Iraq launches more missiles at Saudi Arabia

U.S. Patriots intercept Iraqi Scuds

By Edith M. Lederer
The Associated Press

IN SAUDI ARABIA — In its biggest attack since the war began, Iraq fired another nighttime barrage of missiles at Saudi Arabia that ended early Monday. The Baghdad government also displayed what it said were captured American and allied pilots.

The shower of Iraqi Scud missiles that began late Sunday struck Dhahran, a key allied military site, and Riyadh, the capital.

All or most of the 10 missiles were believed to have been intercepted by U.S. Patriot anti-missile batteries, and one landed harmlessly in the Persian Gulf.

But the explosions high over the desert kingdom were a booming reminder that Saddam Hussein's dug-in military, though down, is far from out.

The air war stepped up Sunday, with the largest mission yet from Operation Desert Storm's new northern base in Turkey.

The allied pounding of Baghdad was unrelenting. Bombs fell all through the early-morning darkness Sunday, CNN correspondent Peter Arnett reported from the Iraqi capital.

Arnett reported seeing one U.S. cruise missile shot down near his Baghdad hotel, and another roar by about 100 yards from his 10th-floor window.

Saddam, Iraq's defiant president, went on radio to rally the beleaguered Iraqi people, telling them, "The tyrant's missiles and aircraft are being destroyed."

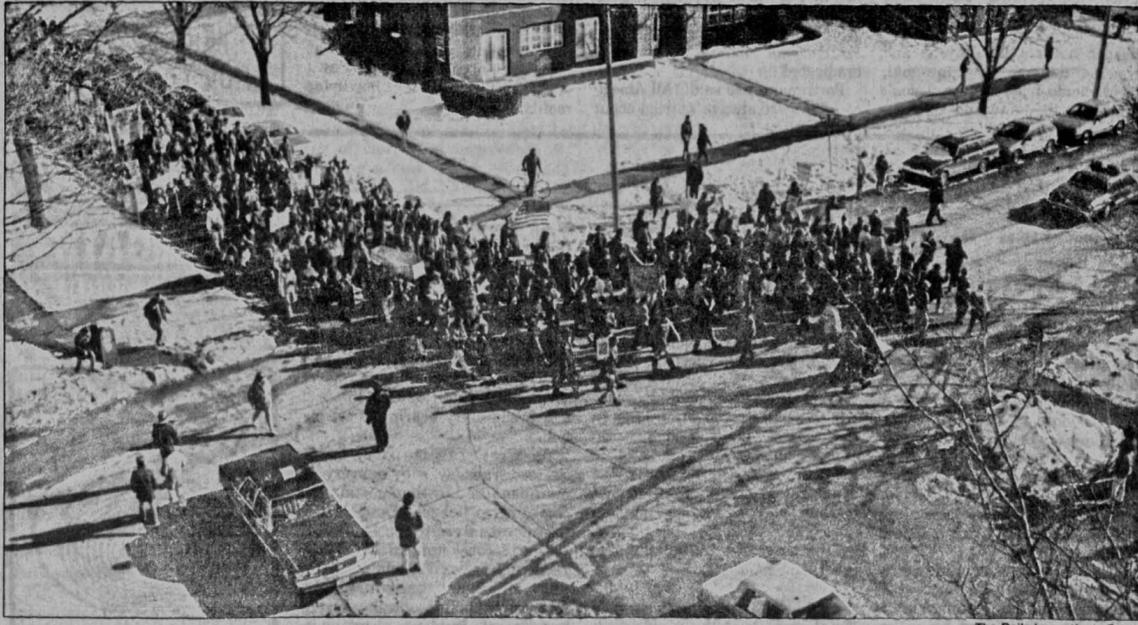

Allied air losses mounted. A total of 15 warplanes have been reported lost, including nine American aircraft, in the 4-day-old military campaign to drive Iraq out of occupied Kuwait.

The television show in Baghdad recalled similar public displays of American prisoners of war by Hanoi during the Vietnam War.

First, on Saturday night, Iraqi TV showed two blindfolded men, identified as American POWs, being paraded through Baghdad streets, the news agency in neighboring Iran said. On Sunday, the TV broadcast interviews with men said to be downed pilots.

CNN, which monitored the broadcast, said the POWs identified themselves as three Americans, two Britons, one Italian and one Kuwaiti. They were subdued, one had a bandaged hand, and two had bruised faces, the report said.

The three Americans identified

Gulf crisis musters backers, protestors

By Ann Marie Williams
The Daily Iowan

As America began its third day at war Saturday, more than 500 Iowa City residents joined thousands of others across the country in protest.

In the largest local demonstration since the Persian Gulf crisis began, war protestors gathered at College Green Park for a noon rally and march through downtown Iowa City.

Shouting matches and some arguments broke out when the protestors were met with about 40 counterprotestors who burned Saddam Hussein in effigy at the park and then rallied in front of the anti-war demonstrators as they walked through town.

Although organizers were concerned about violence, police reported no problems.

Several anti-war demonstrators wearing white arm bands served as parade marshals during the often confrontational event, trying to keep hostilities from erupting into violence as they guided the marchers along the route.

Protest organizers said they were pleased with the attendance.

"This is definitely the largest turnout we've had. I think this is just enormous for a city of 50,000," said Donna Flayhan, of Operation

U.S. Out, which organized the protest.

Flayhan said she expects the number of demonstrators to grow as the gulf war continues and said this anti-war movement built up much more quickly than the movement against the Vietnam War.

"In Vietnam, it wasn't until the body bags started coming home that the movement really got going," said Flayhan, adding she anticipates many people who support the war now may change their minds as the number of American casualties escalates.

One consistent point of contention between the opposing groups Saturday was the issue of support for the troops. Anti-war demonstrators say they are supporting the troops by demanding they be brought home alive.

"I don't believe we have a right to be in the Persian Gulf; I want to show my support for the troops by getting them out," said Jeff Hemminger, one of the parade marshals.

"I have friends and relatives in the gulf, and I want them home," agreed anti-war demonstrator Sam Putnam.

But counterprotestors insisted they represent the majority of Americans and said the anti-war demonstrators are not supporting

Poet shares King tribute at UI lecture

By Leslie Davis
The Daily Iowan

The admiration and respect for the life of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. was evident in a personal poetic tribute recited by Gwendolyn Brooks Sunday evening.

The Main Lounge of the Union was filled to capacity with students eager to hear Brooks' poetry aimed at King's life and beliefs.

The Topeka, Kan., native, who has won a Pulitzer Prize for her prose, was introduced by Phillip Hubbard, retired UI vice president, who noted her many achievements including being named Poet Laureate of Illinois and receiving the Frost Medal — the highest honor given to U.S. poets.

"The Endorsements of Martin Luther King Jr." was the title of Brooks' poetic tribute. The inflection in her voice varied as she recited her poetry which dealt with several social and political issues

Families fear protests may hurt morale

By David Sims
The Daily Iowan

Families of servicemen and women in the Persian Gulf told Rep. Dave Nagle (D) Saturday they're worried that war protests could harm the morale of U.S. troops.

About 60 people came to the Iowa Army National Guard Armory, 925 S. Dubuque St., to hear Nagle speak and offer his assistance to the families. Most of the audience had relatives with the 209th Medical Company, a medical clearing unit based in Iowa City, and the 134th Medical Company, an ambulance unit out of Washington, Iowa.

Jean and Jim McDaniel's daughter, Cpl. Patricia McDaniel, is an operating room technician with the 209th. Patricia, a graduate of West High in Iowa City, would have been attending nursing school in San Antonio, Texas, if she had not been called to active duty.

UI dean resigns after 20 years, will return to medical research

By Andy Brownstein
The Daily Iowan

Dr. John Eckstein, the dean of the UI College of Medicine who oversaw the school's rise to national prominence over the course of 20 years, said Friday he is resigning effective Aug. 31.

Colleagues and friends lauded Eckstein's leadership and skill, calling him, in the words of one professor, the "dean of deans."

"We are now among the best and ready to go to the very top. Is there a better dean's legacy?" asked Dr.

Francis Abboud, professor and head of internal medicine.

"He is the essence of academic integrity and excellence," Abboud said. "No other dean commands such respect and affection from academia, medical societies, government and industry."

"I'm relieved more than anything," Eckstein said of his resignation. "I've been in this position for more than 20 years, and I feel that's long enough."

Israel won't give up right to retaliate

By G.G. LaBelle
The Associated Press

JERUSALEM — U.S. Army crews had two Patriot missile batteries ready to fire at incoming Iraqi missiles Sunday, but an Israeli army official said they weren't a "magical solution" that will ensure Israel's safety.

Israeli officials also insisted the anti-missile missiles wouldn't necessarily keep Israel from retaliating against Iraq, which has sent missiles into the Tel Aviv area twice since the Persian Gulf war began Thursday.

"They cannot replace under any circumstances the sacred right of Israel to self-defense," said Yossi Olmert, director of the Government Press Office.

Early Monday, air raid sirens sent residents in the northern Israel towns of Nahariya and Maalot into bomb shelters, but the alarm was the result of an unexplained technical malfunction, not Iraqi missiles.

In his first statement since the missile attacks began, Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir told national television that Israel maintained its historic right to defend itself.

But he added, "It doesn't mean that we have to do it without wisdom... without assessing the circumstances."

The prime minister said the danger of missile attacks had not ended, but urged Israelis to try to resume normal life as the British did during Nazi bombing raids in World War II.

"People went to work and produced and stood steadfast and perhaps thanks to that they won," he said.

Col. Raanan Gissin, the army's deputy spokesman, announced the Patriots were in place, but said he was not certain they could end the missile threat.

The United States has been urging Israel not to retaliate for the Iraqi attacks.

Families fear protests may hurt morale

Jean McDaniel said she was "scared, nervous, sad that the whole thing had to start."

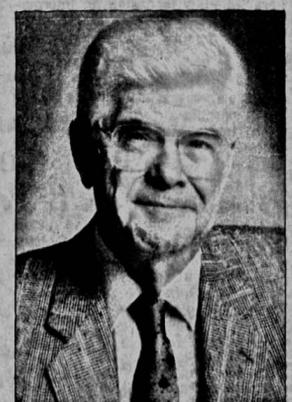

Her husband said, "I don't have any opinion as to whether it's right or wrong, but we want to support the kids that are over there."

Maxine Yeggy, the mother of Warrant Officer Stephen Yeggy, a helicopter mechanic with the 101st Airborne, said since hostilities began she has been "sick, upset, glued to the television set."

Asked about the peace demonstrators, Yeggy said, "I think they should be over there and see what it's like. It's not a pretty sight."

Jere Covington of Oxford, Iowa, voiced his annoyance with the protestors and went so far as to suggest that a draft should be reinstated to recruit them into military service. Covington wore a photograph of his 27-year-old son, James, who is a medic with the 134th. Before his call for duty, James worked as a heavy equipment operator in Coralville.

"My concern is not only for my son but for my nephew and all the troops over there, that they do not interpret these so-called peace demonstrations as being a lack of support for what they're giving up

professor discusses gulf issues in forum

By James Arnold
The Daily Iowan

After the destruction of Iraq, the United States could be sitting on top of the Middle East with the violence tamed and the Palestinian question answered. This is one motive for the war in the Persian Gulf presented by Burns Weston, UI professor of law.

Weston discussed current gulf issues at a Community Forum Sunday at the First Christian Church, 217 Iowa Ave. He said the U.S. government had been looking to fight prior to the invasion but has grudgingly acted in accordance with international law.

"The United States has behaved in a law-abiding fashion despite Bush's perception that he was not accountable to Congress, or when he wanted to go it alone without the United Nations," he said. "The Bush administration has been thirsty to get into a conflict."

This "thirst," Weston said, might be explained by one of the circulating political theories which places the United States atop the Middle East oil market following the war.

After dividing up the Iraqi territories, the United States would oversee an agreement dividing Lebanon between Syria and Israel and giving the West Bank to Israel, thus forcing the Palestinians into Jordan. In Jordan, the Palestinians could set up their own state by ousting current Jordan leader King Hussein, according to Weston.

"The United States in the post-Cold War era, with no opposition from the Soviet Union, can manipulate in the Middle East," Weston said. "These actions would place the United States on top of the oil market in 1992 when Japan and Germany are in need again."

Weston said after the completion of the air campaign the United States should refrain from starting a ground war.

"Bring the campaign to a halt quickly then call a cease fire — this would end the hostility and save us from a horrific loss of life," he said. "I am hoping we will push for an end of hostilities and help define a new world order."

IC Jewish community awaits Israel's reaction to missiles

By Laura Ballman
The Daily Iowan

The world was terrified last week when Iraqi missiles exploded in and around Tel Aviv, Israel. Four days later, Israel has not retaliated. The implications of any possible retaliation leave the Jewish community in Iowa City waiting and praying.

At the B'Nai B'Rith Hillel Foundation in Iowa City the people are worried. Iowa City resident Rita Marcus said, "I was concerned because we had a real chance of losing our homeland." She thinks that although Israel has the right to retaliate, they should wait. She said, "(Israel) is showing strength and incredible restraint by not retaliating. That is the most important thing for world peace."

Rabbi Jeff Porthmant said, "Retaliation might bring other Arab nations into the conflict or cause some allies to drop out. Since the missiles did not kill anyone and property damage was minimal, Israel should not retaliate. I don't know that Israel would do anything the allies are not already doing except vent frustration."

David Nadler and his wife, Sinya, have family in Israel. "What people here need to appreciate," said Nadler, "is that Israel is being asked to be a sitting duck — not for the benefit of Israel but for the allies — and this is a sacrifice."

"I don't see how anyone can say this war is just about oil, with Saddam Hussein's weapons and mass destruction being used on the innocent civilians of a country that has nothing to do with the conflict. I think Israelis are extremely grateful that the military infrastructure of this tyrant is being eradicated."

Porthmant also said, "All American Jews are always worried about our own American troops over there. Our neighbors are over there."

The Nadlers' friends in Israel, who survived the attack, consider it a miracle that nobody was killed. Nadler said, "If the bombing continues maybe Israel will retaliate. That may cause a bigger war. Israel is such a small country that who knows what might happen. It might be very bad."

Whatever the response from Israel, Iraq's attack will have long-lasting effects. "The psychological trauma is immense. The thought of an entire country having to huddle in rooms with gas masks is a horrifying image. But it is not an image. It is a horrifying reality," he said.

Mary Abhoud-Kamps has been named acting director of the UI Office of Health Center Information and Communication (HCIC). She succeeds Gordon Strayer, who retired from the directorship Dec. 31.

Strayer served for over 40 years with the UI Office of Public Information and University Relations in various positions, including 12 years as its director, and for the past 15 years as HCIC director.

A 1978 UI journalism graduate who will receive her M.A. degree in journalism in March 1991, Abhoud-Kamps is an award-winning journalist. She served as associate editor of HCIC from 1982 to 1986 and as assistant director from 1986 to the present.

UI Press publishes homesteader's letters

"Bachelor Bess: The Homesteading Letters of Elizabeth Corey, 1909-1919," a new book from the UI Press, is an account of an Iowa woman's adventures homesteading on the American frontier.

In July 1909, 21-year-old Elizabeth Corey left her family's Iowa farm and traveled to South Dakota to stake her claim to a homestead.

Over the next 10 years, she sent a steady stream of letters back to her family. This correspondence provides an almost daily account of what it was like to be a single woman homesteading alone.

The book is available either at fine book stores or directly from UI Press, Iowa City, Iowa 52242.

Applications for dance grants due Feb. 1

Midwestern presenters of dance performance are encouraged to apply for fee-support grants for Dance on Tour, a new initiative of the Dance, Inter-Arts and States Program of the National Endowment for the Arts administered by Arts Midwest. Dance on Tour provides fee support to non-profit presenting organizations for the specific purpose of engaging out-of-region, out-of-state or foreign professional dance companies and artists. Preference is given to exemplary dance companies and artists from outside the region in multi-day engagements that broaden the aesthetic awareness of the community.

The grant deadline of Feb. 1 is for performances during the 1991-92 season. Applications must be received in the Arts Midwest office by 5 p.m. on Feb. 1. For more information, contact Susan Chandler or Dawn Jones at 612/341-0755.

CR school district takes over art collection

The Cedar Rapids Community School District's Board of Education has agreed to honor a recent request of Joseph Czestochowski, Director of the Cedar Rapids Museum of Art, for the school district to take over responsibility for its art collection. This will allow the district the option to lend the works, most of which are currently in storage at the museum, to other museums in the area on a short-term basis and to have the less valuable pieces on display in the district's schools.

The school district's collection includes artwork by Grant Wood, Marvin Cone and several other artists. Most of the district's works have been displayed or stored at the museum for the past 20 years.

UI examines its role in upholding civil rights throughout time

By Susan Stapleton
The Daily Iowan

Mos, of the students involved in last week's protests for and against the war in the Persian Gulf weren't even born when, in 1965, three demonstrators petitioned the community for another cause in a different fashion — through hunger strikes.

While the state legislature was passing Iowa's Civil Rights Act, three black UI students held a "rights fast" at the post office to raise $5,000 for the national civil rights movement and protest police brutality to civil rights demonstrators in Selma and Montgomery, Ala.

The three students participating in the strike, sponsored by the Friends of Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee, attended classes but slept outside the building and refused to eat.

While some students heckled the strikers, others showed their support by carrying signs and serenading them with songs of freedom.

Eight days of fasting passed and the group raised $4,000 — as well as the consciousness of the Iowa City community, which had a small minority population.

Events such as the "rights fast" have led the UI throughout the years to examine its role in upholding civil rights and when necessary, create new policies designed to end discrimination,

A Brief History of Civil Rights at the UI

1963	1964	1965	1966	1967	1968	1969	1990
The UI Black Alumni Association is informally established at a picnic.	The Federal Civil Rights Act is passed.	The University Committee on Human Rights is formed to "provide leadership in the field of human rights." The committee was involved in formulating a new policy banning off-campus housing discrimination and wrote the lasting statement on human rights.	The Friends of Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee sponsors a small group of students to hunger strike and raises over $4,000 to finance the civil rights movement in the South.	Iowa Civil Rights Act, drafted by UI Professor Arthur Bonfield, is passed.	The Afro-American Student Association, now called the Black Student Union, is formed.	16 of 20 black UI football players boycott spring training, demanding special advisors, five years of financial aid, blacks on the coaching staff and termination of the interference of coaches in their personal lives (inter-racial dating, for example).	UI acknowledges the observance of Martin Luther King day by canceling afternoon classes.
				Iowa's Fair Housing Act is passed.	The Education Opportunity Program, now called Opportunity at Iowa, is implemented.	An organized program for Afro-American studies is introduced into the American Civilization program at the UI, headed by Philip Hubbard and Robert Corrigan. The following year, Charles Davis is named head of the then-called Afro-American Studies Program.

said several UI officials who were here at the time. In the week set aside by the UI to commemorate the birthday of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., several professors reflected on the turbulent time and the changes it wrought.

One of the changes was the creation of the UI Human Rights Commission in 1962 to look at civil rights problems at the UI. The committee drafted changes in the UI's fair employment and housing rules even before the federal Civil Rights Act of 1964.

Retired UI Vice President Philip Hubbard served on the commission, whose purpose, he said, was to "open up the city for housing, jobs and accommodations."

The UI also focused on the problems of women and gay rights, Hubbard said.

Arthur Bonfield, now a UI professor of law, was responsible for drafting a bulk of the 1965 Iowa Civil Rights Act. The bill updated the 1885 anti-discrimination statute which made discrimination a criminal offense. In the 1965 act, discrimination was minimized to a civil offense, but prosecution and conviction were made easier.

In a Feb. 23, 1990 DI article, Bonfield said the act was "meant to work a large social change by eradicating the massive discrimination that was present in society and vindicate a strong moral claim for equal treatment regardless of people's race.

"People have been discriminated against for hundreds of years," he added. "The idea was to end that discrimination."

Iowa's new bill was similar to a 1964 federal civil rights statute which made discrimination on the basis of race, creed, color, sex, national origin, religion or disability illegal.

But the Iowa law didn't include a housing clause.

Because UI black students were not allowed to live in the residence halls until 1946, they tried to rent rooms off-campus or live with UI staff and faculty. Women found accommodations in a house owned by the Black Women's Club of Iowa.

Louis Landweber, a professor emeritus who worked with Hubbard in the UI Hydraulics Lab, recalled when Hubbard was searching for housing in a predominantly white part of town.

"He even asked us, his friends, if it was OK for a black man to be their neighbor," he said.

Many black students found housing in a trailer park where the English-Philosophy Building now stands. Long lines formed for the showers due to the lack of indoor plumbing.

In 1967, Iowa's Fair Housing Act made it a civil offense to refuse to sell or lease a house on the basis of race, but student charges of housing discrimination by landlords in 1985 suggest the problem still exists.

In the late 1960s, black athletes at the UI were faced with what many of them described as an "intolerable situation" which led to a boycott of spring training by 16 of 20 black football players in 1969. They claimed UI coaches addressed them as "boy" and that they were harassed when they became involved in interracial relationships.

The athletes asked for special advisers and for five years of financial aid because of their special status as black athletes. They also requested a better representation of black coaches on the UI teams.

King's assassination in 1968 brought about several changes at the UI, including the creation of 35 to 50 minority student scholarships totaling $50,000.

In September 1968, 42 minority students were enrolled at the UI as Martin Luther King Scholars. Last year, 1,700 students worked through the Office of Special Support Services to facilitate their education. The office assists minority students with their education. Opportunity at Iowa was created in 1987 to recruit and retain minority students at the UI.

including child abuse, suicide, self-identity and computers.

Each poem was related to King's life and beliefs as Brooks stated that King would be concerned with the topics in her prose if he were alive.

A little black boy's success in finding his identity despite the others' efforts to alienate him because of his broad nose, "plump" lips and very dark skin was the subject of Brooks' poem "The Life of Lincoln West."

"He hated himself for his feeling of well-being," Brooks recited from her poem.

Hubbard said Brooks would be noted for her poetry which continues to be a source of inspiration for people from all walks of life.

"She emphasizes concern for all mankind. Symbols of oppression later become sources of pride. It shows why she is held in such high regard," Hubbard said.

UI President Hunter Rawlings said, "She's the perfect way to start the Convocation program for Martin Luther King Jr. because she speaks with such a direct and honest voice."

the troops.

"People are tired of seeing these protestors out here — they're trying to present themselves as the majority, and they're not," said counterprotestor Keith Chivetta, state chairman of Young Americans for Freedom and member of United Students for America, which organized the counterprotest.

"They're not just anti-Bush, they're anti-America," he added.

UI Student Association vice president and peace march participant Heather Fenyk said she was glad to see the counterprotestors at the rally.

"They make us think even harder about the issue, and I hope we'll be able to make them think also," said Fenyk.

But some participants said the media were placing too much emphasis on the counterprotestors, despite their smaller numbers.

"There's an organized event here ... and the media comes and, instead of concentrating on what this is supposed to be about, they focus on (a few) people," said Toni Kuehn, UI student.

themselves as Marine Lt. Col. Cliff Acree, Navy Lt. Jeffrey Zaun and Marine Chief Warrant Officer Guy Hunter — three previously listed as missing by the U.S. military.

In English, the men were asked questions by an interviewer and answered, mostly in a stilted style suggesting they were reading from statements prepared for them.

Zaun sent greetings to his parents and sister at home, called on them to pray for peace and said slowly, "I think our leaders and our people have wrongly attacked the peaceful people of Iraq," Hunter had a similar stiffly worded statement.

The Iraqis "are putting words into his mouth," Calvin Zaun, the Navy officer's father, said in Cherry Hill, N.J. "It doesn't sound like Jeff."

The Geneva Convention on treatment of POWs, to which Iraq was a signatory, says prisoners "must at all times be protected particularly against acts of violence or intimidation and against insults and public curiosity."

At Desert Storm headquarters in Riyadh, Saudi Arabia, the U.S. military said the allies had flown 7,000 sorties in almost four days.

"I doubt there is an ensemble today capable of playing Schnittke's music more knowledgeably or more rewardingly than the Kronos. The quartet's total commitment to the music fills it with life."

Soviets denounce Gorbachev's crackdown

By Deborah Seward
The Associated Press

MOSCOW — Hundreds of thousands of reformers marched Sunday to the edge of the Kremlin to demand that their onetime hero, Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev, resign for his role in the crackdown on Lithuania.

The crowd streamed into Manezh Square, near the Kremlin gardens and in sight of its mighty towers, under red, yellow and green Lithuanian flags. Participants also carried red, white and blue Russian flags, as well as banners denouncing Gorbachev.

Police estimated the crowd at up to 300,000.

In Leningrad, about 40,000 protesters marched to the square in front of the palace where the Russian czar once lived. "Lithuania, We Are With You," "Gorbachev Kills" and "Gorbachev Resign" their banners read.

At the Moscow rally, Yuri Afanasiev, a historian and leader of the Democratic Russia reform movement, told protesters that rallies were held in more than a dozen other major cities to protest the Jan. 13 military assault on the Lithuanian broadcast center that left 14 dead and hundreds wounded.

Afanasiev told them the two-hour

"Whether he knew or not, he justified this crude violation of the constitution."

Oleg Bogomolov

Director of the Institute for World Socialist Economies rally was called to rebuff the reactionary course he said Gorbachev now is charting, and the crowd shouted, "Resign! Resign!"

Russian Federation President Boris Yeltsin, Gorbachev's most potent political rival, held him directly responsible for the killings in Lithuania and for the dismal state he said the country now is in. "The danger of dictatorship ...

has become a reality," said a Yeltsin statement, read by a supporter.

"The president has started on the course of whipping up ethnic passions, supporting self-proclaimed committees of salvation, striving for power, on the path of justifying the use of weapons against a peaceful population."

When the army moved on the separatist Lithuanians, it said it was answering a plea from a previously unknown pro-Moscow group called the National Salvation Committee.

The rally's only quiet moment came when Afanasiev asked a moment of silence for Lithuania's dead. The protest was held exactly a year after a Soviet crackdown on ethnic militants in southern Azerbaijan republic left more than 130 people dead.

More than 20 speakers Sunday crowded a huge truck that served as a podium. Most speakers, and many in the crowd, until recently were ardent supporters of Gorbachev's efforts to reform the Soviet Union economically and politically. Many major reformers like Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze have left Gorbachev's inner circle, charging he is heading toward a dictatorship.

The crackdown on Lithuania appears to have re-energized reformers, who have appeared encouraged by Gorbachev's move to the right.

Oleg Bogomolov, director of the prestigious Institute for World Socialist Economies, said the Vilnius killings stained Gorbachev. "Whether he knew or not, he justified this crude violation of the constitution," said Bogomolov.

Iraq shows interviews of captured allied pilots

Remorse claimed

By Abner Katzman
The Associated Press

NICOSIA, Cyprus — Iraq broadcast interviews Sunday with seven captured allied airmen, some of whom stiffly mouthed regrets about their role in the Persian Gulf war.

In another broadcast, President Saddam Hussein delivered a fiery, five-minute radio address to his people in which he insisted he was holding back most of his military might. He said Iraqi soldiers "are fighting with heroism and courage which is unprecedented in the history of war."

The interviews with the captives — three Americans, two Britons, an Italian and a Kuwaiti — were broadcast on Baghdad television. The POWs spoke haltingly as they delivered statements denouncing the allied assault on Iraq. It was not known if they were reading or under duress, but they often paused and used phrases echoing statements often made by Iraq.

The interviews could not be seen in Cyprus. However, Cable News Network and Iranian television monitored the TV broadcast, and CNN broadcast audio excerpts.

The three Americans, all of whom are listed as missing in action, identified themselves as Navy Lt. Jeffrey Zaun, 28; Marine Corps Chief Warrant Officer Guy Hunter, 46; and Marine Lt. Col. Clifford Acree, 39. The U.S. military has said Zaun is from Cherry Hill, N.J.; Acree is from Oceanside, Calif.; and Hunter from Camp Pendleton, Calif. All three are listed as missing.

The Italian identified himself as Capt. Maurizio Coccolone. Italy said Coccolone is missing.

Britain has said Flight Lt. Adrian John Nichol and his pilot, Lt. John Gyart Peters are missing. One of the POWs held by Iraq identified himself as Adrian John Nichol, and the other gave his name only as Lt. Peters. Peters' statement was largely inaudible.

The Iraqi News Agency identified the Kuwaiti as Lt. Col. Mohammed Mubarek Sultan Mubarak, a pilot.

CNN reporter Peter Arnett, who has remained in Baghdad, said all the men appeared on television in uniform and were interviewed sitting against a white wall. "The manner of the men was subdued," he said in a report cleared by Iraqi censors.

"One's conversation was barely audible," he said. "One man had a bandaged hand, and two others had bruised faces."

Arnett said that except for the Kuwaiti, the pilots were questioned and answered in English, which was then translated into Arabic. The Kuwaiti was interviewed in Arabic.

Navy Lt. Jeffrey Zaun

Acree said his aircraft was shot down by a surface-to-air missile in southern Kuwait. "I would like to tell my wife and children I am alive and well," he said.

Zaun spoke slowly and flatly, saying, "I think our leaders and our people have wrongly attacked the peaceful people of Iraq. . . I would like to tell my mother and my father and my sister that I am well and that they should pray for peace."

Hunter said the war "is crazy and never should have happened. It is an aggression against peaceful Iraq."

King topic of lecture tonight

The Daily Iowan

Author b.f. maiz will lecture and "poet" at the UI as part of the 1991 Martin Luther King Jr. Convocation Program.

"Martin I and Martin II: A Continuing History" is the topic of maiz's poetic presentation at 8 p.m. Monday, Jan. 21, in the Triangles Ballroom of the Union. His appearance is one of several activities scheduled at the UI in commemoration of the slain civil rights leader's birthday.

Born in Alabama, maiz rebelled at the age of 14 and ran away to Chicago to find a new life. Twenty years later, he resumed his education and was an honor student at the University of Minnesota and the University of Kansas. Later he studied at St. Mary's College, and in Chicago, he studied Black history and Frederick Douglass.

Deeply involved in the civil rights movement, he has served as a theorist for the Chicago chapter of the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee. He has written and published five books of poetry and more than 37 pamphlets covering a wide range of subjects including racial and sexual discrimination, religion, apartheid in South Africa and drug addiction.

"Martin Luther King influenced me by his sincerity and charity of spirit," maiz said. "He had the qualities of leadership, but above all, he had courage."

In his poetry, maiz attempts to achieve the same creativity and freedom of expression as jazz musicians. His poetic rhythm is most influenced by the music of the Charlie Parker/Miles Davis era. He believes "poet" should be used as a verb as well as a noun, not only to describe who one is but what one does. When maiz poets an audience, he said, he is "a servant to the human spirit," breathing life into his written words.

Dynamic Kronos Quartet descends on UI

Group will give 4 eclectic shows

The Daily Iowan

One of the most daring and acclaimed groups in contemporary music will perform in Iowa City this week — and you have several chances to witness them in action.

The Kronos Quartet will present three concerts during a week-long residency on the UI campus, sponsored by Hancher Auditorium. The performances will be at 8 p.m. Tuesday, Jan. 22, in Clapp Recital Hall and 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday, Jan. 25 and 26, in Hancher.

The trailblazing quartet — violinists David Harrington and John Sherba, violist Hank Dutt and Musa Suso, "The Dead Man" by New York crossover composer John Zorn and "Spectre" by Canadian composer John Osborne.

Kronos has almost single-handedly revolutionized the contemporary perception of the string quartet — abandoning tuxedos in favor of popular regalia and infusing the most staid of chamber music formats with energetic new styles of music from throughout the world.

The enthusiasm of Kronos to perform valid music in any style has attracted a new generation of composers to write music for the string quartet and built an audience that would otherwise have never attended concerts of chamber music.

The Jan. 25 all-Schnittke concert will represent Kronos at its most conservative. Schnittke is the most prominent contemporary torch bearer of the Russian classical tradition. His early compositions reflect the clear influence of Shostakovich, but his four string quartets chart the development of an increasingly distinctive and important voice.

Dumi Maraire's new sounds, in the Jan. 26 concert, come to Kronos' audience care of Hancher Auditorium, with a $14,000 grant from the Meet the Composer/Reader's Digest Commissioning Program. Maraire, a master of the mbira (thumb-piano), came to the United States in 1968 as an artist-in-residence at the University of Washington, and he later founded an African music school in Seattle. His music combines contemporary styles with traditional music of the Shona people.

Foday Musa Suso, whose music will also be featured in the Jan. 26 concert, is a Mandingo griot, a vocation that combines music with oral history and requires many years of intense study and training. He has performed and taught kora, drums and balaphone throughout Africa. In 1984 he collaborated with Herbie Hancock to compose the official theme music of the Olympic Games.

The electric music of Christian Marclay, John Zorn and John Osborne will provide a stark contrast to the African flavor of Maraire and Suso. For more than a

As politically correct as they get

It should be understood that all expression of political belief occurs on a continuum. This is true of most human behavior. On any continuum, a majority will be found clustered between two extreme ends. PC is not monolithic. There is no PC president, no cabinet, no representative body. The term PC is just a label — a far-too-easy label — applied to people trying to live decently, with the highest possible regard for the origins, existential difficulties and human rights of others. Abuses of interpersonal, institutional and political power caused people to struggle toward the creation of new forms of human interaction. That is the core of PC, not a rigid dogmatic overlay for our world.

The one thing I share with our karate-chopping, lectern-pounding, prudent Chief Executive is the hope for a kinder, gentler world. Any such hope must lie in refusing to blame others into fearful silence. Hope, and change, lie at the end of a hard road of listening and being listened to, whether other parties speak your language or not.

harshly and without discernment, tends to push them back to the end of the spectrum we wish to evolve away from.

An excellent example of this is the young UI student who comes in to drop a class. It's a course about the role played by women in society. The guy is not, by any means, an English major (sorry — I can't explain that any clearer except to say that I was one and I know what I mean, and so do other English majors). He probably espouses moderate to conservative political views. He shakes his head, lays a drop slip on my desk and says, "I gotta get out of was wrong. He was ostracized. He was made to feel like an idiot Neanderthal geek for saying that a worldwide Marxist revolution was not, in all probability, forthcoming in the year of our Lord 1990.

Call me politically incorrect if you must, but I was dismayed. I grant that we're talking about a dangerous species in the young, vulnerable male. Perhaps his views were not delicately expressed. But must they be? Should he be encouraged to say whatever he thinks so it can be aired and examined by classmates in an adult manner? Shunning seems an inadequate means by which to recreate social opinion. Before he left me he said, "I feel really bad about dropping. I learned a lot from the class. I'll never look at the things men say about women in the same way again. But I just can't take any more of this."

I know what you're thinking. Awww, poor baby. Straight white guys get a lot of attention. They are the given — the norm — in corporate America, the academy, the military and the world of politics. Everywhere we turn their traditions, rituals and world views prevail. An array of politically correct analyses challenge that, thereby stimulating evolution and positive social change. I know all those things. But I also know what many seem to have forgotten and what straight white males are no longer allowed to say for themselves. They are just people. If they can put up with me, can trust me with their pain as they grow, I'd damned well better be able to put up with them. I'd better be able to treat them with decency and respect. I'd better not shy away from challenging them, or whine when they challenge me right back. I'd better be willing to build this world with them despite the seemingly insurmountable difficulties that face us as we try to do so. That, I think, is as politically correct as it gets.

Kim Painter's column appears Mondays on the Viewpoints page.

Kim Painter

Today's column was promised to the straight white males of the world. I must immediately take it back — from some of them. The men I want to talk about today reside in the middle of a continuum, too. It is a continuum of enlightenment, especially regarding women. There are straight white guys whose attitudes about women have not evolved from the days when Mom washed all their clothes, which were left in heaps wherever they came off for her to gather and sort. There are guys who don't think twice about using loaded terminology to describe a female employer or colleague, applying it in ways they would never use on a male in the same position. He's assertive, she's pushy, he's strong-willed, she's got a control problem. You know the story. This Bud is not for them.

But there are a lot of guys out there who are moving beyond that point. Unfortunately, the current atmosphere does little to encourage them to explore and move further. PC, applied this class. You won't believe what's happening to me in there." To me he says this. I come with a built-in reputation that I'm keenly aware of. I admire his decision to explain the situation behind the drop. We talk for nearly an hour.

Classmates have made his views the object of such ridicule that he can't say anything right. He feels he's learned a lot from the different aspects of our culture — television, print advertising, movies — that have been examined in class. He's never considered the issues before and is having great discussions about all of it with his girlfriend. But in class, he's not sufficiently extremist.

In one case, he expressed astonishment when it was a given of discussion that the world was moving toward a cataclysmic Marxist revolution. He didn't buy it. After all, the Berlin Wall was coming down brick by brick on the evening news. The revolution was petering out. Still, he

KING's BIRTHDAY

One year late

Last Thursday, the UI administration announced that it would stand by its decision to limit this year's observance of Martin Luther King Jr.'s birthday to a half-day. The administration said the holiday will be observed by a full-day cancellation of classes next year, but for today the initial proposal will be maintained. There seems to be no reasonable impetus for the delay; a full day of observance should have been enacted this year.

Dean of Students Phillip Jones explained the administration position by stating, "Part of our concern has been the creation of a human rights convocation, not simply a day off."

There is no reason why observance of King's birthday should be coupled with other concerns.

There is no reason why observance of King's birthday should be coupled with other concerns. Discussions or lectures dealing with racial issues and King's life could certainly include larger issues of human rights, but this fails to justify delaying the initiation of full-day observance. The various anti-war rallies held recently have shown the speed with which speakers and meetings can be organized, and it seems that an honorary convocation could have been arranged for today, fulfilling the administration's stated wish.

A petition supporting full-day observance was presented to UI President Hunter Rawlings by Black Student Union President Reanae McNeal in an effort to gain full-day observance this year. The action was unsuccessful, but the BSU's efforts should be applauded. The administration is wrong to characterize these efforts as merely an attempt to get out of class.

The importance of remembering King's life and work is given immediacy by the war in the Middle East, in which a disproportionate number of U.S. troops are drawn from the ranks of minorities and low-income groups. To allot only a half-day to honor King rings uncomfortably of the constitutional framers' decision to count blacks as only three-fifths of a person.

Next year, six years after the federal government declared King's birthday a national holiday, the UI will begin properly observing the day. Given the racial problems that continue to plague this country, King's birthday is one holiday with great relevance. It deserves thoughtful observance, and one hopes it will serve as a stimulus for meaningful dialogue on the condition of minorities in this country.

U.S. ENERGY POLICY

National disaster

Whether you support the war in the Middle East or oppose it, most Americans would agree that "we're there because of oil" (to quote T. Boone Pickens, oil tycoon and corporate raider). President Bush gives lip service to the goals of deterring aggression and restoring Kuwait, but would he have committed U.S. troops if Kuwait had nothing beneath its sands but more sand? Oil plays such a central role in our economy that the threat of Saddam controlling nearly one-quarter of the world's oil justified sending half a million American troops to fight for it. America's dependence on foreign oil is a prescription for disaster.

In 1973, when OPEC shut off the flow of oil to the West, America imported over 70 percent of its oil. By 1979, when the oil companies created the next shortage, America imported less than half its oil. But during the 1980's, America's dependence on foreign oil climbed back over 70 percent so that today a relatively small country like Iraq can send the U.S. economy into deep depression by limiting the sale of oil. Even if we regain control of Kuwait's oil without paying a large toll in casualties, what will happen if a more formidable opponent moves into Saudi Arabia or Kuwait next time? Suppose the Soviet Union were still our enemy and was allied with Iraq, as was the case less than two years ago? America's dependence on foreign oil could have drastic consequences.

The answer to the threat of dictators like Saddam Hussein is to lessen our dependence on foreign oil. We have heard this slogan for nearly two decades, but as an Iraqi diplomat stated, "America's energy policy is no policy." In fact, as the current crisis shows, we have a defense policy instead of an energy policy. Our armed forces have risked their lives due to this nation's commitment to foreign oil. But it is not fair that we continue this dependence so that they might have to fight the same battle again — only next time the stakes could be higher and the opposition harder.

Those who say that Americans aren't willing to conserve energy are wrong. Look at the recycling bins that are billowing with paper, plastic, bottles and cans. Most of us have pawed through our garbage searching for an empty bottle — not for the nickel deposit, but because it is wasteful to throw it out. It does not stand to reason that Americans won't conserve energy if our leaders show us that they, too, are committed to this goal by implementing national, state and local conservation policies. Perhaps tax breaks for families without cars, or for those that use alternative methods of energy will become as great a priority for President Bush this year as capital gains tax cuts were last year.

Saddam is wrong, but he's not crazy

America is going to war uncomprehending. It seems inexplicable to us that Saddam Hussein should bring upon himself a war against the largest mass of armor and air power assembled since World War II. How can he possibly win? Why is he headed for a suicidal war?

The answer is that he is not suicidal, nor does he have a great thirst for martyrdom. As the widows of his many political rivals will attest, his talent is making martyrs of others. On the contrary, Saddam thinks he can win.

How? Winning in the Arab context has a very special meaning. It means not losing against superior force. Tie goes to the weaker. Consider the last 40 years of Arab history. The Arabs have fought five wars against Israel (1948, 1956, 1967, 1973 and 1982) and lost every one. Yet at least twice they have turned battlefield disaster into political victory.

Charles Krauthammer

In 1956, Egypt, in a rout, lost the Sinai and the Suez Canal to Israel, Britain and France. But the Soviets threatened to intervene and Eisenhower backed Egypt. He forced Britain and France to withdraw from the Canal in humiliation. That finished them as the dominant players in the Middle East and contributed to our current predicament: Fifteen years later, a weary Britain abandoned the gulf, leaving it to the tender mercies of Iran, Iraq — and the United States.

Eisenhower then forced Israel out of Sinai. The effect was to turn Egypt's Nasser into hero of the Arab world for having stood up to both the Jews and the two great imperial powers that had dominated the Middle East for half a century.

Nasser and his pan-Arab nationalism became the leading force in the Arab world until his next military adventure, the debacle of 1967. That was utter defeat unchecked by a superpower bailout and unredeemed by a political victory in the United Nations. That is the war that Saddam does not want to reprise.

The model for Saddam is 1973. In the Yom Kippur war, Egypt fought Israel well enough for almost three weeks. Even though Egypt was by then on the verge of defeat, the superpowers stepped in and a cease-fire in place was declared. Egypt had acquitted itself well enough on the battlefield that it could turn the stalemate into a postwar negotiation. Ultimately, it turned postwar negotiation into the fulfillment of Sadat's most cherished war aim: recovery of the entire Sinai.

Saddam's strategy is precisely the same: to hold off the United States long enough and to bloody it badly enough to force a cease-fire and negotiation. If Saddam can reach the point that Sadat reached three weeks into the 1973 war, if he can go a few weeks and induce a bloodied America to sit down and talk, he has won.

He becomes the first Arab ever to stand up to a superpower in war. He comes to negotiations as an equal, with cards to deal (POWs especially). He is in a position to demand parts of Kuwait, a lifting of the embargo and retention of his military power. That leaves him dominant not just in Kuwait and in the gulf but in the entire Arab world. He emerges not just undefeated but victorious.

Critics ask: When will the United States know it has won? When Saddam falls, surrenders or unconditionally evacuates Kuwait. When will we know that Saddam has won? When the fighting is suspended and talks begin.

It is unlikely that Saddam will get to that pass, but not impossible. He has miscalculated enough times the strength of the enemy — most notably, in 1980, thinking post-revolutionary Iran to be a pushover — to believe that a victory of this sort is not a remote possibility (as it most surely is) but a likely possibility.

His most profound miscalculation is that, in this war, there is no superpower to put an artificial halt to the hostilities and save the losing side, as had happened in all the Arab-Israeli wars (except 1967). With the Soviets on the sidelines, Saddam's only hope for a deus ex machina to call a halt to proceedings is the American war effort stalls in American public opinion.

Saddam's contempt for American staying power is well-known. The America he knows is the America of Lebanon and of Vietnam. He is convinced that if he can put up a fight, American will tire and sue for peace.

Saddam vastly overestimates both his capacity to match America on the battlefield and the American people's irresolution in the face of war. He has forgotten his De Toqueville, "The selfsame democratic nations that are so reluctant to engage in hostilities sometimes perform prodigious achievements when once they have taken the field." Nonetheless, while his estimates may be inflated, his line of reasoning is not crazy. He may be wrong, but he is not mad.

Nor is he suicidal. Saddam has a strategy. That is why he risked war rather than capitulate to American demands for unconditional withdrawal. Capitulation meant humiliation and, quite possibly, as often follows in the Arab world, death.

War means a chance for victory. And with victory, glory. That is why he fights.

Nagle talks to families at Armory

By David Sims
The Daily Iowan

Peace demonstrations and support for U.S. troops are not inconsistent, Rep. Dave Nagle (D) told a group of about 60 family members of servicemen and women stationed in the Persian Gulf Saturday.

Dave Nagle

"I think we have to approach this area with more maturity than we did during the Vietnam period," he told the audience at the Iowa Army National Guard Armory, 925 S. Dubuque St.

"Being for peace isn't against the troops and being for our troops isn't against peace," Nagle said. Nagle visited Iowa City to answer family members' questions and offer his staff's assistance with the questions of troop status, tax issues, student loan deferments and any others they might have.

Some audience members told Nagle they were angry at the war protesters who took to the streets several times after the war broke out. They worried that troops would interpret those actions as a lack of support.

"I don't think the majority of the people who are demonstrating for peace are saying 'Don't support our soldiers,'" Nagle said.

"But their actions are saying it," an audience member replied.

"I don't think it has to be interpreted that way," Nagle countered.

"I think what the peace demonstrators are trying to say is that diplomatic solutions should still be pursued. And if a diplomatic alternative can accomplish what we want to accomplish, we should take it and get the hell out of there."

"My wife has been to prayer vigils, and I don't think that's inconsistent with my desire as a member (of Congress) to see that the troops have all the equipment ... they could possibly want."

Although he voted against the congressional resolution granting President Bush the power to conduct a war against Iraq, Nagle said he is now committed to giving the troops whatever they need to do the job quickly.

"That debate is over," he said. "Once the president took the option of using force, you quit having Republicans and Democrats. Whatever the troops need, wherever we were on that first question, we are going to be with the president now in his role as commander-in-chief."

Nagle said the division over war in the community was mirrored by a division among Washington experts on whether to allow sanctions against Iraq more time to work.

"The information we received was very conflicting," he said. "Former joint chiefs of staff ... were saying 'wait.' Others in the army were saying 'go.' ... Some of our best minds were divided on the question, so it's not surprising Congress was divided on the question."

Nagle cautioned the crowd against taking sides in the domestic argument over the war. "I don't know if we can, in this country, get through this without polarization. But at least within our state I'd like to try."

"But is it right that they can make us close the post office?" another audience member asked. "Then they're infringing on our rights."

Nagle said he personally disagreed with the "civil disobedience aspects" of the protest, like the one that led to the closing of the Federal Building last Monday.

"I think those types of things are counterproductive because that forces the society towards polarization," he said. "You get mad at them and then you get mad at their idea."

Responding to a reporter's question about whether Congress is considering a draft, Nagle said, "You have neither the manpower needs or the anticipated duration that would make the draft likely. Although for the first time, some people have actually started to talk about it."

Nagle said in the wake of the euphoria in Washington following the air raids of the first night, the mood is now "very somber."

"Those damn early news accounts made it sound like it was all over," he said. "If you believe the early accounts then we've got everything of importance in the country, and it was just a matter of going in there and helping them bury the bodies. This is going to be tougher than that. They're harder than that."

"The conventional wisdom in Washington is that this will be a 30- to 60-day war," he said.

Other than the mood of the reports from the first night of fighting, Nagle said the media are reporting accurately on the war and that reports correspond with his daily briefings.

"Anything that's classified only stays classified for a day," he said. "Anyone who is watching CNN and reading The New York Times and The Washington Post has fairly accurate information. ... Their reporters are very aggressive. They have good sources."

Leach defends pro-war vote at International Center speech

By Wendy Alesch
The Daily Iowan

Congressman Jim Leach (R) defended his pro-war vote while answering the questions of peace demonstrators who encircled the audience attending his speech at the International Center Sunday.

In a 45-minute speech sponsored by the Council for International Visitors, Leach carefully laid out the purpose behind the attack in the Persian Gulf, followed by an unscheduled hour-long question-and-answer session with protesters.

He said that with Saddam Hussein's threat of biological war, economic sanctions and more futile attempts at negotiation would only give Iraq more time to perfect chemical and biological warfare instruments.

"Chemical warfare everybody understands, but biological war is more dangerous than nuclear war," Leach said. "When people say it is better not to attack, think — Stalin nor Hitler threatened biological warfare."

Leach also defined the attack as a means of peace keeping and enforcing human rights in the Middle East. He cited many examples of people in Kuwait being raped and executed as an "instrument of state policy." "I feel the U.S. is attempting to right a wrong and stand up against evil," Leach said. "Saddam Hussein can only be defined as evil, and (the attack) is something that is righteous."

Demonstrators vocally disagreed as Leach explained the concept of war as a means of keeping peace.

"The element principle of peace keeping has to become peacemaking," he said. "If you don't use force in some area, there could be greater violence later."

"Lives risked in the sands of Saudi Arabia may be lives saved in other parts of the world," Leach said.

He said the warfare the allies are engaging in now is the most "humane" type of war yet, due to the new technologies in targeting that cause the least amount of damage and fewer losses of lives.

Leach predicted that the war would be short and that Iraqi troops could be evicted in 10-50 days but questioned how peace would be enforced after that.

Leach commented on a new type of free world due to the technology of the media.

"I have never known an event where all citizens have equal judgment," he said. "The public has become educated in a way that is very impressive."

I am convinced that if we are to get on the right side of the world revolution, we as a nation must undergo a radical revolution of values... A true revolution of values will soon look across the seas and see individual capitalists of the West investing huge sums of money in Asia, Africa and South America, only to take the profits out with no concern for the social betterment of the countries and say: "This is not just." It will look at our alliance with the landed gentry of Latin America and say: "This is not just." The Western arrogance of feeling that it has everything to teach others and nothing to learn from them is not just. A true revolution of values will lay hands on the world order and say of war: "This way of settling differences is not just."

Parental consent 'war' continues to rage

Abortion bill protestors meet in IC

By Heidi Pederson
The Daily Iowan

With U.S. attention focused on the war in the Middle East, many people throughout the country are not aware of another war raging in their state legislatures.

A parental notification bill currently being considered by the Iowa legislature, as well as other legislatures in the U.S., is yet another battle in the war over abortion rights.

If passed, the measure would require women under the age of 18 to get their parents' permission or a judge's waiver before obtaining an abortion. Parental notification is already law in 35 states.

Protesters of the bill, sponsored by Planned Parenthood and the Emma Goldman Clinic, met Friday at the Iowa City Public Library. The conference featured Bill and Karen Bell of Indianapolis, whose 17-year-old daughter Becky died from an illegal abortion in 1988. The Bells blame Indiana's parental notification law for their daughter's death.

After becoming pregnant by a "first love" who then broke off the relationship, Becky went to a Planned Parenthood clinic for help. She was told by a counselor at the clinic that she needed a parent's permission or a judge's waiver for an abortion.

Becky didn't want to tell her parents, and when she was told that the judge who heard waiver requests was himself anti-abortion, she resorted to an illegal abortion. She died after developing a massive infection from the procedure.

The Bells said Becky's case demonstrates that the parental notification law doesn't work.

"The law sounds good, because if (your daughter) didn't come to you, the law would force them to," Karen said. "But the law didn't force Becky to come to us, and it didn't force her to go to a judge. It forced her to make a fatal mistake."

Bill said rather than helping, the law punishes young women who are faced with an unwanted pregnancy and cannot or will not go to their parents for reasons ranging from not wanting to hurt their families to fear of abuse.

"What about the young woman who has been sexually abused by her brother or father?" Bill asked. "Explain to me how these laws — these loving, caring laws supposedly designed to facilitate family communication — help these young women?"

Gayle Sand, director of the Emma Goldman Clinic, agreed that the laws fail in their purpose.

"We support parental involvement in decisions, but we feel you can't legislate that communication," she said. "These laws simply don't work. They're not designed to protect young women's health."

Sand said the law only delays the seeking or receiving of medical attention by the teen. She cited figures from the World Health Organization, which showed that after a parental notification law was passed in Minnesota in 1981, the number of minors who obtained second-trimester abortions increased by 26.5 percent.

The substantial increase in second-trimester abortions, which are more dangerous than abortions performed within the first eight weeks, was due to the judicial waiver, Sand said. This judicial bypass procedure was shown to take an average of three and a half weeks to complete.

Bill Bell said parental notification laws were created by people who oppose the right to a legal abortion. He called young women the "political football" of the abortion issue currently being fought in the Iowa legislature. He hopes people in Iowa will listen to the story of his daughter and oppose passage of the bill.

"We are sounding the alarm to young women throughout this state that their lives are on the line. For once in political decision-making, women's lives must come first," he said.

"We are putting out the call for parents, students and all other abortion rights supporters to flood the legislature with their opposition to any Iowa abortion bill that mandates parental consent or notification," he added.

While the meeting was briefly disrupted by one anti-abortion supporter, most in the audience sympathized with the Bells.

"I think that (abortion) should be a personal thing," said Camille Dugy, a local high-school student. "Parents aren't always involved in their kids' lives enough to be part of that decision."

stay to work on special projects for the medical college but said he probably won't return to teaching.

Dr. James Clifton, 67, a professor of internal medicine, will serve as interim dean starting Sept. 1, while a UI committee searches for Eckstein's replacement.

The announcement of his resignation comes just two months after the UI agreed to drop the appeal of the costly Jean Jew sexual harassment case, which brought negative publicity nationwide to the medical college and the UI.

In court documents on the case, a federal judge said Eckstein was one of several UI administrators who were "ambivalent" to Jew's concerns and said Eckstein told Jew that Iowa City was a "goldfish bowl" where nothing could be done to fix her problems.

However, the dean told the DI that despite the fact "a lot of people seem overanxious to associate" his resignation to the Jew case, he had been planning it for several years, and the two events had nothing to do with each other.

UI President Hunter Rawlings said Eckstein served the UI and the state with "great distinction."

"During his tenure as dean, the college has emerged as one of the world's pre-eminent centers of biomedical research and medical training," Rawlings said. "The College of Medicine is a statewide treasure and a source of pride for all Iowans."

The five-story Human Biology Research Facility, which is still under construction, was renamed the Eckstein Medical Research Building in September 1989.

Under his leadership, faculty members in the College of Medicine won nearly $79 million in grants and contracts in 1990 to support research and training.

The medical college graduates nearly 175 doctors a year, provides specialty training for 600 residents and fellows, and educates 200 students in several allied health areas. In addition, the college provides basic instruction for dental, nursing and pharmacy students, as well as coursework for undergraduate students in six other colleges.

Faculty members also provide medical and surgical care at the UI Hospitals and Clinics and at the Iowa City Veterans Medical Center.

their lives for," he said. "I don't feel our men over there need this kind of feedback ... nor do their families."

Asked by a reporter how he feels when he sees the demonstrations, Covington responded, "I feel like getting out of my vehicle and killing."

"I don't feel that most of these young people that are demonstrating ... know what they're talking about," he said. "They start talking about Vietnam — hell, half of them weren't even born during Vietnam."

"I don't think they have the right to go out here and upset our troops, our families. I believe in peace. I do not want war. I want my son back alive. But it's time that the people understood that sometimes to have freedom and to have peace, you've got to fight for it. And I don't like fighting either."

Covington said his son joined the National Guard nine and a half years ago, in case defense of the United States became necessary.

"He was taken quite surprised like the rest of them that are in Saudi Arabia," he said. "But he's not bitching about it. And I don't feel like any of the unit is complaining about it. They're a tight unit. ... Some of those guys have been together over 20 years."

"He's strong enough, I know, to handle the demonstrations and stuff," Covington said. "But he's also young enough that if he continues to hear these types of things the morale of our troops will have a tendency to go the other way."

Super Bowl attracts opposites Matchup recalls days of different leagues

By Hal B...
 The Associated Press

TAMPA, Fla. — For the silver anniversary Super Bowl, the NFL offers a matchup of opposites, a razzle dazzle offense against a defense that surrenders points grudgingly.

AFC champion Buffalo is like one of those old AFL teams, that scored touchdowns in bunches. The Bills produced 95 points in two playoff games.

The NFC champion New York Giants are a reminder of the old NFL teams, where points were often at a premium, allowed infrequently by determined defenses. They permitted just 16 points in two playoff games.

This, then, is the immovable object against the irresistible force. This is Ray Nitschke, his uniform covered with grass stains and mud, against Darryle Lamonica, firing long pass after long pass downfield. This is the stout defense against the free-wheeling offense. This ought to be fun. The Giants were almost perfect against Chicago in a 31-3 victory that moved them to the championship game. Then they allowed just one TD against San Francisco and rode five field goals by Matt Bahr to a 15-13 victory. "We tried to shorten the game a little," Giants coach Bill Parcells said. "Defensively, we had just a one-play lapse. Offensively, we did a good job running."

The Bills glided up and down a snowy field, shellacking Miami 44-34 in the playoff opener and then embarrassed the Los Angeles Raiders 51-3 in the championship game, scoring almost at will.

Buffalo's offense rides on the rifle passes of golden-armed Jim Kelly, who threw for five TDs in the two playoff games, and running back Thurman Thomas, a 1,000-yard rusher.

New York uses backup Jeff Hostetler at quarterback, getting his first real game action in a seven-year pro career as a replacement for injured Phil Simms, and elderly running back Ottis Anderson, available and ignored by the rest of the league as a Plan B free agent in each of the last two years.

"They keep telling me I can't do it," Hostetler said. "Well, I'm going to the Super Bowl. The defense did a super job to hold San Francisco to that number of points and give us a chance to kick a field goal and win it."

New York's defense revolves around all-pro linebacker Lawrence Taylor, whose recovery of a fumble forced by Erik Howard led to the winning field goal against the 49ers. It was typical for the Giants, who led the NFC in turnovers.

Buffalo answers with Bruce Smith, the NFL's Defensive Player of the Year. The Bills' defense made its own statement with five interceptions against the Raiders in the AFC title game.

The teams met in the regular season with Buffalo winning 17-13. It was in that game that both quarterbacks were injured, Kelly twisting his knee and Simms spraining his arch.

Kelly returned for the playoffs and has been nothing short of brilliant. The Giants, however, have prospered behind Hostetler, who has won four straight games since Simms went down.

Grapplers overwhelm No. 3 Cyclones

By Jay Nanda
 The Daily Iowan

As the Iowa Hawkeyes and Iowa State Cyclones got set to hook up at Hilton Coliseum in Ames Sunday afternoon, fans of the intrastate rivalry expected to see a tight match that would have a good chance to go down to the wire.

But the aggressive Iowa Hawkeyes overwhelmed the third-ranked Cyclones, 25-9, producing what seems to be a fairly sizable gap between the No. 2 and No. 3 teams in the country.

Next up was the 126-pound bout between top-ranked Hawkeye Terry Brands and No. 4 Cyclone Dan Knight.

Although the match was close throughout, Brands continued to stalk Knight much like a lion looking for its prey, and Knight eventually ran out of places to hide. After a scoreless first period, Brands scored a one-point escape in the second period, and with 15 seconds left in the match, the Hawkeye scored a two-point take-down to sew up the victory.

Brands also held over a minute advantage of riding time against Knight, thus accounting for a 4-0 win. At this point, the Hawkeyes led Iowa State 7-0.

At 134, top-ranked Tom Brands also experienced a scoreless first period versus junior Mike Moreno. But when all was said and done, Brands remained Iowa's only undefeated wrestler, as he improved to 27-0 with a 14-6 decision.

Iowa padded its lead to 16-0 at 142 pounds when No. 3 Troy Steiner earned an 18-1 technical fall over Earl Harrison. Then, the Hawkeyes came through with a pair of one-point victories.

At 150 pounds, No. 5 Terry Steiner squeezed out a 6-5 win over No. 3 Cyclone Torrae Jackson, en route to his 23rd win against five losses.

Finally, what may have been the most anticipated match of the day followed, as the Cyclones looked to get on the board with their ace in the hole — second-ranked and unbeaten two-time all-American Steve Hamilton.

However, Iowa's fourth-ranked Tom Ryan never trailed in recording a 3-2 decision, his 25th win of the year.

"I was thinking that if I could get the heat on him right away, I would keep the pressure on," Ryan said. "Hamilton's a tough kid and he didn't break."

"Coach (Dan) Gable has been on us about the emotional aspect of our wrestling," the Syracuse transfer added, "and he said he was going to kick us in the butt if we weren't ready."

"That was probably the biggest match of the day," Gable said of Ryan's victory. "Hamilton really never came close to scoring on us. You have to give (Ryan) a lot of credit for just standing up to Hamilton."

At 167 pounds, Iowa's Mark Reiland scored a 9-2 win over Bobby Thompson before Gable decided to make a couple of lineup changes.

At 177, junior Bart Cheloesvig was scratched from facing No. 4 Cyclone Matt Johnson, in favor of sophomore Keith Trammel. Trammel, who entered the match with a record of 11-5, was actually deadlocked with Johnson at 2-2 entering the final period. But Johnson finally came away with a 6-3 decision, giving the Cyclones their first points of the meet.

Another close match ensued at 190, where Cyclone Dan Troupe edged Hawkeye Travis Fiser by a count of 6-5 and at heavyweight, Gable inserted 190-pounder Pat Kelly in place of No. 7 John Oostendorp. Iowa State's Todd Kinney scored an 11-4 decision — the third in a row for the Cyclones — but it was too little too late.

"I have to admit my kids really took it to them today," Gable said. "We seemed to be the more aggressive team immediately. We changed the

The Hawkeyes (16-0-1) jumped all over the Cyclones (7-1) from the beginning, as Iowa prevailed in the first seven matches to score the initial 25 points of the meet.

At 118 pounds, Iowa sophomore Chad Zaputit may have set the tone for the day, as he scored a two-point take-down over Cyclone Eric Akin, just as the opening whistle had sounded.

Zaputit continued to be the aggressor throughout the match, as he raised his record to 20-1 with a 15-6 win against Akin. The victory was Zaputit's second in as many matches with Akin, whom he defeated 10-5 at the Northern Open back on Nov. 24.

"I felt confident going into the match and I got a quick take-down, which always helps," Zaputit said. "I just tried to get back to good wrestling."

Iowa gets sick and tired of losing

By Brian Gaul
 The Daily Iowan

The tipoff of the Iowa-Ohio State women's basketball game took place at 11 a.m., but the early starting time wasn't the reason the Hawkeyes were a tired team Sunday.

"We were tired of losing," Iowa coach C. Vivian Stringer said after her team defeated the Buckeyes, 88-68, for only its second win in the last seven games.

"This team said, 'We're tired of losing. Let's determine some things for ourselves,'" Stringer said. "I really think they came together. We hit some baskets that we needed to hit and made some free throws down the stretch."

Stephanie Schueler led the Hawkeyes with 20 points, including a three-pointer which tied the game at 61, and six assists as Iowa won their second straight game in Columbus and their third straight overall against their long-time rivals.

The Hawkeyes beat the Buckeyes twice last year, including a 71-48 decision in Columbus. Iowa hadn't won on the Buckeyes' home court in seven previous attempts.

The Hawkeyes improved to 8-6 overall and 2-3 in league games. Ohio State fell to 5-10 overall and 2-3 in the Big Ten.

The game time was moved up from 2 p.m. to 11 a.m. because the game was broadcast as Sportschannel Chicago's Big Ten women's basketball game of the week.

But it was about 30 minutes later, basketball time, before the slumbering Hawkeyes finally awoke. Iowa trailed by 11 points at halftime, 46-35, and by five with 10:48 remaining before taking control.

Schueler hit a pair of three-pointers and Toni Foster scored nine of her 16 points in a 33-7 run as the Hawkeyes blew the game open in the final ten minutes.

Necole Tunsil's six-foot jumper gave Iowa its first lead of the second half, 63-61, with 8:36 remaining and free throws by Foster and Latonya Tate gave the

Red-hot Hoosiers ice already cold Hawks

By Brian Gaul
 The Daily Iowan

When Calbert Cheaney got hot, so did the Indiana basketball team.

Cheaney, a sophomore forward, recovered from a 1-for-7 shooting start to score 30 points and the third-ranked Hoosiers shot 77 percent in the second half to hand No. 24 Iowa its third straight defeat, 99-79, Saturday in Carver-Hawkeye Arena.

The Hoosiers, 14-1 overall and 4-0 in the league, won their 13th straight game and broke an 11-game home court winning streak for the Hawkeyes. Iowa fell to 13-5 overall and 2-4 in the Big Ten.

Indiana hit 14 of its first 15 shots of the second half, with Cheaney going 6-for-6 in that stretch, to break away from a 40-40 halftime tie and grab a 70-55 lead. The Hoosiers never looked back, building a 26-point lead at one point before settling for a 20-point victory.

"I called a timeout and told them to shoot better," Indiana coach Bobby Knight joked afterward about his team's second-half start. "So I think that's probably a result of good coaching that they shot that well."

Iowa coach Tom Davis had a different theory. "It just looked like we ran out of gas in the second half," Davis said. "We were almost exhausted and I think Indiana had a lot to do with that."

The Hoosiers defense was stingy throughout the game, holding Iowa to 44 percent shooting in each half, and the offense finally got on track in the second period.

Knight said that his team executed better against Iowa's full-court pressure in the second half, which accounted for its improved shooting. The Hoosiers shot only 43 percent and turned the ball over 16 times in the first half.

"We had 16 (first-half) turnovers, which is more than we've been averaging by three or four per game," Knight said. "The turnovers we had were as a result of the press and as a result of our not completing things at the end of the press."

The Hoosiers did complete things early in the second half, when they converted numerous fast breaks into easy layups or short jump shots. Davis said that his

Iowa swims past Nebraska

By Michael Watkins
 The Daily Iowan

Before his men's swimming and diving confrontation with visiting Nebraska Friday evening at the Field House Pool, coach Glenn Patton said that he anticipated the contest would go "right down to the wire."

It looked as if his expectations would materialize when the Cornhuskers took the opening event — the 400 medley relay — in 3:23.16, giving Nebraska an early lead.

But those thoughts were quickly put to rest as the Hawkeyes posted wins in the next three events to gain an 18 point advantage, an advantage they would never relinquish en route to a 142-101 trouncing of 14th-ranked Nebraska.

"After Nebraska took the opening relay, we were really second-guessing ourselves as to why we didn't put Artur (Wojdat) in that race," said Patton, now 8-3 versus Nebraska as coach of the Hawkeyes. "Our guys swam really well and our training camps for both the swimmers and divers really paid off."

"Now, our focus moves on to the Big Tens, where our mission, as it has been all season, is to beat (defending champion) Michigan."

Iowa's 142 point total was their second highest of the season and can be attributed to the performances of several Hawkeye tankers, including triple-event winners Artur Wojdat and Tomasz Gawronski, who each captured two individual events and swam on the winning 400 freestyle relay to close out the meet.

Wojdat, winner of two bronze medals at the recently-held World Championships, raced to victories in the 50 freestyle in 20.88 and in the 100 freestyle in 45.31. Although he was pleased with both times, the seasoned competitor from Poland attributed his slower pace to the lack of time between this meet and the championships in Australia a week ago.

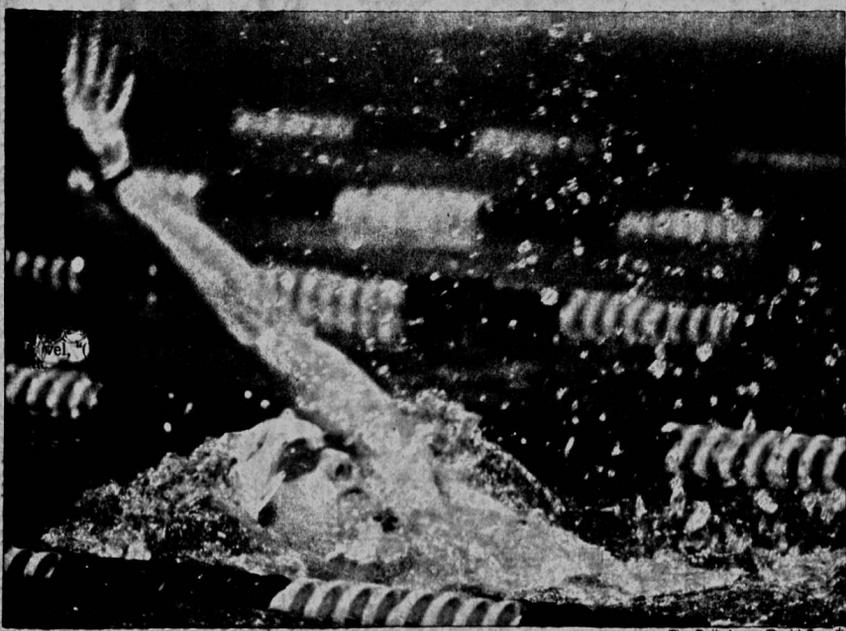

"My races were all right, but I expected faster times," Wojdat said. "I just returned from Australia Tuesday and I'm still trying to get over the jetlag from the 42-hour flight. But I am happy with the way I swam. I'm just glad to be back home."

Gawronski, senior team tri-captain, set the tone for the remainder of the meet with his commanding performance of 9:11.99 in the night's second event — the 1000 freestyle. He also won the 500 freestyle in 4:31.19.

In the 1000, the native of Szczecin, Poland took an early lead and raced to victory, finishing within a minute of his Field House Pool record of 9:10.86. His nearest competitor came in more than 15 seconds behind.

"They were good times, which I was very happy with, especially after such a tough training camp," Gawronski said. "I went out a bit too fast in the first 500 yards of the 1000 and had to pace myself at the end."

"But, in the 500, I felt more secure and went after a negative split so that the second half of my race was faster than the first half. Overall, I was happy with the way I swam."

Also contributing to the Hawkeye victory was freshman diver B.J. Blair who captured both boards ahead of a tough challenger from Nebraska. In the 1-meter event, Blair totaled 322.20 points, 27 ahead of the Cornhuskers' Matt Eastin. Hawkeye senior Jamie Morrow came in third with 282.795 points.

On the 3-meter board, Blair again outdistanced the pack, scoring 322.35 points. Eastin again finished second while Hawkeyes Mark Brown and Mark Booth placed fourth and fifth, respectively.

Hawkeyes a seven-point edge, 70-63, with 6:33 left.

Defensively, Iowa finally found the solution for the inside-outside combination of Stacie Bruce and Cheryl Perozek. Both were shut out in the final ten minutes as the Iowa defense held Ohio State to one field goal in that span of time.

Bruce, a starting guard who recently regained her academic eligibility after sitting out the first semester, finished with 19 points and ten rebounds. Perozek, who hit her first four three-pointers of the game, missed her last three three-point attempts and finished with 12 points.

Both players helped the Buckeyes open up a lead late in the first half. Perozek hit a three-pointer and Bruce rebounded a missed free throw and hit a layup to help the Buckeyes turn a 23-22 deficit into a 28-25 advantage.

Bruce then hit a four-foot shot from the baseline and Perozek nailed another three-pointer as the Buckeyes built the lead to 41-31 late in the first half.

Trailing 46-35 at halftime, Iowa opened the second half with an 8-2 spurt to cut the Buckeye lead to five, 48-43, but Ohio State built it back to eight when Perozek hit her fourth three-pointer of the contest.

Virgie Dillingham and LaTonya Tate then hit consecutive outside shots to cut the margin to four with 13:37 remaining, and the Hawkeyes made their game-winning run moments later.

The game marked the debut of UCLA transfer Molly Tideback, who became eligible to play for the Hawkeyes last Tuesday but was suspended for Friday night's game for breaking a team rule.

Tideback scored eight points and grabbed four rebounds but played only 13 minutes because of foul trouble. She fouled out with six minutes left.

"I think there are even greater things in her future," Stringer said. "When she gets to where she can play longer minutes and her teammates get to where they're comfortable with the her, it's going to allow Toni Foster, Andrea Harmon and Virgie Dillingham to be a lot freer (inside)."

"I want to believe that better things are ahead. Certainly things are better now than what had preceded us prior to this particular visit to Ohio State."

Hawkeyes fall to Hoosiers
DI wire services

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. — Indiana women's basketball coach Jim Izard earned his 200th career victory with a 74-59 win over No. 20 Iowa Friday night.

The loss dropped Iowa's record to 7-6 overall, 1-3 in the Big Ten Conference while Indiana climbed to 9-4, 1-2 in the Big Ten.

The win was Izard's first victory over the Hawkeyes and the first Indiana win over Iowa in 11 meetings. The last Hoosier win was a 63-48 victory in Bloomington during the 1984-85 season.

Hawkeyes

team's fatigue was also a factor early in the second half.

"Our defense was decent in the first half and kept their shooting percentage down to a respectable level," Davis said. "But in the second half they were outstanding in their execution. I don't think there's any question we weren't aggressive and fatigue was a factor in the second half."

The Hoosiers started quickly, holding Iowa without a field goal for five minutes and blowing out to an 11-2 lead behind seven points from forward Eric Anderson.

But James Moses and Acie Earl combined to score 11 of Iowa first 12 points, including six in an 8-0 spurt, as the Hawkeyes drew within 13-12 midway through the first half.

The Hawkeyes and Hoosiers then exchanged spurts. Indiana grabbed a 22-12 lead on a 9-0 run but a 14-4 Iowa run moments later allowed the Hawkeyes to pull even at 28 with 4:33 left in the half.

A technical foul on the Iowa bench helped the Hoosiers regain as much as a four-point lead late in the half, but Kevin Smith drew the Hawkeyes even again with a running three-pointer at the half-time buzzer.

Davis was perplexed by the technical foul. The Iowa coach said he asked the officials who drew the technical foul but did not receive a definite answer.

"At the half, I was asking about the technical, who it was on,"

Davis said. "They just said, 'The bench. The bench. The bench was up.' That was a true undesignated technical foul."

In the opening minutes of the second half, the Hawkeyes took their first and only lead of the game, 48-46, on a Rodell Davis lay-in and a free throw by Earl, but they could not keep up with the torrid Indiana shooting.

Knight's team scored nine straight points to take a 55-48 lead with 16:11 remaining, then built it to 72-55 with an 11-0 spurt two minutes later.

Indiana held Iowa scoreless for two 2-minute spans later in the half and ran out to a 26-point lead before Iowa chipped the final margin to 20.

Earl led Iowa with 18 points, and Val Barnes and Rodell Davis added 15 and 14, respectively. Four Hoosiers scored in double-figures, including Cheaney, Anderson (14), freshman guard Damon Bailey (11) and senior guard Lyndon Jones (10).

Davis said he will give his team three days off before they begin to prepare for a meeting with Illinois in Champaign, Ill., Jan. 28. The game will be televised by ESPN as part of the network's "Big Monday" tripleheader.

"It's a good time to take a rest," Davis said. "We'll take the next three days off and let them take part in regular student activities. I think we just have to get them regrouped now and get them back to the things they were doing before."

More bad news for exiled Marinovich

DI wire services

NEWPORT BEACH, Calif. — Southern Cal's Todd Marinovich, one of the nation's top college quarterbacks, was arrested Sunday for investigation of cocaine possession.

Marinovich, 21, was carrying about a gram of the drug when he was arrested at 4:15 a.m. while walking down a street in this coastal city 40 miles southeast of Los Angeles, police spokesman Mike McDonough said.

Marinovich was suspended for one week during the season for cutting class, but started 11 of 13 games for Southern Cal. The Trojans went 8-4-1 and finished 20th in the final Associated Press poll.

Marinovich got into a shouting match with Smith after being replaced by Shane Foley in the fourth quarter of Southern Cal's 17-16 loss to Michigan State in the John Hancock Bowl.

Langeloh named Hula Bowl MVP

HONOLULU — At first, John Langeloh thought the Hula Bowl official was joking.

"A guy came up to me on the sideline and said you're the MVP, and I was like, 'What?' the Michigan State kicker said. "As a kicker, you don't hear that — even in the NFL."

To his surprise, Langeloh's Hula Bowl record-tying three field goals made him the offensive most valuable player in Saturday's all-star game for seniors. He kicked field goals of 31, 42 and 22 yards as the East beat the West 23-10 in a game with few big plays and little drama.

Langeloh said his job was made easier by an agreement that teams wouldn't rush punts, field goals or extra points.

"I knew they wouldn't be coming, and that helped," Langeloh said. "You've only got two or three days to work on the hold and snap, and you can't get them down in that amount of time."

The East offensive line controlled the line of scrimmage, allowing Michigan's Jarrod Bunch to rush for 66 yards and Howard Griffith of Illinois to gain 58 yards.

"That's what won the game," said Virginia quarterback Shawn Moore.

The West scored its only points in the second quarter, when Colorado's Michael Pritchard coasted 26 yards on a reverse for a touchdown and California's Robbie Keen made a 25-yard field goal.

Golf Magazine honors Amana course

Golf Magazine has named the Amana Colonies Golf Course as one of the "top ten best new public-access courses" in the country. The honor was bestowed by Golf's Senior Editor, Brian McCallen, and appeared in the magazine's February issue.

After evaluating the 1990 opening season, the Amana Colonies Course recently completed facility improvements costing approximately $200,000. The improvements, which took place in October and November, were focused on turf quality and the overall course enhancement.

The main expenditure was consumed in the completion of concrete cart paths. The continuous path now winds approximately seven miles throughout the course. The remaining expenditures entailed the placement of sod, filling of washouts, overseeding, and brush removal throughout the woods.

"We are extremely pleased with the recognition by Golf Magazine, especially after only one open season," said Larry Hartzell, Director of Golf and Vice President of the Company. "Our staff is excited about the coming season, and we are all anxious for the snow to melt and for our customers to see the improvements we have made."

Iowa's Katie Decker en route to her 5:14.67 1st place finish in the 500 yard freestyle during the Hawkeyes' rout of Illinois State Friday at the Fieldhouse Pool.

Hawks leave home with a smile

By Michael Watkins
The Daily Iowan

In their last home dual meet of the season, a 188-79 victory over the Illinois State Redbirds, the Hawkeye women's swimming and diving team left little doubt that their goal for the remainder of the year is to swim well while giving some of the unsung team members the opportunity to shine in various events.

"I was really pleased with the way the entire team swam," said head coach Peter Kennedy, now 8-1-1 in dual competition on the year. "We wanted to save some people for tomorrow's (Saturday) meet against Northern Illinois as well as rest some people who are getting over the flu and minor injuries."

Women's Swimming

At the forefront of those swimmers who had gone somewhat unrecognized this season was sophomore freestyler Tracy Golden, who swam the anchor for the Hawkeyes on the winning 400 medley relay team, won the 100 freestyle in 53.67, and finished a close second behind Big Ten champion Colleen Thome in the 50 freestyle.

"Tracy Golden had an outstanding meet," Kennedy said. "We noticed during training camp that she was starting to break through, and to beat (Shelley) Miyamoto and (Colleen) Thome in the 100 was outstanding. Before this meet, she had never swam faster than 54.80."

Also having a big night was freshman Allison Pennington, who captured both the 100 and 200 breaststroke events, edging teammate Chrissy Eck by less than a second in the 100. In addition, she also swam a lifetime best 4:33.38 in exhibition in the 400 individual medley.

In an effort to curb the Hawkeyes' already dominant score, as well as give different people opportunities in various races, halfway through the meet Kennedy swam the regular event participants in exhibition.

His plans, however, did not stop Iowa's accumulation of points as backup swimmers Katie Decker, Meredith Lewis and Beth Janis all either finished first or second in four of the last five events.

In the 200 backstroke, Lewis, a sophomore from Virginia, placed second behind ISU's Jenni Chapman with a time of 2:17.64, followed by teammate Tracy Junker in third. Lewis also finished second behind Chapman in the 400 individual medley with a time of 4:43.71. Pennington and sophomore distance swimmer Angie Todt swam the event in exhibition.

Decker, a junior from Palatine, Ill., also broke through against the Redbirds with a win for the Hawkeyes in the 500 freestyle in 5:14.67. Teammates Meikka Olson, Pam Capin and Kristin Wallace all swam the event in exhibition.

With teammates Liane Burton, Nicole Widmeyer and Eck all swimming exhibition for the Hawkeyes, Janis, a junior from Anchorage, Alaska, took second in the 100 butterfly with a time of 1:00.81.

On the boards, junior Katy Ketoff again mastered both diving events with scores of 285.30 in 1-meter competition and 286.50 in the 3-meter event. In her final home performance, senior diver Debbie Wirth took third on both boards with teammate Kim Yaeger a close fourth.

"It's a little bit upsetting being here for the last meet, but I've had fun," said Wirth, a 1990 NCAA championship qualifier in zone diving. "It's been a great four years."

In Saturday's meet with the Huskies of Northern Illinois, the Hawkeyes again dominated the competition with a 167-118 victory. Again, in an opportunity to rest the team for the upcoming Big Ten's, Kennedy swam people in different events, and again they produced for some big results.

"Wherever we could, we swam the frontrunners exhibition and gave the other swimmers an opportunity to see what they could do," Kennedy said.

Again, Ketoff took the 1-meter diving event with a score of 294.60, followed by Yaeger in second and Wirth in third. She would have also captured the 3-meter board with a score of 278.40, but dove exhibition as the Hawkeyes had already sealed the victory to go 9-1-1 on the season.

Senior freestyler Colleen Thome again took the 50 freestyle in 25.10. She also won the 100 freestyle in 55.16, edging teammate Melissa Eberhart by two seconds.

In the relay events, the Hawkeyes took first and second in the 200 medley relay.

Men's track places 15 in Cedar Falls

By Scott Garringer
The Daily Iowan

Three days ago, Iowa coach Ted Wheeler was trying to think of ways to speed up the progress of his indoor track team, considering they had only been practicing a week.

Saturday, they showed they are doing just fine.

In Cedar Falls, against Northern Iowa, Drake, Iowa State, and Illinois State, the Hawkeyes had 15 placemen, including first-place finishes by James Armstrong in the 55-meter hurdles and Darren Smith in the long jump. Smith added a third place finish in the 55 meters in 6.49 seconds.

"We weren't surprised," said Wheeler. "We knew we were capable of very good things."

The hurdles, as expected, seemed to be Iowa's strong spot. The Hawkeyes took three of the top five spots.

Armstrong's 7.38 seconds was followed by Gary Falls, fourth in 7.73; and Rajeev Balkrishnan, fifth in 7.76.

Balkrishnan, a freshman, also took third in the 200 meters with a time of 23.02. Falls took third in the 600 meters with a time of 1:19.56 and teamed with Matthew Hager, Jerry Fisher and Audwin Patterson to take third in the mile relay.

The Joens brothers, Doug and Jason, left their mark by placing third with 47 feet, 11 inches and sixth with 40-8, respectively, in the shot put. In the pole vault, the Hawkeyes took two of the top four places. Chad Ohly placed second with 14 feet, 9 inches and Richard Palvel placed fourth with the same height.

Also scoring for the Hawkeyes were: Kurt Friedrich, fifth in the long jump in 21-3.5; Fisher, fifth in the 55 meters in 6.50; and Brian Thomas, fifth in the 600 in 1:20.92.

Wheeler heaped praise on all of his team members.

"Everyone did a wonderful job," the coach said. "Armstrong was outstanding in the hurdles and Smith was excellent in the long jump. Falls also had a very good 600m."

Wheeler said the performances were gratifying considering this early point in the season.

NHL's best rack up the points

The Associated Press

CHICAGO — Wayne Gretzky has scored more goals than anyone in NHL All-Star game history. He's just not sure how long his record will last.

Why? Because the games are turning into offensive showcases.

On Saturday, Vincent Damphousse had four goals in the Campbell Conference's 11-5 rout of the Wales in the All-Star game.

It was the second highest scoring All-Star game, following last year's record 12-7 Wales Conference romp. And, the three top-scoring All-Star games have taken place in the last three years.

"I'm very proud of the record," Gretzky said after scoring his 11th All-Star goal to break a tie with Gordie Howe. "It's always fun being involved in a high-scoring game. But it could go down in two years."

Gretzky was probably thinking of Mario Lemieux, who has spent the first half of the season recovering from a bad back. Lemieux has nine goals in five All-Star games.

Until Saturday, Lemieux and Gretzky were the only players to score four goals in an All-Star game. Gretzky did it in '83 and Lemieux did it last year.

And Damphousse makes three. His performance earned him the most valuable player award in his first All-Star appearance.

"Just to make the All-Star Game was a dream come true," said Damphousse, a left wing with the Toronto Maple Leafs.

To make MVP was even more

Associated Press

astounding. "I feel like I'm on top of the world now," he said.

Things were different for Damphousse at the start of the game.

"I stumbled and was so nervous," he said. "It was like my feet were in cement."

Campbell Conference coach John Muckler noticed.

"In his first shift he was so nervous, I didn't think he'd get through it," Muckler said. "Then he got untracked."

Damphousse, the Maple Leafs' leading scorer, found his range with a goal midway through the first period.

"I was ecstatic," he said.

And after three more in the third period?

"They said I was the leading candidate (for the MVP award) going into the third period," said Chicago's Jeremy Roenick, who had a goal and two assists and played a strong all-around game.

"But it went where it was deserved. How can you beat four goals? He is a good guy, a great player and shows up every night for a team that's not so good."

While Gretzky, the NHL's all-time leading scorer, added another record to his growing list and Damphousse had the time of his life, it wasn't much fun for the goaltenders.

"There were too many two-on-ones and three-on-ones," said Wales Conference goalie Patrick Roy.

Hawkeyes place four at top

By Scott Garringer
The Daily Iowan

Eighteen teams, including powerhouses Tennessee, Purdue, and Michigan State, made Friday's Purdue Indoor Track Invitational a tough early-season test for the Iowa women's track team. Ten top-three finishes made it a success.

The Hawkeyes left West Lafayette, Ind., with four first-place finishes in this non-scoring meet. Iowa coach Jerry Hassard seemed happy with the first competition of the young season.

"We had some good performances, although there were a couple of rough spots," Hassard said. "It gave us a chance to see where we need the most work."

Several Hawkeyes found success, including Tami Hoskins, 800 meters, two minutes, 16.24 seconds; Jennifer Brower, 5000 meters, 17:06.0; Lisa Van Steenwyk, shot put, 45 feet, 8.5 inches; and Nancy Tessmer, high jump, 5 feet, 7.75 inches.

All four took first place in their respective events and had strong backup performances. Taking second were Laura Kriener in the shot put with a throw of 44-4.75 and the 3200 meter relay team of Tracy Dahl, Christine Salsberry, Tina Stec and Hoskins. Their time was 8:59.96.

"We had some very good splits in this event, especially for this early in the season," said Hassard.

Taking third were Stec in the 1000 meters with a time of 2:55.08, Big Ten Champion Karen Layne in the 600 meters with a time of 1:36.15 and Salsberry in the mile with a time of 4:59.57. Both Salsberry and Layne were pressed by teammates for these honors.

In the mile, Jennifer Johnson ran a personal-best 5:04.70 to take fourth, and in the 600 meters Layne was followed by two Hawkeyes — Beverly Powell and Angela Chadwick — within a second.

Bar brawl lands Clemens in jail

By Susan Fahlgren
The Associated Press

HOUSTON — Roger Clemens' agent says the incident that led to the arrest of the two-time Cy Young Award winner at a Houston nightclub was "an unfortunate misunderstanding."

Clemens, 28, and his 39-year-old brother, Gary, each remained free on $2,000 bond Sunday after being arrested for aggravated assault on a police officer during a Saturday morning disturbance at the Bayou Mama's nightclub.

The pair had a preliminary court hearing Sunday in 232nd State District Court. Harris County assistant district attorney Henry Lawrence said if convicted of the third-degree felony charges, the brothers face 2 to 10 years in prison and a fine of up to $10,000.

Houston police spokesman Dan Turner said the pair were involved in a shouting match with other nightclub patrons. When off-duty Officer L. Oviedo, working as a club security guard, attempted to break up the group, the brothers allegedly got into a wrestling match with the officer.

"Gary pushed the officer at that time, and the officer had to take his attention from the group," Turner said. "He attempted to arrest Gary Clemens and Roger Clemens attempted to defend his brother."

Sgt. C.J. Grysen said that as Oviedo tried to arrest Gary, Roger apparently "jumped on the officer's back and choked the officer." Grysen said three more officers — another off-duty officer and two uniformed patrol officers — joined the fray before the brothers were subdued.

But Alan Hendricks, one of the pitcher's agents, questioned the report.

"There's no question Roger's denying that he was involved in any chokehold of an officer," Hendricks said. "What I heard was when the officer was scuffling with Roger's brother, Roger patted him on the back and tried to resolve it that way, to try to get the officer to resist this confrontation."

"It was all an unfortunate misunderstanding, and it will all be resolved quickly. We have a number of witnesses that have said they will testify on Roger's behalf that he never did anything but tap the officer on the shoulder and pat him on the back, so we are certain it will be brought to a powerful and proper resolution."

Both men spent about 11 hours in jail Saturday after the 2:30 a.m. EST arrest. The brothers later hurried past reporters, going out a back door of a Houston Police Department command station and into a waiting vehicle with the pitcher's wife, Debbie, and a bonds-

man. Neither Roger Clemens, a resident of the Houston suburb of Katy, nor his brother could be reached for comment.

Red Sox general manager Lou Gorman declined to comment immediately. John Harrington, who represents majority owner Jean Yawkey, said he doubted the club would take any action right away.

"The club is always in an awkward position on matters like this," Harrington said.

Clemens, a three-time 20-game winner, was 21-6 in 1990 with a 1.93 ERA. Despite missing three weeks with a shoulder injury, he helped lead the Red Sox to the American League East playoffs before being thrown out of the fourth game for yelling obscenities at umpire Terry Cooney.

That Grammar Guy

By Jake Stigers
The Daily Iowan

Gentle Communicators, The bombing has begun, and you may soon find yourselves discussing and analyzing the myriad implications and aspects of Operation Desert Storm — just as the news media do. I therefore submit to you a list of periodically useful vocabulary words pertaining to physical activity among those involved in the war.

Edacity is the state of having a huge appetite. Many soldiers will demonstrate manifest edacity when they return to the United States after a steady diet of those infamous military rations.

Nictitation is winking. It is perhaps difficult to interpret an Operation Desert Storm soldier's fit of nictitation: Is it caused by gender integration in the military or simply by sand-laden wind?

Oscitancy is the act of yawning or the state of being drowsy or inattentive. With the onset of wartime activity, instances of oscitancy borne of boredom are perhaps on the decline.

Pogonotrophy is the act of growing a beard. As I have never seen a picture of a bearded soldier, I surmise that pogonotrophy is a punishable offense in the military.

Poliosis is premature graying of the hair. I would not be surprised to learn about an epidemic of Deserts in the desert?

poliosis among the parents of military personnel.

Saccade is a rapid movement of the eye as it jumps between focal points. Fighter pilots need superior, controlled saccadic abilities.

Stertor is the act or sound of snoring. I imagine most married soldiers would gladly welcome spousal sterter in place of life in the desert.

Xerostomia is abnormal dryness of the mouth. In the parching desert, xerostomia is probably a way of life.

By the way, desert is the dry, barren sandy region that is now home to many U.S. soldiers. It is also a deserved (one s, just like desert) punishment. To some, Saddam is getting his just deserts for exhibiting naked aggression. (Really though, what's so scary about an army of nudists?) Desert, of course, is the often sweet food served at the end of a meal.

Saddam Hussein

Until next time, happy communicating.

Costner and Roberts among Globe winners

By John Horn
The Associated Press

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. — The epic western "Dances With Wolves" triumphed at the 1991 Golden Globe awards Saturday night, winning three trophies in a ceremony darkened by concern about the Persian Gulf war.

Kevin Costner's first directorial effort was named best dramatic motion picture. He took the directing trophy, and Michael Blake won for best screenplay.

The romantic comedy "Green Card" was chosen best comic or musical motion picture and its star, Gerard Depardieu, was honored as best actor in that category.

Julia Roberts won best actress in a musical or comic motion picture for "Pretty Woman." Kathy Bates took the best dramatic actress trophy for her portrayal as an obsessed fan of a romance writer in "Misery."

Jeremy Irons, starring in "Reversal of Fortune" as Klaus Von Bulow, was named best dramatic actor.

The best foreign language film Globe went to France's "Cyrano De Bergerac," which stars Depardieu in the title role.

"The Godfather Part III" led nominations in movie categories with seven but came away empty-handed.

The black-tie crowd gathered under a cloud of war for the Hollywood Foreign Press Association awards at the Beverly Hilton Hotel.

Robin Williams, Faye Dunaway and Costner passed through metal detectors with other celebrities, bomb-sniffing dogs inspected photographers' gear and security guards were stationed at doors.

"I know we all pray for peace tonight," host Dana Delany said in opening the show.

NBC's "Cheers" was a big television winner. Kirstie Alley won for best comic television actress, Ted Danson for best actor in a comic or musical series and the show itself for best musical or comic TV series.

David Lynch's quirky television drama "Twin Peaks" won three prizes, including best dramatic series, best television actor for Kyle MacLachlan and best supporting television actress for Piper Laurie.

Charles Durning won best supporting TV actor for "The Kennedys of Massachusetts." The war-themed "Decoration Day" won for best TV mini-series or movie.

In movie competition, Whoopi Goldberg was honored for best supporting actress for her depiction of a low-rent psychic in "Ghost." Bruce Davison won best supporting actor for his portrayal of a compassionate friend to his dying lover in the AIDS drama "Longtime Companion."

Jack Lemmon got the special Cecil B. DeMille Award for contributions to entertainment.

The Globes are considered an early indicator of how the Academy Awards may go later in the year.

Rocker Jon Bon Jovi collected a Globe for best original song for "Blaze of Glory" from "Young Guns II." Best original score went to "The Sheltering Sky."

Susan Sarandon, nominated for best dramatic actress for her depiction of an earthy waitress in "White Palace," announced that because of the Persian Gulf war she would not attend.

"I am sorry I am unable to join my colleagues at the Golden Globe Awards. I am honored to have been nominated," Sarandon said in a statement.

"However, due to the war in the Persian Gulf, I feel it is best to remain close to home where I will continue my work with the Military Family Support Network in its efforts for peace and to bring our troops safely home."

An opening production number, which was to be performed by singer Nell Carter, was canceled "due to recent world events," the Hollywood Foreign Press Association said.

Andy Garcia; Macaulay Culkin, the young star of "Home Alone," Bruce Willis and his wife, Demi Moore; Anjelica Huston; Al Pacino; and Jeremy Irons were among the stars who attended the ceremony.

Unlike the Oscars, the 86 voters of the association split films into two categories, dramatic and musical or comic. In all, there are 13 categories for motion pictures and 11 awards, somewhat less closely watched, for television.

Among the nominations for "The Godfather Part III" was best dramatic movie and best dramatic actor for Pacino. Francis Ford Coppola was nominated as best director and was a co-nominee, along with Mario Puzo, for best writer.

Another Mafia drama, "GoodFellas," got five nominations including best dramatic movie. "Dances with Wolves" got six nominations.

Actor Robert Young attempts suicide

The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — Actor Robert Young, best known for his caring roles in the popular television series "Father Knows Best" and "Marcus Welby, M.D.," attempted suicide at his home a week ago, sheriff's deputies said Sunday.

The 83-year-old actor ran a hose inside his car from the exhaust pipe Jan. 12, said Sgt. Denise Jezak in Malibu.

Authorities were alerted by a tow truck service that had been called by Young to start his car. When the driver noticed the hose, he refused to start the car and called authorities, Jezak said.

"Mr. Young had been drinking, and he admitted that he had tried to end his life," Jezak said. Young has had a history of depression and alcoholism.

Young's 81-year-old wife, Elizabeth, was at home at the time of the incident, Jezak said.

"He did state to her he wanted to end his life," Jezak said. "But she didn't take him seriously and went to bed."

The actor voluntarily entered the Thousand Oaks Charter Hospital, a psychiatric treatment facility, Jezak said. It was not known if Young remained hospitalized Sunday.

Calls to Young's agent early Sunday went unanswered.

Young's films include "The Mortal Storm," which co-starred James Stewart. He starred in the family comedy "Father Knows Best" from 1954 to 1963 and portrayed a dedicated doctor in "Marcus Welby, M.D." from 1969 to 1976.

At Arizona concert, Simon backs holiday

The Associated Press

PHOENIX — Pop singer Paul Simon is making a donation to Arizona's effort to get a paid holiday honoring Martin Luther King Jr.

"People around the country are puzzled. You'll probably have to straighten that out," Simon told King Day supporters before his concert Saturday night.

On Sunday, Arizona celebrated an unpaid holiday honoring the slain civil rights leader. The federal government and most states will have a paid holiday Monday.

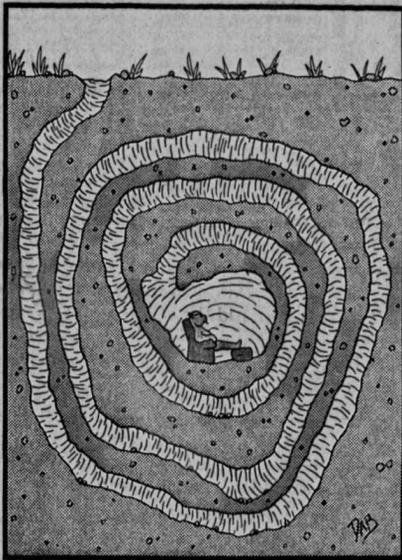

Simon had said he would donate at least $15,000 in proceeds from his concert here to the effort to get a paid holiday in Arizona.

In November, Arizona voters rejected two measures that would have created the paid holiday. Since then, the state has felt some backlash, including the cancellation of some conventions and a proposal by the National Football League to move the 1993 Super Bowl from Tempe.

The state legislature is attempting either to pass a law creating the holiday itself or referring it again to voters in November 1992.

Simon also said that he knows of no boycott of Arizona by performers as a result of the King Day issue, as has been reported.

Miami's Randal Hill makes a first-down catch for the NFC as Florida's Richard Fain makes the stop for the AFC in its 38-28 Senior Bowl win Saturday in Mobile, Ala.

'Bama QB leads AFC to 38-28 Senior Bowl win

The Associated Press

MOBILE, Ala. — Alabama's Gary Hollingsworth engineered three first-quarter scoring drives that gave the AFC an early lead it never relinquished in a 38-28 victory over the NFC in Saturday's Senior Bowl.

The AFC led by 10 or more points throughout the game after building a 17-0 lead.

Hollingsworth threw a 21-yard touchdown pass to LSU's Harvey Williams late in the opening period after his passing set up a 1-yard touchdown run by Penn State's Gary Brown and a 28-yard field goal by Alabama's Philip Doyle.

Two other AFC quarterbacks also threw for touchdowns as the trio outdid two potential first-round draft choices for the NFC — Dan McGwire of San Diego State and Brett Favre of Southern Mississippi.

Rice's Donald Hollis hit Tennessee's Alvin Harper on a 54-yard scoring pass in the second quarter and Louisville's Browning Nagle connected with Harper on a 38-yard scoring pass in the third as the AFC reached the middle of the third quarter before being forced to punt.

The game was played on a water-logged field following an overnight rain, and more rain began falling again early in the fourth quarter.

Hollis also scored a touchdown on a 17-0 sneak.

The NFC's scoring came on a 2-yard run by Auburn's Stacy Danley and McGwire's 7-yard pass to Miami's Randal Hill in the second quarter, on a 1-yard run by Ricky Watters of Notre Dame in the third quarter and McGwire's 15-yard pass to Oklahoma's Adrian Cooper with 5:54 to play.

The McGwire to Cooper score came after UCLA's Scott Miller recovered a fumbled punt by Williams on the AFC 19.

Hollingsworth, who completed 7 of 16 passes for 136 yards, gave the AFC a scoring shot on the first series of the game when he hit Tennessee's Vince Moore for 30 yards on the game's first play. That drive bogged down at the NFC 20.

Hollingsworth then engineered scoring drives on the next three possessions. His 40-yard pass to Harper set up Brown's touchdown and a 21-yard pass to Jackson State's Tim Barnett set up the Doyle field goal.

His touchdown pass to LSU's Williams came on the pass that set up Texas A&M's William Thomas sacked Favre and forced a fumble he recovered on the NFC 21.

Thomas also blocked a 35-yard field goal try by Iowa State's Jeff Shudak that could have cut the lead to seven points with 2:50 remaining.

UNLV stays unbeaten with Long Beach rout

The Associated Press

Jerry Tarkanian wanted UNLV to play hard even though the Runnin' Rebels led Long Beach State 53-25 at halftime.

"They're an incredible group of guys," Tarkanian said. "Usually when you're 28 points ahead at halftime, you let down. But they came out stronger the second half."

The top-ranked Rebels won 114-63 to increase their record to 13-0. The defending NCAA champions tied a school record with their 24th consecutive victory.

"I've told the guys they're going to have some tough games and I wanted them to develop the habit of playing hard all game," Tarkanian said.

The Rebels (13-0, 7-0 Big West) led 86-44 midway through the second half before Tarkanian pulled his starters. Larry Johnson scored 16 of his 23 points during that second-half run.

"They're just kind of awesome," Long Beach State coach Seth Greenberg said. "We tried to work against them in practice, but you just can't simulate their play. They're a great basketball team."

No. 2 Arkansas 98, Southern Methodist 70
Todd Day scored 21 points and Oliver Miller added 16 for Arkansas (17-1, 6-0 Southwest Conference).

No. 4 Ohio St. 89, Illinois 55

Reserve Thomas Hill scored 20 points and Christian Laettner added 18 as Duke (15-3, 4-1) stopped visiting North Carolina (13-2, 2-1) in the ACC. Providence 108, No. 13 Connecticut 102

Eric Murdock scored 22 of his 30 points in the second half as Providence (11-6, 2-4 Big East) overcame a 17-point deficit. The Huskies (12-4, 3-3) had not given up more than 100 points since Jim Calhoun became coach five years ago. Georgia Tech 78, No. 14 Virginia 51

Jon Barry scored 11 consecutive first-half points and Georgia Tech (10-5, 2-2 ACC) held Virginia (11-4, 3-2) scoreless for nearly nine minutes. No. 15 E. Tenn. St. 93, W. Carolina 76

Calvin Talford scored 30 points and pulled down 12 rebounds as East Tennessee State (14-1, 4-0 Southern Conference) won its 13th straight. No. 18 S. Mississippi 87, Memphis St. 77

Darrin Chancellor scored 18 of his 21 points in the second half for the Golden Eagles (10-1, 5-0). No. 19 Georgetown 56, Boston College 49

Alonzo Mourning returned from a nine-game absence from a foot injury and scored 10 points for Georgetown (11-4, 3-2 in the Big East). Freshman Charles Harrison scored all of his 16 points in the second half.

No. 20 LSU 87, Mississippi 71
Shaquille O'Neal had 32 points, 14 rebounds and 8 blocked shots for LSU (12-3, 5-2 SEC).

The Year in Photos

Second Annual Daily Iowan Photo Contest

The Daily Iowan invites all local photographers to submit their favorite photos from the past year for consideration in our second annual Year in Photos competition.

You may enter photos in black and white or color. Winning photos will be published in a special Daily Iowan supplement on Friday, April 12, 1991. All published photographers will be given a Daily Iowan "If it happens it's news to us" t-shirt. Fifty dollar cash prizes will be awarded to the photographers submitting the best black & white photo and best color photo.

Color: Entries must be submitted in slide form. We will publish the top three color entries and as many others as space permits in full color. The best color photo will be printed as the cover and the photographer will win $50.

Black & White: Entries must be printed no smaller than 3"x5". We will publish the top three black & white photos and as many others as space permits. The photographer with the best black & white photo will win $50.

Rules: All photos must be submitted to Cathy Witt, The Daily Iowan, Room 201 Communications Center, by noon, Friday, March 15. Place each photo of slide in an envelope with your name, address, phone number and a brief description. (All published photos will include the photographer's name and a brief description of the subject.) Judging will be done by The Daily Iowan staff. Winners will be contacted prior to the publication date. For additional information, contact Cathy Witt, 335-5794.

Nagle

By John P. Waterhouse
The Daily Iowan

In an often heated debate, UI students and Iowans protested Monday, Cong. Nagle said protesters engage in acts of civil disobedience to show their opposition to the war. Nagle (D-Iowa) said people gathered in a forum that although a vote was needed to bring the civil rights bill to the floor in the 1960s, things are different now. "The great danger is that people feel so strongly about one way or the other that neither side will ever... when in fact they can be compatible." "If the conduct its message, rather than those types of things productive," he said. "to see that what is is a campaign of peaceful defiance." "And it is probably today — on Martin Luther King's birthday — (to say) think civil disobedience is helpful in terms of persuasion. 3,000 or 4,000 people on the Golden Gate Bridge. It's the right to march, it doesn't cost the righteousness of which the demonstrators are attempting to accomplish." "When we occupy that people don't get letters... it protects them," Nagle said. "King, winner of the Nobel Peace Prize in 1964, pro-militarism in hopes of world for his children. Today, his quest is into the reality of war." "According to Iowan Tim Ovel, (King) was this war. He was a man who would help nations." "Bruce Nestor, a member of the U.S. Out, a Luther King would fight the war for social justices." "Later in the program the audience attacked the U.S. from going to Iraq." "Clara Oleson of Iowa with Iraq is an immoral and unjust result of 'terrorism'."
