More than 300 Americans arrive from Kuwait

By Bruce Smith
The Associated Press

CHARLESTON, S.C. — A chartered jet carrying more than 300 weary U.S. evacuees from war-torn Kuwait landed Sunday after a flight from Jordan. The 747 aircraft, which left Amman early Sunday, arrived at the Charleston International Airport about 6:10 p.m. It was delayed several hours because of an unexpected stop in Halifax, Nova Scotia, to let off several people for health reasons, Mike Brennan of the State Department said.

One woman was suffering chest pains and three children from another family were feeling ill. All four, plus the children's mother, got off the plane in Halifax and were taken to a hospital for care, he said.

Meanwhile, social workers, customs agents and other officials prepared to help those aboard make arrangements to fly to other destinations, said Norma Anderson, a spokeswoman for the South Carolina Department of Social Services. Volunteer workers planned to give the children teddy bears.

"This is the same crowd that was gathered to handle the aftermath of Hurricane Hugo," which struck Charleston and much of the South Carolina coast in September 1989, Gov. Carroll Campbell said.

"This is a much more pleasant assignment," he said.

State Department spokesman Jack McCreary said 171 American evacuees from Kuwait were flown to Baghdad and then onto Jordan on Friday. A second group of about 130 followed on Saturday. Most of the evacuees were women and children.

Ann Weaver of Bennettsville said State Department officials called early Sunday morning and said her sister, Sandi Mousa, and Mousa's three young daughters would be on the plane.

Mousa's husband, Arafat, was an engineer at the Kuwaiti television station and remains behind in Kuwait.

Weaver was waiting for her sister and nieces — including 1-year-old twins she's never seen — Sunday afternoon

Reggae music festival draws crowd of 2,000 to UI Union Field

By Steve Cruse
The Daily Iowan

Frisbees, blankets and tie-dyed T-shirts abounded Saturday on Union Field as more than 2,000 people attended Trenchtown Rockin' II, a daylong festival of reggae music.

The event, which attracted music fans from throughout the Midwest, got under way at noon when the Minneapolis group Ipso Facto took the stage. During the next eight hours, the bands Rude Beat League, Tony Brown and the Landing Crew, Moja Nya, and Dallol each performed sets lasting approximately 1½ hours.

Crowd response to the performances was enthusiastic; many people danced in front of the stage, chanted along with the singers or simply sat and nodded rhythmically.

"It's great — the best reggae I've heard in a long time," said Iowa City resident Kristin Smith, who added that she has followed the participating bands

False fire alarms costly; students unconcerned

By Amy Davoux
The Daily Iowan

In the 1989-90 fiscal year, the Iowa City Fire Department responded to 411 fire alarms at UI residence halls. At a cost of approximately $400 apiece, more than $164,400 in expenses was incurred.

Fewer than six of these alarms were the result of actual fires.

Iowa City Fire Chief Larry Donner said he was concerned with student attitudes regarding fire alarms, and compared the high number of false fire alarms to a game of Russian Roulette.

"It's a very dangerous game we are playing," Donner said. "And the way we are playing it now could easily result in the death of a fellow student."

In an attempt to educate students of the seriousness and dangers of fire, this week the UI is holding its annual Fire Safety Week.

According to Pam Boersig, assisstant director for UI Residence Services, the week will include various displays and programs within the residence halls to increase student awareness of UI safety guidelines and policies.

The UI Residence Hall Guidebook policy requires students to "evacuate the building" as required by law, and states "persons not leaving the building during an alarm may face immediate disciplinary charges."

But UI resident assistant Lynn Smits said this rule is neither observed or enforced.

Presidents jointly condemn Iraq during Helsinki summit

By David Espo
The Associated Press

HELSINKI, Finland — President Bush and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev joined Sunday in an extraordinary condemnation of Iraq's invasion of Kuwait and said they agreed in seven hours of summit talks that "aggression cannot and will not pay."

Gorbachev emphasized the need for a "political" solution, insisting that his former ally, Saddam Hussein, is headed "into a dead end" by struggling to hold Kuwait against stiff international sanctions.

Bush held out the possibility of using force if the embargo is not effective, but Gorbachev pointedly refrained from saying the Soviet Union would support a military move against Iraq.

Yet the Soviet president said he hoped to make it "quite clear to Saddam Hussein that if Iraq were to provoke military action, then the result would be a tragedy first and foremost for the Iraqi people themselves, for the whole of the region and for the whole of the world."

Rebels apprehend Liberian leader

The Associated Press

ABIDJAN, Ivory Coast — A rebel faction shot Liberian President Samuel Doe in both legs and captured him Sunday during a battle in that nation's capital, the British Broadcasting Corp. reported.

The U.S. State Department confirmed that Doe had been captured by rebels led by Prince Johnson but would not comment further.

More than 60 people, including dozens of Doe's bodyguards, were killed in the fighting between Doe loyalists and Johnson's fighters, the BBC said. It said the battle took place outside the headquarters of a West African task force in Monrovia, Liberia.

Doe had left his fortified seaside mansion to pay an unscheduled visit to the commander of the West African task force, Lt. Gen. Arnold Quainoo of Ghana, the BBC's correspondent in Monrovia reported.

Computers invaluable for error-free paper

Thousands of UI students are using computers to write papers because they've discovered that these assignments are much easier to do on computers than on typewriters.

Unfortunately, there are also thousands of students who would like to use computers, but don't know the first thing about them.

If you're one of these students, learning to use a computer will be easy if you have computer-savvy friends who are generous with their time. However, even if none of your friends knows computers, you're still in luck.

The first thing you should learn is the difference between a computer and a typewriter.

Although typewriters usually have better keyboards than computers and computers don't have the "feel" of typewriter keyboards, computers don't have as much of a tendency to waste paper.

For instance, look at what happens on each machine after you press a key.

With typewriters, the letter of the key is quickly inked onto paper. Not so with computers. After a key is pressed, the corresponding letter appears on the computer screen, not on paper. To get the letter onto paper, the computer has to be instructed to send the document to the printer.

The document isn't permanent until the computer is told to save it. So if the power goes off before a 20-page paper is saved, the entire document may have to be retyped. Ouch!

Of course, this can be prevented by saving the document every 15 minutes or so. While this process may take a little time, it's a process virtually unknown to the typewriter.

The computer's value lies in its separation of typing from printing.

This separation, while demanding extra steps like saving and printing, is a godsend when it comes to correcting mistakes.

Suppose you've just finished typing a 20-page paper on a typewriter and you're proofreading it.

You realize that a sentence on page 19 should be on page seven, a paragraph on page 13 should be on page four, and to top it off, you misspelled nine words.

Worse yet, it's 4 in the morning, and the paper is due that day. Are you going to go through the hassle of retyping 20 pages? Probably not.

This tale takes an entirely new slant if you're using a computer. You have to retype only the parts that need changing. Moving around sections of your document is quick and easy.

What's more, some computers check spelling for you and suggest corrections along the way.

The result is that you spend 10 to 20 minutes correcting your paper—after which, you press a few buttons and get an error-free printed document.

Neat, huh? Of course, none of this matters if you still don't know how to turn a computer on, let alone know how to use one. For you, the computer-ignorant, the first step is to choose the computer you want to use.

For UI students, there are basically three computers to choose from: Macintoshes, IBM PCs and their compatibles, and time-sharing minicomputers.

One advantage of the minicomputers is that they have a preset thesis format and they can be used by any of the CRT terminals hooked up to them. These are the same terminals you use to register for classes.

Dan Ryan

To use a minicomputer, though, you need to have an account. To get one, go to the Weeg Information Center, which is in the basement of the south portion of the Lindquist Center on the corner of Madison and Burlington streets.

Graduate students should ask about getting an account through their departments.

For most students, however, the question of computers comes down to Macs or PCs. Both are widely available in computer clusters scattered around campus.

The similarities between Macs and PCs are greater than their differences. Both have easy-to-use word processors (the computer programs that let you write papers) with plenty of sophisticated options.

Users of both types say Mac word processors are the easiest to learn, but that the advantage becomes less important once you've written a paper or two.

The question, then, comes down to which type has the best word processor.

The Mac is generally perceived as the more visually appealing, while the PC is seen as allowing faster user interaction with the computer. But the bottom line is that you won't be making a mistake by choosing one computer over the other — both computers have word processors that will fulfill most, if not all, of your possible needs.

Once you've made your decision, you should probably go to the Weeg Information Center and sign up for an instruction course.

Avenson attends reception in IC to discuss issues with educators

The Daily Iowan

Democratic gubernatorial candidate Don Avenson made another stop in Iowa City Friday, this time to attend an Educators for Avenson reception at the Days Inn Ironmen, 1-80 Exit 242.

Avenson was there to discuss with Iowa teachers his limited tuition increase plan and to field other questions about his plans for education in Iowa.

Avenson plans to implement his tuition plan as adequate state revenues become available.

■ Michael W. Chism's charge of attempted murder in the shooting of a Mason City man was dismissed Thursday.

Chism, 32, shot Larry D. Etten, 29, in the parking lot of Hawk-I Feed and Relay Station truck stop, Coralville, after reportedly finding the man with his wife at the truck stop. Etten was found unconscious at 3:15 a.m. and taken to University Hospitals and Clinics where he was treated and released.

Chism was convicted of willful injury Aug. 31 and was sentenced to up to 10 years in prison. He will be eligible for parole in five years.

A Riverside, Iowa, man was charged with fourth-degree criminal mischief Thursday.

According to Johnson County District Court records, Timothy J. Ellsworth, 31, RR 1 Box 635, Riverside, hit a Riverside man's mailbox. Damage is estimated to be over $100 and under $200, records state.

Ellsworth has been released on his own recognizance, and a preliminary hearing has been set for Sept. 25.

■ Two of three charges against an Iowa City man were dropped

Thursday after he pleaded guilty to one.

According to Johnson County District Court records, Rocky L. Scott, 38, pleaded guilty to one count of lascivious acts with a child in exchange for the dismissal of two other counts — indecent contact with a child and third-degree sexual abuse.

The charges stemmed from an arrest in December 1989.

Hawkeye Marching Band wins Sudler Trophy

The UI Marching Band has been awarded the Sudler Intercollegiate Marching Band Trophy for 1990.

Awarded by the John Philip Sousa Foundation, the award recognizes "collegiate marching bands of particular excellence who have made outstanding contributions to the American way of life."

The winner is selected yearly by the directors of bands at four-year schools participating in football in the NCAA.

The trophy will be presented by Sousa Foundation officers at the UI Homecoming game Oct. 27.

UI seminar series held on parallel processing

The UI departments of computer science and electrical and computer engineering will sponsor a fall seminar series on parallel processing — a method of building faster computers.

The first seminar in the series will be held Tuesday at 4 p.m. in room

5401 of the Engineering Building, where Steve Bruell of the UI department of computer science will speak on "Concurrent Stimulation."

All seminars are free and open to the public. For further information call Tom Casavant at 335-5953.

Bev Tauke presides at ribbon cutting

The Johnson County Republican Party will celebrate the official opening of its campaign headquarters at 114 S. Dubuque St. today at 2 p.m.

Bev Tauke will cut the ribbon, signaling the beginning of campaign activities, registering voters and providing voter information in preparation for the Nov. 6 election.

Headquarters office hours are noon to 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday. For more information call the headquarters at 339-0005.

Professor lectures on sexual orientation laws

By Julie Creswell
The Daily Iowan

Laughter punctuated by frequent outbursts of indignation highlighted a speech on the current state of U.S. sexual orientation laws at the UI Friday.

Rhonda Rivera, a law professor at Ohio State University, brought humor to what is usually considered a serious topic during her lecture to 75 people in the UI Boyd Law Building last week.

Rivera said lawyers who refuse to take gay and lesbian people as clients could be losing 10 percent of their potential clientele.

"One of the issues for law students is how to relate to gay and lesbian clients," Rivera said. "You want to be zealous, but maybe your value system makes you uncomfortable."

"Speaking on a pragmatic basis, you could be cutting 10 percent of your potential clients," she added.

Rivera said one frequent mistake made by lawyers managing cases concerning gay and lesbian people is using non-affirmative language, such as "homosexual" instead of "sexual orientation" when referring to their clients.

"Like most persons who are minorities, (gay and lesbian people) have been stigmatized by names they have not chosen and that are often used incorrectly," Rivera said.

"Language is important because it's affirming," she added. Rivera said lawyers must learn how to "manipulate" the legal system to protect their clients.

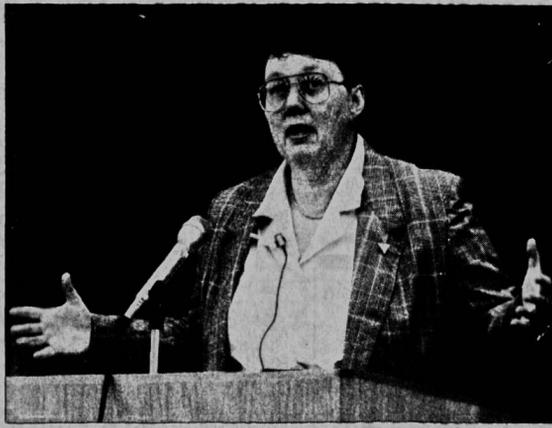

"A (gay or lesbian person's) will is more likely to be contested so it requires more thought to make sure it's not contested," Rivera said.

Rivera also addressed the problems gay and lesbian people face from employers who attempt to fire them because of their sexual orientation, stating that before 1968, a state employee could be fired because of his or her sexual preference.

"Today, the state must show a rational nexus between sexual orientation and the reason they were being fired," Rivera said.

Rivera added that a union contract provides extra protection because it specifies that an employee cannot be fired without just cause.

Rivera said fear and misunderstanding of gay and lesbian people interfere with legal equality for everyone in the areas of job performance, custody cases and rights of privacy.

State's Senate race should set standard

Harkin, Tauke want 'clean' campaign

By Mike Glover
The Associated Press

CEDAR RAPIDS — Incumbent Democratic Sen. Tom Harkin on Sunday said Iowa's heated U.S. Senate race should "set the standard for clean campaigning" and called on GOP rival Tom Tauke to join in a pledge against negative commercials.

Tauke labeled that call "hypocritical" and said he's just been attacked by the Harkin campaign. Both said they intended to continue the campaign on a positive note.

"We won't tolerate the kind of negative campaigning that has been going around the country," said Harkin. "I suggest that we agree to continue to do that. You run on your record, I'll run on mine."

Harkin said he would agree not to mention Tauke's name in any of his advertising and said, "let's insist that our political parties do the same."

Breaking from the format of the third campaign debate, Harkin strode across the stage urging the candidates shake hands on a non-negative-campaigning pledge.

"We can set the standard for clean campaigns here in Iowa," said Harkin.

"I certainly appreciate the sentiment," said Tauke. But he accused Harkin of hypocrisy for issuing the call only days after his campaign sent out a mailing attacking Tauke's anti-abortion stand.

"That particular piece was not only inaccurate, but it was the most negative," said Tauke. "Frankly it's not what I consider to be fair play. I have been running a positive campaign. I'd ask you to sweep in front of your own door."

"I think it's a little hypocritical for you to stand here and talk about positive campaigns," said Tauke. Tauke was, however, clearly nettled by the unexpected approach, and he stumbled several times as he gave his closing statement in the campaign debate only minutes after the call was issued by Harkin.

With Harkin holding a double-digit lead on most polls, most argue that Tauke has no choice but to attack if he's to make progress in the campaign.

Before the dramatic ending to the third campaign debate, the two had differed on a host of environmental and educational issues, but had produced little fireworks.

Harkin said he would push for bigger grants for college students struggling to meet soaring higher education costs and called for a sweeping change in energy policy.

He pointed to his endorsement by a series of environmental groups as evidence that he's taken the lead on programs to protect air and water.

Tauke said Harkin simply wants to "take some more money at the federal level and throw it at the problem" while Harkin said Tauke "just votes no" on programs that aid children.

In the third campaign debate between the two rivals, they differed on virtually each educational and environmental issue they addressed. While underscoring differences, the debate was a far less strident affair than the last clash when the two fought over abortion.

"Tom Harkin has been a follower, not a leader, on environmental issues and educational issues," said Tauke.

"Sometimes I don't really know if I'm listening to my opponent or just what I'm listening to," said Harkin. "My opponent has not voted for an education bill since 1982 or 1983. He just votes no."

Rare exchange pairs black, white greeks

By Marc Wallace
Special to the Daily Iowan

UI students Eric McAfee and Scott Brown thought little of the implications when they proposed a social exchange between traditionally black and traditionally white sororities and fraternities.

But, according to Mary Peterson, coordinator of campus programs, this type of planned social event between black and white greek organizations hasn't happened at the UI in "about five or six years."

The rare social event took place Friday night, as three traditionally black chapters joined four traditionally white chapters for a party at the Sigma Nu fraternity house, 630 N. Dubuque St.

"I could try to force a couple of token events every year, but this came about because a couple of friends wanted to get together. That's what makes it honest."

Mary Peterson
coordinator of campus programs

"We thought it was stupid that we didn't do anything together and didn't think that it would be too hard," said Brown of Phi Kappa Theta. "The party started with people in their own groups, like any other, but people mixed well." Kai Russel, president of Alpha Kappa Psi, agreed that having the party was a good idea.

"We need a little more interaction between blacks and whites. It's a little too separated out here," he said.

"I could try to force a couple of token events every year," said Peterson, "but this came about because a couple of friends wanted to get together. That's what makes it honest. All of the houses on campus were founded on a basis of personal development and cultural diversity. That's what makes this great."

Mike Johnsrud, president of Phi Kappa Theta, said he hopes that the event will make greeks aware of the other fraternities and sororities on campus.

"We are all part of the IFC (Interfraternity Council) and can contribute a lot to each other through interaction on social and philanthropic projects," Johnsrud said.

Alpha Xi Delta, Delta Sigma Theta, Sigma Gamma Rho and Sigma Kappa sororities joined Kappa Alpha Psi and Phi Kappa Theta fraternities at the Sigma Nu house.

"As a Ph.D. student in elementary education I use the Macintosh for my papers, assignments and teaching. I will also use the Mac for my dissertation.

As a mother, wife and graduate student I didn't have time to sit down and experiment with computers while studying big, complicated manuals. With the Mac, I didn't have to. I did a little research and asked a few computer experts for advice on which computer to buy. They all agreed — the Mac was the best choice. The Mac was easy to learn because the manuals and instructions are so easy to follow. In about an hour I was up and running.

The Macintosh has given me the gift of time!"

Immigrants celebrate Ellis Island reopening

By Judie Glave
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — The "Isle of Tears" cracked a smile Sunday as immigrants old and new celebrated the reopening of Ellis Island, gateway to the New World for the ancestors of two out of five Americans.

"There are thousands of different names, thousands of different stories, but you stitch all of them together and you have one huge saga, and it's our saga," said Chrysler Chairman Lee Iacocca, who spearheaded the campaign that raised $156 million to restore the 90-year-old immigration station.

Before snipping a white ribbon, Vice President Dan Quayle linked the nation's immigrant history to the crisis in the Persian Gulf. There, he said, "children of Mexicans or Kenyans stand shoulder to shoulder with the grandchildren of Japanese or French, next to the great-grandchildren of Poles or Dutch — now Americans all."

"What we celebrate in Ellis Island is nothing less than the triumph of the American spirit," Quayle said. "We may all know in our minds that time and time again, it has been the immigrant who has renewed and rekindled the American spirit. But here in Ellis Island, we feel it in our hearts."

About 2,500 guests gathered outside the huge, four-towered brick building that reopens to the public Monday as a museum and memorial following six years of work.

The restoration project, the most expensive of its kind in American history, was financed entirely by private contributions to the Statue of Liberty-Ellis Island Foundation.

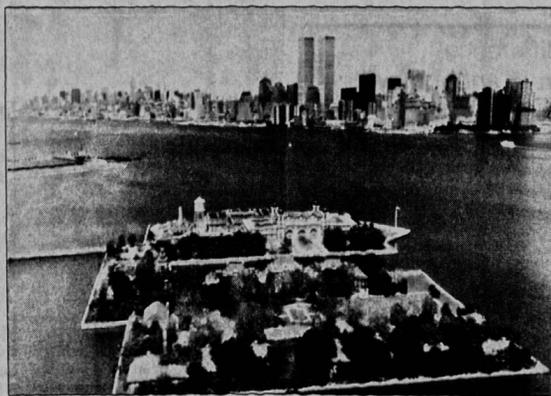

Forty-nine new citizens, including three children, were sworn in by Supreme Court Justice Antonin Scalia, and six people who entered the nation through Ellis in the first quarter of the century were singled out to represent the millions of immigrants who passed through the island.

They included Johanna Flaherty, 84, who said she left her native Ireland in 1923 because she "didn't want to wake up and stare a cow in the face every morning." Another was Clara Larsen, who came from Russia in 1913 because she wanted to get an education.

"In Russia, the Jewish kids didn't stand a chance," she recalled. "They didn't accept them in the public schools." She went on to become an early leader of the International Ladies Garment Workers Union.

Immigrants' contributions were celebrated throughout the program, down to the music; the U.S. Army Band played selections by Irving Berlin, who came through Ellis as a child.

Iacocca dedicated the American Immigrant Wall of Honor, which bears the names of about 2,000 immigrants whose descendants donated $100 or more to the renovation effort. The names are inscribed on a long copper strip on the island's seawall, about 400 yards from the Statue of Liberty.

One of the names was that of Antonio Macchiarola, 80, of Johnston, R.I., who arrived at age 11.

In retrospect, Macchiarola said, it all seems "like a pilgrimage. ... I was just a little bit of a kid and I had to go through these lines to be examined. Everybody was afraid they wouldn't make it."

Macchiarola did, like 98 percent of those who landed at Ellis. But for those who were turned back — including a little girl who traveled with her family and was rejected because of eye disease — Ellis was called the Isle of Tears.

The federal government bought the 27.5-acre island in the late 1800s for about $10,000 from the descendants of a man named Samuel Ellis. It opened the first immigration station on the island in 1892, but the building burned down five years later.

Its replacement was finished in 1900, a building designed to impress immigrants with its ornate copper domes, vast windows and vaulted ceilings.

Between 1892 and 1924, when Ellis was the nation's busiest port of entry, an average of 5,000 people a day passed through. On the busiest day — April 17, 1907 — 11,747 immigrants were processed.

Florida police find knife, will test for tie to killings

By Ron Word
The Associated Press

GAINESVILLE, Fla. — State agents who searched a suspect's home in the killing of five college students found a knife hidden in a milk carton, a newspaper reported Sunday.

The Gainesville Sun quoted two sources close to the investigation as saying that the knife was found Thursday as agents searched the Indian home of Edward Lewis Humphrey, his Gainesville apartment and his car.

Police in Colby, Kan., said Sunday that Humphrey was told to leave the town in western Kansas last month, about two weeks before the killings in Gainesville, because of his suspicious behavior, including arguing with a hitchhiker and later driving slowly through residential areas.

Humphrey, 18, hasn't been charged in the slayings but has been identified by police as one of eight suspects. They have refused to call him the prime suspect.

The Sun reported that the knife was found where Humphrey told investigators earlier this month it would be. Lab tests will be performed to determine if the knife is linked to the killings.

Also confiscated from the home, owned by Humphrey's 79-year-old grandmother, Elna Hlavaty, were books, videotapes and clothing. Humphrey lived there with his mother and grandmother.

Gainesville Police Lt. Sadie Darnell said Friday that "promising evidence" was found in the searches, but she refused to elaborate.

Meanwhile, police said the three apartments where the five University of Florida students were murdered have been released to their landlords.

Humphrey is being held in lieu of $1 million bond in the Brevard County Jail in Sharpes for allegedly assaulting his grandmother the night of his return from summer school at the Gainesville campus, where he is a freshman.

Alachua County Sheriff Lt. Spencer Mann reported Sunday that the crime scenes had finally been released by police.

"We feel at this point that nothing more is going to be gained. We have recovered all we are going to recover," Mann said.

In Colby, Kan., an officer intervened in an argument between Humphrey and a hitchhiker he had picked up Aug. 10, said Police Chief Randy Jones. Humphrey then asked the officer where he could use a certain gasoline credit card and the officer pointed out a station about three blocks away, Jones said.

Murder rate rises in New York

By Larry McShane
The Daily Iowan

NEW YORK — An infant asleep on a couch. A business executive speaking on a pay phone. A tourist standing on a subway platform. A 78-year-old man out for an evening walk. A prosecutor buying doughnuts.

In the violent summer of 1990, they were among hundreds of murder victims in New York City. Memorial Day arrived with the Zodiac killer; the Labor Day weekend ended with a tourist from Utah stabbed to death in the subway while defending his mother from muggers.

The three months in between continued a five-year trend of escalating summer violence, experts said. Killings continued at a record pace as the city appeared headed for a new homicide record of more than 2,000 for the year.

"Clearly, this is the worst of times."

"Clearly, this is the worst of times. The numbers are higher than ever for murders."

Thomas Reppetto
Citizens Crime Commission

The numbers are higher than ever for murders," said Thomas Reppetto, head of the watchdog Citizens Crime Commission.

"This has got to be the worst summer since the Son of Sam in 1977," said James Deady, a New Yorker for 27 years. "And that was a serial killer. This is much more wanton."

Six out of 10 New Yorkers say they would live elsewhere if they could, and three-quarters describe the city as dangerous and dirty, according to a Time magazine-Cable News Network poll released Sunday.

New York, historically and statistically, is a violent place. The average day sees five murders, nine rapes, 256 robberies, 332 burglaries and 367 auto thefts.

This summer violence was as constant as the heat. Victims were chosen by their birth signs or their clothes. Panhandlers turned ugly if turned down. Children asleep in their homes or cars became shooting victims. Muggers killed cab drivers at the rate of nearly three a month.

"I get the sense it was a more violent summer than usual. I think the fact that children were killed, that an assistant DA in the Bronx was killed — these are people you don't expect to get caught in the crossfire," said Barbara Raffel Price, dean of graduate studies at John Jay College of Criminal Justice.

Rumor control is spreading

By Alex Dominguez
The Associated Press

BALTIMORE — Sorry, sir, there are no plans for an underwater shopping mall in the Inner Harbor. No, ma'am, a highway is not coming through your living room. And no, pull tabs from soda cans and empty cigarette packs do not pay for kidney dialysis.

For 22 years, operators at the city's rumor control center have been handing out facts and dispelling rumors for confused or curious citizens.

"The rumor was it would be an underwater mall and they would have a restaurant and you could pick out your dinner from behind the glass," said Tom Saunders, who's worked for the hot line for 10 years. "We had contractors calling up wanting to build it."

Rumor-control hot lines were opened in several major cities in the 1960s to ease tension in the wake of race riots. Although the violence of that era has passed, Baltimore's hot line still has a place, and some cities that dropped theirs are reviving the idea, Saunders said.

Philadelphia recently opened a rumor-control hot line after a black man was shot to death by a Korean shopkeeper, he said.

Besides handling the frivolous rumors, Baltimore officials say, the hot line keeps the public informed about topics that could affect health or safety — and helps the city to keep in touch with its residents.

"It's a place people can call to get good information, but also cast a straw vote, in effect, for things the city should be doing to enhance the community," said City Council President Mary Pat Clarke.

"We don't try to appease people. We give them the facts from a creditable source," said Lillian Jones, head of the community relations commission, which operates the hot line.

Calls from people expressing a desire to heal race relations helped lead to the scheduled meeting of community leaders in November. The calls followed several apparently racially motivated incidents this summer.

Each day one of the six workers in Baltimore's community relations office takes a turn staffing the hot line, answering questions and collecting rumors.

UI Dance Forum director Marie Wilkes (foreground) leads students in an Arabic dance class.

Forum is 'dance for fun'

By Kathleen Hurley
The Daily Iowan

Have you ever secretly wanted to learn the voluptuous dances of Arabia, or wanted to tap with the dazzle of Gregory Hines? Now is the time, as the UI Dance Department's Dance Forum is offering classes in many different styles of dance.

The Forum offers various low-cost classes for all levels, including courses in ballet, jazz, modern dance or tai chi. All are taught by instructors experienced on the stage.

"The main aspect of the Dance Forum is to dance strictly for fun," explained director Marie Wilkes. "Normally people get really tense in a classroom situation and think they have to be perfect, but the forum classes are much more relaxed."

Ages range from 2 years to the mid-60s in the various class levels. "It is never too late to dance — or enjoy life, for that matter," Wilkes said. "You should never put an age restriction on yourself — you can enjoy the expression of your body at any age."

An exciting new feature of the Dance Forum is the addition of the "Young Explorers" class for ages 6 to 8.

The session ends not with a high-cost, high-tension recital, but rather with an informal showing or open house to share the progress of the students.

Prices for UI Dance Forum classes range from $15-$60 per session, depending on the class. For more information on schedules, prices and levels, call the UI dance department at 335-3500 or Marie Wilkes at 354-9638.

Prowse revels in 'Mame' role

By Jennifer Weglar
The Daily Iowan

"It's one of the most crowd-pleasing shows I've ever had the chance of doing and being involved with," says Juliet Prowse of her current role as the free-spirited Mame Dennis in the musical "Mame." "It's the kind of show that makes you feel good when you come to the end of it. So many shows don't necessarily do that to you."

"Mame" is the first event in Hancher Auditorium's 1990-91 Broadway Series. The musical opens Tuesday night for seven performances, Sept. 11-16, with an 8 p.m. performance each evening and a 2 p.m. matinee on Sunday, Sept. 16.

Prowse believes "Mame" 's popularity lies in its bring-the-whole-family appeal. "With all of the musicals I have done in my life, I think that 'Mame' and possibly 'Hello, Dolly!' are two of the biggest crowd-pleasing shows there are. It makes you feel good. It's also a show you can take the whole family to — there's nothing crude in it, there's no vulgarity. It has a very funny book and a great score."

Patrick Dennis introduced Mame Dennis in his 1954 best-seller "Auntie Mame," and Jerome Lawrence and Robert E. Lee adapted the book for a stage play starring Rosalind Russell. In 1966, Jerry Herman brought Mame to the musical stage in a version starring Angela Lansbury.

The story in all versions follows Mame and her young charge Patrick from the 1929 stock market crash through the early '50s. As Patrick grows up, Mame helps him to experience life to the fullest, whether in a Prohibition speakeasy or at a Southern plantation. The musical features the all-stops-out production number "Mame" and the well-known songs "If He Walked Into My Life" and "We Need a Little Christmas."

Prowse enthusiastically describes Mame Dennis: "She's a wonderful character to play. She's very unbiased, a very live-and-let-live person. She's experienced life to the hilt — as much as she can without destroying herself."

The actress looks forward to "Mame" 's national tour, which began in Springfield, Ill., and will last 14 weeks. "It's a wonderful role. I'm onstage the entire show; you don't have time to sit in your dressing room and think about anything else except what you're going to be doing. You get a wonderful response from the audience; it's very rewarding. I couldn't imagine traveling in a show that I didn't enjoy doing. That must be miserable!"

"She's a wonderful character — a very live-and-let-live person."

Juliet Prowse,
on her role in "Mame"

Craig Hartley

Although she anticipates the tour, Prowse admits it will be a demanding 14 weeks. "This is going to be a hard tour, because we do a week in every city." She plans to devise an exercise program, for anyone in the company who wants to join her, to keep bodies as well as minds occupied. "A lot of times, even though you're working in a show, you're not necessarily keeping yourself properly in shape. I wanted to devise a program that includes yoga and body sculpting work and aerobic work — going for nice long walks at a good clip."

Prowse, who was born in India and reared in South Africa, first considered ballet as a career, and moved to London at the age of 17 for further training. Though "too tall" for the ballet, Prowse continued dancing in the musical theater.

"It was very fortunate for me because I got into the musical world and stayed with it," says Prowse. "It's been very good for me, and I was very good in it. The ballet world is a very hard world to be in. Now I would not want to be in it at all — and I never missed it once I got into the musical theater."

Juliet Prowse ponders the eternal question: Do gentlemen really prefer Hanes? Prowse stars in "Mame," the Broadway musical opening a seven-performance run at Hancher Auditorium this week.

I think all I really wanted to do, and I didn't know it at the time, was be a dancer."

Prowse's early roles included "Gentlemen Marry Brunettes" and "Kismet" in London before her role in the film "Can-Can." Following this success, she played the title role in the original London production of "Mame." Other roles Prowse finds memorable have included Charity in "Sweet Charity" and Phyllis in "Follies." Tickets for "Mame" are $29.50, $27.50 and $24.50, with a 20 percent discount for UI students, and are available at the Hancher Box Office. Box office hours are 11 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. on weekdays, 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday and 1-3 p.m. Sunday. Prowse will lead an informal discussion at 1:30 p.m. Friday in Mabie Theatre; it is free and open to the public.

BUSH-GORBACHEV SUMMIT

"Intolerable" PR

"Sound bites and photo opportunities" — or "The Persian Gulf crisis as an image-enhancing tool for world leaders."

As Dan Rather cordially greeted Saddam Hussein before a televised interview, grinning and vigorously shaking his hand as if Saddam were a lost fraternity brother, the crisis suddenly became a PR event.

As President Bush, from his summer home in Kennebunkport, welcomed world leaders by the busload to ride on his spiffy boat to talk about the crisis, it became a staged media circus.

Now, as Bush and Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev hastily meet in Helsinki for a superpower summit on the issue, the crisis becomes a way for both leaders — each struggling at home — to look good on the network news, if only for a moment.

Over the course of a seven-hour meeting Saturday afternoon, Bush and Gorbachev came to this conclusion: The United States and the Soviet Union are "united in the belief that Iraq's aggression must not be tolerated."

Good. It's nice to see the leaders of the superpowers getting together on an issue of global importance, issuing a brash statement that will surely make Saddam gather up his toys and run home. Why, he's probably halfway back to Baghdad already, mulling over his apology mid-sprint. Or, more realistically, he is snickering to himself at the way everyone is letting him get away with his little game.

What happened to make the leaders of the world act in this fashion? Concern over which 15-second blurb from his rousing speech to the United Hog Farmers' Association will be picked up by the networks is not how one envisions a strong world leader. But in today's world, that seems to be more important than actually doing something.

Sure, it's nice to see President Bush and President Gorbachev on the same side of the fence. With easing Cold War tensions, this should happen with more and more regularity. But this meeting, and the meetings Bush has had with numerous other world leaders, serves as little more than a publicity stunt.

Bush and Gorbachev did discuss some issues: The presence of Soviet military advisers in Iraq, the slackening of the U.N. embargo that has allowed some food imports into Iraq. But nothing very significant or surprising came out of the meeting. Of course both countries find Iraq's aggression "intolerable." Were they to have said that Saddam is kind of annoying, but generally an OK fellow — now that would be news. But if leaders don't go into these important meetings with anything more on their agenda than issuing non-committal joint statements, situations like that in the gulf will reproduce like rabbits.

It was reported that the pope prayed for God to "inspire the two world leaders" during their meeting. But inspiration was not exactly running rampant in Helsinki this Saturday. Maybe he had a bad connection.

U.S. IN THE GULF

Not Vietnam

Every potential U.S. conflict since the end of the Vietnam War has been subjected to the question, "Is this another Vietnam?" Despite cries to the contrary from the left, the U.S. buildup in Saudi Arabia and opposition to Iraqi aggression is not.

The Vietnam War was viewed through the tinted lenses of Cold War ideology. Rather than being seen as the nationalistic civil war that it was, the conflict was viewed by the West as the forces of capitalism versus the forces of communism, or good versus evil.

The Iraqi invasion and annexation of Kuwait, in contrast, was condemned worldwide. The current crisis does have international implications and is deserving of strong U.S. action. The current crisis holds much more importance for the rest of the world than did Vietnam. Vietnam held real implications only for the believers of the Cold War ideology and for the Vietnamese people. But the oil-rich Kuwait desert is important not only to the U.S., but to the rest of the world as well. And safety and peace in the Middle East are valuable for all nations of the world.

Further, Kuwait has not been under colonialism and complete foreign dominance as was Vietnam. Kuwait has proven itself to be a valued American ally in the past. South Vietnam never was. It never had the opportunity to select its friends — it has always been under foreign domination, either at the hands of China, France or the United States. So although the U.S. does have economic reasons for its tough stance, it is also supporting an ally that has proven its loyalty and friendship.

And finally, the fact that the United States has not started a hot war is a stark contrast to the beginnings of the Vietnam War. In Vietnam, the U.S. did not make serious diplomatic efforts to endure a truly united front. President Bush's continued efforts to get all nations of the world to enforce the embargo of Iraq is a vast improvement over the Gulf of Tonkin Resolution. In the current crisis, diplomacy is being used first rather than last.

The U.S. opposition to Saddam Hussein's aggression bears little resemblance to American intervention in Vietnam. The Bush administration has taken an appropriate tough stance, but it has been prudent and cautious as well.

Tenure review: Should committees be required to open deliberations?

Tenure and professorship reviews should not be a game of blind-man's bluff, and opening up the files on all cases of review would guarantee that that won't be the situation.

The tenure review process has surfaced as an issue following the retroactive promotion and payback to associate anatomy professor Jean Jew. Jew was verbally abused and sexually harassed from 1973 to 1985. She was denied tenure because members of her review committee spread rumors about her sexual behavior in her absence. Had she been able to find out what was said, perhaps she could have explained herself. But UI policy prohibited her from learning the nature of her denial until she obtained a subpoena.

This should not have to be. When a promotion is denied, reviewees should be able to find out why. This is the only way to be fair and just to the applicant — and it just makes good sense. Ideally, rejected reviewees can teach, publish, study — do whatever it takes to make themselves worthy of tenure or full professorship.

It is true that in most departments, the dean will explain, in writing or verbally, and often in great detail, why an applicant was denied. But there is no reason this should be left to chance.

The U.S. Supreme Court concurs. A unanimous ruling on Jan. 9 of this year held that if there is any question regarding discrimination in tenure decisions, all relevant documents must be disclosed. This ruling stemmed from Rosalie Tung's complaint against the University of Pennsylvania's Wharton School of Business. The high court subpoenaed the personnel files of Tung and five of her male colleagues who recently received tenure.

But the UI could take a strong stance to avoid even the hint of racism or sexism by opening a file on all tenure application documents.

If a professor on a review committee has determined that an applicant is not qualified to become a peer, she should say so and stand by her decision. If academicians have given up this type of honesty and integrity, who is to be left with it? It can be difficult, but these are the responsibilities of hiring peers, and they must be faced with dignity, not cowardice.

Having all files open allows one to survey the working requirements for each level of promotion, thereby eliminating inappropriate approvals or rejections. Jew's denial was most likely inappropriate, but she had to fight a long battle just to begin the battle of re-proving herself worthy of tenure. If the UI already kept files open, the real question of her abilities could have been addressed promptly, without an embarrassing court battle.

Naturally, a reviewer won't express racism or sexism in decision-making. If these are the motivating factors in denial, they could be (and most likely will be) disguised by relentless attacks on the reviewee's work. Open files will make this kind of nit-picking so obvious that only valid criticism will remain.

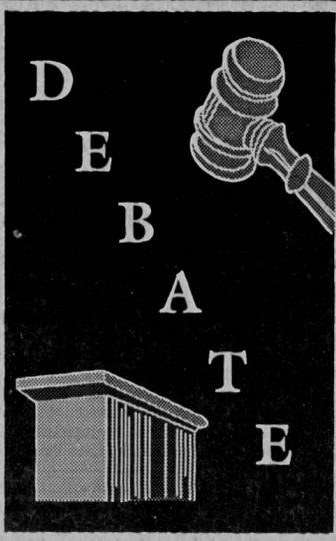

The issue is accountability. Reviewers are accountable to reviewees, other faculty members and their field. They must be thoughtful in their judgment of who is deserving of promotion. This is their responsibility as academicians.

In addition, faculty members are employees of the state. They should not hide behind the banner of freedom; they should be subjected to open criticism and made accountable to others outside the committee. Taxpayers should feel secure in their belief that the state-paid employees are hired in an appropriate manner.

It may seem ridiculous to argue that professors must be fair, honest and objective when reviewing an application for tenure or full professorship. But what is ridiculous is having a system that allows one to be otherwise by hiding behind claims of "academic freedom."

U.S. District Court Judge Harold Vietor agreed in his ruling on the Jew case. "Rights of free speech and academic freedom do not immunize professors from liability for slander or their universities for liability for a hostile work environment generated by sexual-based slander," Vietor said.

To avoid embarrassing lawsuits and to ensure fair and respectable promotion procedure in the future, the UI should move to open the tenure review process.

Jamie Butters
Managing Editor

Despite the swirling controversy surrounding the sexual harassment/defamation trials of UI Associate Professor Jean Jew, the university will do better service to its academic mission if it maintains its current policy of keeping faculty review sessions fully closed.

Jew, an associate professor in anatomy, was awarded retroactive full professorship and commensurate back pay by Judge Harold Vietor in a Des Moines federal court on Aug. 29. The ruling climaxed a five-year court battle with Professor Robert Tomanek and the UI over sexual harassment that occurred between 1973 and 1985.

An order of retroactive promotion is very rare. The ruling stems from the facts surrounding Jew's review in 1985. Vietor reasoned that since some of the faculty involved in the review had also been subjected to 12 years of gossip and rumor, the review could not possibly have been objective. Because they were behind closed doors, the faculty reviewing Jew's case easily could have denied her promotion based upon her alleged sexual relationship with Dr. Terence Williams, head of the anatomy department from 1973 to 1983, and could have passed off the decision by simply citing criticism concerning Jew's research.

This sets the stage for consideration of an overhaul in the peer-review process by which faculty members are awarded tenure and full professorship.

Currently, the reviews are held in closed sessions. Members of the review committee, whether deciding to recommend a promotion to full professor or to grant tenure, examine the faculty member's academic record as well as her efforts in research. Opinions from colleagues, graduate students and experts in the field are solicited. All of the committee's deliberations are kept confidential unless there is a formal complaint, in which case the university must, by law, disclose the records.

The Jew case has led some to argue that the tenure review process should be opened even further, allowing the "reviewee" full access to the committee's deliberations. After all, it was the closure, and the ensuing possibilities of unfair and subjective bias, that led Judge Vietor to award Jew full professorship and back pay.

But a policy of open review would be more of a detriment to the UI's academic environment than even the unfortunate circumstances that plagued Jew for the previous 17 years.

Peer review is difficult enough as it is. It's no easy task to criticize close associates. And when the reviewee has full knowledge of that criticism, and of your comments in particular, the business is made all the more difficult (even frightening for the more timid among us). Imagine having to continue working side-by-side with someone when you were the deciding vote in denying that person promotion. And imagine that he knows the full range of comments that were made while the votes were being cast. Unless you have a great distaste for that particular associate, or unless you have an uncanny ability to avoid worry about the inevitable "payback," the thoughts reek of unpleasantness.

An open tenure review process means only that frank and earnest discussion will be sacrificed for the sake of a more pleasant working environment. It's human nature. Not only will the review committee members be tempted to avoid valid criticism of a colleague, but solicited opinions will be less candid. How many graduate students are going to denounce an associate professor with whom they work?

It follows that undeserving, unqualified instructors will be granted tenure, and the UI will suffer a steady decline in quality. This institution's pursuit of academic excellence will be hampered.

Ah, but what of the Jew case? Admittedly, closed sessions can backfire, creating an atmosphere of slanderous and hostile dialogue. Just as an open session can result in a wrongful promotion, a closed session threatens, as it did in Jew's case, to prevent deserving promotions.

But the Jew case does not provide substantial grounds to risk the harms of an open review process. First, the case itself and the recent rulings should be a strong enough deterrent to prevent similar incidents in the future. Second, the UI administration, after this embarrassment and the recent Student Senate spending fiasco, will make a more serious effort to police its internal affairs. Finally, hostile associates' comments probably will have been disguised with a veneer of rationality and objectivity — biased feelings and thoughts will be impossible to detect, even with an open review process.

The Jew case is an anomaly. To cite it as sufficient reason to open tenure review sessions and to risk steady decline in educational quality at an institution whose enrollment is already falling would be to strike a serious blow to the future of the UI.

Runaway rail cars, locomotive collide

PICO RIVERA, Calif. — Fourteen runaway railroad cars collided with a locomotive Sunday, knocking down power lines and causing a small fire, authorities said. Nine of the cars derailed, one inches from a home here.

No one was injured, and none of the Southern Pacific cars carried hazardous materials, said Andy Anderson, a spokesman for Southern Pacific in San Francisco.

One of the derailed cars came to rest inches from a home, and 10 houses were evacuated while workers determined that the derailed cars were stable, said Los Angeles County sheriff's Sgt. Pat Fallis.

The Union Pacific locomotive crew was warned of the impending collision and fled the locomotive before the crash, Anderson said.

One car carrying fiber board caught fire, but the blaze was quickly controlled, he said.

The runaway cars apparently were improperly connected to a locomotive in a switching yard about 15 miles northeast of Pico Rivera, Anderson said.

They reached speeds of up to 30 mph before crashing into the locomotive here, about 25 miles east of Los Angeles.

Israeli Soldiers kill Palestinian youth

JERUSALEM — Israeli soldiers shot and killed a Palestinian youth Sunday in the first lethal clash between troops and stone-throwing activists in three weeks, Arab reports said.

The clash in the West Bank village of Beita came as Palestinians throughout the occupied lands observed a general strike marking 33 months since the start of their uprising against Israel.

The military command confirmed that an 18-year-old Arab had been killed in Beita but said the army was checking the cause of death. "He was killed by gunfire of unknown origin in the back," a command spokesman said.

The spokesman added that soldiers had opened fire with rubber bullets to disperse stone-throwing youths in Beita, six miles from the West Bank's largest city of Nablus. It was unclear whether the victim was killed in that clash, the spokesman said.

Palestinian reporters identified the victim as 17-year-old Ahmad Abu Seif, saying he died after soldiers shot him in the chest while chasing a group of stone-throwers into a field in Beita.

About 2,000 villagers later buried the teen-ager in a nighttime funeral, his body draped in a black, green, red and white Palestinian flag, the reporters added.

Abu Seif was the 729th Palestinian killed by Israelis during the revolt that began Dec. 8, 1987.

Mother Teresa: Re-election God's plan

CALCUTTA, India — Mother Teresa, whose wish to retire was rejected by nuns from around the world, said Sunday her re-election as head of her charity was part of God's "own plans."

The balloting was to have been a vote to choose a successor to the frail, 80-year-old nun who is known as the "saint of the gutters" for her work with the destitute and the poor.

"I was expecting to be free, but God has his own plans," Mother Teresa said when she met reporters for the first time after Saturday's election.

The Nobel Peace Prize laureate withdrew her decision to step down as superior general of the Missionaries of Charity after ballots were cast by 103 delegates summoned from missions around the globe.

Calcutta's Vicar General Monsignor Francis Gomes, who presided over the secret balloting, said Mother Teresa had little choice but to accept the unanimous vote.

Mother Teresa said she had been firm on stepping down — until the balloting forced her to change her decision. "These things cannot be decided beforehand," she said.

In March, Pope John Paul II said he was bowing to Mother Teresa's wish to retire from the top post of the order she founded. He had rejected her earlier requests to step aside.

Mother Teresa suffered a nearly fatal heart attack a year ago. She returned to work but asked for retirement within a few months.

Asked if she would slow down her pace of work, Mother Teresa replied, "We have sisters who are capable of helping."

But she said she would continue to travel according to the needs of her group.

Mother Teresa was elected to a further six-year term.

The Yugoslav-born Roman Catholic nun began her work in earnest for the poor and helpless 43 years ago in the gutters of Calcutta, India's most densely populated city in the eastern state of West Bengal.

Opponents attempt to discredit Bhutto

By Sharon Herbaugh
The Associated Press

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan — Her opponents are determined to have Benazir Bhutto remembered as the disgraced leader of Pakistan's most corrupt and incompetent government, not as a martyr for democracy.

When she was dismissed after 20 months in office, they set out to destroy what some called "the myth" — that only a Bhutto could govern Pakistan.

In removing the prime minister and her democratically elected government Aug. 6, President Ghulam Ishaq Khan cited a long list of complaints ranging from corruption and ineptitude to abuse of power.

Benazir Bhutto called it "a constitutional coup" by the Establishment, a reference to the generals who formerly ruled Pakistan and still have enormous influence.

A caretaker government made up largely of defected allies and bitter critics of Benazir Bhutto has hurled charge after charge to an effort to discredit her Pakistan People's Party, which was founded by her father. Some say her enemies are trying to force her out of politics.

Three former Cabinet ministers have been charged in special courts set up to handle corruption cases and to disqualify candidates from elections called for Oct. 24, three years ahead of schedule.

The new government has said at least half a dozen more cases will be filed, possibly against Benazir Bhutto.

Many Pakistanis see the tribunals as "kangaroo courts" evoking memories of the process her father, Prime Minister Zulfikar Ali Bhutto, underwent 13 years ago after Gen. Mohammad Zia ul-Haq overthrew him. Bhutto was hanged two years later.

"There are glaring similarities with 1977, but there also are differences," Benazir Bhutto said in a recent interview at her fortress-like home in Karachi. "The wind of democracy has come across the world. There is a new future ahead, and it will not be easy for them to drag Pakistan backward." Opponents have not presented concrete evidence to support their charges, and the family name still carries much of its old magic for many. Wherever she goes, Benazir Bhutto draws large crowds that chant "Benazir, Benazir is innocent!"

Benazir Bhutto
Opponents work to discredit

Since its creation as a Muslim homeland 43 years ago, when the Indian subcontinent became independent of Britain, Pakistan has endured three wars, three internal insurgencies and three military dictators.

Two prime ministers, a president, several high-ranking generals and countless politicians and religious leaders have been assassinated. Thirteen governments have been dismissed and three constitutions written.

"Many are wondering whether there is something sick, something terminal festering deep down in the political soul of Pakistan," said political analyst Akbar Ahmed. "It is a cycle of despair, military rule and terror, civilian rule, and anarchy."

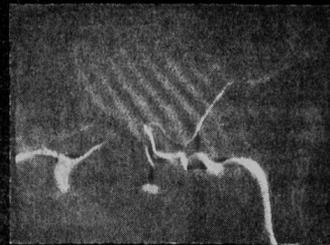

Nobody said it would be easy to lead this volatile country of 110 million out of the social and economic problems a decade of martial law created, but never was such a legacy of admiration and good will squandered so swiftly.

Congratulations to our Fabulous new pledges!!

THE UNIVERSITY OF IOWA POLICY ON SEXUAL HARASSMENT AND CONSENSUAL RELATIONSHIPS

Division 1. Sexual Harassment

Section 1. RATIONALE.

(a) Sexual harassment is reprehensible and will not be tolerated by the University. It subverts the mission of the University and threatens the careers, educational experience, and well-being of students, faculty, and staff. Relationships involving sexual harassment or discrimination have no place within the University. In both obvious and subtle ways, the very possibility of sexual harassment is destructive to individual students, faculty, staff, and the academic community as a whole. When, through fear of reprisal, a student, staff member, or faculty member submits or is pressured to submit to unwanted sexual attention, the University's ability to carry out its mission is undermined.

(b) Sexual harassment is especially serious when it threatens relationships between teacher and student or supervisor and subordinate. In such situations, sexual harassment exploits unfairly the power inherent in a faculty member's or supervisor's position. Through grades, wage increases, recommendations for graduate study, promotion, and the like, a teacher or supervisor can have a decisive influence on a student's, staff member's, or faculty member's career at the University and beyond.

(c) While sexual harassment most often takes place in situations of a power differential between the persons involved, the University also recognizes that sexual harassment may occur between persons of the same University status. The University will not tolerate behavior between or among members of the University community that creates an unacceptable working or educational environment.

Section 2. PROHIBITED ACTS.

No member of the University community shall engage in sexual harassment. For the purposes of this policy, sexual harassment is defined as unwelcome advances, requests for sexual favors, or other verbal or physical conduct of a sexual nature when

(a) Submission to such conduct is made explicitly or implicitly a term or condition of an individual's employment or status in a course, program, or activity;

(b) Submission to or rejection of such conduct is used as a basis for an employment or educational decision affecting an individual; or

(c) Such conduct has the purpose or effect of unreasonably interfering with an individual's work or educational performance or of creating an intimidating, hostile, or offensive environment for work or learning.

Section 3. EXAMPLES OF SEXUAL HARASSMENT.

Sexual harassment encompasses any sexual attention that is unwanted. Examples of the verbal or physical conduct prohibited by Section 2 above include, but are not limited to

(a) Physical assault;

(b) Direct or implied threats that submission to sexual advances will be a condition of employment, work status, promotion, grades, or letters of recommendation;

(c) Direct propositions of a sexual nature;

(d) Subtle pressure for sexual activity, an element of which may be conduct such as repeated and unwanted staring;

(e) A pattern of conduct (not legitimately related to the subject matter of a course if one is involved) intended to discomfort or humiliate, or both, that includes one or more of the following: (i) comments of a sexual nature; or (ii) sexually explicit statements, questions, jokes, or anecdotes;

(f) A pattern of conduct that would discomfort or humiliate, or both, a reasonable person at whom the conduct was directed that includes one or more of the following: (i) unnecessary touching, patting, hugging, or brushing against a person's body; (ii) remarks of a sexual nature about a person's clothing or body; or (iii) remarks about sexual activity or speculations about previous sexual experience.

Section 4. ISOLATED AND INADVERTENT OFFENSES.

(a) Members of the University community who, without establishing a pattern of doing so, engage in isolated conduct of the kind described in Subsections 3(e) and (f) or who exhibit a pattern of engaging in such conduct but fail to realize that their actions discomfort or humiliate demonstrate insensitivity that necessitates remedial measures. When University administrators become aware that such activities are occurring in their areas, they should direct that those engaged in such conduct undertake an educational program designed to help them understand the harm they are doing.

(b) If, after participating in the educational program or failing to participate after being directed to do so, a person continues to engage in the conduct described in Subsection 4(a), he or she will be deemed to have engaged in a pattern of conduct intended to discomfort or humiliate the one at whom the actions or statements are directed.

Division 2. Consensual Relationships

Section 5. DEFINITION.

As used in this division, the terms faculty or faculty member mean all those who teach at the University and include graduate students with teaching responsibilities and other instructional personnel.

Section 6. RATIONALE.

(a) The University's educational mission is promoted by professionalism in faculty-student relationships. Professionalism is fostered by an atmosphere of mutual trust and respect. Actions of faculty members and students that harm this atmosphere undermine professionalism and hinder fulfillment of the University's educational mission. Trust and respect are diminished when those in positions of authority abuse or appear to abuse their power. Those who abuse or appear to abuse their power in such a context violate their duty to the University community.

(b) Faculty members exercise power over students, whether in giving them praise or criticism, evaluating them, making recommendations for their further studies or their future employment, or conferring any other benefits on them. Amorous relationships between faculty members and students are wrong when the faculty member has professional responsibility for the student. Such situations greatly increase the chances that the faculty member will abuse his or her power and sexually exploit the student. Voluntary consent by the student in such a relationship is suspect, given the fundamentally asymmetric nature of the relationship. Moreover, other students and faculty may be affected by such unprofessional behavior because it places the faculty member in a position to favor or advance one student's interest at the expense of others and implicitly makes obtaining benefits contingent on amorous or sexual favors. Therefore, the University will view it as unethical if faculty members engage in amorous relations with students enrolled in their classes or subject to their supervision, even when both parties appear to have consented to the relationship.

Section 7. CONSENSUAL RELATIONSHIPS IN THE INSTRUCTIONAL CONTEXT.

No faculty member shall have an amorous relationship (consensual or otherwise) with a student who is enrolled in a course being taught by the faculty member or whose academic work (including work as a teaching assistant) is being supervised by the faculty member.

Section 8. CONSENSUAL RELATIONSHIPS OUTSIDE THE INSTRUCTIONAL CONTEXT.

Amorous relationships between faculty members and students occurring outside the instructional context may lead to difficulties. Particularly when the faculty member and student are in the same academic unit or in units that are academically allied, relationships that the parties view as consensual may appear to others to be exploitative. Further, in such situations (and others that cannot be anticipated), the faculty member may face serious conflicts of interest and should be careful to distance himself or herself from any decisions that may reward or penalize the student involved. A faculty member who fails to withdraw from participation in activities or decisions that may reward or penalize a student with whom the faculty member has or has had an amorous relationship will be deemed to have violated his or her ethical obligation to the student, to other students, to colleagues, and to the University.

Section 9. FILING OF COMPLAINT.

A complaint alleging violations of Division 2 may be filed by any person, or the process may be initiated by the vice-president for academic affairs.

Division 3. Procedures

Section 10. INFORMAL COMPLAINT.

(a) At the complainant's option, a complaint that one or more provisions of this policy have been violated may be brought to any appropriate member of the University community, including any academic or administrative officer of the University such as the director of affirmative action; the vice-president for student services; the associate dean of the faculties; the associate vice-president for finance and university services; any collegiate dean, director, supervisor, department head, ombudsperson, or adviser; and departments or organizations like the Women's Resource and Action Center and the Rape Victim Advocacy Program.

(b) The person to whom the complaint is brought will counsel the complainant as to the options available under this policy and, at the complainant's request, (i) may help the complainant resolve the complaint informally and/or (ii) help the complainant draft a formal complaint if the complainant decides to follow that route.

(c) The person to whom the informal complaint is brought will not inform the accused of the complainant's action without the consent of the complainant.

Section 11. INVESTIGATION PRIOR TO FORMAL ACTION.

(a) A complainant wishing to make a formal complaint and have it pursued should file it with the Office of Affirmative Action, which will consult with the appropriate administrative officer to determine the method by which the investigation will be conducted.

(b) The purpose of the investigation is to establish whether there is a reasonable basis for believing that the alleged violation of this policy has occurred. In conducting the investigation, the appropriate administrator may interview the complainant, the accused, and other persons believed to have pertinent factual knowledge. At all times, the administrator conducting the investigation will take steps to ensure confidentiality.

(c) The investigation will afford the accused a full opportunity to respond to the allegations.

(d) Possible outcomes of the investigation are (i) a judgment that the allegations are not warranted; (ii) a negotiated settlement of the complaint; or (iii) institution of formal action described in succeeding sections of this policy.

Section 12. PROCESS OF TAKING FORMAL ACTION.

(a) If after reviewing the report of the investigator the appropriate administrative official, as described in Subsection (b) of this section, concludes that there is a reasonable basis for believing that the alleged violation of this policy has occurred and a negotiated settlement cannot be reached, formal action will be taken.

(b) The decision to take formal action in cases in which

(i) a faculty member, graduate assistant, or other instructional personnel has been charged will be made by the chief academic officer of the University, currently the vice-president for academic affairs or that person's designee;

(ii) a staff member has been charged will be made by the vice-president responsible for the unit employing the person charged or that person's designee;

(iii) a student has been charged will be made by the chief administrative officer of the University in charge of student affairs, currently the vice-president for student services or that person's designee.

Section 13. FORMAL ACTION.

Except as specifically modified by other provisions of this policy, formal action involving allegations of

(a) Violations of this policy by faculty members will be governed by the General Faculty Dispute Procedures (see University Operations Manual Sec. 20.260) and the portion of the procedures dealing with faculty ethics (Sec. 20.266).

(i) Upon motion from one of the parties made before the start of the hearing process, the hearing panel shall close all or part of any hearing held under this policy. Upon motion from one of the parties after the hearing has started or from some other interested party, the hearing panel may close all or part of a hearing held under this procedure.

(b) Violations of this policy by staff members will be taken by the vice-president (or designee) responsible for the unit employing the accused staff member. Appeals from any formal disciplinary action against a professional and scientific staff member are governed by Section 20.311 of the University Operations Manual. Organized merit staff have access to a contractual grievance procedure, and nonorganized merit staff have a procedure available under Regents Merit System rules;

(c) Violations of this policy by graduate assistants will be governed by the procedure for dismissal of graduate assistants (University Operations Manual Sec. 20.230);

(d) Violations of this policy by students will be governed by Judicial Procedure for Alleged Violations of the Code of Student Life. (Both the Code of Student Life and the Judicial Procedure are published and distributed to students annually in "Policies and Regulations Affecting Students.")

Section 14. PROTECTION OF COMPLAINANT AND OTHERS.

(a) Investigations of complaints will be initiated only with the complainant's consent. The complainant will be informed fully of steps taken during the investigation.

(b) All reasonable action will be taken to assure that the complainant and those testifying on behalf of the complainant or supporting the complainant in other ways will suffer no retaliation as the result of their activities in regard to the process. Steps to avoid retaliation might include

(i) lateral transfers of one or more of the parties in an employment setting and a comparable move if a classroom setting is involved, and

(ii) arrangements that academic and/or employment evaluations concerning the complainant or others be made by an appropriate individual other than the accused.

(c) In extraordinary circumstances, after consulting the presiding officer of the Faculty Judicial Commission, the vice-president for academic affairs may, at any time during or after an investigation of a sexual harassment complaint, suspend from teaching responsibilities any faculty member or teaching assistant accused of sexual harassment if, after reviewing the allegations and interviewing the accused, the complainant, and, if it seems appropriate, some others enrolled in the class, the vice-president finds that it is reasonably certain that (i) the alleged sexual harassment has occurred and (ii) serious and immediate harm will ensue if the person continues to teach the class.

Section 15. PROTECTION OF THE ACCUSED.

(a) At the time the investigation commences, the accused will be informed of the allegations, the identity of the complainant, and the facts surrounding the allegations.

(b) In the event the allegations are not substantiated, all reasonable steps will be taken to restore the reputation of the accused if it was damaged by the proceeding.

(c) A complainant found to have been intentionally dishonest in making the allegations or to have made them maliciously is subject to University discipline.

Section 16. PROTECTING BOTH PARTIES.

(a) To the extent possible, the proceedings will be conducted in a way calculated to protect the confidentiality interests of both parties.

(b) After the investigation, the parties will be informed of the facts developed in the course of the investigation.

(c) The parties will be informed promptly about the outcome of the proceedings.

Division 4. Educational Programs

Section 17. EDUCATION AS A KEY ELEMENT OF UNIVERSITY POLICY.

Educational efforts are essential to the establishment of a campus milieu that is as free as possible of sexual harassment (Division 1) and in which high standards of conduct in consensual relationships (Division 2) are observed. There are at least four goals to be achieved through education: (1) ensuring that all victims (and potential victims) are aware of their rights; (2) notifying individuals of conduct that is proscribed; (3) informing administrators about the proper way to address complaints of violations of this policy; and (4) helping educate the insensitive about the problems this policy addresses.

Section 18. PREPARATION AND DISSEMINATION OF INFORMATION.

(a) The Office of Affirmative Action is charged with distributing copies of this policy to all current members of the University community and to all those who join the community in the future. An annual letter from the Office of Affirmative Action will be sent to all faculty and staff to remind them of the contents of the University's Human Rights Policy, including the provisions added to it by this policy. A copy of the Human Rights Policy will be included in student orientation materials, including those distributed to students in professional schools. In addition, copies of that policy will be made continuously available at appropriate campus centers and offices.

(b) The Office of Affirmative Action will develop a series of training sessions for persons who are likely to receive complaints that this policy has been violated, including, but not being limited to, such persons as residence hall resident advisers, academic advisers, supervisors, and University and collegiate ombudspersons. Academic departments are encouraged to provide training sessions for graduate assistants and other instructional personnel.

(c) The Office of Affirmative Action will develop a course designed to inform those who inadvertently violate this policy (Section 4) of the problems they create by their insensitive conduct. The course shall be mandated for those in violation of Section 4 and may be an element in the settlement of a complaint. It also may be mandated for persons found to have violated this policy.

Hawkeyes teach lesson in staying unbeaten

By Jay Nanda
The Daily Iowan

Following Sunday's field hockey game between Iowa and Massachusetts at the Hawkeye Field Hockey Field, the Hawkeyes held an instructional clinic for fans of all ages. But it was the lesson of poise they gave to the Minutewomen moments before that got the crowd's attention.

The Hawkeyes extended their record to 5-0 with a hard-fought 1-0 victory over Massachusetts after disposing of Ball State in Friday's home-opener by a 4-0 count.

Iowa had numerous scoring opportunities against Massachusetts, but it was Kris Fillat's goal off a rebound with 5:20 remaining in the game that proved to be enough.

The Hawkeyes registered 18 penalty corners in the contest, as opposed to three for the Minutewomen, and it was off of one of those corners that Iowa executed.

Junior Lisa Sweeney put the ball in play at the top of the circle to junior stopper Kerry Horgan. Horgan then laid the ball to rest for sophomore Kristy Gleason, who rifled a shot off of the post. After a scramble in front of the goal, Fillat banged home the rebound past U-Mass goalie Philippa Scott and into the upper right-hand corner of the net.

"It happened so fast," Fillat said of the game-winner. "Kristy had a rocket of a shot and it hit (Scott's pad). Then someone hit it and I hit it off of her chest and into the goal."

"I was getting nervous towards the end," the San Diego native continued. "But when you get that many corners, one is just going to go in."

Iowa started the contest in a way that they have grown accustomed to — by taking control.

In the opening minute of action, Fillat intercepted a pass and dribbled down the right side of the field before sliding a pass over to Sweeney. Scott was caught out of position but Sweeney was unable to put the ball in.

Then with 4:40 left in the first half, Gleason and junior Jibs Thorson worked a give-and-go off a penalty corner, but Scott was equal to the task, as she stopped Gleason with a point-blank save.

Despite outshooting Massachusetts 14-3 in the opening 35 minutes, Coach Beth Beglin and the Hawkeyes found themselves in a scoreless dual at the intermission. But Beglin cited her team's patience as playing an important role in the outcome.

"We had our opportunities and I thought the team did a good job of keeping their poise even when they didn't score," Beglin said. "The thing that you become concerned about is when we're not scoring, (the players) become disheartened or start to get frustrated. But the team didn't do that at all."

"There was a time in the first half when we weren't scoring and U-Mass came down a couple of times that I thought the team had shifted into a 'let's-play-not-to-lose-this-game' mode and I was very concerned about that. "We talked about that at halftime and I think we were quicker to the ball in the second half."

While the Hawkeyes remained unbeaten for the season, the Minutewomen suffered their first loss of 1990 on Sunday.

"We're disappointed because we didn't tie or win," U-Mass coach Pam Hixon said. "(But) I think our defense played fairly strong. We really had to worry about Kris Fillat and Kristy Gleason. They've got more speed than your average collegiate field hockey player."

That speed came to a sudden stop for Gleason with 14:34 remaining in the game, when she tumbled on the Astroturf and stayed down, causing play to be stopped momentarily. The crowd of 282 looked on anxiously, but were soon relieved when the sophomore rose to her feet and stayed in the game.

"I was going for the ball and I ended up stepping on it and got tangled with (the defender's) stick," Gleason said. "But it was alright and I just shook it off."

Although the 1-0 game was Iowa's closest of the young season, Gleason said she wasn't worried about how things would turn out.

"We knew we were confident coming in," Gleason continued, "but then again, we knew they were a great team and when two great teams battle each other, usually the better team comes out on top. That's what happened today."

And the meek shall inherit the NFL. For one day. Opening day.

The Dallas Cowboys, whose rapid descent reached its lowest point with a 1-15 record last season, equaled that victory total Sunday with a 17-14 win over San Diego.

Atlanta, wearing its black uniforms for the first time under new coach Jerry Glanville, wore out the Houston Oilers, Glanville's former team, 47-27.

And Tampa Bay, which had won 14 times in three years under Ray Perkins, rode the passing of Vinny Testaverde and a sack-happy defense to a 38-21 decision at Detroit.

Redskins 31, Cardinals 0
The shutout was Washington's second straight — it beat Seattle 29-0 to conclude the 1989 season.

The Redskins' defense supplied three interceptions of Timm Rosenbach that set up touchdowns and one returned by Alvin Walton for a 67-yard score.

Mark Rypien threw three touchdowns passes for Washington.

Bears 17, Seahawks 0
At Chicago, the Bears sacked Dave Krieg twice on the Seahawks' first series, then turned intercepted passes into two first-half scores.

Neal Anderson got two touchdowns and rushed for 101 yards, and Jim Harbaugh completed 21 of 29 passes for 203 yards.

The defense did not allow the Seahawks inside the Chicago 45. Seattle managed 132 yards on offense, 58 rushing and 74 passing. Dave Krieg was 12 of 27 for 91 yards.

Bengals 25, Jets 20
Bruce Coslet, who helped build the potent offense in Cincinnati, returned there as coach of the Jets. And his new team was burned by his old attack.

After the Jets took a 10-point lead, the Bengals came back for 15 fourth-quarter points in 7½ minutes. Jim Breech kicked two field goals, David Fulcher sacked Ken O'Brien in the end zone and Boomer Esiason had a 3-yard TD pass to James Brooks.

Al Toon caught a pair of scoring passes for the Jets, but New York paid for an inability to score on three plays from the 1.

U.S. Open champion Pete Sampras returns a shot to Andre Agassi during the tournament's finals Sunday. Sampras became the youngest U.S. Open champion in history with the 6-4, 6-3, 6-2 victory.

Sampras serves up Open title

By Steve Wilstein
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Teen-ager Pete Sampras, who drives his parents so crazy when he plays that they can't watch him, drove Andre Agassi absolutely batty Sunday to become the youngest U.S. Open champion in history.

Sampras played a dream match, aching Agassi 13 times and hitting 12 service winners with serves up to 124 mph in a 6-4, 6-3, 6-2 slaughter on stadium court.

Agassi lacked the power and accuracy he showed in beating Boris Becker in the semifinals, but he was simply overwhelmed by Sampras's huge serves, deep groundstrokes and acrobatic play at the net.

"When you can hit a serve 120 mph on the line, there's not a lot (anyone) can do," Agassi said. "This was just an old-fashioned street mugging."

Sampras had too many skills, volleying with his long arms and legs covering the entire net, his racket cutting through the air like a fencer's foil.

"This is the ultimate in tennis," he said. "Whatever I do the rest of my career, I'll always be a U.S. Open champion."

At 19 years, 28 days, Sampras became the youngest U.S. men's champion, replacing Oliver S. Campbell, who won the title 100 years ago at 19 years, 6 months, 9 days.

No. 12 Sampras also is the lowest seeded player to win the U.S. title since unseeded Fred Stolle beat John Newcombe in the 1966 final.

Sampras's first Grand Slam victory couldn't have been fashioned more stylishly or completed more efficiently.

His graceful, looping groundstrokes kept Agassi pinned behind the baseline or scurrying from side to side in desperate dashes.

The tenor of the match was evident when Sampras opened the second game with an ace. Two points later, the crowd of more than 20,000 giggled at the speed of Sampras's serve when his first serve, an inch long, sped past Agassi and nearly decapitated a linesman. Sampras loaded up again and smacked a service winner.

Sampras broke him in the next game when Agassi netted a backhand and floated a forehand long on the final two points. Sampras let go with his full force, holding service with three straight aces and drawing loud, respectful applause and whistles from the crowd.

"I'm serving so well, it puts a seed in the other guy's mind. Play one bad game and the set could be over," Sampras said. "Today was the best I could possibly play, and it couldn't be at a better time. I controlled the match and dictated the play."

Agassi never broke him, and came close only three times in the third set when he had break-points in each of Sampras's first two services.

Each time, though, Sampras responded by calmly coming back to hold, winning the first game of the set with two service winners and the third game with a lunging backhand volley on a forehand pass attempt by Agassi.

That was the extent of the tension in the match, the only moments when fans who came to cheer the neon-green clad, long-haired 20-year-old Agassi had a chance to shout. At the end of that game, a fan yelled, "Wake up, Agassi," but clearly it was too late, and everyone, including Agassi knew it.

Sampras broke him at love to take a 4-2 lead, closing out the set and, for all it meant, the match with a blazing backhand down the line while Agassi stared at it with a look of exasperation.

Sampras's final visit to the service line produced another spectacle, a forehand volley winner, a service winner and a pair of aces. All that remained was for Agassi to surrender, and that he did immediately, his last ball tapped meekly back to the net.

Frustrated Iowa finally enjoys one

By Brian Gaul
The Daily Iowan

After four matches of frustration, the Iowa volleyball team finally had some fun Sunday.

The Hawkeyes dropped a five-game match to intrastate rival Iowa State Saturday in the first round of the All-Iowa Championship in Hilton Coliseum in Ames. But Iowa came back to defeat Drake in four games in the consolation match Sunday.

"We had more fun than we've had this year," freshman Christy Janssen said after Sunday's match. "The first four matches weren't fun ... the team wasn't working well, it wasn't gelling. We stayed motivated today."

The 15-9, 11-15, 15-7, 15-7 victory was Iowa's first of the season after four consecutive losses. Drake fell to 0-6.

"It feels pretty good right now," said middle hitter Barb Willis, who recorded 17 kills in the game. "We started kind of slowly ... (Iowa assistant coach) Maureen (Marek) worked with a lot of different lineups. That gave us a breather and we came back more excited."

One particular substitution may have been the turning point against Drake. Marek, who was filling in for head coach Ruth Nelson, put six new players into the second-game starting lineup after Iowa's first-game win.

The Hawkeyes lost the game 15-11, but Iowa's starters came back to record 15-7 victories in the third and fourth games.

"That's not necessarily something I wanted to do," Marek said of the substitution. "I was trying to find six people to go out and work together."

"We were able to look at things from a different perspective during the second game," Janssen said. "In the third and fourth games, we played a different pace. We played our game instead of theirs."

Janssen was one of two Hawkeyes to hit over 400 in the match, with 11 kills and a .450 hitting percentage. Junior Trista Schoenbeck hit 440 with 14 kills.

Senior Ruth Spethman, who is recovering from tendonitis and was limited to backcourt duty during Iowa's trip to California, recorded 12 kills and 24 digs against Drake. "We knew we needed a win," Willis said. "Right now everyone's fired up."

Saturday, the Hawkeyes battled back after losing the first two games to Iowa State but fell short as the Cyclones won 15-9, 16-14, 8-15, 7-15, 15-8.

Willis led the team with 15 kills and six blocks in the match but said she wasn't pleased with her overall effort.

"I felt like I was stuck," the 6-foot-1 senior said. "I was hitting after Iowa's first-game win."

Dodgers squeeze into NL West race

The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — Alfredo Griffin drove in the go-ahead run with a fifth-inning squeeze bunt as Los Angeles reduced Cincinnati's lead to 6½ games in the NL West with a 6-4 victory.

Ramon Martinez (7-6) won for only the second time in six starts, increasing his record against the NL West to 10-0 this year. Cincinnati third baseman Bill Doran made two errors that led to a pair of unearned runs.

Martinez allowed eight hits in his ninth complete game, the most in the majors.

Expos 9, Pirates 5
The Pittsburgh Pirates lost Sunday but didn't lose any ground to the New York Mets.

Andres Galarraga and Mike Fitzgerald homered as the Montreal Expos took an early four-run lead and went on to beat Pittsburgh 9-5.

Phillies 6, Mets 2
PHILADELPHIA — Dickie Thon broke an 0-for-21 slide with a go-ahead double in a four-run, seven-hit seventh inning, and New York lost for the sixth time in seven games.

Pat Combs (7-9) and Joe Boever combined on a five-hitter to lead the Phillies to their fourth victory over the Mets in their last five games. Boever pitched two perfect innings for his 12th save.

Giants 5, Astros 1
SAN FRANCISCO — Kevin Mitchell drove in three runs and Mark Portugal (8-10) lost to San Francisco for the first time in six career decisions.

Mitchell, who began the game in an 0-for-16 slump, hit an RBI single with two outs in the first and a two-out, two-run homer in the sixth, his 33rd home run of the season. It tied him with Ryne Sandberg of the Chicago Cubs for the National League lead.

Rangers 6, Royals 5
ARLINGTON, Texas — Steve Farr's bases-loaded walk to Pete Incaviglia with two outs in the ninth inning lifted Texas past Kansas City.

George Brett went 2-for-4 with four RBIs for the Royals, raising his batting average to .323. Brett was 7-for-15 with five RBIs in the four-game series and 17-for-40 on the road trip.

Blue Jays 6, White Sox 1
TORONTO — Fred McGriff and Greg Myers hit consecutive home runs in a four-run sixth inning as Toronto beat Chicago 6-1 Sunday to move within 4½ games of Boston in the American League East.

The slumping White Sox made a season-high four errors in losing for the third straight day to the Blue Jays.

Mariners 3, Red Sox 1
BOSTON — Matt Young gave up one run in seven innings and tied a major league record with four strikeouts in the first inning as Seattle beat Boston.

The loss reduced Boston's lead over second-place Toronto to 4½ games in the American League

Law signs with Globetrotters

The Daily Iowan

Former Iowa basketball player Jollette Law has become the eighth woman to play for the Harlem Globetrotters.

Law signed a one-year contract Friday at the team's training camp in Orlando, Fla. Details of the contract were not released.

A 5-foot-4 guard from Florence, S.C., Law was the Hawkeyes' second-leading scorer last season, averaging 14.6 points per game while dishing out a team-leading 4.2 assists per game.

Those stats earned Law first-team all-Big Ten honors in 1990 — the second consecutive year she was on the first team.

She was also named to the Amana-Hawkeye Classic, Louisiana Tech Dial Soap Classic and Hilton Head Island Super Shoot-out all-tournament teams in 1989.

The Globetrotters are divided into two squads — national and international. Each team includes one woman and both travel internationally.

Law has been assigned to the national team which is scheduled to leave the U.S. Sept. 13 for a three-month tour of Mexico, Puerto Rico, Australia and the Far East. It is expected to return to the U.S. in December.

The first woman to play for the Globetrotters was Lynette Woodard, a former all-American at Kansas.

On Friday the Hawkeyes squad also came out on top.
 This time, the Cardinals of Ball State were at Iowa's mercy, thanks to a pair of goals each from Fillat and freshman Heather Bryant.
 Fillat opened the scoring with 6:06 to go in the first period off of a penalty corner. After receiving a pass from Sweeney, Horgan allowed Gleason to fake a shot before shoveling a pass to Fillat. The junior, who now leads the Hawkeyes with eight goals on the season, then blasted the game-winner past Cardinal goaltender Kellie Rowker.
 At the 33:14 mark, Bryant netted her first collegiate goal, off another corner, with Sweet-

"We were playing well at times, and at times we needed to work on our fundamentals," Marek said.
 "We need an overall team effort—all six people and all the people coming off the bench to come in at a consistently high level."
 The Hawkeyes will continue their early-season road schedule with matches at Southwest Texas State and No. 4 Texas next Saturday and Sunday. Willis said that Sunday's win should give the Hawkeyes more confidence entering those matches.

 "We learned we can have fun and do well," the Camanche, Iowa, native said. "We're not down on ourselves any more."

 "I think now that they got the first (victory) and we can start doing the things we want to do as a program," Marek said. "We're not so concerned with opponents as how well they've played."

East. Toronto beat Chicago, 6-1. Athletics 7, Yankees 3
NEW YORK—Oakland completed the first season sweep ever against the New York Yankees — and only the fourth in major-league history — winning on Willie McGee's tie-breaking, two-run triple in the ninth inning.
 The Athletics won all 12 games against the Yankees this year and outscored them 62-12. Oakland joined Kansas City in 1988 (12-0 against Baltimore), Baltimore in 1978 (11-0 versus Oakland) and Baltimore in 1978 (12-0 against Kansas City) as the only teams to sweep a season series.

Orioles 3, Angels 1
BALTIMORE — Rookie Anthony Telford earned his second major-league victory with 6 1/2 solid innings and Baltimore beat California to complete a three-game sweep.
 The Orioles won their third straight game for the first time since beating Chicago four straight, July 19-22.

Indians 12, Twins 9
MINNEAPOLIS — Candy Maldonado's two-out, seventh-inning double scored the go-ahead runs in Cleveland's seven-run rally to lead the Indians past Minnesota.
 After making three errors and missing several scoring opportunities over the first six innings, the Indians rallied from a 5-1 deficit off starter Mark Guthrie and reliever Jack Savage (0-2) with eight of their season-high 20 hits in the seventh.

Tigers 5, Brewers 0
MILWAUKEE — Scott Aldred gave up four hits over five innings to win his major league debut as Detroit snapped a four-game losing streak by beating Milwaukee.
 Aldred, 6-15 with a 4.90 ERA at Triple-A Toledo, walked five and pitched out of two bases-loaded jams before leaving. Edwin Nunez pitched four innings of two-hit relief for his fifth save.

passes for 157 yards and needing a respite from the heat late in the game.
 Denver was victimized for third-quarter touchdowns by linebacker Jerry Robinson and cornerback Terry McDaniel. Robinson went five yards with an interception of Elway's pass to erase a 6-0 deficit. McDaniel scooped up a fumble by Vance Johnson and returned it 42 yards.
Dolphins 27, Patriots 24
 Dan Marino did something he isn't known for and something that has made him famous in getting Miami's winning touchdown. The often-stationary Marino scrambled to his right before firing to Tony Paige for a 7-yard touchdown with 1:46 to play.
 Marino completed 22 of 34 passes for 255 yards and two touchdowns.

Patriots veteran Steve Grogan, completed 17 of 28 passes for 217 yards and two touchdowns.
Browns 13, Steelers 3
 Last year, Cleveland romped 51-0 at Pittsburgh in the opening game. This time, the Browns, who hadn't won a season-opener at home since 1978, used only defense against punchless Pittsburgh.
 Anthony Blaylock, replacing hold-out cornerback Frank Minnifield, scooped up a fumble by Merrill Hoge and ran 30 yards for his first career touchdown.
 The Steelers outgained the Browns 210 yards to 158.
Bills 26, Colts 10
 At Buffalo, Jeff Norwood kicked four field goals and Jim Kelly hit 28 of 37 passes for 283 yards and a TD. Thurman Thomas, last year's NFL leader in combined yards from scrimmage, ran for 84 yards and caught nine passes worth for 61. He had a 6-yard touchdown run with 1:37 remaining.

 Jeff George, the top pick in the draft, completed 13 of 24 passes for 160 yards and a touchdown for the Colts. He left the game in the fourth quarter with a concussion after a heavy hit from linebacker Cornelius Bennett.
Chiefs 24, Vikings 21
 At Kansas City, the vaunted Vikings defense managed only one sack for six yards and the lack of pressure allowed Kansas City's receivers to get wide open all day.
 It was the Chiefs' defense that made the big plays, even though Wade Wilson had three TD passes for Minnesota and Herschel Walker wound up with 68 yards on 14 carries and 70 yards on five pass receptions.

 Christian Okoye, the 1989 NFL rushing champion, ran for 92 yards and the winning score from the 2 with 2:14 to go.
Packers 36, Rams 24
 Who needs Majik? At Green Bay, the Packers didn't as Anthony Dilweg, given the chance to play by Don Majkowski's 45-day holdout, passed for three touchdowns in his first NFL start. He hit tight end Ed West for two touchdowns and Jeff Query for one. Dilweg completed 20 of 32 passes for 248 yards in outdueling Jim Everett (24-for-40 for 340 yards but with two interceptions.)
 Chris Jacke tied a Packers record with a 53-yard field goal in the third period.

Prior to joining the Iowa staff in the fall of 1986, Broghamer was head baseball and basketball coach at Urbana (Iowa) High School from 1979-86. He served as the high school's athletic director from 1984-87, having a career prep record of 148-81 in baseball.

 Tickets for the Iowa Lettermen's Club reunion banquet at the Highlander Saturday, Sept. 15 can be purchased at 340 Carver-Hawkeye Arena or by phoning (319) 335-9743. Cost is $15 per ticket.
 Five men will be inducted into the Lettermen's Hall of Fame that evening: Charles Brookins, track; Chuck Darling, basketball; Mike Enich, football; Bucky O'Conner, basketball coach; and Paul Brechler, athletic director. Brookins, Enich, and O'Conner are deceased.

two-season winning streak against New York, a span that has seen the Eagles always find a way to win and the Giants always find a way to lose.
 New York seemed ready to continue that trend until Simms issued the wakeup call to the offense, while Lawrence Taylor (three sacks and a forced fumble) and the defense put Randall Cunningham and the Eagles to bed after halftime.
 Simms, 15 of 27 for 149 yards, did most of the damage by sandwiching scoring passes of 12 yards to rookie Rodney Hampton and 41 yards to Mark Ingram around Meggett's dazzling punt return in the first 17 minutes of the half to give New York a 27-10 lead.

MOUNT PLEASANT, Mich. — Darnell Rush scored two touchdowns and Chuck Selinger scored two field goals to help Central Michigan shut out Cincinnati 34-0 Saturday afternoon.
 Eric Stockford scored the first touchdown for Central Michigan (1-1) on a 17-yard pass from Jeff Bender at 10:15 of the second quarter. With 21 seconds to go in the half, Ken Ealy also scored on a 17-yard pass from Bender to make it 13-0.
 Rush ran for a 2-yard touchdown with 11:54 remaining in the third quarter, pushing the lead to 20-0.

Broghamer to replace Petroff
 Scott Broghamer has been named a full-time assistant on the Iowa baseball coaching staff, Athletic Director Bump Elliott announced Friday.
 Broghamer, 38, has been a graduate assistant in the Iowa baseball program for the last four years. He succeeds Tom Petroff who left to take a job with the Detroit Tigers.

Giants drill Eagles, 27-20
EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — Phil Simms threw a 12-yard touchdown pass, then Dave Meggett scored on a 68-yard punt return in a 1:56 span of the third quarter as New York Giants woke up and ended the dreaded Philadelphia hex, defeating the Eagles 27-20 Sunday night.
 The victory snapped Philadelphia's four-game,

Hassard's team wins first meet

By Scott Garringer
The Daily Iowan

Tracy Dahl led the Iowa women's cross country team to a victory over Northeast Missouri State by virtue of a first-place finish Saturday in the Hawkeye Open at Finkbine Golf Course.

Iowa's 20-44 victory was punctuated by a strong team finish. Four of the top five and seven of the top 10 finishers were wearing black and gold.

Dahl, a sophomore from Champlin, Minn., was the only finisher under 18 minutes for the three-mile course. Dahl's time of 17:53 was followed closely by NMSU's Kerry Greenwood-Knepper at 18:19 and has caused some fatigue today, but it will pay off later in the season."

"I did see some tired legs today," Hassard added. "But for the most part, we responded well. I saw many things I liked today, especially the efforts of Jennifer Brower, Jennifer Johnson and Patty Jones."

The Hawkeyes also earned respect from Greenwood-Knepper.

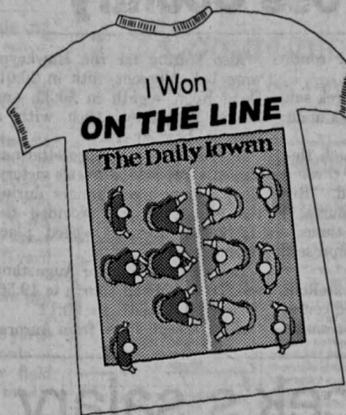

"They're tough," Greenwood-

Knepper said. "Tracy especially impressed me. I tried to stay with her but she was just too strong."

"Overall, we weren't unhappy with our finishes. We would have liked to have placed higher, obviously, but this is a tough course, and our times were good for our first meet of the year."

Next for Iowa is the Purdue Invitational Friday, Sept. 21 at West Lafayette, Indiana.

Three runners break record

By Scott Garringer
The Daily Iowan

The good news for Augustana men's cross country coach Paul Olson is that his top runner, Sandu Rebeciuc, blistered the Rock Island, Ill., course record Saturday against Iowa.

The bad news is that so did Hawkeyes Kevin Herd, en route to a first-place finish, and David Brown, who came in third, as Iowa pulled out a 27-28 victory.

The old four-mile record of 19:52 — set by Augustana's Dave Teronez in 1986 — was eclipsed by Herd (19:20.9), Rebeciuc (19:29.9) and Brown (19:50.6) on a day that was supposed to be ill-suited for running because of flood conditions.

Iowa coach Larry Wiczorek said he was amazed at the times under the circumstances.

"This course is flat enough that obviously it is possible to cover it quickly," Wiczorek said. "But with the cool, muddy course, I expected somewhat slower times."

Olson said he was also impressed with the times.

"The performances were excellent, considering the soft, flooded course and the time of year," Olson said.

Also scoring for the Hawkeyes were L.J. Albrecht, fifth in 20:01; Doug Koon, eighth in 20:33; and Steve Morrissey, 10th with a personal-best 20:41.

Morrissey, a sophomore letterman, played a key role in Iowa's victory. By passing three runners during the final mile, he provided the Hawkeyes with a needed place finish.

Behind Rebeciuc for Augustana was Trent Morrell, fourth in 19:56; Josh Favus, sixth in 20:12. Herd, a sophomore from Aurora, Colo., said he was happy with both the team and individual performances.

"Workouts were going well, but we definitely superceded our expectations," Herd said. "As for my finish, I wasn't concentrating on the clock, but on giving a solid performance and the record came."

Rebeciuc, a freshman from Romania, came as quite a surprise to the Iowa squad.

"He was very tough," Herd said. "He really pushed, and it showed in our times."

On deck for the Hawkeyes are Minnesota and Northern Iowa next Saturday at Finkbine Golf Course at 11 a.m.

Sindelar wins Hardees on 1st extra hole

By Mario Fox
The Associated Press

COAL VALLEY, Ill. — Joey Sindelar was stunned to win the Hardee's Golf Classic. And he thinks everyone else should have been too.

"I honestly can't believe I'm sitting here. I'm kind of in shock," said Sindelar, who beat Willie Wood on the first playoff hole Sunday to capture the $180,000 first prize.

"If you watched my play, you're probably scratching your head, wondering how I got here. It wasn't pretty golf," said Sindelar, who came from three shots behind to tie Wood at the end of regulation. "I haven't found my driver and lots of time I was in the rough."

On the first extra hole, Sindelar parred the 16th, while Wood had a bogey.

"I hit the only good drive I had today on the playoff hole," said Sindelar, whose winner's check was more than he earned all of last year, when he made $77,957 from the PGA Tour.

It was Sindelar's sixth PGA victory, while Wood earned $108,000.

Jim Gallagher Jr. had a 68 that put him at 11-under 269 with Australian Ian Baker-Finch, Jay Delsing, Dave Barr and Bill Britton. Baker-Finch closed with a 64.

"When you can get in a situation to win, you want to win it because you don't get that many chances," said Wood, in his first playoff.

Hornacek's salary also rises

The Associated Press

PHOENIX — The Phoenix Suns and guard Jeff Hornacek reportedly have reached agreement on a renegotiated contract that should make him the NBA team's third $1 million-a-year player.

Bob Woolf, the Boston-based agent for Hornacek, flew into Phoenix on Saturday to finalize a reported five-year deal.

"I hate to be premature, but it appears we are close to a deal with Jeff," Suns president Jerry Colangelo said Friday. "We're very, very close."

Hornacek, signing autographs at a baseball card show Saturday afternoon in Scottsdale, said he couldn't talk about the contract until it is officially signed.

He had two years remaining on a pact that pays him about $400,000 per season and the Suns reportedly want to tack on an additional three years.

The 6-foot-3, 190-pound Hornacek was the Suns' second-round draft pick in 1986 from Iowa State.

He had the highest shooting percentage in the league among guards last season at 53.6 percent and also ranked 11th in 3-point shooting at 40.8 percent.

Miami heads upset list

By John Nelson
The Associated Press

Four of the nation's top 13 schools took a beating, and that's good news for Notre Dame.

Without playing a game yet this season, the second-ranked Irish were set to move into the No. 1 spot, benefitting from No. 16 Brigham Young's 28-21 victory Saturday night over Miami at Provo, Utah.

The other big upsets saw No. 14 Virginia beat No. 8 Clemson 20-7, Arizona top No. 11 Illinois 28-16 and South Carolina surprise No. 13 Alabama 7-24. Virginia had never beaten Clemson in football.

No. 16 BYU 28, No. 1 Miami 21
Ty Detmer may not be big as quarterbacks go, but he put up some pretty big numbers for Brigham Young (2-0). He passed for 406 yards and three touchdowns as BYU handed Miami only its third regular-season loss in 55 games.

"Ty Detmer is unbelievable," Miami coach Dennis Erickson said. "He's a great, great quarterback and he showed it tonight."

At about 5-foot-10 and no more than his listed weight of 175 pounds, Detmer was scampering and scrambling under the Miami rush. But, he still completed 38 of 54 passes, including a 7-yarder to Mike Salido and a 2-point conversion pass that gave BYU a 28-21 lead late in the third quarter.

No. 14 Virginia 20, No. 9 Clemson 7

Virginia (2-0) had lost each of its 29 games against Clemson (1-1) since the Atlantic Coast Conference rivals began their football series in 1955. So, it was understandable when the fans in Charlottesville, Va., took down one set of goalposts with 48 seconds left.

Arizona 28, No. 11 Illinois 16

Arizona blocked a punt and intercepted a pass on Illinois' first two possessions, turning those mistakes into 14 points.

Arizona cornerback Todd Burden blocked a Fory Wells punt and Bobby Roland recovered at the Illini 11. Two plays later, Michael Bates went 3 yards for a 7-0 lead.

Illinois' next possession ended when Richard Holt intercepted a Jason Verduzco pass at the Illini 43. Mario Hampton went the last yard for a touchdown to cap an 11-play drive.

S. Mississippi 27, No. 13 Alabama 24

Pretty soon, no one will want to schedule Southern Miss on the first week of the season. Last season, the Golden Eagles upset Florida State in its season opener. This year, it was Alabama, on a 52-yard field goal into the wind with 3:35 left by Jim Taylor.

No. 3 Auburn 38, Cal State Fullerton 17

Stan White threw for 324 yards and four touchdown passes, tying a school record for Auburn (1-0). White, a redshirt freshman, threw three of his touchdown passes in the first half as Auburn built a 31-3 lead.

No. 3 Florida St. 45, E. Carolina 24

Brad Johnson threw three touchdown passes and Edgar Bennett scored three times as Florida State (1-0) won its 11th in a row, best in NCAA Division I. Bennett caught two short scoring passes and added a 10-yard TD run.

No. 8 Tennessee 40, Mississippi St. 7

Tony Thompson rushed for 248 yards — with TD runs of 69 and 80 yards — and Greg Burke kicked four field goals as Tennessee (2-0-1) totally dominated Mississippi State.

No. 10 Nebraska 60, N. Illinois 14

Mickey Joseph rushed for 75 yards and a touchdown, and passed for 103 yards and a touchdown for Nebraska (2-0). Leodis Flowers had a career-high 124 yards rushing for the Cornhuskers and also scored a TD.

No. 18 Ohio St. 17, Texas Tech 10

Jeff Graham returned a punt 50 yards to break a 10-10 tie early in the fourth quarter as Ohio State (1-0) came back from a 10-3 Texas Tech lead.

Iowa tees off to impressive start

Diane Thomason

By Steve McLeran
The Daily Iowan

The Iowa women's golf team teed off the 1990-91 season on an impressive note, according to Hawkeye coach Diane Thomason.

The Iowa squad finished fifth in the North Carolina Open this weekend with a three-day total of 918 in a field of 18 and got the quality play from their freshman that will be essential this season.

"I was really pleased with the way our freshmen played," Thomason said. "Mary Jo Rollins and Stacy Boville gave us a consistent three-round performance."

Rollins, who hails from Colbert, Wash., was second on the Iowa squad and 18th overall with a three-day total of 229. Senior Stacey Arnold carded a 227 for the weekend, good enough for first place for the Hawkeyes and 14th overall.

The Hawkeyes also won a victory of sorts in beating both Indiana and Minnesota — the other two entrants from the Big Ten.

"When ever you outplay your Big Ten competitors you have to be pleased," Thomason said, "especially a team like Indiana."

Texas finished the weekend on top with a three day total of 901. The Longhorns Piper Wagner was the medalist, shooting a 217.

On The Line contest ready to kick off

The Daily Iowan

Yes, once again it's time for the infamous Daily Iowan On The Line contest.

Get out your pens and resource books for a chance to win gift certificates and atrociously colorful OTL T-shirts by choosing the winners of 10 college football games. And don't forget to pick the winner and score of the tiebreaker, which always includes well-known schools such as James Madison, Baruch, Juniata and Suffolk.

If you're getting nervous, just think about the $25 gift certificate from Enzler's that this week's winner will receive. And if you're not lucky (or smart) enough, you could still win one of 10, count them 10 (1,2,3... oh, never mind), OTL T-shirts which are easily seen clear across campus. That way everyone will know that you are a college football fanatic.

Ballots can be found everyday in The Daily Iowan (today it's on page 3B) and must be deposited in the special OTL boxes in Room 111 or 201 Communications Center by noon Thursday. That way the lowly sports reporters will have the chance to count all the ballots by hand in order to earn their meager living. (And everyone thought those guys wrote or something.)

The distinguished DI On The Line pickers going for the Phinneus J. Whoopee "You're a Genius" trophy this year are (drumroll please): Managing Editor Jamie "Football Shmoottball" Butters, Sports Editor Erica "That's Ma'am to You, Bub" Weiland, Assistant Sports Editor Brian "Whose Idea Was This" Gaul and Columnist Mike "My Number's Restricted" Polisky.

Weiland is the only returning OTL picker. She was Assistant Sports Editor last year, and she's a girl. "It's my contest, I'd better win," Weiland said. "If anybody beats me other than Butters, I'll fire 'em!"

Polisky has a stellar reputation as Weiland's ghost picker from last year and tourism agent for the State of Iowa, er, um, Illinois. On the 1990 season Polisky says "Go Hawks! I think we're gonna go 12-0 this year. National Champs. Really. I mean it."

As for Gaul, he's so immersed in his volleyball beat that he doesn't remember what football is. "I know Long Beach State is good but can they beat Texas? Wait, that was an overhand pass; that's illegal."

Besides, Gaul says he remembers reading the OTL columns in the paper last year when he was a real student. Now he's embarrassed that this goes along with the job.

Butters, the DI layout guru, has always been in awe of the sports dudes and their ability to look so stupid in print. But he'll fit in just fine as long as the teams line up symmetrically. "The Hawkeyes always seem to balance their dominant images. Yeah, they can take Miami."

It's not that tough to beat the staff pickers, but even if you do, it doesn't win you anything.

BATMAN AND CHIP: Seems as though with everyone coming back and finally being together again, we've lost track of a few things. I think it's time for an update. Batman saw Wonderwoman this weekend and as usual, things were BatWonderful. Chip has been bonding with the rental units. And I, Buffy, as usual am living for the future, (interesting situation with the Falcon as he has been returning to the nest a lot lately). But, I think it is time to pull the ranks back together since our time as one is growing shorter all the time. December is just around the corner. Let's make some plans and watch Batmovies and play with our Battoys soon. Be cool, not that I have to tell you guys that! Gushy, smushy smackers, Buffy
