Sanctions imposed on Illini hoops

By Greg Schulte

Edwardsville, Ill. — The Associated Press

Although the Illini have enjoyed an almost unblemished record of clean play in recent years, Illinois athletic director Lee Adams said Wednesday that the team will be sanctioned for the first time in its history. The sanctions include a 3-year probationary period and a fine of $25,000. Illinois will also be required to return any profits made from the recent controversial practice of recruiting top students for athletic scholarships. The sanctions were imposed after an investigation by the NCAA revealed that the Illini had been violating amateurism rules for at least the past 3 years. Adams said he was pleased with the decision and promised to cooperate fully with the NCAA. Illinois has won 9 national championships since 1990, including 5 in football, 3 in basketball, and 1 in baseball.
Special UI Student Assembly elections canceled

By Ann Marie Williams

The Daily Iowan — Thursday, November 8, 1990

Special UI Student Assembly elections were canceled after it was determined that the student body did not have the required number of registered members.

The Nov. 13 special election was scheduled after the UI Student Government called for a special election to fill the seat vacated by 7th legislative body of the USA, according to Tom Lenzy, executive officer of the USG.

The majority vote of the UI Student Assembly was to have been held at 7:30 in the UCB. The newly selected members bring the total membership up to 13.

In the Graduate and Professional Student Body, the number of active members doubled from 13 to 26 after the addition of new students.

JOHNSTOWN, COLO.—Johnson County has increased its tax rate by 2 percent since the last non-proportional election in 1989.

According to the Johnson County Board of Supervisors, the tax rate for 1991 will be 0.27%, up from 0.25% in 1990.

The tax rate is used to determine the amount of money that the county will collect from property owners in order to fund its operations.

BRANDON, SD—Twenty-five-year-old Marie Meraz was sentenced to one year in a state prison for her role in an illegal drug ring.

Meraz, a 25-year-old resident of Lakeside Manor, was convicted of second-degree robbery, a Class B felony.

Meraz was found guilty of robbery and possession of drug paraphernalia, a Class D felony.

The charge was filed after Meraz and her co-defendant, Michael Senior, were arrested during a drug raid.

The hearing was held in the third floor courtroom of the Johnson County Courthouse.

Wearing a backpack could be a health hazard

By Julie Crossen

The Daily Iowan

A long, hunched back can be a sign of poor posture, but it can also cause back pain and other health problems. "Back pain is a very common problem," said Dr. Roger Waddell, a spine surgeon at the University of Iowa Hospitals and Clinics. "It's one of the most common complaints in the United States." According to the United States Department of Health and Human Services, back pain is the most common type of chronic pain in the United States, affecting an estimated 80 million people each year.

Waddell said that back pain can be caused by a variety of factors, including poor posture, muscle strain, and degenerative disc disease. "People who sit for long periods of time, such as students, are at increased risk for back pain," he said. "Even if you don't exercise regularly, you can still develop back pain if you don't maintain good posture." Waddell recommended that people practice good posture by sitting upright with their feet flat on the floor, their shoulders back, and their core engaged.

In addition to poor posture, Waddell said that backpacks can also cause back pain. "Backpacks can be a problem if they're too heavy or if they're worn incorrectly," he said. "It's important to wear a backpack properly, by centring the weight of the bag over your pelvis, and to distribute the weight evenly between both shoulders." Waddell recommended that people wear backpacks with a chest strap and that they avoid wearing heavy backpacks for long periods of time.

Waddell also said that people should be aware of the signs of back pain, including backache, difficulty walking, and difficulty sitting or standing for long periods of time. "If you experience any of these symptoms, it's important to see a doctor right away," he said.

The story of back pain is not just limited to students. "Back pain affects people of all ages," Waddell said. "It's important for everyone to be aware of the risks and to take steps to prevent back pain." Waddell recommended that people practice good posture, avoid carrying heavy backpacks, and see a doctor if they experience back pain.

"Back pain can be a serious problem," Waddell said. "It's important to take it seriously and to seek treatment if necessary." Waddell encouraged people to talk to their doctors about their back pain and to take steps to prevent it.

Parking a backpack may disrupt Farmers Market business

By Cynthia Taylor

The Daily Iowan

In an effort to make way for the Farmers Market, the City Council voted to remove two public parking lots downtown, which has angered some residents and market vendors. "I don't think it's fair to take away our parking spaces," said Jean Petersen, a market vendor. "We need those spaces to do business, especially now that the market is moving to the north half of the Robert A. Lee Community College Center!"

The City Council voted unanimously to remove two public parking lots, located on the corner of College Street and 11th Avenue, in order to make way for the Farmers Market. However, some residents and market vendors have expressed concerns that the new location will not be as convenient for customers. DEB MORGAN - The only major campaign

There was no single theme that

Bob Dylan's heartland fever continues with Carver Theatre show

By Steve Grave

I t's probably pointless to speculate what Dylan is going to do in a Carver Theatre show, especially when he's giving audiences exactly the opposite of what they know. The most recent, "Love and Theft," was a surprising new direction, yet his latest CD, "Blood on the Tracks," will go on to be his greatest album ever. The celebration, with refreshments will be open to the public. Gallery hours will be on Saturday, October 10, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Hunter, who spoke by phone from a stop in St. Louis, has been on the road with his band for nearly two years. He said that audiences for the show have been "equally serious and especially sophisticated about Dylan's music. The audience members, including Dylan's die-hard fans, are very good to be on the road with the band. I think it's probably a little too early to say the show will be a success, but it's a good start, we're having a good time and we're looking forward to the next show."

Enjoy the break

The many political commentators and "fence-line" debates of the 1990 election are finally over. Iowa suffers from election fatigue, but there is only a brief respite; that is the nature of politics in Iowa.

Watching television, the Iowa races seem less than two years away. Iowa is not a small state anymore. Even the local area dating seems to last forever and there is little time for the players to rest. Unlike NBA basketball, however, Iowa politics is not a team sport. It is an individual sport. The political will start now, in the wake of the Iowa races, which supposedly fulfill the best "pro-patriotic" party-practice role. Iowa is just one where the statesmen — you know, the political malaise who make the entire campaign system work.

And, of course, there will be the television media. The "pelagicularmen" will begin to turn on to show the day of the caucuses draws near. They will slam the issues and outrage their viewers by reducing the political men to 15-second sound bites. Their political forecasts and opinion polls will be on all the time, covering even the no-news, non-voter, ignored and alienated, scratching their heads. "The Iowa Political Street Mark. and the vagaries of modern ideologists, the fourth century debate over predestination and Augustine and Pelagius still blazes in the world today. We have a closer look at this complex principle.

In his famous letter to the bishops of Hippo-decadus, it is the Pelagius of the principle. The Pelagian doctrine, as formulated by Augustine, is a doctrine of human nature and of the human freedom. It is a doctrine that the human has a freedom of choice.

But if Pelagius is right and we are autonomous souls endowed with a soul of her own, then we must vote. But the people who choose their schemes have schemes. All of us, for our own good, is held to an end and voting is one of the choices that we have to make in the election. It is called perfection. After all, it is all up to us.

Jim Rogers' column appears Thursdays on the Viewpoints page.

The idea that more education, or more therapy, is the answer for our society's problems is utterly specious. Other attempts to deal with the violence of humanity are just pure speculation. Liberalism (in both its classic and modern forms) breeds disrespect for all forms of authority. But then the self is the source of the problem, not the source of the solution. The government must give us the solutions; the individual must give us the self. The individual must learn to respect the government.

"Thus the war was initiated from the town, and thereby from such results, the government was entirely cut off. After each act of the will, man said exactly where he was going to go. And there was only a single road to go. And there was only a single road to go.

U.S.: Iraq is bartering captives

China promises Baker to back military force

By Laura King
The Associated Press

Iraqi on Wednesday promised to free 120 hostages, including a few Americans, but U.S. officials blamed Saddam Hussein for his "cynical" use of the captives and said they would continue to seek to free them.

At the United Nations diplomat, the United States has drafted a Security Council resolution authorizing the use of U.N. military force against Iraq, if needed, to protect its citizens "who have been abducted or kidnapped.

But the threat has not been delivered to other Security Council members, because Secretary of State James Baker is still trying to line up support for it, said the diplomat, speaking on condition of anonymity.

In a meeting with the Chinese diplomat, Baker "stressed the need for a resolution that has already taken him to the Middle East, is now in Moscow.

In some of his strongest remarks the three-month-old Persian Gulf stood off, British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher said Wednesday, "we are now running out" for a painful solution.

Thatcher told British lawmakers they must send the Iraqi president the message "that he gets out of Kuwait now or we and our allies will remove him from power, and he will go down in defeat with all the responsibility and all the danger for himself and his regime.

"He has been warned," she added.

Man indicted for bomb deaths

By James Renety
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A Virginia businessman who is a key White House aid was indicted Thursday for murder after a series of explosions that killed a federal judge and a military aide and injured a top defense lawyer.

James Baker, 56, was indicted on a separate charge of violating the Espionage Act, which prohibits unauthorized release of classified information.

Baker was accused of making a trip to Iraq in 1990 to help secure the release of two U.S. military contractors.

The indictment, announced here Thursday, said that Baker and another man, also accused of murder, "were the persons who worked with Moody to release the two contractors for December deliveries of lightAwait crude oil were up $1.07 at $16.45 per barrel Friday, near the $17.15 peak hit last month in the Saudi desert on Tuesday.

Army Spc. Walter Robinson of Clearwater, Fla., released while holding a 155mm Howitzer shell during an intervention in a free firing exercise in the Saudi desert on Tuesday.

His attorney, Robert G. Wood, said his client had no knowledge of the bombs and did not believe they should have been used.

Hawkeyes have all-American in Arnold

By Brian Geil

The Daily Iowan

Iowa's first qualifier in NCAA women's golf history, Deidra Connelly, is doing just what she set out to do this spring.

"It's been a great year, Arnold said. "I'm really happy with the way it's turned out." Arnold has been consistent all season long, leading Iowa to its best finish in the NCAA tournament with a tie for third place.

Arnold's performance has not only helped Iowa, but has also impressed the NCAA committee, earning her a spot on the all-American team.

Arnold's journey to the NCAA tournament began in the fall when she was named the Big Ten Freshman of the Year. She continued her strong play throughout the season, winning two individual events and being a key contributor to Iowa's team success.

"I'm really proud of Deidra," said Iowa women's golf coach Susan Thomason. "She's come a long way in her career." Arnold's confidence and work ethic have been key factors in her success this season.

Arnold's performance has been impressive, but it hasn't been easy. The senior from Glen Ellyn, Illinois, has faced many challenges along the way.

"I've been through a lot of ups and downs," Arnold said. "But I've learned to stay focused and keep working hard." Arnold's determination and perseverance have been evident throughout her collegiate career.

Arnold's success has not gone unnoticed. She has received numerous awards and accolades, including being named to the All-Big Ten team and being a finalist for the NCAA individual championship.

"She's been a great leader for our team," said Thomason. "She's always been a positive influence on her teammates." Arnold's leadership has been crucial to Iowa's success this season.

Despite her numerous accomplishments, Arnold remains humble and focused on the future.

"I'm just trying to enjoy the moment," Arnold said. "I'm not really thinking about what's next." Arnold's goal is to continue playing golf at the highest level possible.

"I want to play as long as I can," Arnold said. "I love playing golf and I want to keep doing it as long as I can." Arnold's passion for the game is evident both on and off the course.

Arnold's success has not only benefited her, but has also benefited Iowa women's golf.

"I'm really proud of Deidra," said Thomason. "She's been a great addition to our team." Arnold's leadership and work ethic have been key factors in Iowa's success this season.

Tagliabue wants Super Bowl pulled from Arizona in 1993

By Dave Goldberg
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — NFL commissioner Paul Tagliabue announced yesterday that the league was serious in its proposal to make a holiday of Martin Luther King's birthday.

"If we do not believe that playing Super Bowl XXXVI in Arizona is in the best interests of the National Football League," Tagliabue said after the Arizona Cardinals' 48-17 win over the Philadelphia Eagles and chainnan of the league head coach in the league and there are no black American football players, "an eight-team proposal to make a holiday of the state millions in lost convention business."

The proposal, which was put forward by Phoenix mayor William Taliesin, would extend the holiday to include the state's second-largest city, Tempe.

"We want to do more than just make a holiday of the state," Taliesin said yesterday. "We want to celebrate the contributions of African-Americans to the world."

Notre Dame visits No. 9 Tennessee

By Nick Warner
The Associated Press

The timing appears right for No. 9 Tennessee to flex its legend. Notre Dame on Saturday.

But a look at the calendar and history has already cast an eerie haze over this game.

Notre Dame, ranked 41st in the AP poll and 37th in the Coaches' poll, heads to Knoxville for the first time in 76 years. It holds the last-ever win by either team in the series, a 17-10 Irish victory in 1941, in the first game played on the field of Tennessee's newly named Neyland Stadium.

You'd think both teams have much to prove, but Notre Dame might have an extra measure of anxiety.

"It's a little bit nerve-racking," said Irish receiver Bill Livingstone. "It's been a long time since we've been there.

"It's going to be a very difficult game on both sides of the ball. We're prepared to go in there and play.

"We're preparing to play this team that's one of the top teams in the country, so we're going to go in there with a lot of confidence and play our game."

"I feel like we have the talent to be one of the best teams in the country," Livingstone said.

Vargas Llosa's latest novel praised despite controversy

By David Blood

NEW YORK — Mario Vargas Llosa, the Peruvian author who has been a symbol of political power in his country throughout his career, has been on the defensive since he wrote a novel in which his life and works are criticized by the Peruvian President Alberto Fujimori.

Fujimori, a former chief of the armed forces and a presidential candidate, has been accused of authorizing the assassination of journalist Héctor Tobar in 1997.

Vargas Llosa said he did not write in defense of Fujimori, but rather in response to a request from the Peruvian government to write a book about the government's efforts to combat drug trafficking.

"In art, I think it is important to open the door, release all that is repressed in life. It is very dangerous to do this in real life," said Vargas Llosa, author of "In Praise of the Stepmother."
