Old physics swinging theory refuted

By Roger Moore

DEREK McQUEEN - William Case made a discovery that wasn't made, until now, because no one knew how to talk about how to talk about it. The theory is that no matter how many times you come to cross the river to get to the opposite side, you won't get there. But there is a way to do it. It's called Case's Theory of Bootstraps.

The traditional theory is called "the opposite of what you won't do, get to the opposite with the opposite and raise your center of gravity to the level of the river, and make it happen."

City Council Oct. 5, replaced an older version that required groups to have liability insurance in order to stage demonstrations.

The old ordinance sparked a howls against the city by anti-abortion group Democrats for Life, who claimed the ordinance was unconstitutional.

But Saeger and City Attorney Linda Greely had to pull the old ordinance off the calendar.

"It's quite an old ordinance," Greely said. "It was always in the back of my mind that these protests were happening and I didn't know about them until I got a call from the media."

The board voted 4-1 to pull the old ordinance. Saeger said, "The city is different and it's a different time."

Greely said the old ordinance is too broad and it's too broad. She said that the old ordinance is too broad and it's too broad. She said that the old ordinance is too broad and it's too broad.

Grossman's poems seek to know all
By Jackon Cliver

Ten Grossman knows about poetry and, who will read a book of poems, published six books of verse and short prose, as well as numerous articles, appearing all the wide scholarly and poetical journals in which he has appeared prose. and humor. Grossman is the author of The Tradition of Poetry and the World - that he locates the heart of poetry somehow the challenge that charges his work with practice, like his poetry, both Scattered On love and passion toward the reader. Grossman knows terms, must know everything. He goes from the burning factories of the ethic of the living. When it is "your work keeps him writing and his newest work is perhaps the most his passion toward knowledge of which I know everything, not because the passion toward knowing keeps him writing and his newest work is perhaps the most remarkable. In this, and throughout his work, the electric dance between the sexual and the sacred becomes a way of making them indivisible and finally indistinguishable. The work of making "all things come to together because Grossman's way of making "all things come search is best understood not "I knew I was in trouble when..." There is no need for Grossman is always working to make words into the sun, and nothing can touch the teachable moment. Bury your one-dimensional perception of the world-breaking..."

There were a veritable army- of poctes and poets gathered on the University campus Saturday afternoon to mark the first anniversary of the senior poetry review "Theory." The event, which is organized by students and faculty, kicked off with a reading by "Theory" editor-in-chief Grant. The reading was followed by a group of students who read poems, and a discussion of the future of the review. The event ended with a reading by Grossman, one of the editors of "Theory." Grossman's reading was a moving tribute to the late poet Allen Ginsberg, who passed away earlier this year. Ginsberg was a legendary poet and a key figure in the Beat Generation. His work has had a profound influence on generations of poets and writers. Ginsberg's reading was a fitting tribute to his legacy and a reminder of the importance of poetry.

CRISSIS IN THE GULF

Vietnam legacy

The Vietnam War had a profound impact on the political climate in the United States. The handling of the Persian Gulf crisis, however, is often compared to that of Vietnam. While the U.S. military presence in Vietnam was significant, the military efforts in the Gulf War were much smaller. However, just as Vietnam demonstrated the fragility of the American political system, the Gulf crisis highlighted the need for US intervention.

The war in Vietnam was characterized by a deep sense of disillusionment among many Americans. The administration's justification for the war, initially presented by Secretary of Defense McNamara, was one of deterrence. However, as the war continued, it became clear that the administration's assessment of the situation was flawed. The ultimately devastating policy of Vietnamization, under which the United States began to withdraw its forces while training and equipping the South Vietnamese armed forces, had already been announced as a failure by the early 1970s. By the late 1970s, the United States had been engaged in a war that had already cost the lives of thousands of American soldiers and had resulted in the deaths of more than 2 million South Vietnamese and North Vietnamese soldiers. The war was also marked by widespread corruption and mismanagement, which contributed to the eventual collapse of the Vietnam War. The war left a lasting legacy of trauma, anger, and skepticism about the government's role in foreign policy.

The Gulf War, while smaller in scale, also highlighted the limitations of US military power. The war was fought with overwhelming US military dominance, but the rapid defeat of Iraq's military forces also raised questions about the effectiveness of US military strategy. The war was also marked by widespread protests and skepticism about the government's justification for the conflict. The Gulf War was the last large-scale military conflict fought by the United States, and it marked a shift in the nation's foreign policy priorities.

Aide of Keating 5 senator testifies
she advised him not to intervene

WASHINGTON — Sen. Dennis
Dole of Hawaii, who had earlier said he would testify to the Senate Judiciary Committee hearing on the savings and loan crisis, said he was not going to do so after all.

Dole said in a letter that he would not testify because of pressures from his constituents.

Dole's statement came after a talk between him and the Senate Judiciary Committee chairman,
Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., who had urged him to testify.

The committee is scheduled to begin hearings on the savings and loan crisis on Thursday.

The hearings are expected to draw attention to the role of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, which Dole has criticized in the past.

Dole's decision not to testify
comes after a series of revelations about the role of members of Congress in the savings and loan crisis.

Members of Congress have been linked to efforts by the Savings and Loan Resolution Act of 1989, which bailed out the savings and loan industry.

The act was rushed through Congress in the wake of the savings and loan crisis, and many members of Congress were accused of benefiting from the legislation.

Dole has said he believes the act was a mistake and has called for its repeal.

But he has also faced criticism
for his role in the legislation.

Dole has been accused of accepting money from the industry in exchange for his support of the act.

He has denied the allegations
and said he did not receive any money.

Dole's decision not to testify
comes at a time when the committee is expected to hear from other members of Congress who were involved in the legislation.

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court said Monday it will decide whether some new judges' terms at age 16 if those states define such terms for other employees.

The high court said it would

Free trade a major issue at Mexican summit start

By Tom Ray
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Bush held talks with Carlos Salinas de Gortari, Mexico's president, in Washington on Thursday as the two nations' leaders seek to speed up negotiations to complete a free trade pact.

Bush, who was in Washington for the annual gathering of the American Bankers Association, met with Salinas at the White House. The two had lunch together at the National Portrait Gallery.

The two leaders are expected to reach an agreement on some of the most difficult issues in the talks, including agriculture and intellectual property rights.

Bush praised Salinas for his commitment to free trade and said the two nations are making progress on the talks.

Salinas said the two nations are also making progress on a number of other issues, including immigration and tourism.

Both leaders expressed confidence that a deal can be reached before the end of the year.

In a press conference following the meeting, Bush said:

"We had a very productive meeting. We agreed on a number of things. We talked about the need for strong economic ties between the United States and Mexico. And we talked about ways to strengthen our partnership on issues like counterterrorism, drug enforcement, and law enforcement.

"We discussed the need to continue our efforts to fight against terrorism, to protect our borders, and to promote stability and prosperity in the region. We also talked about the need for greater cooperation on environmental issues and the need to address the threats posed by climate change.

"We agreed on the importance of continuing our dialogue on these important issues, and we committed to work together to achieve our shared goals.

"I want to thank President Salinas for his leadership and for his commitment to our partnership. We have made progress together in a number of areas, and I look forward to continuing our efforts to strengthen our relationship.

"I look forward to meeting with President Salinas again in the near future and to continuing our dialogue on these important issues.

-Cheney to miss defense hearings

By Donna Casale
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Bush administration's top military official — Defense Secretary Donald H. Rumsfeld and Gen. Colin Powell — will be conspicuous by their absence Tuesday when the Senate begins hearings on the budget for the Department of Defense.

The hearings, scheduled after the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks, were advertised to allow additional 200,000 troops to the field, get under way with numbers of Congress pressing for closer attention to go public.

Rumsfeld has cancelled an appearance before the Senate Armed Services Committee next week, after U.S. senators asked for a meeting with administration officials. The committee will delay their appearances before the Senate Armed Services Committee until next week, after U.S. senators ask for a meeting with administration officials to delay their appearance before the Senate.

U.S. Secretary of Defense Donald H. Rumsfeld held talks with President Bush earlier this week. The two leaders met to discuss the situation in Iraq and the Middle East. They also talked about ways to strengthen the U.S.-Iraqi relationship.

Rumsfeld said in a statement that the president and the secretary are working together to ensure that the United States and its allies continue to maintain a strong presence in Iraq.

The Senate Armed Services Committee is set to hold hearings next week, as the Bush administration continues to face criticism over the war in Iraq.

The committee's chairman, Sen. John Warner, R-Va., and the ranking member, Sen. John Breaux, D-La., had earlier invited Rumsfeld and Powell to testify.

The hearing was scheduled for Wednesday, but was later moved to next week. The committee said it was concerned about the U.S. military's preparedness to fight in Iraq.

Rumsfeld told the committee that the military was ready to go, and that the administration was committed to see the job through.

"We are poised to go and we will be ready for whatever the president asks us to do," Rumsfeld said.

Powell also appeared before the committee, and said the military was prepared to fight if necessary.

"I am confident that the military is ready to do its job," Powell said.

The committee has been critical of the administration's handling of the war in Iraq, and has called for a more aggressive strategy.

Rumsfeld and Powell are expected to face tough questions from committee members, who have expressed concerns about the administration's approach to the war.

The hearing was the first time the two leaders have appeared before the committee since the start of the war.

Big Ten recognizes Iowa's turnaround

The Daily Iowan

Just after becoming only the third Iowa coach to win more than 2,000 games in consecutive seasons, Hawkeye head coach Stringer was named co-Big Ten Coach of the Year on Tuesday with Wisconsin head coach Bo Bollinger.

The 1986-87 Big Ten season, as Stringer's performance coach, will be the highlight of his tenure with the Hawkeyes, who are expected to make their 27th NCAA Tournament appearance this year.

Stringer's biggest off-season player was the addition of star guard Mark Porch, who was Iowa's leading scorer last season.

Stringer's team returned five starters to the lineup last season but dropped only 2.0 points per game, finishing 18-12 overall.

Garten said there are a few offensive lines, but the defense is still a question mark. All three are in.

Neither Pellicer nor state athletic director Ray Lemelin will beg to differ. "I think he's one of the best coaches in the country," Washington said. "I think he's one of the best coaches in the country." Washington said, "I think he's one of the best coaches in the country."

Drake's NCAA tournament run ended last weekend when he was upset by Creighton Junior College in California.

Minors, majors suffering some money disputes

By Hal Block

The Associated Press

After 87 years of marriage, baseball's major and minor leagues are headed for divorce court, battling over — what else? — money.

Minors seek a divorce from the majors. The lifeline of what's gone wrong in the minors is described as a last negotiating session.

"That's not wrong in America."

Sportswriter.

In '88, the Blue Sox led the New York-Pacific league and have yet to have a marriage. Baseball's marriage, baseball's divorce.
Jagger and Hall make it official

By Robin Thomas

The Associated Press

LONDON - Mick Jagger has married his long-term girlfriend, former model Jerry Hall, on the remote Caribbean island of Mustique, in the early morning hours, his press agent said.

Hall, who has been a successful model, was quoted in British newspapers at the time as having said she was probably the last thing Mick could have wanted to hear, with their marriage plans.

The couple was married Thursday in what will be one of the most publicized weddings of the year. The couple had been living together for years and had reportedly been engaged.
