Bush ends vacation, prepares for summit

By Tom Raum
The Associated Press

KENNEBUNKPORT, Maine — President Bush wrapped up a three-week vacation Monday and prepared to head back to the White House to get ready for his summit in Helsinki with Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev.

White House aides said Bush's trip may be extended an additional day to give the president a chance to meet on Saturday with Finnish President Mauno Koivisto. In that case, Bush will leave for Finland on Friday, said deputy press secretary Roman Popadiuk.

The president will meet with Gorbachev for about five hours on Sunday, including luncheon talks, and then will return to Washington.

The crisis in the Middle East tops the agenda, although the president and White House aides have stressed that several other subjects — including progress toward an agreement on reducing troops and tanks in Europe — will also be discussed in some detail.

Side meetings between aides to Bush and Gorbachev are not planned for this summit, said an official who spoke on condition of anonymity. Such sessions usually are standard during summit meetings.

Another official described the one-day session as more an "informal meeting" between the two leaders.

Bush has said he does not expect the Soviet Union to mediate between Iraq and the United States. But the administration would welcome any pressure Gorbachev can bring against Iraq, a longtime recipient of Soviet arms.

Popadiuk said there was "no doubt" Bush would spend much time in the days ahead preparing for his third summit with Gorbachev, but that there were few details of the president's schedule at this time.

"I'm assuming he'll take into account the view of allied leaders," Popadiuk said.

In advance of other summits with Gorbachev, the president spent hours on the phone conferring with other western leaders.

Members of Congress begin to return to Washington this week, and two foreign affairs committees will begin their official scrutiny of the month-old Persian Gulf crisis. Budget talks, stalemated when Congress left in early August for its recess, resume late this week. Administration officials say the $1-billion-a-month U.S. military operation in the Persian Gulf will make reaching a deficit-cutting agreement even more difficult.

Mikhail Gorbachev

Bush spent his final day at his Maine family retreat boating and playing golf, taking along national security adviser Brent Scowcroft on both outings.

He was to meet with his Cabinet. See Bush, Page 9A

Yeltsin calls for vote on economic freedom

By Ann Imse
The Associated Press

MOSCOW — Boris Yeltsin, president of the Russian republic, seized the initiative for radical reform Monday with a plan that would give the republics control of their economies and drastically reduce the power of the national government.

According to a copy of the 250-page plan obtained by The Associated Press, most decisions regarding the economy would be made by the 15 sovereign republics.

If approved by the Russian republic's Legislature, the proposal would dramatically constrict the power of Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev, Yeltsin's rival. Gorbachev's national government would control only a fraction of the planned transition from communism to a market economy.

Russia, the largest of the republics, would legalize private ownership of land and give away huge numbers of state-owned apartments and residential lots to try to solve critical shortages of food and housing.

In the long run, the Soviet government would be limited to such matters as defense, strengthening the nearly worthless ruble and providing disaster relief. It would lose the power to tax and would have to rely on dues from the republics.

Since Russia contains half of the Soviet Union's people and three-quarters of its land mass, the national Legislature would be unable to ignore a decision by Russia to embark on a more radical reform than favored by Gorbachev.

Many Soviet citizens consider the country an empire well on its way to disintegration. Thirteen of the 15 republics have declared themselves independent or "sovereign," with the right to veto national laws.

Gorbachev is discussing a new union treaty that would loosen the bonds of the Soviet Union into a confederation of sovereign states, but he has not offered a specific. See Soviet, Page 9A

Mandela adviser speaks at UI, expresses anti-apartheid views

By Ann Marie Williams
The Daily Iowan

"We live in a world which is in turmoil . . . a world in which many human beings are seeking to gain control of their own lives."

These were the words of Nelson Mandela's personal lawyer, Dullah Omar, who spoke to a crowd of more than 200 Friday afternoon at the UI College of Law. He addressed the current situation in South Africa and the future of the anti-apartheid movement.

Omar, a legal adviser to the African National Congress and a member of its Constitutional Committee, stressed the importance of black participation in the development of a new South African constitution.

"This is a key issue in the liberation movement," Omar said. "You cannot have a democratic constitution without democratically elected people to create this constitution."

Omar said the ANC is calling for a series of non-racial elections throughout the country to determine who should develop the constitution.

The African National Congress was born in 1917, and Omar said its central task has been to unite the African people.

"One of the features of which we are very proud is we have been able to build up what we call a mass democratic movement," he said.

Omar said since the birth of the ANC, blacks in South Africa have become more organized, upholding the philosophy that they have "the right to be part of their own future."

The current South African government, a tricameral system that allots political power in varying degrees on the basis of race or color, is a system that "enjoys no legitimacy whatsoever," Omar said.

The South African government refuses to hold elections before a constitution is written, he said.

Omar outlined several steps necessary to achieve an end to inequality and apartheid in South Africa. First, a parliament should be created through universal suffrage, otherwise known as the "one person, one vote" rule. Second, a multiparty system should be created that would allow all South Africans to belong to the party of their choice. Third, an independent judiciary should be created along with a Bill of Rights.

"Apartheid should be abolished at every level," Omar said. "We must eliminate the historically created system of inequality."

Mandela accuses police of partiality

By Tom Cohen
The Associated Press

SOWETO, South Africa — ANC leader Nelson Mandela called Monday for an independent investigation of police partiality following a judge's "scathing attack" on police actions that left five people dead during a March protest.

"The matter is too important to be given to the police, the very culprit, to investigate," Mandela told a news conference in Soweto.

He and other black leaders have accused police of aiding Zulu backers of the conservative Inkatha movement in township battles with Xhosa and other African National Congress supporters.

Police found 25 bodies over the weekend after clashes erupted following several days of relative quiet. The fighting in the townships near Johannesburg has killed at least 540 people since Aug. 12.

Gangs armed with spears, axes and knives fought in Tokoza and Tembisa townships, and a minibus filled with armed men shot down residents in the townships, police said. Security forces said they were unable to stop the killings.

"What can you do. We're always too late," said one police officer, who declined to give his name.

Authorities reinforced police and soldiers patrolling the townships. Elite army battalions were moved into Johannesburg late last month to help police.

President F.W. de Klerk called Sunday for an investigation of alleged police bias in the recent township violence. De Klerk said he told Law and Order Minister Adriaan Vlok to conduct "an urgent and in-depth investigation" into charges made by black political and church leaders.

De Klerk and police have repeatedly denied the charges of anti-ANC bias, saying individual police may have acted improperly but that the force as a whole was impartial.

UI student drowns over the weekend

By Diana Wallace
The Daily Iowan

A UI student drowned Sunday during a weekend boating trip in Lake of the Ozarks, Missouri.

The body of Doug Sampson, 22, a senior business student from Prophet'sville, Ill., was recovered around 3:25 p.m. Monday in a lake inlet called 14-Mile Cove. He had been missing since Sunday afternoon.

Sampson had been boating with members of his fraternity, Kappa Sigma, when he reportedly jumped into the water from a houseboat at 4 p.m.

According to Paul Kennedy, a Missouri State Water Patrol officer, Sampson landed on another swimmer, also a fraternity member, who was injured on impact.

"Everyone was concentrating on the other guy because he was bleeding, and it took some time before they realized (Sampson) was missing. They checked the other boats and then flagged me down. I happened to be in the cove on another call," Kennedy said.

Divers were sent to search for Sampson, but Kennedy said the search was delayed because of the amount of time it took to clear the boats and the "thousands" of Labor Day Weekend boaters from the area.

Kennedy said the search began around 4:40 p.m., continued until sunset and resumed early Monday morning.

A spokesman for Kappa Sigma, located at 724 N. Dubuque St., said a local memorial service for Sampson is being planned, and that a funeral service will be held Thursday or Friday in Prophet'sville.

Chewning receives maximum sentence

By Diana Wallace
The Daily Iowan

A man convicted in July of second-degree murder in the strangulation death of his wife was sentenced Friday to 50 years in prison.

Frank Chewning, of Monmouth, Ill., was convicted by jury July 19 in Johnson County District Court nine months after his wife, Dianne, was found strangled to death in a motel room at the University Inn in Coralville.

District Court Judge William Eads sentenced

Chewning Friday, giving him Iowa's maximum sentence for second-degree murder.

Chewning was given temporary release from the Warren County, Ill., jail Oct. 4, 1989, to bring his wife to Iowa City for medical tests she underwent at the UI Hospitals and Clinics. The two were last seen together that night at the University Inn lounge, two days before a hotel employee found Dianne Chewning's body in the couple's room.

Chewning was later arrested in Ogden, Utah, after being questioned by police for trespassing.

Employment Services director clarifies memo

The Associated Press

DES MOINES — The director of the state Department of Employment Services has clarified a controversial memo telling agency staff they would be evaluated on whether they kept Republican Gov. Terry Branstad "out of trouble."

Cynthia Eisenhauer has withdrawn her earlier memo and replaced it with a second one urging staff members to use internal "channels of communications to get your questions answered or your concerns addressed before you contact the media, the governor or the General Assembly."

Eisenhauer said in an interview that she wrote the second memo to clarify an earlier staff report that quoted her as saying she would evaluate employees on how well they kept the agency and the governor out of trouble in the media.

Branstad is seeking a third four-year term and his Democratic opponent in the November election, House Speaker Don Avenson, has charged there is a "gag order" on state agencies. Avenson claims the agencies are being told to hide problems.

Board completes search committee

The Associated Press

DES MOINES — The state Board of Regents has filled the last 11 seats on a search committee for a successor to outgoing Iowa State University President Gordon Eaton.

The 11 members named Friday will join 15 appointed in July to help find a new president. The regents hope to appoint as early as January.

Eaton, 61, is set to leave Iowa State Oct. 19 to become director of Columbia University's Lamont-Doherty Geological Observatory in Palisades, N.Y.

Those appointed Friday include Joan Carol Axel, a Muscatine lawyer; Timothy Gray, engineer at the Center for Nondestructive Evaluation; Nolan Hartwig, professor-in-charge of veterinary medicine extension; Tahira Hira, professor of family environment.

Funeral services scheduled for UI alumnus, IC native

The Daily Iowan

Funeral services will be held today for Terry Joseph "T.J." Myers, a UI alumnus and professional dancer who died August 28 at the age of 30. Services will begin at 4 p.m. at the Donohue-Lensing funeral home, 605 Kirkwood Ave.

Myers, a former Iowa City resident, graduated from City High School and received a bachelor's degree in dance from the UI. He worked as a performer, instructor and artist in several fields, and his professional career took him around the U.S. and Caribbean, including a USO tour. He taught dance workshops throughout the U.S., notably with the Joffrey Ballet, and performed as an alumnus guest artist in the UI's Dance Gala last February.

Myers also performed with Rachel Lambert and Dancers of New York and recorded an album with the group Flirtations, a professional cappella quintet. In addition, he developed a resource manual for People with AIDS, now widely distributed throughout New York.

Memorial donations should go to the UI Dance Department and AIDS Education and Research in care of Flirtations.

UI Museum of Art director dead at 41

The Daily Iowan

Mary Hagihara Kujawski Roberts, director of the UI Museum of Art, died at her home Sunday after a long illness.

Roberts, 41, was born in Kofu, Yamanashi, Japan, Jan. 12, 1949. The daughter of Sgt. Stanley Kujawski and Dottie Setsuko Kujawski, Roberts moved frequently as a child, attending schools in Kentucky, Germany, North Carolina and Arizona. She received her master's degrees in education and art history from the University of Illinois.

She came to Iowa City with her husband, Allen Roberts, in 1988. The date of a memorial service, to be held in the Museum of Art, will be announced later. Memorial donations may be made to the UI Foundation, Museum of Art or the Iowa City Hospice.

Nominations to be accepted for TA awards

The UI Council in Teaching is accepting nominations for the 1990-91 Outstanding Teaching Assistant Awards.

TAs from all academic areas may be nominated for the 55 awards of $1,000 each by either students, faculty, colleagues, departmental executive officers or deans.

Completed applications will be accepted until Oct. 19 at 5 p.m. Nomination forms are available in the Council on Teaching office, 114 Jessup Hall, and at Health Center Information and Communication, 283 Medical Laboratories.

For more information contact the Council on Teaching, 114 Jessup Hall.

UP sponsors science symposium

In connection with its Science Symposium, the Unified Program will sponsor a lecture on recent explorations of the solar system given by John Fix, professor of physics and astronomy.

The lecture will be held from 7-9 p.m. today in the English-Philosophy Building, Room 304. It will include slides taken by spacecraft in their encounters with planets and comets.

This is the first year the UP has sponsored the Science Symposium, which will include a series of informal, non-technical lectures on various research topics.

Lectures will be the first and third Tuesday of each month at 7 p.m., and anyone is welcome to attend.

For more information on today's lecture or future lectures, contact Amy Kirkey at 335-0628.

Researchers identify protein sequence

UI researchers have identified a protein sequence that holds promise in the treatment of several nervous system disorders.

Dr. Ramon Lim, neurology professor in the UI College of Medicine, identified the protein, called gila maturation factor, in 1972. He spent 16 years purifying it, and only last year was able to isolate it from bovine brains, which led to the complete sequencing.

GMF is a growth regulator that may someday be used to treat brain tumors, nerve injuries and degenerative diseases such as Parkinson's and Alzheimer's.

Lim said having the complete sequence means that it can now be cloned, making it readily available for testing for therapeutic possibilities.

Hospitals cooperate to monitor care quality

Six Iowa hospitals and the UI Center for Health Services Research are cooperating to strengthen the ways hospitals monitor the quality of health-care services provided to patients.

Called The Iowa Hospital Quality Assurance Institute, the consortium includes: UI Hospitals and Clinics, St. Luke's Hospital in Davenport, St. Luke's Methodist Hospital in Cedar Rapids, Muscatine General Hospital, St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Mason City and the Henry County Health Center in Mount Pleasant.

The project will concentrate on all levels of patient care, said Douglas Wakefield, UI assistant professor of hospital and health administration in the UI College of Medicine and the project's deputy director.

"Our study will go beyond traditional infection control activities to include a broad range of issues and problems involved in monitoring the quality of care," Wakefield said.

The Iowa consortium is funded by a $272,000 competitive grant, one of seven funded nationwide by the Robert Wood Johnson foundation of Princeton, N.J.

Other UI principals in the project include Charles Helms, project director and associate professor, and Dr. John Fieselmann, assistant professor, both of internal medicine.

Courts

An Iowa City woman was charged with third-degree theft Thursday.

According to Johnson County District Court records, Marilyn Blackcloud, 41, 1611 Lakeside Manor, attempted to steal a cordless telephone from a Target store on Highway 6 in Coralville. Store security apprehended Blackcloud when she'd left the store without purchasing the merchandise, records state.

Bail has been set at $2,000, and a preliminary hearing will be held Sept. 7.

■ A Des Moines man was charged with aiding and abetting the aforementioned third-degree theft Thursday.

According to Johnson County District Court records, Howell H. Dameron, 40, was observed by Target security to be acting as a "look-out" for Blackcloud. During a brief scuffle that occurred when security brought Blackcloud back into the store, Dameron approached the security officer and removed the purse containing the stolen telephone, records state. Dameron then attempted to hide both the purse and the telephone elsewhere in the store, according to records.

Bail has been set at $2,000, and a preliminary hearing will be held Sept. 7.

Jim's back

Cartoonist's creation becomes a campus icon

By Susan Stapleton
The Daily Iowan

"I went to college and it was OK," Jim says.

So begins "Jim's Journal," Scott Dikkers' hot minimalist cartoon about being lukewarm.

Through Jim and his two roommates — the sunglasses-wearing Tony and Fruit Loops-munching Steve — Dikkers quietly creeps into college life and comments on its simplicity through the auspices of a journal.

In the past year, readers have witnessed the mundane lives of these three guys and their confused female kitten, Mr. Peterson, through Jim's daily recordings.

They have seen Tony come home drunk and vomit ("This is what Hell will be like," Tony said. He also said he had a pretty good time"), Jim ordering pizza ("It really hit the spot") and Steve and Jim watching morning television ("He asked me if I'd mind changing the channel to 'Good Morning, America.' So I did").

Scott Dikkers, the mind behind "Jim's Journal," said he changed his "peripheral theory" of cartoons with this strip.

"The drawing is secondary. I'm interested in the character — not the jokes," the 25-year-old Minneapolis native said.

Dikkers began drawing "Jim's Journal" in the fall of 1987 with 16 strips in The Daily Cardinal, the paper at the University of Wisconsin in Madison, where he now resides.

Jim's Journal

"Jim had enormous fame on campus," Dikkers said. "Fame snuck up on Jim and he's become an icon on campus."

Three years later, "Jim's Journal" is syndicated in 15 college newspapers across the nation, including papers at the UI, the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, the University of Nebraska, the California Institute of Technology and the University of Michigan.

Dikkers said he got the idea for "Jim's Journal" from a character he drew when he was younger that looked remarkably like Jim.

"I've learned that people like characters that are likable and simplistic," he said.

Sparse drawings, friendly, likable characters, humor and jokes make up "Jim's Journal."

"Drawing 'Jim's Journal' is easy because it doesn't rely on a punchline," Dikkers said. "Why make a pun? They're simply windows into others' lives."

Dikkers decided on a journal format after looking through a few of his own personal journal entries.

"It's easier to look in retrospect with wisdom and a few years. When you read your own journal, they read funny. You can't believe you wrote these things down," Dikkers said. "If it's funny, why not have a cartoon character with his own journal?"

Appropriately, perhaps, Dikkers claims "Jim's Journal" is informed by his own past.

"I used to be Jim fresh out of high school — young and naive," he said.

After his high-school graduation, Dikkers attended the University of Wisconsin at River Falls and worked at McDonald's, as Jim does in the comic strip.

"Everyone there was in college,"

Dikkers said. "I felt dumb and just kind of absorbed their conversation without participating."

"At the bookstore in Bridgeport (Connecticut), I was a character. I used to put a nametag with 'manager' on it and tell people what to do. People knew it was a joke but they did it anyway," he said.

But like most college students, Jim's future is uncertain.

Dikkers said, "Jim's got to graduate this year or next and get a job."

For the rest of this academic year, "Jim's Journal" can be found in The Daily Break section of The Daily Iowan. The strip was not available this summer.

Other cartoons by Dikkers — Plebes, signed L.T. Horton, and Professor Hornby's Figures in History — appear under pseudonyms in The Onion, an underground satire newspaper in Madison that Dikkers edits.

By Susan Stapleton
The Daily Iowan

"It's Zen-like," says cartoonist Scott Dikkers on "Jim's Journal." "So many people don't get it. What Jim does is pointless."

The "Jim idea" was introduced when Dikkers decided to express his characters' thoughts through Jim instead of in diary form. "The characters act out Jim's diary," he said.

"Jim couldn't possibly exist in reality," Dikkers went on. "He's a vessel through which you see the world — a bullhorn. He never reacts because he's not a part of it."

Dikkers said Jim is modeled after a friend in California, Chris Lee.

"Jim's Korean. It's a fact that never comes up in the cartoon," Dikkers said.

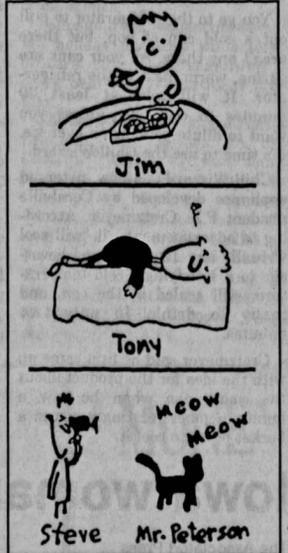

"(Lee) really didn't like the cartoons at first, but after he saw a couple of cartoons he changed his mind," he said.

Tony, on the other hand, is a "stereotypical dumb, brash, sexist, immature college student," said Dikkers, adding that he feels sorry for Tony but tries to make him likable anyway.

Steve is Tony's friend from high school, and Jim doesn't think they have many friends in common. In reality, Steve is modeled after a friend of Dikkers from high school.

"Humorless and set in his ways, Steve is a typical 'Star Wars' geek — really into movies," Dikkers said.

Steve has already made his first movie starring Tony and Jim, and Dikkers says that Steve will probably get into more movies.

Mr. Peterson is based on all cats, especially Dikkers' own cat, Felix. "Felix is quite a cat, always attacking our other two cats," Dikkers said.

In one episode, Steve decided it was time to get Mr. Peterson fixed. "It seemed he knew his fate was being discussed."

Dikkers thought it would be funny if they had never checked its gender and made Mr. Peterson a girl. After coming back from the veterinarian's office, Steve brought the gender news. Tony said, "A cat's a cat."

St. Ansgar hog farmer responds to animal-rights movement

The Associated Press

ST. ANSGAR, Iowa — St. Ansgar farmer Jerry Nash pampers his pigs and hopes the treatment will help him carve a market for consumers who are concerned about animal rights.

Nash's farm is under consideration for a special USDA-approved label to certify that animals raised there are done so humanely. It would be the first such farm in Iowa and the second in the country.

Instead of the familiar feed lot, hogs on the Nash farm are raised in A-frame huts in the middle of pastures full of mud and alfalfa. Nash said he was forced to abandon the feedlot technique six years ago because the odors made him ill in the spring.

The label, done at the request of the Animal Welfare Institute, bears the name "Pastureland Farms" and specifies that the pigs were raised by "family farms" registered by the institute. It also says the animals were free to move around and that no subtherapeutic antibiotics or sulfas were administered to them.

The market for such products is uncertain. The only farm so far to earn the label is in Minnesota, but hogs from the Mike Peterson farm in Northfield are no longer being marketed under the special brand.

The pork from the Peterson farm was distributed through three Lunds supermarkets, a chain of markets in the Twin Cities area. But the stores have stopped carrying the product. Lunds officials declined to comment on their reasons.

The animal rights issue is hotly contested among farmers, with most producers saying the modern feedlot and slaughtering methods are humane.

Charles Harness, vice president of the National Pork Producers Council, said he does not object to the special label as long as proponents don't criticize conventional pork raising methods.

"If that's a niche market for (Nash), I don't object to it."

Coralville inventor chills out with cool invention for soda

By Chris Pothoven
The Daily Iowan

It's a hot, humid summer day. You've just gotten back from a two-mile jog, and your body is screaming for something cool and refreshing to drink.

You go to the refrigerator to pull out a cold can of pop, but there aren't any there. All your cans are sitting, warm, next to the refrigerator. It will take at least 20 minutes to cool one, unless you want to dilute your drink over ice. It's time to use the Chill Wizzard.

Chill Wizzard is a new, patented appliance developed by Coralville resident F.X. Cretzmeyer. According to advertisements, it "will cool virtually any 12 oz. canned beverage to a satisfyingly cold temperature, still sealed in the can, and ready to drink, in only two minutes."

Cretzmeyer said he first came up with the idea for the product about five years ago when he saw a family member rotating a can in a bucket of ice to cool it.

"I thought 'gee whiz, it shouldn't be too difficult to come up with something that worked on the same principle,'" he said.

Cretzmeyer said his product works on the basic scientific principles of heat exchange.

Within a couple of months, Cretzmeyer had developed a prototype and was discussing licensing it with a major manufacturer. However, due to a change in the management, the product was "axed."

Cretzmeyer decided to build his own company around the product and in early 1989, he began work on the Chill Wizzard Corporation.

Cretzmeyer received help with his product from Paul Heath, director of the UI Small Business Development Center, and Bruce Wheaton, director of the UI Technology Innovation Center, both located on the Oakdale campus.

"They gave me names and contacts to open doors and bring the concept to actuality," he said.

The product is now available in stores throughout Iowa City and Coralville and is also being distributed on a limited basis nationally and in Japan.

Cretzmeyer says Chill Wizzard has been received very well locally for a number of reasons.

"I've never encountered anyone... who has not put a can of beer or pop in the fridge to cool it down quickly," he said. "The real benefit is it does eliminate preplanning."

Cretzmeyer added anything that eliminates preplanning should do well commercially.

Potpourri, a kitchenware store in the Old Capitol Center, has carried the product for about a month.

"It's doing very well, better than most items we have," said Connie Champion, co-owner of Potpourri.

Several "upscale" catalogues will be offering Chill Wizzard soon, said Cretzmeyer, adding that he plans to distribute the product nationally through retail stores.

Cretzmeyer said he hopes to see widespread sales by the Christmas season.

"It's long overdue," he said. "Eighty-six million cans of beverage are consumed each year in the U.S. There's one heck of a market."

Iowa woman videotapes burglary

The Associated Press

WHITEMORE, Iowa — Palo Alto County authorities say a Whittemore woman made their job easy over the weekend when she videotaped a burglary in progress on her property.

Deborah Bruellman said she awoke about 5:15 a.m. Saturday when the family dog created a commotion. Looking out a window, she saw a man, whom she identified as former employee Kelly Moore of Emmetsburg putting gas in his car from the Bruellmans' fuel tank.

"I recognized the car right away," she said Monday, adding that her husband, Mark, had hired Moore to help move grain bins.

As she watched, Bruellman, 30, said Moore got back into his car, drove over to a shop located a short distance from the house, and began to carry out tools and lawn equipment to his car.

Bruellman said she could see Moore clearly because he turned on the lights in the shop. He also turned them out again as he left.

After watching for a few minutes, Bruellman remembered the family's video camera and started the machine rolling.

"He kept looking at the house like he was expecting someone to wake up because the dog kept barking," Bruellman said. "But he didn't approach the house. After he turned out the lights in the shop, he got into his car and left."

She said she was frightened, particularly since she was home alone with her three girls, aged 3 through 10. But she was also flabbergasted at what was happening.

"I kept saying, you've got to be kidding. You're cleaning house in there," she said. "While you're in there, why don't you take the shelves, too. He was taking his time at it. ... He was quite greedy."

She said a deputy sheriff looked at the video and kept it for evidence. Later that day authorities conducted a search at Moore's residence and on a 1979 Chevrolet automobile owned by Joseph Whitney, also of Emmetsburg.

Palo Alto County Sheriff Russ Jergens said Bruellman's videotape was an example of citizens being on their toes to help law enforcement officials.

Bruellman said she was glad to help but that she wouldn't recommend similar action by other homeowners unless they felt secure.

"If you can do it quietly and in safety, then I suppose (it's a good idea)," she said. "But generally, when somebody is burglarizing your place, just let 'em do it. Property is one thing, but the kids and I can't be replaced," she said.

Omar said South African President F.W. de Klerk rejected the idea of majority rule, called for a bicameral parliament and supported a bill of rights that protects individual liberties but also protects "existing rights" such as the right to property.

Omar said this right to property translates into the strict separation of racial residential areas, and with that, quality schools, hospitals and other resources continuing to be diverted to the white areas.

"Today we have a situation in which two-thirds of black households in Soweto do not have running water in their homes," he said.

Omar also addressed the recent upsurge of violence in South Africa, which has thwarted negotiations with the nation's government.

"For there to be elections in our country, we need peace," he said.

Omar also criticized media coverage of the violence, pointing out an Associated Press article that appeared in Friday's Daily Iowan, which he said presented only the South African government's version of the unrest in the area.

Most of the victims of the violence were killed by the South African police or its supporters, he said.

"No one asked the ANC about the violence," Omar said. "It is not intertribal violence. What it is is apartheid-inspired violence."

The presentation was sponsored by the Faculty Speakers Committee, the Iowa Society of International Law and Affairs, and the Black Law Students Association.

Police

On Saturday, a government inquiry sharply criticized police for firing on demonstrators in the Sebokeng township last March. Five blacks were killed and 156 wounded by gunfire.

Mandela said the Sebokeng report showed the government lacked control over police.

"I think its findings are a very scathing attack on the training of the police," he said. He called for a similar judicial inquiry of police actions in the townships during the recent fighting.

Mandela, just back from a nine-day trip to Norway, Libya, Algeria and Zambia, also said he rejected a face-to-face meeting with Zulu leader Mangosuthu Buthelezi because "the question of violence is not a question of individuals."

He said working groups had been formed to try to end the fighting.

Florida campus life returning to normal

By Ron Word
The Associated Press

GAINESVILLE, Fla. — Campus life was returning to normal Monday for many college students frightened by a string of mutilation murders, but police warned that the killer could still be on the loose.

Students returning to the University of Florida for the second week of classes said they were less worried than they were last week by the deaths of five students who were found slain in their apartments.

"All you can do is be very careful. I'm usually in my room before dark," said Ava, a sophomore from Fort Lauderdale who refused to give her last name.

"Everyone I know is calming down," said Aaron Sotala, 20, a sophomore from Copper Harbor, Mich. "It has been almost a week, but there is still tension on the campus."

Police said they have eight suspects, but warned residents against dropping their guard.

"Students should know that the killer has not been apprehended — the killer is not in custody — and assume that person or persons is still in the area," Lt. Sadie Darnell, a police spokeswoman, said Monday.

Police said an emotionally troubled University of Florida freshman, in custody in Brevard County for allegedly assaulting his grandmother, remained a suspect.

Edward Lewis Humphrey was held on $1 million bond. Public Defender J.R. Russo said he would seek a hearing Tuesday to request reducing the bond.

The Gainesville Sun reported Monday that Humphrey's psychiatric records were subpoenaed by the task force investigating the killings.

Prosecutors and Humphrey's public defender said they likely would seek a psychological evaluation of Humphrey this week.

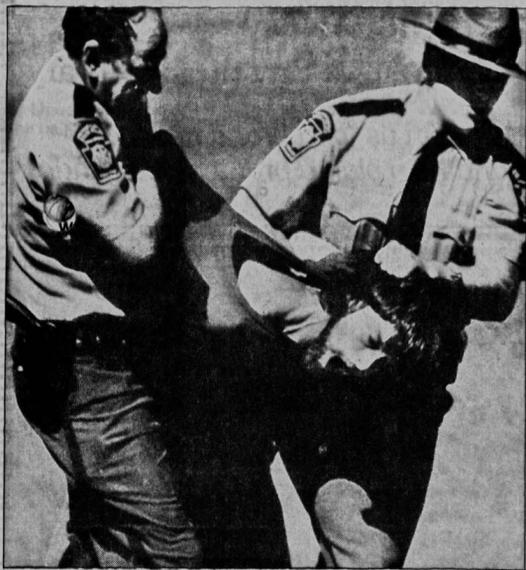

Humphrey's psychiatrist, Phillip Springer, said he opposed being legally compelled to turn over the records and didn't believe Humphrey's mental condition should be a basis for suspicion in the murders. Humphrey has been treated with lithium, a mood-stabilizing drug.

Brevard Circuit Judge John

Antoon signed an order Sunday allowing investigators to take Humphrey's footprints to compare with those found at one of the crime scenes.

Police guarded his apartment over the holiday weekend while other officers continued searching a creek behind the apartment complex.

The bodies of University of Florida freshmen Sonja Larson, 18, and Christina Powell, 17, were found Aug. 26. The body of Santa Fe Community College student Christa Hoyt, 18, was found the next day, while the bodies of Tracey Paules, 23, and Manuel Taboada, 23, were found Aug. 28. Miss Paules went to the University of Florida, while Taboada was a student at Santa Fe.

Yearly live pigeon shoot flocked with protesters

By Terry Mutchler
The Associated Press

HEGINS, Pa. — Three state troopers were injured and 25 people were arrested during an annual live pigeon shoot Monday after protesters rushed onto a field and tried to free the caged birds.

Several fistfights broke out, a skunk was thrown at demonstrators and one protester kicked out the windshield of a car before state police stopped the protest at the 57th Fred Coleman Memorial Shoot in HEGINS.

Participants pay to shoot birds released from cages, and the proceeds are used to maintain a park in this small east-central Pennsylvania town.

Fourteen people with fake blood dripping from their mouths ran onto the field at different times to free the animals. Spectators chanted "shoot" as state police tried to handcuff the demonstrators.

"It was just getting out of control," said state police spokesman Tom Lyon. He said 40 officers were assigned to the park, and a state police helicopter was called in as an "extra show of force."

The 14 people who rushed the field were charged with criminal trespass. An additional 11 demonstrators were charged with disorderly conduct. The officers received only minor injuries.

About 150 people from Pennsylvania, California, Maryland, Kansas, Illinois, New Jersey, West Virginia, Virginia, Texas and Florida picketed the Labor Day event, billed as the largest live pigeon shoot in the world.

An estimated 4,800 birds were killed Monday, organizers said.

Solar plane sails smoothly in its 1st cross-country trek

The Associated Press

CURRITUCK, N.C. — A solar-powered ultralight aircraft reached the East Coast on Monday, landing a few miles from the Wright Brothers Memorial in what sponsors called the first cross-country solar flight.

Organizers of the journey that began in California were trying to decide whether to continue south to First Flight Airport, or just declare the flight a success because it reached the East Coast from its inland California takeoff. The airport and memorial are at Kitty Hawk, where the Wrights took the first airplane flight.

The Sun Seeker, piloted by Eric Raymond, landed at a sod farm about eight miles north of the monument where the Wrights flew in 1903.

The plane has solar cells to produce power for its electric motor. However, the motor is used only for takeoffs and landings. After takeoff, the motor is turned off and the plane rides thermals, columns of rising warm air, like a glider.

Chase pilot Klaus Sevier said Raymond and others on the Sun Seeker Project were satisfied they had accomplished their goal of flying from coast to coast. But spokesman Jack Whitehouse expected them to keep trying for their original goal.

"Assuming that he didn't damage Sun Seeker in this field, I would expect they'll just sit there and go in in the morning," Whitehouse said.

Raymond, a former national hang gliding champion, had hoped to reach his destination Sunday but was delayed by strong headwind. He logged only 18 miles Friday when he landed at Virginia Tech Airport at Blackburg, Va., about 25 miles northwest of Roanoke, Va.

Raymond flew 124 miles Sunday before landing in Currituck, in North Carolina's northeastern corner, about 35 miles north of Kitty Hawk, Whitehouse said.

"He was struggling when he took off today," Whitehouse said. "He said his climb rate was more like 100 feet per minute, which is very weak. (His chances were) only 50-50."

"We've been very upset because the delays we've had on this trip have had nothing to do with the plane, they were because of the weather," said his wife, Aida.

Art exhibits on display locally

By Lindsay Alan Park
The Daily Iowan

Vincent Stall's painting and drawing exhibition, "The Heinous Sin of Self-Mutilation," challenges those who seek salvation of the soul at the expense of the body.

In five large oil paintings on canvas exhibited with four ink on paper sketches, Stall has embodied disturbing spiritual strivings to mortify flesh in raw, twisted human figures. The exhibit runs through Sept. 26 at the Arts Center, 129 E. Washington St.

Using a palate of dull yellows, pinks and browns emerging from a dominant gray and black gloom, Stall suggests a lonely atmosphere of resigned despair — like what I would imagine in an insane asylum in a particularly unenlightened age. The motif of institutional metal bedframes, which Stall manipulates in his compositions like so many building blocks, contributes to this mood.

When asked about such images as the bedframes, Stall said that they came from inside his head rather than from actual models. "But I did work in a hospital at one time," he added.

Stall, who received his art training at the University of Florida in Gainesville (where, incidentally, the murderous mutilations of five college students have been making headlines this past week), said he completed the entire series during the past seven months.

Also opening today in the main gallery of The Arts Center is "Coming Out," the first major group exhibition by the central Iowa chapter of the Women's Caucus for Art (WCA). The show, which will run through Sept. 26, features works in a variety of media by 21 women artists from Iowa.

Chapter president Anne Goche-nour said WCA is a feminist organization that began nationally in 1972 and locally in 1988. Among WCA's goals are to increase awareness of women and people of color in the arts, and to ensure their inclusion in art's history, Gouche-nour said.

The Arts Center is open (during exhibitions) 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Monday through Saturday. The public is invited to an opening reception for both shows to be held in the galleries on Friday,

Rooms With Views

Sept. 7, 5-7 p.m.

Two new exhibits sponsored by Project Art at UI Hospitals and Clinics open Thursday, Sept. 6, in the lobby of Boyd Tower. One exhibit features multimedia pieces in oil, ink and enamel by Daniel Smith;

Those who still believe the old saying "Those who can't do, teach," should check out the work of three Iowa art teachers — Coleen Ernst, Diane Edsall and Susie Kropa — currently on display in the Gallery Space, Terrace Lobby, Third Floor Link of the Union, through Sept. 24.

Also on display all week in the art building's Checkered Space is art student Paula Thompson's show of oil paintings and drawings titled "These Things Happen to Me: The Get Real Series." Thompson said she identified herself on posters for this show as "Wile E. Coyote, Super Genius," to highlight the connection cartoons have to her work.

'Wild at Heart' proves quite funny in light of its unrelenting absurdity

By Steve Cruise
The Daily Iowan

Sideshow

In the very first scene of David Lynch's "Wild at Heart," Sailor (Nicholas Cage), in an over-enthusiastic effort of self-defense, kills a man by pounding his head repeatedly into a marble floor. This grisly death — accompanied by smacking, steadily escalating sounds of impact — comes practically out of the blue; we barely have time to understand why it's happening before the screen is running with gore. Then, abruptly, it's over. The audience, of course, is supposed to smile indulgently at this point and think something along the lines of: "Well, that's David Lynch for you!" And so it continues. "Wild at Heart" starts out utterly bizarre and stays utterly bizarre throughout; it's like the Dean Stockwell party from "Blue Velvet," stretched out for two hours.

The film begins in Cape Fear, "somewhere between the border between North Carolina and South Carolina," where ne'er-do-well Sailor and young Lula (Laura Dern) are engaged in a hot and heavy romance. These two seem to live for sex, as though they'd just discovered it yesterday; when Lula tells Sailor that she'd follow him to the ends of the earth, he gives her thigh a celebratory slap and hollers, "Rockin' good news!" The only obstacle to this union is Lula's insanely possessive mother, Marietta (played by Dern's real mother, Diane Ladd), who employs any method at her disposal — including hiring hit men — to keep the two apart. Realizing that they must escape Marietta's influence, Sailor and Lula hit the road for California and soon find themselves pursued by numerous bad guys. Marietta's violent obsession (which is, after all, the premise of the movie) is never adequately explained, but that's not overly annoying since it's fun to watch her go slowly crazy.

The dialogue is a lot of hyperbolic cornpone. Even Tennessee Williams at his most campy could not have come up with lines like: "You really are dangerously cute, baby, I gotta admit it." "From now on I ain't gonna do nothin' for no good reason." "Baby, you got me hot-ter'n Georgia asphalt." Often these lines are quite funny, and the actors' timing — especially Cage's — is exquisite; half the time you're laughing so hard that you miss what's said next. Surely Lynch knows that Southerners don't really talk like this; nevertheless, the actors give the lines expressive enough readings to give them depth.

The film's only real problem is in its unrelenting absurdity; there pan Elvis impersonation). "Blue Velvet," Lynch's breakthrough film from 1986, was effective because of its contrast between suburbia's surface niceties and the seedy underworld; in "Wild at Heart," though, everyone is insane. Behavioral aberration is established early on as the norm. In one scene, the distraught Marietta smears lipstick all over her face, creating a hideous fuchsia mask signifying — what? The scene is nothing more than a cynical attempt by Lynch to enter the pop-culture pantheon; in this movie he's trying to achieve infamy without providing substance.

Willem Dafoe, who pops up late in the film, is slimy but not particularly scary as Bobby Peru, one of the hit men dispatched by Lula's mother. The movie tries very hard to make him look like a villainous archetype, complete with slicked-back hair, a malevolent stare and ugly little teeth, but it just doesn't work. The way he talks about himself in the third person (as in, to Lula, "Bobby Peru gonna — you good") is supposed to be a frightening piece of psychosis, but in fact it just sounds silly.

"Wild at Heart" is often hilarious (at least during the first hour, before you realize that the plot really isn't going anywhere); it's a definite crowd-pleaser — and I would recommend seeing it soon, while it's still drawing crowds. However, it's also proof that David Lynch has started to believe in, and conform to, his own myth — and that's truly frightening.

Riverside begins new season

The Daily Iowan

Following is a list of productions scheduled for Riverside Theatre's 1990-91 season:

"A . . . My Name is Alice," a five-woman musical revue, Sept. 14-Oct. 6.

"The Stick Wife," Darrah Cloud's drama based on the 1963 bombing of a black church in Birmingham, Ala., Nov. 2-17.

"Dear Iowa," a collaborative portrait of Iowa's colorful characters and events, bound together by a love story, Jan. 18-Feb. 9.

"The Road to Mecca," Athol Fugard's drama about an eccentric 70-year-old South African artist and her struggle against conformity, Mar. 29-Apr. 13.

"Acts of Passion," a double bill featuring "21A," in which one actor portrays all eight characters on a city bus, and "Thursday Is My Day for Cleaning," a monologue about a frustrated housewife who shoots her vacuum cleaner, June 7-15.

Also, Riverside will continue its Showcase Series, featuring special limited performances of Midwestern artists:

Minneapolis storyteller Jim Stowell performs "The Green Fuse: Journey on the Amazon," based on his recent trip to the Amazon River Basin, Oct. 12-13.

"First Lady Lou," a one-woman show on the life of Lou Henry Hoover, Dec. 7-9.

Storyteller Nancy Duncan, March 1-2.

CIVIL RIGHTS ACT

Problems abound

An age-old adage says "it's the thought that counts." But good intentions do not always translate into good policies. The Kennedy-Hawkins Omnibus Civil Rights Act of 1990 embodies exactly such an incongruity between concept and form. Although the legislation seeks to protect women and minorities from employer discrimination, it attempts to accomplish this by means that are neither just nor practical.

In the past, employees have been protected from discrimination by Title VII of the 1964 Civil Rights Act. The act stressed "make whole" relief, with remedies including reinstatement, back pay and attorney's fees. This latest bill, unfortunately, authorizes juries to award compensatory and punitive damages.

The problem with that provision has been demonstrated in the California legal system, where the number of cases involving "wrongful discharge" exploded after a 1980 trial in which the plaintiff was awarded punitive damages. According to a study of 223 cases between 1980 and 1987, the average jury award to a plaintiff was nearly $500,000 dollars. Growing numbers of these cases were clogging already overcrowded court dockets — until last year, when the state Supreme Court eliminated the possibility of awarding punitive damages. Interestingly, with the restoration of "make whole" relief and the demise of the judicial jackpot, the number of "wrongful discharge" cases filed decreased dramatically.

Another problem with the Kennedy-Hawkins Bill is that it allows an employee to "prove" the existence of discriminatory practices without conclusive evidence, while simultaneously making it unreasonably difficult for an employer to meet the burden of proof necessary to defend himself.

For instance, an employee could bring a charge of discrimination with nothing more than a statistical showing of racial or gender disparity in the workforce. Even a demonstrably unqualified female or minority applicant who has not been hired and alleges bias has the right to sue for damages merely on the basis that the workforce he or she is applying for is not statistically representative of the local labor market.

The employer, then, is expected to prove more than lack of bias. It must prove that each and every provision of the company's employment policy is essential to the success of the business — a legal burden that is nearly impossible to meet. How does one prove, for example, that word of mouth hiring practices or the failure or desire to advertise in a particular newspaper is essential to company success? Even if such practices account for only a small fraction of the employees hired, the employer can be held responsible for defending them.

The fact that employers are virtually stripped of the possibility for self-defense unless they produce statistically balanced employee-labor force hiring ratios, coupled with the tendency of juries to award obscene punitive settlements, makes the incentive for corporate quotas powerful.

And a quota system is both unnecessary and dangerous. Demographics show that fewer workers are entering the work force, and that a growing number of them are women and minorities. These realities, combined with an increasingly competitive global marketplace, will help make racial and gender discrimination in the work place extremely unprofitable. An employer will have no choice but to hire the most qualified workers if it wishes to survive and prosper.

The danger lies in the fact that quotas force employers to consider skin color or gender when making hiring decisions. That is the very problem that women and minorities have been struggling against. Institutionalizing that kind of non-merit discrimination will go long way toward hindering the goal of real equality.

A grandstanding snipe hunt

It's not supposed to happen. The law serves to protect people equally, not to allow selective persecution. But as the pigs said in "Animal Farm," some are more equal than others.

Put yourself in this picture. A family reunion. Close to a hundred folks, some distant enough that you don't know them well. You figure it's OK. After all, you won't have to vouch for their character or be held accountable for their actions.

Someone in your family's finally done something right, because the location is Iowa prime. A lake, some streams, trees. A place in which to relax and be a kid again.

Your nephew's with you. So's your girlfriend (let's say you're engaged). The 9-year-old has full parental permission to be there. The three of you finally succumb to the temptation to jump into that lake without your clothes. Your girlfriend jumps last and decides to take a "bun shot" photo of you and the kid first. Cute. The relatives hoot and cheer.

In the sky, you note with some wonder the presence of two helicopters. You figure it's Iowa National Guard troops preparing to go after Saddam. Little do you know.

Now. Let me ask some personal questions. Do you ever happen to take an issue of Playboy with you when you're camping? What if the kid happened to latch onto one of your copies and stow it in his duffel bag? Let's say it happens. You haven't noticed it missing, and the early morning finds you in a hammock in swimming trunks. They're briefs. Abbreviated briefs. Everyone else is asleep, as far as you can tell. You're reading Playboy.

You glance up in time to see 18 squad cars coming down the lane to the campsite. In them are packed five assorted flavors of law enforcement officer, for a total of 31 troops. Represented are the FBI, the DCI (Iowa Division of Criminal Investigation), county and city sheriffs, and social agencies.

Are your hearts beating a little fast right now, men of Iowa? Think how happy your brother was to have a weekend alone with his wife when he knew his son would be in safe hands, having fun. Before you can make a dash for the motor home where he and your girlfriend sleep, cops surround you. You puzzle over the fact that they wear rubber gloves, and that only half of them wear badges.

While you ponder, they pull your nephew and fiancée out into the sun. The little guy is holding — you guessed it — a copy of Playboy. A cop asks if he "belongs" to you. You step forward in your briefs, nodding. Your photos). But much of the narrative relates what happened at the Elk Horn Ranch campground in Boone County, where 90 gay men experienced the raid. If you're any less upset because gays were involved, and gay equivalents to Playboy were found, stop reading. There's no hope for you. But remember. If it can happen to them, it can happen to you. As easily as I just described.

The worst part is that the allegations can't be undone. You read the stories last week. Consensual sex. Pornography. Drugs. Satanism. Division of Criminal Investigation Assistant Director Eugene Meyer, desperate to cover his over-exposed butt, claimed a victory for Iowa law enforcement. "I was glad we didn't find any more children." Wrong, Eugene. Because you didn't find sexually abused children there, you blew your shot at director on what has proven to be a grandstanding snipe hunt.

I want to know what the involved officials did to prevent real child abuse that day. I want them to tell me how hard they work, and how much sleep they lose, trying to save battered children from a system that gives abusive parents more chances than a cat — or a child — has lives. I want to hear them explain why it's so hard to wrest a kid from parents when she's half-dead from beatings, while it's so easy to take a kid from a queer. I want to know where they are when straight people go camping. Where are the choppers? The FBI? I want to know how they dare play politics with people's lives.

Oh. One of the Boone County campers was found in possession of pot. Sorry. I almost forgot. I don't want to distort facts here. One mustn't come across like a raving liberal. Thirty-one officers, 18 squad cars, two helicopters. One guy with pot. Stop the madness. Just say no.

hands curl into fists at his smirk. Listen, bastard. I don't know what you think, but I'm his uncle. That's what you think, but instinct tells you to swallow it. You do, but it burns going down. Another officer comes out waving the photo of you and the kid skinny-dipping. Cute. The relatives have stopped laughing.

The boy is turned over to the state human services division, held in custody and interrogated for three hours by social workers. How do you think he feels, being asked whether you or your fiancée have sexually abused him? How many times do they make him go over the dip in the lake? If this doesn't sicken you, wait. There's more. Before the day is out your brother and his wife are investigated for parental neglect.

You would be outraged to have innocent events from your camping weekend twisted into proof of your depravity. I added some specific events that heterosexual readers could relate to (the men's magazines, skinny-dipping, the taking of mildly embarrassing

Media distort South African news

On Feb. 2 of this year, South African President F.W. de Klerk announced sweeping changes in South Africa. We had all hoped that these promised changes would usher in a new era of peace and would lead to the dismantling of the apartheid state and the creation of a non-racial and democratic South Africa. It is now seven months later and the apartheid state is still very much intact, and the news from South Africa has been consistently bad. The political violence has reached unprecedented proportions and seems to be getting worse.

Not only has the news been distressing, but it has also been consistently distorted by the press in this country. It is a distortion of the facts to say that the political violence of the past two weeks has been an ethnic conflict between the Zulu Inkatha movement and the Buthelezi and Inkatha. Those news reports that claim Inkatha has popular support comparable to the support enjoyed by anti-apartheid groups such as the ANC or PAC are grossly misleading. Chief Buthelezi and Inkatha have lost a lot of support lately. Inkatha's general secretary Dr. Oscar Dhlomo resigned recently and has voiced strong criticism of the organization's ethnic policies.

To make sense out of the political chaos and human tragedy that is contemporary South Africa, we need to take a closer look at the contending political forces. On one side is the apartheid government, which has been reluctantly drawn to the negotiating table by the armed struggle, mass mobilization and international pressure. On the other side are the people's organizations such as the ANC, the PAC and the BCM, which are determined to bring about just political and economic dispensation.

But there are other players as well. The police force and elements of the military establishment do not want substantial changes and are pursuing their own political agenda. The white, right-wing groups have a similar agenda and are pursuing it through violence and the threat of violence. On the surface, Buthelezi and Inkatha might have a different agenda, but their violent pursuit of ethnicity puts them foursquare in the camp of those who want to retain the nightmare of apartheid. The police see this and support Inkatha's violence. The right wing sees it also, and it is now pursuing an alliance with Inkatha.

The present escalating violence will not end unless the South African government stops providing Inkatha with the resources to conduct its terror campaign. The government has responded to the crisis by giving police — who are part of the problem — sweeping powers of detention and interrogation. In short, de Klerk has gone back on some of his more important promises of Feb. 2.

The ANC has demonstrated its good will by suspending its 30-year-old armed struggle, and it is now time for the government to stop the violence emanating from its side — the violence from Inkatha and the South African police.

Obed Norman is the president of the UI's South African Students' Association. George Will's column will resume next week.

Guest Opinion

Obed Norman

Xhosas. The fact of the matter is that Gatsha Buthelezi's Inkatha movement has for the past five years been involved in a campaign of political violence against the ANC. In the Natal province, 5,000 people — virtually all of them Zulu and most of them supporters of the ANC — have lost their lives. In the late '70s, Inkatha killed five Zulu students in cold blood at the University of Zululand because they had protested the presence of Buthelezi on their campus. Although Inkatha is exclusively a Zulu organization, it does not enjoy the support of a majority of Zulus and it has been responsible for many more deaths of Zulus than non-Zulus.

Another distortion by the press is the representation of Inkatha as part of the anti-apartheid movement in South Africa. Inkatha has never been recognized by the ANC, the Pan Africanist Congress, the Black Consciousness Movement or any serious student of South African politics as part of the struggle against apartheid. Throughout its almost 20-year history, Inkatha has never taken part in any political campaign against the regime. Right now Inkatha is fighting to preserve the system of ethnic homelands that is the pillar of what is known as "grand apartheid." Inkatha's opposition to sanctions is another example of its subservience to the regime and the consistency with which it has served the regime's interests.

The power base of Inkatha is the KwaZulu ethnic homeland, which is a creation of the apartheid state. In KwaZulu, no person can obtain housing or employment without confessing allegiance to Gatsha

Redwood Summer

To the Editor:

In last week's article about the Earth First! benefit for Judi Bari there were several misrepresentations that need to be clarified ("Redwood trees discussed at benefit," Aug. 27, The Daily Iowan).

The article stated that an "Oakland, Ca., car bomb killed Earth First! activists Darryl Cherney and Judi Bari." The DI ran a correction on Aug. 29 stating "the two were seriously injured in the accident, but they were not killed." Bombings are not accidents, they are acts of terrorism!

The piece went on to say that tree spiking causes wood to split, rendering it worthless to timber companies. Tree spiking causes relatively little damage to trees, certainly less than that which results from cutting a tree down. It does damage saw blades, which are very expensive, and this is the reason timber companies will forgo cutting in an area where spiking has occurred.

The article also stated that spiking causes electrocution when logs are milled. This is news to Efers, the timber industry and millworkers and is not true.

The spiking of trees, although it was the crux of the DI article, was only an aside in a presentation that lasted 2 1/2 hours. The focus of the event was the destruction of redwoods, other old-growth and the ecosystems they are a part of. Redwoods once covered two million acres in California. There are now only 76,000 acres preserved on public lands. Many of these are in strips along highways. Since they are not a part of an old-growth forest, these trees are unable to retain moisture that rolls in from the coastal fog and, as a result, are dying. Sixteen thousand acres of redwoods are in private holdings; 11,000 of these belong to a company called Maxxam. Most of these are in pristine groves, unlike those on public lands.

Redwood Summer is an effort to preserve the redwoods on private lands and to stop the destructive timber industry practices that are ruining watersheds. It is also bringing attention to the exploitation and abuse of lumber workers by the industry. The industry claims that environmentalists are stopping cutting and causing the loss of jobs. But the industry itself is exporting raw logs to be milled in Japan, Korea and Mexico while it is closing mills in the United States.

At least five people from the Iowa City area have taken part in non-violent actions at Redwood Summer, including civil disobedience, demonstrations and occupations of old-growth. Tree spiking is not a part of Redwood Summer. Let the redwoods live!

Miss America Pageant enters new era

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. — Brains — and beauty — highlight this week's Miss America Pageant, heralding a new era in the 70-year-old contest better known for skin-tight swimsuits than generous college scholarships, promoters say.

Competitors for Miss America 1991 still spray glue on their swimsuits to prevent skin spillover and swab their teeth with petroleum jelly to ensure shiny smiles, but pageant executive director Leonard Horn said change is coming. Horn eliminated the competition photo opportunities featuring contestants in swimsuits this year and for a second straight year the swimsuit competition will account for 15 percent of pageant scoring, an all-time low.

"The swimsuit competition is our Achilles' heel," Horn said. "I find it difficult to rationalize putting a young college woman in a swimsuit and high-heel shoes. . . . But it would be folly for us to eliminate it unless we can find an acceptable alternative."

The search for such an alternative goes on, he said, adding the emphasis should not be on swimsuits, but rather on the $5 million in scholarships awarded at state and national levels.

Klan rally canceled due to protests

WASHINGTON — About 3,000 counterdemonstrators succeeded in forcing the Ku Klux Klan to call off its planned march through the capital, but Klansmen are vowing to return next Labor Day.

But robbed and hooded members of the Mount Holly, N.C.-based Christian Knights of the Ku Klux Klan still held a brief rally on the U.S. Capitol steps Sunday as a mob, held several blocks away by police, shouted protests.

Police escorted about 46 members of the white supremacist group to the Capitol while a crowd estimated by police at 3,000 attempted to move into the area.

Officials said the Klansmen called off their planned march after learning that counterdemonstrators were blocking the route.

"Officials conferred with the Klan and they were advised . . . anti-Klan protesters were blocking the roadway and it would be difficult, if not impossible, for the Klan to march through there," District of Columbia police spokeswoman Shannon Crockett said.

A Klan leader promised his group would return.

"We are coming back," Christian Knights Grand Dragon Horace King said.

New Kid scuffles for a plane seat

ATLANTA — New Kids on the Block member Donnie Wahlberg got into a scuffle with a fellow passenger over an airline seat during a weekend flight from Salt Lake City to Atlanta, authorities said Monday.

A police report said Wahlberg, 20, fought with the man in the coach section of Delta Air Lines Flight 1140 after it left Salt Lake City on Sunday.

Wahlberg, who had been sitting in the first-class section of the plane, went to visit with members of his entourage sitting in the coach section. He departed briefly, then returned to resume his conversation and found the seat he had used was taken by the passenger, the police report said.

The two began fighting. The report alleged Wahlberg poked the passenger in the eye and passenger allegedly responded by kicking Wahlberg in the stomach.

The passenger was treated for minor injuries at South Fulton Medical Center and released. He declined to file charges against Wahlberg, the police report said.

There was no comment Monday from Wahlberg; calls to his agent were not answered.

Crime hits 1 out of 4 U.S. homes

By Carolyn Skorneck
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A violent crime or property crime hit one in four U.S. households last year, virtually the same level as the past five years, a Justice Department report said Sunday.

"In 1975, when this statistical series commenced, about one in three households was struck by crime," said Steven Dillingham, director of the Bureau of Justice Statistics, which produced the report.

The actual percentage of households that suffered a violent crime or property crime was 24.9 percent, up slightly from 24.6 percent in 1988, the report found. The figures include attempted as well as completed crimes.

A total of 23.5 million households suffered from one of the crimes checked: rape, assault, robbery, personal theft, household theft, burglary and motor vehicle theft.

The bureau's figures come from the National Crime Survey, which annually interviews members of 49,000 households nationwide to determine crimes to household members who are at least 12 years old.

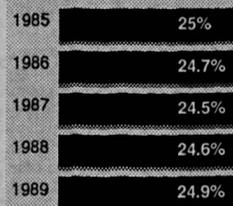

A total of 4.9 percent of households experienced a violent crime, with 3.9 percent suffering assault, 1 percent robbery and 0.1 percent rape, the survey found.

Jerry's 25th telethon honors Sammy Davis

The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — A tearful Jerry Lewis remembered the late Sammy Davis Jr. Monday during Lewis' 25th telethon to raise money to fight muscular dystrophy.

Weeping, the comedian narrated a tribute to Davis, who appeared at the Muscular Dystrophy Association telethon for 13 years, including last year while suffering from the cancer that killed him. On Sunday, Lewis dedicated the telethon to his friend.

"There is only one reason why he isn't here with us this year, and that is the only thing that could have kept him away," Lewis said Monday. "When you knew him, you knew that God made something special."

The Labor Day telethon changed settings this year, moving to Hollywood after 17 years in Las Vegas. Producers said they wanted to cut costs and update the telethon's image.

holds suffered from some kind of theft, including 11.2 percent personal theft and 8.1 percent household theft; 5.1 percent suffered from a burglary; and 1.6 percent motor vehicle theft.

Among the survey's findings were that like previous years, households headed by blacks, urban households and households with higher incomes suffered a higher percentage of crimes than other population segments.

The Las Vegas shows raised millions in pledges, with last year's tally a record $42.2 million to fight 40 neuromuscular diseases that kill and cripple thousands of people annually.

In 17 years in Las Vegas, Lewis has raised more than half a billion dollars.

While donors phoned in pledges to the studio on Sunset Boulevard, several protesters marched outside, demanding greater accountability of the money.

John Neunzer, 25, sat in a wheelchair with a sign saying: "Once Jerry's kid, now a forgotten adult." He said he was a poster child for the 1975 Labor Day telethon.

Gary Cifra, a spokesman for Alliance for Research Accountability, said he has tried unsuccessfully to get the telethon's annual financial reports.

A phone call from The Associated Press Monday to the MDA's New York headquarters was unanswered.

on Tuesday for briefings on developments in the Persian Gulf.

On Thursday, the president was to travel to Topeka, Kan., and Tallahassee, Fla., to help raise funds for Republican candidates.

The trip was expected to give Bush a chance to use a newly delivered Air Force One for the first time. The new plane, a converted Boeing 747, is much larger than the current planes used for Air Force One — a pair of Boeing 707s that are more than 20 years old.

Bush was then to take the new plane to Helsinki and back.

With only a week's advance notice on the summit, White House aides had little time to work out logistics.

"Everybody's scrambling to put their pieces together," one official said.

Sig Rogich, who oversees White House advance logistics and image-making, ended his vacation early on Sunday to coordinate the planning.

Meanwhile, the Rev. Jesse Jackson returned from Iraq on Sunday with 47 freed American hostages after he met for six hours with Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein.

The civil rights leader and former Democratic presidential aspirant urged Bush to pursue a diplomatic solution to reverse Iraq's takeover of Kuwait and cautioned against relying solely on military pressure.

"Just as our generals are in Saudi Arabia with a military presence, our politicians should be as evident in seeking diplomatic solutions," he said on NBC-TV's "Today" on Monday.

Jackson, who met with Jordan's Crown Prince Hassan as well as the Iraqi president, said a diplomatic solution must "regain the sovereignty of Kuwait, assure the security of Saudi Arabia and assure the integrity of Iraq." He called for an end to the "drum-beating hostile rhetoric."

Jackson, in an interview on ABC-TV's "Good Morning America," said he challenged Saddam on his takeover of Kuwait, saying the annexation and his threats against Saudi Arabia were errors.

proposal for public discussion.

Gorbachev and Yeltsin have clashed repeatedly over Yeltsin's demands for faster reform and control of the Russian republic's plentiful resources. Recently, however, they have been trying to find common ground.

"The people are ready for change," Yeltsin told Russian Legislators Monday, shortly before sending them home to read the two-inch-thick proposal, accompanied by an equally weighty package of draft legislation to implement the reform. "Poverty and misery are widespread," he said.

The Soviet economy is plagued with severe shortages of nearly everything, from gasoline to paper and cigarettes. In the last several days, the problem has affected the supply of bread, the usually plentiful staple for Soviets.

Yeltsin set an ambitious schedule calling for five days of debate in the Russian Legislature and a vote on the fundamental reform Sept. 11. That agenda would leave the national Legislature in the dust because it does not open its session until Sept. 10.

"Russia gives the impulse for change to the entire country," Yeltsin told his Legislature. "The center can no longer ignore this and discard everything done by us."

But he added that Gorbachev is increasingly willing to understand the republic's proposals and to act together.

A joint Gorbachev-Yeltsin economic commission is scheduled to meet Tuesday to try to forge a single plan that could be adopted by both the Russian and Soviet parliaments, Yeltsin said.

So far, Gorbachev has favored combining parts of the Russian proposal with a purely economic program suggested by Soviet Prime Minister Nikolai Ryzhkov.

Yeltsin's plan is dubbed "500 days" for the time it provides to switch to a market economy. It calls for immediate action on reforms that Gorbachev's government has only mentioned, or postponed years into the future.

"People will be given the opportunity to participate actively in the economy, to buy bakeries, laundries, stores, repair shops and other things that the future state should not bother with," said Russian Prime Minister Ivan Silaev in introducing the plan to the Legislature.

Stuart case raises legal issue

By Tony Rogers
The Associated Press

BOSTON — The answers to the case in which a man concocted a story about a robber shooting him and his pregnant wife may never be known unless the state's highest court overrules attorney-client privilege.

The husband, Charles Stuart, has since committed suicide, and prosecutors are asking the court to force Stuart's attorney to disclose conversations they had before the hoax unraveled.

It may provide the only break for prosecutors considering charges against Stuart's brother, who says he was an unwitting accomplice.

Attorneys for the Stuart family will contend in hearings set for this week that the attorney-client privilege remain intact. And although prosecutors will argue the privilege should be overridden in the interest of justice, some legal observers say that is shaky ground at best.

"There's not much precedent for this," said Phyllis Goldfarb, a professor at the Boston College Law School.

Carol Stuart, 30, was shot in the head on the night of Oct. 23, minutes after she and her husband drove away from a prenatal class at Brigham and Women's Hospital.

Wounded himself, Stuart called police and guided them to his location using his car's cellular telephone. His dramatic, anguished plea for help over the telephone was widely broadcast. Carol Stuart died hours after the attack; her prematurely delivered son died 17 days after that.

Stuart claimed a black man had kidnapped them, forced them to drive to a deserted area, robbed and then shot them. Many saw the incident as a symbol of urban crime.

Then, on Jan. 3, Matthew Stuart went to authorities and implicated his brother in the shooting. Charles Stuart leaped to his death from a bridge the next day.

Nearly a year after the crime, the grand jury investigating the case has stalled over whether Matthew Stuart's role was really that of an unwitting accomplice as he claimed.

Prosecutors want the privilege broken, in order to learn whether Stuart told his lawyer, John Dawley, that Matthew was involved in a plot to kill Carol Stuart and cover up the crime by staging a fake robbery.

According to a judge's memorandum, the grand jury was told that Matthew was to meet his brother at a predetermined location Oct. 23 to get items that later would be claimed to have been stolen, and an insurance claim would be filed. The grand jury, according to the report, was told Matthew pulled alongside his brother's car and talked to him, but was not aware his brother was wounded or that Carol Stuart was in the car.

Matthew told police his brother passed him several items, including a handgun. He said he dropped the gun and a woman's handbag into the Pines River in Revere.

The items were later recovered and the gun was identified as the one used to shoot the Stuarts.

At a hearing in April, Assistant District Attorney Thomas Mundy said Matthew Stuart was a potential target of the grand jury investigation, and indicated Dawley's testimony could shed light on Matthew's possible role in the case.

On Friday, prosecutors will argue before the Supreme Judicial Court that the public interest mandates that Dawley break his deceased client's confidentiality and tell what he knows.

"We are arguing in the interests of justice," said Paul Leary, first assistant district attorney for Suffolk County.

"We feel as though there's a compelling interest that if we can gain whatever additional information Dawley may have, justice will be served," he added.

Rape 101.

If you think rape can't happen to you, you're in for a real education.

Because statistics show that rape happens more to women in your age group than any other. In fact, this year, one out of six college women will be the victim of rape or attempted rape. Very often by someone she knows. A fellow student. Even a date.

And that's a crime. Because any time a woman is forced to have sex against her will it's a felony.

Rape. It's a subject no one should take lightly.

Graf teaches Capriati lesson with 6-1, 6-2 win in U.S. Open

By Steve Wilstein
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Steffi Graf sent Jennifer Capriati back to school with a lesson she'll never forget, a two-set course in playing like a champion in the U.S. Open.

Graf, the two-time defending champ, played almost perfectly Monday to defeat the 14-year-old 6-1, 6-2 in 53 minutes.

Boris Becker, the men's defending champion and Graf's West German compatriot, played for more than three hours before finding a way to beat Australian Darren Cahill, 2-6, 6-2, 6-3, 3-6, 6-4, and gain the quarters.

America's top player, fourth-seeded Andre Agassi, had an easy time getting to the quarters, beating Jay Berger 7-5, 6-0, 6-2.

Graf next goes against 12th-seeded Jana Novotna, who beat No. 7 Katerina Maleeva 6-4, 6-2. Fourth-seeded Zina Garrison also advanced to the quarters, beating Nathalie Tauziat of France 6-1, 7-5. Garrison will meet Arantxa Sanchez Vicario, a 6-4, 6-3 winner over Barbara Paulus.

Graf's victory came on the same day when she was ranked No. 1 for the 160th straight week, a record for both men and women.

It was obvious early in the first set, when Capriati seemed tentative and her usually solid forehands and backhands floated long or into the net, that she was suffering a case of stage fright.

"At the beginning I couldn't hit a ball," said Capriati, overly excited "just going out there knowing that you're on the stadium court, and everybody's going to be out there watching."

Capriati had said before the match that she was "psyched up" and ready to attack Graf. She said she told herself at the start of play, "keep moving, attack a lot, serve well."

But nothing came. Instead, she stood and watched Graf as if trying to record in her memory how she plays.

"If you don't lose, you don't learn," Capriati said. "Every match you lose, you learn something from it. At first, I wasn't doing anything, not making shots, not coming to the net. Next time I can't let that happen. She's definitely still at another level."

"I think there was a lot of pressure on her. I think she was tight," Graf said. "She didn't play as well as she can play. I expected a tough, hard-fought match."

Capriati, who reached the semifinals at the French Open in her first year as a pro, acknowledged she was disappointed with the loss but said she looked forward to her next performance.

"This is not the end of the world for me," she said. "I'll think about it, and continue on to the next tournament. I know now how it is to play in a Grand Slam. I learned so much, just playing one match. I think I've done well, mainly getting experience."

After Capriati held service at 1-1, she won only seven points the rest of the set. Graf roamed the baseline as if she ruled it, and only rarely approached the net. Yet on those occasions, too, she dominated, putting the ball away on three of five approaches in the first set and six of nine in the second set.

Graf's first serve was a big weapon as well, flat and hard and deep enough to back up Capriati and keep her from moving in.

Graf got off to a 3-0 lead with two breaks in the second set, before Capriati broke her for the only time in the match with a forehand down the line.

The teen-ager held at love to cut Graf's lead to 3-2 and achieved two break points on Graf's next serve. But Graf held after four deuces, and broke Capriati for the final time.

Becker and Cahill engaged in a 3-hour, 14-minute dogfight in which the momentum changed repeatedly.

Thirteenth seed Jennifer Capriati fights off a shot from top seed Steffi Graf during their U.S. Open match Monday. Graf defeated Capriati 6-1, 6-2 at the National Tennis Center in New York.

Cahill, who beat a limping Becker here two years ago, won eight straight points in the fourth and fifth games of the first set as he weathered Becker's hard serves, and sometimes wild shots.

"It took awhile until I found my rhythm," Becker said. "It was a little bit windy, especially in the beginning. I started to serve better in the second set and then every set it got better."

Becker, screaming at himself in German, came back strongly in the second set, breaking Cahill three times, and seemed back in control of the match.

The difference in the fifth set, said Cahill, was "I played a couple of loose volleys at the wrong time, and I think he served a lot better. He picked up his game a bit in the fifth set."

Hawkeyes start with three wins

By Jay Nanda
The Daily Iowan

According to what Iowa field hockey player Kris Fillat had heard from some people, there was supposed to be a big contrast between last year's Final Four team and this year's unit. But if this past weekend is any indication, the similarities may outweigh the differences.

And that's good news for Hawkeye fans.

Iowa sports a 3-0 record as a result of their play in St. Louis against Maine, Southwest Missouri and Miami of Ohio.

The Hawkeyes showed no signs of losing five all-American seniors as they outscored their opponents 14-2, the latest of which was Monday's 5-1 drubbing of Miami.

The game was nip and tuck for most of the opening half until Hawkeye sophomore Kristy Gleason netted a penalty corner at the 31:47 mark, thanks to assists from juniors Lisa Sweeney and Kerry Horgan.

Coach Beth Beglin's squad then broke the game open in the second stanza.

"In the first half we played well," Beglin said, "but we weren't aggressive enough at finishing the play. In the second half, I was pleased. Other people took responsibility upon themselves and we had others in the scoring column besides Kristy and Kris."

One of those other players was Horgan, who tallied her initial goal of the season on a pass from Sweeney at 7:42 of the second period, to make the count 2-0.

Sweeney then took matters into her own hands on what Beglin called "a beautiful goal," when she stripped a Redskin defender of the ball, dribbled down the left side of the field and deposited the ball over goalie Katie Kunisch and into the net.

Fillat, assisted by Jibs Thorson, then made it 4-0 at the 21:45 mark before Miami's Beth Abbot was able to get one past Hawkeye goalie Eileen Moyer with 2:38 left in the game. But Gleason got that back 1:36 later to account for the final 5-1 margin. Iowa outshot the Redskins 38-2.

Prior to Monday, Iowa defeated the Bears of Southwest Missouri by a score of 3-1.

Once again, Gleason staked Iowa to a 1-0 lead when she scored an unassisted goal at 9:32 of the opening period.

Fillat then made it 2-0 at the 32:43 mark, with the help of Sweeney, and that's the way it stayed for the first half.

The Bears made a game of things at the 16:14 mark of period two when Stacy Winkler scored off a feed from Karen Heman. But Gleason made everything academic with 5:09 left, with assists going to Sweeney and Horgan.

Iowa recorded 17 total shots and 10 penalty corners, while Southwest Missouri could only muster two total shots and a single penalty corner.

Going into the weekend, Beglin had anticipated the Blackbears of Maine to be her team's strongest opponent. However, Maine turned out to be just what the doctor ordered, as the Hawkeyes stomped past them for a season-opening 6-0 win on Friday.

Gleason, Fillat and defense told the story of this game, as Iowa registered 32 total shots, 16 pen-

Hawks blanked in California

By Brian Gaul
The Daily Iowan

California's nationally-ranked volleyball teams lived up to their preseason billing as Iowa coach Ruth Nelson's squad lost matches to No. 12 Long Beach State, No. 10 UC-Santa Barbara and No. 16 San Diego State on a West Coast road trip last weekend.

Iowa opened with losses to Long Beach State — the defending national champions — and UC-Santa Barbara in the Long Beach State Baden Beach Blowout Friday and Saturday. The Hawkeyes' overall record then dropped to 0-3 after a four-game defeat at the hands of San Diego State in San Diego Sunday.

Coach Brian Gimmillaro's Long Beach State team, which defeated Nebraska in three games in last season's national championship match, downed the Hawkeyes in similar fashion Friday. The 49ers won, 15-12, 15-10, 15-10 in the season opener for both teams.

"We actually should have won one of those games," Nelson said. "I expected us to go 3-1 with Long Beach State."

Senior setter Janet Moylan led the Hawkeyes with a .364 attack percentage against the 49ers, while middle hitter Barb Willis and outside hitter Ginger Lorentson each hit .300.

In a strong all-around performance, Long Beach State's Antoinette White hit .364 with 17 kills, 14 digs and five service aces.

"We played a pretty good match for the first game of the season," 49ers coach Brian Gimmillaro said in a press release. "We beat a talented team in three straight."

The Hawkeyes had what Nelson called "the best hitting we've had here" in the first game against UC-Santa Barbara Saturday, but lost both the game and the match, 15-13, 15-10, 14-16, 15-5. The Gauchos first game win came despite a .463 attack percentage by the Hawkeyes.

Willis led the Iowa team by hitting at a .278 pace, with Lorentson, .273, and senior Trista Schoenbeck, .250, close behind. Defensively, Moylan and senior Jenny Rees had 17 and 14 digs, respectively, for the Hawkeyes.

Junior Victoria Allen led the Gauchos with a .438 hitting percentage and freshman Holly Racine, a high school all-American, hit .335. Outside hitter Maria Reyes recorded 18 digs and six service aces for UC-Santa Barbara.

The Hawkeyes concluded the road trip with a 8-15, 15-7, 15-3, 15-13 loss to San Diego State at the Atzec's Peterson Gym in San Diego, Calif. Sunday.

San Diego State controlled the Hawkeyes defensively throughout the match, holding them to a .174 attack percentage. The Aztecs outhit the Iowa, 59-54, behind Gracie Schutt and Angela Martin, who each recorded a match-high 18 kills.

Lorentson and Moylan recorded identical hitting statistics, each hitting .429 with four kills, but the Aztecs kept Iowa's big hitters in check. Rees had 16 kills while hitting only .265, Willis had 13 kills but hit only .176, and Schoenbeck recorded 10 kills but an .087 percentage.

The Hawkeyes also hurt themselves with attack errors, committing 31 to San Diego State's 20, and were blocked 32 times. Iowa had 12 blocks.

The Hawkeyes will return to their home state this weekend for the Big Four Tournament in Ames Friday and Saturday. Iowa will face Iowa State and Drake will play Northern Iowa Friday night in the tournament which determines the state champion.

Stewart, Bell receive preseason acclaim

DI wire services

The Iowa football season has yet to begin, but already there is talk of honors for some of the Hawkeyes.

Senior Nick Bell is No. 4 in a list of 50 top NFL prospects selected by the National Scouting Combine, which rates college players for the 1991 draft.

Ahead of the 255-pound Hawkeye running back are Todd Lyght, Notre Dame cornerback; Reggie Barrett, Texas-El Paso wide receiver; and Mel Agee, Illinois defensive tackle. Fifth is Iowa State tailback Blaise Bryant.

Sportsbriefs

Tony Stewart, the only Iowa sophomore who has run for 1,000 yards, has been nominated for the 1990 Doak Walker Award, which goes to the top running back in college football. Stewart rushed for 1,036 yards before being knocked out of action with a knee injury in 1988.

Iowa coach Hayden Fry also has his say in the presentation of one honor this year.

Fry has been named to the committee which will nominate and select the winner of the 1990 Lombardi Award, which goes annually to the nation's top lineman. The award is sponsored by the Houston Rotary Club and is named for the legendary Vince Lombardi. Announcement date of the winner is Dec. 6.

Super Abound, making the most of a 12-pound advantage in the weights, beat Kentucky Derby winner Unbridled by three-quarters of a length in the Secretariat Stakes at Arlington International Racecourse in Chicago on Monday.

Super Abound was coupled in the betting with Unbridled, his stablemate, so the order of finish made no difference to those in the crowd of 21,112 who made the entry the favorite.

"Unbridled ran a super race, considering it was his first start on turf," trainer Carl Nafzger said. "And he carried 126 pounds, compared to 114 on Super Abound, and was brushed a bit at the start."

Super Abound, who earned $150,000 from the $250,000 purse, went 1 1/4 miles in 2:01 3/5 in winning the 16th edition of the Secretariat.

Super Abound, bred by Mrs. Genter in Minnesota, is believed to be the first horse from that state to win a Grade I stakes.

Beth Daniel shot a 5-under-par 67 on Monday in Springfield, Ill., and beat Susan Sanders by three shots for her second straight Rail Charity Classic title and her fourth victory in the last five LPGA tournaments.

Daniel's $45,000 share of the $300,000 purse increased her earnings for the year to a record $658,782. Betsy King set the previous record of $654,132 last year.

Daniel birdied the first two holes on Monday, added a birdie at No. 6 to turn at 11-under, then birdied 12 and 13. A bogey at 14 was offset by a birdie at 17. She finished at 203, 13-under for three rounds over the 6,403-yard Rail Golf Course.

"My 4-iron on the second hole was my best shot of the day," said Daniel, who came within one stroke of breaking JoAnne Carner's 1982 tournament record of 14-under-par.

"On the front nine I didn't hit the ball real solid, but I got it worked out and started hitting it good on the back nine," Daniel said.

Fielder, Terrell help Tigers top Blue Jays

The Associated Press

DETROIT — Cecil Fielder hit his 43rd home run and Walt Terrell pitched seven innings of four-hit ball as the Detroit Tigers beat Toronto 5-0 Monday, snapping the Blue Jays' four-game winning streak.

Terrell (4-2), who has won four of his last five starts, didn't allow a hit until the fourth. He struck out five and walked none to improve his Tiger Stadium record to 38-13.

"I always seem to pitch well in this ballpark and I don't know why," Terrell said. "If I knew, I'd sure as hell take it on the road with me. It would be great if you could put it down in Anaheim and places like that."

Fielder, leading off the sixth, hit the first pitch about 10 rows up the second deck in left field to make it 3-0. It was his fourth homer off Jimmy Key (9-7) this season and 112th RBI of the year.

Pirates 4, Phillies 1
PITTSBURGH — Doug Drabek won his 18th game by tossing a four-hitter to pitch the Pittsburgh Pirates past the Phillies 4-1 on Monday.

Drabek (18-5), improving to 9-1 since the All-Star break, has pitched three complete-game victories over the Phillies this season, allowing just seven hits and two earned runs (0.67 ERA) in 27 innings.

Trying to become only the Pirates' third 20-game winner in the last 31 seasons, Drabek is 42-19 after the All-Star break in his career and has yielded six earned runs in 37 1/3 innings for a 1.19 ERA while going 4-0 in his last five starts.

"(Manager) Jim Leyland doesn't know how lucky he is to have a guy he can run out there every five days like Doug Drabek," Phillies manager Nick Leyva said. "He's outstanding. When he can get his breaking ball over for strikes like he did today, he might be the best pitcher in the league right now."

Mets 9, Cardinals 3
ST. LOUIS — Dwight Gooden gave up six hits over seven innings to win for the 12th time in his last 13 decisions and Kevin McReynolds drove in four runs as New York beat St. Louis for its seventh straight victory.

Gooden (15-6) struck out five and walked two before Wally White-hurst relieved to start the seventh. Whitehurst finished, giving up three runs and three hits in the ninth.

McReynolds drove in the Mets' first run in the fourth inning with a double and hit his 20th home run with two on in the ninth. Former Cardinal Tom Herr and Darryl Strawberry added three hits each for the Mets, who are 10-5 against St. Louis this season.

Braves 8, Reds 6

ATLANTA — Consecutive doubles by Tommy Gregg and Andres Thomas broke a seventh-inning tie as Atlanta beat Cincinnati for its fourth straight victory.

With two outs in the seventh and the score 6-6, Gregg doubled against Tim Layana (5-2) and altry corners and two penalty strokes. Moyer recorded her first shutout of the season in the process. The scoring was equally divided, as Gleason and Fillat each had hat tricks. Gleason added an assist, while Sweeney and Horgan had two assists each. For the entire three games, Fillat netted five goals, while Gleason tallied seven goals and one assist, Sweeney recorded one goal and six assists, and Horgan had one goal and five assists. Thomas followed with a double. Jim Vatcher added an RBI single. Mark Grant (2-2), who gave up two hits in four scoreless innings, got the victory in relief of starter Steve Avery, who yielded six runs and seven hits in three innings. Jeff Parrett worked two innings for his second save. Expos 3, Cubs 2 MONTREAL—Andres Galarraga singled home Delino DeShields from third base with two outs in the 12th inning to lift Montreal past Chicago. DeShields opened the 12th with a single off Randy Kramer (0-2) and was sacrificed to second by Otis a team because in practice, we don't have enough people for a full scrimmage," Horgan said. "It was just a matter of getting used to each other. The defense played real well (against Miami). "I don't know if Maine was intimidated but they played better the rest of the weekend," Beglin said. "But everybody gets up to play us. For them, playing Iowa is the highlight of their season." Horgan also said that Iowa's stamina played a key role in her team's handling of the weather in St. Louis. "Although we knew that these

St. Louis catcher Tom Pagnozzi makes the tag on New York right fielder Darryl Strawberry, but forgets to bring the ball, during the Mets' 9-3 win over the Cardinals Monday.

Nixon before moving to third on a single by Marquis Grissom. Grissom went to second on Tim Walker's grounder and Larry Walker, a .238 hitter, was walked intentionally before Galarraga singled up the middle. Angels 7, Yankees 0 NEW YORK — Kirk McCaskill, coming off a shutout, pitched six scoreless innings and California broke a tie with a six-run sixth inning, as the Angels defeated New York in Dave Winfield's return to Yankee Stadium. It was Winfield's first appearance at Yankee Stadium since being traded from the club in a contro-versal deal in mid-May. Winfield went 0-for-4 but scored the Angels' first run after drawing a leadoff walk. Mariners 6, Orioles 2 BALTIMORE — Matt Young gave up two runs over seven innings as the Seattle Mariners beat Baltimore, sending the Orioles to their ninth loss in 10 games. Young (7-14) yielded five hits and has surrendered only four earned runs in 21 innings against the Orioles this season. Bill Swift worked two innings and Mike Jackson got the last three outs. Every starter reached base for the both," she said. "We definitely need to work on that." The Hawkeyes, who ran their regular-season unbeaten string to 27 games, will get their chance to show how much they've improved in that department when they square off against Ball State in Friday's home opener at 3:00. And as far as Horgan is concerned, the team's confidence level couldn't be much higher. "We know they're both real good opponents," she said. "But we know we're Iowa and we know what we're facing."

Summer Squall wins Pennsylvania Derby

By Ralph Bernstein
The Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA — Summer Squall, returning to racing after a 14-week vacation, rallied from dead last on the first turn to win the $300,000 Pennsylvania Derby at Philadelphia Park on Monday.

Summer Squall had only two horses beaten midway through the backstretch, but jockey Pat Day finally got the Preakness winner running and won handily by 3 1/4 lengths.

Challenge My Duty, longest shot on the board and ridden by Innocencio Ayarza, finished second by one length over Sports View, handled by Mike Smith and trained by D. Wayne Lukas. Tees Prospect was fourth.

Day said Summer Squall was hit coming out of the gate and it took the jockey a quarter-mile to steady him.

The victory was the ninth in 11 career starts for the colt, who earned $180,000 and boosted his career earnings to $1,510,978.

Summer Squall, winner of the Preakness after running second to Unbridled in the Kentucky Derby, ran 1 1/4 miles in 1:48 1-5 under top weight of 123 pounds.

Mr. Nasty jumped into the lead at the break, attended closely by It's Always You and Charles Whim.

Mr. Nasty set the pace through three quarters, with Zalipour and Runaway Stream moving into second and third.

Day finally got Summer Squall running as the field of nine raced into the far turn, and Summer Squall bolted into the lead at the top of the stretch.

Challenge My Duty and Sports View followed the favorite, but never had a chance once Summer Squall took over. The winner moved away easily.

Summer Squall, owned by a 28-member consortium and representing Dogwood Stable, next heads for Louisiana and the $1 million Super Derby on Sept. 23.

Cot Campbell, president of Dogwood Stable, has indicated that he'll then take Summer Squall to the Breeders' Cup Classic at Belmont Park in New York Oct. 27.

Campbell and trainer Neil Howard said they no longer were concerned about the New York Racing Association's ban of Lasix, a diuretic used to control respiratory bleeding. Summer Squall skipped the Belmont Stakes in June because of the Lasix ban. He ran on Lasix in the Pennsylvania Derby.

The 1-5 favorite returned a winning mutual of $2.60, smallest for this race since Smarten returned the same figure in the Derby's inaugural in 1979.

MacPhail says Vincent should support White

The Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA — Former American League President Lee MacPhail said Commissioner Fay Vincent should have stayed out of the dispute between National League President Bill White and the league's umpires.

"The commissioner should never in a million years have gotten involved," MacPhail was quoted as saying in Monday's editions of The Philadelphia Inquirer.

"In on-field matters of this nature, the league president has full and complete authority," MacPhail said. "The commissioner should have said, 'I support Bill White 1,000 percent in this case,' and left it at that."

White criticized umpire Joe West for his ejection of the Phillies' Von Hayes on Aug. 22. West, umpiring first base, overheard Hayes complain to first-base coach John Vukovich that plate umpire Harry Wendlestedt had made a bad call on a pitch.

West ejected Hayes, causing a controversy in which the Phillies claimed the umpire was biased against them.

White, West, and umpire's union chief Richie Phillips met Tuesday to settle the matter.

"I left that meeting with the idea that everything would remain quiet," White said.

But after the meeting, West claimed that White supported his action. White disputed the umpire's version of the meeting and publicly criticized the ejection. "Maybe I could have corrected it with a pistol," White told the Inquirer, "but I decided to do it with a cannon instead."

That's when the umpires union asked Vincent to enter the dispute. Phillips said the group turned to Vincent "because of our belief in the integrity of the office and, in particular, Commissioner Vincent."

MacPhail, AL president from 1974 to 1983, said then-commissioner Bowie Kuhn never got involved in disputes with umpires.

"There were thousands — millions — of problems with the umpires association," he told the newspaper. "But they were handled discreetly, without the involvement of the commissioner."

White, who has threatened to quit unless Vincent supports him, said he watched videotapes of the incident and checked with everyone involved — including Eddie Murray who was playing first base for the Dodgers when the ejection occurred.

"I said, 'Eddie, what did Hayes say to get thrown out?'" White told the Inquirer. "He told me, 'Bill, let me tell you something. Joe West is a good umpire, but his attitude is bad.'"

"So here are three guys (Murray, Hayes and Vukovich) telling you the same thing. And if you look at the tape, when Murray finds out Hayes has been thrown out, he acts like he can't believe it."

Big-name veterans dropped as NFL makes its final cuts

By Dave Goldberg
The Associated Press

Alonzo Highsmith went to Dallas and Joe Morris, Eric Wright, Keena Turner, Gary Hogeboom, Matt Bahr and Cris Carter into limbo Monday as NFL teams cut down to the 47-man roster limit.

Highsmith, the Oilers' No. 1 draft pick in 1987, was underutilized in an offense that had four players competing for one position.

He was sent to his college coach, Jimmy Johnson, for some of the high draft picks the Cowboys got for Herschel Walker and fills the running back void Dallas has had since Walker left last season.

Some of the other big names were just waived, although some could be recalled — many teams cut players, then re-claim them after they clear waivers. And one player finally got to join his team, defensive tackle Cortez Kennedy, the third player taken in the draft, who signed with Seattle.

"This is the worst day of the year in football," said New York Giants linebacker Gary Reasons. "It's hard to see guys you've been friends with a long time let go. It will happen to all of us one day."

The Raiders, for example, were left with only one quarterback, Jay Schroeder, after cutting Vince Evans and Jeff Francis. However, they signed holdout Steve Buerlein, got a roster exemption for him, and may bring back one of their cuts later.

And Dallas waived Keith Willis, its only kicker but hoped to bring him back if no one else grabs him within 24 hours.

"We hope Willis is not claimed," Johnson said. "We looked at our roster to see where we are safest. We should be able to re-obtain rights to these players tomorrow."

Detroit waived three running backs, leaving only Barry Sanders.

"I wouldn't be surprised if you see a few of these guys back here in the future," coach Wayne Fontes said.

Fontes might look at Morris, the Giants' all-time leading rusher who was caught in a glut of running backs that includes top pick Rodney Hampton and Lewis Tillman.

49ers who played on all four Super Bowl winners. The others are quarterback Joe Montana, safety Ronnie Lott and wide receiver Mike Wilson.

"I still feel that I can play," Turner said.

Other released were Carter, who caught 45 passes for Philadelphia last season, 11 for touchdowns; Eagles reserve quarterback Matt Cavanaugh, Hogeboom, Phoenix' only veteran quarterback, Buford Jordan, New Orleans' starting fullback the past four years; linebacker Rickey Hunley by the Raiders, running backs Darrin Nelson, Thomas Sanders and Tim Spencer by San Diego and quarterback Mark Herrmann by the Rams.

Dallas cut three running backs it recently acquired — Timmy Smith, who rushed for a record 205 yards for Washington in the 1988 Super Bowl and former No. 1 picks Terrence Flagger and Lorenzo Hampton.

Donald Igwebuike, Tampa Bay's all-time leading scorer, lost his job to free agent Steve Christie. The Bucs also cut Lars Tate, their leading rusher the last two years. Bahr, the 11-year kicker for the Browns, was beaten out by Jerry Kauric, a Canadian league veteran. He took an injury settlement because of a back injury suffered against Green Bay in an exhibition.

Cleveland also cut quarterback Pat Ryan, linebackers Clifford Charlton and Larry McGrew and defensive end Daryl Sims.

The New York Jets traded fullback Roger Vick, a three-year starter, to Philadelphia for draft choices. The Jets also named Ken O'Brien the starting quarterback over Tony Eason and the Bears designated Jim Harbaugh to start ahead of Mike Tomczak.

But he really lost out to 33-year-old Ottis Anderson, kept because he's a better receiver, blocker and short-yardage runner. Last year, Anderson rushed for more than 1,000 yards after Morris broke a foot in the last game of the preseason.

"I think Joe Morris has made a very significant and continuous contribution to this club, and to the Bill Parcells regime," coach Bill Parcells said of Morris, who rushed for 5,296 yards in eight years. "In the length of time that I have been here he is one of several guys who has driven the car and not been a passenger."

It was a bad day overall for the Morris family — Joe's brother Jamie, signed by New England from Washington as a Plan B free agent, was cut.

Wright, a cornerback, and Turner, a linebacker, were two of the five

American League Race

A's putting the West behind

By Ben Walker
The Associated Press

The Oakland Athletics' only real race this season was against history.

Sure, there were some misguided folks who once thought free agents Mark Davis, Storm Davis and Mark Langston could make Kansas City and California contenders. And, with one month to go, the Chicago White Sox are still hanging around the top of the American League West.

But was anyone actually ever going to beat Oakland? Plus, admit it — is there anybody who didn't win this week when they heard the World Series champions added Willie McGee and Harold Baines?

"They've got so much talent that they've become a rotisserie league team," New York Yankees pitcher Dave LaPoint said.

On Friday night, Oakland beat Texas 4-2 to maintain its 6½-game lead over the White Sox. In that game, the Athletics used a total of 13 players — 11 of them are former All-Stars.

All together, 13 players on Oakland's 25-man roster have been in the All-Star game. McGee, the second-leading hitter in the National League, and Baines each has been there four times. Now, is that fair or what?

"It shows they want to win," said Ivan Calderon, whose White Sox have four All-Stars. "Sometimes to do that, you have to pay the piper."

Oakland already has signed Jose Canseco, Rickey Henderson, Dennis Eckersley and Dave Stewart, but whether it can afford all of its new talent is tough to tell. But what the trades prove now is that the A's know how to win, on and off the field. They not only fill needs, they fill them with good players — and that's rare.

"What these two moves suggest is that we feel very strongly and are focused on the rest of the 1990 season," A's general manager Sandy Alderson said.

That should mean at least 100 victories and Oakland's third straight division title. The A's are trying to become the first team to win three straight pennants since they did it from 1972-74, and the first to win consecutive World Series since the Yankees in 1977-78.

With Henderson and McGee, the A's could come Sept. 17 when they play host to the White Sox in the opener of a three-game series. Chicago holds a 6-4 edge over Oakland and has showed something that no other team has — an ability to annoy the awesomethan-thou Athletics.

After the White Sox roughed up Stewart earlier this year, the usually unflappable Oakland ace flapped. Among other things, he called Jack McDowell "nothing more than a Triple-A pitcher" and labeled Steve Lyons as "Mr. False Hustle." He also said that, with few exceptions, none of the White Sox was his equal, or words to that effect.

True or not, give the White Sox and manager Jeff Torborg credit. With unlikely heroes Scott Radinsky and Barry Jones, they've made the last season at Comiskey Park one to remember.

After going 69-92 last year and finishing 29½ games behind Oakland, the White Sox have surprised even themselves. They went into the weekend tied for the second-best record in baseball and are on pace to win 94 games.

Bobby Thigpen has equaled Dave Righetti's record of 46 saves, getting 46 in his first 52 tries. Excellent, but not Eckersley. Oakland's stopper has converted 40 of 42 chances, has a 0.77 ERA and has walked only three batters in 58½ innings.

Carlton Fisk, a marvel at 42, broke Johnny Bench's record for home runs by a catcher. The only question left is which hat will Fisk's plaque in the Hall of Fame show him wearing — Red Sox or White Sox?

From opening day, Torborg told his team it could duplicate Baltimore's worst-to-first surge in 1989. For awhile, the White Sox did; a day before the All-Star break, they led the division by percentage points over the Athletics.

Then, Oakland took over. Canseco went on a tear, Henderson got serious about Lou Brock's all-time record of 938 stolen bases and Bob Welch kept winning. Never mind that Storm Davis, Dave Parker and Tony Phillips left in the off-season — Scott Sanderson pitched well enough, Willie Randolph came over from Los Angeles and now there's Baines at designated hitter.

Welch, left out of last year's World Series two-man rotation of Stewart and Mike Moore, leads the majors with 22 victories. Overall, he may not beat out Roger Clemens for the Cy Young Award, but he will get a nod from manager Tony La Russa if the A's reach the Series.

Stewart is on track for another 20 victories. He may also join Juan Marichal and Wilbur Wood as the most recent pitchers to win 20 in four straight years and get shut out of the Cy Young, not that any one of them was cheated.

The A's, like always, have again improved in places they needed to. Last year, Oakland's only weakness seemed to be in extra-inning games, where it was 5-10; this season, the Athletics talked about playing better in extra innings and then went out and did it, going 8-4.

Red Sox have that 'look in their eyes'

By Ben Walker
The Associated Press

So, are the Boston Red Sox winning the American League East or are the Toronto Blue Jays losing it?

With one month left, both answers are in the ballpark.

"You have to give the Red Sox a lot of credit for playing good baseball and us a little credit for playing stupid baseball," Toronto's Mookie Wilson said.

Two weeks ago, they were even. But that was before Toronto got swept by the last-place New York Yankees and before Boston went 7-1 on a road trip, including three straight shutouts at the SkyDome.

Added up, the Red Sox took a 6½-game lead into the weekend.

"You know how champions have that look in their eye, like they know they're going to win?" Boston's Jody Reed said. "That's what we have."

In Toronto, though, the view is more clouded. George Bell missed several games because of fluid in his eye and the rest of the Blue Jays didn't like what they saw, either.

"I know we have a team that is as good as anybody," All-Star shortstop Tony Fernandez said, "but I'm getting old. I wonder when."

Added Kelly Gruber, one of the Blue Jays bright lights this year: "As a team, we're definitely under-achievers, no doubt about it. We should have more wins than we do."

"But this is nothing new to us," he said. "What's hard to take is that a lot of (opposing players) are saying,

'Hey, just stay close to the Blue Jays and they'll beat themselves.'"

The Blue Jays thought they'd shed the label of losers last year when they won a final weekend duel with Baltimore and won the division. But this season, not even the retractable roof on the SkyDome has been able to block the dark cloud of defeat hovering over them.

Toronto can't run the bases, doesn't know how to bunt and often throws to the wrong base. Manager Cito Gaston brought a calming effect to the Blue Jays last season, but says there's not much he can do this year about their mental errors.

"Not a damn thing," he said. "You hope guys learn from mistakes... but if it doesn't stop, we're going to be in real trouble."

Fear of failure, meanwhile, is nothing new in Boston. No need to rehash all the history here — any Red Sox rooster can talk about Babe Ruth and the last World Series win in 1918, Ted Williams and the 1946 World Series, the 1978 collapse, Bill Buckner in 1986 and so on.

Besides, this is the AL East, home of the mediocre teams and the most-interesting races. In seven of the last 11 full seasons, the division has not been decided until the final weekend. Since 1977, eight times the margin of victory has been three or fewer games, more than anywhere else.

Still, just because anything can happen doesn't mean it will. These Red Sox look different, but look ready to win their third title in five years.

Boston left fielder Mike Greenwell celebrates after hitting the season's second inside-the-park grand slam, Saturday against the Yankees. The first-place Red Sox are going for their third AL East title in four seasons.

For one thing, they don't hit home runs. The Red Sox are next-to-last in the league in home runs with 85, two more than Kansas City. And, as always, they're last in the majors in stolen bases with 40 (with 38 caught stealing); Detroit is next-worst with 68.

OK, so they're slow and don't slug. But they lead everyone with a .347 on-base percentage, they are fundamentally sound and they beat the Blue Jays. Boston is 8-2 against them and, on June 25, stopped Toronto's 15-game winning streak at Fenway Park. The teams have three games left, in Boston in the final week.

But most of all, Boston has Roger Clemens.

Clemens is in the midst of another great season and soon will be in the middle of those silly postseason debates, like whether a pitcher should be the Most Valuable Player and why doesn't anyone on Oakland ever win the Cy Young Award.

Clemens is 20-5 and leads the majors with a 1.95 ERA and 198 strikeouts. He's walked 46, given up seven home runs and averaged 7½ innings in his 29 starts.

ISU coaches resist tougher standards

The Associated Press

AMES — Other Iowa State coaches have joined football coach Jim Walden and basketball coach Johnny Orr in opposing proposed higher admission standards for Cyclone student athletes.

"I don't think just an ACT score or just a grade-point average or a class rank tells the whole story about any student, particularly kids from the inner city," said Pam Wettig, women's basketball coach.

"We are united in the belief that kind of change would not only be hurtful to football and men's basketball, but to each and every program we have at Iowa State," Wettig said Friday during a staff meeting of coaches with Athletic Director Max Urick.

"We are united in the belief that kind of change would not only be hurtful to football and men's basketball."

Track and cross-country coach Bill Bergan said, "This school has always had a commitment to achieving excellence, which is achieved through determination and competition. But it concerns me greatly that some restrictions now may be put in front of us that will make that effort so much more difficult."

Urlick said most of the school's 21 head coaches attended and discussed their views on 32 proposed rules made in March by an eight-member faculty committee.

The faculty committee has proposed that Iowa State raise minimum standards for student-athletes to match the standards for most other Iowa State students. Those standards would be higher than those now used by the NCAA.

The committee also recommended changes to require better progress among all student-athletes toward a degree.
