U.S. will ask allies to help defray gulf costs

Japan offers $1 billion in assistance

By Rita Beamish
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Bush said today that the "shape of the post-Cold War world" is at stake in the Middle East and announced that he would ask other nations to help pay the multi-billion-dollar expenses of the gulf crisis.

"We're more than willing to bear our fair share of the burden . . . but we also expect others to bear their fair share," he said in an afternoon news conference. He mentioned West Germany, Japan, Kuwait, Saudi Arabia and South Korea among the nations that would be solicited for contributions.

Administration officials said Bush is proposing a plan that would defray military costs and give assistance to Middle East nations suffering the most economic hardship from the Persian Gulf crisis — Jordan, Turkey and Egypt, according to officials.

The cost of the U.S. buildup in Saudi Arabia and in the gulf waters is now running at about $1 billion a month, U.S. officials have said. Bush said his secretary of state and secretary of the treasury would travel abroad to seek contributions to the effort.

Reiterating his goals, including the withdrawal of Iraqi troops from Kuwait and the restoration of the Kuwaiti government and the security of Saudi Arabia, he said that at stake is the "shape of the post-Cold War world."

"Anyone with a stake in international order has an interest in assuring that all of us succeed," he said.

Bush told reporters he was very concerned about the fate of the 3,000 Americans who have been barred from leaving Iraq and Kuwait, and added, "But we cannot permit hostage-taking to shape the foreign policy of this country." The State Department was expressing anger that bureaucratic steps had been imposed by Iraq on its offer to release women and children.

Bush was asked about the comments of Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., who has said he believes the United States should seek the overthrow of Iraq's Saddam Hussein. Lugar has said that even if Kuwaiti rulers are returned to 200 women, children await exit visas, prepare to leave Iraq from Baghdad

By Walter C. Putnam
The Associated Press

NICOSIA, Cyprus — More than 200 women and children who had been held hostage at strategic Iraqi sites were taken to a Baghdad hotel Thursday in preparation for leaving Iraq.

No exit visas were expected before Saturday because Friday is the Muslim sabbath and government offices are closed.

Iraqi officials denied reports that the hostages were being detained in exchange for food and medicine to ease effects from the U.N. embargo of Iraq.

The United Nations imposed sanctions to force Iraq to withdraw from Kuwait, and the United States has led a multinational force buildup in Saudi Arabia aimed at discouraging any move by Iraq to seize any more territory.

President Bush told a news conference in Washington Thursday he will not allow the presence of the roughly 3,000 Americans in Iraq and Kuwait to influence his decisions on the Persian Gulf crisis.

In London, the British Foreign Office said Thursday that Iraq was arranging to evacuate some British women and children from Baghdad aboard Iraqi Airways, and Virgin Atlantic Airways said it had Iraqi permission to pick up more evacuees.

The foreigners at the hotel, mostly from the United States, Britain, France, Japan and Australia, said government officials told them they could leave after documents are completed — probably this weekend or early next week.

Earlier, government officials said 237 of the foreign women and children "guests" asked for exit visas to leave the country. They said 28 asked to remain.

The foreigners included 68 Japanese, but breakdowns of other nationalities were not available. It was not clear how many of the estimated 21,000 Westerners stranded since Iraq invaded Kuwait Aug. 2 will be allowed to leave.

Most of those at Menia Hotel in Baghdad told an Associated Press reporter they were treated well at the military and economically strategic places where they were taken. Iraq shipped them there to discourage an attack. Almost all were taken from Kuwait, where the women were working before the invasion.

"I'm happy that it's now all over," said Elizabeth Linoff, 50, an American teacher. She said she was teaching English in Casablanca, Morocco, and was on her way from France to Malaysia at the time of the invasion. Her British Airways flight was not allowed to continue the journey.

Iraqi President Saddam Hussein said this week that women and children, held along with Western men to shield his country from attack, would be allowed to travel beginning Wednesday.

Diplomats in Baghdad, speaking on condition of anonymity, said Thursday the government has refused to allow foreign airlines to land in the Iraqi capital to evacuate Western women and children unless they carry food and medicines.

Otherwise, the evacuees would have to travel in convoys overland, most likely to the Turkish border, 375 miles north of Baghdad, they said.

Iraq's ambassador in Washington, Mohamed al-Mashat, told reporters there Thursday, "It is absolutely not true. I categorically deny that."

Officials in Baghdad also denied the reports. Kim Hepworth of Sydney, Australia, who taught English in a private school in Kuwait, told reporters

Student protesters continue fights with S. African police

By Tom Cohen
The Associated Press

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — Police clashed for a second day Thursday with students protesting black factional fighting, and the government said the conflict was forcing it to spend money on security instead of social services.

Witnesses in Cape Town said students hurled stones at police, who fired birdshot in return and injured at least two protesters. The students were demanding an end to battles between Xhosa, who mostly support the African National Congress, and Zulus, who back the conservative Inkatha movement.

Officials of the Transkei homeland, where many Xhosa are from, complained Thursday that South African authorities had left bodies of victims of the fighting to rot outside Johannesburg area mortuaries.

They said people who traveled to the city to identify the dead were unable to recognize their relatives because the bodies had decomposed.

"One is bound to ask why the corpses of the people who died in such a violent manner were further desecrated in this way," the Transkei statement said. "Is it because they are black?"

Barend Du Plessis
Finance Minister

Inkatha and the ANC both oppose apartheid but differ on the shape of a future South Africa. Inkatha has accused the ANC of terrorizing other black groups in a bid to consolidate power.

Zulu and Xhosa tribal leaders met Thursday and agreed to make a joint plea for an end to the fighting. At least 500 people have died since the factional fighting broke out on Aug. 12 in the townships around Johannesburg.

Foreign Affairs Minister Pik Botha said he has told ANC Deputy President Nelson Mandela the black factional fighting sends a message of instability to the rest of the world and will leave foreigners reluctant to invest in South Africa if international sanctions are lifted. The sanctions were imposed to protest South Africa's system of racial discrimination.

"I warned him that we are all doomed if we cannot create jobs or provide houses for his followers," Botha said at a congress of the governing National Party. "If we don't get our act together, we'll have nothing to govern."

Finance Minister Barend Du Plessis, meanwhile, said violence forced the government to spend money on security instead of social problems.

"Those stoking unrest must also decide whether they want money for education or if we must spend it on the police and military personnel who have to try and sort out the trouble," he said.

Mandela is under pressure from the government and other black leaders to meet with Zulu leader Mangosuthu Buthelezi.

Armenian nationalists surrender

By Alan Cooperman
The Associated Press

MOSCOW — About 250 militant Armenian nationalists gave up their weapons Thursday after the republic declared a state of emergency and surrounded their headquarters with soldiers, police and tanks.

The surrender was a major victory for Armenia's parliament, which declared independence from the Soviet Union last week. By reining in the militants with forces under its direct control — no troops from the central Soviet government were involved — the parliament dramatically emphasized its authority.

Lawmakers had voted unanimously Wednesday to outlaw the militant group, which called itself the Armenian National Army. The vote followed a night of violence in which militants attacked a gas station, killed a legislator and fired automatic rifles at a rival organization's headquarters.

The militants, holed up in three buildings in the republic's capital of Yerevan, at first ignored an ultimatum from the parliament to surrender by 10 p.m. Wednesday or face a military showdown, Armenian officials said.

After several hours of fruitless negotiations between parliamentary representatives and Armenian National Army leaders, about 500 government soldiers and police moved into the buildings about 1:30 a.m. Thursday. They met no resistance, Soviet media reported.

Later, two leaders of the paramilitary group appealed on television for the remaining members to turn themselves in peacefully.

The state of emergency and a 10 p.m. to 6 a.m. curfew remained in effect throughout the republic, but no fighting was reported.

Rawlings receptive to harassment complaints

Bias problems persist, however, professor says

By Andy Brownstein
The Daily Iowan

The current UI administration would not have allowed a harassment dispute ruled on recently to be "swept under the rug and forgotten," a member of a faculty watchdog group said Thursday.

But he added that several members of UI President Hunter Rawlings' administration continue to "cover up" faculty disputes involving tenure and sexual harassment.

Edward Kottick, a member of the Iowa chapter of the American Association of University Professors, said a federal judge's ruling Tuesday that found the UI liable for harassment against Jean Jew should set a precedent for handling future disputes at the UI.

"The ruling serves as a warning that the university may get away with sweeping these things under the rug some of the time, but not all the time," said Kottick, a UI music professor. "I also hope it would help stop any sexual harassment that is going on. I hope it will embolden women to take action if they are victimized."

U.S. District Court Judge Harold Viator Tuesday ordered the UI to promote Jew, an associate anatomy professor, to full professor and to pay her more than $50,000 in back pay and benefits retroactive to

Viator also said the UI was "ambivalent" in its response to a 1984 faculty report that found that several members of the anatomy faculty, specifically Robert Tomanek, spread sexually derogatory rumors about Jew since 1973.

"I think they handled it poorly," Kottick said. "It was, in fact, a non-handling."

"If the university had acted on these concerns when they first learned of them, Jew would not have had to spend five long years pursuing the case, Dr. Tomanek would not be disgraced in public and the university would not be looking stupid with egg on its face right now."

Kottick added that Rawlings, who came to the UI after the dispute became public, has taken a bolder approach in handling tenure and harassment disputes at the UI.

"The current administration is anxious to see that events such as this are not swept under the rug and forgotten," he said.

But according to documents obtained by The Daily Iowan, Julia Mears, currently the UI's general counsel, attempted to prevent Jew from pursuing her case in 1984.

In a letter written by Mears, the UI requested that Jew provide an "assurance" she would "not commence any other action, administrative or otherwise, related to these allegations." Viator said Mears' request was a violation of the UI human rights policy.

"Her remarks were inappropriate," Kottick said. "It was an attempt to deprive Jean Jew of her civil rights and her rights as a professor."

Kottick added that he has seen similar letters written by Mears to several other professors involved in tenure disputes, both before and during Rawlings' term as UI president.

But he said that after a discussion with Peter Nathan, vice president for academic affairs since last January, Nathan struck two restrictive clauses from Mears' letters to UI faculty.

Mears did not return several phone calls Thursday. UI spokeswoman Ann Rhodes said that Defendant sure no one can link him to crime

The Associated Press

WATERLOO — One of the defendants in the murder trial of a Waterloo man testified Wednesday that Daniel Claybon was sure that no one would be able to link him to the Mar. 11 shooting death.

But Richard Smith, 19, said Claybon had second thoughts about not shooting a woman who may have seen him commit the murder.

"He said she didn't see anything," Smith said. "But he said he should have shot her, too, so no one would know he had done it."

Smith, who is charged along with Claybon for the first-degree murder of Jeffrey Wood, said Claybon told him no one had seen anything when Claybon and Keith Walker shot Wood.

Wood was shot as he walked along a Waterloo street with Andrea Hurley and was approached by a group of men who were allegedly out that night looking randomly for someone to shoot.

Smith said Claybon told him that no one had seen anything when Claybon and Walker approached the couple and shot Wood. Smith said he and two other men stood nearby.

He said that Claybon was sure that even Hurley hadn't seen anything.

Claybon, Smith, Walker and Harry Johnson were arrested Mar. 13 for the shooting of Wood.

Smith said he and the other men got together the night of the shooting and "there was talk of riding around and finding somebody to shoot."

They rode in a car driven by Claybon to the west side of the city and spotted a couple walking. The couple — Wood and Hurley — were stalked until Walker and Claybon walked up to the two and shot Wood.

Teleconference to address greek issues

By Ann Marie Williams
The Daily Iowan

Two years ago at the University of Texas, Delta Tau Delta fraternity active member Greg Phillips was chased off a cliff to his death by two pledges.

Since 1978, an estimated 50 students have been killed and hundreds injured as a result of hazing activities similar to the one that ended in Phillips' death.

But a recent surge of anti-hazing legislation in about 33 states has led many greek organizations to increase awareness of the dangers of hazing in their chapters.

Sept. 30, 10 nationally recognized experts on greek issues will address this and other topics in a teleconference aimed at an estimated 150 university greek systems nationwide.

"The Power of Caring: Greek Life Will Survive the '90s," addresses a range of topics of concern to greeks and college students in general, including values and ethics, alcohol and drug abuse, community building, hazing, multiculturalism and date rape.

Concern about hazing was one of the catalysts for holding the teleconference, according to speaker Mary Peterson, the UI greek adviser. Although hazing incidents have been diminishing, the problem will continue to be addressed, she said.

"What we're addressing is the breaking of old traditions — and hazing is one of them," Peterson said. "We support, in our rituals and oaths, the value of human rights. Hazing is a violation of human rights."

In addition to hazing, accusations of racism and elitism have plagued greek systems nationwide. In response, greek chapters and advisers are aggressively confronting these issues through the establishment of programs such as this, designed to educate and inform greek members about problems facing society as a whole.

"Education is the key," Peterson said. "And greeks profess, as part of their membership, to strive for outstanding leadership, to make a difference in their communities someday."

The presentation is geared to greeks because they are an easy group to organize and because they make up a large segment of the college population, she said.

"Although the teleconference is geared to a greek population, what's going to be said are issues any undergraduate can respond to," Peterson said.

The UI will require new greek members to attend the conference and is planning to invite greeks from smaller area colleges to participate as well.

The keynote address, "Demythologizing the Animal House," will be given by Will Keim, nationally recognized speaker, teacher and student adviser. Keim is also national coordinator of the teleconference.

Other speakers include Jonathan Brant, executive vice president of the national interfraternity conference; Kent Gardner, executive director of the national Order of Omega; and Eileen Stevens, founder of the Committee to Halt Useless College Killings.

"This teleconference offers an opportunity for 10 experts to reach a substantial number of greek members," said Debbie Frey, Delta Delta Delta president at the UI. "The speakers are from various areas of the country, giving them an opportunity to share their ideas and experiences as well as their expertise."

Brett Kessler, UI Sigma Alpha Mu chapter president and undergraduate representative to the fraternity's national board, said the program will be very beneficial for students, who tend to think of themselves as invulnerable.

"Most students don't think anything can happen to them," Kessler said. "When they first come to the university, (new greeks) need to be aware of the issues and problems which face greeks."

The three-hour broadcast, live via satellite from Corvallis, Ore., will have an interactive panel format, facilitating discussion between the national viewing audience and the speakers.

Peterson said she hopes young people who participate in the teleconference will be affected in a positive way.

"I think it will be real interesting to see what comes out of this, and I'm positive we'll do a follow-up evaluation (of the program) to the schools," she said.

Student leaders agree tuition proposal is harmful

By Jennifer Glynn
The Daily Iowan

A limited tuition increase plan, as proposed by Democratic gubernatorial candidate Don Avenson, stands to increase tuition at Iowa universities only by about 10 percent, according to student leaders who met in Des Moines Thursday.

Avenson, campaigning in Iowa City Tuesday, said his first goal as governor would be to reduce tuition at state universities and community colleges to the national average.

But UI Student Senate president Mark Havlicek and ISU Student Body President Molly Olinger say Avenson's call would result in a 10 percent tuition increase at Iowa's universities.

Olinger says that according to the Board of Regents, the average national tuition for major universities is $2,081 per year. Iowa students currently pay $1,880 for in-state tuition.

Havlicek says he "objects to Don Avenson selling us a bill of goods" and adds that tuition should not be a political football.

Both agree that students are interested in a quality education, and Avenson's earlier call for free tuition would be a threat to the quality of the universities.

Nora Nelson, a UI junior who supports Avenson's limited tuition increase plan, said she doesn't think the quality of Iowans' education will deteriorate.

"The extra money needed to keep the quality of education up to par will come from state revenue as it is available; it will be a long but extremely worthwhile process," Nelson said.

"Avenson cares about students and he understands their needs," said Nelson. "Students can't take advantage of all the things a school has to offer if they are struggling to pay their bills."

Havlicek and Olinger agreed that increased student aid is necessary to enable all potential students to get educations.

Havlicek attacked the changes in Avenson's tuition proposals.

"First he called for free tuition, then he wanted a freeze, now he wants to make tuition the national average — we are already below the national average," Havlicek said.

Olinger said tuition at Iowa State ranks in the middle of the Big Eight schools, seventh out of the 11 land-grant schools and ninth of 11 comparable schools from surrounding states.

"Clearly, students are interested in accessibility and quality, and politicizing tuition is not in the best interests of Iowa students and Iowa universities."

Havlicek closed by saying, "Tuition represents 30 percent of the money our universities use to provide a quality education, and we, as student leaders, can't afford to let Mr. Avenson play games with it."

Courts

The Daily Iowan

An Iowa City man already facing a charge of third-degree theft was charged with tampering with a witness Thursday.

According to Johnson County District Court records, Joseph D. Purdy, 20, 419 S. Lucas St., attempted to bribe a witness in a judicial proceeding Aug. 17.

Purdy was charged with theft in the third degree Aug. 11 after an investigation of the theft of a purse and $227 at 708 Iowa Ave., records state. The individual who reported the theft said she received a written note from Purdy Aug. 12 offering to pay her cash if she would drop the charges, according to records.

Purdy was released from custody on his own recognizance and has been ordered to appear for arraignment Sept. 6, according to records. A preliminary hearing in the case has been set for Sept. 18.

Labor Day traffic fatalities down

Because of a reduction of traffic fatalities over the last few years, the Labor Day weekend has lost its distinction as the deadliest holiday and has fallen to third, said the Iowa Department of Transportation.

Ranking third after July 4th and Memorial Day, the Labor Day weekend still ranks higher than Thanksgiving, Christmas and New Year's Day in fatality counts.

In the past three years, 17 people died over Labor Day weekends in Iowa, and DOT officials caution that the holiday is still a dangerous one for alcohol-related crashes.

According to DOT statistics, 66 percent of Labor Day fatalities are alcohol-related, and 72 percent of the people killed in alcohol-related crashes were the drinking drivers.

Store sells Third World crafts, supports poor, skilled families

By Susan Stapleton
The Daily Iowan

Edna Byler started it all 35 years ago when she brought back wooden crafts from Haiti and sold them out of a trunk.

Today, World Marketplace, along with more than 90 other Self Help stores across the nation, continues to sell Third World crafts in the same spirit of Edna Byler.

"Byler felt so badly for these people who were so poor with no means to make a living. Yet they had these skills to make wonderful crafts," said Nancy Reschly, a member of the board of directors that oversees World Marketplace.

Run by the Mennonite Central Committee, World Marketplace, located at 245 S. Gilbert St., is a non-profit store that seeks out Third World families with specialized skills in craftsmanship, said store manager Cheryl Gingerich.

"The goal is to help these people be self-sufficient," Gingerich said.

The store depends solely on volunteer labor from the people who run the store to the Self Help warehouse in Akron, Penn., to the Mennonite Central Committee that seeks out new craftspeople worldwide, Gingerich added.

Gingerich said she has a diverse group of volunteers working at her store, including UI students, retirees and young mothers who have a few hours a week to volunteer.

The handcrafted gifts originate from 30 developing nations. Baskets from Bangladesh, Indian Shesham wood, teak elephants from Thailand, and Latin American ceramics and sweaters are just a few of the crafts that fill the store.

As of November 1989, 80 percent of the crafts originated from Asia and the Middle East, 10 percent were Latin American and 7.5 percent came from Africa, Reschly said.

"The crafts come direct from the people making them, and the profit goes back to them," Gingerich said, adding that this reduces the cost to customers.

And the profits may be a family's only source of income. "It takes $800 worth of retail sales to employ one person for one year," Reschly said. Producers are paid at the time they sell their crafts to the warehouse, she added.

Prices for the crafts vary with the country. "What we try to do is set a fair price for the economy of the country," Reschly said. "A high price would skew the economy of the country."

Finding the craftspeople falls in the hands of the Mennonite Central Committee, which works worldwide to find families.

"The goal is to help these people be self-sufficient."

Cheryl Gingerich

"They have the ability to do crafts. Sometimes they don't have the supplies. We can help, maybe by advancing money to get started," Gingerich said.

Self Help purchases from producers until they find their own markets.

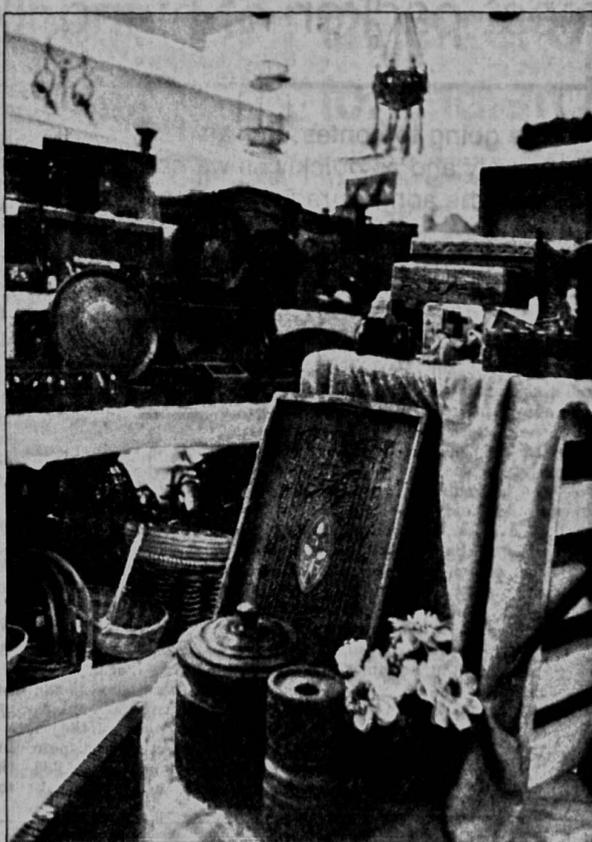

"The program is designed to help the most destitute with no other means of surviving," Reschly said. "Once the producer reaches a point where he has a market, Self Help may find a new family or a new country."

Gingerich said this could take many years to become self-sufficient.

Taiwan was once a Self Help country that gradually phased out. "They discovered enough markets of their own to become self-sufficient," Reschly said.

Laos replaced Taiwan as a Self Help nation.

Reschly said, "Sometimes you can't get products anymore, and it's discouraging. But that's not the purpose of Self Help."

Candidates to answer questions

By Cynthia Taylor
The Daily Iowan

Four candidates campaigning for three Iowa City School Board vacancies will answer questions from the public at a "Meet the Candidates Night" on Sept. 5.

The program, sponsored by the Districtwide Parents' Organization, will be held at the district's administrative office building, 509 S. Dubuque St., at 7:30 p.m.

Candidates vying for the three-year board positions include Vida Brenner, Connie Champion, Betsy Hawtrey and Sally Staley. Champion and Hawtrey are running for second terms.

Fran Malloy, board president, said she expects all candidates to be well-versed on some major issues facing the board in the next one to five years.

Most immediate of those is the proposal to replace the current enrichment tax with an instructional support levy, she said. The board will further discuss the measure and vote on a resolution at the next board meeting, Malloy added.

A public hearing on the resolution is scheduled for Sept. 25, at which time the newly elected school board will hear arguments for or against the board's position.

Malloy also pointed out the importance of finding solutions to a growing school district and a potential overcrowding problem. She expects early childhood education, specifically a proposed all-day kindergarten and the direction of middle-school education, to be key issues as well in both the program Wednesday night and the upcoming election.

The program will be televised live on cable channel 27 and videotaped for delayed broadcast Sept. 6 at 7 p.m. and Sept. 10 at noon.

Iowa unemployment holds steady in July at 3.9%

The Associated Press

DES MOINES — Iowa's unemployment rate held steady in July, despite the start of summer factory shutdowns, state labor officials reported Thursday.

The jobless rate of 3.9 percent in July was unchanged after a slight upward revision of the June figures and was just below the 4 percent rate of July 1989, the Iowa Department of Employment Services said.

The national jobless rate was 5.5 percent last month.

The number of unemployed Iowans rose in July from June, but the number of employed Iowans also increased, said Cynthia Eisenhauer, the department's director.

She said there was little fluctuation in the estimates of unemployed Iowans for the May through July period.

The state estimated 60,100 Iowans were unemployed in July, up 1,800 from June but down 1,600 from July 1989.

"The majority of individuals added to unemployment in July were either re-entering the labor force or seeking their first jobs," Eisenhauer said.

Total employment rose 10,600 in July, raising the number of Iowans with jobs to 1,464,900. But that was 6,700 below the 1,471,600 of a year ago.

A monthly survey of Iowa businesses put the non-farm payroll at 1,219,900, down 16,400 from June but up 21,700, or 1.8 percent, from July 1989 levels.

Eisenhauer attributed the drop in non-farm employment to further reductions in school employment during the summer vacation.

Iowa Morrell plant faces fine

INS accuses meat packer of hiring illegal aliens

The Associated Press

ARKANSAS CITY, Kan. — The Immigration and Naturalization Service said Thursday it had fined John Morrell & Co. $345,125 for allegedly employing illegal aliens at meatpacking plants in Iowa and Kansas.

An Iowa meatpackers' union official said he was outraged by the allegations because the charges implied Morrell was hiring illegal aliens to replace striking workers three years ago.

The fine is one of the largest proposed against any single employer since new immigration laws were enacted in 1986, said Ron Sanders, INS district director in Kansas City, Mo. It could become the largest collected if it stands.

A Chicago case had a $308,000 fine, and a proposed fine of $580,000 against an East Coast carpet manufacturer was settled for $225,000, INS officials in Washington said.

Morrell has 30 days to pay the fine or ask for an appeal hearing. Raul Baxter, a spokesman for Morrell at the company's headquarters in Cincinnati, said there would be an appeal.

"We're going to contest this as vigorously and as quickly as we can through the administrative law process," Baxter said. He said Morrell cooperated with the INS during its investigation.

The fine was levied against Morrell operations in Arkansas City and Sioux City, Iowa.

At issue is a law requiring employers to verify employee citizenship or legal alien status by checking birth certificates, Social Security cards or other documents.

Sioux City's plant was inspected in 1987 and 130 immigration violations were uncovered. The company was given a formal warning and a citation but was not fined, the government said.

An investigation in March 1989 found 353 new violations, the INS said. Morrell either failed to comply with employment eligibility verification requirements or did so improperly. In one instance, an alien worker unauthorized to work in the United States was kept on Morrell's payroll, the INS said.

The part of Thursday's fine applicable to Sioux City is $243,200.

Bill Buckholtz, a meatpackers' union official at Sioux City, said he was outraged by the charges.

"We had no idea it was this big," said Buckholtz, the secretary-treasurer of Local 1142 of the United Food and Commercial Workers union. "It's really disturbing to learn it goes back to 1987."

"In 1987, we were in a strike here. If they were hiring illegal aliens back then, they were using illegal aliens to break a strike."

Union members walked off the job for 11 months in a contract dispute before returning in early 1988 without a settlement. The meatpackers still are trying to negotiate a contract at Sioux City.

"It's really disturbing to learn now they had illegal aliens in the plant while we walked the picket line," Buckholtz said. "It hurts the whole local economy when they drive wages down this way. The total community should be outraged."

INS officers visited the Arkansas City Morrell plant, Ark City Packing Co., in May 1988 to discuss the 1986 law with company officials.

This February, a return visit was made, and officers found three illegal aliens employed, 257 instances where employment eligibility checks were not done and 135 other cases where they were done improperly.

The plant was fined $101,925.

Sanders said five illegal aliens with high-quality counterfeit documents were arrested during the Arkansas City inspection. The company wasn't charged in those cases because the documents appeared to be genuine.

The Arkansas City plant closed in April and only a livestock buying operation still exists there.

Nationally, INS has levied 5,019 fines through February in connection with the 1986 law. The fines total nearly $18.8 million.

Freed hostage has bond with those still detained

By Maureen Johnson
The Associated Press

DUBLIN, Ireland — Former hostage Brian Keenan on Thursday urged negotiations for the release of remaining captives in Lebanon, with whom he formed an "enduring and unbreakable bond" during years in tiny basement cells.

Keenan, a teacher released last week after being held 4½ years, said he often spent weeks in dark chambers, suffered repeated beatings and rarely spoke above a whisper.

"It's time to talk. It's obviously time to talk. There is a willingness. Why not talk?" Keenan said during a 75-minute news conference.

Keenan, 39, said he saw two of the six remaining American hostages, Associated Press journalist Terry Anderson and university professor Thomas Sutherland, about 11 months ago. At the time, both were well, he said.

Extremist groups believed linked to Iran still hold 13 Western hostages — the six Americans, four Britons, two West Germans and an Italian.

Keenan, a native of Belfast, Northern Ireland, who holds dual Irish-British citizenship, was handed over to Irish authorities in Syria on Saturday. He was released from Mater hospital in Dublin on Thursday.

He was teaching English in Beirut at the time of his capture on April 11, 1986.

Appearing pale and thin, Keenan periodically gulped back tears while describing his captivity.

"Hostage is crucifying aloneness. There's a silent screaming slide into the bowels of ultimate despair," Keenan said, reading from a handwritten statement.

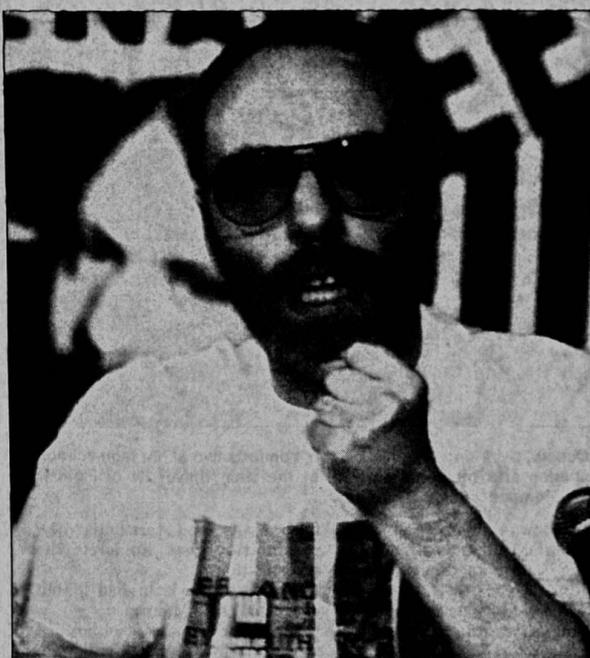

"Hostage is a man hanging by his fingernails over the edge of chaos and feeling his fingers slowly straightening."

"Tiny, tiny cells, constant blindfolds, prolonged days in the dark, sometimes weeks without light, create kinds of insanity that drive men deep, deep into themselves," he said.

Keenan described 42-year-old Anderson, the AP's chief Middle East correspondent, as pacing the floor in tattered socks with a "voracious appetite for intellectual conversation."

He said Anderson sometimes kept him awake for hours with conversation.

"I think he debated with himself a lot while we tried to plug our ears," Keenan joked.

Anderson has never seen his second daughter, Sulome, born three months after he was abducted.

Anderson, abducted March 16, 1985, is the longest-held of the 13 Westerners.

Quick end not in sight for Indian land dispute

By Jeffrey Ulbrich
The Associated Press

OKA, Quebec — Hope evaporated Thursday for a quick end to a seven-week-old standoff as armed Mohawks kept up barricades west of Montreal and Indians south of that city threatened to renege on an accord to reopen a blockaded bridge.

The conflict, centering on a land dispute, seemed it might be nearing an end Wednesday when Indians helped Canadian soldiers remove two barricades blocking the Mercier Bridge connecting Montreal to its southern suburbs.

Those Mohawks have closed the bridge for seven weeks in sympathy with the Indians in Oka, this town 18 miles to the west of Montreal.

However, work to tear down other barricades near the bridge came to an abrupt halt Thursday after allegations by Mohawk leaders of continued "harassment" by police and whites.

"We are at a difficult impasse, and it is safe to say that we are not going to be able to proceed as quickly as earlier thought," said Maj. Serge Quenneville, an army spokesman.

Mohawk leaders said Thursday that they had made some significant concessions to end the dispute at Kahnawake, a reserve near the Mercier Bridge, and at the Kahnawake reserve near Oka.

However, Chief Joe Norton told reporters at the Mercier Bridge that shipments of food and medicine were being blocked from entering the Kahnawake reserve, both by angry residents of the area and by the police.

He warned, "We can still close the Mercier Bridge again."

Police question suspects in Gainesville homicides

By Ron Word
The Associated Press

GAINESVILLE, Fla. — Investigators have been dispatched across the state to question possible suspects in the grisly slayings of five students that have paralyzed this college town, police said Thursday.

Lt. Sadie Darnell, a Gainesville police spokeswoman, said some of the suspects were in custody for other crimes; others are not incarcerated.

At least four investigators were sent to counties in central Florida. In Bartow, the Polk County Sheriff's Department was holding a man arrested for burglary who discussed the killings after turning himself in to police. But spokeswoman Lynn Breidenbach said he could have learned the information from news reports and is not a prime suspect.

Police said at a news conference Thursday afternoon that the questioning of a pool of suspects was a significant development.

"We are very encouraged and excited," Darnell said.

But "we don't see an imminent arrest," Lt. Spencer Mann of the Alachua County Sheriff's Department cautioned. Police do not have a "hot suspect," he said.

Authorities, meanwhile, were struggling to contend with an active rumor mill about the "lust killer" who reportedly stole body parts of some victims.

"We're trying to put a security blanket over this city."

Wayland Clifton
Gainesville Police Chief

University of Florida President John Lombardi said the school was operating normally and would not be "held hostage to lunacy." But flags on campus flew at half-staff and the city was being combed by an army of 600 local police, state investigators and FBI agents.

"We're trying to put a security blanket over this city," said Police Chief Wayland Clifton.

Despite efforts by police and school officials to provide a safe and sane environment in the opening week of classes, the discovery of the murdered students on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday released a virus of fear.

The fear was fed by published reports that the killer stole flesh from some of the mutilated victims and left the head of a decapitated victim sitting on a shelf.

Police have given few details about the mutilations. But the St. Petersburg Times reported that pieces of flesh from the first three victims were missing. The Orlando Sentinel reported that the nipples of the first two victims had been removed and had not been found.

Clifton said it was the work of a "lust killer."

Fear affected at least one school assignment. Anne Jones, an English professor, said a class chose to put off reading "Paris Trout," a novel by Pete Dexter about a psychotic murderer stalking a small town.

"They decided they didn't want to be reading this novel in the middle of the night," she said.

The rumor mill generated endless false leads and terrifying new possibilities that hindered the investigation.

"I've never seen it this bad. It's out of control," said Mann.

A 24-hour rumor-control hot line at the Alachua County Crisis Center had racked up more than 4,000 calls since Monday's initial fright.

"They're in full panic," said a female counselor, a UF graduate student who did not want her name used. "The kids are claiming that they're not getting enough information from the authorities."

power, Saddam could pose a future threat because of his large army, his willingness to use chemical weapons and his efforts to develop the capability to deliver a nuclear bomb.

"It seems to me important that Saddam Hussein must either leave or be removed," Lugar said on Wednesday.

Bush said he had "great respect" for Lugar and that Lugar had been one among a dozen members of Congress with whom he had dined Wednesday night. But he did not endorse the view that Saddam had to be deposed now, no matter what happens with Kuwait.

He welcomed efforts to find a negotiated settlement, but despite the arrival of the U.N. secretary general in Amman, Jordan, he said, "I am not too optimistic."

He defended his decision to return to his Kennebunkport vacation home, saying he was "not bothered" by criticism of it. He said he'd managed to handle the crisis workload while still getting some time for relaxation.

Secretary of State James Baker III and Treasury Secretary Nicholas Brady were being sent to the Persian Gulf, Europe and Asia in an effort to explain the international assistance plan drafted this week in Washington.

"I think they'll be very responsive," he said when asked about West Germany.

Japan today announced a $1 billion commitment, and Bush noted that it didn't take an American envoy for Japanese officials to make the offer.

The administration wants to raise about $12 billion in the first year to cover the estimated $1 billion per month in additional military costs the United States is spending to keep its forces in Saudi Arabia and the Persian Gulf region, the official said.

"Clearly it will have some budget implications," Bush said, adding, "I don't feel the answer is a war tax" at home.

UI dancers go international, explore complex, rich culture

By Kathleen Hurley
The Daily Iowan

The Daily Iowan's Kathleen Hurley traveled last summer to Hong Kong as a member of the UI's Dancers to Go to participate in the 5th Hong Kong International Dance Conference. The conference ran in conjunction with the International Festival of Dance Academies 1990, July 15-28. Following is a report on the conference and the accompanying cultural experience.

Yes, the grass is greener on the other side — the other side of the planet, that is. This summer from July 18-30, our UI dance company performed and took classes at the 5th International Festival of Dance Academies 1990 held in Hong Kong. We not only measured up to the international scene, but we also explored a complex and rich culture. The flight to Hong Kong began 12 days of an experience that the 19 of us shared with the likes of the Royal Winnipeg Ballet, the Beijing Dance Academy and the London Contemporary Ballet, to name a few. So, as my body shot toward China at 500 plus mph in a Boeing 747 with lightly salted peanuts on hand, I tried to picture the experiences ahead. Upon arriving in Hong Kong, we found a mixture of the old and the new everywhere. For example, elevators are on every corner yet sell Coke in old hourglass Coca-Cola bottles. Thirty-four-story buildings are constructed by a man on the street holding a rope all the way up to the top of the bamboo scaffolding. Even the fancy Luk Kwai restaurant gave menus only to the men. Our daily classes were as varied as the people in them. For example, the exciting class by Peter Sparling of New York presented the Graham technique as a "holding on to your own center like when a baby grabs for a finger." In addition, our daily rehearsals for the showcase performance demanded not only the use of our centers, but an "inner torch" determination. To me, the performance meant a chance to speak to everyone in a language he or she could understand and a materialization of former faculty member Lan-lan King's dedication to the China/Iowa dance scene. As a distinct sharing experience rather than a competition, language and race sustained no barriers in the studio; the dance provided a medium for unity. For peace on earth, may everyone dance. More educational than the classes themselves was the contagious energy we caught from the participants.

For peace on earth, may everyone dance.

Taking advantage of the evening academy performances, we were especially impressed by the delightful group from Taiwan. "Crossing the Black Water," choreographed by Lin Hwai-min, sent goosebumps down my spine with the use of a white silk sheet nearly 40 feet long catapulting over the "macro-talented" dancers. In addition, "The Golden Coin Leopard," a hilarious story ballet with English translations, featured amazing acting and acrobats with daredevil flips over 10 prostrate men.

The immense event of our performance on July 24 only just hit me. We performed in Hong Kong; we lived not as tourists or students but as performers. We did a really big thing — and it felt wonderful. The six-piece program featured "Cerrito," a dazzling pas de deux choreographed by Robert Joffrey and coached by UI faculty member Francoise Martinet, with dancers Kristin Mitchell and Er-Dong Hu. Other pieces included "Backward Glance" and "Sentinel" by David Berkey, "Outstanding in their Fields" by Susan Dickson, and "Sky of Mind" and "Door" by Lan-lan King. The lighting design is attributed to David Thayer and Gary Holmquist.

I'll tell my grandchildren that I rubbed shoulders with history as I walked to the fruit market. Oddly, the events outside my hotel window mirrored current CBS news reports on the imminent Communist takeover of Hong Kong in 1997. In the Christian Dior shopping aisle downtown, all would appear to be booming, but undercurrents of fear ran deep. The news flashed scenes of people lined up several blocks, all trying for British naturalization. Britain, however, will allow in only 50,000 of the most elite and educated; others try to flee to Canada and Australia. Already so many doctors and nurses have left that the health care facilities face serious problems.

Upon my return home, relatives inevitably ask, "What was it like?" — and I am always blank for words. My pictures cannot make the sea breeze moisten their skin; my maps cannot show them the glint of the sun on the junk boat. Nor can my writing make them taste that hot dog that made me throw up — maybe it is better this way.

I cannot resent Iowa for seeming uninternational, because this is the America the people in Hong Kong are trying to emulate, with Dick Tracy movies and designer jean markets. This America, it seems, is where the people of Hong Kong would like to live before the year 1997.

Preacher's rhythm highlights dog-day afternoon in August

By Steve Cruse
The Daily Iowan

I attended the freshman welcoming ceremony on the Pentacrest Wednesday afternoon in hopes of seeing a vocal and disruptive protest by New Wave. Unfortunately, this did not happen (the protesters let their signs do the talking), and all I could do was wander around the crowd jotting down disjointed musings and observations. To the left of the Old Capitol was a small marching band; when Hunter Rawlings came into view it struck up a rousing tune, and several people around me started doing mincing little pantomimes of orchestral conducting and flute playing.

The first speech was by an earnest student representative who was wearing, like Rawlings and several other faculty members in attendance, a black ceremonial robe. His theme was involvement. "Take a risk in getting involved this semester," he said. I began to feel depressed; I remembered my first year of college, when I had attended the freshman convocation — that year held in Hancher Auditorium and presided over by Interim President Richard Remington. I had gone to that one because I had felt, with a weird romanticism, that it would somehow haunt me if I didn't — that if I didn't go and hear what the school's leader had to say, my life would in some vital way be incomplete.

Rawlings spoke for several minutes, invited us to the party scheduled for that evening on Union Field, and the ceremony was over. People started clearing out. Having no pressing reason to be elsewhere, I went over to a section of the Pentacrest where a small crowd was gathered listening to a preacher. Agnostic that I am, I never listen to Pentacrest preachers, but this one (whose name, I found out later, was Brother Jed Smock) was more animated than most: Dressed impeccably in a white shirt, slacks and suspenders, he was strutting back and forth, hoarsely across the grass, received by the audience with appreciative laughter. It was terrific, like watching Keith Richards bang out the guitar riff to "Satisfaction"; that little Pan-god imitation was this preacher's riff — he had obviously done it so many times that there was no question in his mind of what the reaction would be. The laughter must

"Scholars don't get drunk; You're not scholarly people, you're a bunch of moral degenerates!"

berating audience members for their collective depravity.

"You must end your wicked, wicked ways!" he said, his index finger wagging with a loose, almost Jaggeresque rhythm. It was entrancing. Like a freshman, I sat down on the grass to listen.

"Scholars, intelligent people don't get drunk," the preacher said. "You're not scholarly people; you're a bunch of moral degenerates!" Everyone laughed, not so much in mockery as a sort of respectful amazement at the man's oratorical ability. It didn't really matter whether you agreed with him; this wild, exhibitionistic fervor was simply fun to watch.

He began talking about sexually transmitted diseases, rasping portentously: "Herpes simplex... The deadly A-I-D-S virus!" Mild laughter. "It is utter folly," he said, "for you to risk your health and your life... for the pleasure... of a momentary ee-jac-yoo-lay-shun!" Each syllable of that last word was emphasized by a little skip/duckwalk have thrilled his soul.

Not surprisingly, there was an interruption; someone in the back of the crowd began doing the spontaneous debate thing, calling out lines like: "What do you know about the Bible? ... God is supposed to forgive all." It was pathetic — the guy had no sense of timing; he sounded utterly blasé, as though he really believed he didn't have to work to win people over. It was terribly annoying, as though someone had jumped onstage during a rock concert and grabbed away the guitar player's instrument, for no other reason than that he didn't like his haircut. I think the other people in the audience realized it too; no one else took up his side, and eventually the preacher shouted him down. If nothing else, perhaps the guy learned an invaluable lesson: It is a sin to interrupt a performer who has his rhythm down.

Wanting lunch, I left soon afterward. It was still a nice day, and the rain wouldn't start for another six hours.

TRANSCENDENTAL MEDITATION

"Know what you are and act from your full potential."

What Is TM?

TM is a simple, natural, easily-learned mental technique that is practiced for 15 to 20 minutes twice daily sitting comfortably in a chair with eyes closed. During TM, the mind enjoys a settled state of inner wakefulness, pure consciousness, while the body gains a unique state of deep rest. The TM program, founded 30 years ago by Maharishi Mehes Yogi, is a practical technique. It does not require any specific beliefs or lifestyle.

SEXUAL HARASSMENT CASE

Harmful appeal

Dr. Jean Jew may finally be in the clear. Jew is the anatomy professor who endured years of sexual disparagement and professional stigma at the hands of faculty and administrative personnel. After 12 years of discrimination and a five-year court battle, the scales finally tipped in Jew's favor. She was awarded a retroactive full professorship and commensurate back pay. Officials from the Board of Regents and the university have 30 days to appeal the decision. An appeal would have to be based on legal or gross factual error. But such action would be imprudent, as the facts have been tediously borne out, and they overwhelmingly support the plaintiff.

Jew came to the university in 1973 along with two other physicians and Dr. Terence Williams, who at that time had just been appointed to head the College of Medicine's anatomy department. From the time of their arrival, Jew and Williams were accused of sexual complicity by some faculty members in the department. The derogation, which included jokes, graffiti and rumor, specifically affected Jew, as she was accused of misusing her relationship with Williams to further her career. This abuse lasted for 12 years. During that time Jew approached university administrators on several occasions in an effort to rectify the situation. Their handling of the case was reckless and superficial.

John Eckstein, dean of the College of Medicine, and May Brodbeck, former vice president of academic affairs, told Jew that "a single woman has these kinds of problems."

Julia Mears, assistant to the president, responded to Jew's complaints in a letter that asked the professor to provide assurance that she would "not commence any other action, administrative or otherwise..." — in clear violation of the university's human rights policy, which requires no such assurance from the complainant.

Jew's appeal to the Affirmative Action Office went unanswered.

Her meeting in 1984 with Vice President Richard Remington resulted in no corrective measures.

Furthermore, the recommendations of a UI Judicial Commission Panel organized to address Jew's concerns were either acted upon slowly or systematically ignored. For instance, a handwriting expert was retained to examine graffiti and notes. The expert asked for further samples to complete his study and did not receive them until more than three years later.

But the greatest injustice is that the same men involved in spreading rumors and telling jokes about Jew — one of whom referred to her as a "slut" and a "chink" — were the ones who reviewed her for promotion.

It comes as no surprise that her promotion was denied and that she went to court to sue. First, she sued Dr. Robert Tomanek for slander and won. Then she sued the university for violating the Iowa Civil Rights Act and won.

U.S. District Court Judge Harold Viator awarded Jew the position of full professor with back pay by. The defendants may appeal.

A spokesperson for the Iowa Attorney General's office said that the decision challenges the university's academic freedom. The fact is, slander has nothing to do with academic freedom. Academic freedom is better served by a compassionate environment than a continuing lawsuit.

The only other point of contention is the validity of the anatomy committee's decision to deny Jew promotion to full professor on a 5-3 vote. The physicians who voted to deny the promotion indicated that Jew failed to be independent in her research. But these same physicians failed to indicate their trepidation in a review of Jew 18 months earlier.

This is the second time in recent years outside sources have been required to resolve conflicts that the UI is equipped to handle internally. The Jew case and the recent bungling of the Student Senate audit should teach UI officials to handle such matters more seriously and effectively. External investigations, though necessary to solve the UI's bungled efforts to police itself in these instances, only cost the university valuable dollars and harm its reputation.

Administrative officials and anatomy department personnel must put this lengthy episode behind them. An appeal would send the wrong message to the university community, which is now questioning the equity of administrative procedures. The incident should serve as the impetus for some positive change. Administrators must take sexual discrimination more seriously. And perhaps a better system of review needs to be implemented to account for those who may not otherwise get a fair shake. With proper professional behavior, from the level of faculty and staff through the administrative branches, the UI can circumvent judicial intervention in policy and promotions.

The song could start a war

The shooting hasn't started yet. And maybe it won't. But ready or not, this nation already has its first Middle East Crisis war song.

It's the creation of Hank Williams Jr., a country-western singer, and we should all be grateful to him for his patriotic outburst. The song is so awful that it may forever put a deserving end to the writing of patriotic war songs.

I'm not going to name the song because I don't want to encourage anyone to buy it.

How bad is it, you ask? Consider this line, directed at Saddam Hussein:

"You can take that poison gas/ and stick it in your sassafras."

Or this one: "Yeah, I'd like to find out just for fun/ just how fast those camels can run."

Enough? You are masochistic? All right, one more: "Cause if you do somethin' stupid/ we're goin' to come down hard on Cupid."

That's it, I refuse to go on. If you want any more, you'll have to listen to some radio station that appeals to people who lack front teeth and whose eyes meet at the nose.

Like so many things, they just don't make war songs like they used to. Which figures, since they don't make wars like they used to.

In our Revolutionary War some troops sang "Yankee Doodle." Although some of the lyrics are a little silly, they don't stoop to telling someone to stick his poison gas in his sassafras.

Both sides had fine songs in the Civil War — the inspiring "Battle Hymn of the Republic" and the jaunty "Dixie."

When I was a kid, my father and other World War I vets would march in their American Legion parades and sing "Over There" and "It's a Long Way to Tipperary." I once asked an old-timer where Tipperary was, and he said, "I dunno. I spent most of the war in the stockade."

Our most song-filled war was World War II. We had everything from the chaplain praising the Lord and passing the ammunition, to young ladies being admonished not to sit "under the apple tree with anyone else but me, no, no, no."

But the biggest of them all was Kate Smith singing Irving Berlin's "God Bless America." (By big, I mean the song, not Smith.)

After that, though, war songs fell out of fashion. I don't remember any Korean War song. It could be that nobody could think of anything that rhymed with Yalu or Inchon. On the other hand, if Hank Williams Jr. had been around, he might have been moved to write: "I'm gonna put the pinch on/ some gook at Inchon."

And the Vietnam War didn't give us much besides the "Ballad of the Green Berets," although there were a few whiny country-western songs about how loathsome war protesters were. One of them was composed and sung by a star who sat out the Korean War as a conscientious objector.

Grenada and Panama happened so fast that there wasn't time for anyone to whip off ditties and rush them to the disc jockeys. Besides, what kind of lyrics would they have inspired? Maybe: "I was a Reagan Raider/ in Grenader/ and I shot me a Cuban cook." The trouble with trying to peddle war songs today is that most Americans have doubts about wars. Those who were in Korea and Vietnam know that we aren't automatically the good guys or the winners, and we aren't always sure what it is we're killing and being killed for.

Why, some Americans have become so cynical that they don't believe we fight wars for truth, honesty, justice, goodness and the American way. They think that we may be fighting them to protect some corporation's profits. "I'm Gonna Put the Pinch on/ Exxon's Dough," No, that is just not going to get the old patriotic juices flowing.

Thanks to the moronic miracle of television, Americans who have never been near a war now have had an opportunity to see what war really look like. And they know that reality has nothing to do with John Wayne, Clint Eastwood, Sylvester Stallone or Chuck Norris.

It's a little naked kid running along a road screaming because the napalm hurts so bad. War is young men in body bags — theirs and ours. And the dying doesn't necessarily have anything to do with baseball, apple pie and the Grand Old Flag.

So most people know that if the shooting begins in the Middle East, it won't be as simple as telling Saddam to stick his poison gas in his sassafras.

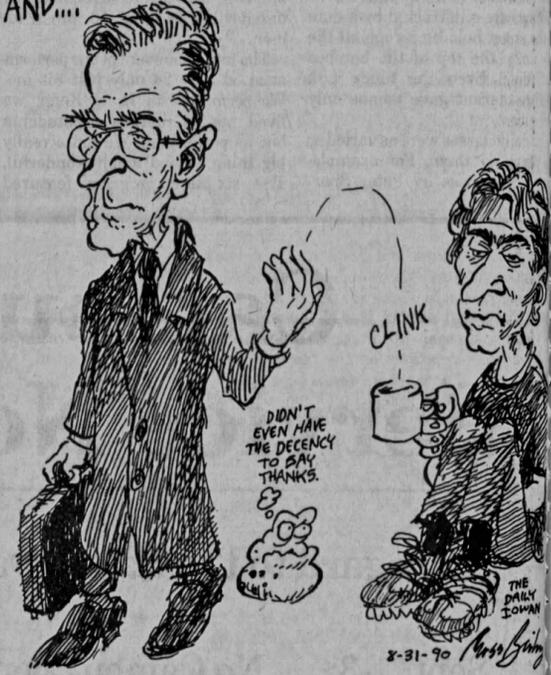

Incidentally, Hank Williams Jr. was born in 1949, which means he was old enough to have been in the Vietnam War. He wasn't. I don't know why. Maybe he had a good reason. Guitar lessons or something.

Some thoughts about U.S. 'decline'

When they finish with the latest oil/tyrant/hostage crisis, the newspapers will return to "The Decline of America." You ought to get prepared to think about the decline right now, while their attention is diverted. When the headlines come, they'll make it hard to think.

"Japanese Buy Rockefeller Center." "Germans Lose War, Win Century." "SAT Scores Lowest Since Stone Age."

So, quick, here are some "Contrary Thoughts on America's Economic Decline," guaranteed to outrage most readers of the New York Times. Even some subscribers to The Des Moines Register may develop pained looks.

■ Thought One: America has not, in fact, declined. America is the richest country in the world, roughly speaking. Kuwait is (or was) a country with a higher income per head than America. And though the figures you see in the newspaper will vary with the exchange rate,

Donald McCloskey

Economics

Switzerland in a good year leads by a franc or two. But America keeps on growing. Some poorer countries grow a little faster occasionally, but that's no surprise. It's called catching up. But basically, America is still in front.

■ Thought Two: Economics are converging, which is good for us. The East Asian countries, nowadays called "economic giants," were once poor. Look at the Koreans on the "M*A*S*H" reruns. But they have turned that around. Any country that wants to get rich can follow the East Asian plan, once called the American plan, and let people get capitalistically rich. Eventually, most East Asian countries will catch up with the U.S. Already, the 16 top industrial nations diverge from one another only by about 10 percent. (Incidentally, India, the world's last enthusiast for socialism, diverges from them by 1400 percent.) Furthermore, the richer the rest of the world gets, the better for us. Rich countries trade mainly with other rich countries. The Marxist notion that the rich are made better off by holding the poor in thrall is mistaken. You are better off with educated, competent neighbors. Hurrah for convergence.

■ Thought Three: American management or labor or whomever you blame for the non-event of decline is not, in fact, bad. It would be a little surprising if the American team that by all accounts beat the world in the 1950s and 1960s had suddenly lost its touch. There's only so much you can blame on pot and rock music. America is less unionized than any other industrialized nation. Americans work about as many hours as workers in the average rich country, but Americans are richer. The unfortunate Japanese work a third longer and earn a third less. Most tales of American decline focus on manufacturing, especially cars. Yet most of the Japanese economy works about as badly as an American subcompact. Japanese retailing, agriculture, food processing and higher education are grossly inefficient by American standards. (Just check out the number of Nobel Prizes won by Japanese.)

■ Thought Four: American education, K-12, is a laughing matter somehow we make it up. True, we graduate illiterates. True, Dr. Feelgood runs the school. True, even West High School in Iowa announces without shame that students have two hours of homework per week. But we make it up. A serious K-12 educational system would have serious homework reinforced by serious examinations. (British students, at age 15, take the "Ordinary Levels.") But the trouble with serious examinations is that people flunk. Ask yourself: Were you mature enough at 14 to study hard by yourself in six subjects? America is the land of goofing off followed by a second chance, a chance provided by college or even graduate school. You can't have both tough schools and second chances. And the trouble with not having second chances is that maturity at age 14 is a poor predictor of creativity at age 30.

■ Thought Five: We had better stop talking about decline. The trouble with the talk is not that it is scientifically incorrect, though it is, but that it makes Americans angry at foreigners. People start looking at oil or automobiles in "strategic" terms. Consider the recent talk about a commodity on which we spend less than 1 percent of national income — oil at the well. Or listen to British ex-cabinet minister Nicholas Ridley, talking about German economic competition: "I'm so sure I wouldn't rather have... the shelters and the chance to fight Hitler back than simply being taken over by... (West German) economics." Ridley is talking about voluntary trade, your jackknife and my pet frog. He makes it sound like war.

Such talk was one cause — among many others — of World War II, which ended in a peace similar to the one we've enjoyed since 1945. In the 1880s, the British and Germans identified each other as competitors, first in iron, then in warships and finally in blood and barbed wire. America cannot be Top Nation forever. Nor should it be. But we are declining; the world is converging. No nation can consistently sit on top when the whole world is rich. America will go on growing, as it has slowly for two centuries, and the latecomers will join the parade. Good

Barry trial planned for Virgin Islands

WASHINGTON — Federal prosecutors plan to put Mayor Marion Barry on trial again for the remaining counts of his drug indictment, this time in the Virgin Islands, WRC-TV said Thursday.

Judy Smith, spokeswoman for the U.S. Attorney's Office in Washington, had no comment on the report.

Law enforcement sources told The Associated Press, however, that the prosecutors had discussed the possibility of bringing a case against the mayor in the Virgin Islands, where some of the alleged offenses took place.

No decision has been made on whether to proceed, said these sources, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

In the Virgin Islands Thursday, a federal judge sentenced a figure in the Barry case to probation and community service for his conviction on drug charges.

U.S. Attorney Jay Stephens has until Sept. 17 to decide whether to try Barry again on the 12 counts on which a District of Columbia jury failed to agree Aug. 10.

Germany to halve troop strengths

VIENNA, Austria — The two Germanys pledged Thursday to nearly halve the troop strengths of a united Germany.

The commitment, made in a rare open plenary session of East-West talks on reducing conventional forces in Europe, formalized an agreement by West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl and Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev in the Soviet Union in July.

West German Foreign Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher said his government "commits itself to reduce the personnel strength of the armed forces of the united Germany to 370,000 within three to four years."

Genscher was joined in his presentation at the negotiations by East German Premier Lothar de Maziere.

De Maziere said his government was "in full agreement" with Genscher. He said the armed forces of a united Germany would be slightly more than half of the current total of more than 600,000. He said the number of tanks and other weapons systems would also be reduced by about 50 percent.

Pope to take African tour

DAR ES SALAAM, Tanzania — Pope John Paul II arrives Saturday on the start of a four-nation African tour to be climaxed by the blessing of a huge, costly and controversial basilica in Ivory Coast.

The trip, which will take the pope across the bulge of the continent, will be his 49th foreign tour and his seventh visit to Africa, where declining economies and rapidly rising populations spell misery for millions.

As in previous visits, the pope is expected to call for Christian harmony and to preach against artificial birth control and extramarital sex, with its attendant threat of AIDS, a particularly deadly scourge in Africa.

Pope John Paul will carry his messages from Dar es Salaam to three other major cities in Tanzania, an East Africa nation of about 23 million people. Most of them are Muslims. About 20 percent of Tanzanians subscribe to the Roman Catholic faith.

Postal service watches for 'Doonesbury'

NEWARK, N.J. — Zonker, Duke, Mike Doonesbury and the rest of Gary Trudeau's gang are on the U.S. Postal Service's "Most Wanted" list.

Postal employees were warned last week that some people are trying to pass off ornamental stamps bearing the comic strip characters as the real thing, officials said Wednesday.

The postal service issued the warning last week after a few letters showed up in post offices around the nation with Trudeau's creations as the postage, said Art Shealy, a postal spokesman in Washington, D.C.

The gummed fakes come from the "1990 Doonesbury Stamp Album," a collection of more than 140 stamps featuring characters from the comic strip. The $8.95 book, released July 10 by Penguin Books in New York, is designed to raise money for the Writer's Voices program of the Literacy Volunteers of New York City, a spokeswoman for the publisher said.

Rawlings "takes such disputes seriously now, and they took them seriously" before Rawlings came to the UI.

Rhodes said the UI had not yet received word from the State Attorney General's office about the possibility of appealing the case.

Deputy Attorney General Gordon Allen said in an article Wednesday that the judge's ruling challenged the UI's academic freedom and failed to distinguish between the thoughts of individual professors and university policy. He added that such questions will be considered in his analysis of whether the UI should appeal the case.

Judge Vietor touched on the issue of academic freedom in his ruling, saying the defendants' claims have "no merit."

"Rights of free speech and academic freedom do not immunize professors from liability for slander or their universities for liability for a hostile work environment generated by sexual-based slander," Vietor said.

FRANKFURT, West Germany — The military's Stars and Stripes newspaper said Thursday that some U.S. Air Force crews flying troops and supplies to Saudi Arabia suffer from fatigue and are pushing safety to the limit.

Also Thursday, Wolfgang Hofmann, a spokesman for U.S. Air Force Europe at Ramstein Air Base, said it might take weeks to determine the cause of the crash of a U.S. Air Force C-5A transport plane Wednesday that killed 13 people and injured four.

Officials at the U.S. Army hospital in Landstuhl said Thursday the four injured were not in life-threatening condition.

The most seriously injured was Capt. Cynthia Borecky, who suffered broken ankles and burns to her hands and face, said hospital spokesman Staff Sgt. Rourke Sheehan.

The other three injured were recovering from lacerations and bruises and are expected to be released within five days, Sheehan said.

Lt. Col. Jack Gray
U.S. Air Force

Stars and Stripes, an authorized but unofficial military publication, interviewed a C-5 crew at Rhein-Main Air Base near Frankfurt just hours after the Ramstein crash.

Thousands of U.S. troops and tons of military supplies are being flown to Saudi Arabia through Rhein-Main in the Desert Shield operation.

"Considering fatigue, limited crew rest and the long days we're working, we've shaved the safety margin in some instances as narrow as it should be shaved," the newspaper quoted U.S. Air Force Lt. Col.

Jack Gray as saying.

Gray is the commander of a C-5 flight from Dover Air Force Base, Del. He said he wouldn't speculate on what caused the Ramstein crash.

But Gray and his crew admitted fatigue has been a major concern during Desert Shield, in which they have flown several missions to Saudi Arabia.

The newspaper quoted Maj. Tam Rogers as saying, "You can get burned out very easily. Guys can become walking zombies almost incapable of making good judgments."

Many crews get only a 10-to-12-hour layover after arriving in Germany from the United States before flying on to Saudi Arabia, Stars and Stripes reported.

Officials at Ramstein, 90 miles south of Frankfurt, said the crew of the C-5A that crashed had a 24-hour break before taking off.

"Without specifically commenting on anything that was said in the article, I have to make the point that during a major airlift operation the rules do not change for the Military Airlift Command," said Col. James Murphy, commander of the 608th Military Airlift Group at Ramstein. Murphy's group handles scheduling of transport crews at the base.

He said when there is not a crisis situation, such as the Desert Shield operation, "We are able to give the crews more rest."

Murphy said air commanders are required to watch the performance of their crews to make sure they are not fatigued.

The aircraft commander can request additional rest time if he feels his crew is too tired to fly safely, Murphy said.

Warming causes problems

By Caroline Maino
The Associated Press

SUNDSVALL, Sweden — The United States joined 73 other nations Thursday in agreeing that man's activities are causing the Earth's atmosphere to heat up.

After four days of meetings to consider the most extensive scientific investigation of the Earth's climate, the delegations had not decided by late Thursday night on recommendations for possible action.

But scientists and environmentalists said the consensus on the U.N.-sponsored report was a breakthrough because the United States acknowledged human activity is producing gases that are changing the climate and warming the globe.

The United States, the largest producer of carbon dioxide, has blocked any international agreement to place mandatory restrictions on emission of gases that may lead to a "greenhouse effect."

Carbon dioxide, produced from the burning of fossil fuels such as oil and coal, helps trap warm air around the Earth, scientists say.

"This report marks the largest consensus ever reached among scientists that global warming poses problems for the future," said Bert Bolin, head of the Intergovernment Panel on Climate Change. The panel spent two years preparing the document under the auspices of the U.N. Environment Program and the World Meteorological Organization.

The scientific assessment lays the foundation for future negotiations on how to halt global warming.

YAMAHA

YAMAHA is famous for building some of the best sounding and most reliable components available regardless of price. Right now save 10% to 20% on all Yamaha stereo components!

YAMAHA CDC 805

This is the most talked about 5-disc carousel CD changer on the market today! A new front-loading design allows 4 discs to be changed while the 5th disc plays. New single-bit technology guarantees superb sound quality. Other features include random play, lifetime memory, digital equalization, remote control of volume, and a 2-year warranty.

YAMAHA CDC 705
The 705 is the same machine as the CDC 805 but with fewer features. The 5-disc system, single bit circuitry, and 2-year warranty are identical.

Yamaha's most affordable 5-disc carousel CD changer uses a conventional front-loading system and features 4X oversampling, dual DACs, random play, remote control, and a 2-year warranty.

YAMAHA CDX 530
Our best-selling single-disc player offers 8X oversampling, 18 bit DACs, 24 track programming, remote control, and a 2-year warranty.

Like all Yama receivers, the RX 330 uses discrete amplifier circuitry for great sound and long life. Included are features like variable loudness, CD-Direct, and 16 tuner presets. Although rated at 40 watts/ch, the RX 330 delivers 95 watts/ch of dynamic power. Competing 40 watt receivers don't even come close.

YAMAHA RX 530
Our best-selling receiver, the RX 530 includes a remote control that operates most Yamaha CD players and cassette decks. Yamaha rates this model at 50 watts/ch with 138 watts/ch of dynamic power, but "Stereo Review" magazine tested this model and their unit delivered an incredible 248 watts/ch of dynamic power.

This model has all the features of the RX 330 and RX 530 plus pre-amp outputs for future upgrading. Power is rated at 70 watts/ch with 180 watts/ch of dynamic power.

This cassette deck is really built for performance. It features a hard amorphous head, Dolby B, C, and HX Pro, a solid 2-motor transport, bias and playtrim controls, music search, intro scan, and remote control. Of course, Hawkeye Audio hand calibrates each one for peak performance.

Yamaha's KX 230 is quite a bargain, it offers Dolby B, C, and HX Pro, a solid 2-motor transport, bias adjustment, music search, and our hand calibration.

This high performance double cassette deck is built with 4-motors, Dolby B and C, music search, hard permalloy heads, and our hand calibration for peak performance.

POLK AUDIO

Polk Audio is the world's best-built and best sounding line of speakers. All Polk woofers are made from a blend of three different materials to reduce resonances. Also, Polk woofers use an expensive rubber surround that sounds better and will far outlast the cheaper foam surrounds found in competing brands. SAVE 15% to 20% on all Polks!

Hawks ready to battle defending champs

By Brian Gaul
The Daily Iowan

Iowa coach Ruth Nelson and her volleyball team are searching for respect, and California might be the place to find it.

The unranked Hawkeyes will open the season by playing three top 20 teams — No. 12 Long Beach State, No. 10 UC-Santa Barbara and No. 16 San Diego State — on a California road trip this weekend.

"West Coast teams have a different air about themselves," Nelson said about the weekend competition. "No matter how they're playing or what the score, they think they're going to win. It's a good trip for us to play that competition."

The Hawkeyes will face Long Beach State — the defending national champions — tonight and UC-Santa Barbara Saturday night as part of the Long Beach State Baden Beach Blowout Tournament. Southern California, ranked 11th, will also play in the round-robin event but will not face Nelson's squad.

Iowa will then travel to San Diego for a Sunday night tilt with San Diego State.

"I don't think they expect a lot from us, but I think they'll be surprised," senior outside hitter Jenny Rees said. "It should be very interesting. We could break into the top 20 if we beat just one of these teams."

The Hawkeyes are currently listed in Volleyball Monthly's "Teams to Watch," which mentions 14 teams not ranked in the Top 20. Rees said the strong non-conference competition will help the Hawkeyes get ready for the Big Ten season.

"We might as well start out with the best competition," the Chicago native said. "We want to get the best competition to prepare for the Big Ten season. If we lose, it's not going to kill us. Plus, if we win it's better for us. People will really start noticing that we're a good team."

A win over Long Beach State, which defeated Nebraska in last year's NCAA Championship, would likely bring the Hawkeyes the respect they want. Forty-niners coach Brian Gimmillaro lost four 1989 starters to graduation but has a strong recruiting class. Those newcomers are led by Danielle Scott and Lori Jones, who have been ranked among the top 50 freshmen in the nation.

The 49ers are ranked 12th in Volleyball Monthly's preseason poll, but Nelson rates them as a "top eight team."

"I said last year when they were ranked 10th or 12th, they'll be at the top at the end of the year," the Players learn whining gets the rent paid

"... get your money for nothing, and your chicks for free." — Dire Straits

In what appears to be a never-ending cycle of greed and egotism, professional athletes are continually renegeing on signed contracts, holding out until the owners, seeing the barrel of the public's loaded gun pointing to their heads, fork over the jingle.

Let's take Chicago Bears defensive tackle Steve McMichael. This nine-year veteran and Pro Bowler waged war on the Bears claiming that he wasn't being paid as much as the league's top defensive tackles. So instead of fulfilling his contractual obligations, McMichael quit, putting Bears owner Michael McCaskey in a compromising, no-win situation.

Should McCaskey renew McMichael's contract? Should he sue McMichael for breach of contract? Or should he accept the loss? If McCaskey decided to let McMichael sit out the season and rot in the purgatory filled with the millions of POOR, ITSY-BITSY SELF-INDULGENT UNAPPRECIATIVE ATHLETES, then McCaskey would be burned in effigy on the 50-yard line of Soldier Field by 66,000 season-ticket holders.

But, since McCaskey did oblige McMichael's irrational wants, he comes off looking like a wimp, while McMichael chalks up yet another victory for the players.

What's the solution? How about Pay for Play? Why not give each player in the league a base salary AND then include additional bonuses for their performance on the field? For example, if I was to renew San Francisco 49ers quarterback Joe Montana's contract, it would look something like this:

Joe Montana — base pay, $300,000 (league mandated); Bonuses: $10,000 for every touchdown pass; $10,000 for every team win; $10,000 for a passing percentage over 55%; and $10,000 for every time the 49ers drew a sellout crowd.

Of course, each individual's incentives would vary, and the top players would still receive the top dollars — but only IF they performed to their potential.

The players should be paid for what they do on the field THIS year, not last year or their senior year in college.

The Detroit Lions recently signed quarterback Andre Ware to a four-year deal worth over $6 million and he hasn't played a single down in the NFL. True, he appears to have the talent. But the NFL and the NCAA are two different games.

Ware should be a highly-paid player. If he performs on the field. And if he doesn't perform, he doesn't deserve the whopping dollars that Montana or other proven players do.

With this Pay for Play incentive plan, owners will no longer grimace as the performance level of a newly-signed player falls off immeasurably ... mysteriously. And no longer will owners have to hire personal psychologists to cure them of bed-wetting after watching the knee of an athlete with a long-term contract explode.

The Seattle Seahawks organization will pay Brian Bosworth over $11 million the next six years, though he will never again wear their jersey — other than in commercials. You see, this highly-regarded linebacker from Okla-

Angry Agassi stops hobbled foe at Open

By Steve Wilstein
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Andre Agassi, cursing and spitting at the umpire, barely beat a hobbled Petr Korda in a U.S. Open match on Thursday night.

Agassi was given a warning and a point penalty, which was rescinded moments later in the second set after the umpire conferred with the tournament referee. Agassi went on to a 7-5, 5-7, 6-0, 6-4 victory over Korda, who turned his ankle in the eighth game of the fourth set but refused to quit.

Korda received treatment for his ankle, then came back and won the next point with a backhand cross-court while limping badly.

Agassi served an ace to win the game and take a 5-3 lead, but again Korda grimaced and held on. Korda held serve, limping continuously, but couldn't stop Agassi's service for the match.

Graf, going for her third straight U.S. Open title, took a 6-1, 6-3 victory over 18-year-old Rachel McQuillan to advance to the third round.

"I started off pretty well," Graf said after allowing only seven points in the six games she won in the first set. "I didn't make many mistakes."

McQuillan, who reached the round of 16 at the Australian Open and stretched Martina Navratilova to three sets twice this year, made Graf look better by playing sloppily most of the first set.

But McQuillan's solid groundstrokes began falling in during the second set, and Graf was forced to work a little harder. At 3-3, Graf walloped a service winner to start the seventh game and went on to sweep three games in a row.

"In the first set I felt the balls were flying everywhere," McQuillan said after her first match on

Hawkeyes 'reload' after Final Four season

By Jay Nanda
The Daily Iowan

If there is one word that is often associated with sports teams preparing for a new season, "rebuilding" may be it. But even with the loss of five key players, Iowa field hockey coach Beth Beglin feels she has a more appropriate term.

"I see this as more of a reloading year," Beglin said. "We did lose a tremendous amount of experience, but we have some people waiting in the wings, and I think they're very eager to show what they can do."

That lost experience came in the form of Cherie Freddie, Erica Richards, Melissa Sanders, Aileen Trendler and Erin Walsh, who netted 134 goals and 100 assists between them during their four years on the team.

"There was such a dominating group of seniors last year that when the game was on the line, they took over and the other people relied on them," Beglin said. "This year, those people are not around so people are going to have to step forward on the field and take responsibility upon themselves."

Beglin's Hawkeyes are coming off of a 19-2-2 season, in which they advanced to the Final Four for a fifth consecutive time.

Iowa captured the Midwest Collegiate Field Hockey Conference title with an 18-0-2 regular-season record, and stomped past Providence 5-0 in the regionals, before falling to eventual NCAA champ North Carolina and Northwestern in the semifinals. Fourteen of their 19 wins were by shutout.

But with continued success comes pressure to do even better, and Beglin knows that the atmosphere around her and the team is filled with it.

"I think you always feel a tremendous amount of pressure to continue to produce the type of success that Iowa field hockey has been noted for," last year's MCFHC Coach-of-the-Year said. "I feel that type of pressure, and I think the team feels that type of pressure to uphold that type of winning tradition. "But I never consider it a failure if a team has gone out and done their very best because that's really all that you can ask them to do."

If Iowa is to maintain their winning ways in 1990, they will need strong performances by both the veterans and the freshmen.

Leading the cast of returnees are co-captains Cindy Skordas and Andrea Wieland, sophomore Kristy Gleason and junior Kris Fillat.

Gleason proved she wasn't an average freshman field hockey player last season, as she racked up honors which included being named the MCFHC Offensive Player-of-the-Year and Freshman-of-the-Year.

"I had very high expectations for Kristy," Beglin said. "She is one of the most outstanding student-athletes I've ever coached and to be a first-team all-American your first year is a phenomenal achievement. "She's going to have pressure on her to repeat the kind of year she had last year, (and) with a supporting cast that's not as experienced."

Fillat, who was a member of the United States World Cup team that traveled to Sydney, Australia, last summer, says that a number of factors are contributing to her excitement for the upcoming season.

Schedule puts rivals on hold

The Associated Press

DES MOINES — Iowa and Iowa State will not play in women's basketball this season because of scheduling difficulties, the first time in 16 years the two rivals haven't met.

Paula Jantz, an assistant athletic director at Iowa, said the two schools couldn't find a date that was agreeable to both. Jantz said she hoped they could agree on a date for the 1991-92 season.

"We'd love to play Iowa State, but we just couldn't figure out a way to fit it in the schedule," she said.

One problem was the Big Ten-SEC Challenge, a nationally televised doubleheader to be played in Iowa City on Jan. 5. Iowa will play Georgia and Purdue will play Auburn.

Jantz said Iowa had two old dates open while the event was being finalized. Once the date was set, the school couldn't work in a game with Iowa State.

Clemens wins 20th for third time

The Associated Press

CLEVELAND — Roger Clemens became a 20-game winner for the third time Thursday night as the Boston Red Sox scored seven runs in the ninth inning and beat the Cleveland Indians 9-2 for their seventh straight victory.

Clemens (20-5) won his eighth consecutive start and kept his earned run average at 1.95, best in the majors. He struck out nine, raising his major league-leading total to 198, and walked none.

Clemens gave up nine hits in his seventh complete game and improved to 14-2 lifetime against Cleveland.

Athletics 6, Royals 5

OAKLAND — Mike Gallego was surprised Bo Jackson was not there to rob him of his game-winning hit. It seemed like Bo was everywhere else.

Gallego singled home the winning run with one out in the bottom of the ninth inning Thursday as the Oakland Athletics defeated the Kansas City Royals 6-5 despite a rare blown save from Dennis Eckersley.

"I was expecting Bo to make a diving play and throw somebody out," Gallego said. "He had an amazing series."

Eckersley (3-2) blew a save for the second time in 41 chances this season when he surrendered a towering home run to Jackson that landed in the second deck of the left field stands in the eighth inning.

With one out in the ninth, Willie Randolph singled off Steve Crawford (5-3) for his fourth hit of the game. Randolph stole second and scored easily on Gallego's single.

Orioles 6, Yankees 1

BALTIMORE — Pete Harnisch pitched a five-hitter and the Baltimore Orioles snapped a five-game losing streak, beating the New York Yankees.

Harnisch (10-9) had failed in six straight attempts since July 22 to earn his 10th victory while losing a career-high four straight decisions. He struck out nine and walked two.

White Sox 4, Twins 3

MINNEAPOLIS — Ron Karkovics hit an inside-the-park grand slam in the fourth inning to lead the White Sox past the Minnesota Twins and end Chicago's five-game losing streak.

Bobby Thigpen earned his major league-leading 44th save in relief of Jack McDowell (11-6), winner of five of his last six starts.

Mets 12, Giants 2

NEW YORK — Sid Fernandez struck out a season-high 12 and Darryl Strawberry put the game away with a grand slam in the eighth inning, leading the New York Mets past the San Francisco Giants 12-2 Thursday night.

Howard Johnson hit a three-run homer and Gregg Jefferies added a two-run shot as the Mets trimmed Pittsburgh's lead in the National League East to 1½ games. The victory also improved the Mets' record at Shea Stadium to 43-22, the best home mark in the major leagues.

Reds 6, Cubs 5

CHICAGO — Cincinnati's chances of holding onto the lead in the National League West got a boost Thursday night when Danny Jackson returned from the disabled list and pitched the Reds over Chicago.

Jackson (5-2) was sidelined because of a partially torn rotator cuff. He gave up four runs and eight hits over five innings in his first start since July 12. The left-hander also tripled home a run.

The first-place Reds maintained a 5½-game lead over Los Angeles and moved 8½ ahead of San Francisco.

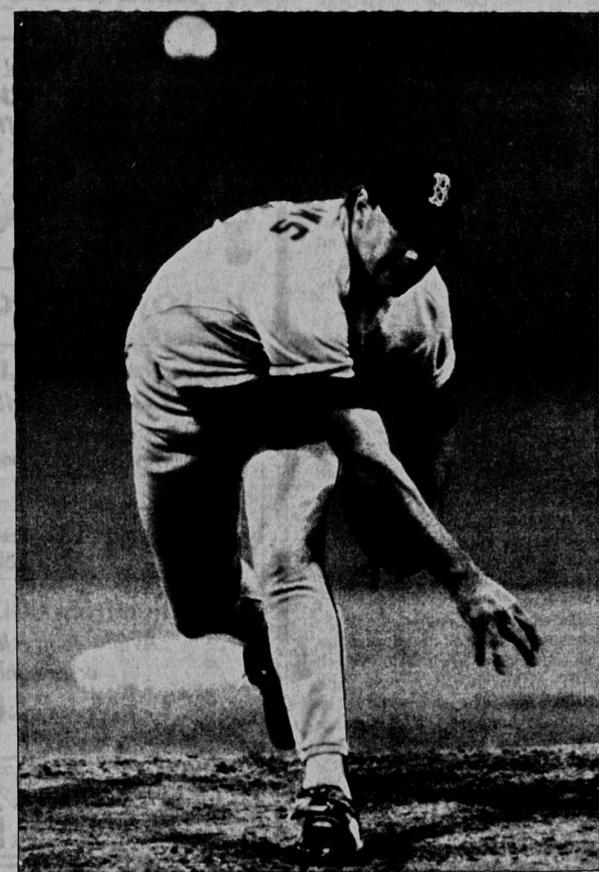

Dodgers 3, Phillies 2

PHILADELPHIA — Hubie Brooks snapped a seventh-inning tie with a run-scoring double as Los Angeles beat Philadelphia. The Dodgers have won 12 of their last 16 games.

Eddie Murray drew a one-out walk from Joe Boever (2-5) and Brooks doubled to center field for the game-winning run. Brooks was 8-for-13 with five RBIs in the series.

Cardinals 5, Braves 3

ATLANTA — Pinch-hitter Terry Pendleton snapped a 12th-inning tie with a sacrifice fly and Dave Collins added a run-scoring single to lift St. Louis past Atlanta.

Associated Press

Boston Red Sox right-hander Roger Clemens delivers a pitch in the first inning of his 9-2 win over Cleveland. The victory makes him 20-5, marking the third time in his career he's won 20 games.

homa has been advised not to play football again because of a damaged shoulder. So, as Bosworth is making movies in Hollywood WHILE earning nearly ten times the amount President Bush makes each year, the Seattle brass are wearing diapers, wondering if Bosworth would have lifted more weights, ran more sprints and hit more blocking dummies if dollars signs didn't appear before his eyes every time he woke up. Bosworth represents yet another victory for the players. I keep wondering when he will get back on the field?

"A lot of people are saying we're going to be terrible this year but we're not even listening to that," the San Diego native said. "I think we're young but our team has a lot of heart. Plus we have a tough schedule, which is good. I look at it as a challenge." Iowa's "tough" slate of contests include road showdowns with last year's top two teams — North Carolina and Old Dominion — on the weekend of September 21, as well as conference battles with Northwestern and Northern Illinois. The Wildcats finished third in the nation last year, while Northern Illinois gave the Hawkeyes their closest regular-season game. Iowa tied the Huskies with 25 seconds to go in regulation before defeating them in overtime, 3-2. However, one thing that Beglin's Hawkeyes have going for them more so than last year is that they are scheduled for seven home games in 1990, as opposed to only three a year ago. "It's nice to be able to play at home in front of your hometown fans," Beglin said. "Last year our travel schedule was so brutal that it was really difficult on the kids to stay up with things. "Being on the road takes its toll but this year will be much easier on the students since there are not more than two weekends in a row that we travel." Another aspect that Beglin said she is happy with is the quality of this season's freshman class. "We have five freshmen and we are extremely pleased with this year's class and feel that they have the potential to really go a long ways," she said. "This year we knew that the freshmen were going to see a lot of playing time and they were going to be in situations where they were going to be learning under a great deal of pressure," Beglin continued. "They've responded to that very well right now in practice situations. Now we have to see if they can do it in game situations." Beglin said that she expects at least two freshmen to break into the starting lineup: left midfielder Heather Bryant, a native of Delaware, and Tiffany Bybel, a center-back from New Jersey. "I'm looking forward to (the new season)," Bryant said. "I'm excited but kind of nervous too. I'm still making an adjustment." Beglin's crew will get their first taste of action this weekend in St. Louis, beginning with a 2 p.m. contest today against Maine. Saturday, the Hawkeyes square off against Southwest Missouri before closing out their trip Monday with Miami of Ohio. "Everyone's in the same boat," Beglin said of the four teams involved. "It's the season opener. "I think (Maine) is going to be the strongest team we play," Beglin continued. "We're just going to see what the kids can do and see what they really need to work on."

Iowa coach said. "When you have athletes like they have and they're young, they overcome youth by the end of the season." Gimmillaro's team defeated the Hawkeyes 15-6, 15-8, 15-10 in the Baden Beach Blowout last season, but according to Iowa setter Janet Moylan, the match was closer than the final score. "Last year, I was so proud of how we played against them," said the 5-foot-7 senior from Chicago. "We played them point-for-point for most of the match. We have nothing to lose (this year). We'll just go out and get some experience." UC-Santa Barbara returns four starters, including setter Stephanie Cox and hitters Maria Reyes and Julie Pitois. Coach Kathy Gregory also has a high school all-American, Holly Racine, to play middle blocker. The Hawkeyes also met UC-Santa Barbara in last year's tournament and upset the then-No. 16 Gauchos in five games, 9-15, 12-15, 15-8, 15-5, 15-12. That victory, Rees said, shocked the the Santa Barbara team. "We actually have a really big rivalry with them," the 5-foot-10 senior said. "Last year, they were so frustrated that a team from Iowa beat them. They thought it was just a fluke. We want to play well against them again to show them it wasn't." The Hawkeyes will close the trip with a match against San Diego State. The Aztecs, who finished 19-18 last season, have not played the Hawkeyes since 1985. "It will be interesting because (the Iowa players) haven't played San Diego State," Nelson said. "The Aztecs) have five top freshmen from California." Included in that group are 6-foot-3 Kristin Mann, 6-1 Jennifer Wrightman and 6-0 Dena Jones, who help give the Aztecs a height advantage over the Hawkeyes. San Diego State also relies on 6-2 lefthander Shannon Matthew, while Iowa's tallest players are 6-2 freshman Rachel Butler and 6-1 senior Barb Willis. "The weekend's really going to be a test," Willis said. "We know can play with them. If we work together, we can do it."

the stadium court. "I didn't realize it was so big out there. It was an experience for me. I guess it felt shellshocking." The third-seeded Seles reached the third round by beating Rosalyn Fairbank-Nideffer 6-2, 6-2. Capriati, seeded No. 13 but closing in quickly on the top players, had as easy a time getting to the third round with a 6-3, 6-1 victory over Patricia Hy. Neither Seles, 16, nor Capriati, 14, played on the stadium court, but they were the centers of attention even on a day when Boris Becker beat flashy Frenchman Yannick Noah 6-4, 6-2, 7-6 (7-2) and Gary Muller upset No. 14 Jim Courier 4-6, 6-4, 7-6 (8-6), 7-6 (7-5).

Only a doubles upset, Nelson Aerts and Danilo Marcelino beating top-seeded Rick Leach and Jim Pugh 7-6 (7-5), 7-6 (7-5), rivaled the excitement Seles and Capriati generated. Wimbledon finalist Zina Garrison spoiled the fun for another 16-year-old, Angelica Gavaldon, beating her 6-4, 6-0. A barrage of groundstrokes wore down the net-charging Fairbank-Nideffer, who is 13 years older but not as strong or steady as Seles. "I don't think there's anyone who is more consistent than Seles," said Fairbank-Nideffer, who used the same net-attacking strategy when she beat her in Chicago. "I don't know of anyone who's going to beat her from the baseline." The match had been scheduled for the stadium court a 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, but rain pushed it back later and later until finally it was postponed until Thursday and put on an outer court, where thousands of fans squeezed in to watch.

Bills feed the Bears turnovers galore

DI wire services COLUMBIA, S.C. — Brad Muster and Neal Anderson scored on short runs as the Chicago Bears beat the winless Buffalo Bills 35-7 Thursday night in the first NFL game in South Carolina in 23 years. The Bills turned the ball over twice in their first four plays. Both turnovers, deep in Buffalo territory, led to short scoring drives for the Bears.

line late in the half. But Timmy Cofield was called for roughing-the-passer, putting Chicago on the 7. Mike Tomczak rolled left two plays later and found tight end James Coley on a 2-yard pass for a 21-0 lead. Chris Chandler directed two fourth-quarter scoring drives and Rodney Rice scored on a 36-yard interception return Thursday night as the Tampa Bay Buccaneers beat the New York Jets 23-14 in a preseason game in Tampa Bay, Fla. Chandler entered the game late in the third quarter with the Bucs sputtering offensively. He threw a 3-yard touchdown pass to Willie Drewrey to launch Tampa Bay's comeback from a 14-6 deficit with 5:29 remaining in the game. The touchdown came on fourth down, and another fourth-down play — a 31-yard completion to Frank Pillow — was the key to a march that produced Steve Christie's 33-yard field goal for a 16-14 lead with 1:44 left. Rice scored 41 seconds later, stepping in front of Troy Taylor's pass and sprinting up the right sideline. Steve Roe has been named assistant sports information director at the University of Iowa. Roe has worked in media relations at Prairie Meadows Race Track in Altoona the past two years. He was the sports information director at Drake University three years and at Northwestern State in Louisiana for five years. After graduating of Buena Vista College, Roe went on to get a Master's degree from Northeast Louisiana University. He is a native of Iowa City and a graduate of Regina Catholic High School.

Roe succeeds Steve Malchow, who was named sports information director at Wisconsin in July. Iowa Public Television will air at least two Hawkeye games on a delayed basis: Cincinnati, Sept. 15, and Wisconsin, Oct. 12, both at 10:30 p.m. The eight-station network will also televise the Ohio State game if it is not selected by ABC. Mike Newell and Mike Reilly are the announcers. The cities and the channels carrying the games are Des Moines (11), Iowa City (12), Waterloo (32), Mason City (24), Ft. Dodge (21), Council Bluffs (32), Sioux City (27) and Red Oak (36). At least three Hawkeye games will be televised live: Iowa State by ABC (11:15 a.m., Sept. 22), Miami on pay-per-view (7 p.m., Sept. 29), and Michigan by ESPN (11:30 a.m., Oct. 20). More live TV coverage may be added later.

A's add all-stars for stretch run

by Tim Liotta
The Associated Press

OAKLAND, Calif. — It doesn't seem fair.

The Oakland Athletics already had Jose Canseco, Rickey Henderson, that pitching staff, and a 6½-game lead in the American League West. And now they have to go and add Harold Baines AND Willie McGee.

"What these two moves suggest is that we feel very strongly and are focused on the rest of the 1990 season," said Sandy Alderson, Oakland vice president in charge of baseball operations.

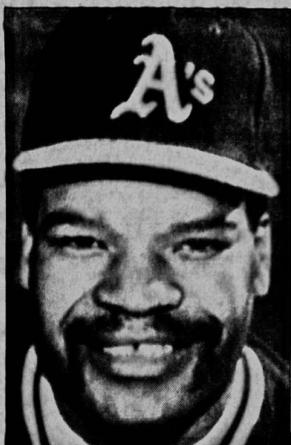

It's getting to look like an All Star reunion in the Oakland locker-room. The A's can field a lineup consisting of eight former All Stars — Mark McGwire at first, Willie Randolph at second, Carney Lansford at third, Henderson, Canseco and McGee in the outfield, Terry Steinbach catching with Harold Baines as the designated hitter.

The group has a total of 33 All Star selections between them.

Walt Weiss, only the 1988 AL Rookie of the Year, would play shortstop.

The two trades enable the A's, who have been nagged by injuries for the past two months, to ensure themselves the depth they feel they will need the final month of the season.

"What do we have, a six-game lead? Maybe if we don't make these deals we could have hung in there and won this thing," Oakland manager Tony La Russa said. "But we had a chance to make these deals. You want no regrets. Personnel-wise, now we have no regrets."

"The worst thing I can imagine is spending this winter thinking that if we had made a deal or two deals we would have won it. You play five months to get into this position. If you see a way to get better in the end you take it."

Rickey Henderson, Canseco, Lansford and Steinbach have already spent time on the disabled list this season. Henderson is still nagged by hamstrings and Canseco's back is not 100 percent.

"Who's to say that from now to the end somebody's not going to have a recurring problem," La Russa said. "Now we've got two more quality guys. It brings our depth back to where we were. We've got some guys in our lineup today who could use a couple of days off."

McGee and Baines, both 31 and both four-time All Stars, also add some left-handed bats to the A's lineup, giving Oakland a balance that has been lacking so far this season.

For the rest of this season at least, McGee will fill the void in center field, brought on by an injury to Dave Henderson last week, and Baines will step into the left-handed designated hitter's role, a spot vacant since Dave Parker signed with Milwaukee during the off-season.

And what nice fill-ins these guys are. McGee was the National League's second-leading hitter, batting .335. Baines was hitting .290 with 13 home runs and 44 RBIs for Texas.

"We finally rectified the imbalance in our offense," Alderson said. "We feel we can better approach the last 30 games."

All the A's had to give up for them was outfielder Felix Jose, a .264 hitter with eight homers and 39 RBIs and four minor leaguers.

Alderson said the deal for Baines had been discussed for more than a month. Trading for McGee became a necessity when Dave Henderson was injured last week and had to undergo arthroscopic knee surgery. Henderson could be out for the season.

"We think and hope that Dave will be back the last week of the season, but we're planning for the worst-case scenario, which is that he will not be available," Alderson said.

Baines is signed through the 1991 season, but McGee is a long-term question mark. The switch-hitting outfielder will become a free agent at the end of the season.

Switzer says Notre Dame broke rules

The Associated Press

SOUTH BEND, Ind. — Notre Dame representatives arranged a job for Tony Brooks after the running back signed to play football for the Irish, an "improper inducement" that violates NCAA recruiting rules, former Oklahoma coach Barry Switzer claims.

Switzer said the unidentified representatives gave Brooks a job paying $13.50 an hour immediately after he signed a letter of intent with the Irish in 1987.

Brooks, a native of Tulsa, Okla., and Notre Dame Coach Lou Holtz denied the allegations.

"It was obviously an inducement," Switzer told the Chicago Tribune in Thursday's editions. "Schools can talk about summer jobs (after a player's freshman year) but nobody at Oklahoma was making that kind of money. They violated NCAA legislation."

Several scandals, including NCAA rules violations within his program, forced Switzer to resign before the 1989 season. Switzer contests most of the NCAA charges in his new published autobiography, "Bootlegger's Boy."

Brooks, who was recruited by Oklahoma, said he chose Notre Dame for academic reasons.

"Nobody connected with Notre Dame made any illegal offers to me," he said. "It's absurd."

Switzer said he believes Holtz and his coaching staff knew nothing about the arrangement. Under NCAA rules, though, a school can be held responsible for the actions of alumni and boosters.

"If the allegations were true, it would come as a shock," Holtz said. "Otherwise, I have nothing to say."

Notre Dame recruiting coordinator Vinnie Cerrato said the recruiting of Brooks was done honestly. "I learned a long time ago, one guy's not worth your job, your reputation, everything," he said.

Switzer first raised the Brooks allegation in the book.

"It didn't take long to figure out we had no chance for Tony Brooks," he wrote. "He began asking us whether we could make the same promises to him that he said had been made him by representatives of Notre Dame interests."

"We couldn't match the offer because we felt that what had apparently been promised to Tony would constitute improper inducements under NCAA recruiting guidelines."

Baltics want athletic freedom

The Associated Press

LAUSANNE, Switzerland — Sports officials and a towering athlete from the Baltic republics met with the head of the International Olympic Committee Thursday to talk about their athletic independence from the Soviet Union.

They were told that a political solution was the key, but both sides were urged to place the good of their athletes first. The international committee said it would set up a special panel to study the matter.

IOC president Juan Antonio Samaranch spent some two hours with the delegations from Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania, including one of the region's best-known athletes, 7-foot basketball star Arvydas Sabonis.

Lithuania has declared independence from the Soviet Union, and Latvia and Estonia say they will do the same at an unspecified date. All three also have said they would like to be recognized as independent national Olympic committees by the IOC, a status they held before being annexed by the Soviet Union in 1940.

Samaranch said the meeting was "very friendly and very positive." No specific requests regarding Olympic status for 1992 were made, he said.

Vitaly Smirnov, an IOC member and head of the Soviet National Olympic Committee, said the Baltics had pledged to allow their athletes to compete on the Soviet teams in 1992 if a political split is not final. He said it was unrealistic to think that the three republics would be politically independent by that time.

Other Soviet sports officials recently reported similar promises from the Baltics.

Samaranch said the meeting focused on two items — the real world and the people who play the games that world watches so closely.

"We made the political point," the IOC chief said. "We told them we hope that they can solve their political problems. The Olympic problem then would be resolved."

"The second point we made was, they must find ways not to sacrifice their athletes. I asked them to remember their athletes whatever they do."

Sabonis, a member of the Olympic gold-medal team in Seoul who plays professionally for a Spanish team and speaks very little English, said the matter was one of politics but declined further comment. The rest of the delegation hurried from the IOC headquarters before questions could be asked.

The Baltics, tiny in size, have provided a relatively large number of stars for the Soviet teams that have dominated world sports for the last 35 years.

Player, fresh off farm, ready for GTE

The Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS — Gary Player likes being a little rusty at the GTE North Seniors tournament.

Last year, Player arrived after a two month layoff and defended his title at the Boardmoor Country Club.

This year, the South African spent the last seven weeks planting fields at his ranch in Johannesburg.

But he managed to squeeze in some practice.

"I have a driving range on my ranch. I hit balls almost every day; I only miss about three days a month," the two-time champion said Thursday. "But hitting balls isn't the same as playing."

Player won the PGA Seniors Championship and Senior British Open this year, helping him to eighth on the money list with $318,037.

He warmed up for the 54-hole tournament with a 69 in a pro-am Wednesday on the par-72, 6,670-yard course.

Besides Player, the tournament includes 13 of the Senior Tour's top 20 money winners.

George Archer, third in winnings, Charles Coody (No. 4), Mike Hill (No. 5), Bruce Crampton (No. 9) and Dale Douglass (No. 10) are among those chasing the $67,500 first prize starting Friday.

Missing from the 78-player field are Lee Trevino, the tour's top money winner, Chi Chi Rodriguez and Jack Nicklaus, who has played just four events in his first year on the Senior Tour.

Douglass won a shoot-out event Tuesday at Boardmoor. He finished third at Indianapolis in 1988 and tied for fifth last year after leading with five holes to play last year.

"I'm just now beginning to make better swings. I'm still searching for just that right rhythm," Douglass said. "It's easier to play better when you're on a course you enjoy so much."

Marinovich: 'Robo QB' of the 90s?

By Tom Canavan
The Associated Press

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — Take away most of the images a nickname like "Robo QB" can conjure, and there is a chance one might find Todd Marinovich.

The no wires or steel to this laid-back South Jersey sophomore.

No, his trademarks are longish red hair, beach shorts, T-shirts, a paint brush and of course a left arm and knowledge of football that might make him the prototype quarterback of the 1990s.

"That's me, no fronts," Marinovich said Thursday as ninth-ranked Southern Cal prepared to meet Syracuse in the Kickoff Classic at Giants Stadium on Friday night. "I just try to relax and have fun."

There have been few days when Marinovich has not had fun on the field. He burst onto the college scene last season as a redshirt freshman, completing 219 of 352 passes for 2,578 yards and 16 touchdowns in helping the Trojans to a 9-2-1 record and a Rose Bowl win over Michigan.

Marinovich, 21, said there is no pressure to match those numbers, which made him the sixth-leading passer in Southern Cal history.

"I'd like to see nothing in the loss column this year," he said. "Losing two games hurt. I think if I had made a big play in each of those games we could have done it."

Marinovich is looking to avoid that kind of pain this season. He has spent hours working out and watching tapes of the losses to Illinois and Notre Dame, looking for things he could have done better. As always, he is using some of the latest scientific aids to improve his game.

Using an Accu-vision 1000 machine, Marinovich tested his peripheral vision by watching alternating blinking lights on a 5-by-7 foot board that contained about 120 lights.

Marinovich added a catch to the test. He took it jumping up and down on a trampoline while being poked and prodded from different sides.

"It's the same as a game, everybody is trying to get a piece of the quarterback," Marinovich said. "You have to stay focused."

Marinovich has had a natural advantage in his training. His father, Marv, is a conditioning expert who owns an athletic research center. As a result, Marinovich had dozens of experts work on athletic development.

Hence the nickname "Robo QB" for the California kid who was one of the most recruited high school quarterbacks in the country.

Buckeye cornerback leaves team for 'personal reasons'

By Rusty Miller
The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Buster Howe cited "personal reasons" Thursday for quitting the Ohio State football team and said he found it difficult to be both a student and an athlete.

Howe, Ohio's Mr. Football in 1987, said he would continue to attend Ohio State but needed to take time away from the sport. He had missed several days of preseason practice before making his decision official Wednesday night. He will no longer be a scholarship athlete and must now pay his own way.

"Why should I go out there and give 100 percent when I can give it to something else that I really want: academics," Howe said from his home in Zanesville.

Howe, who said the decision to quit the team was his, averaged 25 points a game as a single-wing halfback his senior year at Zanesville High School. He was academically ineligible as a freshman at Ohio State under NCAA Proposi-

He was listed as a second-team cornerback going into preseason workouts three weeks ago.

have an effect on the team.

"Sure it hurts the team," he said. "Any time you lose anybody, it hurts the team. He could have helped this football team."

Howe said he had no plans to transfer. He also said he was not having academic problems.

He said the last two weeks have been filled with confusion.

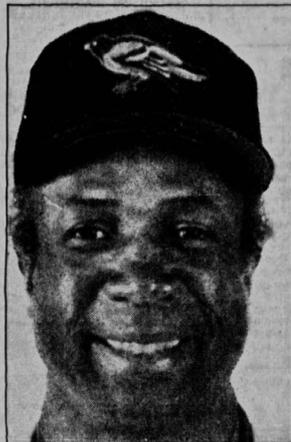

"It's been very, very hectic," he said. "There's no clear view for me; everything's fuzzy."

Howe said, "This is something I've arrived at myself. I'm the one who's had to go through everything. Everyone else can sit there and can face the facts but I had to go through the actual actions. They can say this and that, but they didn't go through all I did."

Howe would not say what it was he went through, repeating that it was "personal."

He said he consulted with assistant coaches Fred Pagac, Ron Zook and Cooper before reaching his decision. He said all three were supportive and said they would help in any way they

Frank Robinson

O's reeling after great run in July

By David Ginsburg
The Associated Press

BALTIMORE — Just as they were feeling jaunty about a jolly July, the Baltimore Orioles got sandbagged in August and went tumbling into the depths of the American League East.

The Orioles' best July since 1983 (17-11) put them in third place, four games behind league-leading Boston. That's when they went on an 8-17 nosedive that gives them a shot at replacing the New York Yankees in the cellar.

"We're not pitching, we're not hitting and we're not fielding," Manager Frank Robinson said. "We do maybe one of those things well a night, but it's not enough. We're just not a good ballclub right now."

Entering Thursday night's game against the Yankees, Baltimore was 12½ games behind the Red Sox and just 3½ games ahead of New York. After being outscored 37-13 in two losses to Cleveland and three more to the Yankees, the Orioles were reeling at a season-low 10 games under .500.

Injuries to Randy Milligan and the heart of the pitching staff played a part in the Orioles' demise, but the team's problems extend well beyond that.

"You can't blame injuries," Robinson said. "That's what you have other people on your ballclub and in your organization for. That's no excuse."

The problem is that Baltimore isn't doing the simple things it takes to win. Like hitting. Or pitching.

The Orioles have reached double figures in hits in only three games this month. Over the last 22 games they gave up 31 homers and hit 10, including only one with a man on base.

The pitching hasn't been too much better. Baltimore's staff had allowed at least one homer in eight straight games through Wednesday, and only three teams in the AL had a worse ERA.

The Orioles aren't even executing the fundamentals. Three times this month they have been burned when a pitcher was late in covering first base, and Baltimore took itself out of a potential rally Wednesday when Steve Finley failed to lay down a sacrifice bunt before rookie David Segui was doubled off second base on a routine fly ball.

"Those kinds of things are really magnified when you're going the way we're going," Robinson said. "When you're going good and you make mistakes, your teammates pick you up."

No one could cover for Finley or Segui, and there have been precious few heroes during a skid in which the Orioles have lost 11 of 14.

Granted, most of the stars of the team have been gathering in the training room rather than in the dugout. Milligan, the team-leader in home runs, has been out since Aug. 7 when he hurt his shoulder.

Almost every member of the Oriole pitching staff has been hurt. Only Pete Harnisch remains from the five-man rotation the Robinson set on opening day.

Dave Johnson and Bob Milacki are on the disabled list, Jeff Ballard and his sore elbow are in the bullpen and Jay Tibbs was traded away. Worse, bullpen standouts Gregg Olson and Mark Williamson are unavailable because of injuries.
