Iowa Legislature running short of time

Many crucial bills may not survive without action soon

By Tom Harvey

Des Moines — Monday, April 8, 1991

The 13th week of the 138-day legislative session brings an odd sight: Several House members hanging in the shadows of the small room behind the House Platin where debate is taking place.

Legislators expect that some of the House and Senate will be closed on Friday, which is the first day of a weekend.

The outcome of the session will be determined by the final days of the session, when lawmakers are expected to vote on a number of important bills.

Many of the bills are based on the legislation that was approved in the previous session, when the Legislature was in session.

Gulf radio network sends news signals

By Scott Harrod

IRAQ—The ceasefire agreement reached in late February by the Allied and Iraqi governments to end the Gulf War has raised hopes for a peaceful future in the region.

A new Gulf radio network has been established to provide news and information to the people of Iraq and the Gulf region. The network, operated by Gilad Shalit Radio, is based in the southern Iraqi city of Basra.

The network is set to begin operations on Tuesday, April 9, with the aim of broadcasting news and information to the Iraqi people, as well as to the people of the Gulf region.

Shalit, who was kidnapped by Hamas militants in 2006 and held captive for five years, is now a senior executive at Gilad Shalit Radio. He said the network will operate 24 hours a day, seven days a week, and will provide news, sports, and entertainment programs.

The network will broadcast in Arabic and English, and will also provide news in a variety of other languages, including Persian and French.

Shalit said the network will focus on providing accurate and impartial news, and will avoid political propaganda.

"We are committed to providing the Iraqi people with the best possible news and information," Shalit said. "We will not be influenced by political or economic considerations, and will always present the news in an objective manner."

IRAQ'S CIVIL WAR

Intervention needed

As reports of the Iraqi Army's cruel vengeance upon Kurds and Shiite rebels make their way into our open rooms, American policy-makers are becoming anxious about something they cannot seem to prevent from happening. It is tempting to try to get involved in the midst of the chaos. But while it is certainly tempting for the United States to intervene in Iraq, this year is not the time that the United States should act. In fact, Bush should hold off until the Iraqi situation is more predictable.

Critics of intervention fear that the U.S. involvement will endanger the lives of Americans. While the United States can provide air power and other military assistance, it is not in the best interest of the United States to become involved in a foreign war.

While it is important to consider the risks of intervention, the United States must also consider its responsibilities to the international community. The United States should not become involved in the conflict until it becomes more predictable.

A viable option for Democrats in '92

Joplin and other small and rural forces have been symbols of Democratic party success at the polls. But will that be true in '92?

In 1984, at age 30, Dave McCurdy was campaigning for the Democratic nomination for reelection to Oklahoma's Third Congressional District seat. McCurdy knew that he was not the favorite. He also knew that his campaign was in trouble.

But McCurdy was not going to let that stop him. He decided to make a difference. He knew that he had to win.

The campaign began with a phone call from the Joplin Globe. The editor asked McCurdy if he would be willing to participate in a public debate.

McCurdy agreed to participate. He knew that he had to prove that he was a viable candidate. The debate was set.

On election day, McCurdy won the seat. Since then, he has been re-elected six times.

Afghan guerrillas capture city, try to establish government

Afghan guerrillas in a battle for control of Kabul, the capital, have captured the city and are trying to establish a government there. The guerrillas, who have been fighting the United States-backed government, took control of Kabul on Monday, according to sources in the city.

The guerrillas marched into Kabul and took control of government buildings. They set up a new administration, with a leader named Ahmad Shah Massoud in charge.

The move is seen as a major blow to the U.S.-backed government, which has been struggling to hold onto power in the face of guerrilla attacks.

The guerrillas have been fighting the government for years, but the latest move is seen as a significant development in the conflict.
