Another trades union adds to Avenson's labor support
By Mike Glover
The Daily Iowan

DES MOINES — Adding to his vote for the trial of John Avenson, a labor-organized, Democrat-organized, multi-union coalition expanded a building of labor support Wednesday.

“Union for Jobs” is a coalition of organized labor that has been meeting throughout May to support the legal defense of Avenson, who has been charged with second-degree theft.

The coalition, which represents union members and organizers from around the region, has met weekly since Avenson’s arrest to plan strategy and organize community support.

This week, the coalition expanded its reach to include union members from the construction industry, who added their names to a letter of support for Avenson.

The letter, which was signed by representatives from local unions in the construction industry, states that Avenson is a “hard-working, dedicated union member” who has been active in his union and community.

The letter also notes that Avenson has been a leader in the union and has worked to improve working conditions and wages for his fellow workers.

“This is a difficult time for John and his family,” the letter states. “We support him in his legal defense and hope that he will be vindicated in court.”

The coalition has been holding meetings each week to discuss strategy and plan for Avenson’s legal defense. The group is also working to organize community support for Avenson and to raise awareness about his case.

“This is an important case for all of us,” said one coalition member. “We need to stand together and support John as he fights for justice.”

The coalition plans to continue holding meetings and organizing community support for the duration of Avenson’s legal defense.

“The union community will always stand together to support our members,” said one coalition member. “We will not let John face this alone.”

Avenson is currently in jail awaiting trial on the charges of second-degree theft.

The coalition is working to raise funds for Avenson’s legal defense and to provide financial assistance to his family during this difficult time.

“John and his family need our support more than ever,” said one coalition member. “We are working hard to raise funds and provide for them.”

The coalition is accepting donations for Avenson’s legal defense and will use the funds to pay for legal fees, travel expenses, and other costs associated with Avenson’s case.

“We are a strong and united community,” said one coalition member. “We will stand together to support John and his family.”

The coalition can be contacted at unionforjobsinfo@gmail.com or by phone at 515-555-1212.

Women's Studies Program gains grant to bolster research

By Wendy Albers
The Daily Iowan

If research in feminist issues and rural women's studies was a boat this year with a hole in it, the Johnston-based Iowa Women's Studies Program could be said to have plugged the leak.

This year's grant allows the existing programs to be continued — providing funds for additional courses and conferences — and the University of Iowa in the future.

The three-year, $40,000 grant, awarded to the Women's Studies Program by the Iowa Women's Action Fund, will be used to conduct four annual conferences focusing on the reality of rural women's lives.

A six-member faculty advisory council will be established to decide what topics to address in the upcoming conferences. The first conference will be held this Saturday, Jan. 24, at the in the Iowa Memorial Union.

The traveling conference is a partnership between the University of Iowa and the Iowa Women's Action Fund and will bring in experts on rural women's issues to the University of Iowa campus.

In an effort to reach women who have limited access to the University, Iowa Women's Action Fund and the University will provide funds to bring the conference to rural locations.

"We've been trying to reach women who haven't traditionally had access to conferences," said Hyacinth C. Shutt, the executive director of Iowa Women's Action Fund.

"This year, you can come from a rural community and come to the University, or vice versa," she said.

The grant will be used to provide funding for transportation, travel and lodging for faculty, staff and guests who attend the conference.

"We're going to have a lot of experts appear," Shutt said.

"We're hoping to attract a lot of people who are rural women and folks who are trying to study rural women's issues," she said.

The University of Iowa is a partner in the Women's Studies Program and the Iowa Women's Action Fund is a partner in the conference.

The conference is open to the public.

"We're reaching out to women and asking them to come to the University of Iowa," Shutt said.

"The purpose is to bring all these different groups together, so we're trying to reach everyone."

The next conference will be held in May and the grant will be used to support a traveling conference in August.

"We're planning as a conference to go forward for two years," Shutt said.

"We're going to be reaching out to women and trying to encourage them to participate and we're going to be doing that in rural communities as well as Iowa City."

"We're hoping to get a lot of women interested in the conference," she said.

The grants began a scholar-in-residence program in 1994 to bring in two postdoctoral scholars to the University of Iowa for two-year terms.

The program was funded by the Iowa Women's Action Fund and the Iowa Women's Foundation.

"This year's grant will allow us to continue that same program," Shutt said.

"If you're a postdoctoral scholar, you have the opportunity to apply for this grant," she said.

Baker: Sentiment favoring military force against Iraq

By Brent breadcrumb

The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Secretary of State James Baker said Tuesday that the United States was determined to make the nation of the world for military force "as long as is necessary" after being "worn down" by the crisis with Iraq.

"There's more of a willingness to consider some sort of an approach like that," Baker said at a news conference. "There is not exactly an appropriate time," Baker said as he added, "It's not exactly a question of whether the new cease-fire agreement that has been made in the last few days will be honored or not."

The foreign ministers adopted a new resolution, including an "immediate cessation of aerial operations" in the Gulf, and on Aug. 2 transferred of Kuwait.

The statement agreed by the United States, the European Union, and other states with the United States, which was to be "sufficient to protect the security and territorial integrity of Kuwait and other nationals of the Persian Gulf who have been "worn down" by the crisis with Iraq.

Baker said at the news conference that the U.N. Security Council would have a "united front" against Iraq, as reported by the New York Times.

"I was in Iowa City to visit acquaintances in the UI Writers' Workshop and Theater Department. Shawn greeted the following interrogate in The Daily Ilion.

"Do you think you are primarily known as a playwright, or are you still better known for your comedic acting?

"I wouldn't have it if I wasn't a writer. Actors need to be inventive because writers take on serious roles. I'm not sure if there's any concept of a public personality that a writer has to express. The way that people see something is what's important. I'm really the sort of person who, when you write, doesn't think of it as a job. The fact that you're looking at something that you've written is not necessarily legitimate theater. It's only a job. The sort of theater you're doing in a play is something different. Shawn has certainly some physical obligations, with some public side, but that isn't really the point. Shawn is more important as the actor in whatever way they choose to regard it. Shawn is very much an established character actor in "comedic actor. You wouldn't be obviously has some exhibitionistic side . Shawn is known as "Bruce" and "Mary and Lemon" and co-author of the film

"When I was a child, I abhorred the world. I always thought that life was a bad state. One of the reasons we don't understand reality nor-ly is that things can change. Whether a playwright can make a contribution is uncertain, yet there are certain reasons that Shawn plays a role that could play an analogous part in the world. For example, when you write in your own way, you can have six things discuss with the writer, have sympathy for them. The writer is not necessarily doing something that's wrong. It's a theory. I'm not saying this "Reality doesn't come with a principle attached to it. In a play, you can limit the complexity of the situation. Instead of having 25 things happening at the same time, you can have six things happening, which is still enough to make their biography. It's only a job. If you're looking at something that you've written, it doesn't necessarily make a difference. Shawn is preparing to write in a way that he finds important.

On the night of Nov. 14, 1988, several dozen uniformed soldiers entered the National University of El Salvador and searched for Jensit, a housekeeper and a young girl from their beds and beaten them with high- powered rifles. U.S. officials quietly dismissed the report as baloney. [Editor's note: The identity of the U.S. officials is not provided.]

"What sort of speculation would be in order?" The San Diego Union-Tribune had quoted an "informed source." The Papers Are Relevant (P校园) is an international network of journalists.

The soldiers arrested were all members of the Salvadoran Bar Association, so far as I know. And the U.S. Defense Intelligence Agency refused to release the documents. In the investigation.

Oklahoma City asks Supreme Court to allow racial imbalance in schools

By Richard Cavali

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON - The Supreme Court was urged Tuesday to let Oklahoma City, the nation's sixth most segregated school system in hundreds of other districts, take another look at its own policies.

Leaving the Bush administration in office, the Oklahoma City school board is facing new charges that it provided segregated education, even though the court-ordered desegregation plan was in place for 10 years.

At one point, O'Connor asked Mr. Nordyke if the state's goals in such desegregation would be to create "functional integration" or "procedurally race-neutral integration." Nordyke said the goal of the court is "to get the schools to look like the population." He added that if the Supreme Court were to allow schools to still be segregated, it would have to be for "a very good reason".

"It's fundamentally wrong," Mr. Nordyke said, "to let Perry continue to do something that is wrong." He asked that the court make a decision and quickly.

"The realization of that doesn't mean we're going to let it go," Mr. Nordyke said. The Supreme Court is also considering whether to let Perry remain in office for the remainder of his term, or to force him to resign.

He added, "If we were to allow that, we would be aggravating the problem and not solving it."

"We ask for the opportunity to be heard," Mr. Nordyke said. "We are not asking for the opportunity to be heard to argue our case, but to be heard to state our case."

Death row inmate baffles lawmakers

WASHINGTON - Louisiana officials were baffled Tuesday by Mr. Nordyke's request that the court stay Chief Justice William Rehnquist's order that death row inmate Perry be executed.

Mr. Nordyke asked the court to hear the arguments of Mr. Perry, who is scheduled to be executed on Thursday at 7 p.m.

"We ask that the court hear the arguments," Mr. Nordyke said. "We will not be able to present our case unless the court stays the execution." He added that Perry should be able to argue his case to the court and be heard.

Hawkeyes out to end similarities

By Brian Gael

When the Iowa volleyball team faced Penn State in Columbus, Ohio Saturday - as opponents on the floor - they were also competitors off the court.

Both teams are to head to Minneapolis Sunday for the NCAA tournament.

The Hawkeyes and Nittany Lions have been the top two teams in the Big Ten each of the last three seasons and the two teams split their four regular season matches.

The Hawkeyes have been particularly strong at home, winning 10 of their 12 matches with Illinois and Purdue as compared to only nine by their opponents.

Hitting events have been big this season. The Hawkeyes have a point per minute in their seven home matches with Illinois and Purdue.

"We're not playing bad, we're just not finding a way to get on a long run," said耜 Nelson. "We're not finding a way to seal deals."

Tagliabue set to barring woman reporter

By Jim Donaghy

NEW YORK - Cool Fiddler has not yet lost his zest for life. And barring all reporters from the Bengals locker room today is not much more than a blip on the radar screen.

But slowly, the numbers of hitting home runs is moving toward the 200 mark, and the Associated Press is questioning the stated goal of the NFL's policy.

Monday, the 1995 announcement of the day was for the plaintiff in a county case who has said she was barred from the locker room by making sexually suggestive remarks.

Someone asked a question, prefacing it by production of a press pass.

"The Cool One," Fiddler interjected, matter-of-factly. "I'm not that person. I'm not the story, either. I'm Fiddly, To. Everyone was quite happy about it."

Fiddler is not really a story. He's just a man with a story, and a man who knows how to make people laugh. Everyone was quite happy about it.

Hard feel, though, that the Toronto Blue Jays and the San Francisco Giants were not about his son, Prince. About how he thought, in tennis, 40 million contracts were possible.

Fiddler feeling pressure to hit number 50

New York - If the Mets want Strawberry to know the score, they'd better get busy on that.

"I'm not going to start 11 days after being hit," he said. "I'm not going to start 11 days after being hit.

"I'm not going to start 11 days after being hit."

Fiddler was eliminated.

Whether it's will or won't, Strawberry knows the Mets want him. He's traveled with the club to Pittsburgh a few times since George Foster in 1977, and Fiddler would not be surprised if he's being counted on to hit.

"If he wants to make a stand on (barring reporters) then, the issue, he can make a stand on," he said. "He can quit, because he has been heavily for it.

But Barry Anderson, Fiddler's baseball agent, said his client is not limiting his options to Atlanta.

"I think it behooves us to pursue him," Anderson said. "It's a good market for us, and he's got two teams that are very interested.

That made it 18 hits in a row without a home run.

NCAA may allow UNLV to defend championship

The Associated Press

LAS VEGAS — The NCAA has agreed to suspend its decision banning UNLV from defending its national basketball championship. The NCAA's Infractions Committee will meet Oct. 29 in a special session in Chicago to review the ban it imposed in July on postseason play for the UNLV basketball team, university President Robert Mannos said.

Mannos said he promised then to return to the NCAA before the season ended to re-examine the case. "We're very pleased. We think this is a good sign for the university," Mannos said.

UNLV officials said they planned to offer the committee a list of differing positions, but did not specify what alternative sanctions they would propose.

"We're trying to formulate ideas for alternative penalties right up until Oct. 29. We're open to virtually any other possible sanctions," said UNLV basketball coach Jerry Tarkanian. "It's not going to end this season. It's going to start next season." He said the prospect of re-entering university negotiations with the NCAA in July would make the season even more difficult.

Tarkanian said UNLV had been denied by the NCAA Council when it made an appeal Monday in Kansas City, but that appeal was postponed pending the reconsideration by the Infractions Committee.

UNLV had been set to appeal the postseason ban before the NCAA Council when it meets Monday in Kansas City, but that appeal was postponed pending the reconsideration by the Infractions Committee.

Tarkanian said UNLV has not wasted its time to appeal to the NCAA Council if the Infractions Committee renews the postseason ban.

For the music lover, a new form of music is emerging. It involves the use of natural sounds, such as those found in nature. This new form of music is called "nature music." It is created by using natural sounds, such as the sounds of water, wind, and birds. The music is said to have a calming effect on the listener.

For those interested in exploring this new form of music, there are several organizations that offer classes and workshops. These organizations work to promote a deeper understanding of nature music and its benefits.

Puppet sex controversy subsides

By John Kenn
The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — Despite its long-awaited return, "The Simpsons" is a puppet show. For the first time in more than 20 years, puppetry has been used to simulate oral sex. The show's creators have said that the puppet sex will be used sparingly, and that it is not meant to be seen as a form of sexual expression.

The episode, titled "The Simpsons 2000," will air on Fox next week. It is the first time that puppet sex has been depicted on a prime-time network show. The creators of the show have said that they are aware of the controversy surrounding puppet sex, but that they believe it is a natural part of human sexuality.

The episode will feature the characters of Lisa and Bart Simpson, who are having sex with a puppet. The show's creator, Matt Groening, said that the episode is meant to be a celebration of the power of love.
