Senators ask president for emergency session
White House calls meeting unnecessary

By John Dimsdale
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Key senators said Wednesday that President Bush should call Congress back into session for emergency meetings, although the White House declined the request.

The 209th Congress, which had adjourned last week, could focus on drawing up legislation for the president if asked to return. The meeting was proposed by Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., who said a special session would be necessary to pass legislation that would allow the military to protect a nuclear arsenal.

The Senate has not met since last week, when it convened a special session to deal with the Iraqi crisis. The House has met since then.

Senators respond with mixed feelings

By Terry Williams

President Bush wants to call Congress back into session to deal with the war in Iraq, and senators from both parties are divided over whether Congress should meet.

"It's a mixed bag," said Sen. Max Baucus, D-Mont., who chairs the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. "It's a difficult position, and I don't think it's going to be easy to get a lot of senators on board."...
Council Bluffs Navy reservists told to anticipate activation

The Associated Press

COUNCIL BLUFFS - A U.S. Navy Reserve hospital detachment from Region 18, which includes the Midwest, has been told to anticipate possibly being sent to the Persian Gulf. Earlier, two Iowa National Guard medical units in eastern Iowa were ordered to prepare for mobilization.

Recurse transportation units from Mco. and Council Bluffs left for California on Wednesday. No solid information on when or if the call-up would issue has been available, according to a spokesman, and Chief Petty Officer Gene Widde, the senior enlisted man, said that the reservists would be called up if ordered.

A preliminary hearing has been set for Nov. 15.

Members chosen for commission

By Cynthia Taylor

The Daily Iowan

In an effort to increase diversity, the Iowa City Council appointed a new member to the Iowa City Human Rights Commission. Alice Galbraith was appointed for the next three-year term. She will fill the vacancy created by the resignation of resident Phyllis Leonard. The city commission chooses four members, two African American, one Hispanic, one female, one male. Leonard decided to resign to give a new appointee the opportunity to serve as the new chair to the commission. If the vacancy is filled, the next meeting will be held on Monday, December 3, at 7 p.m. in the Iowa City Public Library to elect a new chair.

The Iowa State School Board may have to deal with elementary school overcrowding as early as next year. Districts are reporting surpluses of 50 percent or more of the classroom space in the city, but Wood said that it is not a problem. Members will be able to take the excess space and use it as free classrooms, offices, and meeting rooms, or to move classes around to where they are needed.

The Iowa State School Board will take action on overcrowded schools from the city.

Branstad: Iowa tracks must OK simulcast

by Mike Glover
The Associated Press

DES MOINES — Gov. Terry Branstad has decided Iowa racetracks must approve simulcasting to keep their horse tracks. But Branstad said he would back such a move at Prairie Meadows and other tracks within the Prairie Meadows Corporation.

"I disagree with his decision," said
signed the Triple Crown.

"I am concerned about the impact this could have on our horse industry," Branstad said. "But I think it's best for Prairie Meadows to have a voice in the new era of financing racing tracks.

Ontario tracks have a single owner,
which makes it easier for them to make decisions about simulcasting.
Iowa racetracks are owned by a corporation and it's important for them to have input into this decision.

The decision will impact Prairie
Meadows and other tracks, including Kenova and Keeneland.

A committee of the legislature
has been tasked with studying simulcasting
and its impact on the horse industry.

"We need to make sure that this decision is made with the best interests of the horse industry in mind," Branstad said. "I believe the legislature should have a say in this decision.

The horse industry is important to Iowa and it deserves to be heard in this decision-making process."
Gorbachev, Yeltsin to divide authority

By Bryan Brumley

WASHINGTON - In a major step toward redefining Moscow's role in the Soviet Union, Boris Yeltsin, the 70-year-old Communist Party member who has been emerging as the strongman of the Soviet political scene, and Robert Dole, the new Senate majority leader, are poised to divide authority between them.

Yeltsin, who has been the leader of the Russian Republic, which contains more than half the country's population, showed signs that he was closing in on the presidency Tuesday as the Senate approved a constitutional amendment that would allow him to run for president.

NEA panelists quit in protest of rules

By Robert M. Andrews

WASHINGTON—Nine of the 13 members of a National Endowment for the Arts (NEA) panel that had been gearing up to award $47.5 million in grants during the coming fiscal year have quit en masse in protest of NEA rules that they say are not in keeping with the intent of the agency's legislation.

"We are quitting in protest of the rules, which have been imposed on us," said the panel's chairman, Gilbert C. Parks, a New York-based photography associate.

The panel had been reviewing grants applications for the fiscal year, which began Oct. 1, and its adoption of the new rules would have forced it to set aside $47.5 million in grants and to go back to the previous year's list of recipients.

"We are very disappointed," said Parks, who is also a member of the NEA's board of governors.

"The rules are now so cumbersome that it would be impossible to review the applications in a timely manner.

"We have had to resign in protest of the new rules, which we believe will severely impact the arts in this country.

"We are very concerned about the future of the arts in this country."
Real commitment?

On Monday, US President Hunter Rawlings announced that a settlement agreement has been reached in the Des Moines case. The settlement means a victory for human rights at the UI, but it is overshadowed by lingering questions of consistency.

It should not take five years to settle the Des Moines case. The University has a reputation for handling issues in a timely manner, and it seems that the administration's response to grievances has been less than adequate. The university administration's response to these complaints has been slow and inadequate.

But the university administration's response to these complaints has been slow and inadequate. The administration has failed to redress the administrative grievance process in a quick and appropriate manner. Redress to name-calling and verbal harassment is not as easy as fixing a broken computer. Why should people have to bear the costs of redress and litigation?

The administration's response to the impression that it is not to make a better, to protect human rights. But people ought to come before profits. People ought to come before the administration's profits. People ought to come before the university's actions.

Further, when a human rights violation by a member of the UI community is discovered, the UI should, along with bearing appropriate compensatory actions, take definitive positive actions against the offending party. Violations of the UI Human Rights Policy are not to be ignored. Lack of positive actions by the UI only exasperates the UI's failure to redress.

By no means does the UI have a problem in an academic setting. The negligence apparent in the UI's response to the grievances demonstrates the ethical inconsistencies of the UI administration. The UI President Peter Nathan seems to think that the UI's response is not to be understood, even when it is understood.

But the UI has failed to show that the UI has had a policy change in the way the UI responds to grievances. The UI simply cannot afford to continue to disregard human rights.

Women when women are more like candidates

When women running for office are grown up at last, They won and lost as candidates, not as men.

Like men, they've learned that whatever works, works. They talked tough when they talked tough, showed some strength, showed some strength, showed some strength.

They talked tough when they talked tough, showed some strength, showed some strength, showed some strength.

As a result, this year's crop of women exploded out of the myth of women's weakness.

The Iowa field hockey team wasn't through recruiting Wednesday, according to coach Dan Gable.

"We gave the world a pretty good scare today," Gable said. "I think we're a little closer than we have been in a long time."

And that includes him.

Gable is one of those people who feels when they walk across the court at the beginning of each season and take a look at what's ahead, "it's almost like starting over."

"The women's field hockey program is still a very young one, and this is our second recruiting season."

"But we're probably a lot closer to being a national recruiting powerhouse than we were a year ago."

So far, the Hawkeyes have signed eight seniors to their 1989 recruiting class, which should bring the team's enrollment to 15 this fall. It's two short of the NCAA's maximum limit.

"We've got a flourescently young team," Gable said. "And the growth curve is really going to crest in the spring."

"It's still early in the year, but we're confident that this is the best class we've had," Gable said. "We've got a lot of good

'Tough-skinned' Manley ready for NFL

By Paul Page

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A year after being banned from the NFL, Donnie Manley is ready to return to football — even if he has to try out for a team or watch the season from a treatment center.

But the former Pro Bowl defensive end says he has used his time to rehabilitate to prepare himself for a reunion with the league and the Washington Redskins.

Manley has missed the last six games of 1988 after violating the league's substance abuse policy for the third time.

"The most important thing for me to stay focused on my recovery," Manley said just before meeting with Redskins owner Jack Kent Cooke and general manager Charley Casserly.

Manley and from Houston, where he did volunteer work at the John Lucas New York substance abuse clinic. "If not, life goes on. I will accept whatever it will be."

Manley has been suspended since Nov. 27 for violating the league's substance abuse policy, which he said was cocaine again that he used after testing positive for 30 days. Manley testing positive for 30 days. Manley's recovery will be monitored by the league.

Manley and on Tuesday, said he missed the Redskins' game against the New Orleans Saints at the Louisiana Superdome and has been suspended for life. Manley's suspension will start with the Redskins' game against the St. Louis Cardinals.

Two players who were also banned by the NFL were later reinstated after a year off, though they are not playing now. Tiffany Collins, who played for the New England Patriots last season, has been reinstated but is not playing because he had no place to go. Collins was cut by Miami after testing positive for cocaine again.

But Manley, whose four-year career was cut short by Miami, said he was confident his 11-year-old child will play again someday. "If football is not to be me, I will be a teacher. That's my plan," he said.

Manley said he had been suspended twice for the past three years and was out of the league for the last year. Manley was suspended for the last two years after testing positive for cocaine again.

For years, the Redskins have debated adding a conference to the league. The league is formed it would be good for their defense, the Athletics' Cy Young said.

"Yes, we have received a number of requests for information,\" said Weld. "We have not been able to speak on the issue, but we are looking into it."

Manley's attorney, Barry Singer, said he had been able to speak to the league about the possibility of reinstatement.

Singer said he had been able to speak to the league about the possibility of reinstatement.

"We are close to a resolution with the Redskins, and we hope to have a resolution in the next few weeks,\" Singer said.

TULSA, Okla. — There could be another major basketball conference on the horizon — the Big Midwest.

The president of Memphis State has said his school is nearing a deal with several other schools to form a new conference that would include

"It's a much-needed conference," said Memphis State's athletic director, Bill McCollum. "We've been in discussions with several other schools about forming a conference that would be similar to the Big Twelve or Big Ten."

But "I can't afford it," is no longer one of them.
