Bush denounces aggression, weighs intervention

By Terence Hunt
The Associated Press

WOODY CREEK, Colo. — President Bush on Thursday called for Iraq to withdraw its invading armies from Kuwait and said he would not rule out direct U.S. military intervention in the conflict.

Bush denounced Iraq's move as "naked aggression" and said he wants to see "the restoration of the Kuwaiti leaders to their rightful place."

The president spoke at a news conference with British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher near Aspen, Colo., several hours after he signed an order freezing control of Iraqi assets in the United States and blocking almost all imports from the oil-rich Middle Eastern country.

Thatcher called on Iraq to heed the United Nations Security Council's call for a withdrawal. "We need a collective and effective will of the nations belonging to the U.N."

Speaking of Iraqi President Saddam Hussein, Thatcher said, "We find his behavior intolerable."

Bush said he had talked by telephone during the day with Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak and other Arab leaders and said he was encouraged by their efforts to find an "Arab answer" to the problem.

He also noted approvingly that the Soviets had cut off military supplies to Iraq and that Secretary of State James Baker would stop in Moscow on his way back to the United States from Asia.

"He would not be stopping in Moscow unless there would be a good degree of cooperation between the Soviet Union and the United States," he said.

Sanctions Against Iraq

Along with condemnation of Iraq's invasion of Kuwait, several governments have taken concrete steps to punish Iraq or keep it from seizing Kuwaiti wealth invested abroad:

- U.S.
- Froze Iraqi assets
  - Protectively froze Kuwait assets
  - Halted most imports from Iraq, including oil
  - Banned travel to Iraq by Americans
- Soviet Union
- Suspended arms deliveries to Iraq
- Great Britain

Iraq Invades Kuwait

Iraq overtakes Kuwait amid foreign censure

By Stephanie McGehee
The Associated Press

KUWAIT — Invading Iraqi soldiers quickly seized control of Kuwait on Thursday after two weeks of threats, and Iraq warned foreign governments it would turn the oil-rich state into a "graveyard" if they came to its aid.

Kuwait's leader, emir Sheik Jaber al-Ahmed al-Sabah, fled to neighboring Saudi Arabia. Iraqi forces occupied all government buildings in the capital and were moving south toward oil installations, officials said.

The move brought universal condemnation and sanctions. The Soviet Union, Iraq's biggest arms supplier, announced a suspension of shipments to Iraq. The United States blocked most Iraqi imports, including its most important revenue source — oil. Fellow Arab states failed to take any action.

Iraq responded by freezing repayment of Iraqi debts to the United States, the official Iraqi News Agency reported. The total size of the debt is unclear. Last year, the United States provided $1 billion in agricultural credits to Iraq.

Diplomatic sources in the Persian Gulf estimated more than 200 Kuwaitis were killed or wounded, mainly from the government's Emiri Guard.

Kuwait, through its U.S. ambassador, appealed for U.S. military intervention. A Pentagon source said a U.S. aircraft carrier and six warships were diverted toward the gulf from the Arabian Ocean to bolster eight American ships already in the gulf.

In other developments: The U.N. Security Council voted 14-0 to condemn the invasion and demanded immediate withdrawal of Iraqi troops.

President Bush signed orders freezing Iraqi assets and blocking import of most Iraqi products. Oil accounts for 97 percent of Iraqi imports to the United States, and Iraqi oil is 7.6 percent of U.S. oil imports. Bush said he would rule neither in nor out U.S. military intervention.

The State Department said Secretary of State James Baker would fly to Moscow on Friday to issue a rare joint statement about the crisis with his Soviet counterpart, Eduard Shevardnadze.

The invasion created turmoil in world financial markets, with the price of oil, gold and the dollar mounting steeply.

Iraq claimed its troops entered Kuwait at the request of revolutionaries who it said had staged a coup. Kuwaiti and other diplomats. See Kuwait, Page 7

Oakdale incinerator undergoes preliminary testing

By Debbie Hare
The Daily Iowan

The UI waste incinerator at Oakdale could be operating soon if testing goes as anticipated in August.

The UI incineration facility for medical-related waste must pass performance and emissions tests before the Iowa Department of Natural Resources issues an operating permit to the UI.

The original construction permit was granted in March 1989 for the $2,326,790 project.

Larry Bielick, project manager for the installation of the equipment, operation design and testing, said the incinerator was run for the first time the week of July 16 for an equipment check. He said there were some problems, and adjustments were made.

J. Ed Hawks, head of UI architectural/engineering services, said although actual medical waste was used for the test, the quantities were so low there was "no risk" involved.

Bielick said he thought the designers had done a good job, and added that improvements have been made to ensure the incinerator works properly.

The UI must run a compliance demonstration within 90 days of initial start-up, said Bielick. On Aug. 13 a pre-test meeting will be held to prepare for the tests.

Hawks said chances are excellent the UI incinerator will pass the tests and be issued an operating permit.

Several commercial incinerator projects have been rejected in Iowa. In fact, the state Legislature passed a one-year moratorium on new commercial medical-waste incinerators in Iowa.

However, William Twaler, director of the University Health Protection Office, said, "That was done after we got our permit."

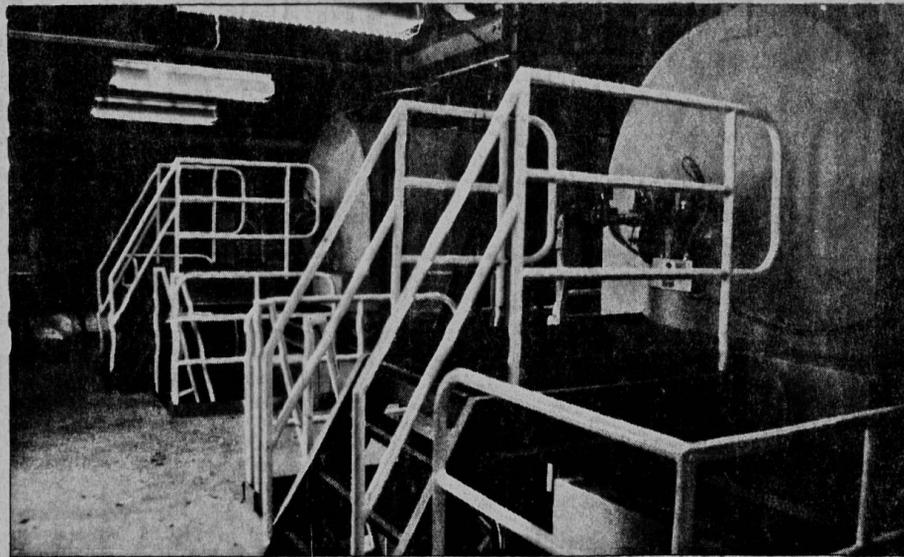

Twaler added the UI wasn't included in the moratorium because the Oakdale incinerator isn't for commercial use. He said no out-of-state waste will be shipped to the UI incinerator; only infectious waste from the UI will be incinerated.

According to a document from the Office of University Relations, "The university will continue to hire private contractors to dispose of materials defined as 'hazardous' or 'toxic' waste — those materials will not be incinerated."

Twaler said, "We control what goes into the incinerator. If we have problems we know where (the waste) came from and can adjust accordingly."

Hawks said there is little risk in operating the incinerator. He said the system will shut down automatically if temperatures are not high enough.

The same UI document reported

The Daily Iowan/David Greedy

Two incinerators at Oakdale will burn waste products at a rate of up to 800 lbs./hour each. UI officials predict that the incinerators will be operating by the end of the month.

that "unacceptable emissions are usually due to insufficient temperature. Incomplete burning cannot take place at the Oakdale incinerator because the unit will automatically shut down whenever temperatures drop below 1,200 degrees Fahrenheit."

Hawks said there are very few reasonable alternatives for dealing with medical waste that are also economically feasible. He said similar incinerator facilities have worked successfully at the Universities of Wisconsin and Michigan.

Thomas Bauer, associate director of University Relations, said the incinerator will provide savings for the UI later on down the road.

"One of the great savings will be in the reduction of waste that must be taken to the landfill," said Bauer. "Since the UI must pay to landfill material, the UI will save taking in one pound compared to 20 pounds."

The UI report stated the incinerator will meet all federal, state and university safety standards.

950 summer graduates receive degrees today

Ann Marie Williams
The Daily Iowan

UI commencement services will be held today at Hancher Auditorium for approximately 950 summer graduates.

Commencement for degree recipients from all the graduate colleges and the Medical and Dental schools will be held at 2 p.m. today. About 455 graduates are expected to receive degrees this month.

Liberal arts, engineering and business school graduates will have commencement at 8 tonight. About 495 baccalaureate degrees are expected to be awarded.

According to Jean Lawrence, assistant to the registrar, the number of graduates this year is typical for summer. She said the UI expects to award about 1,500 degrees in December, and approximately 3,200 UI students are expected to receive degrees after the spring semester, in May 1991.

1st joint election since 1933 set for Dec. 2 by Germans

By Maud S. Beelman
The Associated Press

BONN, West Germany — The two Germans signed a historic treaty Thursday for the first elections in a unified Germany since Adolf Hitler became chancellor in 1933.

Meanwhile, there was growing pressure for full unification well ahead of the Dec. 2 balloting, set in a treaty initiated by West German Interior Minister Wolfgang Schauble and East German State Secretary Guenther Krause.

The treaty, signed in East Berlin, retains a West German provision requiring parties to attain at least 5 percent of the national vote to gain representation in Parliament. This measure has effectively barred small radical parties on the right and left from membership in the Bonn legislature.

Under the accord, however, small parties will be permitted to join the tickets of other, larger parties, a provision that will benefit East German parties linked to the large West German groupings represented in Parliament.

The biggest beneficiary was expected to be the German Social Union, a right-wing party linked to the Christian Social Union, part of Chancellor Helmut Kohl's governing coalition.

The clearest loser was the Party of Democratic Socialism, successor to East Germany's Communists, which no larger parties want to include. Gregor Gysi, who heads the former Communists, called the accord "election manipulation."

Iowa City groups plan protests of O'Connor visit

By Ann Marie Williams
The Daily Iowan

Two Iowa City organizations are planning to protest U.S. Supreme Court Justice Sandra Day O'Connor's stance on abortion and other issues when she speaks at the Hoover Library Association annual banquet next week.

Although O'Connor is not expected to bring up controversial court issues such as abortion at the dinner, members of the Iowa City Reproductive Rights Coalition and the UI student group New Wave will focus on her stance on reproductive rights at demonstrations planned on the Downtown Pedestrian Mall.

O'Connor is scheduled to speak

Friday, Aug. 10, at 6:30 p.m. at the Holiday Inn in Iowa City. The event is not open to the public.

The RRC will hold a sit-in outside of the Holiday Inn, 210 S. Dubuque St., to protest O'Connor's position on abortion and minority issues, according to Carol DeProse, a founder and member of the RRC.

DeProse said O'Connor is the richest member of the court, and despite being the only woman on the bench, has consistently voted against laws protecting women's reproductive rights.

"She has voted consistently, we believe, to betray the rights of women," DeProse said.

New Wave is also planning to demonstrate against O'Connor's stance on abortion and reproductive issues and is planning to stage a "die-in" on the Downtown Pedestrian Mall before the speech.

"The die-in will symbolize the women who have died and will continue to die in the wake of the Hyde Amendment and the parental consent legislation," said Liz Seim, organizer of the event and a New Wave member.

Seim said O'Connor was the deciding vote in last July's Webster decision, which gave states the power to place restrictions on access to abortion.

"She's not addressing the needs of women," Seim said.

Gayle Sand, associate director of the Emma Goldman Clinic for Women, 227 N. Dubuque St., said it is important for people to realize a woman's access to an abortion is in great jeopardy with the passage of the Webster decision.

"The Supreme Court, and Sandra Day O'Connor, cannot be trusted to ensure a woman's right to abortion," Sand said. "O'Connor is not a friend of pro-choice."

DeProse said the RRC plans to promote the event heavily and hopes for a good turnout despite the low number of students who will be in Iowa City for interim.

"(The goal of the sit-in) is not to influence Sandra Day O'Connor; it's primarily to build the momentum and build the movement to uphold a woman's right to make moral choices for herself," she said.

'Caring' is job incentive for 2 local men

By Lindsay Alan Park
The Daily Iowan

Although making money is the object of most businesses, a new Iowa City business is driven by caring.

Reach For Your Potential, 922 Kirkwood Ave., is the newest service of its kind in Johnson County — a Community Supervised Apartment Living Arrangement for developmentally disabled adults.

"No one's ever going to reach their potential," co-founder Neal Kane explained. "It's a process of grabbing for it every single day."

The idea for Reach sprung from the goal of two friends. Both wanted to make a difference in the world.

After a six-week sabbatical last year in the Ozarks, Iowa City resident Ron Schieffer decided he wanted three things out of life: to work at home, to make a living doing it and to increase his ability to care about people.

A few months later, Schieffer was approached by Kane with the idea of forming a non-profit human service corporation.

Growing up with a father and brother who required a great deal of supervision because of mental illness, Kane felt helpless to better their lives. As an adult, he wanted to find a way to help others like them.

The business began operation on July 1.

Reach, Kane said, is an intermediate step between the high structure of a group home and living out on your own or with a friend or a roommate.

"We're pretty much starting out in taking mildly mentally retarded adults and people who might have brain damage," Kane said.

Kane, now the full-time service coordinator for Reach, formerly ran his own local handyman business and was a housekeeping supervisor at UI Hospitals and Clinics.

Both UI graduates, Schieffer has a degree in elementary education, while Kane has a psychology degree.

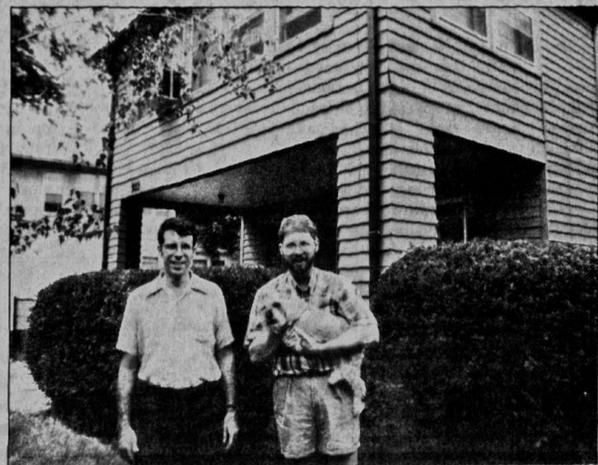

As administrative officer, Schieffer lives in the duplex with the clients, but both he and Kane provide direct services to clients.

Elizabeth O'Connell, a UI graduate with a master's degree in vocational rehabilitation, is a half-time care provider who also lives in the duplex.

As of today, three of the six spaces in the duplex have been filled.

Most clients' fees are funded by a combination of state and federal money through contracts drawn up with the Johnson County Department of Human Services, but private referrals are also accepted, Kane said.

Schieffer said the main goal of Reach is to help residents make the transition to independent living by teaching basic living skills such as meal preparation, cleaning and financial management.

Many developmentally disabled adults never learn these skills.

"It's not that other people haven't been trying," Kane said. "But we're dealing with people who have problems learning, so it takes much longer."

Reach also emphasizes human values — trust, fairness and caring — which they said are essential to the clients' happiness.

Kane said these values apply to everyone.

"We'd rather look at people as human beings and focus on the commonalities rather than to say, 'You're handicapped,'" he added.

"We're not here just to teach the skills," Kane said. "It's more to have a place where there's caring."

Dyer receives award

Carolyn Dyer, UI associate professor and associate director of the UI School of Journalism and Mass Communication, received the sixth annual Catherine Covert Award for her essay on mass communication history.

The award is presented by the History Division of the Association for Education in Journalism and Mass Communication.

Dyer's essay, "Political Patronage of the Wisconsin Press, 1849-1860: New Perspectives on the Economics of Patronage," argues that during the early years of Wisconsin's statehood, political patronage within the state legislature created a network of competing partisan newspapers.

It was published in the February 1989 edition of the AEJMC's publication, Journalism Monographs.

The $500 award was established by Catherine Covert, a member of the UI's School of Journalism and Mass Communication Hall of Fame. Covert earned a master's degree in mass communication from the UI.

Dyer is the first recipient of the award at the UI.

Recycling program seeks volunteers

The Recycling Committee of Environmental Advocates is sponsoring a citywide educational network to promote participation in existing recycling programs.

The Iowa City Recycles Neighborhood Block Program, modeled after a successful program in Boulder, Colo., will provide personal contact and instruction by volunteers in each neighborhood. A block coordinator will be assigned to each residential block of the city.

Volunteers for this program are needed to commit about one or two hours per month. Each coordinator will try to provide literature and answer questions about recycling, sorting techniques and locations for current dropsites.

For more information, leave a message at 338-5246 or write to Iowa City Recycles, Box 1831, Iowa City, 52244-1831.

UI study needs people with asthma

A new study of the safety and effectiveness of an investigational drug for asthma is being conducted at the UI College of Medicine.

Participants aged 12 to 60 who have at least a two-year documented history of asthma and who are not using steroidal drugs are needed for this study. People interested in taking part may call 356-1659 weekdays for more information. All medications and tests required for the study are provided at no charge to the participants.

Courts

By Jenny Hanna
The Daily Iowan

An Iowa City man was charged with first-degree robbery stemming from an incident that occurred Feb. 1, according to Johnson County District Court records.

The records state that Kent G. Kinyon, 34, Chatham Oaks, allegedly entered PrimeDesign, 32 S. Clinton St., on Feb. 1 and robbed the business of $339.81.

According to records, the defendant guided an employee of the business to the cash register while "pointing and jabbing" with his left hand inside his coat pocket.

The defendant reportedly said to the victim, "Come with me; don't say anything," and "This is a holdup," court records state.

The defendant was identified by the victim in a photo line-up, according to court records.

Preliminary hearing in the matter is set for Aug. 10.

A Tiffin man was charged with third-degree criminal mischief, according to Johnson County District Court records.

The records state Blaine O. Evans, 24, Tiffin, was involved in an altercation on Aug. 4, 1989.

At one point during the incident, Evans reportedly ordered one of the men involved in the altercation to get out of the truck he was in, court records state.

The records state that the defendant reportedly "punched the truck with his fists" into the driver's door when the man did not get out of the truck.

Damage to the truck was estimated at $460.38, according to court records.

Preliminary hearing in the matter is set for Aug. 21.

Summer rain has changed fall moving plans

Unfinished buildings leave some tenants nowhere to go

By Julie Swell
The Daily Iowan

Heavy rains early in the summer have left some Iowa City residents without homes as the beginning of the fall semester looms ahead.

The completion dates of several new apartment buildings in the Iowa City area have been pushed back because of heavy rainfall early in the summer that halted construction on the projects.

Tenants of Blackhawk Apartments, 319 E. Court St., will be homeless until their building is completed.

"We sympathize and we're doing the best that we can in these circumstances," said Nanette Scott, a bookkeeper at Lincoln Management, the company that manages Blackhawk Apartments.

The building was originally scheduled to be completed and ready for people to move in on Aug. 15. But on July 23, letters were sent to the new tenants of the 54-unit apartment building, stating that the building would not be completed until Aug. 30.

According to the letter, there is a paragraph in the lease signed by the Blackhawk tenants that states if the building is not completed by Aug. 30, the tenants have the option of terminating their leases.

"But there is a possibility the building may not be finished by the new completion date.

"It's being pushed," said Scott. "But we don't want to hurry through and have a dump. We want a nice building when we are finished."

"But Nancy Skay, owner of Lincoln Management, doubted anyone would terminate his or her lease because there is a lack of housing in Iowa City.

"We have a 54-unit apartment building, and four units have not been taken up yet, but they will probably be gone by the end of the week," Skay said.

While Blackhawk Apartments is being completed and is awaiting its occupancy permit, the tenants will have to find their own lodging, which has some tenants upset.

"A lot of people have been calling and wondering what to do. I know it's a shame, but there is really nothing that can be done," said Chris Traynor, a counselor at the Tenant-Landlord Association.

"The landlord is not responsible for finding another place for the tenant to live under any circumstances, even after you've signed a lease," Traynor added. "That would be an enormous cost for the landlord."

Lincoln Management offered to make reservations at the Westfield Inn, Highway 965 in Coralville, for any of its tenants who needed housing. The company would also pro-rate the rent — reduce the amount of rent paid proportional to the number of days the tenant is unable to live in the building.

Blackhawk Apartments is not alone in this situation, according to Dick Frantz, senior building inspector for Iowa City.

"Many projects across the city lost construction days due to the rains," Frantz said.

Eleven apartment buildings have been built or are under construction since January 1990 in an effort to meet the housing demand, according to Frantz.

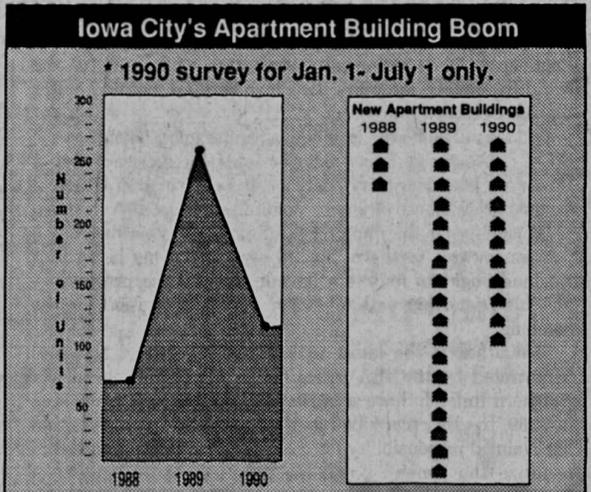

"I'm finding that people are picking up land closer (to campus) that was previously not up for sale," Frantz said. "They're trying to bring the market in."

Evan Matthews, a real estate agent with Century 21, agreed with Frantz that there is a demand for apartment buildings in the Iowa City area.

Capitol View Apartments (above), 630 S. Capitol St., completed last fall, is one of several apartment buildings constructed recently in Iowa City. Underground parking, swimming pools and barbecue areas are featured in some of the new buildings. At right, Blackhawk Apartments, 319 E. Court St., will be completed no sooner than Aug. 30. Heavy rains delayed the construction, which was to be completed Aug. 15. This will be a problem for some students who already signed leases, since fall classes begin Aug. 22.

"If there is an area zoned for an apartment building and if the land becomes available, than an apartment building will be built there because there is a demand for it,"

Matthews said.

"When the demand is filled, then no more apartments will be built. It's a simple investment and a good investment," he added.

Frantz said most of the apartments are redevelopments of land — new buildings being constructed where others once stood.

He said constructing a building is a difficult process that is carefully watched by the city.

"For a big building, we will do around 50 inspections while it's being built," Frantz said. "We also review all plans before the building permits are even issued to make sure they meet housing codes."

Frantz said none of the new apartment buildings is low-income housing.

IRA BOMBING

Just murderers

Monday's assassination of a British lawmaker by the Irish Republican Army graphically illustrates what most of the world has known for years: IRA members are nothing better than cold-blooded murderers.

Monday in Hankham, England, a bomb exploded beneath the car of Conservative Party member Ian Gow, a close friend of Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher and chairman of House of Commons Northern Ireland Committee. The IRA claimed responsibility for the murder, stating that Gow's conservative policies toward Northern Ireland — namely, his belief that England ought to maintain its authority in the province — and his friendship with Thatcher were justification for the bombing.

The attack is the latest in a series of terrorist activities perpetrated by the IRA in its opposition to British rule of Northern Ireland. Since sectarian violence erupted in the area in 1969, the IRA has killed four conservative lawmakers and has claimed responsibility for a series of bombings designed to terrorize the general population, tourists and members of Parliament.

On May 16 of this year, IRA members bombed a British army recruiting office, killing Sgt. Charles Chapman. They have also recently made strikes against the London Stock Exchange, a traditional Conservative Party hangout called the Carlton Club and a Royal Air Force base. Thatcher herself narrowly escaped with her life in a 1984 bombing of a hotel during a Conservative Party meeting. Five people were killed in that attack.

The IRA released a statement Tuesday that said, "the IRA will continue to strike wherever and whenever the opportunity arises."

But why?

It is understandable that certain Irish factions are upset with Britain's domination in Northern Ireland. But terrorist tactics hinder more than they help the cause for Irish independence. There is a battle that must be fought in the halls of Parliament, not in the streets of London. There is certainly some sympathy for Northern Ireland growing in the House of Commons, particularly among members of the Labor Party. And successful and respectable lobbying efforts, while slow and often tedious, will garner more respect than random bombings.

But the IRA leadership cannot seem to comprehend simple diplomacy. They don't even seem to understand the workings of government. A case in point: Gow was head of a committee that discusses the affairs of Northern Ireland, but that has no voice in legislation. Nevertheless, his name was on an IRA hit list.

IRA philosophy follows a twisted and convoluted course. Members seem to think they can scare politicians into submission. But their efforts are producing the wrong effects. Instead of fear, Thatcher's party and the Labor Party are resolute, regardless of members' personal views on Northern Ireland's situation. Both parties have condemned the attack — just as they have all the rest — and have expressed nothing but contempt and disdain for the organization. Furthermore, Thatcher has renewed with even more vigor her pledge to fight terrorism.

Northern Ireland may eventually receive independence from British rule, but IRA tactics only delay progress. The terrorists are creating only contempt and hatred for their own cause.

It was a strange subject to debate, even for the U.S. Senate. On the other hand, some scoffers will say it's basically what they talk about most of the time anyway.

While he was pondering the massive farm bill the other day, Sen. Steve Symms came across something he didn't like.

As he put it, "If my colleagues will note on page 1,052 of this bill, it explains that there is a program that calls to spend $19 million in order to have the Congress set up a study on methane from cattle as it relates to global warming and the greenhouse question.

"I, for one, am not ready to face my constituents and tell them they must be taxed so Congress can measure methane emissions from cows."

This touched off a lengthy exchange by several senators on the advisability of spending $19 million to study the methane emissions of cows and other barnyard creatures.

One senator didn't say much about flatulent cows. In fact, he seemed to go out of his way to avoid even mentioning the subject at hand. It may be that he has a delicate nature. But he objected to tampering with the farm bill because so much work had already gone into it.

But Sen. Richard Lugar was more specific. He said, "We take very seriously, on both sides of the aisle, the global warming dilemma. It is apparent that methane gas from livestock makes a contribution to that. The total extent of that contribution is not well-known, but we are finding more all the time."

But Symms was not persuaded. He said that if the rude cows were a problem, the Environmental Protection Agency should handle it, not some new $19 million agency.

"(The EPA has) right now a close estimate of how much methane is emitted (by farm animals) in the United States."

But Symms was finally persuaded to give the cow gas issue more thought so the Senate could move on to the bigger agricultural picture. He promised to ponder it further, but he warned:

"I appeal to my colleagues . . . and I do not want to force them to some embarrassing vote, but I think it is pretty hard to explain to the voters of the United States who feel they are already overtaxed."

After this exchange, I became curious and looked up the $19 million proposal to see how the Senate proposed to reduce the amount of gas currently being emitted by cows, sheep and other creatures.

Since I am a city person and know little of such matters, I didn't know what to expect.

I wondered if the $19 million would be used to dispatch a horde of heartless bureaucrats — armed with large corks and hammers — to farms and ranches across the land.

That would be a short-term solution, but, being an animal lover, I was alarmed by the thought of the long-term discomfort this would bring to the beasties.

But I was relieved to find that this was nothing more than your typical government program.

It would study, establish data, evaluate feasibility and options. Ah, always the feasibility and the options.

After the report, the government will "initiate studies and demonstration projects recommended under such report." You might as well learn to love "demonstration projects," since you spend millions on them.

As for the specifics on how to produce the nation's barnyard creatures to emit less methane, there wasn't much.

You might as well learn to love "demonstration projects," since you spend millions on them.

The senators appear to be hoping that the researchers can change the diets of the cows so they will be (how shall I put it?) more discreet. No, that isn't right. Cows will never learn to be discreet. They just do their thing. Restrained? No, they are set in their ways. That's the way they've always been and that's the way they'll always be.

We'll know the answers in a few years, which is when the study is expected to be completed, assuming those who conduct the study don't faint and just give up.

Anyway, this might be a first for the Senate. It often engages in debates that amount to BS. But this time the BS was actually about BS.

That's progress.

Misguided criticism

To the Editor:

In her criticism of "Dialogues of the Carmelites," Jacqueline Comito ["Poor diction mires UI's 'Dialogues,'" July 31, The Daily Iowan] took it upon herself to judge the validity of the opera based on her own moral framework.

Comito's article would have been more credible and effective if she had spent more time analyzing whether or not the work and the performance fulfilled its own artistic and dramatic ends, rather than using the DI as a vehicle to present her concept of morality. Additionally, it is difficult to take the criticism seriously when the author saw only the first half of the production. Much of the action and some surprising scene changes occurred in the second half.

It seems that a large portion of Comito's criticism was based on what she read in the program notes. The frustration that Comito had in not being able to make out all of the English dialogue is understandable, but she should understand that not all intelligibility problems in opera arise from poor diction. Among musicians and opera enthusiasts there have always been debates over whether text or musical line should be more prominent. If one concentrates on words alone, then perhaps the music is useless. Conversely, if music dominates, then the text is depleted. Which way is right?

In any case, opera communicates not only through words, but also through movement and music. Many people have enjoyed, as well as understood, opera sung in languages foreign to them just by the sheer force of the other media involved. It is hard to imagine that Comito was so obtuse as to find the entire first act incomprehensible, even to the point of walking out prematurely.

It is the job of a critic to determine what is good or bad in a work; it seems that the minimum requirement should be complete exposure to the work as well as a fundamental understanding of its potential problems and possibilities. We sensed a lack of both requirements in this particular critic.

Was she asleep?

To the Editor:

For many months I have followed the reviews of musical performances in The Daily Iowan. Many times I have been puzzled and dismayed at the scathing and unwarranted reviews of good performances. I must finally protest as I read the latest.

Jacqueline Comito's review of "Dialogues of the Carmelites," performed this past week by the UI Opera Theater, was as biased as it was inaccurate. I also attended the opera and despite my personal dislike for that work, I was surprised and delighted by the performance. Comito must have been asleep or on the mezzanine having dessert, because I and several acquaintances — all with seats in the balcony — heard the diction quite well. As for the other "shortcomings" mentioned by Comito, they were not so obvious to those of us with the idea of enjoying ourselves. I will concede that, as a student of opera, I noticed a few minor technical difficulties. However, I would be more apt to place the responsibility for the weaknesses with the libretto, not the performance.

It is obvious that Comito arrived at the opera with an artistic bone to pick, and if the performance had been by the New York Opera Company it would have received as poor a review. I would also be interested to discover by what standard of comparison Comito arrived at this review — especially since she did not view the entire performance — and what credentials she has that entitle her to such a biased and malicious attitude. It is childish to criticize something unduly just as an attempt to illustrate how much one knows about the subject.

I would suggest that in the future you employ staff who not only know but also appreciate good music when they hear it. I would not foist my opinion of art on the museum-going public as a review. Similarly, the DI should not have armchair musicians with superior attitudes telling the concert-going public what it heard and enjoyed was bad. Please start reviewing and stop prejudging.

Weak leadership

To the Editor:

Is it just me or does this whole mess involving Vice President Phillip Jones, Pepe Rojas-Cardona and the UI Student Senate reek of weak leadership?

Prior to entering the UI's graduate student program, I spent several years traveling extensively on business, so I am familiar with the temptations that members of the UISS obviously faced. The temptation to "write it off as an expense" does exist and will always exist regardless of what guidelines are written to spell out right from wrong. I have yet to find a person who reads such guidelines!

Average people know when they are abusing the fiscal system or not when they buy alcohol, train tickets or whatever. It matters not whether these actions are specifically mentioned in some policy or guideline. My point is that whether or not the actions of Rojas-Cardona were right or wrong within the confines of UI policy, his integrity was compromised and his leadership position weakened by these actions.

But let's not start throwing all the stones at Rojas-Cardona and the Student Senate. Let's face it, everyone will tend to test the system, be it right or wrong to do so. My question is, after the students tested the system a few times, why didn't Jones have a little pow-wow with these semi-regular students and show them the light? Maybe something like "Cut this crap out right now or I'll see you tossed out on your ear" would have brought a screeching halt to the abuses. Maybe such action would have caused Jones to overstep his "advisorial authority," but the buck has to stop somewhere.

But no. Instead of just dealing with the problem, we had internal audits conducted by committees — which seem to be the vehicle of choice in such situations because accountability is diffused — and even an external audit that cost $8,000.

Maybe $8,000 for an independent, external audit was worth it owing to Jamie Butters' ["Advice, not catharsis," July 27, DI] description of the "systematic financial inadequacies" of the UI budgetary process. However, I am of the opinion that guidelines, audits and monitoring are all very poor substitutes for strong leadership that knows how to say, "Enough is enough."

Unfair parking fees

To the Editor:

We are all aware that parking arrangements in the Iowa City/UI area have been festering like thorns in the UI community's side for years. However, the recent decision to charge night-shift employees of the UI to park in UI lots is not the solution to the problem. To subject employees who earn less than $14,000 annually to pay a monthly $8.50 charge to park their vehicles is simply ludicrous.

Take for example the staff members who clean our campus during evening hours. They leave their work sites at the darkest and most dangerous parts of the night, often in deep snow that has not been cleared. In the past these people have been ticketed and fined for parking in otherwise empty lots that are located near the buildings where they work. They wish only to reduce their chances of being attacked and their vulnerability to excessive weather elements.

Current lot permit holder fees were just recently raised. Was this not sufficient to cover operating expenses? This seems inconsistent with the statement to the press that the 24-hour permits would more evenly spread the costs among all users. Will the permit fees be proportionately reduced for the permit holders whose fees were recently increased? It appears to many employees that this latest plan is just an effort to pay for the newest parking ramp, and that permit fees for everyone will only increase.

Asking this select group of people to pay to come to their jobs will only lower morale. I and many others strongly urge the dismissal of this latest scheme to boost the parking services' budget.

Jack L. Simmonds

Another problem

To the Editor:

I find it alarming that the administration at the UI Hospitals and Clinics would endorse parking fees for their evening and overnight personnel. If they continue to decrease the benefits given to these employees who work the less desirable hours at the time when there already exists a severe shortage of medical technologists and nurses, the UIHC may have to confront another problem: compromised patient care due to lack of evening and overnight staff.

Gas prices will rise in the U.S. due to Iraqi attack on Kuwait

By Vivian Marino
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Consumers are likely to see at least a nickel-a-gallon jump at the gas pumps as early as Labor Day, and higher heating oil prices later on, because of Iraq's invasion of Kuwait, energy experts said Thursday.

Wholesale energy prices already have soared in reaction to concern that oil production and shipments might be disrupted in the Middle East — the source of about a quarter of U.S. oil imports.

Experts say it's difficult to predict exactly how much consumer prices will rise. But they said it was clear that consistently higher costs on the wholesale side would trickle down to consumers.

"It looked like this was going to be a nice summer but (Iraqi President) Saddam Hussein has changed that," said Peter Beutel, a trader and vice president for Merrill Lynch Energy Futures.

Iraq invaded and seized control of its much smaller neighbor at the northern tip of the Persian Gulf early Thursday. The attack followed weeks of tension between the two countries over Iraqi accusations that Kuwait stole oil from Iraqi territory and was costing Iraq billions of dollars in revenue by overproducing and helping depress the price of oil.

Iraq and Kuwait produce one-fifth of the OPEC total but account for only an estimated 5 percent of daily U.S. consumption. In response to the invasion, President Bush embargoed Iraq's 588,000 barrels a day of oil imports to this country, a cutoff that analysts said could be made up from other countries.

The greater concern was over whether the Iraqi threat would spread, disrupting supplies from major U.S. suppliers like Saudi Arabia.

Wholesale prices already had been rising in recent days in reaction to an agreement by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, of which Kuwait and Iraq are members, to restrain crude production in order to raise the price of its oil to a target of $21 a barrel.

On Thursday, the September contract for West Texas Intermediate, the benchmark grade of U.S. crude, jumped $1.57 to settle at $23.11 for a 42-gallon barrel on the New York Mercantile Exchange. The contract for the crude had traded in the low $16 range earlier this summer.

Among refined petroleum products, unleaded gasoline for September delivery settled up 3.8 cents to 68.07 cents a gallon.

The general rule of thumb, according to industry experts, is every dollar rise in the barrel of crude oil means a rise of two cents to a nickel per gallon at the pumps.

Beutel predicted home heating oil prices would rise at least a nickel a gallon by the fall due to the impact of the invasion. Prices at the gas pumps could rise between 5 and 10 cents a gallon by Labor Day, he said.

Iraq chastised by Iran for invasion of Kuwait

The Associated Press

NICOSIA, Cyprus — Iran on Thursday chided its Persian Gulf neighbors for ignoring its warnings about dealing with Iraq, its opponent in a bitter and bloody eight-year war.

Iran's foreign ministry condemned Iraq's invasion of Kuwait and urged an immediate withdrawal of Iraqi forces. The ministry's statement, carried by Tehran Radio and monitored in Nicosia, also warned that Iran considers the invasion a threat to regional "stability and security."

The Arab states of the Persian Gulf backed Iraq with billions of dollars in the 1980-88 war with Iran. Kuwait has been insisting on repayment of war debts, infuriating Iraq's President Saddam Hussein.

Iran said "recent developments are the consequence of past collaboration with the aggressor" and added that it had "repeatedly pointed out to the regional countries" the threat posed by Iraq.

The Iran-Iraq war ended in a cease-fire in August 1988, but no formal peace treaty has been signed.

Officials in Trinidad try to restore order

By Susana Hayward
The Associated Press

PORT-OF-SPAIN, Trinidad — A government official Thursday dismissed as "completely invalid" a resignation pledge that the prime minister gave to Muslim rebels who shot him during a six-day hostage siege.

The renunciation of Arthur N.R. Robinson's promise to rebels came one day after the extremists released their last 46 hostages and surrendered to authorities.

During the attempted coup and related looting, 30 people were killed and 150 wounded, according to government spokesman Gregory Shaw. However, that figure did not include bodies believed buried under rubble at the Parliament and police station.

Government officials in this Caribbean island off northeast Venezuela were struggling Thursday to restore order.

Soldiers and police combed the capital, Port-of-Spain, for car bombs. They evacuated about 3,000 people from their homes.

Security forces fired warning shots at looters still plaguing the capital, and a state of emergency remained in effect.

Soldiers reported scattered exchanges of gunfire, including a battle Wednesday night in the Champs Fleurs area. Some of the rebels' relatives were believed to be there.

The Muslim rebels launched their revolt Friday by storming Parliament and broadcast buildings in the capital. They took 55 hostages, including Robinson and other government leaders, and rebel leader Abu Bakr declared his forces to be in control of the country.

However, the uprising never attracted popular support, and government forces surrounded the rebels and their captives. The stand-off ended Wednesday with the release of the hostages and the surrender of 112 rebels.

At a press conference Thursday, Shaw denied any deal had been struck with the insurgents.

Shaw said the rebel captors had told Robinson to broadcast his resignation.

"The prime minister said 'I cannot do that. You'll have to kill me first,'" Shaw said. "That's when he was shot."

He said Robinson, who had been shot in the leg, finally signed an agreement late Friday or Saturday to resign, turn over power to a caretaker government until elections were held and grant the rebels amnesty.

The normally bustling center of Port-of-Spain is now filled with looted and burned-out stores, streets filled with garbage, and people without work following a five-day siege against the government that left 30 people dead.

However, Shaw said the rebels "surrendered unconditionally and are now in military custody."

He said any agreements signed by the prime minister were made "under gunpoint" and thus "completely invalid."

Robinson, who also suffers from glaucoma, was released by the rebels Tuesday. He was reported in satisfactory condition Thursday at St. Clair's Medical Clinic, a private facility.

Shaw said the rebels finally surrendered because "their nerves were cracking."

"They were getting tired," he said. "I believe the government and military worked out a strategy and let's face it, the strategy worked."

Bakr is a former policeman who converted to Islam and considers himself a champion of the downtrodden. He had accused Robinson of corruption and blamed him for widespread poverty in this once oil-rich nation of 1.3 million people.

Rebels free American abducted in Philippines

The Associated Press

BACOLOD, Philippines — An American Peace Corps worker freed Thursday after being held 50 days by Communist rebels said he was tired, happy and eager to get home.

Timothy Swanson, 26, of Cheyenne, Wyo., was handed over to a Red Cross team in a rural area on the central Philippine island of Negros, not far from where he was abducted on June 13.

"It's just great. It's just wonderful news," Swanson's father, Leonard, told radio station KRAE in Cheyenne after learning of his son's release.

"You feel like a whole big weight has been taken off," said his mother, Lynn.

President Bush, who met briefly with Swanson's parents when he visited Cheyenne on July 20, called Thursday morning with his best wishes, they said.

"I'm tired. I'm very happy," Swanson told reporters after his release. "They treated me well. I'm OK and I want to go home."

U.S. Ambassador Nicholas Platt welcomed Swanson's release, saying the embassy is "relieved that he is safe, unharmed and apparently in good health."

The United States ordered the evacuation of Peace Corps workers in the Philippines on June 27 because intelligence information indicated the Communist rebels might try to kill or kidnap them.

By that time, Swanson was already in rebel hands.

Atlanta's archbishop resigns due to 'intimate relationship'

By Luran Neergaard
The Associated Press

ATLANTA — Archbishop Eugene Marino gave up his post as the nation's highest-ranking black Roman Catholic after the church began investigating his "intimate relationship" with a woman, his successor said Thursday.

Bishop James Lyke, appointed acting administrator of the Atlanta archdiocese after Marino's departure, declined to say if the relationship was a sexual one or if Marino was asked to quit.

"I assume that as the result of a two-year relationship, X-Y-Z would have happened," Lyke said at a news conference.

The woman once filed a paternity suit against another priest.

Marino is believed to be the first U.S. archbishop to resign over an intimate relationship. And his departure has underscored the continuing debate over the celibacy of church priests.

The relationship, first reported Wednesday, came to the attention of church officials this spring with an anonymous tip, Lyke said at a news conference. An investigation was begun May 3, and Marino agreed to relinquish administration of the archdiocese until the investigation was complete, he said.

Correction
 NEW YORK (AP) — The Associated Press reported erroneously on July 31 that George Steinbrenner had proposed to commissioner Fay Vincent the penalty that was imposed on the New York Yankees owner, amounting to a lifetime ban. The commissioner changed his original proposal, but he said the final penalty was his idea and not Steinbrenner's.

Hoover

look to defend their 1989 national championship in this year's event. The 1989 champions from Mercy Hospital and last year's runner-up from the Iowa City Tennis and Fitness Center are also expected, Sailor said.

The Mercy Hospital team has been promoting the sport for the past three years, including an exhibition in front of over 5,000 fans at halftime of an Iowa-Purdue women's basketball game at Carver-Hawkeye Arena.

"Mercy Hospital got involved and continued to promote it," Schulze said. "We do demonstrations to show that it isn't as bad as people think."

Hoover-ball is also played in regular leagues throughout the year at the Iowa City Tennis and Fitness Center. Teams compete inside during the winter and outside in fall and summer leagues.

The original 15 Hoover-ball teams all came from Iowa, but Sailor said that the base of interest has broadened to other states, such as Illinois and Missouri. Sailor said he is hopeful that a team from Wyoming will also be in attendance this year.

"We're trying — just slowly and surely — to get this back going again," Sailor said.

Part of the Hoover Library Association's plans for the expansion of Hoover-ball includes applying for its addition to the 1991 Iowa Games and a small tour of Washington, D.C., planned for this fall, Sailor said.

"That would broaden our base," Sailor said. "One thing we'd like to do eventually is to play on the White House lawn again."

For the present, though, Schulze noted the emphasis of Hoover-ball is the Iowa City leagues and the annual West Branch tournament.

"(Hoover-ball) is still very unknown," Schulze said, "but people continue to hear about it. Hopefully that will make it more well-known. It seems (southern Iowa) may be the hub of Hoover-ball."

day because of a sore arm and knee.

He is expected to run the offense for about 15 plays in Saturday's scrimmage at the University of Tampa.

Marino passed for 3,997 yards and 34 touchdowns last season and the Dolphins' passing game ranked third in the NFL. However, their rushing game ranked 27th, a major reason for an 8-8 season.

Cardinals
 Pro Bowl punter Rich Camarillo arrived in the Cardinals' camp and signed a two-year contract.

Camarillo reportedly signed for $575,000, with $275,000 this season. He made about $180,000 in 1989 when he was signed by Phoenix as a Plan B free agent.

Chargers
 Defensive end Lee Williams, his demands for a renegotiated contract rebuffed, is expected to abandon his walkout and return to the Chargers' training camp Saturday.

Williams, who has made the Pro Bowl each of the past two seasons, walked out of camp Saturday. He's in the third year of a five-year contract that will pay $750,000 this season, with the chance to make another $75,000 based on incentive clauses.

Williams said former General Manager Steve Ortmyer promised him the renegotiation.

But new General Manager Bobby Beathard threatened to fine Williams up to $1,500 a day and suspend him without pay for the season unless he returned.

Kuwait

said the coup report was a farce.

In Baghdad, the Revolutionary Command Council led by President Saddam Hussein issued a statement saying Iraq intervened in support of "The Provisional Government of Free Kuwait." It said the government was made up of "revolutionary youths."

The provisional government announced through Baghdad's official Iraqi News Agency that it was dissolving parliament and would hold "free and honest elections" at a future date.

Iraq also warned foreign governments against coming to Kuwait's aid.

"Our armed forces will close in an iron rank against those who try to challenge us and will make Iraq and Kuwait a graveyard for those who launch any aggression," a statement on official Baghdad radio said.

Iraq began threatening Kuwait two weeks ago after accusing it of stealing oil from a border region claimed by both nations. It also accused Kuwait of depriving it of oil revenues by cheating on OPEC production quotas, thus driving down oil prices.

Talks to resolve the dispute broke down Wednesday, and diplomats said Iraq had moved about 100,000 soldiers to the Kuwait border. Kuwait's armed forces total 20,300 soldiers.

Early Thursday, about 350 Iraqi tanks wheeled into the capital after crossing the border 40 miles away, diplomats said. Within two hours, they had taken the emir's palace. Residents of the area said about 50 tanks surrounded the palace and the neighboring American Embassy.

One of the emir's brothers, Sheik Fahd al-Ahmed al-Sabah, was killed trying to defend the palace, diplomats said.

There are about 4,000 Americans in Kuwait. A White House spokesman said there were no reports of casualties among them.

Germany

in Kohl's government, suggested unification of the two Germans should be moved forward to this fall.

Cornelia Schmalz-Jacobsen, the party's general secretary, told Die Welt newspaper that East Germany should join West Germany under Bonn's constitution as soon as possible, because of East Germany's severe financial problems.

"The quicker, the better — if possible on Oct. 14," she was quoted as saying in Friday's editions of the paper, made available early to other media.

Oct. 14 is the date set for East German elections that will create five state governments to mirror West Germany's federal system.

But another Free Democrat in the West German Parliament said the party only wanted East Germany to declare by that date when it intended to merge with the West.

"The idea is to give a statement early in October to make everybody clear that reunification will be definitely in December before the election," the source said on condition of anonymity. "It's a psychological moment, especially for industry so they can go forward and make their investments."

East Germany has yet to set a date for the merger with West Germany.

Karl-Heinz Hornhues, vice chairman of the governing coalition in West Germany's Parliament, acknowledged there was growing pressure for quick merger.

"I think more and more are thinking it could be the best when it comes earlier," he said.

The international questions of German unification — the Polish border question, Soviet troop withdrawal and NATO membership for united Germany — have been worked out, he said.

With the election details agreed upon, the only question left is the unification treaty, under negotiation, that will lay out the legal and constitutional merger.

Eagles, Oilers agree on McPherson trade

DI wire services

WEST CHESTER, Pa. — The Philadelphia Eagles announced an agreement Thursday to trade backup quarterback Don McPherson to the Houston Oilers for a 1991 draft choice.

Following the July signing of quarterback Jim McMahon to back up starter Randall Cunningham, McPherson made it clear that he would not report to the Eagles' training camp in West Chester.

Eagles president Harry Gamble said McPherson still must sign a contract with the club before the trade is final. He said McPherson's agent and the Oilers are working on a contract.

The Eagles will get an undisclosed draft choice in 1991. The choice is conditional, meaning that the more McPherson plays for Houston, the better the Eagles' pick.

Sportsbriefs

The Iowa men's sports information office received three Citations for Excellence in the College Sports Information Directors of America (CoSIDA) Publications Contests for the 1989-90 academic year.

Former assistant SID Steve Malchow was awarded third place in the nation in Division A wrestling brochures, fifth for Division A swimming brochures and best cover for Division A gymnastics brochures.

Division A includes all NCAA Division I schools, and the number of awards in each category is based on the number of entries with no more than seven place winners per division.

Malchow recently resigned from his position at Iowa to become the sports information director at Wisconsin.

Katrina Douglas of England, recovering from a wasp sting during a practice round, shot a 4-under-par 69 Thursday to take the first-round lead in the British Women's Open in Woburn, England.

Tied for second, one stroke back, were South Korean-born American Pearl Sinn, Karine Espinasse of France and Sweden's Helen Alfredsson.

Douglas, a day after being stung on the thigh, single-putted her way to the front of the field after a bogey-free round.

Four of her eight single putts were to save pars after she had played out of bunkers and three more were for birdies.

Two strokes off the lead was Muffin Spencer-Devlin, a 36-year-old American who has finished second and third in the competition and is aiming for her first victory.

It was Spencer-Devlin's first appearance at Woburn since she was disqualified from a tournament in April for an outburst at a post-am dinner.

Top-seeded Boris Becker and local favorites Thomas Muster and Horst Skoff scored victories Thursday and advanced to the quarterfinals of the Austrian Open in Kitzbuehel, Austria.

Becker played unevenly but managed to oust Sweden's David Engel 6-4, 4-6, 6-0.

Muster, seeded fourth, beat Marian Vajda of Czechoslovakia, 6-3, 6-0, and will face Skoff in the quarterfinals. The sixth-seeded Skoff beat Spain's Tomas Carbonell 6-2, 6-0.

A third Austrian, 10th-seeded Anton Antonitsch, was beaten by Czechoslovakia's Karel Novacek, 6-3, 6-7 (4-7), 6-4.

The Iowa City Swim Club, Inc. will be hosting teams from surrounding states in the annual Zone Meet.

Competition will begin tonight at the Mercer Park Aquatic Center with finals on Sunday.

Forget about a Ben Johnson-Carl Lewis race in 1990.

The earliest they will meet now is 1991.

A source, who asked not to be identified, told The Associated Press on Thursday that the eagerly-awaited showdown between the world's two fastest sprinters would not be held this year.

"It doesn't make any sense from a training and a preparation standpoint," the source said. "There's possibly a lot of money going to be lost, but basically, Ben is going to start his season indoors (in 1991)."

Johnson confirmed it in a published report. "I'm not planning any matchup like that this year," he was quoted as saying in the French sports newspaper L'Equipe. "I want people to leave me alone so I can regain my form, and I refuse to give in to the pressure (to face Lewis)."

Unser suffers multiple injuries in crash at Marlboro practice

By Mike Harris
The Associated Press

BROOKLYN, Mich. — Four-time Indianapolis 500 winner Al Unser broke his collarbone, his right thigh and had multiple rib injuries Thursday in a crash during practice for Sunday's Marlboro 500 at Michigan International Speedway.

Observers said the 51-year-old Unser, from Albuquerque, N.M., hit the wall after the front suspension broke as he drove through turns three and four on the two-mile, high-banked oval.

His new Alfa Romeo-powered Lola was badly damaged in the crash and the CART safety crew tore it apart further getting Unser out of the tangled wreckage.

Unser's top lap of the opening practice session was 208.412 mph.

Jim McGee, team manager for Patrick Racing, said, "I was talking to Al on the radio as he was in the car. He was stuck in the car and they (CART's safety crew) had to cut him out.

"Al said he felt the car bottom in the corner and then it went straight into the wall. Al had tested about 170 miles this week at Indy and everything seemed very good with the car."

The longtime Indy-car star, only a part-time performer on the circuit this season, was transported to W.A. Foote Hospital in nearby Jackson, Mich. Track officials said Unser was conscious and alert.

Dr. Terry Trammell, an orthopedic specialist from Indianapolis and director of medical services for CART's safety team, said Unser would likely be transferred later Thursday by air to Methodist Hospital in Indianapolis where he would undergo surgery for his injuries.

In his Indy-car career, which began in 1964, Unser has 39 victories, 27 pole positions and earnings of nearly $6 million. He won the series championship in 1970, 1983 and 1985,

NANCY JOHNSON SOAP OPERA REVIEW

Esther has a girl on Y&R

By Nancy Johnson

ALL MY CHILDREN: Trevor told Natalie he loves her. Erica denied Mona's suggestion that Erica's marriage is less than perfect. Tad cozied up to Ceara to make Brooke jealous.

ANOTHER WORLD: Jake warned Donna not to upset his chances of reconciling with Marley. Cass rescued Frankie and Ryan from an armed Ted. Vicky dumped a drink on Ryan's head.

AS THE WORLD TURNS: Holden fumed when Angel made a big deal of kissing him in front of Lily. Lyla heard a tape recording of Casey asking Margo to disconnect his life support.

THE BOLD AND THE BEAUTIFUL: Margo asked Stephanie to discourage Felicia's interest in Jake. Eric asked Brooke how she would feel if Ridge started pursuing her romantically again.

DAYS OF OUR LIVES: April tipped Emilio that Johnny isn't on the up-and-up when he wanted to be Emilio's manager. Bo told his son, Shawn-Douglas, that Hope is never coming back.

GENERAL HOSPITAL: Carla came close to telling Colton where Decker is hiding out. Monica made an enemy of Ned when she told the family (except for Lucy) about their affair.

GENERATIONS: Jessica wants to help Reginald run the art gallery, but doesn't know he is dealing in stolen art. Kyle went to make up with Sam, but failed to find Jordan with her.

GUIDING LIGHT: A memorial service was held for Reva, but Josh doesn't believe she is dead. Rusty returned for the memorial service. Harley will continue as Marah and Shayne's nanny.

LOVING: After seeing Paul vinsky with Ava, Alex and her she is doing with his belief Paul, who said he would never her or Louie. A woman fired about Jack.

ONE LIFE TO LIVE: A series of explosions occurred on Backdoor Bo, Marco, Sarah, Megan, Tina and Jake tried to escape. Viki said she was not feeling after she was shot.

SANTA BARBARA: Mason and Cassandra to work as his secretary. Quinn perfected his impersonation of Robert. Hunt, Robert and Kelly are a South American jail.

THE YOUNG AND THE RESTLESS: David panicked when he found a brooch he had once given his ex-wife. Esther had a big Brad is pressuring Ashley to get married.

Dickerson wants end to holdout

The Associated Press

Eric Dickerson has softened his stance and appears ready to return to the Indianapolis Colts.

Dickerson, disillusioned because he has yet to win a Super Bowl ring in seven pro seasons, had threatened not to play for the Colts this season because he didn't feel the team had a chance to win the NFL championship.

But Thursday he said, "I just want to play football. . . I'm ready to get back."

Dickerson, who is due to make $1.45 million this year with an option year left on his contract, has not reported to the Colts and has demanded to be traded.

He said the dispute wasn't financial but motivated instead by frustration at never having played in a Super Bowl — "not getting that ring."

Packers

Fullback Brent Fullwood agreed to sign a two-year contract with Green Bay and ended his holdout, his agent said.

Ulice Payne said the deal was reached after he, Fullwood and Packers negotiator Tom Braatz resolved differences on incentive bonuses.

Payne said he and Fullwood had been seeking bonus money based on the percentage of offensive plays that Fullwood was on the field, but the Packers were more interested in tying the incentives to yards gained and the two sides compromised, combining elements of both.

Bears

Chicago can't wait to play its first exhibition game, so fans can forget about last season.

"We just want to get the season started because of what happened last year," rookie safety Mark Carrier said.

What happened in 1989 was the Bears went 6-10, missing the NFL playoffs after five straight NFC Central Division titles.

"We have to prove we're a better team than we were last year," Coach Mike Ditka said.

The Bears get a chance to start showing how good they are Saturday, playing the Cleveland Browns in the Hall of Fame game at Canton, Ohio.

Redskins

Running back Gerald Riggs, Washington's leading rusher last season, agreed to terms.

Riggs was the most prominent of four veteran holdouts. Linemen Darryl Grant and Markus Koch and linebacker Ravin Caldwell remain unsigned.

Terms of Riggs' contract weren't released. Riggs was seeking a four-year deal worth about $1 million annually.

49ers

Veteran nose tackle Jim Burt said an injured left hamstring injury had more to do with his late reporting to the 49ers camp than financial considerations.

Burt, who signed a two-year contract worth a reported $1 million Thursday, was on the field for his first workout.

"I had this nagging injury and I wanted to see how it turned out," said Burt, adding that retirement was one of his options.

Dolphins

Coach Don Shula wants the pass-happy Dolphins to have a more balanced offense this season. Playing without quarterback Dan Marino isn't what he had in mind.

Marino missed workout against the Tampa Bay Buccaneers Thursday.

Todd Zinkula, a member of the 1989 Hoover-ball national champion Fat Boys, prepares to return the medicine ball during the championship tournament of the Iowa City summer Hoover-ball league at the Iowa City Tennis and Fitness Center Wednesday.

Hoover-ball leagues 'catching' attention

By Brian Gaul
The Daily Iowan

Former U.S. President Herbert Hoover has left a legacy on southern Iowa, but it probably isn't one he expected.

Hoover-ball, a game played by the president and numerous White House executives during Hoover's term in office, has taken off as a sport in Iowa and much of the Midwest.

"It kind of caught us by surprise how much interest there was (in Hoover-ball)," said Scott Sailor, special events coordinator for the Hoover Presidential Library Association in West Branch, Iowa. "Once you hear about it or play it, you're hooked."

"(Hoover-ball) is in its infantile stages, but its growing," said Jeff Schulze, a member of the Hoover Heavers team from Mercy Hospital in Iowa City that won the 1988 national title. "Once you start playing, you get intrigued by the game."

Hoover-ball — a combination of tennis, volleyball and medicine ball — was played by President Hoover and various officials almost daily on the White House lawn from 1929 to 1933.

The game is played on a court 66 feet long and 30 feet wide. Teams consist of 2-4 players who toss a 6-pound medicine ball over an 8-foot volleyball net.

The score is kept as it is in tennis, with teams scoring points if their opponent fails to catch the ball or to return it over the net.

"It's popular because it's a simple game to pick up," Sailor said. "You can learn to play in five minutes." Schulze said the biggest problem for beginners is a fear of the incoming, 6-pound ball.

"For most people, the first initial reaction is fear — when it hits, what's going to happen," Schulze said. "When you get over that, it's not so bad."

But Sailor said that serving can also present some problems.

"When people first catch the ball, they think, 'That's not so bad,'" Sailor said. "But when they get to serving — 33 feet away, with an 8-foot net — what looked easy at first doesn't anymore."

"The first reaction is disbelief. But when we get them playing, they're hooked."

The game was created by White House physician Admiral Joel T. Boone in 1928 to help Hoover stay physically fit. Hoover reportedly lost 25 pounds during his four-year term, thanks in part to the game.

It disappeared after Hoover's defeat in the 1932 election until 1988, when the Hoover Library Association revived it as part of their annual commemoration of Hoover's birth in West Branch on August 10, 1874.

Fifteen teams played for the national championship in West Branch that year, and the field expanded to 29 teams last year. According to Sailor, from 36 to 44 teams are expected for this year's tournament as the sport continues to grow.

The entry deadline is Aug. 10 for the Open, Coed, and Women's Divisions, but Sailor indicated that applications would be accepted until the day of the tournament. Applications can be obtained from the Hoover Library Association by calling 1-800-828-0475 or can be picked up at the tournament site.

"You get a free t-shirt for getting hit by a six-pound medicine ball," Sailor said. "I don't know if it's worth it."

Football tickets still available

By Brian Gaul
The Daily Iowan
and The Associated Press

Thanks to the expansion of Kin-nick Stadium, almost 3,000 tickets are still available for Iowa's home football games this fall, according to ticket manager Mike Naughton.

Approximately 2,600 new seats, mostly in the pie-shaped corners of the end zone, were added to Kin-nick this spring. The stadium's new capacity will be about 70,300, compared to 67,700 before the addition.

The expansion means more tickets are available to the public, Naughton said.

Non-student season tickets, which cost $108 for six home games, or single game tickets, which cost $18, can be ordered from the Iowa ticket office in Carver-Hawkeye Arena or by phone at (319) 335-9327.

Student tickets are also available this fall at $42 for the six games.

"We have been getting inquiries and orders have been trickling in," Naughton said. "It's safe to say we have about 3,000 (tickets) left."

Naughton said he hoped many people who previously thought season tickets were scarce will now take the opportunity to order them or order more of them.

"It's just a matter of getting the word out to the people on the outside who are assuming tickets aren't available," Naughton said.

Iowa Football Tickets

Tickets for the 1990 Iowa football season are on sale at the following prices:

- Non-student season tickets-$108 (includes 6 games).
- Student season tickets-$42(includes 6 games).
- Non-student single game tickets-$18.

Tickets are available at the Iowa Ticket Office located in Carver-Hawkeye Arena.
For more information, call (319)335-9327.

The ticket manager indicated that ideas that Iowa season tickets were not readily available, as was the case in the early 1980s, may be keeping ticket sales down. Iowa has not turned down an order for season tickets since 1987, he said.

Overall, ticket sales on the public side are up while faculty sales are down by about 800, Naughton said.

Naughton also said that student ticket sales were up for the "early order period", which he said was partly because of a new UI policy which allows students to charge football tickets on their U-bills.

The Hawkeyes have sold out 58 consecutive home games. Naughton said he was hopeful that streak would extend to 64 games this fall.

"We expect to have strong attendance, as usual," Naughton said.

The Hawkeyes' six home games this fall are: Cincinnati on Sept. 15, Iowa State on Sept. 22, Wisconsin on Oct. 13, Northwestern on Oct. 27, Ohio State on Nov. 10 and Purdue on Nov. 17.

Coleman double helps Cards win Torre debut

The Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA — Joe Torre led the Cardinals to victory in his first game as manager as St. Louis beat the Philadelphia Phillies 4-3 Thursday night behind Vince Coleman's three-run double in the sixth inning.

Bob Tewksbury (6-3) allowed two runs and eight hits in five innings and Lee Smith pitched two innings for his 18th save in 20 opportunities.

Cardinals center fielder Willie McGee went 0-for-3 with two walks, ending his 22-game hitting streak.

White Sox 4, Brewers 3

MILWAUKEE — Two players making their major-league debuts, pitcher Alex Fernandez and first baseman Frank Thomas, helped the Chicago White Sox beat the Milwaukee Brewers 4-3 in the opener of Thursday's two-night doubleheader.

Fernandez, the White Sox' first selection in the June amateur draft, held the Brewers to two runs and five hits in seven innings but lost his chance for the victory when Barry Jones gave up the tying run in the eighth.

Mets 5, Expos 1

MONTREAL — Darryl Strawberry broke an 0-for-18 slump with a two-run homer and an RBI single and Frank Viola became the first National League pitcher to win 15 games as the New York Mets beat the Montreal Expos 5-1 Thursday.

Strawberry snapped a 1-1 tie with a run-scoring single off Dennis Martinez (7-8) during a two-run sixth inning, then slammed his 26th homer, tops in the NL, in a three-run eighth.

Pirates 8, Cubs 5

CHICAGO — Bobby Bonilla drove in three runs with two home runs and a double and Andy Van Slyke and Barry Bonds hit two-run homers, leading Pittsburgh past Chicago. The victory kept the second-place Pirates one game behind the Mets in the NL East.

Van Slyke hit his 11th homer in the first inning after Jay Bell singled, and Bonilla followed with his 22nd homer. It was the third time this year the Pirates hit successive homers and each time it was by Van Slyke and Bonilla.

Padres 8, Reds 5

CINCINNATI — Joe Carter drove in five runs with a double and a home run and helped send Cincinnati to its ninth loss in 11 games.

NFL sets draft guidelines, limits scouts, mini-camps

The Associated Press

NEW YORK — College juniors planning to declare for the NFL draft will be required to do so by Feb. 1 under a new set of guidelines set down by Commissioner Paul Tagliabue on Thursday.

The Feb. 1 date was one of a series of steps to modify the NFL's college relations policies. They were outlined in letters sent by Tagliabue to Dick Schultz, executive director of the NCAA, Charlie McClendon, executive director of the American Football Coaches Association, and Chuck Neinas, executive director of the College Football Association.

The NFL said it would also increase the number of draft-eligible players brought in for athletic testing and evaluations at the annual scouting combine and limit off-season mini-camps to three days, two of which must fall on Saturday and Sunday, until the end of the academic semester. Prior policy had permitted unlimited mini-camps.

College officials had expressed dismay at interference in the academic process by pro scouts and tryout camps which caused many players to leave school.

Tagliabue also created a committee chaired by George Young, general manager of the New York Giants, to meet with college football representatives on these topics. Also serving on the committee are Denver GM John Beake; San Diego GM Bobby Beathard; Frank Gilliam, Minnesota's director of player personnel; Ken Herock, Atlanta's vice president of player personnel, and Dick Steinberg, vice president and general manager of the New York Jets. The committee will work with college officials to develop limitations on off-campus activities conducted by NFL clubs before the draft.
