36 members of Iraqi Embassy staff expelled

By George Gedda
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The State Department on Monday ordered the expulsion of 36 members of the Iraqi Embassy staff and imposed strict travel limits on the 19 envoys allowed to remain.

Spokeswoman Margaret Tutwiler said the move came in response to the "illegal order" by Iraqi authorities to close the U.S. Embassy in Kuwait. The State Department has refused to comply with that order.

The count of 19 Iraqis permitted to remain in the United States, including Ambassador Mohamed Al-Mashat, reflects the same number of Americans accredited to the U.S. embassies in Iraq and Kuwait.

At a news conference at his Maine vacation home, President Bush said the United States was "trying to keep a reasonable parallel in terms of numbers."

He also noted that although many Americans cannot leave Iraq or Kuwait, Iraqis in this country won't be detained.

"Nobody will be held against their will," Bush said. "They're all free to go."

The expelled Iraqis were given 72 hours to leave the country, a U.S. official said. Among those expelled are seven accredited diplomats, including all those who deal with commercial affairs.

Diplomats at Iraq's U.N. mission in New York City are not affected by the order.

"I don't think it was warranted or called for," Sami Jabbari of the Iraqi Embassy press office here said about the expulsion order. "It is just part of the nerve war by the U.S. authorities because they don't want a solution."

Tutwiler said the Iraqi diplomats allowed to remain in the United States will be restricted to travel within a 25-mile radius of Washington.

In addition, all Iraqi diplomatic visas will be changed from multiple entry to single entry, tighter controls will be imposed on unofficial Iraqis wishing to visit the United States and use of Iraqi Embassy funds for students and other humanitarian needs will be "closely controlled," she said.

The move follows by three days the Iraqi deadline for closing the U.S. Embassy and other foreign missions in Kuwait. Tutwiler said that order was in "brazen defiance" of mandatory U.N. Security Council resolutions.

Iraqi authorities have cut off water and electricity at the U.S. Embassy in Kuwait and are restricting all personnel to the embassy grounds.

Tutwiler said the reduced U.S. embassy staff in Kuwait has enough food and water to last only several more days. Power is being supplied by a generator.

The United States has refused to close its embassy in Kuwait because it does not want to lend legitimacy to Iraq's conquest and subsequent annexation of Kuwait.

Seven more Americans were taken by Iraqi authorities into custody over the

Iowa SAT scores ranked No. 1 in national average

The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Iowa posted the highest state average on the 1990 SAT tests but officials cautioned against making state comparisons because only 5 percent of Iowa high-school graduates took the exams.

The state average was a combined 1088 on the verbal and math scores of the Scholastic Aptitude Test. Iowa's class of 1990 scored an average of 511 on the verbal portion of the test and 577 on the math portion.

However, a spokesman for Gov. Terry Branstad, while saying the results represented "excellent news," warned against complacency.

"We want and need to continue to work hard to keep that level of achievement. It will be tough to maintain that first-in-the-nation status because other states in the country are beginning to recognize how important a good education is," spokesman Richard Vohs said.

"In addition, it's not good enough to be the first in the nation because our kids will be competing for jobs with kids from West Germany, Korea and Japan. We must increase our level of achievement," he said.

Iowa's 1990 average was slightly above the 1989 state averages of 1084 on the combined score — 512 verbal and 572 math.

In releasing the state averages, the College Board warned against state-by-state comparisons because the percentage of SAT-takers varies widely among the states and because the test-takers are self-selected.

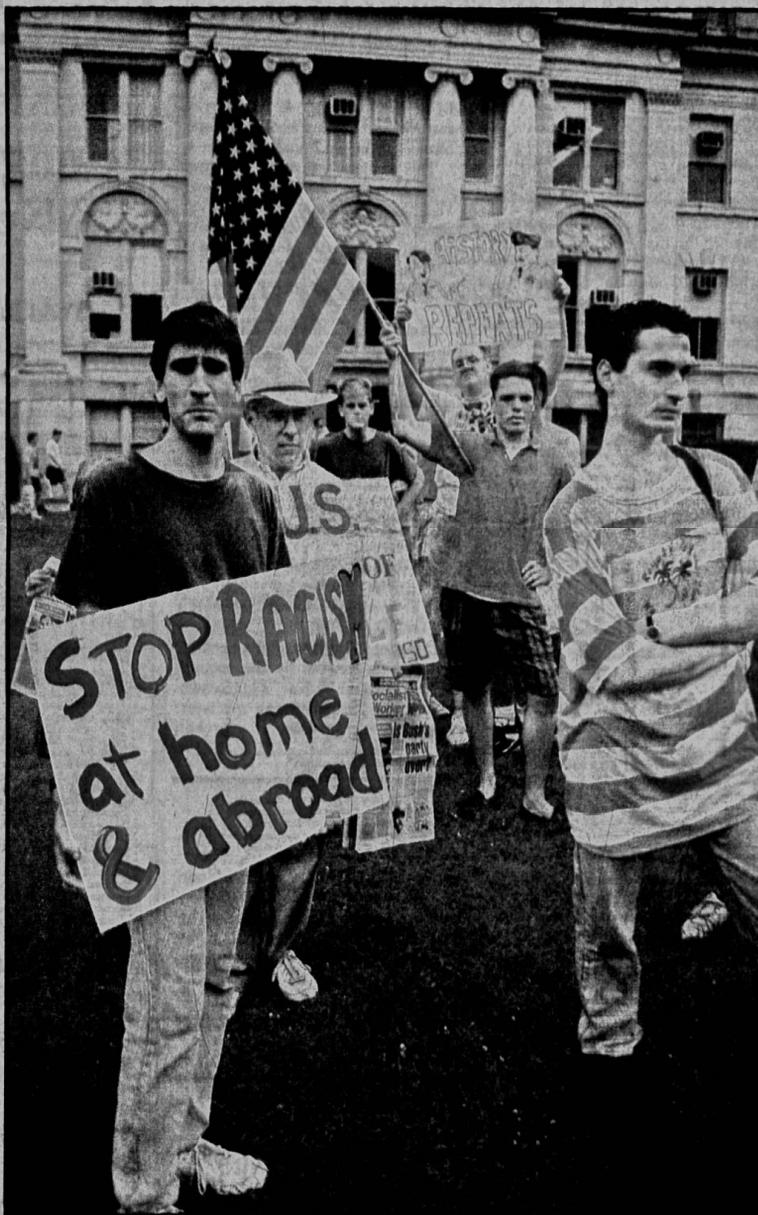

The College Board said reading could become a "lost art" among high-school students, citing SAT scores that sank for the third consecutive year. Verbal averages dropped to their lowest levels in a decade.

Nationwide average scores on the verbal section of the Scholastic Aptitude Test fell 3 points to 424 — the lowest since 1980 and equal to the lowest levels since annual averages were first compiled in 1971.

Scores on the math section averaged 476, unchanged for the fourth straight year.

The steady, four-year slide in verbal scores from a recent peak of 431 in 1986 is "disturbing but not particularly surprising," said College Board president Donald Stewart.

Among the few bright spots in the gloomy report: Women's math scores reached their best levels in 16 years, scores of American Indians rose a combined 13 points and black test-takers continued a 15-year trend as the most improved ethnic group.

Pentacrest anti-war rally riles students

By Julie Creswell
The Daily Iowan

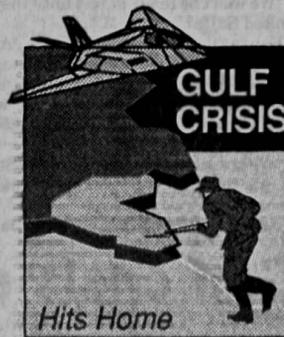

High temperatures were matched only by high tensions as student groups clashed on the Pentacrest during an anti-war rally reminiscent of the anti-Vietnam rallies of the '60s.

Approximately 200 people gathered on the Pentacrest Wednesday afternoon for an anti-war rally sponsored by the UI's New Wave and Black Student Union.

"Our group is here because we want our troops brought back from the Mideast," said John Riley, a member of New Wave. "We want negotiations, not escalations."

But the groups' speeches were often interrupted with chants of "Liberate Kuwait" by onlookers supportive of U.S. involvement in the Middle East — and tensions increased as several members of the crowd broke off into shouting matches.

"We're here to support the silent majority who agree with the U.S. involvement in the Middle East," said Eric Klein, state chairman of Young Americans for Freedom.

"I brought an American flag because I'm proud of the U.S. and I want to show support for the U.S. action," said Klein as he unraveled an American flag prior to the

Local group opposes military involvement in Persian Gulf

By Cynthia Taylor
The Daily Iowan

In a move prompted by recent U.S. involvement in the Persian Gulf, a group of concerned local citizens came together Monday to protest the action.

Organizer Antonia Russo said there was a disturbing lack of vocal opposition to the military build-up in the Middle East. She said she hopes citizens in support of a diplomatic solution can be united in a peaceful action to send a message to Washington, D.C.

Russo organized an open meeting, held Monday night, to promote discussion among citizens and to coordinate a grassroots campaign for a peaceful solution to the gulf crisis.

"There are not enough people challenging the military intervention. At a grassroots level, we have to articulate humanitarian questions. Right now the government is deciding for us," she said.

Jim Walters, an Iowa City resident, said, "Bush's popularity gives him leeway to dodge fundamental moral issues."

Amal Aljurf, another participant, added, "It is not fair for American kids to get killed for the price of oil. I think Americans should know there is nothing beautiful about war. War kills."

State Legislator Beverly Hannon of District 22 reiterated Aljurf's concerns. "It is almost sinful to go to war to continue a wasteful lifestyle," she said.

Heat, humidity close schools in Iowa City, across the state

By John Kenyon
The Daily Iowan
and The Associated Press

Iowa City public schools were dismissed at 1 p.m. Monday as temperatures in some classrooms rose over 90 degrees, said Barbara Grohe, superintendent of schools in Iowa City.

"We decided that it was only going to get hotter, and that would make it dangerous — especially for the younger students," Grohe said.

The National Weather Service said temperatures across Iowa on Monday ranged from near 90 degrees in the extreme northeast to near 100 degrees in the extreme southwest with high humidity.

School also was dismissed after noon Monday in Newton, Kellogg, Ballard, Earlham, Waukee, Creston, Prescott, Diagonal, Pella, Carlisle and other cities around Iowa.

While there are no written guidelines to follow when dealing with such a situation in the Iowa City Community School District, Grohe said the safety of students and faculty is a major factor in a decision such as today's.

"Faculty members and administrators at our schools are very sensitive to the needs of the kids, as well as to their own needs," she said.

Grohe said that activity levels were kept at a minimum as a precaution. Additional steps such as turning off unnecessary lights and giving students many opportunities to drink water were also taken.

Monday was the first day of the 1990-91 school year, but some students will have to wait until at least today to get their schooling underway.

Grohe said that a decision about today's school day will be made sometime in the morning.

Engineering Building fire linked to fan

By Julie Creswell
The Daily Iowan

An overheated basement fan created an "acid-smelling smoke," driving several people out of the UI Engineering Building shortly before 9 p.m. Monday but causing no apparent damage, according to UI officials.

The incident was reported to the Iowa City Fire Department at 8:41 p.m. by someone working in the building, according to Jerry Mumford, an ICFD lieutenant.

Insulation on the wires in the motor became hot and burned, said Don Challis, an officer for the UI Department of Public Safety. He added that the only apparent damage occurred to the motor of the fan.

Mike Laing, a lieutenant with the public safety department, said the smoke wasn't extensive enough to cause an entire building fire alarm activation.

Perry, Iowa, roommates victims of cross-burning

The Associated Press

PERRY, Iowa — A Perry man said someone put a burning cross in front of an apartment he shares with four other men, including three blacks from Mississippi.

John Walker, a Perry native, said he and two of his roommates discovered the flaming cross Saturday night. He said he invited the three Mississippi men, Tony Newman, James Jones and Michael Taylor, to live in the apartment, which he shares with another man, Chad Blasey. All five work at the IBP plant in Perry.

"Tony and I were sitting here talking and we heard something like firecrackers going off. Chad got up to see what was going on and saw something glowing out front. He went outside and found the cross and came back up to tell me and Tony," Walker said.

Walker, who is white, said he was embarrassed for his town.

He said that earlier this summer, someone drove by the apartment and yelled racial slurs.

"I figured it was just some drunk. Now, with this last night, I'm not so sure," Walker said.

UISA stresses student involvement

By Marc Morehouse
The Daily Iowan

Amid the chaotic din of ringing phones and countless conversations, Mark Havlicek stops briefly to gulp down a Union burger and engage in student government-speak.

Being at the epicenter of UI student government may be a challenging task, especially following the storm of controversy surrounding the past Student Senate administration. But Havlicek, who is president of the student body, wants to put the past behind him.

"We don't want to relive the past," he said. "There's nothing bad on our record, and we intend to keep it that way."

One of the major goals of the current student government will be to make more students aware that they can affect the course of their education by getting involved in the campus political scene, Havlicek said.

"Students know what they want this campus to be," he said. "I want to make sure students accomplish the goals they set and have the campus they want."

Student involvement seems to be a consistent theme throughout the UISA offices. A hectic pace and extreme clutter pervade, with students constantly calling or stopping by, seeking an ear to cast their views and suggestions.

According to Havlicek, the main avenue of student participation is through the UI's various student assembly committees. Duties of the committees range from campus security to course evaluation.

"I would like people to bring issues to the committees," he said. "Committees are the way we would like to work things this year. There is a place for everybody."

"If a student has an idea about anything they think is important, they will be able to come down here and it can be heard," he said. "Students have spoken on issues such as the environment and not everyone listens. I think we can help."

Tom Lunde, executive officer of the Undergraduate Collegiate Senate, echoed Havlicek's stress on student involvement.

"Just show up at any assembly meeting," he said. "That's how I got involved."

Working out the kinks is a vital part of any new administration, but Havlicek believes the current student government will have to work more diligently than usual to ensure its credibility to those on campus.

"I think it is important to ensure outside agencies we are mature and accountable. I think accountability is very important," he said. "It will take help and support from students to get the system on its feet."

Iowa mother relieved after release of daughter, grandchildren from Iraq

The Associated Press

JEFFERSON, Iowa — The mother of one of the Americans allowed to leave Iraq said Monday that she was elated but would not stop worrying until her daughter and grandchildren had returned to the United States.

"I think that is really exciting, knowing that they are out of Iraq," Arleen Nelson of Jefferson said in a telephone interview. "It's been a really tense time."

"We won't be really at rest until they are back in the United States," she said.

Rande Vellekoop, daughter of Arleen and Bud Nelson of Jefferson, and her two daughters had been trapped in the Persian Gulf region since the Aug. 2 Iraqi invasion of Kuwait. They were among 52 family members of U.S. embassy officials who were permitted to leave Iraq.

"We are waiting to hear from the State Department on where she will be coming in and when," Arleen Nelson said.

Arleen Nelson said her daughter had been unable to get a call through to home and had talked by telephone to a sister.

"I don't know if she'll call anymore," she said.

The Americans, dependents of diplomats from the U.S. Embassy in Kuwait whom the Iraqis have refused to release, crossed into Turkey at the Habur border post early Monday and later flew to a NATO base at Incirlik, 320 miles to the west.

Rande Vellekoop's husband, Laurens Vellekoop, 33, remains in Iraq. Laurens Vellekoop is a State Department employee who was stationed at the U.S. Embassy in Kuwait at the time of the invasion.

Arleen Nelson said she received a call from Laurens Vellekoop on Sunday. "Oh my gosh, I was so surprised," she said. "All I could think of was praise the Lord and how thankful I was to... hear his voice."

Three members of the group trying to cross into Turkey, sons of diplomats, were turned back at the border by Iraqi officials, the State Department said in Washington. The three, all over age 18, were sent back to Baghdad under escort.

Gas-line repair nears completion

The Daily Iowan

Vehicles and pedestrians will have to maneuver around the repair work on Washington and Clinton streets for only a few more days.

According to Jim Mack, Supervisor of Distribution for Iowa-Illinois Gas and Electric, the routine maintenance of the regulator station is almost complete.

The station converts pressure from the gas line running along Washington Street from Madison Street, he said. In related maintenance work, the four-inch gas line running along Clinton Street is being replaced with a stronger six-inch line.

Mack added that once the maintenance is finished, workers will start laying new concrete to repair the street.

Gulf crisis expected to affect Iowa industries

By Steven R. Rosenfeld
The Associated Press

MARSHALLTOWN, Iowa — Economic ripples from Persian Gulf strife would upset some Iowa industries but help others, executives said Monday.

Stabilized oil prices at the current levels or higher would increase demand for petroleum industry products made by Fisher Controls Inc. of Marshalltown, said Bill Landholt, a Fisher vice president.

But an economic squeeze from high oil prices would hurt demand for Fisher products for the chemical, plastic and pulp paper industries, he said.

In Newton, the chairman of Maytag Corp. said sales of all consumer goods worldwide would suffer if Persian Gulf tensions heat up inflation and cool off economic growth.

The comments came in interviews as diplomats from 37 different countries began a trade tour through Iowa.

The tour itself has been affected by Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait.

Instead of 45 countries being represented, only 37 sent diplomats to the tour arranged by Sen. Charles Grassley, R-Iowa. Absent were the ambassadors of Kuwait, Syria, Colombia, Romania and Zimbabwe, a trade representative from the Soviet Union, a petroleum minister from Venezuela and an economic minister from West Germany.

Most of the absentees changed plans because of diplomatic demands created by the occupation of Kuwait, said Caran McKee, a spokeswoman for Grassley. The West German minister, however, missed the trip because of a broken toe, she said.

UISA Book Exchange implements new policy

By Lisa Gagle
The Daily Iowan

A few tables of books are all that remain of what was once a room lined with overstuffed shelves at the UI Student Association Book Exchange, formerly the CAC Book Co-op.

A complete overhaul of the student-run co-op produced many striking changes including a large inventory reduction and a move to a temporary location in the Lucas-Dodge Room at the Union.

The co-op's inventory was purged to implement a new policy requiring that the store sell exclusively current-semester texts. A book wholesaler bought 2,500 outdated editions from the co-op this summer for $1,800, and about 3,000 books were thrown away.

Fewer than 300 texts remain, said Stephen Gray, coordinator of campus programs.

Some students will face higher book costs this semester because of the scarcity of titles in the exchange stockpile, said Mac Ward, Exchange Student Manager.

"For the buyers, it's hard because we just don't have the inventory yet," Ward said. "We're practically starting from scratch."

Few literature books remain from the section that spanned a whole wall of the co-op last year.

Ward said he didn't understand why the co-op summer management allowed the book wholesaler to take so many literature books, since those are reusable.

"The whole thing could have been handled more smoothly," Ward said.

Rhetoric Professor Doug Trank is worried about the higher book costs the changes will generate.

"As a professor, I'm surprised that they would send all those books back when they know they're going to be used," Trank said. "And as a parent, I'm certainly not happy."

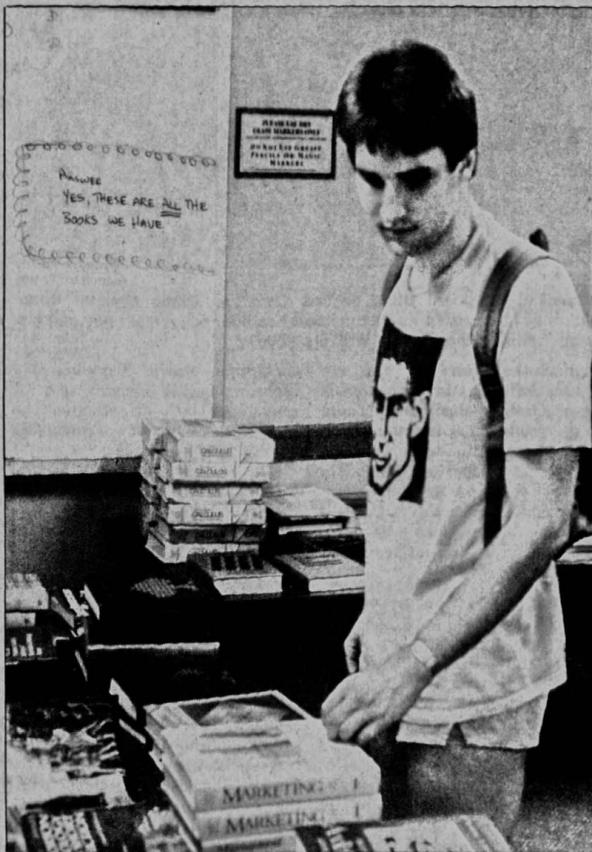

Gray defended the changes, saying the revamped system benefits students, who can now be assured of buying current-semester texts.

"The co-op grew away from what it was intended to be," Gray said. "It grew to the point where we had the first, second, third and fourth edition — and the fifth edition that the teacher was really using."

Another major change is that the book exchange will be open only the first and last month of each semester in temporary rooms at the Union. Formerly, the co-op was permanently housed near the Union Wheelroom.

Slow mid-semester business prompted the cutting of co-op hours, Ward said. He said January 1990 profits were $38,000, while the mid-semester months averaged less than $10,000.

This semester's gross book sales will be significantly decreased due to the initial upheaval, Ward said.

UI student Robert Green browses through the books at the tables of the UISA Book Exchange located in the IMU. The store will be open through Sept. 15 and will reopen near the end of this semester.

Rock music 'evils' exposed by group

By Tonya Felt
The Daily Iowan

Whitney Houston, Madonna, John Paul, George and Ringo. These are some of the men and women responsible for the "breakdown of the moral climate" in America today.

That's the news, according to representatives of Solid Rock Campus Ministries, who presented the video "Hells Bells: The Dangers of Rock 'N' Roll" to scattered passers-by Monday in the Union.

"It's a joke," said one observer, summarizing the apparent majority's response. "I never had any urge to hack off a chicken's head after listening to this music."

But representatives of the group spoke earnestly, describing the satanic influence in rock music as real and "influencing listeners' view of reality."

"There have been studies on violence on television that show that young people are desensitized to a certain degree to violence by watching violence on television," said Scott Ferguson, a minister with Solid Rock. "The things you watch and listen to can influence your view of reality."

Altering an individual's views about the reality of drugs, sex, rebellion and suicide is the worst influence of some rock music, according to the spokesmen.

"There is a connection," said Jon Peterson, a minister with Solid Rock. "I can't say (drugs, rebellion, suicide, sex, the occult and witchcraft) are all spurred by rock music but much of it is a result of rock music."

The five-hour video features clips from videos, magazines, album covers, and a variety of tunes by artists such as Motley Crue, George Michael, Depeche Mode and Van Halen. During portions of the video, the lyrics are written out to "expose the satanic influence in certain rock music which most people wouldn't catch unless it's pointed out," according to Ferguson.

But the spokesmen were quick to add that they don't support censorship or record banning.

"We believe the only way to change society is by changing men's hearts," Peterson said. "We just want to expose people to this and trust the Holy Spirit to convince them this is wrong."

The video, however, is somewhat stronger in its tone, calling "the majority of rock artists prostitutes in the temple of rock and roll." It further compares God's standards of morality to the laws of physics, saying they cannot be changed by men's opinions.

CHARITON, Iowa — The lure of bright lights and faraway places drained away some of this town's brightest talent over the last decade, but people around the bustling courthouse square say there's a Midwest revival that census takers have overlooked.

"We've educated kids about what's out there and they want to see it for themselves," said Christopher Duree, principal at the high school.

"But personally, I don't see the fascination. I think there will be a return to the Midwest," he said.

"There's a certain serene beauty to a corn field."

In fact, a corn field was the setting for the "Is this heaven?" line that gave Iowans such a thrill in the movie "Field of Dreams." "No," said star Kevin Costner, "it's Iowa."

Heaven or not, preliminary Census Bureau figures show the state lost 5 percent of its population, some 147,000 people, in the past 10 years. State officials are in a boil about the report, saying the counters missed thousands of people. They say the farm crisis caused a net emigration during the decade but they are sure a resurgence of people is under way.

One newcomer is Curt Grandia, 29, who left the Navy this summer and settled in Chariton as the editor of the Chariton Herald-Patriot.

"I just decided to leave the Navy and come back home," said Grandia, who was reared in a town less than an hour's drive away.

"It's a cliché, I suppose, but I've seen quite a few things, experienced a couple of different cultures. I don't think there's a better place to be than Iowa, especially now that I have a family and a daughter.

"It's wholesome here," he said. "And you can drink the water."

But Chariton, about 50 miles southeast of Des Moines, lost more than it gained over the decade. Unofficially, it lost about 400 of the 5,000 people it had in 1980.

"I think the rural crisis took a lot of people out because of the loss of farms and businesses. It was a time of exodus," said the Rev. Louis Hoger, pastor of First Lutheran.

But he expects others seeking the small-town life will revitalize the town.

"The pot of gold at the end of the urban rainbow isn't all glitter," he said. "My kids can say, 'Dad, I'm leaving to walk uptown' and it's OK with me. There's a sense of community and security and freedom that people in the big cities don't experience."

The economic anchor for the city is Hy-Vee Foods, which operates its grocery store distribution center in Chariton. A couple of other small companies provide low-wage assembly jobs, typical of the many such factories that have grown in rural areas of Iowa.

Hoger said these jobs are important but that they're a "blessing and a bane" to the community. They do provide jobs but they don't pay enough to hold quality workers, he said.

Still, Main Street seems to be doing well. The gloom of the farm crisis is gone, Hoger said. "The empty store front on the square now has a business in it."

The town is trying its hand at tourism as well. The Unicycle Society of America will hold its annual national championships in Chariton next summer.

Larry Milledge, 52, said Chariton, like other small towns, has trouble keeping its young people.

"I don't have students say, 'I can't wait to get out of Iowa,'" said Milledge, a high-school counselor. "But often times kids who grow up in a smaller community feel limited by what they can do."

Bush: Not much hope for 'fruitful negotiations'

By Rita Beamish
The Associated Press

KENNEBUNKPORT, Maine — President Bush said Monday he sees little hope for "fruitful negotiations" in the United Nations-sponsored search for a peaceful solution to the Persian Gulf crisis. He also said it was inconceivable that U.N. Secretary General Javier Perez de Cuellar will make concessions to Iraq. Asked if he was more optimistic than he had been about a diplomatic settlement, Bush said: "I don't particularly see more hope now because it's so clear what the world is demanding of Saddam Hussein. Clearly, the objective remains the same — get (Saddam) out of Kuwait and restore the rightful leaders to their place." Bush ruled out any settlement that did not fulfill those goals. The president also said he didn't believe his sanctions against Iraq's embassy in Washington would worsen the situation because "nobody will be held against their will." "They're free to go," unlike U.S. diplomats being detained in Baghdad and Kuwait, Bush said. The Iraqi diplomats allowed to stay in the United States will be restricted in their travel to a 25-mile radius of Washington. As to what kind of latitude Perez de Cuellar might exercise in his talks with the Iraqis, which begin Thursday, Bush said, "There is no flexibility on Iraq getting out of Kuwait and the rulers (of Kuwait) being permitted to come back. "Saddam Hussein has been so resistant to complying with international law that I don't yet see fruitful negotiations," Bush told reporters at a joint news conference with Canadian Prime Minister Brian Mulroney at the president's seaside vacation home. However, he said, if Perez de Cuellar could make progress in getting the Iraqis out of Kuwait,

"so much the better." "The United Nations' position is not negotiable," Bush said. "There is no room for compromise on getting the legitimate government back and the illegitimate invaders out." The administration has taken a restrained view of Perez de Cuellar's mediation initiative. Bush spokesman Marlin Fitzwater told reporters earlier Monday that "it remains to be seen" whether the talks are likely to offer a promising resolution of the crisis. Bush praised Mulroney for sending three Navy vessels to support the multinational forces, led by the United States' massive buildup, in the gulf.

weekend, bringing the total to 63 — 42 in Iraq and 21 in Kuwait, Tutwiler said. She said that Iraq has repeatedly failed to provide U.S. officials with a list of those Americans in their custody and consular access to them, calling that a clear violation of international law. Tutwiler preceded her announcement of the expulsions with a ringing denunciation of Iraq's recent behavior. "Since its brutal aggression against Kuwait on Aug. 2, Iraq has demonstrated a blatant disregard for international law and the norms of civilized society through a series of acts," she said. Deputy Secretary of State Lawrence Eagleburger apprised Al-Mashat of the U.S. actions at a morning meeting at the State Department. Tutwiler said the United States was urging other governments, particularly those whose embassies have been affected by Iraqi actions in Kuwait, to consider taking similar actions against Iraq's official and non-official presence in their countries. She said representatives of 34 other countries that are trying to maintain embassies in Kuwait were invited to a rare State Department meeting late Sunday night for a briefing on the U.S. action against Iraq. In another matter, Tutwiler said the department was unable to confirm reports that Iraq had decided to allow its ships to be boarded for inspection.

were Bobby Brooks, Clapton's agent at Creative Artists Agency; Nigel Browne, a Clapton bodyguard; and Colin Smythe, one of Clapton's tour managers, Clapton's statement said. Clapton was staying this morning at the Four Seasons Hotel in Chicago. His tour manager, Peter Jackson, who sounded distraught when reached by phone in his hotel room, said Clapton learned of the accident when "one of our 'planes' never arrived at the airport." Bill Bruce, an investigator with the National Transportation Safety Board, said the Bell Helicopter Jet Ranger slammed into the hill in heavy fog shortly after takeoff. There was no fire. He said it was unclear whether the victims died on impact.

The Civil Air Patrol began a search for wreckage several hours after the crash when an automatic signal was picked up by a passing satellite, authorities said. A spokeswoman for Walworth County Sheriff's Department said the wreckage was found about 7 a.m. The Alpine Valley resort is about six miles southwest of this southeastern Wisconsin town. The sheriff's spokeswoman, Pat Salimas, said the copter was one of four at Alpine Valley that were scheduled to fly during the night to Midway Airport at Chicago. Vaughan was born Oct. 3, 1954, in Dallas. He followed his brother Jimmie, also a well-known musician in the band the Fabulous Thunderbirds, from Dallas to Austin in 1972.

demonstration. "We need to support our country in times of crisis, instead of supporting the enemy," he added. Raena McNeal, president of BSU, called for the removal of U.S. troops from the Middle East and said U.S. involvement was yet another attempt by the U.S. to control another group of people. "The West has to realize it does not have a natural right to the world's natural resources," said McNeal during her speech, which was often interrupted by the crowd. Riley also stated he was against any embargo of food by the U.S. in its blockade of the Persian Gulf. He added, "The embargo does not have to include food to be effective."

Crisis

Several participants said they supported taking U.S. Armed Forces out of the Middle East and wanted to see a non-military solution to the crisis. Other concerns brought out at the meeting included the repercussions of the food and medicine blockade and the effects of military forces and equipment on what Russo called "the fragile desert ecosystem" in that region.

Shadows, animals highlight exhibit

By Lindsay Alan Park
The Daily Iowan

Hidden from August sunlight and tucked away in the cool, dark recesses of a small gallery, "In Praise of Shadow" poses a silent question — how much of our perception of reality depends on generous amounts of light?

One of two shows drawing from the UI Museum of Art's permanent collection, both of which opened Aug. 25, "Shadow" makes unique demands upon beholders to use their own imagination and creativity.

The exhibit subjects 24 works of individual merit to an overall artistic concept, which converts the Carver Gallery into a kind of shadow box through the use of low-intensity bulbs with blue filters. Though museum director Mary Kujawski and intern Brian Coleman reportedly selected only pieces exploring "the mystery and depth that can be found in the shadows," to reduce our visibility of the objects is a bold move — one that risks, perhaps, undermining the individual artists' aesthetic judgments.

Kujawski's inspiration stemmed from a 1933 treatise on aesthetics by Japanese novelist Junichiro Tanizaki.

"The beauty of a Japanese room depends on variation of shadows, heavy shadows against light shadows — it has nothing else," Tanizaki wrote.

A plaque to the left of the doorway of the Carver Gallery invites visitors to perform the "creative act" of investigating the mystery of shadows. By concentrating on volume and depth in what can be seen in the images, viewers will hopefully begin to imagine for themselves what lies unseen in the darkest areas. According to Tanizaki's philosophy, the payoff would be "a serenity approaching divinity."

Rainer Küchenmeister's 1961 oil painting "Figure" is a striking example of how absence of light can actually add to a work's interest. Though it hangs far away in the opposite corner of the room, the central form of the painting is immediately striking to the entering visitor as a solid, sculptural form with boundaries that disappear into a deep, black niche. It's a little disappointing, then, when you get close enough to discover the actual two-dimensionality of the piece.

Of the 18 prints in the show, Keith Achepohl's "Night Shadows III" (1986, on anonymous loan) fares the best, perhaps because of its gentle luminosity and lunar colors that seem undiminished by the dimness.

Prints by Mario Avanti ("La Grande Maniere Noire," 1962) and Yozo Hamaguchi ("Asparagus," "Nineteen Cherries and One," 1965) are strong enough compositionally to stimulate our imaginations in the shadows — the heavy-as-stone asparagus bundle stands out — but the breathtakingly beautiful shading gradation of these works will make viewers ache for more light.

Jo-Ann Conklin, acting curator of collections, said that people have responded positively to the lighting but have complained about the difficulty of seeing the darker compositions through reflections in the glass mounting of prints and drawings.

Still, the success in 1987 of the visiting photographic exhibit "Black Sun: The Eyes of Four" under similar lighting conditions

O'Connor causes commotion concerning national anthem

The Associated Press

HOLMDEL, N.J. — Irish pop singer Sinéad O'Connor threatened to walk out on a concert if "The Star-Spangled Banner" were played beforehand. She won the battle but lost the war.

The national anthem was not played, but the singer known for her skinhead-style haircut was banned from any future performances at the Garden State Arts Center, officials said.

Backstage staff relented following the ultimatum Friday out of fear that a last-minute cancellation would cause a commotion, said Dennis Ingolia, a spokesman for the New Jersey Highway Authority, which operates the 9,000-seat

The UI Museum of Art

"Sacrificial Lamb," a 1981 etching by Italian artist Italo Scanga (b. 1932), is one of 13 prints in "The Animal Show," an exhibition in the Works on Paper gallery of the UI Museum of Art. The print, which was purchased in 1982, is part of the museum's permanent collection of more than 2,000 prints.

"The beauty of a Japanese room depends on variation of shadows, heavy shadows against light shadows — it has nothing else."

Junichiro Tanizaki
Japanese novelist

(maintained for contractual rather than aesthetic reasons), proved that UI Museum of Art patrons are willing to rise to challenges for art's sake.

Also just opened in the Works on Paper gallery is "The Animal Show," comprising 13 prints by various artists selected from a group displayed earlier this summer in the Carver Gallery.

Conklin, who with Kujawski chose the pieces, said the original show was encyclopedic, including works from a wider variety of periods and styles, while pieces in the reworked exhibit are mostly contemporary.

Though the presence of animals is an obvious unifying feature, the show is ultimately more about humans — it provokes thought of how we treat animals, but more often how our treatment of each other is no better and often worse than "lower" animals.

In Maximino Javier's intricate book illumination "Codice" (1982), for example, amidst a parade of bizarre animals, a tiny world globe comments in Spanish, "I need a doctor to cure me of this acute humanitis."

Images from Pablo Picasso dominate this grimly humorous show and provide the punchline in Warrington Colescott's etching "The History of Printmaking: Picasso at the Zoo" (1978). After aggressively ravaging the Spanish countryside like a perverse Don Quixote in Picasso's "The Dream and Lie of Franco" (1937), the crude, elephant-like caricature of Generalissimo Franco winds up at home with other beasts in Colescott's zoo.

"In Praise of Shadow" will be on display through Oct. 21 while "The Animal Show" will close Oct. 7. Both shows can be seen at the UI Museum of Art, north of the UI Art Building on North Riverside Drive.

O'Connor, whose recordings include "Nothing Compares 2 U" and "Mandinka," gave no reason for her demand, Ingolia said.

Outraged officials were less circumspect.

"No performer who does not agree to have the national anthem played will be allowed to perform," George Zilocchi, acting executive director of highway authority, said in a statement.

In May, O'Connor refused to perform on "Saturday Night Live" because the guest host was controversial comedian Andrew Dice Clay, whose off-color humor earlier prompted cast member Nora Dunn to boycott the show.

Martin disappoints in 'Blue Heaven'

By Henry Olson
The Daily Iowan

Some films, though they have a lot going for them, simply don't work. "My Blue Heaven" includes within its ranks Steve Martin and Rick Moranis, two large box-office draws. Nora Ephron ("Heartburn") wrote the script. As a whole, however, the film remains tragically unfunny.

"My Blue Heaven" is straight out of bad TV-land. A down-and-out mafioso, played by Martin, participates in the FBI's witness-protection program and finds himself transported to middle-class suburban hell. Moranis is the FBI man who watches over him. Hilarious high jinks ensue.

Old habits die hard. The mobster finds it hard to avoid the temptation of stolen goods, even in his new environment. He is frequently arrested; the FBI frequently rescues him.

Beneath this oh-so-original storyline lie subplots of romance. Moranis falls in love with the prosecution-crazy district attorney (Joan Cusack) from whose grips he must more than occasionally release Martin. The mobster also finds a hooty-queen of his own, played by Carol Kane.

Ephron's script provides a few ironic touches. Fryberg, Martin's new home, turns out to be a haven for stool-pigeon criminals. Rick Moranis is so patriotic that he salutes the flag even during the national anthem on a TV station sign-off.

Unfortunately, the only other funny moment involves a baby turtle and a garbage disposal.

The rest of the film relies on the cliché. The retentive FBI man (he has even devised a system for putting syrup on his pancakes) finds spontaneity through his criminal friend. The mobster becomes nicer thanks to the fed's influence. And, of course, the mobster has a way with kids. He soon becomes the doll of Fryberg's bubble-gum crowd.

Steve Martin, who was excellent in "Roxanne," flounders in "My Blue Heaven." He comes off as an odd mutation of Rodney Dangerfield and Andrew "Dice" Clay — making him humorous only in an anthropological sense.

RACISM IN IOWA

Cultural problem

The cross-burning in Perry, Iowa, Saturday night is just one more warning sign that the tide of racism is again on the rise across the nation. A wooden cross was set aflame in front of an apartment that is home to Tony Newman, James Jones and Michael Treylor, all black, and their white roommates, John Walker and Chad Blasey. All five men work at the IBP plant located in Perry, and they were understandably shaken by the incident.

It seems racial attacks and bigotry are no longer confined to the inner cities and the deep south but have now invaded small-town Iowa. While expressions of outrage and anger are certainly warranted and somewhat necessary after an incident such as this one, it is more important to develop an understanding of how and why these events occur.

While no concrete or comprehensive explanation can be given for racism in general (other than, perhaps, a glaring deficiency in education), Saturday's cross-burning does lend itself to an academic understanding — which is not to be confused with acceptance. Iowa, while notoriously Democratic in the political arena, is an overwhelmingly "conservative" state when it comes to change. This is especially true in small, western Iowa towns like Perry. And Perry is currently going through some radical changes. Until recently, Perry was a community of white middle-class families with strong ties to agriculture — much like most other small towns in western Iowa.

But the large IBP plant located in Perry has started hiring again, and many of the workers are coming from Des Moines. In fact, IBP is running advertisements on Des Moines radio stations and offering shuttle rides to and from the city for workers who do not wish to move. This promises to have two effects: The Perry business climate will certainly improve, and Perry citizens will find more and more minorities in their town. Not everyone considers both of these results beneficial.

The influx of blacks and Hispanics has caused a stir among some citizens more resistant to change. The small-town Iowan knows little about minorities. Lack of interracial contact in towns like Perry has caused ignorance of black and Hispanic culture to proliferate. The only information about minorities comes through the media. And the more closed-minded whites associate blacks and Hispanics only with the violence of the inner city. Thus, as more and more minorities show up, some citizens undoubtedly feel that their way of life is being threatened. They react, usually with stupidity as the primary characteristic of their actions.

In fact, one of the witnesses to the cross-burning said, "I was surprised it took so long for someone to do something. We've never had this many minorities in Perry. There's been a lot of talk — not in the open, more like whispers."

Because some segments of white society are not familiar with minority culture does not mean that a cross-burning or racial slurs or any other acts of bigotry are excusable. It means only that there is an understandable and logical impetus for some of those actions, especially those that occur in all-white or mostly white communities. It also means that some solutions are readily available. An understanding of a problem is the first step in solving it.

Responsibility for ending attacks such as the one in Perry — or, for that matter, any of the racial incidents that have occurred on the UI campus or elsewhere — belongs to all people of all colors. It seems that at the core of racism is misunderstanding, both of culture and humanity. Some whites in Perry feel their way of life is endangered by an increasing minority population. Similarly, minorities are sometimes afraid to associate freely with whites, scared that their culture may become overshadowed and lost in a community dominated by whites. In short, racism is not an issue of color, it is an issue of culture.

Citizens of Perry can put an abrupt halt to racial incidents if they recognize this one simple fact and work to eradicate the ignorance from which it grows. Whites need to actively seek out and associate with their minority neighbors. They need to consciously work at becoming friends and displaying that friendship publicly. And blacks who are new in the community must become involved in the organizations and affairs of the community, even if those institutions have traditionally been controlled by whites. While there are legitimate reasons for all-black organizations, most of them serve only to inhibit, rather than encourage, interracial contact.

It sounds too simple a solution for an issue as ugly and as far-reaching as racism, but it can work.

The real minorities are the bigots. If they see people of all races associating freely and constructively while still maintaining valuable ties to their own unique heritage, at least some of their ignorance will be swept away.

They're 'piling on' alcohol

In life, as in football, a penalty is assessed for something called "piling on." This occurs when a player, already down, is tackled again in a spirit of malicious redundancy by an opposing player. Obviously, you can't be tackled again. Once tackled, you're down by definition, and the spirit of fairness that presides over all spectator sports dictates that when somebody is down you let him be. In football and life we Cepacol throat lozenges during your next cold and having the impertinence to hop into your car to pick up some puffs at Osco. Which might make sense if alcohol-related accidents were significant in Iowa's total traffic picture. But Iowa's DOT statistics count alcohol as a factor in a mere 3 percent.

Now, a proposed beer tax looms on our horizon like an angry cloud. What gives? Certainly we need to find revenues for our poor treasury, which is beginning to have about the look of a starved mule and the appetite of a member of the Donner party. But why are we going after alcohol and those who use or sell it? They're the latest victims of piling on. We need to reflect on the effectiveness of our attitude.

I know about all the evils of alcohol. Don't even think about sending me your lecture notes after reading this. I've seen people with tremendous potential show more concern for the suds collecting in the bottoms of their beer glasses than for their own futures. I've been reduced from tears to a wretched form of laughter, at once helpless and furious, at the funeral of a friend. A girl killed by a drunken driver, by a kid who had no license because it had been revoked prior to the accident on drunken driving charges. A buddy lent him a car early one California morning. It was head-on. When the body arrived back in Illinois, the undertakers had done such a macabre job of putting her face back together I couldn't recognize her in the casket. I didn't know whether to laugh or cry. I did a little of each.

Still, I know that alcohol adds to the quality of life for many people who use it judiciously. I consider it worthy to fight for a world where its use is allowed within reasonable bounds. Our loss of cultural objectivity has led to a stampede to eradicate a positive good.

Alcohol can be used, misused or abused. Those are three very distinct things. That we have let them run together into a moral mud puddle in the nation's mind indicates how badly we want all the world's troubles to be simple. But they're not. Adopting unreasonable laws with regard to alcohol consumption or sales won't solve anything.

I understand the emotion that makes people say, "If even one life is spared, it's worth the price." But I don't believe it. Too frequently the people saying it are politicians who would pass

Mow-Down-a-Homeless-Veteran-While-Tanke-d-and-$5,000-Will-Go-Toward-Paying-Off-The-

I consider it worthy to fight for a world where the use of alcohol is allowed within reasonable bounds.

Deficit legislation if they thought it would get them a few votes.

I'm not advocating the inception of DAMM (Drunks Against Madd Mothers), as I heard a stand-up comic do on TV. I am simply saying that enough is enough. Stop piling on. Stop blaming individual irresponsibility or disease on the responsible and hearty appreciation of alcohol. Stop persecuting those who sell it in public houses for their livelihood. Doing so might make us feel better in the short term, but it provides no long-term solution to alcohol-related problems, nor does it bring back any of those killed in accidents by alcohol misuse.

tend to react passionately when we observe piling on. It rouses an appropriate sense of outrage in the beholder.

I've watched a certain sort of societal piling on develop. First, Mothers Against Drunk Driving formed chapters across the country to lobby for tough legislation against offenders. It seemed a fine idea at the time. I've seen local tavern owners squeezed into holding mandatory inservices for their staff on what are called the Techniques of Alcohol Management (TAM). Having informed personnel to refill pitchers and do informal neurological checks on suspect or belligerent patrons seemed reasonable enough.

But now it's gone too far. Incompetent boobs running for political office are trying to make themselves look both tough and moral by trumpeting an intent to lower the legal blood-alcohol level. Iowa's governor would bring it down to .08 percent. This means you could get busted for sucking on too many

America boasts about not being first

What's the matter with this picture? It is a full-page advertisement in national magazines, featuring a list of the top 10 cars in an "initial quality" survey of 1990 models. The survey involved more than 26,000 new-car buyers and concerned owner-reported problems during the first 90 days. Here is the list:

rank	car-line	origin
1.	Lexus	Japan
2.	Mercedes-Benz	Germany
3.	Toyota	Japan
4.	Infiniti	Japan
5.	Buick	USA
6.	Honda	Japan
7.	Nissan	Japan
8.	Acura	Japan
9.	BMW	Germany
10.	Mazda	Japan

This is, believe it or not, an advertisement for Buick. The big print says, "Buick. The only American car-line to rank in the top 10 in quality. But then, quality has never been foreign to Buick."

George Will

So it has come to this: An American corporation's boast is that it has been beaten by only four foreign competitors.

We have all seen something different at the end of many college football and basketball games. The winning players and their fans, each with one finger held aloft, chant, "We're Number One!" Such boasts may be mistaken, and the passion may be disproportionate to the achievement, but at least it is better than chanting, "We're Number Five!"

A recent front-page story in the New York Times provided fresh, if redundant, reasons for not turning on your television. Various American economic interests are resorting to anti-Japanese commercials to sell their products.

"Imagine," intones a voice, intended to be ominous, "a few years from now. It's December and the whole family is going to see the big Christmas tree at Hirohito Center. Go on. Keep buying Japanese cars." The commercial concludes with two words printed in large letters on a black screen: "Enough Already."

Does that oblique reference to Rockefeller Center make you swell with nationalist indignation and want to hop into your (Heaven forbid) Toyota and dash out to buy a Pontiac? It is supposed to. It has been run by Pontiac dealers of the New York metropolitan area.

Is that the best way to sell American cars — just change the subject? Talk not about transportation but about real estate? (The Japanese have bought 51 percent of Rockefeller Center.) The promise of the ad is that red-blooded Americans should be driven bonkers with mortification by the fact that a chunk of Manhattan real estate could bear the name of a Japanese emperor rather than an American robber baron.

The premise is unattractive, but the commercial may be effective. During a recent month when the commercial was run, Pontiac sales in the metropolitan region were the same as in the same month one year ago, despite a steep decline in Pontiac sales elsewhere in the Northeast.

Oldsmobile dealers in New York have tried to sell cars with the pitch that big, strapping Americans can't fit comfortably into cars designed by, or for, Japanese: "That's why our car is built for our size families, not theirs."

It is pathetic that American products are sold that way. What has gone wrong? Lots, but let's start with America's increasingly strident and selective intolerance.

Americans are fierce at stamping out smoking in elevators and censorious toward anyone caught being insufficiently risk-averse regarding cholesterol. Would that Americans were equally impatient and censorious about lax standards ("We're Number Five!") that are producing pandemic lathness in everything from cars to second-graders' homework.

If Americans want to worry about the right risks, they should worry about the Buick ad in the context of this fact: Military assets are declining relative to economic performance as an index of national power and stature. We are pounding our sabers into LeSabres, and Buick LeSabres have figured prominently in recent "initial quality surveys."

LeSabre was ranked second among all models, foreign and domestic, in 1989 but in 1990 fell to sixth. However, because it still ranked higher than any other car made by General Motors, Ford or Chrysler, Buick has advertised LeSabre as the "best-built American car."

Do advertisers not understand that potential buyers understand the role of that modifier — the adjective "American." It says, loud and clear, "Don't expect us to measure up to the big boys — the ones overseas."

Americans would feel better, and might be more inclined to buy Buicks, if they saw an ad reprinting the list above, but with a text that says, "Fifth place is not nearly good enough for Americans to brag about. And until we do better, we apologize."

George Will's syndicated column appears Tuesdays on the Viewpoints page.

Radio station predicts release of U.S. hostages

By Farouk Nassar
The Associated Press

BEIRUT, Lebanon — A Beirut radio station said Monday that Anglican church envoy Terry Waite would be the next hostage to be freed by pro-Iranian kidnappers in Lebanon.

The communist-run Voice of the People also said all six American hostages would be freed once Iran's frozen assets in the United States are released.

The station, respected for its balanced reporting and investigative work, said it drew the conclusions from interviews with Iranian and Syrian officials as well as Shiite Muslim leaders after the release of five Western hostages in the past four months.

The latest to be freed was Irish teacher Brian Keenan, who was set free Friday and is undergoing medical tests in a Dublin hospital.

The first two were Americans Robert Polhill and Frank Reed, freed 10 days apart in April.

Two Swiss orthopedic specialists of the International Committee of the Red Cross, Emanuel Christen and Elio Erriquez, were released respectively Aug. 8 and 13 after 10 months in captivity.

"Sources familiar with the hostage issue are certain that Terry Waite is the next in line for freedom after Keenan," the station said in a 15-minute evaluation of the hostage issue.

Waite disappeared after leaving a west Beirut hotel Jan. 20, 1987, for a rendezvous with Islamic Jihad, a group that claims to hold American hostages Terry Anderson and Thomas Sutherland.

No group has claimed holding the 51-year-old Englishman from Styal in Cheshire, and none of the freed hostages has mentioned seeing him in captivity.

Several Lebanese Shiite leaders lately asserted that Waite was alive and well, which suggests he is being held separately from the 12 other hostages in Lebanon.

Keenan said upon his release that he had seen Anderson and British journalist John McCarthy in captivity and that both of them were well.

Voice of the People quoted an unnamed source close to the Iranian Embassy in Beirut as saying Waite and other European hostages held in Lebanon would benefit from "positive stands lately taken by France and Britain toward Iran." It did not elaborate.

France in July pardoned and freed from prison five members of a pro-Iranian assassination team. The French Foreign Ministry said the release of the Swiss captives may have been a result of that.

Britain has recently distanced itself from "The Satanic Verses," a novel by British author Salman Rushdie who is under an Iranian death order for writing the book. Foreign Secretary Douglas Hurd said this month his government had no wish to insult Islam and understood that Rushdie's book offended Muslims. Hussein Musavian, director general for West European Affairs at the Iranian Foreign Ministry, said that met conditions set by an Iranian parliamentary ruling last year for resumption of ties with Britain.

Terry Waite
Hostage since January 1987

The station quoted the unnamed source as saying "the solution of the question of Iranian frozen assets in the United States will promptly lead to the termination of the plight of the American hostages in Lebanon."

South African strike calls for an end to split among blacks

By Barry Renfrew
The Associated Press

SOWETO, South Africa — Tens of thousands of blacks went on strike Monday to demand an end to factional fighting that has killed more than 500 people. Anglican Archbishop Desmond Tutu angrily blamed police and pro-apartheid whites for the violence.

Tutu called for creation of a new police force acceptable to blacks as he addressed about 6,000 people gathered at a funeral for seven ANC supporters killed in the battles.

"The evidence is overwhelming that the police have not been impartial," he told the cheering listeners.

Law and Order Minister Adriaan Vlok later rejected charges that police took sides in the conflict. He said in a statement that individual officers may have acted improperly but that the force as a whole tried to maintain order.

The strike left the streets of Soweto, a sprawling black township of 2.5 million people, nearly deserted. Many businesses in Soweto and neighboring Johannesburg were forced to close or operate with skeleton staffs. Most trains and buses were almost empty or did not run.

The strike was called by the anti-apartheid Soweto Civic Association to "protest the violence,

"The evidence is overwhelming that the police have not been impartial."

police behavior and to mourn our dead." Residents in several neighboring townships also took part.

Heavily armed South African troops and police in armored vehicles patrolled the townships. Police commanders reported no new violence in the Johannesburg area.

Savage fighting erupted in the townships around Johannesburg on Aug. 12, pitting Xhosas and other blacks loyal to the African National Congress against Zulus tied to the conservative Inkatha movement. Police said at least 515 people were killed.

Police said Monday at least 10 blacks were killed during the weekend in the eastern province of Natal, which has been the scene of factional fighting since 1986. More than 5,000 people have died there.

Tutu, a top anti-apartheid leader, passionately denounced the government and police for the violence. He charged that the unrest was fomented to frustrate blacks' struggle to be free in South Africa, where the black majority has no voice in national affairs.

"Our freedom is at hand," Tutu said to tumultuous cheers. "And there are those (whites) who say they don't want us to have our freedom . . . so they have made us fight one another."

Zulus and Xhosas are the two largest tribes in South Africa, but Tutu denied the fighting was caused by tribal divisions. "We have never quarreled because of tribalism. It is a lie! It is a lie!" he shouted in anger.

Other black leaders also attacked the government, charging that apartheid created the ethnic tensions that triggered the fighting. They called for abolition of the hostels where Zulu migrant workers live. Those hostels have often come under attack.

"It is a violence that has been organized by evil forces — white and black," said senior ANC leader Walter Sisulu.

At the funeral, ANC honor guards in khaki uniforms stood around the coffins giving clenched fist salutes. The stadium was filled with chanting and singing blacks, many wearing the black, green and gold colors of the ANC.

The government and many neutral observers portray the conflict as mostly tribal fighting linked to the power struggle between the ANC and Inkatha.

Libya provides support for Palestinian Liberation Front's terrorist attack

By Dale Nelson
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Libyan government "provided direct support in all phases of preparation" for an unsuccessful May 30 terrorist attack on jammed beach resorts near Tel Aviv, Israel, the State Department said Monday.

In a paper it said was based on information from U.S. sources, the department said the six assault boats used in the raid were launched from the merchant ship

Tiny Star, known earlier as the Inger M.

It said Libya provided personnel who accompanied the ship as it sailed from a Libyan naval base to Ras el-Hilal, on Libya's Mediterranean coast. There it picked up at least 16 terrorists of the Palestine Liberation Front.

The department said the Tiny Star then left Libya for the drop-off point west of Israel.

"After launching the assault boats, the Tiny Star probably traveled west-southwest to blend in with the hundreds of merchant ships en route to and from the Suez canal," the paper said.

The ship was docked at the Libyan port of Tobruk in mid-June and was in the harbor of Tripoli, the Libyan capital, later that month, the paper said. In late July, it said, the ship sailed from Tripoli to Piraeus, Greece.

The department said the Tiny Star was purchased in April by Star Navigation Company of Piraeus and sailed from Cyprus for Tripoli on April 10.

"Libya provided direct support in all phases of preparation for the PLF attack against Israel, from assistance in planning the attack to providing personnel who accompanied the ship from which it was launched," the department said.

"From late 1988 until the operation was launched, training and preparations took place in Libya at several locations, including a Libyan naval base," the paper said.

In a statement accompanying the paper, the department said, "The U.S. will retain its sanctions against Libya; we expect other governments will continue their sanctions until Libya demonstrates concrete, durable changes in its support for terrorism and cessation of other objectionable behavior."

Department spokeswoman Margaret Tutwiler said "Libya's involvement in this terrorist operation provides one of the clearest examples ever established of state sponsorship of terrorism, and once again highlights the threat Libya poses to its neighbors and to peace in the region."

Stevie Ray Vaughan in 1989

Vaughan mourned in Texas

By Michael Holmes
The Associated Press

AUSTIN, Texas — Grammy-winning guitarist Stevie Ray Vaughan was remembered upon his death Monday for his rocking Texas roadhouse blues style and his contributions to the music scene here, where he got his musical start.

Vaughan, 35, died in a helicopter crash early Monday in Wisconsin after performing with rock star Eric Clapton and guitarist Robert Cray.

"He was a great musician and a very good friend," Cray said. "I'm shocked at what happened."

"He played the blues like he wanted to play to blues, he played and put blues in places that we, even Muddy Waters, didn't do," said blues guitarist Buddy Guy, who performed with Vaughan, Cray and Clapton on Sunday.

"We'll miss Stevie and we'll miss his music," said Jeff Peterson of the PBS-TV program "Austin City Limits," which has featured Vaughan and his band, Double Trouble.

Also killed in the crash near East Troy, Wis., were the pilot, Clapton's agent, a tour manager and a bodyguard.

Vaughan, who overcame a drug problem to win two Grammy awards, gained popularity in the middle 1980s with his guitar jamming and blues sound, borrowed from such music legends as B.B. King.

"The loss is a great loss for blues music and all fans of music around the world," King said in a statement. "He was just beginning to be appreciated and develop his potential."

Vaughan toured this summer with blues singer Joe Cocker and was to release a new record in September with his brother Jimmie, another well-known musician who formed The Fabulous Thunderbirds band.

"This is the worst accident to happen to the Texas music since Buddy Holly and the Big Bopper went down in the '50s. It's a void no one can fill," said Casey Monahan, director of the Texas Music Office.

In 1959, a plane carrying carrying singers J.P. (The Big Bopper) Richardson, Buddy Holly and Richie Valens crashed in Iowa. Holly was from Texas.

"There's not an individual in Austin who's not proud of Stevie and what he's done for us and Austin music. It's tragedy for his fans, his family, everybody," said Ernie Gammage, head of the Austin Music Industry Council.

Vaughan had a platinum album with Double Trouble in "Couldn't Stand the Weather," released in 1984. That same year, he won a Grammy for best traditional blues recording for the song "Texas Flood." It was on an album featuring several blues artists, titled "Blues Explosion."

He won a 1990 Grammy in the contemporary blues category for "In Step."

Born Stephen Ray Vaughan on Oct. 3, 1954, in Dallas, he began playing the guitar at age 7, copying his older brother Jimmie. The two had been working on an album for September release called "Family Style."

In a recent interview, Jimmie Vaughan recalled Stevie's early interest in music: "It was my guitar and my records. When I left, I would say, 'Don't touch my guitar because I'm going to get you. Leave my guitar alone.' And of course, when I would leave, he would go straight in there and play with my guitar and try to learn what I had been playing."

At 13, Stevie Ray Vaughan began playing in Dallas clubs, before quitting school before his senior year. He moved to Austin in 1972, returning to Dallas in 1986.

In addition to his brother, Vaughan is survived by his mother, Martha.

A candlelight vigil was planned for Austin's Zilker Park on Monday night. The Hard Rock Cafe in Dallas planned to play his music in tribute all day.

Nick Bell

Hawkeye backs pulling for each other

By Greg Smith
The Associated Press

Iowa running back Nick Bell is giving up reading newspapers this fall. Well, the sports pages, anyway.

Bell and Tony Stewart battled each other for the starting tailback position last season and may be in for a rematch this year if the 6-foot-3, 255-pound Bell isn't moved to fullback.

Bell said news accounts of last year's competition at the position created some animosity but now has united the two players.

"We've become close just because of all the animosity that was caused by the media. That's past us, that's behind us," he said.

"It's just that when you guys print, 'Well, Tony's back and he's 100 percent,' and you print, 'Nick is here but he doesn't know what he's doing.' That's animosity," Bell said.

"It carried over on the team. It's behind me. I'm not worried about it. Whatever you guys print, I don't read. I had to find a way to get away from it," he said.

Stewart had the tailback position locked up two years ago when he became the first sophomore in school history to run for more than 1,000 yards. He suffered a knee injury late in the season.

He underwent surgery and had a slow recovery, so coach Hayden Fry decided to use Bell at tailback. The 6-foot-3, 255-pound senior from Las Vegas, Nev., responded by gaining 603 yards, tops on the team.

However, Stewart says he's 100 percent ready this year. Both he and Bell competed on the indoor track team to improve their strength and quickness.

Now Fry will have to decide which player is ready for the starting role.

Although Bell is bigger, stronger and faster, Stewart is quicker and more elusive.

Neither Stewart nor Bell wants to be drawn into a controversy.

"I really couldn't tell you who's

Becker, Graf advance in 'silent' U.S. Open

By Steve Wilstein
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Neither rain nor a crafty foe from Spain could stop Boris Becker as he and fellow defending champion Steffi Graf began the U.S. Open with victories on a day of weird weather and strange silence.

The rumbling of jets was only a memory Monday as players and fans enjoyed blissful quiet thanks to a new arrangement to change the takeoff routes from nearby LaGuardia Airport.

Becker, who had been scheduled to play during the day, didn't finish his two-hour match with Juan Aguilera until well into the evening after waiting out a series of thunderstorms that caused three suspensions of play.

After the hard court in the stadium was mopped and wiped dry, Becker attacked the net aggressively and served well to score a 7-5, 6-3, 6-2 win against Aguilera, who beat Becker on clay in Hamburg last May.

Aguilera rarely approached the net, relying instead on solid passing shots, and led Becker 5-3 after breaking him twice in a row in the first set. But Becker won the next four games, capping the set with a service winner that Aguilera could barely pop up out of bounds.

Becker struggled a little in the second set as Aguilera refused to fold easily, but got a break in the seventh game and went on to win easily as Aguilera tired on the muggy evening.

"It was difficult after the long rain delay," Becker said. "It was very humid and that made (the court) slower. The balls got much bigger (because of the moisture). It was difficult at the beginning to adjust. I thought I better get going or I'd be down one set. I was not very happy to be down 5-3."

Graf, all business after a summer of little pleasure, wore a dark scowl as she walked on court to begin defense of her title. Minutes later, a blazing sun gave way to black clouds, thunder rocked the stadium and lightning lit up a gray Manhattan skyline in the distance.

Omen or coincidence, Graf's dramatic entrance lived up to the tournament's first Monday and reflected her foul mood as she tries to reassert her dominance after defeats in the French Open and Wimbledon.

Graf, the two-time defending U.S. Open women's champion, played faster than usual to beat the oncoming rain and rushed out to a 4-1 lead against an overmatched, exasperated qualifier, 19-year-old Maureen Drake. But after 16 minutes, with the wind whipping papers and hats around the court and a 20-minute downpour starting, the umpire suspended play.

Graf looked no less grim and determined when she came back an hour later. She won the next two games quickly, then after another 25-minute rain delay won 6-1, 6-1. Altogether, the match took 41 minutes to play, but lasted two hours and 13 minutes.

Graf, 21 and barely clinging to the No. 1 ranking she's held since 1987, grumbled Sunday after struggling to beat 14-year-old Jennifer Capriati in three sets in a tuneup tournament.

Graf has been besieged by erratic play and problems on and off the court all year. Winning here would go a long way toward putting those problems — a broken thumb, a paternity suit against her father, surgery to clear a nose blockage — behind her.

"The problems definitely started in Berlin with the press reporting a lot of lies about my family," she said before the tournament. "That really hurt me very much. Then, at Wimbledon, the sinuses got so bad I didn't get any air at all from one side of my nose. I felt dizzy on the court. It was awful trying to play."

She said the reports about her father's private life had a far greater effect on her than either the broken thumb, sustained in a ski accident last winter, or the sinus operation.

A little disheveled and still wearing a serious expression after showering following the match against Drake, Graf expressed sympathy for the teen from Toronto who was making her Open debut under difficult circumstances.

"I think she was quite nervous to have a first round like this," Graf said. "I was never nervous (at that age). At a young age you have nothing to lose. You're just getting into the tour. You're relaxed and not afraid."

Graf said there was a big difference playing Capriati one day and "someone I didn't know" the next, but added that she's on track to pick up her level of play as the Open progresses.

"I'm not at the level I want to be at right now," she said. "My concentration is lacking a little. I'll be sharp. This is such an important tournament. I'm eager. You can be sure I'll be well prepared."

The rain returned even more heavily after Graf and Drake left, flooding the courts and delaying Becker's match and a later one between No. 8 Brad Gilbert and 1988 champion Mats Wilander.

Expos prove team viability by selling television rights

The Associated Press

MONTREAL — In a bid to help lure local investors, the Montreal Expos reached a $23 million agreement with Labatt's Brewery for television rights over the next five years.

Expos president Claude Brochu said Monday he hopes the deal will be followed by similar agreements with a petroleum company, a car manufacturer and a soft-drink firm.

Brochu said the deals could total about $60 million and will send a signal to possible Quebec investors that the team is viable. He said at least one more agreement could be announced this week.

Brochu has been mandated by owner Charles Bronfman to find local buyers by Sept. 1, or Bronfman, who put the team up for sale last spring, will entertain offers from U.S. investors.

"The agreement with Labatt's is an extremely significant one for the Expos, taking into account current negotiations for the sale of the team," Brochu said.

Brochu reiterated that deadline to sell the team is not an absolute, adding, "Not everything will be settled by Sept. 1, but we'll have a better idea of where we've been and where we're going."

Brochu has been trying all summer to put together a deal with local investors but has been unsuccessful.

He said Monday he had "firm commitments," but did not say how much of the reported asking price of $100 million those commitments represented.

Bronfman has reportedly received an offer of $135 million from a Miami-based group and investors in Buffalo are also reported to have made an offer in the $100 million range.

Commissioner Fay Vincent said on a recent visit that he was not in favor of the team leaving Montreal, where it has been since 1969.

Any move requires 75 percent support from National League owners and 50 percent from American League owners.

The NL has announced that it will add two teams for the 1993 season. An announcement on which cities will be awarded franchises is expected next March.

The Expos, who are rebuilding, have been plagued by poor attendance this season, having drawn 1,135,073 in 59 playing dates.

Last year the Expos drew 1,783,533. Montreal attendance reached an all-time high in 1983 when 2,320,651 paid their way into Olympic Stadium.

McMichael signs 3-year deal with Bears

DI wire services

The Chicago Bears have finally come to terms with holdout defensive tackle Steve McMichael.

McMichael agreed to a three-year contract after missing most of training camp.

"It's time to play football," he said. "The guns are going to go off, and I'm going to play football. This is all behind me."

McMichael missed 32 days of camp and four exhibition games while he was demanding a raise in his current contract of $500,000 to $800,000 for 1990. The increase would bring his salary in line with those of other top linemen in the NFL.

The UI Fencing Club will be holding an organizational meeting Sept. 4 at 7 p.m. in room S521 Fieldhouse. Beginners are encouraged to attend.

Regular fencing lessons will be provided for beginners every Sunday and Tuesday following the meeting. Interested people should contact Bob Rosenberg at 351-1325 for more information.

Matt Cavanaugh hit nine of 10 passes for 109 yards in the fourth quarter Monday night and set up Roger Ruzek's 33-yard field goal with 1:56 to go, lifting the Philadelphia Eagles to a 17-16 exhibition victory over the Indianapolis Colts in Indianapolis.

Cavanaugh, the third quarterback used by Philadelphia, was 4-for-5 for 55 yards as Philadelphia drove from its own 18 with five minutes to go to the Colts' 16 at the two-minute mark. Ruzek then hit the winning field goal.

Cavanaugh hit four straight passes for 54 yards on his first series as the Eagles (2-1) rallied from a 16-7 deficit in the final period.

A pass interference penalty in the end zone gave Philadelphia the ball at the 1 and Robert Drummond scored on the next play, cutting the Colts' lead to 16-14 with 10:34 remaining in the game.

Jack Trudeau, still fighting for a starting job that seems destined for $15 million rookie Jeff George, hit 10 of 12 passes for 113 yards and a 4-yard touchdown to Ken Clark midway through the third quarter for Indianapolis.

Burks' homers power Sox

The Associated Press

CLEVELAND — Ellis Burks became the second player in Red Sox history to hit two home runs in one inning and Mike Boddicker extended Boston's shutout streak to 33½ innings in a 12-4 victory over the Cleveland Indians on Monday night.

Burks, who had an RBI double in the first inning, opened the Red Sox' eight-run fourth against Tom Candiotti (13-9) with his 14th homer and capped it by greeting Colby Ward with a three-run shot. Burks also singled in the ninth for a 4-for-5 game as Boston won its fourth straight.

The streak of 33½ scoreless innings by Boston pitchers ended when Boddicker was touched for a solo home run by Chris James, his 10th, with two out in the seventh. It was the first home run yielded by a Boston pitcher in 96 innings.

Burks' feat was the 25th time in major league history that a player hit two homers in one inning. The only other Red Sox player with two in one inning was Bill Regan on June 16, 1928.

Yankees 4, Orioles 0

BALTIMORE — Jesse Barfield, Matt Nokes and Roberto Kelly homered off rookie Ben McDonald, who had yielded only two homers in 57 previous innings, as the New York Yankees beat the Baltimore Orioles 4-0 Monday night behind Andy Hawkins.

Hawkins (5-10) gave up four hits, struck out three and walked five. He needed last-out help from Dave Righetti after a walk to Sam Horn with two out in the ninth, Mickey Tettleton's double and a walk to Tim Lulett. Righetti retired pinch-hitter Ron Kittle on a fly ball for his 28th save.

McDonald (5-3) suffered his third straight loss after winning his first five starts in the major leagues. He gave up all four runs on nine hits in 7½ innings.

Padres 4 Expos 1

MONTREAL — Joe Carter and Garry Templeton homered and Ed Whitson scattered nine hits in 8½

Sports Illustrated denies picking on Notre Dame

The Associated Press

SOUTH BEND, Ind. — The publisher of Sports Illustrated says the magazine isn't singling out Notre Dame football for criticism.

In the current issue, a former Notre Dame linebacker claims steroid abuse was widespread and that two assistant coaches even recommended the muscle-building drug.

Last season, a Sports Illustrated story held Notre Dame responsible for a pre-game brawl at South Bend between Irish and Southern Cal players.

Publisher Donald J. Barr, a Notre Dame alumnus, denies picking on the Irish. The magazine's managing editor, Mark Mulvoy, said back-up sources confirmed the story of steroid abuse.

"We are not watching Notre Dame any closer than any other school," Barr said in South Bend Tribune managing editor Ed Perkins' Sunday column. "We are not camped on the doorstep looking for flaws in a great institution."

"This story was brought to us. We wouldn't have practiced good journalism if we didn't pursue it."

Steve Huffman, who left the Notre Dame football team in 1987 with an injury, claims nearly half the lettering players used steroids. The muscle-building drugs have negative side effects and are banned by the NCAA.

Huffman's first-person article in the Aug. 27 issue contended two assistant coaches suggested steroid use and that Coach Lou Holtz must have known of the situation. Huffman also claimed Holtz pressured him to play despite his injury.

The story began when Huffman contacted Sports Illustrated writer Rick Telander, who flew to Dallas and interviewed him, said Mulvoy.

"Our preliminary work indicated he had a story to tell," said Mulvoy. "We went to work and confirmed it."

Notre Dame acknowledged five players have tested positive for steroids since 1987, but Holtz flatly denied all of Huffman's allegations.

"The only thing we don't have good second sources for is some of the personal conversations between Steve and Holtz. That's Steve's word against Lou's," Mulvoy told the newspaper. Those conversations referred to playing while hurt.

Huffman said he talked to the magazine in retaliation for Holtz's labeling him a quitter in the coach's best-selling book about Notre Dame's 1988 national championship season.

Holtz and Athletic Director Richard Rosenthal attacked Sports Illustrated for publishing the article without seeking comment from Notre Dame.

"It's not that type of story," Mulvoy said. "It was Steve's story. Lou Holtz didn't check with Steve before he published a book calling Steve a quitter."

"We checked everything we could in the story. We talked to Lou. We talked to an assistant coach. We talked to a lot of sources," he said. "This wasn't a story that we got and went with without a lot of working and checking."

"We don't go to war, or to press, without a lot of fact checking. We worked on this all summer. We flew Steve to New York. I eyeballed him for hours across a table. We knew they would deny most of it."

Unknowns cut from NFL teams

The Associated Press

An array of no-names and old names were released by NFL teams Monday and the one that stood out was Pete Najarian, who was cut for the ninth time in three years.

The New York Jets put 33-year-old defensive tackle Marty Lyons on injured reserve, ending his season and perhaps his 11-year NFL career and a host of free agents were released as teams started to approach the 60-player limit they must reach by Tuesday.

Atlanta finally signed All-Pro offensive lineman Chris Hinton, who was obtained in the trade that gave Indianapolis the rights to quarterback Jeff George.

Then there was Najarian, a line-backer who was released by the Tampa Bay Bucs.

"There's a guy who loves the game of football," said Coach Ray Perkins, who rarely comments on cuts. "There are not many Pete Najarians around anymore — guys who love the game and would play it for nothing."

It was the third time Najarian has been cut by the Bucs, who signed him in February 1988 after he had been released five times by the Minnesota Vikings and once by the Seattle Seahawks.

He has played in 16 games, 12 in 1989 when he made 14 tackles on special teams and recovered one fumble. In 1987, he led Minnesota's replacement team with 24 tackles in three games during the players' strike.

As for Lyons, he fell victim to a torn bicep in his right arm sustained during Saturday night's exhibition loss to the New York Giants.

"We were counting on him for leadership in the locker room," Coach Bruce Coslet said. "He wasn't going to start for us, but he was going to play a lot."

"People look up to Marty," added defensive end Jeff Lageman. "Marty was a super guy to have around. Because he's been around for a while, he knows what's going on and helps a lot of players."

Falcons

Hinton's signing left nose tackle Tony Casillas and center Guy Bingham as the only holdouts. He signed a series of four one-year contracts that reportedly will pay him $1.1 million a year and practiced for the first time with his new club on Monday.

The Falcons also indicated a deal to send offensive lineman Bill Fralic to the Cleveland Browns for defensive back Frank Minnifield was off again Monday.

"We had several deals going, including a big one that no one knew about, but they all fell through," Coach Jerry Glanville said.

The Falcons had set a deadline of 9 a.m. Monday. Ken Herock, vice president of player personnel, said negotiations had broken off and the deal was dead, "unless they call us back."

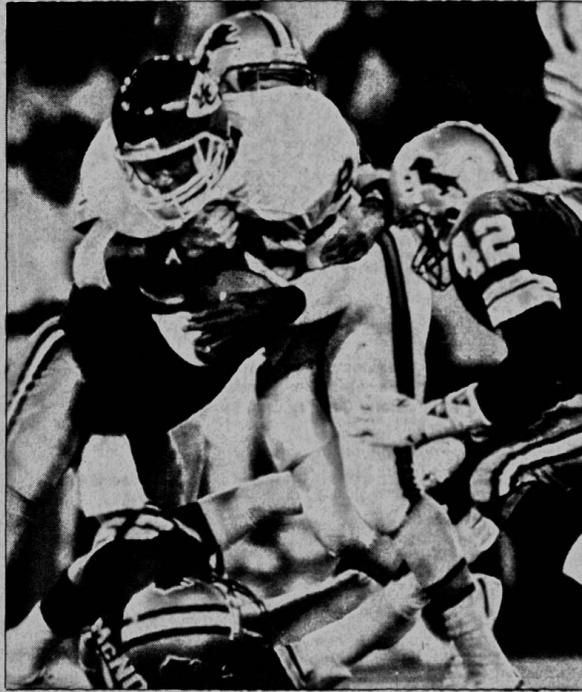

Among those released by Atlanta were Plan B defensive end Jackie Cline, who was with the Miami Dolphins the last three seasons, and two draft choices: No. 9 pick Darrell Jordan, a linebacker from Northern Arizona, and No. 11 selection Chris Ellison, a safety from Houston.

Saints

New Orleans cut six players and backup quarterback Dave Wilson left camp, saying he no longer considers himself a part of the team. Wilson said he felt there was a "very strong possibility" that he would be cut anyway, so he went to see Coach Jim Mora, then left camp.

Wilson was a first-round draft choice of the Saints in 1981. He backed up Archie Manning, Ken Stabler and Richard Todd before getting his chance to start in 1985. He also started in 1986 before being beaten out by Bobby Hebert for the 1987 season.

This year, he has been behind John Fourcade and veteran Tommy Kramer. He said he believes Kramer will be cut and that Jason Garrett and rookie Mike Buck will be the other quarterbacks.

Kansas City running back Kevin Harmon, center, tries to shake off three Detroit Lions defenders — clockwise from bottom, Bruce McNorton, Herb Welch and Chris Oldham — in Detroit's preseason victory Friday. The NFL preseason ends Saturday.

Among the cuts were three draft choices, eighth-round pick Gerry Gdowski, drafted as a quarterback and moved to defensive back; ninth-round pick Broderick Graves, a running back, and 11th-round pick Webb Burnett, a nose tackle.

Chargers

Coach Dan Henning reiterated that quarterback Mark Vlasic will start Saturday's final preseason game against the Raiders although Billy Joe Tolliver remains the favorite to win the starting job.

Vlasic completed seven of 10 passes for 78 yards and one touchdown in Saturday night's 29-28 win over San Francisco. In his three exhibition games, Vlasic has completed 30 of 39 for 390 yards, three touchdowns and one interception.

Tolliver, who played the first half in all three games, has completed 29 of 54 passes for 374 yards and one touchdown.

Still, Henning said Tolliver remains the projected starter when the Chargers open the regular season at Dallas.

"Until the situation reverses itself, which has to be a clean shot, that's the way it's going to be," he said.

Packers

Veteran tight end John Spagnola and defensive back Van Jakes were among 14 players cut by the Pack-

Olazabal becomes a player to watch

By Bob Green
The Associated Press

AKRON, Ohio — Move over Seve. Look out Nick.

Here comes Jose Maria Olazabal. "He's an outstanding player," says Lanny Wadkins. "He's a natural straight-ball hitter. He hits the ball straighter than Seve (Ballesteros) or Langer or Lyle or maybe even Faldo.

"All you have to do is look at what he did here and you can see what kind of future he's going to have."

Wadkins was referring to Olazabal's runaway victory in the World Series of Golf at the Firestone Country Club. The 24-year-old Spaniard won by 12 strokes — the largest victory margin in 15 years on the American tour — with an 18-under-par total that broke Wadkins' course record by five strokes.

The remarkable exhibition produced Olazabal's first American victory and confirmed his position as the best young player in the world.

"He has a game ideally suited to our tour," Wadkins said. "I'd love to see him come over here and play. He'd be a great addition."

But that's not likely. Despite winning $198,000 and a 10-year exemption from qualifying on the American tour, Olazabal said he probably will continue to play a restricted American schedule.

"It's a world game, so a golfer should play all over the world."

Jose Maria Olazabal
Spanish golfer

"It's a world game, so a golfer should play all over the world," said Olazabal, who now has won eight European titles, and one each in the United States and Japan. "The best players not only play all over the world, but the best of the best win all over the world. To prove you're good, you have to win everywhere."

With that in mind, Olazabal probably will stick to a schedule that has him playing the bulk of his golf in Europe, "a few tournaments in Japan, seven or eight in the States. I like what I am doing now pretty well."

Hale Irwin, left, congratulates Jose Maria Olazabal of Spain after Olazabal won the World Series of Golf Sunday with a record-breaking 18 under par 252 at Firestone Country Club in Akron, Ohio.

Olazabal, who set 18-, 36-, 54- and 72-hole scoring records for the course and tournament, said his weekend heroics were "important to me because it's my first win in the States."

But he made it clear it was only another step on the way. At the same time, he appeared to distance himself a bit from his more famous countryman, Seve Ballesteros. Asked if he had been inspired by Ballesteros' great play, Olazabal replied:

"Yes. And the great play of Jack Nicklaus. And the great play of Tom Watson. I am just trying to make my way. The way you do that is to win tournaments. One of my goals was to win in the States. Now my goals are to win in the majors."

And there's no reason that can't happen.

Unknowns rise to top in collegiate opener

By Bernie Wilson
The Associated Press

ANAHEIM, Calif. — Tennessee's Andy Kelly and Colorado's Mike Pritchard cut through the hype surrounding the season-opening football game.

They certainly weren't anyone's preseason All-Americans, like Darian Hagan, Eric Bieniemy, Chuck Webb and Carl Pickens.

Once the turnovers settled, though, Kelly and Pritchard had career performances in Sunday's 31-31 tie between the No. 8 Volunteers and the No. 5 Buffaloes in the inaugural Pigskin Classic.

Pritchard, a wide receiver moved to the backfield because Bieniemy was serving a one-game suspension, helped Colorado to a 31-17 lead. He scored on runs of 78 and 55 yards, finishing with 217 yards on 20 carries, the sixth-best performance in school history.

Kelly's amazing passing twice brought the Vols back from two-touchdown deficits in the fourth quarter. He completed 33-of-55 passes — both school records — for two touchdowns and 368 yards, the fourth-best total in school history.

"Our plan usually is to keep things off-balance," said Kelly, who also threw three interceptions. "In the first half when I was passing, I was not making good decisions."

"In the second half, everyone got pumped up and started playing with discipline. I started throwing better."

Kelly, a junior, won the starting job in the sixth game of 1989. He threw for 106 yards in the first half Sunday, but made two ill-advised throws in the second quarter.

Trying to get the Vols out of a hole, he was intercepted at the Tennessee 19 by Dave McCloughan. Then, in the closing seconds, he was picked off in the end zone by Tim James.

"I was not pleased with the first half," Kelly said.

"Andy Kelly was excellent," Coach Johnny Majors said. "He had some timing difficulties. He threw off-balance two or three times. Those things are going to happen. He makes it go, sometimes he doesn't. He gets some pressure and it's difficult to get the things done just right."

"He had three big dropped passes in the first half. They started sticking to them in the fourth quarter or else we wouldn't have come back. He showed guts and confidence."

With the Vols down 24-10 after McCloughan's 55-yard punt return, Kelly completed four straight passes, including a 24-yard touchdown throw to Alvin Harper.

After Pritchard's 78-yard run, the Vols started on their 13. Kelly completed six of seven passes, the final one going 14 yards to Pickens to cut the lead to 31-24.

Tennessee started its tying drive on its 26. Kelly hit seven of nine passes this time, getting the Vols to the 4. Webb scored on a draw, and Majors elected to kick the point-after rather going for two.

Tennessee got the ball back, but had no timeouts left. The game ended as Webb ran out of bounds at the Buffs' 16.

"I'm just proud our team could come back and tie," Kelly said. "We kept fighting and never gave up. I think the experience on our offense paid off in the second half."

Kelly overshadowed Webb, who had 131 yards on 27 carries, and Pickens, who caught eight passes for 141 yards.

Pritchard had a tough start, too.

Johnny Majors

Vols coach takes lead in tie games

The Associated Press

ANAHEIM, Calif. — When Tennessee couldn't take the lead against Colorado Sunday, Johnny Majors took the lead in tie games among the winningest active Division I-A coaches.

The Vols' 31-31 with Colorado in the first Pigskin Classic gave Majors nine ties in 23 seasons. UCLA's Terry Donahue and Iowa's Hayden Fry have eight ties apiece, Donahue in 14 years and Fry in 28.

Chuck Webb's 4-yard run with 2:25 left pulled the Vols to 31-30. Majors, guessing correctly that Tennessee would get the ball back, decided to have Greg Burke kick the extra point.

Tennessee had to use its final timeout to get the ball back, and the game ended as Webb went out of bounds on the Colorado 16.

"The decision to go for two is always a great decision," Majors said. "People always like to second-guess that decision. Unless you are going for a championship, a tie is a lot better than a loss. The way our team fought back, I'll stick to that a long, long time."

Quarterback Andy Kelly, who led the Volunteers' comeback from a two-touchdown deficit, wasn't about to argue with his coach.

"It was coach Majors' decision, and I respect that. I would never second-guess his decision."

Majors is 21st on the list of active Division I-A coaches with a 150-97-9 record. He is 93-54-7 in 14 years at Tennessee. The Vols have played five ties since 1984.

Parker, Kelly, Gant name MLB players of the week

The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Dave Parker of the Milwaukee Brewers and Roberto Kelly of the New York Yankees were named American League co-players of the week on Monday and Ron Gant of the Atlanta Braves was named National League player of the week.

Parker batted .429 last week, going 12-for-28 with four home runs, 11 runs batted in and six runs scored. Kelly was 13-for-32, a .406 average, with four double home runs, seven runs batted in and five RBIs.

Other AL nominees were Trammell and Tony Phillips of Detroit and Cal Ripken of Baltimore.

Gant, like Parker, was 12-for-28 last week. He scored eight runs, stole three bases and had two home runs. He batted .393 with two home runs, 11 runs batted in and six runs scored.

Eric Davis of Cincinnati was named runner-up.

Bo Jackson slugged his fourth consecutive homer Sunday, a 450-foot shot into the second tier of the water display in Kansas City. Jackson, who hit three straight homers before injuring his shoulder against the New York Yankees July 17, hit the homer off Seattle's Randy Johnson.

'Lucky' Jackson returns with 450-foot home run

By Doug Tucker
The Associated Press

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — A smiling Bo Jackson offers a simple explanation for his uncanny flair for the dramatic.

"Just lucky as a devil," he said. But Kansas City manager John Wathan has a different theory. "Amazing," he said. "That's probably the best way to describe it."

Returning to the lineup Sunday for the first time in more than a month, Jackson had a chance to tie one of baseball's most unassailable records. Before injuring his shoulder trying to make a diving catch on July 17, he had hit home runs in three consecutive at-bats.

The major league record is four in a row. So, with 41 days to savor the moment, Jackson strode to the plate in the second inning to face Seattle's Randy Johnson.

Not only did he homer, he homered on the first pitch.

Not only did he homer on the first pitch, he hammered a 450-foot shot that splashed into the second tier of the water display behind left-center, a spot reached only twice before in the 18-year history of Royals Stadium. He swears he saw the seam on the fastball as it flashed toward him.

"That particular pitch, I saw it so good," he said. "I'm not trying to brag, but I actually saw the threads on that ball right before I hit it."

Jackson became the 10th American League player to hit a home run in four consecutive at-bats, and the first since Larry Herndon of the Detroit Tigers on May 16 and 18 in 1982.

The two-run shot was also the 20th of the year for Jackson, making him the third Royal to club 20 homers in four straight years.

The 41 days between plate appearances seemed like only a few minutes, he said.

"Once I started playing, I felt like the 17th was only yesterday. I was ready to play two weeks ago, but they said it was a six-week injury and they wanted to give me the full time to rest. I convinced them to let me play."

The fateful pitch was a belt-high fastball.

"It was just right there," said Johnson, who took the loss in the Royals' 8-2 victory. "He's a strong guy. I threw the ball hard. It was just a matter of how far it was going to be."

Jackson wound up 3-for-4. The crowd of almost 27,000 was on the edge of its seat when he took his second at-bat in the fourth inning. But the fly ball died in right field.

Oiler owner called 'a jerk' by Gretzky

The Associated Press

EDMONTON, Alberta — Wayne Gretzky has written his autobiography and, not surprisingly, the hockey superstar doesn't have many kind words for his former boss, Edmonton Oilers owner Peter Pocklington.

In "Gretzky: An Autobiography," the captain of the Los Angeles Kings describes Pocklington as a cheapskate and says "sometimes he could be a complete jerk."

Pocklington sold Gretzky to the Kings in August 1988 for a reported $18 million, just months after Gretzky led the Oilers to their fourth Stanley Cup in five years.

In the book, co-written by Rick Reilly, Gretzky says Pocklington was miserly when it came to gifts to the players.

Gretzky says the first time the Oilers won the Stanley Cup, Pocklington gave diamond rings to everyone on the team. But the size of the diamond varied on how Pocklington viewed their contribution to the club.

"That meant the trainers and the equipment guys got these tiny diamonds and the guys who sat on the bench got a little bigger diamond, but not much, and so on until you-know-who got a huge one," Gretzky says in the book.

"Here we'd spent the last five years trying to bang through everybody's skull that we were a team... and Peter goes and ranks us all by carat."

Gretzky says he didn't know any thing about the rings until then-assistant coach John Muckler told him that the hand on the diamond meter went the wrong way when he got his ring appraised. Muckler, assistant coach Ted Green and all the training staff were given fake diamonds.

Gretzky says then-coach Glen Sather made Pocklington get the coaches genuine diamonds. "I was so embarrassed I took all the trainers' rings and had them done properly," he added.

The comments in Gretzky's book are not the first time Pocklington has come under fire for his financial dealings. Once highly accessible, Pocklington has become almost a recluse since the Gretzky trade, adding a new security system to his home and generally refusing interview requests.

This week, Pocklington sold the Edmonton Trappers, a Triple A baseball franchise with the Pacific Coast League, for about $6 million. Pocklington refused to comment on the sale, which will see the team move to Memphis, Tenn.

In the book, Gretzky says salary concerns started any problems he had with Sather and Pocklington.

He says Sather couldn't accept that players wanted higher salaries, while Pocklington used the cash flow provided by the Oilers to support his other business ventures.

"He knew what he needed and it wasn't more Stanley Cups," Gretzky says in the book. "He didn't need to sell more tickets. His arena was already sold out. He needed cash." Gretzky says the Ferrari that Pocklington "gave" him when he tied Marcel Dionne for the scoring race his first year in the NHL was actually a three-year lease.

"I had to pay the licensing and insurance on it and I had the option to buy it out at the end of the term. I ended up selling it and I think I lost $3,000 on the deal. Any more gifts from Peter and I was going to go broke."

Gretzky says he was initially thrilled when Pocklington gave him a $50,000 bond for his first-born child after he broke Gordie Howe's all-time assist record in 1987.

"Then I found out the thing matured at $50,000 — in 25 years. What that bond cost Peter was about $3,500."

Jets get two players, trade wide receiver

The Associated Press

HEMPSTEAD, N.Y. — Unsigned second-round draft pick Reggie Rembert was traded by the New York Jets to the Cincinnati Bengals on Monday for linebacker Joe Kelly and tackle Scott Jones.

Rembert, a wide receiver from West Virginia, became expendable when the Jets selected Rob Moore of Syracuse in the supplemental draft and Moore performed well in training camp. Rembert was seeking a contract on a scale of a first-round selection. Now, he has to negotiate with the Bengals.

"I'm not terribly surprised that it happened," Gus Sunseri, Rembert's agent, said of the deal. Sunseri said no negotiations with the Bengals have been held.

Kelly has been a starter since the middle of his rookie season, 1986, when he was a first-round pick out of Washington. He probably will start for the Jets on the outside, where New York mostly has been using inexperienced Joe Mott, a former Iowa player, and inconsistent Alex Gordon.

Jones was a 12th-round pick in the 1989 draft, made the team and even replaced All-Pro Anthony Munoz against Pittsburgh when Munoz was sidelined with a knee injury.

Coach Bruce Coslet is familiar with Kelly and Scott from his stint as offensive coordinator with the Bengals, which ended this year when he joined the Jets.

Mathews cleared of charges, but two Cardinals still on trial

The Associated Press

COVINGTON, Ky. — A judge dismissed charges Monday against a former St. Louis Cardinals player who was on trial with two current team members for their part in a May 19 brawl at a service station.

Kenton County District Judge Steve Jaeger said prosecutors failed to present enough evidence for jurors to decide whether pitcher Greg Mathews broke the law.

Mathews went on trial Monday, with catcher Tom Pagnozzi and pitcher Frank DiPino, on misdemeanor charges of disorderly conduct. They face up to 90 days in jail if convicted.

Covington police officer Antonio Browning testified Monday that he saw Pagnozzi throwing punches into a crowd of people. Officer Anthony Williams testified that he saw DiPino holding a man in a headlock and punching him in the face.

According to police, Mathews was arrested when he opened the door of the police car to speak with DiPino and Pagnozzi after they were arrested.

The players say they were coming to the aid of a woman who was attacked. Police officer Mike Craft testified that the three told the same story on their ride to jail.

"In the back seat, Mr. DiPino said, 'That's the last time I'll be a good Samaritan,'" Craft said.

Defense lawyer Kurt Philipps has said he believes a man who was attacking the woman at the service station was an off-duty police officer.

However, Jaeger refused to let Philipps question police officials Monday about whether they were investigating that possibility. Dodgers charges withdrawn PITTSBURGH — Charges of simple assault filed against two Los Angeles Dodgers following a scuffle with a bartender at a night club were withdrawn Monday following an out-of-court settlement.

None of the parties involved in the settlement would discuss specifics of the agreement between the players — Juan Samuel and Alfredo Griffin — and Wilson Sturgeon Jr., the bartender.

At a City Court hearing before Magistrate Edward Borkowski, Assistant District Attorney Bernard Kelly asked that the charge against each player be dropped because Sturgeon did not wish to prosecute.

Borkowski approved the motion without comment. Attorney Thomas McGough, who represented Griffin, would say only that the dispute was "resolved amicably."

Attorney Rex Gary, who represented Samuel, and attorney Sam Fernandez, general counsel to the Dodgers, declined comment.

Sturgeon, who has worked at Chauncy's night club for the past 18 months, said the players' attorneys approached his attorney, Arthur Bloom, before the hearing. Sturgeon would describe the settlement only as fair.

Neither Samuel nor Griffin would comment.

Police said shortly before 2 a.m. July 21, a few hours after the Pirates and Dodgers played at Three Rivers Stadium, the two players were in Chauncy's when Griffin intervened in a domestic dispute involving two unidentified customers.

MESSAGE BOARD

BUFFY and CHIP:
I have mixed emotions since my return to you both. Our love has obviously grown stronger, yet I feel this Batman can only handle one superhero—Wonderwoman. But don't fret because I will always keep both of you sheltered under my cape. Although Wonderwoman is my true love, the big commitment is not official. Therefore, I truly hope we can continue to love one another—physically and emotionally—until the semester ends and my new life begins. Until next time, may your Batdolls keep you company until I can warm your hearts myself. It's great to be back.
Love and sloppy wet kisses,

Who won't like Audio Odyssey's 20th Anniversary Sale? (the competition!)

The Best System Buy in Our 20-Year History!

Nakamichi

Buy the receiver and cassette deck at the regular price of $349 each, and we'll give you the $349 CD-player at no charge!

Nakamichi has always been known as an audiophile brand, enjoyed by purists and professionals and by those to whom money is no object. Now, Audio Odyssey puts the sound of Nakamichi within the reach of every music lover. The Nakamichi TA-1A receiver, CR-1A cassette deck, and OMS-1A CD-player. No bells and whistles...just sound so rich--yet now so affordable--that the quality and value will startle you.

ADCOM'S Competitors Hate Their Guts.

Our Customers Love 'em.

What the critics are saying:

- The Stereophile on the GFA-555: "clearly superior to amplifiers in the low-to-mid price range--not to mention most amplifiers two to three times its price."
- The Stereophile on the GFA-535: "in its price category, the Adcom GFA-535 is not only an excellent choice; it's the only choice."
- The Stereophile on the GTP-400: "the sound of the GTP-400 can only be described as remarkable...sets a new standard in the cost vs. performance category...you'll have to spend close to $1000 for a separate pre-amp and tuner in order to move to a higher level of performance."

Our Competitors Hate Our Prices. Our Customers Love 'em! SAVE 10% ON ALL ADCOM!

For Music You Can Feel.

$248

Denon's new DRA-335 receiver combines 40 watts of high-current power, a full system remote control, and one feature not found in any other receiver... Denon design integrity.

$298

Our lowest price ever!

Denon. Inventor of the direct-drive turntable in 1939. Inventor of digital recording in 1972. And now, 1st with optical bias in the PMA-520 integrated amp for unparalleled sonic accuracy. 70 watts of high-current power, plenty of inputs, Denon's unique CD-direct circuitry, and our lowest price ever add up to an unbeatable value.

$398

SONY's new STR-QX50ES receiver has it all. 80 watts of power (185 watts of peak power), a true audio and video remote control, optical class A circuitry for blissfully low distortion, and a 3-year parts and labor warranty.

FREE INSTALLATION!

Any Alpine or Boston Acoustics car stereo product purchased before September 2nd will be installed at no extra charge! All work is performed at Audio Odyssey and is guaranteed for as long as you own your car. Our free installation offer does not include custom work or installation kits, if required.

Les Jepsen, former Hawkeye star and current member of the Golden State Warriors, standing beside his pride and joy, a 1990 Ford Bronco. Les' system is based around an Alpine CD-player, Boston Acoustics Pro-Series speakers, Bazooka subwoofer and Alpine amplifiers, and is protected by a remote-controlled Alpine security system. We'd like to extend a special Audio Odyssey thanks to Les and wish him the best of luck in his NBA career. Go Warriors!

Did You Know That?

- We carry a wide selection of SONY TVs sale priced from $299.
- We have free delivery and set-up in the Iowa City/Coralville area.
- We have local service on all video products we sell.

All SONY VHS VCRs are on sale at our lowest prices of the year. New Hi-Fi VCRs start at just $499 and feature the most advanced technology and features SONY has ever packed into the VHS format.

A Dare to Compare!

Go ahead, we dare anyone to compare the sound quality of the Bostons to comparably priced speakers from Advent, Bose, Polk, and Infinity. What will you find? Well...at least the prices are comparable!

So Good We Back Them With a Lifetime Warranty

From Denon, the inventor of digital recording, comes the HD-7 100-minute cassette. We're so confident in the quality of these cassettes, that we will replace them free of charge should you ever have a problem with one.

Audio Odyssey

Celebrating Music in Iowa City for 20 Years!

409 Kirkwood Ave., Iowa City 338-9505

We Do Digital Right!

When you buy a CD-player from Audio Odyssey, you can always count on three things:

- You're buying a player from a technology leader like Denon, Nakamichi, Sony ES, or Adcom.
- You'll receive local, factory-authorized service should you have a problem.
- If you have a problem that we can't fix in 7 days, we'll give you a loaner to use.

Technology. Convenience. Reliability. You'll find them all in DENON's DCD-620 CD-Player. Using an advanced 20-bit digital filter and 8-times oversampling, this player picks up even minute data in the signal which most players obscure.

Meet our competition's worst nightmare: the Sony CDP-C75ES 5-CD changer. With the world's most sophisticated 1-bit converter operating at 45,158,140 times per second, there are no glitches and no crossover distortion. Just the cleanest, quietest, purest sound ever to come off a CD. The C75ES also enables you to store all kinds of information about the way you like to play up to 185 of your favorite discs. Wrap all this technology and flexibility in a full 3-year warranty and get ready for years of listening pleasure!

Stack The Deck In Your Favor!

Unlike other stores, every cassette deck we sell is:

- hand-calibrated to guarantee you the performance you paid for;
- backed by local, factory-authorized service; and
- covered by a loaner program if your deck has a problem and we can't fix it in seven days.

A lot of value for a little money. Denon's DRM-400 features Dolby B & C noise reduction, non-slip reel drive for superior tape handling, fine bias adjust, and system remote control from Denon receivers.

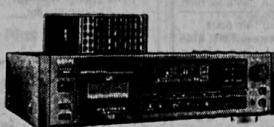

Is a high quality, dual-well cassette deck at a reasonable price possible? Let the Denon DRW-750 prove it to you with performance features like 4 motors; Dolby B, C, and HX Pro; hard sendust head; and fine-bias adjust.

Save 30% on Nakamichi!

Nakamichi's CR-2A achieves its benchmark performance by using the finest transport, heads, and record/playback electronics of any deck in the under $500 range. Don't miss out on a chance to own a truly classic deck at a 30% savings...quantities at this price are limited!

It's here! DAT from SONY.

The world's premier DAT deck--the SONY DTC-75ES--has arrived at Audio Odyssey. To help get you started making perfect digital copies of your favorite recordings, we'll be giving away SONY DAT cassettes and a DAT cleaning cassette valued at $75.

Waking Up Never Sounded So Good!

Nakamichi's TM-1 is so much more than a clock radio. With a substantial 5" speaker, bass and treble controls, and quartz synthesized tuning, the sound is pure Nakamichi. $125

Available in black or white.
