemented in phases, when existing furnaces wear out and when new housing is built.

Approximately 100,000 tons of waste go into the Iowa City landfill each year, and about 41 percent is paper, said Joyce De Long, a civil engineer with the Iowa City Department of Public Works.

"We look at this not as waste, but a resource out of place," said Anthony Ives, a participant from Columbus High School in Waterloo. Ives said 7200 pounds of paper could heat an average three-bedroom home for a year.

Collecting paper waste and converting it into pellets on a housing site is a new idea, said Licht.

Licht, who received his doctorate in environmental engineering from the UI, said he was impressed with the students' hard work and their innovative approach to problems.

"They sat to 11 and 12 at night talking about things," he said.

Berry said he was also pleased with the students.

"What they did in the amount of time they had was absolutely great," Berry said.

Community service ordered for man in fumigation death

By Jenny Hanna
The Daily Iowan

A Bettendorf, Iowa, man who pleaded guilty to involuntary manslaughter stemming from the October 1988 death of a Village Inn restaurant employee was ordered to perform 100 hours of community service, according to Johnson County District Court records.

Stephen D. Plath fumigated the Village Inn restaurant, 9 Sturgess Corners Drive, with a pesticide on Oct. 6, 1988. After the fumigation, Terry Schneider, 19, the assistant manager of the restaurant, was found unconscious in the employees' bathroom.

Schneider died later that day of methyl bromide poisoning. Plath used methyl bromide insecticide when fumigating the restaurant.

Further investigation revealed the restaurant's ventilation system was not turned on, and plastic covering the ceiling vents was not removed after the fumigation.

Plath was sentenced May 18 to two years' probation.

Prof wins NSF grant

Robert Mutel, a professor of physics and astronomy in the UI College of Liberal Arts, has received a two-year, $115,000 grant from the National Science Foundation to study active galaxies.

Specifically, he is studying the centers, or nuclei, of galaxies, which are strong energy sources. Despite their small size, Mutel said, the nuclei are approximately 1,000 times as energetic as an entire galaxy, which may contain as many as 10 billion stars.

Mutel is seeking to discover the source of the nuclei's energy and is using radio telescopes stationed around the world for his research. A technique called Very Long Baseline Interferometry allows the telescopes to be linked, creating one huge telescope with a diameter nearly as large as the Earth. VLBI will enable Mutel to study magnified views of the nuclei of galaxies and look at their inner structures.

The VLBI Network, an international network of telescopes used in observing galaxies, has been in operation for 15 years.

Iowa has been a member of the United States' VLBI Network for 13 years. Mutel was executive officer of the U.S. VLBI Consortium of member universities from 1986 to 1990. He was director of Iowa's observation project until last spring when Iowa began work on replacing its radio telescope to be completed in 1992. The new telescope, to be located in North Liberty, will be one of 10 throughout the country.

Volunteers sought for study

Participants are needed for a national study of hardening of the arteries being conducted by UI College of Medicine researchers.

Men and women between the ages of 40 and 79 are needed for the Asymptomatic Carotid Artery Plaque Study, which examines whether medications and dietary modification can retard the dangerous buildup of cholesterol in the carotid arteries, said Dr. Jose Biller, associate professor in the Division of Cerebrovascular Diseases in the UI Department of Neurology.

Individuals who have never had a stroke or heart attack and who don't take insulin or medication for high cholesterol are eligible for the ACAPS study. Potential participants will undergo cholesterol testing and a general medical examination. A noninvasive ultrasound procedure will also be conducted to determine if there is plaque buildup in the carotid arteries.

For more information about the ACAPS study, contact the UI Division of Cerebrovascular Diseases at 356-8329.

All individuals selected will receive physical examinations, laboratory tests and medications required for the study at no charge.

Taxpayer booklet available

Publication 1, a free booklet outlining taxpayers' rights, is now available from the Internal Revenue Service.

Titled "Your Rights as a Taxpayer," this four-page booklet gives an overview of the rights of the taxpayers and explains situations such as when citizens' returns are questioned by the IRS or when they owe money but cannot pay. It also describes free IRS tax assistance.

The IRS is enclosing the booklet with all first notices to taxpayers involved in a tax matter. The booklets are also available by calling (800) 424-3676 and requesting Publication 1.

Courts

By Jenny Hanna
The Daily Iowan

Two Iowa City men were charged Thursday with second-degree theft, according to Johnson County District Court records.

The records state that Cecil W. Gott, 25, RR 4, Box 5, and Johnny N. Habner, 20, 732 Grant St., went to 313 Myrtle Ave. to "test drive" an automobile that was for sale at the location.

When the defendants did not return, the owner reported to the Iowa City police that her car was allegedly stolen by the defendants, court records state.

Police officers went to the home of Gott's mother and found the vehicle behind the residence, court records state.

The defendants reportedly made a key for the stolen car and planned to strip the vehicle for its motor and parts, court records state.

The records state the defendants turned themselves in to police and reportedly confessed to stealing the auto.

Preliminary hearing in the matter is set for Aug. 15.

■ A Coralville man was charged Tuesday with third-degree theft stemming from an incident that occurred in early April, according to Johnson County District Court records.

The records state that Mark D. Stratton, 19, no address given, attended a party at 520 E. Church St., on April 1.

Later, the owners reported to Iowa City police that their compact disc player was missing, court records state.

The records state that during an investigation, police learned that the defendant had pawned the item at a local pawn shop.

The records state that the defendant was interviewed and did admit to taking the item and pawning it.

Preliminary hearing in the matter is set for Aug. 15.

■ An Iowa City man was charged Friday with second-degree burglary, according to Johnson County District Court records.

The records state that Jay S. Williams, 31, 332 Bloomington St., entered the residence of the victim without permission and removed items that did not belong to him.

The victim was present at the time of the incident and reportedly tried to prevent the defendant from entering her residence.

Preliminary hearing in the matter is set for Aug. 15.

■ An Iowa City man was charged Thursday with possession of stolen property, according to Johnson County District Court records.

The records state that Robert A. Croonborg, 22, 519 E. Fairchild St., was reportedly in possession of a stolen bicycle.

Police went to the residence of the defendant and were reportedly invited in, court records state.

The records state that the bicycle was in plain view, and that when police were invited to look at it they noted that the serial number on the bike matched that of the stolen bicycle.

Preliminary hearing in the matter is set for Aug. 15.

President of Estonian institute addresses society

by David Sims
The Daily Iowan

The founder of the Soviet Union's first independent college said Sunday that gaining independence from the Soviet Union may be easier for the Baltic states than facing the problems of nationhood after independence.

Mart Susi, president and co-founder of the Estonian Institute of Human Science, said the problems his country may face if it's able to break away from Moscow include converting its economy to a market system and redistributing private property.

Susi, 25, spoke to the Unitarian-Universalist Society at Channing Hall, 10 S. Gilbert St., on "People in Turmoil in the Baltic States." His speech was one of a series presented by the society, titled "Ethical Problems in Emerging Democracies."

"Are the Baltic nations ready to move to a free market economy?" he asked. "Today, nobody has anything."

Susi said the Estonian government has already printed new currency to be used when the country becomes independent. But, he said, the difficulties of converting to a market economy without causing financial hardship for Estonian citizens are many, including how to replace the unmarketable rouble without people losing their savings.

Another difficulty in returning to a market economy is the restoration of private property, he said.

When private property was nationalized in the late 1940s, many people lost their houses, which were given to other families.

Now the original owners or relatives are making claims on the property, he said. But the families who have lived there in good faith for 40 years and paid for the upkeep may also have some legal claims, he added.

"There are also questions whether those who fled to other countries are justified to make such claims," Susi said.

Susi also said there has been some discussion of a monetary and economic union between the three Baltic states — Lithuania, Latvia and Estonia. He said these states were not interested in a political union.

Susi is a practicing attorney from Tallinn, the capital of Estonia. He is currently pursuing a doctoral degree in political sociology at the University of Wisconsin.

In an interview, Susi said he and a friend presented the idea of a private liberal arts college in Estonia in a leading journal of opinion in 1988. Their proposal differed from all other Soviet higher education institutions by setting its own curriculum, free from central control, he said.

"Every state university has to follow the programs of the Central Ministry of Education," he said.

Susi said their proposal was well-received.

"From the beginning we paid attention to the public relations aspects, so everyone in Estonia knew what was happening," he said.

Susi said professors were eager to teach in an environment where they could determine their own curriculum.

"When we asked professors from other universities to teach classes, they all agreed," he said.

The institute's curriculum offers more emphasis on liberal arts disciplines than what is found at other Soviet universities.

"We have deep programs in philosophy, literature, history and language," he said. "In a state university, you can study these only for one semester. We teach it for three years."

Susi said the institute is the first in the Soviet Union to teach theology and it includes a program on the history of the Baltic states. Much of the history, he said, is taught without texts, because the information in current texts is inaccurate.

According to Susi, many students came to the institute because they found the programs at other institutions unsatisfying. He said students were not afraid to be outside of the established system.

"It used to be that students were guaranteed a job after graduation from a state university," he said. "But no more. Everybody's on their own."

The institute started classes in autumn of 1989, with 80 full-time students and about 300 part-time students. Most of the 60 faculty members are part-time, he said.

Susi said the institute charges tuition to avoid having to accept assistance from the government. One semester's tuition, he said, is equal to an average monthly salary in Estonia.

In addition to earning his doctoral degree, Susi said part of his mission in the United States is to establish student and faculty exchange programs and learn about the fund-raising systems of American universities.

Twenty-five students from the United States are attending the Estonian Institute of Human Sciences this summer, according to Susi. The students, he said, are from the University of Wisconsin, Harvard University, Stanford University and the University of California.

Estonia is the smallest of the three Baltic states, with a population of about 1.5 million, two-thirds of whom are ethnic Estonians. It gained independence from Russia after World War I and experienced a generation of self-determination before being forcibly annexed by the Soviet Union during World War II.

Iowa company offers safe solution to soil contaminated by petroleum

The Associated Press

DES MOINES — A new Iowa company is using a new process that speeds up Mother Nature to rid the environment of petroleum contaminants from leaking underground fuel tanks.

The method uses biochemistry to get rid of the contaminants rather than spewing them into the air or dumping them into landfills.

"It offers a permanent solution. You destroy these hydrocarbons so you never have to worry about someone saying, 'My kid is sick because of what you dumped into the landfill,'" said Jonathan Lamptey, chemical engineer for Microbial Environmental Services.

The company, a subsidiary of Pioneer Hi-Bred International, is using the technique at several sites in Iowa, including Ames and Des Moines, Lamptey said.

Known as "bioremediation," the

"It offers a permanent solution."

Jonathan Lamptey
chemical engineer

technique speeds up a process that Mother Nature could take decades to complete, said Lamptey.

It involves exposing contaminated soil to a mixture of nutrients commonly used in the fermentation industry. Those nutrients act as "food" for naturally occurring microorganisms in soil and water, Lamptey explained. The hyperactive microorganisms then gobble up the potentially dangerous hydrocarbons, breaking them down into carbon dioxide and water. A similar technique was used by the federal Environmental Protection Agency to treat contamination from Alaskan oil spills, Lamptey said.

He said Microbial Environmental Services is the only company in the Midwest using bioremediation to combat petroleum contamination.

Microbial Environmental Services has just finished cleaning up 400 tons of contaminated soil in Indiana and has begun work on projects in Johnston, Ames and Des Moines, he said. "We decided to do it because our only other choice was to excavate the soil, and finding a place to dump it was a problem," said Del Jespersen, Story County engineer.

More than 2,000 underground storage tanks are leaking gasoline in Iowa, according to state natural resources officials, and bioremediation offers an environmentally sound way to deal with many of them. Typically, contaminated soil is excavated and put into landfills.

'Mysterious' pig disease reported in 9 states

The Associated Press

JACKSON, Mich. — A mysterious pig disease reported in nine states could move toward Michigan if it hasn't surfaced here already, officials say.

The disease, called mysterious because it can't be diagnosed by testing and its causes are unknown, has infected more than 85,000 hogs in Iowa and has been linked to losses of $10.6 million, according to the American Veterinary Medical Association.

The disease has been reported in nine states and two Canadian provinces, according to a statement released earlier this week by the veterinary association.

The closest reported case to Michigan is in central Indiana.

"But there are certain practitioners who feel that it is here," said Thomas Mullaney, a section chief at Michigan State University's animal diagnostic laboratory.

"It could be devastating for farmers if it moves into this area," said Dale Brown, Cooperative Extension livestock agent for Jackson, Hillsdale, Branch and Calhoun counties.

Lower prices on higher education.

Announcing new lower prices on the Macintosh SE and Macintosh Plus.

If you'd like to enhance your education and your budget, take note. We just lowered prices on two powerful members of our Macintosh® family, the Macintosh SE and the Macintosh Plus.

They'll put a world of possibilities at your fingertips. Like graphing the economic impact of Japanese expansionism. Analyzing Freud. Or just organizing that stack of notes. Better yet, once you've mastered one application you can use them all, because all Macintosh software works the same way. And since every Macintosh runs the same software and is expandable, it can grow with you as your needs change.

Considering all this, you should have no doubts about which course to take. Give a Macintosh a try, and save.

The power to be your best.

Grounds for impeachment

FILM RATINGS

System update

The Motion Picture Association of America is under fire from the independent film producers for refusing to modify its film rating system to account for non-pornographic adult films. The producers contend that the X rating, though originally intended for all adult films, has come to signify pornography, leaving no room for non-pornographic films. In 1984 the MPAA added the PG-13 rating. The time has come for another revision.

When the current rating system was in its infancy, films such as "Midnight Cowboy" and "Last Tango in Paris" received the X rating and critical acclaim. Now it is nearly impossible for a film to get both, as the X category is now taboo, having been overrun by pornographers and their negative connotation.

Producers of quality films that receive the X rating have three options: They can accept the rating, re-edit and hope for an R rating, or release the film unrated.

Last week the X rating of "Tie Me Up! Tie Me Down!" — a film that contains explicit sex scenes but has been praised for its artistic merit — was upheld in a New York Court. Judge Charles Ramos felt the movie warranted an X, but — more importantly — he encouraged the MPAA to update its rating system. In the meantime, "Tie Me Up! Tie Me Down!" is being distributed unrated.

In Iowa City, the Bijou considers films on a case-by-case basis. Rightfully, the Bijou does not categorically exclude X-rated and unrated films. "Tie Me Up!" and "The Cook, The Thief, His Wife & Her Lover," another film embroiled in the ratings controversy, will play at the Bijou sometime next year. But other theaters in town rarely show such films, and communities such as Cedar Rapids are systematically insulated from similar films.

Producers of quality films that receive the X rating have three options: They can accept the rating, re-edit and hope for an R rating, or release the film unrated.

But none of these options is particularly attractive to an artist with a finished product. The X rating stigmatizes the film, and many theaters will not show X-rated films and many publications will not advertise them. Re-editing is expensive and unsavory to the film's producers, and releasing the film unrated, like the X rating, often scares off theater owners.

An informal film industry coalition has advocated a more plausible approach to the non-pornographic adult film. Several independent filmmakers are encouraging the MPAA to incorporate a new rating, such as A, for adult films. An A rating would be given to artistic films that contain adult content but are not pornographic.

But MPAA President Jack Valenti does not want the job of separating artistic adult films from pornography. He says the task would be too difficult. But Valenti must understand that if his organization does not do it, no one will. The public, while capable of making such distinctions, will not even see the films in question. They will have been rated X, released unrated or edited beyond recognition.

It's Friday, July 27, 9:00 a.m. I'm in an office facing Clinton Street, and I'm grumpy. The RAGBRAI riders are beginning to wheel past in fluorescent colors. And they have to contend with Iowa City buses, Cambuses and automobile traffic. The street is not closed off. Yes, Clinton Street is open until 12:30 to RAGBRAI riders and any other vehicle you are to name that exists in this community of 50,000. It is a recipe for frustration, injury and disappointment.

And I, for one, am disappointed. I see RAGBRAI as having the potential to be Iowa's laid-back response to the Tour de France. I see myself concocting mimosas and bloody marys for close friends at 7:00 a.m. I see us carrying food and drink to sit in lawn chairs on Market and Clinton streets, cheering and scooping out legs. There's a leg for everybody when RAGBRAI comes to town. Why doesn't the city council know that? Legs are good for business; that much is certain. And Spandex can't hurt, either. Not on these people. When was the last time you saw anyone in Spandex without wanting them arrested for having the lack of aesthetic sensibility to think they could wear it? RAGBRAI would bring entire communities welcome relief. Dedicated cyclists were made for Spandex and for the general public's viewing pleasure.

But all this potential has gone wasted on the Iowa City Council. I'm supposed to be administering. Or something. Business must not be disrupted. 10,000 bicyclists will come through town, but we'll do everything we can to pretend we don't notice them. That's what the council said. In refusing to close off streets for RAGBRAI, they resorted to the oldest bureaucratic line known to man. Richard Leakey found it carved on some cave wall in Africa. It was on the Rosetta Stone. It brays down at us through history with a donkey's persistent squeak: If we do it for this group, we have to do it for everyone else who asks.

I say, Pish! Nonsense! Au contraire! You don't have to do anything. Where's your sense of majesty, council members? I could see myself, wise as Solomon, voting for a RAGBRAI exception one Tuesday. The very next week I would turn to the Chairman of the National Chicken Farmers Association 5&10K Run/Walk and say, "Go peck. What do you think this is, RAGBRAI? Just because we make an exception for the greatest cycling event in the United States doesn't mean we can make one for your undoubtedly very nice but utterly insignificant chicken trot."

The timidity shown by our elected officials, their callous disregard for the fact that this is one of the greatest excuses for a major holiday to fall into our laps since the birth of our Savior, may be grounds for impeachment. I'm looking into it. At this very moment, I'm considering taking a short walk to MacDonald Optical Dispensary to talk to John. He's a good man. I like him. But this was a bad call.

Cyclists are pouring in now. It's 9:25. And there goes the Oakcrest bus, right up their backs. I spoke moments ago with a friend who's threatening to stand at the intersection of Jefferson and Clinton to stop traffic. Maybe that's the answer. Civil disobedience on a massive scale. I have yet to be arrested in this life, but there comes a time when a woman's gotta do what a woman's gotta do. I would say to distraught friends arriving to bail me out what Thoreau said to Emerson from his cell. When they waived, "Kim, what are you doing in there?" I would level a clear gaze at them. My voice would be firm. I would not be afraid of this blight on my permanent record. "What are you doing out there?" I would ask.

If I start dialing now, I can clear Jessup, Schaeffer, Calvin and Gilmore halls onto the street in no time, especially if I use the Thoreau story. Most of Phillips would be with me, too. At the very least, I'm running for the next open council seat on a RAGBRAI platform. The RAGBRAI holiday — good for business, great for our hearts. That's my motto. RAGBRAI riders deserve to enjoy Iowa Cyclists are pouring in now. It's 9:25. And there goes the Oakcrest bus, right up their backs.

City to the fullest. And Iowa Citizens deserve to enjoy the vicarious thrill of watching 10,000 cyclists roll through our streets. For this year, though, if they get out of here without Iowa City Transit tire marks on their backs, it'll be a miracle.

POSTSCRIPT: It's 2:30, and urgent institutional business has taken me out of the office. As I meander north on Clinton Street past some fine local dram shops, I notice that open container regulations are very relaxed. This was a step in the right direction. It adds a great deal to the spirit of the day to see riders strolling along with sweating beer bottles in their hands. I learned that the privilege of receiving riders is a once-in-a-decade event. Open containers and all, I think Iowa City dropped the ball this year. I hope I'm around the next time we get a shot. I'll do whatever I can to make it worth everyone's while.

No benefit

To the Editor:

In reading the memorandum from the AFSCME/Iowa Council 61 and AFSCME Local 12 [July 25, The Daily Iowan], I have to respond with disbelief. The first paragraph states that presently, "the University can use your pay for up to 60 days" and that the union wants the payroll changed to bi-weekly so the employee can receive "pay more promptly" and so that you "could use it rather than the Employer." If the union had taken a moment to use simple mathematics, it would have realized that bi-weekly payroll would cause the university to hold our money 10 months of the year, not 60 days as it is now. An example is a person who makes $24,000 per year. On a monthly basis the employee would gross $2,000 per month. If you divide $24,000 by 26 payments, you come up with $923.08. In the 10 months out of the 12 that are two-payroll months, the employee will receive only $1,846.16, a difference of $153.84 per month less. The employee will not receive that difference until the next three-payroll month, which is May 1991.

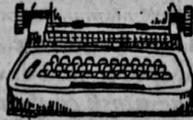

In addition, with implementation of bi-weekly payroll, the employee will lose one-fourth of a monthly paycheck, which the union claims it did not negotiate for. Employees will receive a check on Oct. 17 for payment of Sept. 30 to Oct. 6 and another check on Oct. 31 for payment of Oct. 7 to Oct. 20. Therefore, on Nov. 1, the employee will have only three-fourths of usual earnings to pay an entire month's bills. And what little is left over from that amount must last until Nov. 14! If the union claims it did not negotiate for it, why has it accepted the contract?

Finally, the only example the union gives of "Benefits of Bi-Weekly Pay" is paying bi-weekly mortgage payments. That's fine if the employee's financial institution will allow bi-weekly payments, but the majority of the institutions in the Iowa City area — including mine — have reported that they will not participate in bi-weekly mortgages. Of the two that will, they will require refinancing that includes closing costs of nearly $2,000, a "benefit" I don't care to take advantage of.

I fail to see how bi-weekly payroll benefits the employee, no matter how much or how little one's salary may be, and my views are those of the majority of merit staff employees at the UI.

NOW: Abortion will be single issue

President George Bush said in naming David Souter of New Hampshire to replace retiring Supreme Court Justice William Brennan that he had not applied any "litmus test" on the abortion issue. But it is abundantly clear that others on both sides of the issue will be assessing Souter in such a manner.

Two days before Bush named Souter, Molly Yard, the super-militant president of the National Organization for Women, was addressing a rally in downtown Boulder, Colo. Never a wilting violet, she was fired up even more than usual by the Brennan decision and the consequences she feared from it.

"We meet on a very threatening occasion," she thundered. "I have given orders that we send out immediately to the 270,000 members of NOW the request that they immediately contact President Bush in the White House and ask that he appoint a person of similar character and hopefully a woman as his nominee to the Supreme Court."

Then she added, "Am I confident that he will? Not really, but we have to try, because if he doesn't do that, and he gives us another Bork or another Kennedy, we're gonna fight like hell!"

Whether that will be necessary now is uncertain, inasmuch as Souter's judicial record is far from clear. But the sizable crowd cheered lustily as Yard mentioned Robert Bork, the Ronald Reagan anti-abortion nominee rejected by the Senate, and Anthony Kennedy, the anti-abortion nominee finally confirmed. She did not have to spell out what was uppermost in her mind — that Brennan's retirement paved the way for Bush to appoint a conservative who could assure the overturn of Roe vs. Wade, the last sure protection of abortion rights in federal law.

Yard radiated defiance, recalling how President Richard Nixon had "tried to foist" on the country two "racists" unacceptable to liberals — Clement Haynsworth and Harold Carswell — and how the Senate rejected both. "President Nixon got the message," she intoned. "He gave us Justice (Harry) Blackmun, the author of the Roe vs. Wade decision, and we're gonna fight until we get another justice like him."

Yard was smoking now. "If we're hot over Webster" (the decision lifting some restrictions on states to bar abortions), she shouted, "we are doubly hot over the Supreme Court fight, and it will be part of the election in 1990 and again in 1992."

Yard went on to endorse Josie Heath, who is running for the Democratic Senatorial nomination in Colorado on Aug. 14, arguing that women must elect their own to the Senate to fight any pro-life nomination Bush makes to the court. By the time Colorado's next senator takes office in January, though, the chances are Judge Souter or someone else will have been confirmed. But Yard said later she is sure the Senate Judiciary Committee will take its time, and besides, there will be other Bush appointments, in light of the advanced age of other justices.

The NOW president mentioned no other issue in her speech, a clear indication that abortion rights are unchallengeably at the top of NOW's current agenda. In fact, Yard told the crowd: "I'm sorry to say we must become single-issue voters" — a posture the pro-choice movement has always pinned on its pro-life foes.

One listener on the fringe of the crowd laughed on hearing that. Joan Werrick, holding one end of a long "Feminists for Life" banner, told how she was "thrown out" of NOW because she opposed abortion, and how she was derided then by her fellow-liberals as a single-issue voter.

"I think it's amazing," she said derisively, "that these intelligent people are engaging in single-issue voting."

A few others on the fringe of the crowd held up pictures of fetuses and debated quietly with pro-choice women. Like Werrick, they expressed confidence that Bush would not heed Yard and that his appointment would help overturn Roe vs. Wade.

Yard is leading a "Freedom Caravan for Women's Lives" launched last year by NOW and aimed at states where there are particular threats to abortion rights in state legislatures or where strong pro-choice candidates are running. Colorado is the eighth state on the schedule.

One priority of the caravan has been to urge women to support introduction and research on the French RU-486 "abortion pill" in this country. But as Yard's exercised speech here indicated, such matters will be on the group's back burners for now. NOW and its leader are already geared for yet another fight over a Supreme Court nomination, if Souter on further scrutiny appears to be a threat to Roe vs. Wade. # Latest Iowa Poll places Harkin ahead of Tauke

The Associated Press
 DES MOINES — The latest Iowa Poll, released as Iowa's Senate candidates prepared for their first debate, showed Democratic incumbent Tom Harkin holding a 13-point lead over Republican challenger Tom Tauke.
 But the latest Des Moines Register copyright poll showed more likely voters who say they are undecided.
 The poll published in the Sunday edition of the Register showed Harkin leading Tauke 47 percent to 37 percent.
 In a March Iowa Poll, Harkin led by 11 percentage points, 51 percent to 40 percent.
 But since March, the number of undecided voters has increased from 9 percent to 19 percent.

 The increase in undecided voters has drawn both candidates' numbers down from the March poll. Harkin's 47 percent in the new poll places him at the lowest point since the Iowa Poll started measuring voter sentiment in the race 16 months ago.
 The poll is based on interviews with 561 likely general election voters and has a margin of error of plus or minus 4.1 percentage points.
 The poll showed Tauke slightly stronger among men than women. Harkin derives 51 percent of his support from women in the new poll, and Tauke receives 46 percent of his support from women.
 In the latest poll, Harkin has gained the support of voters 65 or older by a 48-to-36 percent margin. Harkin also has gained the lead since March among Iowans with annual incomes of $50,000 or more. He now leads that group 45 to 40.

 The new poll shows Harkin with a substantially wider lead than he held in March among college graduates, 46 percent to 35 percent, and among voters who say women should be able to choose an abortion, 59 percent to 23 percent.
 However, Tauke has replaced Harkin in the new poll as the leader among voters between the ages of 45 and 64. Tauke leads that group 44 to 40. He has also expanded his lead among voters who favor greater restrictions on women's access to abortion.

High water levels, flooding continue to threaten Iowans

The Associated Press
 DES MOINES — Iowa's rain-swollen rivers and creeks were expected to get a reprieve from more rain on Sunday, but the weather service said earlier rains were still causing problems in northeast Iowa.
 Ed May of the National Weather Service said the Cedar River was still rising in the Waterloo-Cedar Falls area and predicted that base-mens would flood and low-lying areas would be under water.
 Sgt. Eric Gunderson of the Waterloo Police Department said there were no reports Sunday afternoon of extensive flooding but, "We've got our water wings on."

 He said city engineering crews were working during the weekend to watch for signs of flooding.
 In the nearby community of Finchford, May said the west fork of the Cedar threatened homes. The river was reported at 14.6 feet Sunday, about 2½ feet over flood stage, with serious flooding in the area possible at 17 feet. A record 17.3 feet hit the area in June 1951, the weather service said.

 wait until Monday and possibly longer, according to Hogan.
 Looting began in West Side business districts within minutes after the blackout and continued until sunrise, police said.
 Some stores were ransacked and some completely emptied, business owners and police said. Vandals smashed glass doors and windows, and some chopped holes in the roofs of stores to gain entrance.
 "They took everything," said Mike Alsars, who was guarding Way-Low Discount Foods on Sunday morning. "All the shelves are empty. All the coolers are empty. The floors look like garbage."
 Some Arab merchants complained burglars singled out their stores and passed over others. But store owners of all races were robbed, Police Superintendent LeRoy Martin said.

 "The stores that were attacked crossed all racial lines," Martin said. "There were no selected targets."
 Those arrested overnight faced felony charges of burglary, looting, disorderly conduct and damage to property, said Novitovic.
 The area affected by the outage was in the far west-central section of the city, which includes both middle-income and lower-income neighborhoods.
 Among those affected by the outage were five hospitals and the Cook County Jail, all of which had backup generators, Hogan said. Jail spokesman John Nevin said there were no security problems as a result of the blackout.

rental leases, according to TLA.
 TLA reports that most landlords in the Iowa City area use the clause because "it makes collection of unpaid rent easier for landlords and alleviates the need to physically search for tenants who have illegally vacated the rental unit."
 But there are ways to avoid this clause when a roommate moves out because of unforeseeable circumstances. Sublets are one of the most popular ways to avoid breaking a lease, according to TLA.

 Tenants can recover that portion of the rent the roommate hasn't paid by suing the vacated lessee for his or her share of the rent due, said Eckland.
 According to Black's Law Dictionary, "A liability is said to be joint and several when the creditor may sue one or more of the parties to such liability separately or all of them together at his option."

Debate

 "I believe the role of the military is to assure our borders are secure," said Tauke. "We sure don't want our forces invading other countries and becoming directly involved on the ground. It also puts us in a very sticky wicket on the ground."
 The two added to that message by fighting over campaign finances.
 "I gave the state of Iowa treasury the (savings and loan) PAC money that came into my campaign," said Harkin. "I don't want that money. I don't think that money has any place in any campaign."
 Much of the arguing came over campaign contributions from savings and loan executives, with Harkin blaming the scandal on the Reagan Administration and Tauke laying it on Congress.
 Both argued for tough prosecution of S&L executives.
 "We've got to go after the people who stole the money out of the S&Ls," said Harkin. "They've got to be prosecuted and sentenced just like they were bank robbers."
 "I have pushed for the appointment of a special prosecutor," said Tauke. "We should ensure that those who were in Congress are also brought to justice."
 In addition, the two traded charges over who backed more military spending, with Tauke saying he's voted against those spending efforts — a position Harkin disputed.
 "Don't read his lips, read his record," said Harkin.

Sunday's debate, televised across the state on NBC affiliates, was the first in a series of four planned between the two candidates. It was intended to focus on defense and foreign policy issues, as well as crime and drugs. The two candidates, however, used the occasion to range far afield.
 Most polls show Harkin holding a double-digit lead in the race, and many aides had urged Tauke to use the campaign debates to shake up the race. Neither candidate made a major gaffe that will return to haunt him on the campaign trail, and both repeatedly underscored the major themes of the campaign.
 Those themes for the initial debate centered on Harkin's charges that Tauke wants to "turn the clock back" by refusing to support programs important to the state.
 "Tom Harkin and I have different views about government," said Tauke. "When it comes to tax dollars and defense I'm as tight as hoop on a vinegar barrel."
 The two candidates have agreed to a series of four debates — one per month until the election — and future debates will be broadcast on CBS and ABC affiliates and on Iowa Public Television.
 Sunday's debate was closely watched because it was the first clash between the two, but the August debate will be important also because it focuses on the volatile abortion issue.

Trinidad

 assisting in the negotiations at the Parliament. Hundreds of government troops were patrolling around the building.
 Coup leader Abu Bakr, a former police officer in his mid-40s, claims Robinson's government is corrupt and undemocratic. He said on television Friday that the coup was intended to stop "poverty and the destruction" of Trinidad and Tobago, a Caribbean nation with high unemployment and skyrocketing food prices.
 As negotiations continued Sunday, the Port-of-Spain area was beset by fires, scattered shooting and widespread looting in some areas.
 Hundreds of looters ransacked stores and factories in several eastern suburbs, making off with food, refrigerators, videocassette recorders and television sets. Some loaded their cars with stolen goods and drove off.
 Anglican Bishop Clive Abdullah broadcast an appeal for the looting to stop.
 "My heart goes out to those who are hungry and have to enter places to take foodstuffs. I can perhaps ask God's forgiveness for this," he said. "But when you line up a convoy of vehicles to take away items like refrigerators, television sets and videos, that is not right," he said.
 A spokeswoman for President Bush, who was in Kennebunkport, Maine, said Saturday that he was "following the situation carefully" and that American citizens and tourists on Trinidad and Tobago did not appear to be in danger.

A government curfew, imposed Saturday by a state of emergency that mobilized the country's 5,000-member army and 1,500-member police force, allows people on the streets from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. daily.
 Government Radio 610 said "scores" of people had been injured in fighting associated with the coup. The Red Cross urgently appealed for blood donations to treat the wounded, but most residents were too afraid to leave their homes.
 An administrator at the Port-au-Spain General Hospital said at least five people wounded during the overthrow attempt died Sunday.
 The Caribbean News Agency, quoting police and hospital sources, said on Saturday that at least 22 people have died in fighting since the coup attempt began, but exactly where the fighting occurred remained unclear.
 The offer Robinson reportedly made to the rebels was described by Jones Madeira, director of the government television station and himself a hostage.
 Madeira said in a telephone interview from a television station seized by the rebels that Robinson agreed to turn over power to an interim government that would rule until elections are held in three months.
 "My information is that Prime Minister Robinson has agreed to step down and that an interim government of major political parties will run the country until elections are held in 90 days."

Fujimori fires heads of Peruvian military

By Monte Hayes
The Associated Press

LIMA, Peru — In one of his first acts as president, political newcomer Alberto Fujimori dismissed the heads of the navy and air force but refused Sunday to explain the decision.

The moves were widely seen as an effort by Fujimori — a political outsider with little support in Congress or among the country's established parties — to impose his authority over the military. The military overthrew a civilian government in 1968 and ruled the country until 1980.

Fujimori — the upset winner in June's elections — made the changes late Saturday night just hours after he was sworn in as president, and he confirmed the dismissals at a news conference Sunday.

At his first news conference, Fujimori also announced a bank holiday for Monday and Tuesday. He said the banks would be closed to help prepare the way for emergency economic measures he planned to announce later in the week.

Peru is facing one of its worst economic crises ever, with inflation running at 3,000 percent a year.

The new president said his government needed at least $700 million in emergency economic aid this year to feed and provide basic services to the country's poor.

Fujimori also said he wanted to restore Peru's standing with the international financial community by resuming payments on its foreign debt, which now totals $20 billion.

His predecessor, Alan Garcia, had suspended debt payments in 1986, causing Peru to be cut off by international lenders.

Regarding the military changes, Fujimori said he was confident that the armed forces would continue to respect the powers of the presidency to the same degree as in recent years.

Alberto Fujimori

"I must deny that there exists any discontent in the armed forces," Fujimori said.

In his inaugural address Saturday, Fujimori pledged to wage a campaign against what he described as widespread government corruption.

International bankers convicted

By James Martinez
The Associated Press

TAMPA, Fla. — Manuel Noriega's long-time personal banker was convicted with five other people in federal court Sunday in a scheme to launder $32 million in cocaine profits for Colombia's Medellin cartel.

Prosecutors hailed it as a precedent-setting case, the first in which international bankers have been convicted under U.S. money-laundering laws, and as a key victory in the war on drugs.

The verdicts came after seven days of jury deliberations and a 6-month trial of five international bankers and a Colombian businessman associated with the Bank of Credit and Commerce International.

Convicted of conspiracy and various money laundering counts were Amjad Awan, Miami-based assistant director of BCCI's Latin American division and one-time banker to the deposed Panamanian leader; four other ex-employees of BCCI; and a Colombian businessman.

An 11-member panel decided the

The verdicts were read shortly before noon Sunday in a courtroom packed with friends and relatives of the accused.

The defendants showed little emotion, but people in the gallery broke into wails, wept and hugged one another and shouted curses in a tumultuous scene following the verdicts. One woman appeared to faint, then ran screaming from the courtroom when she recovered.

"Six months in court, and for this?" said an angry Gloria Bilgrami, whose husband, Akbar Bilgrami, and three other defendants are natives of Pakistan. "All this for lies. . . . So this is America."

Defense attorneys had little comment, but one vowed appeals.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Mark Jackowski said, "This case is important to the United States of America because it shows that those who sit in the ivory tower of society, the bankers in the gray suits, they don't touch the dope but they should know that if they violate the law and they are convicted they're going to jail."

In addition to the hefty fine, BCCI, one of the world's largest private financial institutions with 72 offices, was put on five years' probation under the Federal Reserve System and agreed to open the books to prosecutors investigating Noriega, a BCCI customer.

Also convicted Sunday were Ian Howard and Sibte Hassan of BCCI's Paris branch.

Federal judge to review abortion law; stern Pennsylvania codes under fire

The Associated Press

READING, Pa. — The most restrictive state abortion law in the nation goes before a federal judge today in a case that could eventually give the U.S. Supreme Court another chance to re-evaluate Roe vs. Wade.

Senior U.S. District Judge Daniel Huyett III is to hear arguments on whether bills passed by the state Legislature in 1988 and 1989 illegally restricted the rights of women to abortions.

Should the bill end up in the Supreme Court, as many observers expect, it would be the second time in a decade that Huyett has considered a key abortion rights challenge on its way to the high court.

Huyett rejected provisions of a 1982 Pennsylvania abortion law that in 1986 was rejected by the Supreme Court in a stunning confirmation of the 1973 Roe vs. Wade ruling.

Gov. Robert Casey signed the nation's most restrictive abortion bill last year, but Huyett ordered the provisions temporarily blocked.

The hearing this week springs from a challenge to the state bills by Planned Parenthood of Southern Pennsylvania, other women's organizations and doctors in the state who perform abortions.

The contested provisions would require married women to inform their husbands before they can obtain abortions and would generally ban abortions after the 24th week of pregnancy.

Some of the other challenged provisions also were included in the 1982 bill.

They include measures to obligate doctors to provide pregnant women with specified information regarding fetal development and their rights to obtain child support, to require a 24-hour waiting period between a woman's visit to a doctor and the performance of the abortion, and to force clinics to publicize the names of doctors who perform abortions and other information.

Opponents say the law interferes with doctors and invites harassment of abortion facilities and staff members while imposing reproductive choices on women but not on men.

"What it does is pose a series of restrictions that put roadblocks in a woman's ability to have an abortion," said Kathryn Kolbert of the American Civil Liberties Union's Reproductive Freedom Project.

Robert Gentzel, a spokesman for the attorney general's office, said the commonwealth believes the bill's restrictions are permissible under existing Supreme Court rulings.

Only Guam, in the Pacific, has adopted a more stringent abortion code than the one passed in Pennsylvania in November. The U.S. territory's legislature banned all abortions except when a woman's life is endangered and outlawed all abortion referrals.

As in Pennsylvania, that law has been temporarily blocked by a federal court order.

Stringent anti-abortion measures were passed this year by the Idaho and Louisiana legislatures, but were vetoed. Louisiana legislators have threatened to call a special session to override Gov. Buddy Roemer's veto.

The U.S. Supreme Court's 1973 decision in Roe vs. Wade outlawed state regulation of abortions unless the regulations were clearly to safeguard the health of the woman.

The Pennsylvania law is being challenged by Planned Parenthood, Women's Suburban Clinic, Women's Health Services Inc., Reproductive Health and Counseling Center, Allentown Women's Center and Dr. Thomas Allen.

Rescuers find quake victim

By Eileen Guerrero
The Associated Press

MANILA, Philippines — Rescuers pulled a 27-year-old cook from the ruins of a hotel at a northern resort Monday, 14 days after the building collapsed in an earthquake, news reports said.

The latest survivor brought to three the number rescued at the hotel since Friday.

Radio stations said the man, Pedrito Dee, was pulled out about 3:45 a.m. Dee told radio station DZRH that he was without food during his ordeal but drank his own urine to survive.

Dee, who was suffering from dehydration but seemed healthy otherwise, said he was among 12 people trapped in the basement of the hotel wing used to house employees. He said the others trapped with him are dead.

"I am calling for my wife and parents: I'm alive, I'm alive," Dee said in Ilocano, the dialect of northern Luzon island. "I'm OK."

Efforts to contact officials in Baguio, 130 miles north of Manila, were unsuccessful because telephone lines were down.

The July 16 earthquake measured 7.7 on the Richter scale. It left at least 1,653 people dead, 1,000 missing and presumed dead, 3,000 seriously injured and 110,000 homeless.

Foreign rescue teams in Baguio abandoned the search for more survivors more than a week ago because they said sensor instruments indicated there were no more people alive in the ruins of eight hotels that collapsed during the quake.

But Filipino crews, many of them volunteers, continued the search. There was renewed optimism after two survivors were pulled from the rubble of the Hyatt on Friday, where they had been trapped for 11 days.

The two survivors, Luisa Mallorca, 20, and Arnel Calabia, 26, were reported in good condition and were flown Sunday from Baguio to Manila for medical treatment.

Hector Castillo, one of the rescuers, said searchers heard cries for help early Monday in the ruins. "We believe up to this time there are still some survivors," said Castillo, a miner. "We are tired, but we will continue with our efforts."

About 60 people, including 12 Americans of Filipino origin, are still believed buried beneath the Hyatt, one of eight Baguio hotels that collapsed in the earthquake.

Rescue operations were terminated Sunday at the Baguio Park Hotel, where bodies of 15 guests and two employees were discovered. Officials said they believed no survivors or bodies remained beneath that hotel.

When a powerful earthquake struck San Francisco on Oct. 21, 1989, rescuers pulled an Oakland longshoreman, Buck Helm, from his car 89½ hours afterward. He died 28 days after his rescue.

The most celebrated survivors of a Mexico City earthquake in September 1985 were the "miracle babies" found in the rubble of two maternity hospitals. The newborns survived periods of entombment ranging from eight hours to almost nine days.

Nelson Mandela

Mandela refutes alleged coup

By Barry Renfrew
The Associated Press

SOWETO, South Africa — Nelson Mandela accused the government Sunday of using an alleged Communist conspiracy to delay peace talks. He spoke before tens of thousands of people celebrating the launch of the South African Communist Party.

Mandela said the government was trying to whip up hysteria with claims that Communist members of his African National Congress had plotted to seize power.

"To suggest... that these outstanding sons and daughters of our people harbor ideas of unilateral military action against the peace process is an insult manufactured by the enemies of democracy," Mandela said.

"If it is genuinely interested in peace and negotiations, the government must act to bring about this result," Mandela said.

Mandela also stressed that the ANC was not a Marxist movement, although many Communists hold senior positions in the ANC.

"They have never sought to transform the ANC into a tool and puppet of the Communist Party," Mandela said.

Police claim Communists and militants within the ANC's military wing have stockpiled weapons and were formulating plans to seize power if talks between the government and the ANC on ending white-minority rule fail.

Government officials in Pretoria said they were studying Mandela's charges and had no immediate response. Communist Party officials said they were committed to a negotiated solution to South Africa's racial divisions.

President F.W. de Klerk has reportedly asked Mandela to drop the Communists from the talks. The ANC and the government are to meet Aug. 6 to try to clear the way for full-scale negotiations.

About 35,000 people, nearly all of them black, turned out for the rally marking the Communist Party's move into mainstream politics after being banned for 40 years by the South African government.

Thousands sang, chanted slogans and waved red hammer-and-sickle flags during the rally — held at a football stadium in the black township of Soweto outside Johannesburg.

Despite the enthusiasm of the crowd, the turnout in the 70,000-seat stadium appeared smaller than organizers had predicted.

Governors want commission to investigate the S&L crisis

By William M. Welch
The Associated Press

MOBILE, Ala. — The nation's governors moved Sunday toward endorsing a Democratic-led call for a national commission to investigate the savings and loan crisis in what one governor called a "vote of no confidence" in the federal response so far.

On a day when the National Governors' Association broke from its normal bipartisan consensus, the group's executive committee voted to send the full governors a resolution to investigate the S&L bailout and find a way for "equitable recovery" of taxpayer money spent on the bailout.

The action came on a busy opening day of the governors' annual summer conference, which concludes Tuesday.

Michigan Gov. James Blanchard, a Democrat, predicted Congress and President Bush would ignore the S&L request directed at them.

But he said the statement amounted to "a vote of no confidence in federal action" on S&Ls.

"It's really a way to say we don't have a lot of confidence in what's happening so far."

James Blanchard
Michigan Governor

"It's really a way to say we don't have a lot of confidence in what's happening so far," Blanchard said.

Republican governors mounted a futile effort to strip the recommendation of a commission from a statement of concern over the S&Ls. Gov. Gary Carruthers of New Mexico called it "a feel-good" vote, and Gov. John Ashcroft of Missouri said it would only delay any solution.

"We don't need rocket scientists and commissions — we need action," Ashcroft said.

The vote came after the governors divided in a partisan dispute on education — a subject on which they previously had voiced only consensus — before tentatively agreeing on the makeup of a panel that would grade states on their progress in education.

At Democrats insistence, they added a provision that the panel also vote on the federal government's progress toward meeting education goals.

Democrats, concerned that they not give up a political advantage to the White House and Republicans, forced cancellation of a bipartisan task force meeting on education reforms while they met alone.

White House chief of staff John Sununu, a former chairman of the governors' association, defended President Bush's budget before the governors and said Bush would insist on fundamental budget reform as part of any deficit-reduction package.

Oil threatens Texas marshes

By Susan Fahlgren
The Associated Press

GALVESTON, Texas — A 50,000-gallon oil slick from a collision-ruptured barge in Galveston Bay moved away from shore Sunday as cleanup crews tried to deflect the 3-mile-long patch from sensitive marshlands, the Coast Guard said.

The nearly sunken barge is one of two damaged Saturday in a collision with the Liberian oil tanker Shinoussa in the Houston Ship Channel. The barges were among three being towed by the tugboat Chandy N. The tug was undamaged, and no injuries were reported.

Crews worked Sunday to contain the spilling oil as the ship channel remained closed, backing up several vessels for the second time in a week.

"The oil is traveling away from shore," said Coast Guard Petty Officer Dennis Schaefer.

Schaefer said salvage crews were working to right the nearly sunken barge while tugboats surrounded the second barge to keep it afloat.

Booms were placed around both barges to contain spilling oil. Together, the two were carrying 1.76 million gallons of "catfeed oil," a No. 5 heavy crude used in refining, Schaefer said.

Apex RE&T Inc., a St. Louis-based towing firm, owns the tug and barges and was working with salvage contractor T&T Marine of Galveston on the cleanup, Schaefer said.

Salvage crews planned to transfer the fuel from the barges to other vessels Sunday afternoon. The third barge, carrying 20,000 barrels of fuel, was undamaged and was moved up the ship channel, Schaefer said.

The 601-foot tanker, carrying 29,400 metric tons of jet fuel, remained anchored, Schaefer said. Although the collision left a gash in its hull, the vessel didn't leak because of its double hull. The 27,793-ton Shinoussa was built this year, he said.

Gunman holds 100 hostage in London

By Edith M. Lederer
The Associated Press

LONDON — A gunman took more than 100 hostages in a London nightclub and demanded a plane to fly to Beirut on Sunday, but he surrendered to police and freed his captives.

The 10½-hour siege ended when the gunman was persuaded to leave his last six hostages and walk up a staircase where police were waiting, said Detective Superintendent Alex Edwards of Scotland Yard.

The gunman, who was not identified, was taken to a police station for questioning.

On Sunday night, police detained a man and a woman at separate addresses and confiscated shotgun parts, British Broadcasting Corp. TV news reported. Both were being questioned by police in connection with the seige, but there were no details.

Police said some hostages needed medical attention and one was taken out on a stretcher. They were examined by doctors at the scene but none needed to be hospitalized.

The hostages included members of the Kuwaiti royal family, according to Yacoub Ibrahim, a witness.

with 55 seconds left. Viktor Kerezhnoi ended the scoring with a bank with five seconds to play. Andrew Gaze scored 44 points, including 29 in the first half, as Australia claimed fifth place by beating Puerto Rico 116-92. Antonello Riva scored 29 points as Italy beat Spain 105-96 in overtime or seventh place.

The United States clinched a spot in the medal round by beating Mexico 15-2. Scott Hatteberg and Jorge Fabregas each drove in four runs. Mexico jumped out to a 2-0 lead in the second inning, but the United States came back with seven runs in the bottom of the inning, two in the third and six in the sixth. Hatteberg, of Yakima, Wash., hit a two-run homer and two singles, while Fabregas had a homer and single. Mike Hostetler allowed five hits in the seven-inning game.

medal contention. Kari Jalonen, Jukka Marttila, Juha Rihjarvi and Mika Nieminen scored for Finland, while Tomas Jelinek got both of Czechoslovakia's goals. WATER POLO Yugoslavia won the gold medal as Igor Milanovic and Ducan Popovic scored goals in the second overtime period to beat the Soviet Union 10-8. The game was tied 6-6 at the end of regulation, as Alexander Kulotov of the Soviet Union scored with just seven seconds left. Kulo-tom then tied the game 8-8 with the same few seconds remaining in the first three-minute overtime. The United States reeled off five goals in a six-minute span of the first half on the way to an 11-5 victory over Cuba and seventh place. Cuba took a 1-0 lead, but the U.S. squad responded with the five straight goals and built a 7-3 advantage by halftime. Chris Humbert, Craig Kibell, Dan O'Connell and Doug Kimball all scored two goals for the United States.

PTL

Iowa sophomore Dale Reed netted 37 points and former Iowa City City High star Brian Kueter scored 22 for Rhoades Kosar in the 109-104 final. Lohaus scored 37 and Moe tossed in 29 for the winners. In other first-round action: No. 3 seed Fitzpatrick's defeated 6th-seeded Flannigan's 110-101 behind 36 points from Kraayenbrink; No. 4 Penn Way Park knocked off the 5th-seeded Airliner team 106-101 with Lookingbill scoring 28 and Ingram adding 26; and No. 2 seed Bremers eliminated the seventh seed — First National Bank — with Hill scoring 36 and Turner netting 21. "The top-seeded teams won all four first-round matchups," PTL director Randy Larson said, "but all four were close games. I think that demonstrates what I've tried to do with this league — we have balanced, competitive games. There's parity." Lohaus said that, though the Hills Bank team doesn't have a set offense, strategy does play a role in the PTL playoffs. "We try to exploit the weakness in the defense and go to who's hot," Lohaus said. "The most organized teams usually win." "All these guys play so much basketball, they know how to pick and roll and play the two-man game," Fitzpatrick said. "Troy (Skinner) and (Nick) Nurse actually do the coaching — I just say, 'Please, please give us three passes.'" The championship game should be a matchup between the size of Hills Bank and the outside play of Fitzpatrick's, according to Fitzpatrick. "We're a little better outside," Fitzpatrick said. "We'll have trouble containing Lohaus. We don't have anyone to match up with him." That problem is amplified by the absence of Fitzpatrick's 6-foot-11 starter Matt Bullard, who is attending the Houston Rockets' rookie camp. "We'll come out and play the same way we have," Lohaus said. "We'll pass the ball and try to be unselfish." "It should be a good matchup," Larson said of Wednesday night's title game. "We have the two teams that work the ball the best."

 real good," Daniel said. "This makes my whole career worthwhile." The 33-year-old Daniel started the day five strokes behind Jones but moved into contention by opening the final round with three straight birdies. "I just kind of rolled on from there," she said. Daniel birdied Nos. 12 and 13, then made four straight pars before missing a 6-footer for par on No. 18. That gave Jones a chance to pull even, but her crucial putt hit the left side of the cup and spun away. "That last putt was in the hole the whole way," Jones said. "I'm shaken, but I feel very pleased with my play today."

game lead over second-place Pittsburgh in the National League East. Red Sox 13, Tigers 3 — DETROIT — Detroit had double trouble on Sunday and Bostonatters were the cause. Wade Boggs hit three of Boston's American League record 12 doubles and drove in four runs as the Red Sox beat the Tigers 13-3. Boston's doubles broke the previous AL record of 11, set by the Tigers against the New York Yankees on July 14, 1934. Pirates 2, Phillies 1 — PITTSBURGH — Doug Drabek (13-4) pitched a two-hitter for his fifth consecutive victory, stopping Philadelphia from a four-game sweep. The Phillies were trying for their first four-game road sweep since August 1985 and their first in Pittsburgh since July 1968.

Dodgers 4, Braves 3 — LOS ANGELES — Ramon Martinez pitched five-hit ball for eight innings and struck out nine, leading the Los Angeles Dodgers over the Atlanta Braves. Martinez (13-4) leads the major leagues with 159 strikeouts. He walked one, won his fourth straight game and beat the Braves for the fifth time in six career decisions. Yankees 8-4, Indians 5-3 — CLEVELAND — Roberto Kelly homered twice, drove in five runs and scored three as New York swept its second doubleheader from Cleveland in three days. Kelly hit a solo home run and drove in four runs in the first game, then led off the second game with his eighth home run.

Notebook

If the major league's on-field deeds can't be replicated — and how can they — then at least the little leaguers can look the part: numbered jerseys, knickers, stirrups, cleats, batting gloves and near major-league quality equipment are the rule. Moreover, today's little leaguers — the major league stars of tomorrow — know what their doing on the field, at least in between pitches. Even at 8 years old, a ballplayer knows when to throw his glove, smooth out the dirt with his feet and yell time-less encouragement to his pitcher. They even know major league bubble gum blowing and spitting technique — thank you, Big League Chew. What they haven't quite mastered, however, is what to do immediately after the ball is pitched: like catching, throwing and hitting. Most of them have the form down, but the execution isn't there — yet. In time, of course, it will be. In the third inning of Shane's game, he struck out chasing a high fastball — about two feet out of the strike zone. Not one to hang his head, in his next at bat Shane patiently worked the pitcher for a walk, calmly stole second on the next pitch and preceded to score when the catcher's throw went over the center fielder's head. "I thought I could easily make it," said Shane after the game.

"I'm pretty fast." And while it can be debated whether Little League Baseball embodies some of America's virtues — such as democratic participation, teamwork and honest competition — there can be little doubt that it has and continues to provide young people like Shane with experiences that nurture confidence and create memories that will last forever. ### Hawkeyes

"I can see it (Iowa contending for the title) based on our coaching staff and players," Fry said. "But we have a real tough road schedule. It's not really a good deal getting Ohio State at our place." "It's imperative that we win our first two games to establish confidence to face the defending national champions. If we can win the first two, I think we can give them a real battle." The Hawkeyes have 39 lettermen returning, including eight starters on defense and five on offense. One of the top offensive returners is quarterback Matt Rodgers, who last year became only the second Iowa sophomore to throw for over 2,000 yards in a season. Rodgers' receivers this year include sophomore Danan Hughes, who caught seven passes for 101 yards in the spring game, and junior Mike Saunders, who accounted for 1,026 total yards last season playing wide receiver, tailback and wingback. Fry said he also expects good things from running backs Nick Bell, a 6-foot-3, 255-pound senior, and Tony Stewart, a 6-foot-1, 205-pound senior who is back from a knee injury. "Nick Bell will be our swing guy; he can play running back, fullback, tight end," Fry said. "He's going to make secondary's hearts beat." "I like running back, but (changing positions) is no problem," Bell said. "That's something Coach Fry and I have already discussed... If I have to block, I'm going to try to hurt them, I'm going to try to knock them on their back." Good offense is nice, but the Big Ten coaches agreed, defense is what wins the league title. That, however, isn't worrying Fry. "We have one of the best defensive teams we've had at Iowa," the coach said. Johnson, a 6-3, 270-pound tackle will be the anchor for the defensive line this season. The first-team all-Big Ten selection by The Associated Press and United Press International led the conference in tackles for loss with 21 stops for minus-111 yards and quarterback sacks with 12 for minus-70 yards last year. Other returning defensive lineman include senior Matt Ruhland and junior Leroy Smith. Backing them up are senior linebacker Melvin Foster, who led the squad with 116 tackles in 1989, and senior cornerback Merton Hanks, a returning second-team all-Big Ten pick. Overall, Fry is in a position this year that he likes — the underdog. "I feel like we're the most underrated team in the field," Fry said. "I love being the underdog. That really jacks the guys up... And we have a fine team."

Wind, rain hinders British Open field

By Rob Gloster
The Associated Press

TURNBERRY, Scotland — Gary Player battled strong winds and driving rain to win the Seniors British Open by one shot Sunday despite double-bogeying the final hole and dropping five shots on the last six holes.

Player managed only a 5-over par 75 in the final round, but still had the second-best score on a day on which organizers moved tees forward yet still watched helplessly as scores skyrocketed.

U.S. PGA Tour commissioner Deane Beman missed an 8-foot putt on the final hole that would have forced a playoff with Player. And Arnold Palmer almost holed a chip shot on the 18th that also would have forced a playoff.

"These are about as tough conditions as you can play in," said Player, who had an even-par 280 for the tournament. "The links courses are elevated and when the wind blows there you can really feel it."

Player, 54, collected $45,000 for his second victory in the seniors tournament. The South African also has won the regular British Open three times.

Beman and Englishman Brian

Waites tied for second one stroke back, while Palmer was fourth at 282.

Player holed a 50-foot putt on the 12th hole for his third, and final, birdie of the day. He also made a 6-foot putt to save par on the 16th, but struggled after that.

He 3-putted the 18th for a double-bogey 6 that made him "sick to my stomach" and went to the clubhouse convinced he had no chance of winning.

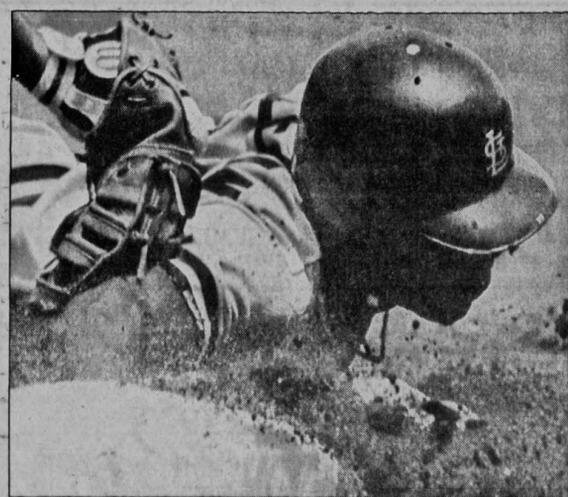

But the awful weather blowing across the course on the western coast of Scotland kept Beman and Palmer at bay.

Beman, who held a 3-stroke lead for much of the round, finished with double-bogey, double-bogey, bogey and just missed a par putt on the final hole.

"Today was one of those days with very difficult conditions and I just wasn't ready for that," said Beman.

Palmer, seeking to win a pro tournament in a fifth decade, almost knocked in a chip from below the 18th hole to tie Player. But it rolled past the cup and Palmer then missed the ensuing putt to drop another stroke.

American Billy Casper was the only player to shoot a better round than Player on Sunday.

Player to protest at Championship

By Rob Gloster
The Associated Press

TURNBERRY, Scotland — In 1969, anti-apartheid demonstrators at the PGA Championship threw a drink in Gary Player's face. This year, Player is siding with the protesters.

The South African golfer said Sunday that he supports people who plan to demonstrate at next month's PGA Championship in Birmingham, Ala., to protest the host club's all-white status.

"If I was in those peoples' shoes I would also demonstrate," said Player, who is not participating in the tournament. "That's the advantage of a free society; people are entitled to demonstrate."

The membership policy at Shoal Creek Country Club came under scrutiny last month when the club's founder, Hall Thompson, said there were no black members because "that's just not done in Birmingham."

Thompson later apologized for the remark, but the controversy has continued. Major sponsors have pulled their TV ads for the tournament, civil rights groups are planning protests and former PGA champion Lee Trevino says he may not play in Birmingham because of the controversy.

Player, who won the Seniors British Open on Sunday, said Thomp-

"If I was in those peoples' shoes I would also demonstrate."

Gary Player
Professional golfer

son's comments "have hurt a lot of people."

"I was bitterly disappointed at Mr. Hall Thompson's statements," Player said. "I just think that they were uncalled for. In this world today we don't have a choice; we've just got to look at each other and talk to each other."

Throughout his career, Player has been the target of protesters who wanted him to be more vocal about his opposition to apartheid in South Africa.

Kenya native Kogo wins car, $5,000 in Bix 7 race

The Associated Press

DAVENPORT — Distance runner Steve Kogo is the proud owner of a new car. All he needs now is a license to drive it.

Kogo earned $5,000 in cash and a 1990 car for his surprise victory in the Quad City Times Bix 7 road race on Saturday. He ran the seven-mile course in 32 minutes, 47 seconds — six seconds faster than runner-up Jon Sinclair.

"I'll have to find some nice single lady to drive it home for me," said Kogo, who has only a learner's permit. "I've never owned a car. Never had a reason to have one."

Kogo, 28, is a native of Kenya who now lives in Boulder, Colo. He had finished seventh at the Peachtree 10K in Atlanta on July 4, but he stayed near the lead in Saturday's race and started pulling away with about two miles to go.

His time was the sixth fastest in Bix history.

Steve Spence came in behind Sinclair for his second straight third-place finish. Dionicio Ceron, who had won the Cascade Run-Off in Portland, Ore., and the Peachtree, was fourth, 17 seconds behind Kogo. Two-time champion Mark Curp finished 11th in the record field of 115 runners.

The first mile of the race is on a steady incline and there are other hills on the course, but Kogo said that didn't bother him.

One-hitter keeps Reds sliding

The Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO — In the year of the no-hitter, Scott Garrelts lost his try with two outs in the ninth inning Sunday.

Still, Garrelts wasn't complaining. That's because the San Francisco Giants are back in the race.

Garrelts, bidding for baseball's record eighth no-hitter of 1990, got it broken up when Paul O'Neill singled. But Garrelts retired the next batter as the Giants beat Cincinnati 4-0, sending the Reds to their seventh straight loss.

Brewers 9, White Sox 8

CHICAGO — Gary Sheffield singled off Scott Radinsky (6-1) to break an 11th-inning tie after a 40-minute rain delay and Greg Brock followed with a two-run single.

Paul Mirabella (3-2) was the winner. After Steve Lyons hit an RBI double in the bottom of the 11th off Randy Veres and scored on Scott Fletcher's single, Tom Edens came in and got two outs for his first career save.

Cubs 2, Expos 1

MONTREAL — Rookie Mike Harkey rebounded from his worst start of the season with one of his best, pitching four-hit ball for 7½ innings as Chicago Cubs beat the Montreal Expos for their 11th victory in 14 games.

Harkey (9-5) struck out five and walked none. Mitch Williams relieved Harkey and did not allow a hit in getting his 12th save.

Orioles 4, Royals 1

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Brady Anderson led off the game with one of Baltimore's four doubles.

Milwaukee Brewers catcher Charlie O'Brien tags home during second-inning action Sunday in Chicago. Fisk was out on the play.

John Mitchell (3-3), given a 2-0 lead in the first inning, allowed four hits in 7½ innings.

Twins 6, Athletics 5

MINNEAPOLIS — Brian Harper, who extended his hitting streak to 19 games with a first-inning single, singled home the winning run in the 10th inning as Minnesota beat Oakland for the third time in four games.

Al Newman doubled off Rick Honeycutt (1-2), moved up on walks to Kirby Puckett and Gary Gaetti and scored on Harper's single off the center-field fence.

Mets 6, Cardinals 0

NEW YORK — Mackey Sasser hit a grand slam and Dwight Gooden pitched seven strong innings Sunday night, leading the New York Mets past the St. Louis Cardinals 6-0.

The Mets beat the Cardinals for the eighth time in 10 games this season and held on to their one-

Fry's Hawks face tough road slate

By Erica Weiland
The Daily Iowan

CHICAGO — The good news and bad news for the Iowa football team this year is simple, according to Hawkeye coach Hayden Fry.

"The good news is that I have most of my players back from last year," Fry said at the Big Ten Kickoff Luncheon Friday. "The bad news is that I have most of my players back from last year."

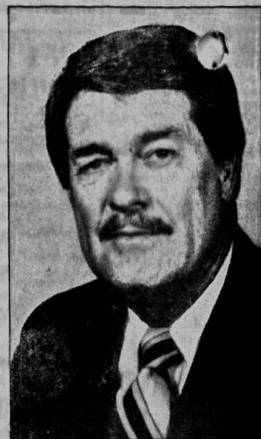

It seemed easy for the coach whose squad went 5-6 last season to joke about the team's misfortune. That was a year ago, and this season doesn't begin for a month and a half.

After the season gets rolling, Fry may not be telling too many jokes.

A more-experienced Iowa squad will be taking the field in September, but it will be up against a tough road schedule and some equally-experienced conference foes.

The Hawkeyes open at home Sept. 15 against Cincinnati, then take on intrastate rival Iowa State the next Saturday at Kinnick Stadium.

After that, Fry's team travels to Miami, Fla., to face the defending national champion Hurricanes in the Orange Bowl.

Hayden Fry

"That's a big challenge," senior defensive lineman Jim Johnson said. "I can't wait. I like to compare our team with other teams, and this will be a great challenge."

Following that game, the Hawkeyes begin a grueling conference schedule which includes Michigan, Michigan State and Illinois — all on the road.

Luncheon treat: Jokes

By Erica Weiland
The Daily Iowan

CHICAGO — Iowa football coach Hayden Fry stood in front of a room filled with reporters, coaches, school officials and fans at the annual Big Ten Kickoff Luncheon Friday.

He was discussing why his Hawkeye squad had a losing record last season.

"I've analyzed what we didn't do," Fry said. "We usually win close games and last year we didn't do that. Then I analyzed it further and realized that why we didn't win the close games was because we didn't have any."

The luncheon, with ABC college football commentator Keith Jackson as master of ceremonies, gave each of the Big Ten coaches a chance to speak informally and to tease one another good-naturedly.

And they grabbed that opportunity with both hands.

Both Fry and Northwestern coach Francis Peay made light of their respective 5-6 and 0-11 seasons. But the majority of the jokes dealt with the admittance of Penn State to the league and the absence of former Michigan coach Bo Schembechler.

"I'm glad to welcome Penn State," Northwestern coach Francis Peay said. "I'm just glad we don't have to play them soon."

"We were discussing schedules and it (a game between the Wildcats and the Nittany Lions) didn't come up. But I've heard you (Paterno) have been making inquiries as to what it would take. I just want to say, 'No way, Joe.'"

A big topic of conversation since the Nittany Lions were admitted to the league has been a possible name change.

While officials maintain it will still be called the Big Ten for awhile, Minnesota coach John Gutekunst said he had been offered an idea: "I got a suggestion that we call it the Big Mistake."

Gutekunst then proceeded to burn the former Wolverine skipper who bailed out after last season — his 21st at Michigan — and is now the president of the Detroit Tigers.

"It's too bad Bo is not here because I got a letter of reprimandation for criticizing officials," Gutekunst said. "I wanted to show him because I know he's never seen one."

Lohaus, Skinner lead teams to Prime Time League finals

By Brian Gaul
The Daily Iowan

The Prime Time summer basketball league isn't known for defensive intensity. At least, not during the regular season.

But it's playoff time in Prime Time. And that means some things change.

"In the playoffs, everybody wants to win," said former Hawkeye and current Milwaukee Buck Brad Lohaus, who scored 26 points and hauled down 10 rebounds in Hills Bank's semifinal win Sunday.

"That's just the nature of human beings," Lohaus continued. "That's what you come out here for."

"The defense definitely takes a step up," said Gary Fitzpatrick, coach and sponsor of the Fitzpatrick's team.

Those two should know. They have successfully guided their teams to the fourth annual Prime Time championship game at 7 p.m. Wednesday night in Iowa City City High's new gym.

Lohaus' Hills Bank team, seeded first after the regular season, reached the title bout with a convincing 117-107 victory over the Penn Way Park-Miller Lite club in one of Sunday night's semifinals.

Iowa guard Jay Reed scored 29, former Hawkeye Jeff Moe netted 24, and UNI recruit Jon Ellis added 20 in the balanced Hills Bank attack.

For Penn Way Park, Iowa junior Wade Lookingbill scored 24 points and hauled in 14 rebounds while former Hawkeye teammate Michael Ingram contributed 20 points and 10 rebounds.

In the other semifinal, Fitzpatrick's took an overtime thriller from Bremers, 117-103. A controversial goaltending call as time expired allowed Fitzpatrick's to tie the contest, and they went on to blow out Bremers in the overtime period.

Troy Skinner was the game's high scorer, with 32 points, and added 10 assists. Iowa recruit Chris Street poured in 20 points and grabbed 21 rebounds and Jeff Kraayenbrink scored 22 for Fitzpatrick's.

Kent Hill contributed 39 points and 18 rebounds and UNI guard Dale Turner recorded 19 points and 9 assists for Bremers, but it wasn't enough.

Prime Time League playoffs started Friday night, when all eight league teams played in first-round games.

In Friday night's closest contest, Hills Bank used a late rally to nip No. 8 seed Rhoades Kosar — which was playing without the services of leading scorer Les 'Jepsen, who is at the Golden State Warriors' rookie camp.

"(Rhoades-Kosar) played a great game," Lohaus said. "They walked the ball up the court and played good defense. They played a zone in the second half, and we hadn't seen that before."

Beck erases 8-shot lead for title in Buick Open

The Associated Press

GRAND BLANC, Mich. — Chip Beck, rallying from an eight-shot deficit, shot a 65 on Sunday and won the Buick Open when Hale Irwin missed a tying putt on the 72nd hole.

Beck's 72-hole score was 272, 16 under for four rounds over the 7,014-yard Warwick Hills Golf and Country Club course. Irwin, who hadn't made a bogey in three rounds, made six on Sunday in shooting a 74 for 273.

Irwin had a 20-foot putt to save par on the par-4, 435-yard 18th, but left it short of the cup.

It was the third career victory on the PGA Tour for the 33-year-old Beck.

Beck's best finish this season was a seventh and he only decided to play in the Buick when he missed the cut in the British Open last week. He came to Michigan ranked 73rd on the money list with $135,378.

Beck, whose last victory was at New Orleans in 1988, started the final round nine under and eight back of Irwin. Beck birdied the first three holes, gave one back with a bogey at the 5th, then birdied Nos. 7 and 8 to turn at 13-under.

Beck birdied the 10th and, after a bogey at the par-3 11th, reeled off three successive birdies. He had the lead alone at 16 under after a birdie on the par-4 14th, a 322-yard hole.

Beck was lining up his approach to the 18th as Irwin sank a 5-foot birdie putt on 14 to tie for the lead at 16-under.

Beck missed a 6-footer for birdie putt on the 18th, but got the lead alone once again when Irwin bogeyed the 15th. He put an approach into the right bunker and then missed a 6-footer for par.

Irwin got even again on the par-5, 580-yard 16th, two-putting from 30 feet for birdie.

Irwin had a chance to lead alone after his 6-iron tee shot on the par-3 17th landed within eight feet of the cup. But he missed the putt.

Irwin drove into a bunker off the 18th tee, and his second shot went into the long rough behind a green-side bunker.

His third shot landed about 20 feet from the pin. He began walking the instant he hit the approach, clearly displeased with the shot.

Daniel rallies to win title in LPGA Championship

BETHESDA, Md. — Beth Daniel shot a 66 Sunday to overcome a 5-shot deficit and win the LPGA Championship — her first major title in 12 years on the tour.

In beating Rosie Jones by one shot, Daniel collected $150,000, the largest paycheck in LPGA Tour history. Jones, who entered the final round with a 2-shot lead, had a chance to force a playoff but she lipped her 50-foot birdie attempt on the final hole to finish with a 72 and 3-under 281 total.

"It's been 12 long, hard years, and to finally win a major — it feels

U.S. loses hoops final in Games

The Associated Press

SEATTLE — Yugoslavia fought off an early injury to a starter and foul trouble throughout the game to beat the United States 85-79 on Sunday and win the gold medal at the Goodwill Games. It was the third straight major international competition without a title for a U.S. team.

The United States, which rebounded from a qualifying-round loss to the Soviet Union with impressive wins over Italy and Brazil, struggled from the outside and never was able to take advantage of Yugoslavia's manpower shortage.

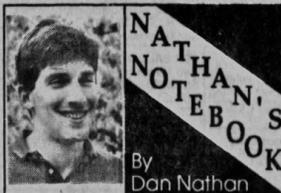

It was particularly victimized by its previously superb backcourt, with starters Kenny Anderson and Todd Day shooting a combined 4-for-22 from the field, Day going 1-for-12.

BASKETBALL

Sergei Bazarevich had 24 points and 12 assists and the Soviet Union scored the game's final six points to win the bronze medal with a 109-103 victory over Brazil.

The Soviets led 84-74 with 8:46 to play, but Brazil, led by Oscar Schmidt's 44 points, went on a 19-8 run for a 93-92 lead with 4:30 to play. Andrei Lopatov broke a 103-103 tie with a jumper in the lane with 1:40 left and Bazarevich made it 107-103 with a bank shot.

Youths play for 'fun', not money

As 10-year-old second baseman Shane Thalken took his position last Friday evening, nervously tugging at his worn-in Phillies cap, he was unwittingly taking part in a 51-year-old American tradition — Little League Baseball.

Like most of the 2.5 million other ballplayers in 7,000 other leagues worldwide, Shane plays baseball for the right reason. Not because he'll be eligible for free agency or arbitration or because he has endorsement offers, but merely "because it's fun." Simple pleasures deserve simple explanations.

But like its major league counterpart, Little League Baseball has survived — and in fact prospered — despite a myriad of obstacles.

As The New York Times journalist Malcolm Moran wrote in a May 6, 1990 story, "Little League has endured the problems of a decreasing population of children and the threat of competing activities, and it has acknowledged the interest of young female athletes and those children whose enthusiasm exceeds their disabilities."

Iowa City's little league program has met some of these challenges. After several years of declining interest — due in large part to summer soccer programs — Iowa City youngsters have once again taken to the national pastime.

This summer, for instance, Iowa City had over 30 teams competing in three different divisions — T-ball for six and 7-year-olds, Junior League for eight to 10-year-olds and Senior League for 11 and 12-year-olds. All told, nearly 600 young athletes played ball this summer.

It was the late Baseball Commissioner A. Bartlett Giamatti who, perhaps more than anyone else, recognized the deep connection between Little League Baseball and American culture. Giamatti writes of little league: "A sport and a program, a way of life and a style of living, a quest and a fulfillment, it is in the fabric of millions of lives and dreams."

Watching Shane and his teammates play, many of those dreams become recognizable. The dominant dream is to be Jose Canseco or Ryne Sandberg. And
