Investigators checked dental and fingerprint records Tuesday to determine if a young girl's body that had been found Monday evening in Black Rock, one of the four Mississippi River communities that make up the Quad Cities, was that of 11-year-old Lisa Stephens, a local student.

Davenport police Monday night said the death was being treated as a homicide.

"She could not be identified as the girl," said Davenport police spokesman Mark Beardsley.

However, Beardsley said a preliminary autopsy was being performed about 4 a.m. Tuesday by Dr. Paul Beckman, a local pathologist, and fingerprint records from the girl's school would be compared with fingerprint records Tuesday to determine if a match could be made.

"The girl was wearing a purple and white drier, with partly purple-and-white hair," said Davenport police spokesman Mark Beardsley.

Beardsley and the detectives were checking the fingerprint records of four local and dental records. Police also were comparing a photograph with the body.

Davenport police Capt. Ted Carroll and Missi Lewis were last seen Monday evening in Black Rock, one of the four Mississippi River communities that make up the Quad Cities. Carroll said he lost track of time after 9 p.m. and was not sure when he had last seen the girl, who is described as having brown hair and brown eyes, being four feet tall, and weighing 40 pounds.

The police were contacting the missing girl's father to set up a search.

Council limits rent for public housing

By Cynthia Taylor

The Iowa City City Council authorized a city housing authority application to the Department of Housing and Urban Development for 20 additional public housing units.

Base for affordable housing units in 30 cities is set at 10 percent of a tenant's income. More than 200 city residents are waiting as of March 1.

According to housing authority officials, approximately 35 people are on the waiting list to pay 30 percent of their income or less on rent properties.

The Iowa City Council also adopted a resolution Thursday night establishing maximum rent guidelines for public housing.

Councilman, when a tenant made enough money to afford the unit, the tenant was forced to move, but never any more.
State Supreme Court justice orders Hardy trial resumed

Mike Glover
The Associated Press

DES MOINES — A state Supreme Court justice ordered a resumption of the trial of accused quadruple murderer James Hardy on Monday, more than nine months after the case was suspended.

Prosecutors alleged Hardy lured after a 16-year-old girl to a wooded area in the rural town of Hawk Dance, where they said he killed her.

The court went off on a 'tragedy,' Hardy argued.

"If other judges in the state have put up with Mr. Parrish's shenanigans and foolishness, then God help us all," Judge George Stigler said.

Hardy complained that Stigler's "prose meant was helping the state." After one witness had testified, his argument continued.

"I don't know what exists within his own heart."

..."I'm going to take him at his word, replied."

Judge Stigler's rulings, "I have to keep up with inflation and to cover increased budget items," said.

County members advised her to seek increased budget items for the county's human rights commission.

..."I don't know what exists within his own heart."

The woman said her family knew what existed within his own heart. However, Judge Stigler said the increases are necessary to keep pace with inflation and to cover service charges.

..."I'm going to take him at his word, replied."

"It's not only to arrive to a more impressive evening of quartet playing, in whatever area you may see it," New York Times wrote.

European nations recommend extending embargo to air

By Joseph Nocera

European nations have been urging Saddam Hussein to open and seal off several border crossings before Bush decides it is time for officials there to review operations from Japan to the Middle East, and to make a decision on whether to extend the embargo to air. The European Community nations united for the reduction since President Bush is expected to open the war on Iraq. The United States has called for attacks on Iraq, and the United Nations has imposed sanctions against Iraq.

The Associated Press

"We are surprised and dismayed that this conference took place and we have not been informed of the purpose or agenda," said the United States representative.

The embargo against Iraq was extended to air on Monday night after a vote by the United Nations Security Council. The resolution, which passed 15-0, includes the following:

- A ban on all exports of arms and military equipment.
- A ban on all flights over Iraq.
- A ban on all financial transactions with Iraq.
- A ban on all imports of petroleum.

The resolution also includes measures to enforce the embargo, including inspections of ships and aircraft.

The United States representative said that the United States and its allies have been working to ensure that Iraq complies with the terms of the embargo.

"We are encouraged by the latest developments," the representative said. "We have confidence that Iraq will comply with the terms of the embargo and that the situation will improve."

Winnie Mandela charged

By Tom Cohen
The Associated Press

JAHANIBURG, South Africa — The government said Tuesday it will charge Winnie Mandela with kidnapping and assault, a move that could lead to serious conflicts with her husband, South Africa's best-known political prisoner.

The charges come a week after Mandela met twice with President F.W. de Klerk and said he would want completion of the negotiations before deciding whether to charge Winnie Mandela.

"After careful consideration of all the relevant facts, including possible implications beyond the normal legal cases, I have decided to prosecute Mrs. Mandela," said a statement.

Winnie Mandela, 56, beat them with a whip. She has denied any wrongdoing.

The announcement came as Mandela, the country's best-known anti-apartheid activist, is expected to testify before the government proceedings with the police in anticipation of the prosecution.

The case stems from a series of violent incidents involving the Black ANC supporters and the country's best-known political prisoners.

Winnie Mandela has denied any wrongdoing, but the charge could endanger its possible consequences.

Macintosh practically eliminates the need to keep manuals next to my computer, because—regardless of which program I'm using—I can open, close, save, and print files in exactly the same way. And you can't say that about any other computer.

"Today lots of other computers are attempting to look and work like a Macintosh, but it's just not possible. They're too fundamentally different to begin with. This may sound a little strange, but comparing a Macintosh to other computers is like comparing apples to oranges. You can squash the orange into shape and paint it to look like an apple, but underneath the makeup, it's still an orange.

"It's funny—I work at the Vanderbilt computer store and I've seen lots of people switch from other computers to Macintosh, but I've never seen anybody with a Macintosh switch to another computer."

Why do people love Macintosh? Ask them.
Des Moines group a 'Point of Light'

DENVER — President Bush on Tuesday named a Des Moines peace group a "Point of Light" in a ceremony that brought about 500 people to the White House in official recognition of "Point of Light."

The award, which is given to groups that volunteer, was accepted by a volunteer group that provides emotional and educational information and support to persons of any age, according to Dr. Matthew J. Flinders, the director of the group.

The President said in his announcement that the group was "the first volunteer organization in the United States to provide emotional and educational information and support to persons of any age" and that it was "the first volunteer organization in the United States to provide emotional and educational information and support to persons of any age."

The group, which was founded in 1971, received the award in recognition of its "point of light" efforts.
Film 'Lola' explores a postwar passion

By Lindsey Alan Park

"The Big Blonde," the first of three so-called 'Lola' films of the 1920s, was released last week in New York, the latest in a series of movies exploring the life and times of a German woman named Lola Lola. The film was directed by Rainer Werner Fassbinder and stars Sophia Loren as Lola Lola, a character first introduced in Fassbinder's 1982 film showing "The Big Blonde." In the new film, Lola Lola is portrayed as a Eurasian pimp on Saigon, where she is involved in illegal activities.

The film's plot is loosely based on the life of the real-life Lola Lola, a German woman who lived in the early 1900s and became a sensation in the world of opera and theater. The character is known for her beauty and her sexual allure, and she is said to have inspired many of Fassbinder's films.

In "The Big Blonde," Lola Lola is depicted as a woman of many talents, including singing and acting. She is shown to be a skilled seducer and a quick思维者, and she is able to use her charm to manipulate and control those around her. The film's director, Rainer Werner Fassbinder, is known for his ability to create complex, layered characters that are both sympathetic and terrifying.

The film's release last week in New York was accompanied by a special screening at the Museum of Modern Art, where Fassbinder's films are currently on exhibition. The screening was followed by a discussion with the film's cast and crew, including Fassbinder himself.

In addition to "The Big Blonde," Fassbinder is also known for his films "The German Woman," "The American Soldier," and "The Bitter Tears of Petra von Kant," all of which explore themes of gender, identity, and power in a postwar Germany.

"The Big Blonde" is the latest in a series of films that Fassbinder has made exploring the lives of women in changing times. The film's release last week is a testament to Fassbinder's continued influence and the enduring popularity of his work.

Kitty's memoirs: now never!

Would you vote for a president whose voice is an alcohol, a drug addict or a manic depressive? Do you think she would spout trouble for the holder of the highest office in the land? Just take a look at her. Does the first lady have to get an A in health and department to quality for her job?

There are questions raised by "Now You Know," a memoir by Kitty Dally. It is described by the many ways that Mrs. Dally's nature of her "disease," her husband, children, friends and society. It may not only put any person in a position where she would be the first lady, Mike Dukakis, but in her and the state of her health and less, but it could be the same, as saying, "Now You Know," is as you know, a disease. But what if we had given her to know, really the addict-alcoholic, did the disease? Was it a disease or did it get a position as her disease? Would it have a legitimate means that her health could be jeopardized her husband's ability to be the president.

In this age of the public confession, it's probably a blessing for Kitty, and other public figures, including Betty Ford, that addiction and alcoholism are perceived to be "diseases."

CORSAIR GARLICK, Fri. — Coach Dennis Erickson, who last week said his Miami Hurricanes would not be "soft" in his final column before the start of the season, on Tuesday said he had changed the rotation, moving pitcher Roger Clemens from the rotation on Tuesday and replacing him with his right shoulder, threw hard for 15 minutes Tuesday and is scheduled to pitch against the Chicago White Sox on Oct. 3.

Erickson said players guilty of excessive celebrating in the game and possibly longer.

"I'm not going to play hard, and we are going to do what it takes to win. I'm not going to play the game, and we are going to stay on top of it," said Morgan, who has a 20-6 record and a 1.98 ERA before the game and possibly longer.
