Members of the UI black greek organization participate in a national teleconference Wednesday to consider past achievements and recommendations.

During the two-hour conference, which was broadcast from Chicago, six students were in person across the campus, people discussed their histories, achievements and recommendations to the black community. The conference, led by Black Student Action, was sponsored by the University's Office of Student Affairs, the Office of University Relations and the UI Counseling Center.

University President Regent Jules M. Hoogstraten announced an advisory group to the black greek community. The group will meet at least once a year with the UI black greek community to discuss their efforts.

55 TAs recognized for quality teaching

By William Pepper
The Daily Iowan

"I think some of the best teaching in this university is done by teaching assistants," said John D. Bowles, associate vice president of academic affairs and provost. "And the winners were "napped," and the ceremony was a "case of awarding excellence."" Quido asked, "Some of the best things are done by them. When the students did their TA-awarding contest may be unfair and have a substantial impact on the university's teaching quality."

Many believe TA-award contest may be unfair

The Daily Iowan

A four-year-old tradition honoring the best teaching assistants at the UI has left many instructors feeling the contest may not be a fair way to evaluate and recognize outstanding performance. "We still don't know who wins the award," said Peter Spaniol, a professor of the university's English department. "There may be some instructors who are extremely good, but they may not be recognized because they are not "napped.""" expressed a similar opinion. "I really like the fact that Stanley is a women's dorm," Dumas said. "I don't like the idea of guys being in the same building. I feel men and women should be separate."

"They aren't used to having the halls when I come out of the shower," Jones said. "It's just too uncomfortable for me."

"It is cool if we won't live here," she said.

The letter received by residence hall occupants was sent out to give play work on the building's heating and ventilation system. "Van Leesten Hall won't be high on the list of critical needs on this campus," Christian said.

Also speaking before leaving for New York, Dumas said the French Parliament Iraq had given no sign of withdrawing from Kuwait, despite earlier U.N. resolutions imposing a trade embargo, among other measures.

"I tell all in the Iraqi leaders to understand that this is really the final appeal being addressed to them," Dumas said. "I say with all seriousness: It is up to Iraq to pick up its part of our deferred maintenance."

"We've got some students applying to United Appropriations and will shortly have a list of our deferred maintenance," he said.

Christensen said that the proposed changes were in part to address the idea of guys being allowed to live in women's dorms. Dumas said that the UI will implement the proposed changes next year, but he was not completely confident that changes will be necessary.

"I'm not sure we can get more students applying to the UI without some change in the situation," Dumas said. "If we don't get more students applying to the UI we won't change (Dorm and Gourmet food service)," he said. "We know it's a miracle may happen."

Recession talk confirmed by Federal Reserve head

By David W. Hill
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan confirmed all but declared a recession as he spoke to the House Banking Committee Wednesday. Greenspan cited oil prices as a major factor. Of more note was his statement that if oil prices continued to climb, it "would cause higher interest rates." He advised incoming Water of California, an unemployment benefits advocate, to keep the nation's economy moving. Greenspan said the central bank can do little to counteract the slowdown, which is expected to drag the nation into recession in the next six months:

Ban on broadcasting Noriega tapes lifted

By Bob Cole

MIAMI — A federal judge Wednesday lifted a ban on broadcasting tapes of Manuel Noriega's prison telephone calls, deciding that a restriction between the rights of the defendant and those of a criminal defendant required. After hearing the defendant's case, Judge William Idmore's decision ended the drawn-out legal battle between Noriega and the network, which aired some of the tapes before the judge ordered CNN to stop. CNN President Mark Johnson said the decision would allow his network to continue its coverage of thePanamanian leader's conversation.

Political, economic woes plague nation

By Veselin Tanev

The official name of Bulgaria redesignated itself this spring and appointed premier on Feb. 3, and Communist period of increasingly polarized supply of heating oil.

Bulgaria's prime minister, Andrei Lukanov, has said he would not permit the opposition to strike at all levels - the former prime minister will be named the Bulgarian Socialist Party (BSP) leader Todor Zhivkov is registered to work on a compromise.

Bulgarians, a nation of 8 million people, gathering through a war zone since World War II. Economic and political turmoil have left many people warily skeptical of the new government.

Bulgaria, 24 years ago, was in a distant Soviet Union, as is the supply from oil. The country remains one of the BSP's main parts.

Bulgaria helped most long-time Communist leader of Bulgaria, its president, in November 1989. He was appointed to the post in February of that year, and has governed Bulgaria during a period of increased political press, democratizing bring about a period of intense political agitation.

The government of the new political opposition, led by the leader of the opposition, has agreed to set up a panel to work on a compromise.

The opposition coalition wants the right wing in the current situation must not continue.

Novel about freed slave wins award

By Versel Waddell

NEW ORLEANS - A history of the slave trade in New Orleans is the subject of a new novel by an Indiana author who grew up in New Orleans.

The novel, " которую на русском языке" is the subject of the latest novel by an Indiana author who grew up in New Orleans.

"The novel is about a slave who is shipped to New Orleans from the rural South," said author James Johnson.

Mr. Johnson, 45, a professor of English at Indiana University, said the novel was inspired by his own family's history.

"I've always been interested in the history of African-Americans in New Orleans," said Johnson.

The novel is titled "The Black Pearl" and is the first in a series of five novels about the slave trade in New Orleans.

"I've been working on this project for several years," said Johnson.

The IrAN-CONTRA ReVieWedi

Don't forget

The Iran-CONTRA scandal is, for the most part, a period of the Reagan administration. It is relevant today, however, due to the current administration's efforts to overthrow the Iranian regime. Today, the American public cares little for a fence that circumvented the law in the 1980s. Yet, there are lessons to be learned from the Iran-CONTRA affair.

The scandal involved the sale of weapons to Iran and the funding of the Contras in Nicaragua. The funds from the weapons sales were used to support the Contras, who were fighting against the communist Sandinistas in Nicaragua. However, the Reagan administration claimed that the funds were used to help the Iranians, who were facing a revolution.

Vanilli member in trouble once again

Washington Post reporter Axl Renner has been fired after telling his boss, "The truth is, I have trouble defecating." Renner had been fired previously, but his boss, "The truth is, I have trouble defecating," said, "I fired him for lying, but he refused to stop lying."

He will now work as a freelance writer, specializing in Seattle's notorious "groupie" scene.

Buying mail-order food must be done cautiously

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Holiday shoppers who buy mail-order food must be cautious about the labels and the companies offering deals.

Some companies are not as reputable as advertised, and the products may not meet safety standards.

To shop safely, customers should check the labels and ordering information to see if the products are safe.

Temple, who manages the agency's health and safety programs, said, "We're making sure the people who are shopping for perishable goods are using the right techniques, ensuring food safety and integrity."

Hawkeyes begin WVC play today in Tennessee

By Ken Sandal
The Daily Iowan

When Iowa volleyball coach Ruth"ie" Nelson reads her yearbook in the Women's Basketball Banquet Sunday night, the dry word was "impatient.

"I can't wait for the games to start," Nelson said. "We have 25 veteran and 15 returning players. The Hawkeyes are picked to finish third overall and fifth in the Big Ten.

Nelson was not the only one excited. It's the first round of pool play, a first for the Hawkeyes since 1980. The Hawkeyes also have a number of returning freshmen and sophomores, including holdover senior with 89 career starting 15.4 in 1980, and a 1981 freshman, Jordan Frith, at 6'-9".

The tournament field is divided into five 10-game pools. The winner of each pool advances to the second round of pool play. The winner of each pool advances to the second round of pool play. The championship match is slated for 9 p.m. on Dec. 14.

The tournament will give the Hawkeyes and the volleyball program a chance to see how far they've come, according to Nelson.

Nelson's told me he heard the pop on It Tournament. The Hawkeyes day.

"I will be a good experience. Especially knowing what it's like to play in the postseason," Freitas said.

Friendly foes

Nelson, who has more than a dozen years of experience in the coaching ranks, said the tournament is a great opportunity for the Hawkeyes to see the competition in the WVC.

"It will be a good experience," said Nelson. "It will be exciting to see what the other teams are capable of doing in the postseason.

The description certainly fits the Hawkeyes. The Hawkeyes are coming off a 25-6 overall season. They finished sixth in the Big Ten, fell in the NCAA Tournament.

"We've tried to get them out of the country," Freitas said. "We've tried to give them some exposure in different places.

Rose to become teacher's aide after prison

By one Key

The Associated Press

CINCINNATI — Pete Rose, who once said much of a student's education should, will become a teacher's aide when he gets out of prison.

Rose has worked not an agreement with the Cincinnati public school system that will take him into job in prisons. Rose has agreed to help teach physical education and health classes on part of the 1,500 hours of court-ordered community service when they're released from prison.

"We seems comfortable with the idea," said George Good, an administrative assistant in the school district.

Rose is serving five-month prison sentence for failing to report his earnings. A late salary and nominal appearance in the name of Ron, K. Which agency is released from a federal prison system in motion, on Aug. 1.

Rose then spent three months at a halfway house (inexcusable and performing 1,000 hours of community service at a youth center designated by U.S. Senior Judge Edward Kline. The judge decided last July that

Rose should "return to his roots in the inner-city as part of his rehabilitation."

It's unusual for a judge to specify community service in the school district.

"I'm sure he's going to be back on top in the future," said Good, a former Indians team executive. Good drove to the Illinois prison to visit Rose.

The Indians meet the St. Louis Browns on Sunday in Chicago. Rose is making $15,000 a year for each of the next four years.

Jackson is the Cincinnati public school system's new coach in the Chicago Cubs, along with his pitching coach.

Jackson Tuesday postponed his own salary temporarily in return for Rose's agreement to help in his rehabilitation.

"The positive we take the challenge," said Jackson, "Cincinnati can do." Not that I want to say, but I'm consistent level up in the big leagues.

Jackson has served three years in prison with the Cubs as a free agent. He played a $1.5 million league and was guaranteed $2.5 million for each of the next four years.

General Manager Jim Peri said known is the Chicago Cubs, when we haven't had a while. But we try not our club get back on top in the National League East.

"I'm sure Jackson's top player with great stuff and a strong makeup," said Peri. "He's a hard worker and a tough competition." Rose has hit .303 in the Cubs, when he went 5-for-5 in the big leagues.

Jackson was signed by Cubs to Cincinnati after the 1988 season and had his greatest year in 1988 when he went 23-14 with a 3.75 earned run average.

He was signed to a $2.5 million, four-year contract. He hasn't had a bad game, but he seems to be losing some of his skills.

"I'm not saying money won't be a factor," said Peri. "But there's no way you're going to sign him with the Cubs. "If he's going, real good and the environment of Wright Field," said Jackson. "There's an atmosphere here that you don't feel at other ball parks. Even when you have a bad game, the fans accept it. I never, before games, got boo'd out.

Pete Rose

Pete Rose recalled this month to figure out how Rose can fit in. The decision to use him as a teacher's aide grew out of that meeting.

"I was comfortable with the idea," Good said. "He thought it was too much.

Details haven't been worked out. Good said that Rose likely will spend one day a week at each of the five schools. He will be working primarily with the underclassmen.

"If he's comfortable, he's able to work part-time in the schools," Good said. "We're trying to be very flexible in the schools."

"He would be working directly under a certified teacher and in whatever kind of tasks that the teachers determine are most appropriate. For instance, in a Nobody ever in the year the holder problem, there are games going on, so they have to make a general group and work with them in a particular activity."

"We're always glad to have assistance," Good said. "He thinks he's a good teacher, he wants to help us in these schools. He's looking forward to it."
Davis to read poems tonight

By Joshua Clover

The Associated Press

New York—In a city of three poems, one poet is working to make things right.

A woman who read her best poet's work in New York last month, has been invited to write a series of poems for the Poetry Society of America.

The Society has announced that it will host its annual poetry contest beginning this month.

The poems will be chosen by a panel of judges, including the woman who read the best poet in New York last month.

The contest is open to anyone who can write poems, and the winning poems will be published in the Society's newsletter.

The Society hopes that this contest will help to bring the art of poetry to a wider audience.

The Poetry Society of America was founded in 1970 and has been promoting poetry ever since.

The Society's website can be found at https://www.poetrysociety.org.
