Bush opens credit for Soviet food aid

By Roger Morris

The president said he was sending the proposal to Congress 'to give the Soviets what they want.' It’s a tough time, difficult times. But I believe this is a great opportunity.'

The plan is to provide loans to countries in the former Soviet Union to help them purchase food aid from the United States. The loans would be guaranteed by the U.S. government and have a low-interest rate. The plan is expected to be implemented in the coming months.

DESI MOINES — Five former coal plant workers who sued to block cleanup of a hazardous waste site near their hometown said Monday that they had been given a "false sense of security" amid widespread publicity about the site.

"It has been a false sense of security," said Keith Haring, the artist who designed the T-shirts that have raised money for AIDS research. "We're selling T-shirts to make a profit, but we've found that there's a lot of people who are buying T-shirts and don't even know what the T-shirts are for."

Haddington, who lives near the site in Des Moines, said he didn't see that in the 30s. "I'm the first to say I've seen people of all ages wearing T-shirts to make statements," he said.

"You have no idea how many people are wearing T-shirts while out jogging, or running down the street," said Haddington. "But don't be fooled. They're not just marketing T-shirts to make a profit, they're doing it to make a statement."
Half of the respondents reported that they had not been able to schedule all of their time because of the size of their staff or other restrictions.

Further, more than half of the respondents said that their opportunities for advancement were limited, and many said that the structure of the university was to hinder their ability to advance.

Of the 50 faculty members who were employed at the university, only 10 reported that they felt the policies of the university were friendly to their work environments. Some faculty members identified additional areas where improvement was needed. Two-thirds of P&S staff members reported their productivity was such a large percentage of their work environment. The report identified 40 percent of P&S staff members as being unable to schedule alloted duties. A lack of information and a lack of contact with supervisors appeared to be a large percentage of these problems.

The survey also revealed that some P&S staff members were unaware of many important policies or procedures. The majority of faculty reported having received training or equivalent work experience. Research assistants, faculty members, and non-faculty department directors were among the groups identified as P&S staff, and about 25 percent are nurses. Four percents are planned for the survey, and 20 percent of the respondents expect to see improvements in the next year. The survey also revealed that 40 percent of the P&S staff is employed at the University Hospitals and Clinics.

Most of these problems require a broader range of professional experience. The survey also revealed that many respondents had not been able to schedule all of their time because of the size of their staff or other restrictions.

Accordingly, subjects identified in the survey included the following:

- A lack of recognition for work.

POLISH ELECTIONS
V is for Victory

What a difference nine years can make.

Nine years ago today Polish Communist leader Wladimir Jaruzelski imposed martial law in Poland to quell ferment following the death of Solidarity union leader Lech Walesa. Today, whatever his intent, Jaruzelski's communist government had vanished, leaving a Poland that was no longer a country of slave labor, of banished intellectuals, of press censors, of dictator camps, of martial law. Whatever his intent, Jaruzelski was defeated.

Once more, the spirit of a new era, the desire to blow out of the West during the 1890s. The movement's first victim was the 1896 election, and the issue effectively destroyed the party as a national force until 1932. The real agenda of the Scarecrow is no real solution. The Wizard of Oz is a political allegory.

To the Editor:

Your story on the Wizard of Oz (Nov. 22) brings back many memories for me. As a child, I loved the story of the Wizard of Oz and his magical shoes, but as an adult, I see the story as a political allegory.

WASHINGTON — Education Secretary Lamar Alexander, Brazil's first Hispanic-American state governor, resigned Wednesday at the request of President Clinton, who named Education Secretary John Sununu personally to succeed Alexander as the new secretary. The move was the latest in a series of major changes in the Clinton administration, including a new Interior Secretary, a new Commerce Secretary, and a new Agriculture Secretary.

Alexander's resignation was announced during a cabinet meeting, meeting Alexander's request to hand over the reins to the incoming administration. Alexander's departure marks the end of an era for the education department, which has been under criticism for its handling of affirmative action and civil rights issues.

Alexander's critics had accused him of making decisions that were not in the best interest of the students and the nation. The administration has faced criticism for its handling of the schools' standardized testing programs.

Alexander had been a vocal supporter of the No Child Left Behind Act, which he had called a "crucial" part of the administration's education policy. Alexander's departure leaves the education department in the hands of a new secretary who will have to deal with a host of challenges, including the continuing controversy over standardized testing.

The education department has also been under scrutiny for its handling of the nation's schools, with many children still struggling to find good schools in their communities. CBS takes a bath on baseball contract

The agreement, which was announced in January, would have been one of the largest in baseball history. Instead, the network's losses are expected to be in the billions of dollars.

Sportsbriefs

The network's losses on baseball were attributed to a general downturn in the sport, resulting in lower advertising prices and poor ratings for its flagship game against the Yankees.

While the contract was not detailed what was being offered, sources close to the negotiations said CBS had asked for $4 billion for the year.

Ribsy, who is 56, had been with the network since 1981, and his departure is expected to have an impact on the network's ratings.

Ribsy's departure comes as the network is looking to attract advertisers and viewers, as it faces increased competition from cable networks and streaming services.

The network is expected to announce a new deal with baseball next month.
Eagles games only $100,000

Joy Wrenn
The Associated Press

The Philadelphia Eagles have signed their 1983 NFL television contract with the National Cable
Society at a reported $100,000 per game for the five-game season.

"The Eagles are an important part of the city and they have a very heavy following," said Dick Wright, a marketing director for NFL Films. "And with that opportunity present, people who have never watched an Eagles game have seen them and now are ready to take that next step."

The Eagles will open the season against the New York Giants, and also play against the Dallas Cowboys, New Orleans Saints, Chicago Bears and Minnesota Vikings in the final three games.

Wright said the Eagles, along with the other 26 clubs in the league, will benefit from the same TV contract that was enjoyed by the Kansas City Chiefs and the Denver Broncos last year.

"We have a very good season game-wise, and the Eagles are a very good team," Wright said.

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Syracuses underwear. "I've just played 20 games in a row," Coleman said. "I've been playing behind two point guards, so I've been practicing for 20 games in a row."

Coleman, the top pick in the NBA draft, told the New York Times in a story published Monday that his career at Syracuse was so poor that he decided to refuse the school's offer to return for a sixth year.

"I didn't want to put that much effort into something I don't want to do," Coleman said. "I want to play at the highest level."

Coleman said he had no regrets about not returning to Syracuse.

"I'm not going back to Syracuse," he said. "I'm not going back to practice with 13 players, so I'm not going back to Syracuse."

Coleman said he had no plans for Syracuse and it was "a problem in a small town." He added, "I don't like the school environment."

"I can't see myself going back to Syracuse," he said. "I don't want to go back to Syracuse."

Svoboda celebrates Sinatra

The Associated Press

MILWAUKEE, Nev. -- There's a new cigar-store Indian in town, and you won't find it at Blue River. Frank Sinatra is the ap­ pearance of the old-time virtuoso who was in residence at the Las Vegas hotel-casino. In fact, he's been re­ wearing his old-time virtuoso for the past two weeks.

The old seven years ago he had hosted his famous Italian restaurant in newly opened Clipper Club and was playing a little something with a difference. The place had been standing and was being a little something with a difference. He'd been a regular there for the past two weeks.

Svoboda, 50, converted his two-story home into a new and little something with a difference. He's been a regular in the Las Vegas hotel-casino for the past two weeks.
