Proposed bill would outlaw oil price-gouging

By David Sima, The Associated Press

Sen. Tom Harkin has raised his support for a proposal that would ban price-gouging during natural disasters, and is expected to introduce it at the state Capitol today.

"The National Emergency Price- \nStabilization Act" is being sponsored by Sen. Joseph Lieberman, D-Conn., and Harkin, who is the Senate's principal sponsor of the bill.

The bill would provide a comprehensive framework for the regulation of oil and natural gas prices during emergencies, such as hurricanes and other natural disasters.

Harkin said the bill would prevent oil companies from raising prices excessively during emergencies, and would ensure that consumers have access to reasonably priced energy.

The legislation would also establish a mechanism for the U.S. government to intervene in the market if necessary to keep prices in check.

Harkin said the bill is necessary because oil companies have been known to raise prices during times of crisis, even when there is no real threat to the supply of oil.

The legislation would also create a fund to provide financial assistance to states and localities during emergencies.

The bill would also require the Federal Trade Commission to monitor the oil and gas markets and to take action if it finds evidence of price-gouging.

The bill would also require companies to disclose their pricing strategies and to provide information to consumers about the prices they are paying.

USA fails to resolve budget disputes

By Mary Mennehouse
The Daily Iowan

The UI Student Senate, the Undergraduate Collegiate Senate and the Undergraduate Student Government voted to remove a line from a resolution aimed at defunding the university's Special Audit Committee (SABAC) on Tuesday.

The line would have instructed SABAC to audit the Student Activity Fund (SAF) and the Senate voted to remove those instructions, said SABAC president Bobbi Allen.

The Senate was meeting in response to the university's request for an audit of its student programs. "It's cool," SABAC's Allen said.

The resolution would have given SABAC the authority to audit SABAC's funding and its distribution of funds.

"It makes me feel very vulnerable as a student in a university that is blinding the special interest of women and what constitutes justice when this sort of discrimination happens," said Carolyn Carter, associate psychology professor.

"If the university is empowered, then it behooves all of us," Carter said.

SABAC's Allen said that she believes that the Senate's decision was a "false alarm" and that it's the university's prerogative to request an audit.

"We agreed to it because that's what our constituents wanted us to do," Allen said.

'Alice' unites skits, melodies
By Harry Olsen
The Daily Iowan

Iowa City's Riverside Theatre opens to a transformed version of one of America's leading ensemble acting companies behind the premiere of "My Name Is Alice," a five-woman theatrical revue that will officially open on Monday, Oct. 14, at the University of Iowa's Prairie Lights Theatre.

"My Name Is Alice," opening at 8 p.m., is a five-woman theatrical revue - a series of sketches and songs that together explore the lives of women from different walks of life. Packed with songs, skits, and monologues by Tracy Reiner, the show is the Riverside Theatre's first after a three-year hiatus due to the flexibility of a new 150-seat venue.

"The music is terrific. We have everything from torch songs to rock," Rod Clark, Riverside Theatre director, said.

Clark, along with actors Melissa Threlkeld, Christina Nunez, JoAnn Miller, and Joy Babb, were all members of Ensemble Theater, a leading five-woman acting company in the United States and will officially open their Riverside Theatre show on Monday, Oct. 7, at 7:30 p.m. in the University of Iowa's Prairie Lights Theatre.

Clark, who was the artistic director of Ensemble Theater for 13 years, said the show is a "celebration of human strength and the power of the female spirit."

Both Clark and Threlkeld, who are also married, said they met during Ensemble Theater's final performance, "Alice." The show, which was their first collaboration, was performed on the New York City Civic Center stage.

"Alice" runs through Oct. 14, with performances at 8 p.m., and 3:30 p.m. on Sept. 16, 17, 19, 20, 22, 23, 25, 26, 28, 29, and Oct. 1. All performances begin at 8 p.m., except for the matinees, which start at 2 p.m. Tickets can be purchased on Prairie Lights website, 11 S. Dubuque St., or reserved by calling Riverside Theatre at (319) 355-7972.

"Alice" was written by Charles Fuller, a Pulitzer Prize-winning playwright, and was first produced in 1974. The play was revived in 1986 and has been performed on Broadway. The show's Riverside premieres last month, and will be produced again in 1990.

Neglected Children

'Family' Life

A lot of things in this world might be a liberating force if ever to regret. One of those things is the unique concept of justness, an idea that still exists in the world. In the Iowa Register, an editorial in the Daily Iowan, reports on the current situation in the Iowa Register. This week, the editorial board wrote about the future of neglected children. Unfortunately, the Register's editorial writer was too focused on Bork's latest attempt to be elected to a seat on the court. In one case, Judge Sackett dissented with the court's decision to temporarily stay his conviction. The court admitted, as the editorial portrayed the case, the court was trying to fill in with, perhaps, up piled on the fees and net freely scattered around the room and even one who would have to be called the defendant's clothing.

Sackett explained his reluctance to support the removal of the death penalty. The judge pointed out that 'a few' learning closing service would have cost the state less than the judicial time and court-appointed attorney's fees. It also litigated the adequacy of this woman's homeschooling skills.

Homeschooling skills. If you try to follow the hands of key you may name the same. A little screwed with advent face of generally deficient parenting skills, assuming one is in charge of the child and his educational needs.

Another ruling with which Sackett recently disagreed was with the court's decision to prohibit the death penalty. In one case, the court decided that the death penalty could not be achieved by any means. For example, the court was hearing by and asked, 'Is there any chance we can get a look down over the corner and rush off. About five minutes later, she was back for the orders.'

Mike Royko

I'm so sorry,' she said. 'I've wondered. Each time I go to the kitchen, I can't find... I want to get, whatever, it's that what about the hours? The beer arrived just in time to wash down the food. She had her hands full.

When she brought the check, which was on account of the court. She gave him a beer, a glass, and he asked, 'How's this patient?'

'How's this patient?'

After she had finished eating, she told him, 'I'm on a diet.'

'So am I,' he said.

'So am I,' she said. 'I don't want to be fat anymore.'

'Those death penalties are not being produced,' Royko said, 'because they are being questioned within the system. Not attached to periodic supervision of a drug addict is still a judicial time and court-appointed attorney's expenses.'

But until those reforms can be realized it will be impractical to hold that line of logic you so often follow. Perhaps you wonder what that means. I'll explain.

Iowa to play underdog at Texas

By Brian Gaul

The Daily Iowan

On the surface, it doesn't look like much -- another football loss for a Big Ten team. But the Iowa Hawkeyes, back for the third time this fall to play the University of Texas, are looking to make the Longhorns pay for the past.

"We've been building something here," said coach Hayden Fry, "and people should know it." That's what the Iowa fans heard.

"We're looking forward to playing against one of the finest college football teams in the country," said senior Mike Saunders, "and we're going to give it our best shot." And that's exactly what they've been doing this season.

The Iowa Hawkeyes are playing for much more than just the win at Texas. They want to show the nation that they can compete with the best teams in college football.

And they're not alone. The Big Ten West is full of teams that are looking to make a statement this season, and the Iowa Hawkeyes are leading the way.

But the road to Texas won't be easy. The Longhorns are ranked No. 1 in the country and are looking to extend their winning streak. But the Hawkeyes are determined to give it their all.

"We know it's going to be a tough game," said senior Mike Saunders. "But we're not going to back down. We're going to give it our all and see what happens."

"This was a great game," said Don Kessinger, "and the Blue Jays played a great game."

It was Toronto's second straight victory.

"Can you imagine an NBA coach making a statement like that?" asked Frank Butle, referring to a statement made by a Toronto coach about attending a few games.

Butler said he and other NBA coaches are planning to attend a few games, including the one on Saturday, as part of their marketing strategy.

The younger people as much as possible to get organized. They started Big Ten.

"We need to be a strong team," said Butler. "And we need to be organized."

Freshmen to face toughest challenge

By Brian Goddard

"I'm interested in seeing if we can find a strong performance on a tough course," said Butler.

Another thing that's interesting, we play Big Ten on Saturday and 10 on Sunday. We play that format quite a bit, but the third freshman team is a lot of fun.

"I'm pretty sure we're not playing that format before," said Butler. "But we have kept this weekend for the Big Ten."

The Hawkeyes will compete in tournaments this weekend at the Minnesota Open, St. Thomas and the Emirates Invitational in North Carolina.

"It's a great opportunity," said Butler.

"We've got a lot more potential," said Butler. "We have a lot more potential."

Hawkeyes set to defend MCFHC crown

The all-Midwest Collegiate Field Hockey Conference championships in the sport’s history, the Iowa Hawkeyes, take the first step in defending their conference title this weekend.

The team is coming off against the Michigan State Spartans in East Lansing in the first game. The game began Saturday versus the Ohio State Buckeyes.

Last season saw the unseeded Hawkeyes win the MCFHC, since the Big Ten officially dropped field hockey as a conference sport for the 2018-19 season. The Hawkeyes will be defending the conference title this year and will be looking to make their presence felt again.

The only Midwest Collegiate Field Hockey Conference title the Hawkeyes have won was in 1988. Since then, they have been a force to be reckoned with in the conference, finishing second or better in 13 of the 18 seasons played. The team has won one NCAA tournament and two national championships.

“With a lot of the recruits coming from the United States, we can’t take any team lightly,” the junior said. “I don’t think (Michigan State) is as good as Michigan, but we have a bunch with them every year.”

Young back to form after second chance

By Jim Calvert

SALEM — The Salem Statesmen saw left-hander Matt Young just go about his business. He's had a lot of business with the Statesmen, too.

Two years ago this month, Young underwrote some monumental success for the Statesmen. Signed by the Statesmen as a free agent in 1990, his career has since been restored.

"He goes out and we just see what we can do. We go out to a field," Salem coach Dave Taylor said. "We don't talk about it, we just go out and play."

The improvement in Matt Young from April until now has been "phenomenal", Taylor said. "He's just gotten better with each start."

Young, 32, has pitched much better than his 6-14 record indicates.

In 1990, Young pitched in 28 games, his earned-run average 3.32. He leads the Statesmen in wins this year, with a 5-1 record with the Statesmen.

The offense has struggled.

"Young have had to be at their best to get victories," Taylor said. "Under any circumstances, our offense has struggled.

"Taylor said.

The Statesmen haven't exactly rocked the base paths for him. His ERA is a very respectable 2.21.

"I know that pitch and what's going to happen. Hopefully something can get done before the end of the season."}

Hawkeyes gearing up for three-way over weekend

By Scott Gargan
The Daily Iowan

The Iowa men's cross country team follows up its 22-26 victory over Augustana last Saturday with a three-way meet with Big Ten powers Minnesota and Illinois Saturday at Finkbine Golf Course in Iowa City.

"Minnesota returns everyone back from their short break. They added a young and exciting Chris Hanke," Warren said. "Hedrick is capable of being their number one runner.

"Northern Iowa also has everyone back from their short break but has a very strong team last year. Unfortunately for us, SIU-Carbondale will be coming back. We were the Midwest Conference Champions last year, so they have lots of experience," Warren added.

"It should be a real test, but one I think we can win," Warren went on. "We have had a young group of practice, although we didn't want to work them too hard to prepare for this meet."

Warren said that he is continuing his quest to find a keeper. He supports the top three this season with Kevin Oed, David Brown and L.J. Albrecht.

Yanks get new general partner

The Associated Press

PITTSBURGH — Broadway producer Robert Nederlander backed the National League and was unanimously approved Thursday by major league owners as the team's new president.

The owners ended their quarterly meetings by selecting Committee on Presidents' Council president Dr. Bobby Brown's nominee for two years, by a show of hands, deselecting the current functionary, John Harrigan.

The two league presidents met earlier in Chicago. This is the National League's 150th anniversary season.

"It's a great honor for me to be asked to serve as the president of the National League. It is an honor that I accept with great pride and responsibility," Nederlander said.

"I am confident that the National League and the American League will continue to work together for the benefit of all baseball fans throughout the country.

"I am grateful to my colleagues for their support and encouragement,

Nederlander said he will be a full-time, active president, unable to travel for business. He said he'll spend the next several weeks working on baseball-related issues.

His new position involves increased responsibilities, Nederlander said. "I believe the league is in a strong position to continue to grow and to continue to improve the product on the field.

"My goal is to help the league improve the quality of the games, while also increasing the value of the product, Nederlander said.

He added that he will meet regularly with the other league presidents to discuss the league's agenda and to ensure the league's continued success.

Fry: "(The team will) do whatever they have to do get away from the coaches right now."

We're Favored, but...

Fry: "Know we're a big favorite to win this weekend, and I'm trying to figure out how we're going to do it."

40?

"We couldn't score that much in pregame warmup," Hayden Fry after a reporter suggested that the Hawkeyes could score 40 or more points against Cincinnati Saturday.

Catch more

Merton Hanks: "I think (interceptions) have been the low point in my statistical career at Iowa. I just have to catch a few more of those batted-down balls. Instead of batting them down, I have to catch a few of them."

Football hero

Fry: "I'd love to have a football team where all of them emulated Merton Hanks as a person, as a Christian, as a football player having the enthusiasm and energy he has. The way he goes about life, he's just really an exceptional human being."

No gimme

Hanks: "We're in a unique situation because this team has so much to prove. There is no gimme on our schedule. We know collectively, we have to go out and earn everything that we can get."

Hold that line!

Jim Johnson: "If we see a team that's going to double team us, we're just going to send another end or somebody else. If we rush five, two guys on one person is going to open up a hole somewhere.

"I don't think any team can be affording to double team anybody just because of the fact that (tackle Matt) Ruhland, he holds his own and you've got Moses Santos and LeRoy (Smith) that can just fly from the ends.

"Rod Davis and Mike Wells are just going to be battling up the middle. You've got one kid who can run a 4.7 40-yard dash and you've got another kid who can send a 300-pound center 10 yards back in the backfield.

"They'll probably think about (double teaming us) at first, and they might even try it, I think it's going to hurt them in the long run."

Foster comes out of shadows for final season

"I don't feel like I'm having to fill the shoes of Brad Quast. I've always felt that I was in my own shoes and it will always be that way...."

-Melvin Foster

J.J. Pak.

In his Iowa career he has totaled 230 tackles, which ties him with former Hawkeye Bobby Stoops for 21st on the school's career tackle list.

"I've always looked at myself as being a leader here at the University of Iowa," Foster said. "I've found out that a player can't be an individual player in order to help out a football club. That's the attitude I'm taking is just being a team player and to do as much as I can to help this team win."

"I really don't know what to expect from the season as far as my play is concerned. I feel like every year I get a little bit better so all I can ask of myself is just keep playing and keep improving. Hopefully that improvement part will end up in a good season for myself as well as for the team."

Foster is also looking for a good end to his academic career. The sociology major expects to get his degree in December and would like to become a probation officer.

"I think I miss home-cooked meals more than anything," Foster said. "Even living in an apartment and cooking my own food just doesn't cut it. It's nothing like mom's food."

Despite the distance, Foster said he is close to his family because of the way they were brought up. And according to him, that will never change.

"My mom has always been there for me," Foster said. "I guess a typical inner-city kid coming out, I didn't have the good things in life. By going through that, seeing (my mom) cry every now and then because she didn't know if she was going to be able to give us a good Christmas or when was the next food going to be put on the table, it only drew us closer together."

"I would have stayed in Iowa, I'm far away from home and a lot of times I felt like going home. But I was a long distance from home and had to stick it out, and I think that was a wise decision on my part."

But, Foster said, it's tough being away from his mother, brother, two sisters and niece. Besides being a big influence overall on his life, Foster says his mother was also a great cook. And that is what he misses now that he's on his own.

"I think I miss home-cooked meals more than anything," Foster said. "Even living in an apartment and cooking my own food just doesn't cut it. It's nothing like mom's food."

Despite the distance, Foster said he is close to his family because of the way they were brought up. And according to him, that will never change.

"Sure I miss her but she understands as well as myself that I'm growing up and she has to let go. But even though she has to let go, there will always be that special someone. And she'll always be that special someone in my heart."

Tackle time

Iowa linebacker Melvin Foster, right, chases down Minnesota quarterback Marquell Fleetwood during the Hawkeyes' 1989 loss to the Gophers.

By Erica Welland

The Daily Iowan

Leading the team with 116 tackles in the 1989 season wasn't his biggest achievement.

Neither was being ranked sixth in the Big Ten for averaging 10.6 tackles per game.

For Iowa linebacker Melvin Foster, learning was the biggest thing he's picked up in college.

"If I was to look back on the four years I've been here," Foster said. "I think the major accomplishment for me was when I was redshirted and had to sit out a year in order to learn the techniques of a 52 defense."

"I came from a 4-3 defense in high school and it was really just run to the football. And now that I'm at the university and they've got the 52, where you've got the slant defense, the eagle defense and it's more technique. Now I have the 52 under my belt as well as the 4-3, so that pretty much helps me out."

A USA Today and Parade first-team all-American as a high school senior, Foster came to Iowa expecting to get in and play.

When he got to Iowa City, he found a different situation.

"It took me a good year and a half to actually get used to getting into the 52 defense," the senior from Houston, Tex., said. "There are so many things you have to do and to know, I won't say until after this year if I've mastered it, but I think I've got it down pretty well. I feel real comfortable with it."

"On the snap of the ball, I float to a different gap just on the basis of repetitions, going over it time after time after time again in practice."

While Foster has been successful since his freshman season, he was usually in the shadow of former Iowa linebacker Brad Quast. Now Quast is gone — recently released from the NFL's New York Jets — and Foster is in the limelight.

But the 6-foot-3, 240-pounder said he doesn't feel pressure to "fill Quast's shoes" this season.

"I've started in and out of games throughout my career even though Brad was considered the guy here on campus as far as linebackers were concerned," Foster said. "I sort of had to take a backseat. But while taking that backseat I learned a lot."

"I don't feel like I'm having to fill the shoes of Brad Quast. I've always felt that I was in my own shoes and it will always be that way no matter where I go even after college football."

During his redshirt year in 1986, Foster was named scout team defensive Player of the Year. The following year he recorded 49 tackles as a backup to

Noseguards create ‘nice’ problem for Fry

By John Shipley
The Daily Iowan

When a football team has more than one player ready to fill a starting spot, it’s generally perceived by the media and fans as a problem. A controversy. Not so by Hayden Fry.

"I wish we had more problems like that, from a depth standpoint," said the Iowa head football coach.

One such position the Hawkeyes will have no trouble filling this season is defensive noseguard, because this year Iowa has two outstanding players ready to fill the spot.

Starting at noseguard for the Hawkeyes Saturday against Cincinnati is Rod Davis, a junior out of Queens, N.Y., who started two games last season and made seven appearances after playing in seven games as a freshman.

Right on the veteran’s tail is Mike Wells, a redshirt freshman who, after playing for the scout team last year, is ready for some Big Ten experience.

Is this a controversy? No. Both Davis and Wells are expecting to see equal playing time this season, regardless of who gets the starting nod.

"Normally, if we have two guys even, from a practice-performance standpoint, then the guy who’s been in combat, the guy that’s heard the bullets flying, will get the starting call above the other guy and then we’ll come on with the less-experienced guy," said Coach Fry. "That doesn’t mean Wells won’t play as much as Davis. But that’s how we’ll do it. We’ll give the veteran the opportunity to start and then we’ll come on with the other guy and we’ll let him play quite a bit.”

For both Davis and Wells, the situation has been a healthy one.

"We have a real tough competition in scrimmages," said Davis. "But we help each other out. Even though I’ve been here a little longer than he has, sometimes I forget things and he keeps me up to date.”

Rod Davis
The Iowa coaches work with a grading system during practice “to keep us on our toes,” said Davis. Often the system will help determine who starts and who in off the bench.

"If you do a play right during practice you get a plus; if you do it wrong you get a minus,” said Wells. "Last scrimmage I think Rod got a 93 percent and I got a 90 percent. So we’re pretty close.”

That’s a good assessment because, despite the fact that there’s been a battle for the starting spot, almost everyone familiar with the Hawkeyes knows that both Davis and Wells will play – a lot.

What Fry has in his two noseguards are two players not only capable of starting, but also fit nicely together in terms of their individual talents.

Davis puts it into context: "He looks to run through; I look to run around you.”

Senior defensive tackle Jim Johnson likes the prospect of playing side by side with the Davis and Wells.

"Rod Davis and Mike Wells are just going to be battling up the middle," said the All-America candidate. "You’ve got one kid that can run a 4.7 40-yard dash and another kid who can send a 300-pound center 10 yards into the backfield.”

Mike Wells
Randy Bardy

One thing is for certain, regardless of who plays when and where, both Davis and Wells feel their experience last year helped them prepare for the 1990 quest for the Rose Bowl.

"Right now I feel like I can do it all," said Davis. "From looking at films of myself I’d say I’m an all-around player right now. I’ve developed my running game and my passing game..”

For Wells, the challenge is to see how well he performs in Division I action after his redshirt year.

"To be honest, I wanted to redshirt," he said. "It gives you an extra year to get with the program and learn how everything works. That really helped me.”

The biggest change so far for Wells has been practicing with the two-deep as opposed to the scout team.

"My head was spinning last year," said Wells. "I didn’t know what was going on. Being with the (two-deep) as opposed to the scout team is, if you do something wrong, you get yelled at immediately. We’re watching film everyday, and the coaches will point out what you’re doing wrong.

"On the scout team you don’t really know what you’re doing wrong and you can’t really seek out the coaches during the day because they need to spend time with the real team.”

Johnson weathers coaching change, captainhood to lead squad

"That's probably the biggest honor I've gotten — being a captain."

-Jim Johnson

By Brian Gaul & Steve McLeran
The Daily Iowan

Iowa defensive tackle Jim Johnson and his teammates on the line have been running more defensive drills this season. That isn't because the Hawkeye defensive scheme is any more complicated. But it is due to a different coaching philosophy.

Dan McCarney, Iowa's defensive line coach last season, left the Hawkeyes to join Wisconsin coach Barry Alvarez' staff as defensive coordinator. He was replaced by Ted Gill, who coached the defensive line at Rice last season.

"Coach Mac (McCarney) would let you know right there if you were screwing up," Johnson said of Iowa's defensive drills. "Coach Gill will make you run the play over and over again to get it right, then that's what you do on the field.

"(McCarney's) big philosophy was to just line up, tee off against somebody and just go and make things happen. Coach Gill is a perfectionist. He wants you to do the same thing but he wants you to do it in the package of our defense."

Johnson said he doesn't have any problems with that philosophy and feels that it will eventually help him.

"You have to learn by experience," the 6-foot-3, 270-pound lineman said. "If it takes eight reps to do it right, then that's what you have to do. That's Coach Gill's philosophy and no one's having any problems with it. He's going to make us into better players."

Johnson and fellow defensive tackle Matt Ruhland, both students of McCarney's aggressive defensive style, were all-Big Ten selections last year. Johnson said that McCarney would be missed.

"(McCarney) wasn't only a coach, he's a great coach and he's going to make those (Wisconsin) kids win. They just have to believe in him."

But Johnson said Gill, who has been an assistant at eight other schools, has also earned the respect of the Iowa players.

We believe in Coach Gill right now.

Johnson said, "Everybody's listening to what he's saying and if we've got a question, we'll ask. He's a real personable type of guy. He'll sit down with you, and if you're doing things wrong, he'll let you know."

The coaching change isn't the only adjustment that Johnson will need to make this year. As a returning first-team all-Big Ten selection, the Forest City, Iowa, native is likely to see more double-teams from opponents this season.

But Johnson warns that might not be the best strategy.

"If we see a team that's going to double team us, we're just going to send another end or somebody else," Johnson said. "If we rush five, two guys on one person is going to open up a hole somewhere. I don't think any team can afford to double team anybody.

"They'll probably think about it at first, and they might even try it. I think it's going to hurt them in the long run."

Johnson took the Big Ten conference by storm last year, leading the league with 21 tackles for loss among his 106 total stops. Johnson was also the league leader in quarterback sacks with 12 for 70 yards in losses.

Johnson was also co-winner of the Roy J. Carver Award for Iowa team's MVP. He started all 11 games and became just the fourth Iowa down lineman to record over 100 tackles in a season, finishing with 106 stops.

Johnson has already been drawing preseason attention and accolades this year. He has been named first team all-Big Ten by four football magazines and a second-team all-American by two of them.

But for Johnson, the biggest honor was being named team captain. Johnson joins cornerback Merton Hanks, running back Tony Stewart and offensive guard Greg Aegerter as the Iowa team leaders.

"That's probably the biggest honor I've gotten — being a captain," Johnson said. "No one can take that away. I'll have that forever."

But there's also a down side to that title, he said.

"Sometimes you've got to be a little more cautious on what you do and what you say," Johnson said. "A lot of the guys, I think, respect what I do on the field because I'm so mentally determined to do my job.

"Sometimes I show that, and sometimes I show it a little too much. Some guys pick up on that and sometimes might want to imitate me. If that helps us win, that's fine."

Aptly titled "Follow the Black and Gold Road", the University of Iowa kicks off its annual Parents Weekend today, Saturday and Sunday.

Centering around the Hawkeyes’ season-opening football game with the Cincinnati Bearcats, the Parents Weekend Committee is working to give the parents some excitement — and a little magic.

"We, the Student Alumni Association, have programmed for a diverse group this year," said Parents Weekend Co-Chair Jolene Finch. "We designed the weekend's activities so that both the students and their parents would have a great time."

Upon arrival into the "wonderful land of Iowa City," parents will receive the "royal treatment," beginning with a welcome by the sponsoring Student Alumni Association Ambassadors. Along with a chance to be pampered, the welcome will give those who attend a chance to meet other UI parents.

Friday's agenda provides a plethora of activities and adventures: a tour of Carver-Hawkeye Arena, a backstage view of Hancher Auditorium, mini-lectures on a variety of subjects and a reception by UI President Hunter Rawlings.

To top off the evening, parents will get a first-hand view of Mame, headlining star of stage and screen. Juliet Prowse in the title role. What more could anyone ask for, right? Wait until Saturday.

Saturday’s excursions begin with guided campus tours, when parents can take in all the precious gems of the city and university, including the Old Capitol, the Museum of Natural History, and the UI Museum of Art.

Never straying from the black and gold path, parents may enjoy a trip to Old Capitol Mall or a sightseeing expedition of the walking mall and surrounding stores and shops.

Don’t go and wear out those ruby slippers — the fun is just beginning. "We're off to see the Hawkeyes, the wonderful Hawkeyes of Iowa City" so be sure to wear the brightest black and gold to cheer on the Hawkeyes.

And, if football isn’t their cup of tea, parents can tour one of two local attractions: the Hoover Library in nearby West Branch or Main Amana and the Amana Colonies.

Saturday evening brings the musical and musical together, as parents (and their children, of course) can choose between seeing Mame — in case they missed it Friday — or becoming a victim beyond conscious control under the direction of hypnotist Jim Wand.

Of course there’s always that intangible thing labeled "parent-child bonding," like "Hey, Mom, I could really use some groceries. How about let’s go to the grocery store and have a nice long talk. Boy, I missed you and Dad!"

If Mom and Dad wake up with the chickens, Sunday morning offers "tea-time" at Finkbine Golf Course between 6:30-9:00 a.m. Before heading back home, the IMU offers a farewell brunch until 11 a.m. Then parents can spend the remainder of the afternoon with their children or click their heels three times and repeat: "There's no place like home," leaving the land of Iowa City somewhere over the rainbow.

Cincinnati Style

Cincinnati will come into the game with a varied offensive look, and a multiple 50 scheme on defense with emphasis on linebacker and secondary coverage.

On offense Cincinnati returns senior Terry Strong, the team's leading rusher with 411 yards and two touchdowns last season. Strong was also the third-leading receiver, catching 18 passes for the year.

Defensively, seniors Kyle Stroh and John Thornton return at the tackles and the secondary is solid with two returning starters from a crew that intercepted 10 passes last year.

First-year Michigan coach Gary Moeller will get a baptism of fire this Saturday when he matches his Wolverines against the top-ranked Fighting Irish of Notre Dame.

At the helm for No. 4 Michigan is quarterback Elvis Grbac, and Moeller said he plans a few departures from former Wolverine coach Bo Schlemmer's style.

"Grbac is more of a thrower than his predecessors (Michael Taylor and Demetrious Brown)," said Moeller. "We are anticipating about a 15 percent change in offensive balance towards the passing game."

Illinois coach John Mackovic has a few kinks to work out of his team following its 28-16 loss to Arizona last week. Unfortunately for him, he has to do it before his 11-ranked team clashes with No. 9 Colorado Saturday.

"We had far too many penalties against Arizona," Mackovic said. "It took us out of our game plan and took away many of the things we thought we could do."

John Cooper's No. 17 Buckeyes fumbled four times and took one interception against Texas Tech Saturday and still won, 17-10. But Cooper worried his squad that they won't be able to do that against Boston College this weekend.

"Boston College has a good team and is highly underrated," Cooper said. "If we so much as peak ahead to USC (Sept. 29), we could come away with the loss."

Michigan State's George Perles has All-Big Ten quarterback Dan Enos returning and All-Big Ten flanker Courtney Hawkins to throw in, but he's worried about Saturday's game with Syracuse.

"Syracuse is a big, strong football team," Perles said. "They are more dangerous than most people give them credit for."

Minnesota's John Oates knows a little bit about Heisman Trophy candidate running backs like Iowa State's Iain Bryant. He had one of his own a year ago in Darrell Thompson.

"Thompson and Bryant have much of the same running style," said the fifth-year coach whose squad takes on the Cyclones Saturday. "Both of them have the ability to run over people, and Iain runs like he's not running down a hill."

Wisconsin Badgers coach Barry Alvarez is disappointed that his team didn't capitalize on some opportunities during the opening loss to California. But he said is happy with the injury situation going into Saturday's matchup with Ball State.

"We came out relatively injury-free," said the former Iowa assistant, "and we will need to be best Ball State. They play good team defense by throwing a lot of different schemes at you."

Purdue's Eric Hunter, who is The Sporting News' preseason first-team All-Big Ten quarterback will lead the Boilermakers into battle with Washington Saturday, while Indiana takes on Kentucky and Northwestern faces Duke.

Six members inducted into Hawk Hall of Fame

Letterman’s Club Athletic Hall of Fame.

This year’s class, with their sports and years of competition, are: Charles Brookins, track, 1922-24; Chuck Darling, basketball and track, 1950-52; Mike Enich, football, 1938-40; Kenny Ploen, football, 1954-56; Bucky O’Connor, basketball coach, 1950, 1952-58; and Paul Brechler, business manager and athletic director, 1946-59. Brookins, Enich and O’Connor are deceased.

Induction ceremonies for this year’s class will take place as part of the annual Letterman’s Banquet Sept. 15 following Iowa’s season-opening football game with Cincinnati. The inductees will also be honored during the game.

The Letterman’s Hall of Fame opened last year as part of the athletic department’s celebration of the 100th year of Iowa football, according to Letterman’s Club executive director Les Steenlage.

“A Hall of Fame is something that has been missing from the university for several years,” Steenlage said. “It was a natural that the Letterman’s Club set it up and become a part of it.”

Twenty-one members were inducted into the original class last year, including notables such as Heisman Trophy winner Nile Kinnick, football coach Forrest Evashvski, basketball player Don Nelson, track star and coach F.X. Cretzmeyer and Outland Trophy winners Alex Karras and Calvin Jones.

Steenlage said that a six-person limit was set for all classes after the charter group. Four letterman, one coach and one administrator can be selected each year.

To be considered, an athlete must have earned at least one letter and have completed his eligibility 10 years before his nomination. All coaches and administrators are eligible.

O’Connor, Darling, Ploen and Brechler were all a part of Iowa’s athletic success during the 1950s. Iowa won two Big Ten championships in both football and basketball and one each in tennis and wrestling during that period.

Ploen, a quarterback on the 1956 Iowa football team that won the Rose Bowl under the guidance of Evashvski, went on to be an all-Pro for the Winnipeg Blue Bombers of the Canadian Football League.

“It’s nice to be considered,” said Ploen in a telephone interview from his real estate business in Winnipeg, Manitoba, Canada. “When your career is over and as you reflect back, it’s nice to be thought of as a great player.”

Ploen has also been selected to the All-Century Hawkeye football squad and the CFL Hall of Fame. He called his stay at Iowa the fulfillment of a “boyhood dream.”

“It was part of a boyhood dream playing at the home state university. I grew up following the Hawkeyes in the Des Moines area. I grew up wanting to be the player I was, and I hope people can relate to that.”

Iowa, ranked No. 3 nationally entering the game, defeated Pac-10 champion Oregon State 35-19 on Jan. 1, 1957.

“We came out of nowhere and won the Big Ten. Just winning the Big Ten was a thrill,” Ploen said. “At the Rose Bowl, just running out onto the field in pregame warmups was a dream for me.”

O’Connor was the coach of the 1956 Iowa basketball team, nicknamed “The Fabulous Five,” which finished second in the NCAA Tournament. He also coached basketball runner-up and the development of Finkbine golf course made the 1950s one of the most important and successful eras in Iowa history. Iowa football coach Hayden Fry knows his team is supposed to win against Cincinnati Saturday. But he doesn’t want to dwell on it.

"I know we’re a big favorite to win this weekend and I’m trying to figure out how we’re going to do it," Fry said. "We not only want to win Saturday, we want to look good doing it. We’re not going to hold back, we’re not going to pull any punches, we’re not going to be timid."

The Bearcats bring an 0-2 record into Kinnick Stadium after losses of 34-20 and 34-0 to Bowling Green and Central Michigan, respectively. They went 1-9-1 last year.

But the Hawkeye squad hasn’t played a game yet, and that, Fry said, will give Cincinnati an advantage.

"We realize that Cincinnati is not the toughest team from a won-loss standpoint or a personnel standpoint on our schedule," the coach said. "But the fact that they’ve played two games, that’s got to be very beneficial to them to be improved this week. As a coach you have to look at the possibilities even though they’ve lost both games and they’ve had all kinds of problems. They do have some individual talent.

"When our guys looked at the films, it was pleasing to see them realize that (the Bearcats) can move the football and can play defense."

A factor in the Hawkeyes’ play this year will be redemption. The team is trying to forget about its 5-6 campaign in 1989 and to establish itself this season.

"We want to have a great season, redeem ourselves in Kinnick Stadium," senior linebacker Melvin Foster said. "Let’s try to turn it around and have a good home record as well as on the road and to go to somebody’s bowl game."

"Last year was a real sour feeling. I know, for the seniors as well as me being a junior. I mean, I was a senior too, a senior school-wise not eligibility-wise, and I had that bitter taste of not being able to go to a bowl game."

"We’re going to go into the ballgame to get after Cincinnati and try to establish our 1990 personality for this football team," Fry said. "The game itself this weekend will certainly be a learning process for our football team, and I hope they develop a little personality. But being a first game we’re aware that we’re going to make some mistakes continued on page 22"

Field hockey team continues winning standard, boasts 5-0 record at 1990's beginning

By Jay Nanda
The Daily Iowan

The new decade has started off with a bang for many of Iowa's fall sports teams, while others are looking to improve their performances. The following is a summation of what the Hawkeyes have done in each sport and what can be looked forward to this weekend.

FIELD HOCKEY

Coach Beth Belgin's Hawkeyes currently own a 5-0 record, following a double dose of home victories last week at the Hawkeye Field Hockey Field. Iowa handed defeats to the Ball State Cardinals, 4-0, and the Massachusetts Minutewomen, 1-0.

Junior goalkeeper Eileen Moyer recorded her second and third shutouts of the season, while junior forward Kris Fillat scored three of the five goals on the home-stand. Fillat now leads the Hawkeyes with eight goals on the year.

"I'm supposed to take the ball and get into scoring position," Fillat said. "That's just what I expect from myself. And Beth expects a lot from me and I like that."

The Hawkeyes have also been up some key defensive stats, including outscoring their opponents 19-2 and outshooting them 146-16. Belgin's squad has also accumulated 73 penalty corners as opposed to 4 for their foes.

"I'm really pleased with our corner defense," Belgin said. "We didn't give up any to Ball State and to give up only three corners to a team like Massachusetts is outstanding."

This weekend the Hawkeyes open the Midwest Collegiate Field Hockey Conference season in East Lansing, Mich. Today they take on the Michigan State Spartans and Saturday Iowa will face the Ohio State Buckeyes, also in East Lansing.

VOLLEYBALL

Following up last season's first-ever NCAA appearance with a 1-4 start may not be what the Hawkeye backers had in mind at this point, but Iowa will look to change things around this weekend.

Coach Ruth Nelson's Iowa squad began the 1990 campaign with three straight losses on the West Coast to nationally-ranked teams: UC-Santa Barbara, San Diego State and defending national champion Long Beach State.

"It was a great experience playing against high-caliber teams," senior Ginger Lorenson said after the road trip.

The Hawkeyes returned to Iowa last weekend to finish third at the Big Four Tournament in Ames.

Iowa dropped its opening match Saturday to Iowa State 15-9, 16-14, 8-15, 7-15, 15-8, but came back Sunday to register its first victory of the season, against Drake.

Nelson's squad will next travel to Texas where they will tangle with Southwest Texas State Saturday and fourth-ranked Texas Sunday.

WOMEN’S GOLF

Boosted by a freshman and a senior, Coach Diane Thomison's Hawkeyes shot their way to a fifth-place finish at the North Carolina Open last weekend.

The Iowa squad shot a 918 for the three-day tournament, which featured 18 schools. The Hawkeyes were led by 1989-90 all-Big Ten member and NCAA qualifier Stacey Arnold, whose tournament total of 227 was good for 14th overall; and freshman Mary Jo Rollins, who finished 14th with a 229.

"I was really pleased with the way our freshmen played," said Thomison.

In addition, Thomison's linksters finished ahead of Big Ten opponent Indiana.

Last season, Iowa finished second to the Hoosiers at the Indiana Invitational, Lady Buckeyes Invitational and the Big Ten Championship.

Next up for the Hawkeyes is the Minnesota Open Saturday and Sunday at Minneapolis.

WOMEN’S CROSS COUNTRY

The Hawkeyes picked up where they left off a year ago, when they defeated Northeast Missouri State at the Hawkeye Open last weekend, 20-44.

Iowa is coming off an eighth place national finish, the highest in the school's history. Coach Jerry Hassard garnered co-Big Ten Coach of the Year honors in the process.

Against Northeast Missouri State, Iowa sophomore Tracy Dahl was the first to cross the finish line, as she registered a time of 17:53 for the three-mile course.

"We have been working hard to prepare for the season," Hassard said after his team's win. "We responded well and I saw many things I liked."

Iowa has the week off to prepare for the Purdue Invitational on September 21.

MEN’S CROSS COUNTRY

Coach Larry Wescott's Hawkeyes got out of the gate in record-breaking fashion last Saturday, when they squeezed out a 27-28 win at Augustana in Rock Island, Ill.

Sophomore Kevin Herd shattered Augustana's four-year-old course record of 19:52 with a time of 19:20.9, to win the meet. Iowa senior David Brown also broke the record with his third-place finish in 19:50.6.

The Hawkeyes will try to make it two in a row on Saturday, when they play host to Minnesota and Northern Iowa at 11:00 a.m. at Finkbine Golf Course.

WOMEN’S TENNIS

Last year's Big Ten Coach of the Year Micki Schilling, who guided the Hawkeyes to a 16-4 record in 1989, leads her team to Drake today through Sunday for its season-opener at the All-Iowa Invitational. Iowa then entertain Nebraska in their home-opener on September 21.

MEN’S TENNIS

The men's team also kicks off its season today through Sunday, as they travel to Ames to compete in the Iowa State Invite. Coach Steve Houghton's team is coming off a 13-14 season, which included a 5-4 win at longtime nemesis Michigan. The Hawkeyes tied the Wolverines for fifth in the Big Ten with a 4-5 mark.

Tailgating makes for unique football experience

By Jamie Butters
The Daily Iowan

It's a family affair. Well, in a manner of speaking.

For those who like to make the most of the gameday experience, tailgating is a popular UI tradition which tends to revolve around family and friends.

Tailgating is that event peculiar to football where fans congregate outside the stadium to get in the spirit (so to speak) before the game and celebrate immortality or drown their sorrows once the outcome is determined.

The term appears to be derived from the part of a pickup truck or stationwagon which folds down in back. Either this is because that is the best place to put the food and drink or because as Jordan Flatt paraphrases P.J. O'Rourke, "pickups and front porches have a lot in common—they're both good places to drink beer."

Vehicles are an integral part of not only the name but, especially for those from out of town, the event. Anything from buses to RVs to rusty, rust-colored Subarus are used. Tailgating is possible without a car as is evidenced by groups in tents. The guide is that if there is that if people are enjoying food, drink in the general proximity of a football game—it's a tailgate.

For Flatt, a senior from West Des Moines, tailgating is a family tradition. He has been tailgating with his family and family friends for six or seven years because, "It's the only fun thing to do outside of Des Moines."

Along with the festivities before and after football games, his family has other sub-traditions—for instance a "prayer meeting" where they root for Iowa State to lose and a betting pool ($5 a piece) on the total number of points scored in the game.

A typical tailgate, according to Flatt, begins at about 9:30 or 10:00 a.m. with "Cajun" bloody marys—that is bloody marys with lots of pepper. The rest of the morning is spent drinking beer, eating food and looking for an open port-a-potty.

The tailgating tradition, however, also runs strong in the greek system, according to Jennifer Gangloff of the Gamma Phi Beta sorority. Many fraternities and sororities tailgate, usually in joint parties, where a fraternity hosts a party for a sorority. This doesn't appear to be as much out of chivalry as pragmatism: Sororities are not allowed to have legs.

Gangloff said they begin tailgating at 8:00 or even earlier. "You just get up, brush your hair and go," Gangloff said, "Of course I never go that early."

She said the tailgating parties are a fun way to "hang out with a bunch of people before the game. We all go over together."

Starting so early has its drawbacks, however, "some stay at the party throughout the game," she said. Others, she said, return to the party at halftime.

This may be in order to avoid the infamous "third-quarter hangover."

Some tailgating Hawkeye fans aren't quite so caught up in the dirging aspects of fanhood. "The food," proclaimed Shawn Auclair, "The food is definitely my favorite part of tailgating."

The Cedar Rapids native said he doesn't drink too much before the game starts so he can "try to remember the game."

Darling, an all-American who broke 11 Big Ten and Iowa scoring records and won the Chicago Tribune Silver Basketball trophy as Big Ten MVP in 1952.

"I'm real pleased, I don't know if you really expect to get selected this early," Darling said from his home in Englewood, Colo. "It's real nice. I think (the Hall of Fame) is a real fine idea."

Darling also was a shot putter for the Iowa track team and president of his senior class in the College of Liberal Arts. Darling said his most vivid Iowa memories are of his college coach and a painful loss to Illinois in 1952.

"I think the biggest disappointment was not beating Illinois my senior year for the Big Ten Championship," Darling said. "It was a good year and a great team. I have nothing but good memories of Bucky O'Connor."

O'Connor compiled an overall record of 113-59 in his 1956 NCAA runner-up 33-16-3. Darling said his most vivid Iowa appearance in Iowa history 100 was Nothing but good memories of Finkbine Golf Course.

"We needed another course because the back nine got flooded every now and then," Brecher said from his home in Denver, Colo. "We bought some farm land and built a golf course on it."

Brecher was also an athletic director at California-Berkeley for 3 1/2 years and commissioner of the Western Athletic Conference from 1962-68. Brookens, an NCAA track champion in the 200-yard low hurdles in 222 and 223, won on to set the world record in the 220-yard low hurdles in the 1924 Olympics. He later coached the Iowa track team in 1928.

Enich was a member of the 1939 Iowa Ironmen football team and captained the 1940 squad. He graduated from the College of Law in 1941 and was a district court judge until 1978.
