HELSINKI, Finland — A rebel faction of an armed group, which calls itself the National Liberation Front, was granted observer status at the Helsinki conference on裁 resolution of the conflict in Western Sahara.

Negotiators working to bring about a peaceful settlement in the Western Sahara conflict said they would continue their efforts despite the failure of the conference to make progress.

The conference, which began last week, was attended by representatives of the 15 members of the United Nations Security Council, as well as delegates from other countries.

The rebel faction, which is led by fighters from Western Sahara, has been fighting for independence from Morocco since the collapse of the previous regime in 1975.

The Western Sahara conflict has been a source of tension and conflict in the region, with Morocco and Western Sahara supporting each other in their disputes.

The rebels have been supported by a number of countries, including the United States, France, and Spain, and have received financial and military assistance from these countries.

The rebels have also been supported by a number of international organizations, including the United Nations, which has recognized them as a legitimate armed group.

The United Nations has been working to find a peaceful solution to the conflict, but so far has been unable to make progress.

The rebels have been critical of the United Nations and other international organizations, saying they are biased in favor of the Moroccan government.

The rebels have also been critical of the Moroccan government's record on human rights, saying it has been complicit in human rights abuses.

The rebels have called for international recognition of their right to self-determination and independence.

The United Nations has expressed concern about the human rights situation in Western Sahara, and has called for a resumption of the peace process.

The rebels have also called for the withdrawal of Moroccan forces from Western Sahara.

The Moroccan government has rejected the rebels' demands, saying they are based on false information.

Computers invaluable for error-free paper

Thousands of US students are being taught to use computers as an essential tool in their education. The number of assignments that are produced on computers is increasing, and so is the number of computer programs that are being used to produce them. This has led to a need for error-free paper, which can be produced inexpensively by the use of computers.

Although there are still thousands of students who would like to learn to use typewriters, it is not easy to see how they could be used efficiently. Students need to be taught how to use typewriters. It is important that they understand the difference between a typewriter and a computer. Typewriters have a keyboard and a paper feed, whereas computers have a keyboard and a display screen. Typewriters are designed for producing typewritten text, whereas computers are designed for producing text on a display screen.

Professor lectures on sexual orientation laws

By Julie Crosswell

Laughter punctuated by frequent outbursts of applause highlighted a speech on the current state of state and national orientation laws Friday.

Regina Wallace, a law professor at Ohio State University, brought humor to what is usually a serious topic. Wallace explained that there are 18 states, 3 that are pending legislation, and 9 in the US by Pro Life Law Building last week.

Rivers and lawyers who wish to represent gay and lesbian people in family cases may have to file suits just to prove their clients are entitled to representation. One of the issues for law students who wish to get into gay and lesbian law practice is how to make a living. "But to really make a living, you have to have your own practice. And you cannot necessarily make your own clients," she added.

"We have to be proactive because it is expensive to hire attorneys who are not familiar with the laws," said Rivers.

"We have to prove to the judges that gay and lesbian people are entitled to representation. And they are as entitled to representation as heterosexual people."

Today, the state must show a rational basis between sexual orientation and the reason they provide extra protection because of his or her sexual preference.

"There are four misunderstandings of gay and lesbian people that interfere with legal equality," said Wallace.

"1. No one wants to have gay and lesbian people as neighbors, as clients, or as business associates.

2. People don't want to hire gay and lesbian people.

3. They think gay and lesbian people are sick, and that homosexuality is a sickness.

4. People want to change their sexual orientation for medical reasons."

"As a Ph.D. student in elementary education I use the Macintosh for my papers, assignments and teaching, I will also use the Mac for my dissertation.

As a mother, wife and graduate student I didn't have time to sit down and experiment with computers while studying big, complicated manuals. With the Mac, I didn't have to. I did a little research and asked a few computer experts for advice on which computer to buy. They all agreed — the Mac was the best choice. The Mac was easy to learn because the manuals and instructions are so easy to follow. In about an hour I was up and running.

Imigrants celebrate Ellis Island reopening

By Joelle Stare

The Associated Press

NEW YORK - The "Isle of Tears" crammed a smile Sunday as immi­grants old and new flocked to Ellis Island to celebrate the 20th anniversary of its reopening.

"There are thousands of different stories, hundreds of different ways, but you stitch all of them together and you have one huge loop again, and it's our story," said Cyril Chairman Lee, a Chinese immigrant who moved to the U.S. in 1959. "It's a loop that linked that many and millions to then and it united every island."

Although 1914 was the peak year for immigration, tourists streamed onto the nation's immigrant history to see what the saga, and it's our saga," said Lee. "This is our history, was financed entirely by the immigrant."

In Russian, the Jews didn't wake up and start a row in the face every morning. According to Lee, they didn't accept the "in their public schools."

Negotiators race clock to balance 1991 budget

By Alan Page

The Associated Press

ANDREW'S AIR FORCE BASE, El Paso - The military's White House negotiators need the hawkish Bush to try to squeeze more defense cuts from Soviet Union for an agreement due Monday. Friday's session, the sixth of negotiations that began in March, will determine whether the two sides are ready to put together an agreement for final review at the Full Nuclear Test Ban Treaty signing in Paris next week.

Army negotiators said they've been throughout the week, and are ready to do what it takes to get an agreement. "We're optimistic," a White House source said. The two sides have been working hard to avoid a last-minute breakdown that could produce a new round of talks.

Meanwhile, the Senate has been working on a budget resolution that could include defense cuts. The White House has been pushing for a $26 billion savings in defense spending, but the Senate has been pushing for a $20 billion cut. The two sides are still trying to come to an agreement on the budget resolution.

Pope consecrates new basilica amid criticism, political strife

By Robert Weisbrot

The New York Times

VATICAN CITY - Pope John Paul II consecrated a new basilica in the Vatican, the most lavish building of its kind in the world, on Sunday. But the Vatican has been dogged by controversy, including criticism that the church is overly lavish and that the pope's decision to build the basilica is a waste of money.

The basilica, which will be used to conduct religious ceremonies, was consecrated by the pope in a ceremony attended by thousands. The basilica, which is the largest in the world, will be used to conduct religious ceremonies.

It is the seventh basilica to be consecrated in the Vatican, and the first to be consecrated by the pope. The previous six basilicas were consecrated by popes in the 16th century, and were used to conduct religious ceremonies.

Prowse revels in ‘Mame’ role

By Jennifer Weglarz

It’s one of the most demanding roles I’ve ever had the pleasure of being involved with,” says Julie Prowse of her current role as the free-spirited Mame Dennis in the musical’s national tour. “It’s the kind of show that makes you feel good when you come to the end of it, but you’re exhausted the minute you walk off the stage.”

Mame is the first event in Hancher Auditorium’s 1990-91 season. The event opens Tuesday night for seven performances, Sept. 11-19, with an 8 p.m. performance each evening and 2 p.m. matinee on Sept. 19.

Prowse believes Mame’s popularity lies in its being the ultimate family affair. “With all of the messages I have been in my life, that family...that Mame and possibly Daddy, Daffy are two of the biggest messages you can make you feel good. It’s also a show you can take while family is there; there’s nothing rude in it. There’s no explicit. It has a very funny book and a great score.”

Patrick Dennis introduced Mame Dennis in his 1964 best-seller. Lawrence and Robert E. Lee adapted the book for a stage play starring Rosalind Russell. In 1966, Jerry Herman brought Mame to the musical stage in a version with new music and lyrics. The story of it all versions follows Rachel, a society matron, who faces financial disaster and purchase through the early ’50s. As a gesture of kindness, the Mame family lets him experience life in the fullest, richest Heights or in Southern plantation. The musical features the all-grown-up Mame when you come to the end of it...”

The session could not have a high-impact, high-energy recital, but rather with an informal evening or matinee that introduces the progress of the character. Prices for UI Dance Forum classes range from $15-$60 per session, and are taught by the college department at 330-2500 or Mace at 843-3683.

Tenure review: Should committees be required to open deliberations?

Despite the ongoing controversy surrounding the current tenure process, one U.S. academic professor and policy expert believes that tenure review should be open to the public. The professor argues that the current closed-door system is too secretive and favors certain individuals over others.

The professor cites several examples of tenure decisions being made behind closed doors, leading to accusations of favoritism and bias. The professor believes that an open tenure review process would promote transparency and accountability, making it more difficult for administrators to make decisions that benefit their friends or acquaintances.

The professor also notes that opening the tenure review process to the public could be a step towards addressing the issue of tenure reviews being conducted by the same people who are being reviewed. By having the public involved, the professor believes that there would be a greater chance of finding a more objective and fair process.

In conclusion, the professor argues that opening the tenure review process to the public is necessary for maintaining the integrity of the academic community and ensuring that tenure decisions are made based on merit rather than personal connections.

 Likely, the question of whether tenure review should be open to the public remains a contentious issue. However, the professor believes that a transparent and inclusive tenure review process is crucial for maintaining the credibility of the academic community.

The debate continues to rage on, with supporters and detractors on both sides of the issue. However, it is clear that the tenure review process is in need of reform, and the public has a right to know how their professors are evaluated.

The professor concludes by urging academic institutions to consider opening the tenure review process to the public. By doing so, the academic community can work towards creating a more transparent and accountable system for tenure reviews.

BUSH-GORBACHEV SUMMIT

"Intolerable" PR

"Sound bytes and photo opportunities" — or "The Persian Gulf as a screen" — was the language used by President Bush at the conclusion of the June 1988 summit with Mikhail Gorbachev. The meeting between the two leaders was the first of its kind in the post-Cold War era, and it marked a significant shift in the relationship between the United States and the Soviet Union. However, the summit was met with skepticism by many at the time, and its long-term impact on U.S.-Soviet relations remains a subject of debate.

As President Bush, from his summer home in Kennebunkport, Maine, prepared for his summit with Gorbachev, he was faced with the challenge of being on camera for a meeting that would be watched by billions of people worldwide. The current crisis, which had suddenly erupted just a few weeks earlier, threatened to overshadow the summit as a key moment in the negotiations for a new world order.

New, as Bush and Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev hastily met in Helsinki for a summit on the issue, the crisis became a way for both leaders — struggling as they were to ride out the storm — to both make a show of resolve and avoid a military clash.

The summit was a pivotal moment in the negotiations for a new world order, and it marked a significant shift in the relationship between the United States and the Soviet Union. However, the summit was met with skepticism by many at the time, and its long-term impact on U.S.-Soviet relations remains a subject of debate.

The good news for Augustana's over-the-road coach Paul Olson is that his top runner, Sandy Robinson, passed the first round. The bad news? Handsome, Jerry Hind, on the road to a first-round finish, and Dennis Scott, who came in third, both pulled up short of the 36-hole mark.

The old four-round total of 152—set by Augusta's Dave Tierney—was broken by Hind (152.38). Babineau (152.26) and Sindelar (152.08) were expected to be defeated on Day 2.

Sindelar wins Hardestie on 1st extra hole

GOLD VALLEY, Neb. — Joey Sindelar was anxious to win the Hardestie Golf Course. And he thinks everyone else should be, too.

"Honestly I can't believe I'm sitting here. I'm kind of in shock," said Sindelar, who has "walked the land." He was the 1985-86 NCAA individual champion.

"If you want to win, you want to win it because the PGA Tour.

"I'm kind of in shock, pretty already when I heard the results were the equivalent of winning the Masters. And I think I'm kind of scratching my head, pretty shocked." Sindelar, here. I'm kind of in shock.

"I'm kind of in shock, pretty shocked." Sindelar, here. I'm kind of in shock. He was also impressed with the work of Babineau for Augustana. Sindelar was stunned to win the Hardestie on 1st extra hole, and Babineau was supposed to be defeated on Day 2.

Also scoring for the Hawkeyes were C. Jeff Abbott, 66th in 200.03; Doug Koon, eighth in 196.03; with a 194.03 average.

"Montgomery, a sophomore lieutenant, played a key role in Hawkeye victory. By passing three runners during the final hole, he processed the Hawkeyes with a needed place of finish. And Babineau, a freshman from Rome, came on quite a surprise to the team and individual performances.

"We were very, very close," said Sindelar, signing autographs at a baseball card show Saturday afternoon in Scottsdale, said he couldn't talk about the contract until it is officially signed.

He had two years remaining on a pact that pays him about $400,000 per season and the Suns reportedly want to tack on an additional three years.

Miami heads up set list

By Steve McLaren

The Boston College Eagles gutted the 10th-ranked University of Miami Hurricanes, 50-21, Saturday at Alumni Stadium in Chestnut Hill.

Dr. Paul Butterfield, medical director of the Boston College Athletics Department, said the victory was a result of the team's hard work and preparation throughout the season.

"The players really did their homework and put in the work," Butterfield said. "They came out to play, and the coaches were pleased with the performance.

Butterfield also praised the performance of quarterback Matt Detmer, who had 285 passing yards and three touchdowns.

"He was on the money all day," Butterfield said. "He was a terrific leader for the offense and showed great poise under pressure.

The victory was the first for Boston College in the series against Miami, and the Eagles improved to 3-3 overall.

Four of the nation's top 15 schools began the season, and that's pretty good.

Without playing a game yet this season, the Irish are 1-0.

They will face No. 11 BYU Saturday, a game that should be an interesting test for both teams.

The Bayh is coming off a 28-18 loss to No. 10 Tennessee last week. The Irish, who won their opener, 31-24, over Florida State, are looking to build on their early success.

"We know we have a tough test ahead of us," head coach Lou Holtz said. "But we're excited to play and are ready to face the challenge.
