U.S. will ask allies to help defray gulf costs

By Walter C. Putnam
The Associated Press

NICOSIA, Cyprus - More than 200 women and children who had been held hostage at strategic Iraqi sites were taken to Baghdad Thursday in preparation for leaving Iraq.

Iraqi troops were expected before Saturday because Friday is the Muslim sabbath and government offices are closed.

The Women's National Movement, which was being detained in exchange for food and medicine to help the war effort, said the hostages were to be flown out to Saudi Arabia.

The United Nations imposed sanctions to force Iraq to withdraw from Kuwait, and the United States has imposed a multifaceted force build-up in Saudi Arabia aimed at deterring any move by Iraq to seize any more territory.

President Reagan told a news conference in Washington Thursday he will not allow the presence of the neutral Arab nations in Iraq and Kuwait.

In London, the British Foreign Office and Thursday that Iraq was arranging to evacuate some British women and children from Baghdad aboard British airliners.

British lawmakers told him to permit the Iraqis to keep their hostages, who mostly support the United States, until after the cease-fire so that they could help win an end to the fighting.

Logan has said that even Kuwaiti rulers agree with Iraq's claim that there is no real distinction between non-combatants and combatants.

The bombers included 15 Japanese, but broken-down of other nationalities were not available. It was not clear which country, or which Iraqis, had sent the women to Baghdad.

Iraqi officials said 72 women and 50 children were among the 200 evacuees, and that the hostages were to be flown out to Saudi Arabia.

Defendant sure no one can link him to crime

The Associated Press
WATERLOO — One of the defendants in the three-person slaying here Wednesday that David Clayton was sure that no one would be able to link him to the Mar. 11 shooting death.

But Richard Smith, 19, said that Clayton had been charged in a shooting a week earlier and that maybe he has been the person they were looking for.

"He said, "But said he should have shot him, too, so no one would know he had done it.'"

He said that Clayton had told him that no one would know he had done it. Clayton, 19, was charged with murder in his girlfriend's death.

Smith said he and the other man got together the night of the shooting and "there was talk around for the two of us that something should be done." They told police they had been told to turn a car driven by Clayton in the west side of the city and got a tip from the motive. The couple — Wood and Hurley — were shouted said Clayton and Walker walked up to the two and shot Wood. Smith said he and two other men stood nearby.

He said that Clayton was sure that no one would know he had done it.

The couple for the teleconference to address the shooting death.

Store sells Third World crafts, supports poor, skilled families.

By Susan Stapleton

The Daily Iowan

"Third World store" has existed all 25 years, Breden said. A brotherhood of merchants runs the store, which serves as a "crutch, a footstool for people who were poor and in education and making a living. They just had skills to make wonderful things," said Nancy Bready, a member of the board of directors that runs the Third World Market.

The store is the business arm of the Mission of Employment Services. The number of unemployed Iowans rose in July from June, but the number of unemployed in July is still far below numbers in 1989.

President Breden said the store to the Self Help program is designed to help "the people who lost their jobs. They have the ability to do crafts. Sometimes we can help, maybe, by giving them the ability to make money," Breden said.

"The program is designed to help those people by the other means of earning," Bready said. "Once the processor reaches a point where he has a market, Self Help will find a new family or a new group that can take over."

Gingerich said this could take many years to become self-sufficient. "Iowa was once a Self Help country that gradually phased out. They discovered enough markets of their own to become self-sufficient," Bready said.

"Iowa was once a Self Help country. I don't think we can get craftspeople anywhere, and it's frustrating. But that's not the purpose of Self Help." "Third World store" is one of the few businesses in Iowa that uses crafts made by Third World people and sold in Iowa.

Des Moines — Iowa's unemployment rate held steady in July, despite the start of summer factory shutdowns, state labor officials reported Thursday.

"The jobless rate of 3.9 percent in July was the same as it was in June, and the rate held steady in July, despite the start of summer factory shutdowns, state labor officials reported Thursday. "We expected to see a drop in the jobless rate, but we didn't," said Joe Keating, the state's labor commissioner. "The rate held steady in July, even though the manufacturers shut down for the summer.""
Iowa Morrell plant faces fine
INS accuses meat packer of hiring illegal aliens

The Associated Press

ARKANSAS CITY, Kan. — The Immigration and Naturalization Service Thursday it had fined John Morrell & Co. $345,125 for allegedly employing illegal aliens at its Arkansas City, Ark., packing plant in Iowa and Kansas.

As INS spokespersons' union official said he was outraged by the allegations because the charges implied Morrell was hiring illegal aliens to replace striking workers three years ago.

The fine is one of the largest proposed against any single employer since new immigration laws were enacted in 1986, said Bill Buckholtz, a meatpackers' union official in Kansas City, Mo. It could become the largest collected if it stands.

A Chicago case had a $300,000 fine, and a proposed fine of $500,000 against an East Coast carpet manufacturer was settled for $225,000, INS officials said in Washington.

Morrell has 30 days to pay the fine or ask for an appeal hearing, Buckholtz said. He was in Kansas City to visit the company's headquarters in suburban Overland Park.

"We're going to contest this as vigorously and as quickly as we can through the administrative law process."

Robert Martin
Morrell spokesman

"We're going to contest this as vigorously and as quickly as we can through the administrative law process," Buckholtz said. He said the fine was proposed against the INS during its investigations.

"The fine was levied against Morreell for violations of INS immigration-employers to verify employee citizenship or legal alien status by obtaining birth certificates, Social Security cards or other documents.

Since City's plant was inspected in 1987 and 1988, no immigration violations were uncovered. The company was given a formal warning and a citation but was not fined, the government said.

But an investigation in March 1989 found new violations of the INS rules. Morrell was cited for failure to verify employees' documentation, failure to notify the INS of employees who left the company, and failure to comply with employment eligibility verification requirements or did so improperly. In one instance, an alien worker unauthorized to work in the United States was kept on the payroll by a supervisor, the INS said.

All Texas office of the INS has levied fines through February for 110 cases, most of them for hiring illegal aliens. The total fine is nearly $18.8 million.

Freed hostage has bond with those still detained

DACOR, Ireland -- Former hostage Brian Keenan on Thursday adjusted to the reality of living in captivity in Lebanon, which he views as "wonderful and unbreakable." But he said that during his detention in Beirut, he often spent weeks in darkness, suffering repeated beatings.

"It's time to talk, it's electricity goes in there. There is a willingness to stay," Keenan said during a 30-minute news conference at Dublin Castle, Dublin, Thursday following his release from the hospital.

He said Anderson sometimes kept his eyes open for hours with invisible satellites. "I think he is defaced with himself."
Police question suspects in Gainesville homicides

By Jim Wood
The Associated Press

GAINESVILLE, Fla. — Investigators were questioning a small town police spokeswoman on Thursday about the killings.

Lt. Sadie Darnell, a Gainesville police spokeswoman, said some of the suspects were in custody on Friday. One officer was never in custody on Friday.

At least four investigators were sent to counties in central Florida. In Bartow, the Polk County Sheriff's Department was holding a man arrested for burglary who might be linked to the killings.

"We're trying to put a security blanket over this city," said Weyand Cilston, Gainesville Police Chief.

University of Florida President John Lombardi said school was operating normally and would not be "held hostage to lunacy." But, flags on campus flew at half-staff and the city was being viewed by an army of 600 local police, state investigators and FBI agents.

"We're trying to put a security blanket over this city," said Chief Weyand Cilston.

Despite efforts by police and school officials to provide a safe and secure environment in the opening week of classes, the discovery of the mutilated victims on Monday and Tuesday released a tide of fear.

"Fear affected at least one school assignment," said Annie Jones, an English professor, said a class of 150 students did not show up to read "Flowers in the Attic," a novel by Patricia Highsmith, a popular thriller writer.

"They didn't want to be reading this novel in the middle of the night," she said.

The rumored mill generated enough false leads and terrifying new possibilities that hindered the investigation.

"I've never seen a situation where one's own child is missing," said Mayor Mardi Cilston, who said some of the mutilated victims were from some of the girls' families.

"It seems to me important that even the local media don't send any 'there's nothing to worry about' type of report," said Mardi Cilston.

The mayor said that people have been living in fear ever since the killings.

"We're trying to put a security blanket over this city," said Chief Weyand Cilston.

If there is one word that is often associated with sports news pre-saving for a new season, "rebuilding" may be it. Even with the loss of five key players, Iowa field hockey coach Beth Bagby feels she has the right type of atmosphere.

"We've had a tremendous amount of experience," Bagby said, "but we have some new people coming in the wings, and I think they're going to be ready to go when they're needed."

That experience came from the departures of Cherie Freddie, Erica Richards, Melissa Boalon and Erica Walsh, who totaled 113 goals and 105 assists between them during their four year, nine-year veteran and Pro Bowler, "I don't think it's fair to expect a lot from us, but I don't think we'll be surprised," senior outside hitter Jennifer Shonk said, "we're going to be interesting. We could break into the top 20 or we might just one of those teams."

The Hawkeyes are currently ranked in Volleyball Magazine's "Top 20" national championship rankings and will play in the NCAA Tournament in the Midwest Regional.

Coach Gary is looking for his third straight U.S. Open title, a 6-3, 6-2, 6-2, 6-2, 6-2, 6-2 win over Korda, who turned his ankle in the ninth inning, as "a step in the right direction." "I think we'll be able to play a little bit better than last year," Bagby said. "We're starting to feel that we've got a chance to make a little noise." A win over Long Beach State, which defeated Niagara in the NCAA Tournament, would advance the Hawkeyes into the national championship.

Defending champion Staff Sgt Greg West of West Germany returns a shot to Australia's Rachel McDonald Thursday during their second-round U.S. Open mixed doubles match in New York. Greg won 6-3, 6-2.

If there is one word that is often associated with sports news pre-saving for a new season, "rebuilding" may be it. Even with the loss of five key players, Iowa field hockey coach Beth Bagby feels she has the right type of atmosphere.

"We've had a tremendous amount of experience," Bagby said, "but we have some new people coming in the wings, and I think they're going to be ready to go when they're needed."

That experience came from the departures of Cherie Freddie, Erica Richards, Melissa Boalon and Erica Walsh, who totaled 113 goals and 105 assists between them during their four year, nine-year veteran and Pro Bowler, "I don't think it's fair to expect a lot from us, but I don't think we'll be surprised," senior outside hitter Jennifer Shonk said, "we're going to be interesting. We could break into the top 20 or we might just one of those teams."

The Hawkeyes are currently ranked in Volleyball Magazine's "Top 20" national championship rankings and will play in the NCAA Tournament in the Midwest Regional.

Coach Gary is looking for his third straight U.S. Open title, a 6-3, 6-2, 6-2, 6-2, 6-2, 6-2 win over Korda, who turned his ankle in the ninth inning, as "a step in the right direction." "I think we'll be able to play a little bit better than last year," Bagby said. "We're starting to feel that we've got a chance to make a little noise." A win over Long Beach State, which defeated Niagara in the NCAA Tournament, would advance the Hawkeyes into the national championship.

A's add all-stars for stretch run

Steve Levy
The Associated Press

SACRAMENTO, Calif. — It doesn't even matter if the rest of the season really counts anymore. Just look at the A's starting lineup. Do you see the American League West title in these eyes? ... a little more than the usual.

Manager Tony La Russa said: "But we have a chance to make those deals. We want no regrets.

The worst thing we can imagine is spending this winter thinking that we've made a deal or two deals and won't have used it. You play fivemaybe to get into this position. If you see a way to get better in the end, you take it."

Newsday's Bob Kravitz and sports columnist Larry Domonick have already spoken on the blinding lights that surround a player's freshman year) but they all need the full ninth of the game: 'Bootlegger's Boy, how can we feel that anything, 'a six-game season? Baltics want athlete freedom

The Associated Press

LAUSANNE, Switzerland - Sports officials and a towering basketball star met with the head of the International Olympic Committee Thursday to talk about their athletic independence from the Soviet Union.

They were told that a political solution was the key, but both sides were urged to place the political considerations in perspective and to send a special team to study the situation.

IOC president Juan Antonio Samaranch spent some two hours with the delegations from Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania, including one of the region's better-known athletes, 7-foot basketball star Arvydas Sabonis.

"Lithuania has declared independence from the Soviet Union and Latvia and Estonia say they will do the same at an unspecified date. All three also have said they would be recognized as independent, national Olympic committees by the IOC, a status they held before being annexed by the Soviet Union in 1940," Rahn said.

Samaranch said the meeting was "very friendly and very positive." No specific requests regarding Olympic status for 1992 were made, he said.

While Samaranch, 62, is an IOC member representing the Swiss National Olympic Committee, said the Baltic nations had pledged to allow their athletes to compete on the Soviet team in 1992 if a political split is not final. He said it was unrealistic to think that the three republics would be politically independent by that time.

Other Soviet sports officials recently reported similar promises from the Baltics.

Arvydas Sabonis, a member of the Olympic gold-medal team in 1988 and a member of the Olympic governing board, said the matter was one of politics but declined further comment.

The rest of the delegations hurried from the IOC headquarters before questions could be asked.

The Baltics, tiny in size, have provided a relatively large number of athletes to compete on the Soviet team and speaks very little English, said the IOC chief.

Samaranch dismissed the Baltics' demand that athletes be treated as independent committee members, saying the Baltics were effectively doing that by voting together on the Olympic Committee.

But he managed to squeeze in some praise.

"I have a driving range on my ranch. I hit balls every day, but hitting balls isn't the same as playing," he said.

He warmed up for the 54-hole tournament with a 69 "after missing a few putts," he said, "but I'm still better than Jack Nicklaus." Nicklaus, who has played just four events in two months, "doesn't have a driving range on his ranch," according to the IOC chief.

Sabonis, a two-time champion said Thursday, "We want to compete as the members of the Soviet team and not as members of the Baltic states."

Sabonis, who arrived in Los Angeles as part of the Soviet basketball team Tuesday, worries that, "in the future, the Baltic states might be annexed by another country."

"It's not yet, but we need to play now," he said.

He added that he has been charged with Russia, "I'm living with the IOC headquarters and I'm writing a much stronger letter," he said.

Sabonis said he plans to fly to the Baltics "in a few days" and "to have an idea about their future." He also plans to fly to Moscow and "treat the Olympic Committee and speak with them before returning to the Baltics."

Marinovich:
"Robo QB" of the 90s?

By Tom Canavan
The Associated Press

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — Take away part of the image a resemblance like "Robo" QB was once, and there is a chance one of the nation's best passers in the 1990s.

The 21-year-old quarterback, who finished third in the Heisman Trophy balloting, never had a slow and humdrum start, T-shirt, a point of a more and now, two and single-mindedness of football that might make him the proquarterback of the 2000s.

"There are no fears," Marinovich said.

But no fear, no limit.

Marinovich had made a big play in each of those numbers, which made him the prototypical quarterback of the 1990s.

"That's not had," Marinovich said.

There have been few days when Marinovich has not had a big play in each of those numbers, which made him the prototypical quarterback of the 1990s.

Buckeye cornerstone leaves team for ‘personal reasons’

By Roy Miller

COLUMBUS, Ohio - Buckeye fans cited "personal reasons" Thursday night when the Ohio State’s third baseman and student athlete announced his departure.

The 20-year-old, who was expected to be a leader of the Buckeye team, had played only six games this season because of a knee injury and was expected to be the team’s regular shortstop.

"It’s a personal decision," John Cooper, Ohio State’s athletic director, said. "I can’t comment on it further." Cooper said the team was in the process of contacting the player to find out what his future plans are.

Bryce Robinson, who was the starting shortstop for the Buckeyes last season, was expected to return to the lineup this season after a successful surgery on his knee.

"He has been working hard and has made great progress," Cooper said. "We are all hoping he can return to the team soon."
