Branstad, Harkin win easily

By Jennifer Gryn

The Daily Iowan

Wednesday, November 7, 1990

In an election where both the Democratic and Republican parties made gains, Iowa Governor Tom Harkin and Iowa's first term Governor Terry Branstad both won re-elections.

Branstad, a Republican, won the race for governor with 51.4% of the vote, defeating Democrat Paul Tauke in a narrow victory.

Harkin, a Democrat, won his bid for re-election to a third term in the Senate, capturing 59.2% of the vote against his Republican opponent, Jim Jeffords.

Branstad's victory is seen as a significant win for the Republican Party in Iowa, which has traditionally been a Democratic stronghold.

Harkin's victory is seen as a triumph for the Democratic Party, as he becomes the first Iowa senator to win re-election since 1970.

Overall, the election results showed a shift in political power, with Republicans gaining control of the Senate and Democrats maintaining their majority in the House.

Late-night vandals mar 12 local polling places
Governor's name spelled incorrectly

The Daily Iowan

Vandalized were several Iowa City polling places late Monday and early Tuesday with Governor Bruan's name misspelled in several places in combination with words like "disapprove." (About 27 of being "vandalized," were sta­ted to have been tampered with around 12 local polling places, according to a security person at Pat Phayer.)

Phayer, who runs security service in the city, said he thought the attacks were "pointless and senseless."

"nothing definite." No one has been charged.

"He said that the vandals had mis­spelled the governor's name.

"Thursday was the day before the last polls opened Tuesday at 7 a.m.

Harley said in addition to that, the vandals related an ordi­nary political notice within 300 ft. of the polling place.

State help offered to clean up leaking underground fuel tanks
The Associated Press

Des Moines — Nearly 1,500 families of leaking underground fuel tanks filed lawsuit seeking relief for state to clean up fuel and water contamination, bringing the total to 6,000 in the last two decades.

On Oct. 29, the Attorney General's Office announced that the lawsuit was filed by the state on behalf of those who have been exposed to fuel contamination.

"We made the deadline cannot receive the judgment in the future," said Paul ("Joey"") Livengood, the job hunter. Strong victories instill hope for 1992 elections

By Kevin Boot

The Daily Iowan

It took CBS Evening News only three minutes after the Iowa polls closed on Tuesday night to declare Tom Harkins the victor in the Senate race. And it took only a few more minutes before the celebrating Democrats began looking ahead to 1992. As about 130 students and some Iowa Democrats gathered in the Union, Harkin said he was "in a certain but very happy mood."

"I think the victory tonight is a reflection of the fact that a lot of the things we said are important to people," Harkin said. "And the people who support us want us to continue to be there for them."

Watching as the election results came in are Donna Jensen, chairman of the University of the Democrats, and Tom Taylor, chairman of the Johnson County Democratic Party Central Committee. They and other Democrats cheered the election of Tom Harkin's acceptance speech.

"It shows Mr. Nunn has been ringing "Nunn."" Walter said Nebraska in a very realistic state and so is to say that Bill Runny was elected is quite a fact. He has been in legislative in Iowa, and I think it shows the realness of the Republican party's concern for the average Iowa family."

And when interview with Republican Sen. Charles Grassley is broadcast over the Whittey region televiewers by the channel that nounced his victory.

"I'm very grateful to the voters. I must say that I was a bit surprised. I always expect elections results to be in much closer."

Harkins said he was surprised by the victory and that he was looking forward to serving a second term.

"It's a great day for Iowa, and it's a great day for the Democratic Party," Harkin said. "But it's also a great day for all the people who worked hard to get this victory."

WASHINGTON — Democrat moved to strengthen their longstanding grip on the House and made gains as the nation voted even as voters tossed out several entrenched incumbents.

The majority party wrested four seats from the Republicans and threatened to take 10 more. GOP candidates captured two previously Democratic seats in Minnesota and Missouri.

Voters elected the first Socialist to the House since 1929 and the first black Republican mayor of Burlington, Vt., turning out in Florida, Virginia, Maryland, and Pennsylvania.

County poll turnout increases surprisingly

By John Crewe/ The Daily Iowan

Johnson County, noted as being one of the strongest Democratic counties in the nation, continued its historical support of Democrat Tom Harkin, a straight-talking, no-nonsense, anti-incumbent.

County Auditor Donna Grundstad reported that 46,967 people voted in the election — a 32 percent increase from the 1986 election, Grundstad said. He and his wife were surprised at the turnout, which Grundstad said was not a presidential election year, which normally has higher voter turnout. She added that the weather conditions, which normally would have kept voters away from the polls.

"This was a big increase despite the fact that it was not an election year," Grundstad said.

The Johnson County auditor and election official also reported that Grundstad reported that several counties in the nation continued to maintain the status quo. The second summer of intensive language training at a more advanced level this summer's programs increased voter turnout, which Slockett said was approximately a 6 percent increase.

Another issue was that the county treasurer, county auditor and county assessor all won re-election in Johnson County, although Anderson reported the increase in her first statewide bid, in the campaign of Sen. Bill Bradley, who had to struggle to a narrow win over a Republican challenger who had not liked the incumbent in her first statewide bid, embattled Democratic Sen. Bill Bradley held half short of winning.

Voters upset with campaigns, head to polls as ‘responsibility’

By Sonja West and Chris Pasho

The Daily Iowan

Fulfilling an obligation to vote rather than a desire to get any particular candidate into office was one of the prevailing motivations in Johnson County’s state senator, county treasurer and Assembly candidates, according to the majority of voters.

“It’s my duty, if I don’t get involved,” said one UI student who was voting at theセンター位置 on South Street.

“I feel that we are being asked to vote for a social responsibility,” said Iowa City resident Nancy Reicher, adding that she was disturbed at the amount of pressure being placed on the voters.

“I think all the candidates would have been a little more straightforward toward the end of the day,” said another Iowa City resident.

“One voter, however, was distributed a pro-polygamy bumper sticker at one polling place.

“I wasn’t really satisfied with the candidates,” said Iowa City resident Steve McGraw.

McGrave described his vote choice as “between the lesser of two evils.”

Three university campuses in the state, or a total of 1.3 million students, will vote this year.

For many UI students, this was the first time they were able to participate in.

Eighteen-year-old Freshman Heather Bere was one six-time.

“We’re 18 and we have the ability to relay accurate and expedient information to the public,” she said.

“It was really pretty easy,” she said. “I thought it would be a lot more complicated.”

The latest amendment, approved by Iowans, said the market would be free to vote, and only in the precincts in which they live.

“Basically, I voted out for a couple different reasons,” said another Iowa City resident.

“I feel like it would be a lot more complicated,” she said.

DES MOINES — Iowans have not had a formal state constitutional refer- ence since the amendment was drafted in 1857, and there were no calls to that change this year.

Iowans agree with the proposition at the polls Tues- day, Nov. 8, 1994, Johnson County Register editor said.

“Just under 60 percent of the electors are expected to be asked every 10 years whether they want to ratify a new vote to change the document,” Register editor said.

The question was asked November 6, 8. but there was no agreement on the question.

Johnson County approves enhanced 911 service

By Sara Lengbaun and Lindsey Alan Park

The Daily Iowan

Johnson County voters overwhelmingly approved a proposal Thursday to fund the enhanced emergency telephone service in the area.

The measure, which was included in the proposition, which adds $6.15 a month to residential telephone, will pay for the enhanced emergency telephone service.

The additional charge will increase the phone bill by about $6.15 a month.

The county’s current system relies on the caller’s ability to relay information and dispatch directions to the operator.

Johnson County approves enhanced 911 service

The Daily Iowan

Johnson County voters overwhelmingly approved a proposal Thursday to fund the enhanced emergency telephone service in the area.

The measure, which was included in the proposition, which adds $6.15 a month to residential telephone, will pay for the enhanced emergency telephone service.

The additional charge will increase the phone bill by about $6.15 a month.

Innovative DAJAM to perform

By Lindsay Allen Park

The art of faxing is as popular as email, a new generation of fax machines is making the office an even more electronic place. The DAJAM Performance Group, part of the UI Department of Theatre Arts, will give its first fax performance of the experimental piece "Nice Minions" tonight at 8 p.m. in Main Theatre.

"We had the opportunity to explain the entire creative process, much like the creative processes of a painter, a sculptor, a writer, a choreographer," said the four members developing "Nice Minions." Toronto and working on faxing images.

"Communication and trust are very important," said Davis. "In some cases, it's about the same thing. When documents are faxed, they are never seen, they are not even touched."

D'Albanoise's Stanton Dossett and Jennifer Rives, who collaborated on the text of the show, are working in the same direction, but when it comes to the fax, it is very exciting.

Dossett and Rives use fax machines to perform because they believe fax machines are an unusual and different way to communicate and express themselves. They say faxing is a way of communicating that is not widely used, and it is a form of communication that they believe is important.

D'Albanoise also expressed the importance of fax machines and working on faxing images. "Faxing images can be a way to express ideas and emotions that are not commonly used in other forms of communication," said D'Albanoise.

The DAJAM Performance Group, enabled students to make and install fax machines in order to raise money for the project. They also worked with fax machines to create a performance that was unique and different.

"Faxing images can be a way to express ideas and emotions that are not commonly used in other forms of communication," said D'Albanoise.

Four students who thought that fax machines were only for business use stuck it out and working on faxing together. This year, they have developed "Nice Minions," an experimental piece that will be performed in the UI's Mabel Theatre through this week.

WAR IN THE GULF
Here it comes

There are several factors that indicate that military action will be necessary to resolve the crisis in the Persian Gulf. And yet, it is a very good chance that the international community is prepared to support such action against Iraq to force it to cease the occupation of Kuwait.

First, Saddam Hussein has become increasingly belligerent towards the United States, as is evidenced by his refusal to allow the U.N. Special Commission to resume its work in Kuwait. Second, there is now a coalition of nations, including the United States, that are determined to stop the occupation of Kuwait. Third, there is a growing sense of urgency among the international community to act.

On the other hand, there are several factors that may prevent military action. First, there is the possibility of a peaceful resolution of the crisis. Second, there is the risk of collateral damage, especially to non-combatants. Third, there is the risk of escalation, which could lead to a wider war.

In conclusion, while military action is necessary to resolve the crisis in the Persian Gulf, it is not certain that such action will be taken. The decision will depend on a wide range of factors, including the political will of the United States and its allies, the military capabilities of the United States and its allies, and the international community's support.

CATS AND DOGS LIVING TOGETHER

There is a nine house on the southeast side of town with a garage that has served as a temporary home for dozens of cats and dogs. Most of the animals are between homes, though a few are stray.

Unsure Delbert, president of the Johnson County Humane Society, owns the house and garage. He and his wife have been working to make the world a better place, the final homes for those temporary pets. Allow me to digress for just one moment to emphasize a few simple ways to support your local humane society.

The executive committee of the UI-OPA Operating Service Department has announced that the department was(S) to go on strike. I hope the strike doesn't succeed because the UI-OPA is an extremely important service to this university in the Jean Jew case.

As the case of Jean Jew has surprised the executive committee of the UI-OPA Operating Service Department, so the unwritten university policy was that the department was(S) to go on strike.

Potential adoptions are screened to meet adequate standards. This means they can only be adopted for an animal.

If an animal is intended as a pet, the intended recipient must acknowledge willingness to accept the animal under those terms. And an animal is not in a home where pets are not allowed.

In the case of Jean Jew, the policy is followed, to the best of my knowledge.

Public Image

To the Editor:

The Board of Trustees of The University of Iowa is deeply concerned about the current public image of the university. It has been brought to the attention of the Board of Trustees that a number of faculty members, including myself, are working on a campaign to improve the public image of the university.

I am writing to express my support for this campaign. As a member of the faculty, I believe that it is important for the university to have a positive public image.

Sincerely,

Assassin instigates differences with Yeitsin

NEW YORK — A gun-slinger hired to assassinate former KGB officer Moshe Noseir, 34, at a Manhattan hotel, ending a fiery career that took the "radical rabbi" from Brooklyn street corner to the front lines of the Jewish-Palestinian conflict.

Noseir, 34, was shot in the chest by a postal police officer as he fled — and was hospitalized, police sources said.

Murderous intent is reported to be the reason behind the attempted murder, sources said for the city's Department of General Services since 1984, said Albert Schneider, a spokesman for Mayor David Dinkins. Other background on Noseir was not immediately available.

The shooting took place today in front of the same hotel, where Noseir had been staying earlier in the week.

Police said only that the gunman was believed to be of Middle Eastern origin and that his escape was unsuccessful. He carried several guns from 18 different countries and was involved in several international incidents.

"Everything indicates he was acting alone," said Chief of Detectives Joseph Burdell.

Sources also said there were indications that the gunman was an accountant and a computer programmer.

He was shot in the neck, police sources said, and a bullet entered him from behind.

Moshe Noseir, a KGB supporter who has been repairing his reputation as a radical rabbi in the Middle East, said Thursday that he was shot in the chest by a police officer in front of the same hotel, where Noseir had been staying earlier in the week.

"I was shot in the chest by a police officer in front of the same hotel, where Noseir had been staying earlier in the week. The子弹 hit me in the chest and I was taken to the hospital," Noseir said.

Young Hawks taking Czechoslovaksians seriously

By Eric Oldfield

The Daily newspaper

Now basketball coach Tim Davis is on his second year with the Czechoslovakian national team tonight. They'll take them seriously.

"When you look at them, you'll see a difference," said Davis. "The difference is有一点."

But Davis says that looks can be deceiving.

"They're very tall. They're very fast. They're very good," said Davis.

The game started strongly in the first few minutes, ending 2-2 with 13 seconds left on the clock.

The Czechoslovakian team, which opened the season Monday against England and the United States, was defeated by the Czechoslovakian team, 91-80. The Czechoslovakian team led for most of the game and never looked back. The Czechoslovakian team is made up of young players, most of whom are away from their home country.

"They're young and they're going to look to the future," said Davis. "The game ends at 2-0 and the junior is going to be big and they're going to have some good things."

HELENA, Ola. — The Cleveland Browns expect only minor changes to their defense this year, but one thing is for sure: Jim Shofner has replaced Bud Carson as head coach. Shofner is expected to bring a new style of defense to the team, and he's already begun to make changes. Shofner has been teaching his new defense to the players, and he's been working on the playbook. The team is scheduled to return to training camp next week, and Shofner is looking forward to seeing how his new system will work. He's also been working on improving the team's special teams, and he's been meeting with the players to talk about the upcoming season.

Borg brings wood for comeback

By Rob Glozer
The Associated Press

BYRON, Ill. - John McEnroe feels the way Bjorn Borg goes on the court will determine whether he ever makes it back on the tour.

Borg, who has announced his retirement at the end of this year, said Monday he will begin a comeback after two years away from the tour.

"I'm just going to start practicing and see how it goes," said Borg. "I want to make sure that physically and mentally I am match-ready."

Borg, who has denied reports he is planning to return to the tour, has said he is seeking a comeback because he is tired of living his life as, in effect, a retirement home for retired tennis stars.

"Many claim that it's impossible to return after a fall like this, but I disagree," Borg said. "I'm just going to start practicing and see how it goes."

Borg said he was not giving up on his career and was planning to return to the tour.

"I feel I can still compete at a high level," he said. "I'm not giving up on my career and I'm not saying I'm retiring."

Borg has had a tough time recently with his weight and fitness, and has struggled to get back into shape.

"I'm just going to start practicing and see how it goes," he said. "I want to make sure that physically and mentally I am match-ready."

Scantily clad youth show off hyped moves on ‘Club MTV’

The dancers don’t always look like they’re enjoying themselves, especially when they have to do a song that doesn’t lend itself to their image. But they do try to make it look as if they are enjoying themselves. The show is rather like a crazy dance party, with all the usual elements: the audience, the performers, name-dropping (sycophantic), suggesting she is a close, personal friend. However, CBS is making the ratings race tight as it hopes to own a majority of the audience. ‘Murder’ averaged an 18.6 to the 15.8 of NBC’s ‘Cheers.’

Vincent rules free agents off limits to Steinbrenner

The Associated Press

NEW YORK - George Steinbrenner might have control of the New York Yankees thanks to the current market, but he has been turned down by commissioner Fay Vincent.

Steinbrenner wrote to Vincent recently and asked the permission to deal in free agency. "There's a chance that says I may ask for permission to deal in a market of a potential extraordinary nature," Steinbrenner said in an article published in The New York Times. "Certainly when you're going to spend millions of dollars on a free agent, we have to be concerned about that." Steinbrenner said he wrote because "I don't see my options clearly because we have two free agents. I've made all the right choices and I've made the mistakes." Steinbrenner's ruling stated that Steinbrenner could not deal in free agency for the entire current market. "Any owner who is going to deal in free agency needs to be concerned about the market. That's what happened," Steinbrenner said. "For the rest of the year, Steinbrenner said he would look at the market and participate in major financial decisions. "My response was to go back and ask," Steinbrenner said. "I did, and I got turned down again. When we signed this agreement, free-agent negotiations were part of the things we talked about. We could agree on it now, after it's signed, that a lot of that's been compromised."
