Railroad strike paralyzes much of America

Congress, administration work to implement speedy solution

By Roger Petterson
The Associated Press

Freight trains ground to a halt Wednesday in the first nationwide railroad strike in nearly a decade, halting rail shipping of everything from coal to car parts and interfering with most Amtrak trains and some commuter services.

"Anyone out there want to give me a lift to New York? I'm at the railway station," said Australian tourist James Veel, who was stranded at Raleigh, N.C.

In El Segundo, Calif., a freight train blocked an intersection for nearly 30 minutes after its crew stopped the train and walked away, police said.

Congress and the Bush administration sought a quick end to the strike, with talks focusing on a cooling-off period that would allow a new emergency board to make recommendations for settlement on a contract to replace one that expired in 1988.

House Majority Leader Richard Gephardt said late Wednesday that an agreement had been reached, but he didn't reveal details.

Freight carriers and unions scheduled no new talks after last-ditch bargaining failed to produce a settlement before the midnight Tuesday expiration of an initial cooling-off period. The strike waged by eight unions and honored by three others against 10 companies, started at 7 a.m.

The strike by 235,000 rail workers over wages, work rules and health-care costs could also idle as many as a half-million non-railroad workers.

"Three years without a contract is long enough," said Jim Davis, a coach repairer for Norfolk Southern in Roanoke, Va.

"If they can give management anywhere from $20,000 to $100,000 bonuses, why can't they give us something?" said Richard Zietler, a Conrail accountant in Philadelphia.

Earlier this week, the Bush administration said Congress should enact legislation to stop the strike and force the unions to accept the recommendations of a presidential emergency board that issued a report in January.

In Lincoln, Neb., state Sen. Spence Morrissey, a Burlington Northern track inspector, said the strikers believe the emergency board's recommendations are far from a compromise.

"They represent to us what is a 30 percent cut in real wages over the life of the contract along with decreased health benefits," he said.

House moves quickly to end national rail walkout

By Matt Yancy
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The House voted Wednesday night to put a quick end to a coast-to-coast strike by 235,000 rail workers that threatened an already weak economy.

The Senate was expected to follow suit immediately and put a bill on President Bush's desk that would establish a new emergency board to resolve disputes and impose a contract settlement on the two sides in 65 days.

By a 400-5 vote, the House approved a bill giving unions what one lawmaker called a "second chance" at challenging an earlier presidential emergency board's recommendations.

The administration and the nation's major freight railroads had asked Congress to impose the board's recommendations intact, but Democrats balked after union leaders complained it would lead to more than 20,000 job losses.

"It's my belief that this is an effective process that will terminate the strike, rationalize the differences and resolve the questions that vex us," said Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., chairman of the House Energy and Commerce Committee.

The bill puts into effect some provisions of the previous board's recommendations, such as a 3 percent pay increase in July and a requirement that rail workers start contributing to their health care insurance costs.

But it allows a reconsideration of ambiguities in the previous board's recommendations and bitter points of dispute remaining between the two sides.

Both the unions and the railroads would have to accept whatever the new panel recommends if they cannot agree among themselves. Unions could not resort to another strike and railroads could not engage in a lockout.

After its approval by the full committee, House Majority Leader Richard Gephardt, D-Mo., said he planned to bring the bill to the floor immediately.

It was unclear whether the president might have to wait until Thursday morning to get a bill cleared by both the House and Senate.

During the 65 days, neither side could change the working conditions of members of the eight unions that put up picket lines at 7 a.m. Wednesday. New contracts involving three other unions that earlier reached agreement with the companies would be allowed to go into effect.

The bill puts into effect the earlier presidential board's recommendations of a 3 percent wage increase in July and another 4 percent in 1994 and various lump sum payments.

Ralph Nader to speak on environment

By Eric Detwiler
The Daily Iowan

Consumer advocate Ralph Nader will present "Our Environment, Our Responsibility," Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the Iowa Memorial Main Ballroom.

Nader has been at the forefront of the battle for consumer protection for the last 25 years, and is the author of several books. He published "Unsafe at Any Speed" in 1965, which caused the subsequent recall of the General Motors' Corvair line of cars.

His lecture will be accompanied by what is being described as a "good-natured protest" by the Corvair Club, a group of Corvair owners opposed to Nader's conclusions about the vehicle.

According to advance reports, Club members will park 20-25 Corvairs on Philip G. Hubbard Park before Nader's lecture.

A graduate of Harvard Law School with distinction, Nader recently has been devoting his time to the reform of national insurance, the nuclear power industry and his writing.

In the past Nader has lobbied for the creation of consumer protection laws and agencies such as the Environmental Protection Agency and the Consumer Product Safety Commission.

His most recent publication, "The Big Boys: Power and Position in American Business," was co-authored by William Tyler in 1986.

Nader's presentation is sponsored by the UI Lecture Committee.

Regents OK closing of Daum, raise housing rates 7.7 percent

Instead of students, Daum Residence Hall will be housing offices and university programs next year as the Iowa state Board of Regents approved closing the facility at their meeting Wednesday in Iowa City.

The regents approved the UI's proposal to close Daum Residence Hall next year and increased residence hall rates by 7.7 percent.

The temporary closing of Daum and Currier Food Service is due to the decline in freshman enrollment and university space needs. Administrators said no structural

UI debaters take national honors

By Chris Pothoven
The Daily Iowan

UI debaters took home a third-place finish and three of the "Top Ten Speakers" awards recently at the National Debate Tournament.

The debate team of juniors Nathan Coco and Charles Smith finished third in the semifinal round of the tournament held at Trinity University, San Antonio, Texas, April 5-9. Placing in the "sweet sixteen" was the team of sophomore Omar Guevara and junior Randal Sandler.

Iowa also won three of the "Top Ten Speakers" awards, with Guevara in 4th place, Smith in 7th place and Coco in 9th place.

David Hingstman, coach of the two teams, said he was quite happy with the results.

"We were very pleased," he said. "It was better than we could reasonably expect."

He was especially pleased with the top ten finishers from the UI, which he said was somewhat rare.

"It's unusual to have three speakers in the top 10," Hingstman said.

To prepare for the event, Hingstman said the four gave up the week of spring break to do research at the UI libraries.

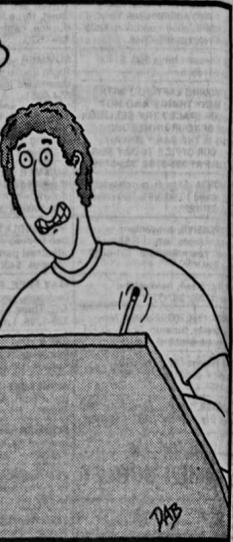

"Our debaters had worked hard before the tournament, and I think they reflected that hard work," Hingstman said.

The central topic for debate teams at the tournament was United States trade relations with the Pacific Rim nations, he said.

Sides in each debate were arbitrarily determined by the toss of a coin, Hingstman said, unless the two teams previously had debated each other. The UI teams need to work more at calling the coin correctly, he said, so they can debate the affirmative.

"It's easier to debate in favor of the resolution than against it," Hingstman said.

PASTA offers advice for foreign travel

By Les May
The Daily Iowan

Some prefer their pasta with a fine white sauce... others only like it cold and plain. But pasta is always best when it is spelled PASTA, for Predeparture Advice for Students Traveling Abroad, a set of sessions now being held by the UI Study Abroad Center.

Philip Carls, study abroad advisor, said PASTA is intended to teach students how to go about learning and adjusting to daily life in a foreign culture. Adjusting to studying in a foreign country is not a problem, Carls said, but rather a process students will have to go through. Generally, they succeed in adapting, he said.

"Most of our students don't have serious psychological problems when they study abroad," Carls said. "But there is an adjustment that needs to be made, and different people deal with it differently."

The series was scheduled to begin Wednesday, April 10, with an exercise called "Bafa Bafa." In this game, participants divide into two groups, decide on a set of values and expectations for imaginary "cultures" and try to make sense of the culture the other team has created. Unfortunately, fewer than the 20 people necessary to hold the game attended and the event was cancelled.

This Wednesday evening, Gary Althen, program associate at the UI Office of International Education and Services, addressed the "culture shock" and "culture fatigue" commonly experienced by those who find themselves in a new environment.

On April 24, a session on field learning abroad will be held in the International Center, Room 36. In the International Center Lounge on May 1, another program will cover issues on health, safety and security for travelers abroad.

UI Press releases Shakespeare book

The figure of the lost leader or dead hero is evoked time and again throughout William Shakespeare's histories, often through the recollections of characters who look to the "valiant dead" for guidance in handling their current predicaments.

"These Valiant Dead: Renewing the Past in Shakespeare's Histories," by Robert Jones, traces the uses and abuses of history by characters in Shakespeare's plays. The book has just been published by the UI Press.

Jones, associate professor of English at Ohio State University, offers a new and insightful examination of how the historical plays dramatize the exploration of the past's effective value for those who remember it.

"These Valiant Dead" is available in hardcover for $24 from fine bookstores or directly from the UI Press.

Program promotes awareness of rape

By Chris Pothoven
The Daily Iowan

As temperatures increase in Iowa, so do the number of people outside on the streets and sidewalks of Iowa City. On any nice evening one can find dozens of people walking or bicycling alone, in pairs or in groups.

Unfortunately, this weather can also mean an increased possibility of rape and other forms of sexual assault, said Karla Miller, director of the Rape Victim's Advocacy Program.

"The vulnerability of people (to sexual assault) goes up in spring, because people are outside more," she said. "I think the risks are greater when the weather gets nice."

There is also an increase in parties during the spring, Miller said, which leads to greater alcohol consumption. She said this also leads to a rise in vulnerability, as alcohol impairs the judgement of both a potential rapist and a potential victim.

RVAP used to be able to point to April and October as the worst months for rapes reports, Miller said.

This is no longer the case, largely due to greater reporting of acquaintance rape, but RVAP spring programs are geared specifically toward rape awareness, she said.

"It's just a good time to remind people to think through what their options are for self-defense in case there's an attack," she said.

A key to avoiding sexual assaults and attacks is awareness, Miller said.

"People need to be aware — aware of their surroundings, aware of their options, aware of what could happen," she said. "The time to think of (the possibility of sexual assault) is ahead of time."

Although sexual assault is never the victim's fault, Miller said there are ways people can reduce vulnerability.

"People really have to think about not taking chances," she said.

Miller said people are often angered about taking precautions they feel they should not have to take.

However, Miller said, "You can minimize the limits you place on your life and also do the things you have to do to be safe."

RAPE PREVENTION TACTICS

Attackers look for vulnerability, accessibility and availability when picking victims. Some ways to minimize these, as provided by the WhistleStop! program and Karla Miller, are:

- Be aware of your surroundings. Look confident and sure of yourself. Dress practically — many styles of clothing may make it difficult for you to move quickly.
- Avoid dark parking lots, parks or other places where rapists could hide. Avoid walking through a group of men — walk around them or cross the street.
- When walking at night, listen and look to see if someone is following you. If you are being followed, change your pace and observe what the other person does.
- Especially important — don't walk alone if you are drunk or high or upset about something. Ask a friend to go with you.
- Don't walk too close to the inside of sidewalks, near bushes, alleys or private driveways. Be aware of cars that pull up next to you or pass more than once.
- Don't take the same route home every day. Vary your route. Criminals often follow their victims and plan the attack beforehand.
- Cyclists — be aware of your surroundings, with consideration for parked or stopped cars, cars that slow down beside you or cars that pass you more than once or cars that follow you.
- Park your bicycle in a well-lighted and well-traveled area. Remember where you park your bike, and have your padlock key ready.
- If you don't wish to bike or walk, call the Women's Transit Authority (335-6002). They offer free, nighttime rides for women, by women, Thursday through Sunday.

As an example, she cited the practice of leaving windows open at night — fixing the window in some way so it can only go up so high minimizes the limits, she said.

"It's a way to make sure you're safe but also enjoy a nice breeze," Miller said.

She said RVAP is also putting a strong focus on acquaintance rape.

"We're trying to cover what happens outside and what happens in relationships," Miller said. "If it's a stranger that jumps you outside, you're more likely to take action than if it's someone you know."

Black Student Union to elect '91-'92 officers

New president wants more interaction

By Leslie Davis
The Daily Iowan

The end of the spring semester not only means finals, but also elections for the members of the Black Student Union.

Elections were held Tuesday evening at the Afro-American Cultural Center.

The members of the executive board for the 1991-92 school year are: Royce Kinnebrew, president; Elliot Leach, vice president; McCeil King and Connie Kitchen, co-secretaries; Jackie Chandler, treasurer and Marci Cannon, communications.

Kinnebrew said he hopes to destroy negative stereotypes by promoting more interaction and panel discussions.

"I want to motivate students to come out and get thirsty for knowledge and brotherhood," Kinnebrew said.

Leach is planning to further some of BSU's successful programs such as the Martin Luther King Day rally and the Valentine's Day Chocolate Affair.

He also wants to implement new programs such as a black family day, to strengthen unity among black students on campus.

"I am hoping to start some traditions that will keep going even after executive members leave office," Leach said.

Current BSU Vice President Krishon Gill said she has learned the key to empowerment is political education, and hopes BSU can maintain some of the powerful coalitions that have been formed during the past year.

Something happened to Israeli soldier Mike Levin around the time he took part in the 1967 invasion of the Sinai Peninsula. He shuffled off his right-wing views and began to support Palestinian independence.

Tonight Levin will speak about this transformation and the Yesh Gvul movement which he is now a member of, at Aliber Hillel Foundation, Market and Dubuque streets, 7:30 p.m.

"Yesh Gvul" means "There is a limit," and refers to "both the parameters of Israel's physical borders and to the limits of acceptable behavior for military personnel," according to "Israel should negotiate with the Palestine Liberation Organization."

Mike Levin

Iowa Friends of Yesh Gvul, which is co-sponsoring the talk.

The organization Yesh Gvul draws "the limit" at not serving in Israeli occupied territories or Lebanon. It's made up of reservists like Levin who have refused to serve in those areas. Levin — who comes from a prominent Israeli right-wing family and has been a member of the official youth movement of the rightist Herut party — spent a brief term in a military jail in 1984 for his altered attitude.

His outspokenness on the Palestinian issue also resulted in his losing a job at the Jewish Agency in Israel in 1973. However, Levin is still employed by the Israeli government.

That he remains an Israeli government employee despite his open criticism is attributed to Israeli democracy, Levin said Wednesday in a telephone interview from Des Moines.

He also said "Israel should negotiate with the Palestine Liberation Organization," which he said represents the Palestinian people.

Levin's speech is free and open to the public; a reception will follow the event.

UI conducts debate about dog carcasses

The Daily Iowan

The UI will conduct a public forum Thursday, April 18, to discuss the Oakdale Pathological Waste Incinerator.

Members of the university community as well as the general public are invited to attend the forum, which will start at 3:30 p.m. in the Oakdale Hall Auditorium at the Oakdale campus.

James Morrison, UI vice president for research, will moderate the forum. Participants will include Jerald Schnoor, UI professor of civil and environmental engineering and Burton Kross, UI assistant professor of preventive medicine. The forum will also include a presentation by staff from the UI Health Protection Office.

Kross and Schnoor will discuss the findings of a recent study by Paul Elkmann entitled "Preliminary Dose Assessment for the Incineration of Radioactive Dog Carcasses at UI Oakdale Campus."

Morrison will also present the timetable for test burning and emissions monitoring at the pathological incinerator.

Free copies of the report, "Oakdale Pathological Waste Incineration Facility," are available from the Office of University Relations.

IC loses $2 million in hotel foreclosure

By Jim Snyder
The Daily Iowan

Iowa City has lost $2 million in federal grant money because of the foreclosure sale of the downtown Holiday Inn.

In an auction that lasted only five minutes, the Resolution Trust Corporation, a federal agency, bought the six-year-old hotel for $8,488,562. City Attorney Linda Gentry said the hotel would continue operating under the management of the RTC, as it has since November, but the agency is looking to sell the building.

State legislators see reapportionment as fair to Democrats, Republicans

By Mike Glover
The Associated Press

DES MOINES — House Speaker Bob Arnould on Wednesday said Democrats don't have a problem with a proposed redistricting plan that is "fairer than we expected."

Arnould was guarded in his assessment of the proposal's chances of approval, saying Republicans and Democrats are continuing to dissect the map. But he is the latest politician to look approvingly on the proposal.

"Our process was set up to create a fair, non-partisan reapportionment plan and that is what we have in front of us," Arnould said.

In his regular meeting with reporters, Arnould said there are signs in the proposed legislative and congressional districts the reapportionment plan is even-handed.

Three of the top four leaders in the Legislature — two Democrats and a Republican — would be matched in new districts with incumbent legislators, Arnould said.

That should erase any doubt that the non-partisan Legislative Service Bureau that drafted the proposal ignored the home addresses of incumbent legislators, he said.

However, Gentry said Iowa City will not get back any of its money.

"The foreclosure proceedings and the sale wiped out the mortgage that we held on the property, and wipes out the debt," Gentry said.

Johnson filed for reorganization under Chapter 11 of the bankruptcy code in 1989. Midwest Federal Savings and Loan Association of Minneapolis filed June 1 for foreclosure on the Holiday Inn.

Trial may hinder constitution talks

By Barry Renfrew
The Associated Press

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — Winnie Mandela pointed a finger at police when testifying Wednesday that she believed false evidence had been used to implicate her in the alleged kidnapping and assault of four youths.

State Prosecutor Jan Swanepoel started his cross-examination by asking Mandela if she was saying evidence presented against her was fabricated.

"Yes," the wife of African National Congress leader Nelson Mandela responded.

"There is clear evidence the interest of the police was to bring us into this court," she added later.

But in response to repeated questions, Mandela could not say whether fabricated such evidence or whether they would do so.

Nelson Mandela, who was in prison for anti-government activities when the crimes allegedly occurred, accompanied his wife to court Wednesday and listened to the proceedings for about 20 minutes.

The trial could have wide-ranging political ramifications, coming at a time when the government is trying to woo black leaders into formal negotiations on a new constitution eliminating white minority rule.

Mandela has many admirers among the more militant ANC members, and her husband might find it difficult to continue talks with the government if his wife is

Suitable refugee camp sought in Iraq

By Mary Beth Sheridan
The Associated Press

ISIKVEREN, Turkey — U.S. special forces helicoptered into northern Iraq on Wednesday to begin scouting sites for Western-supervised camps. But hunger, disease and cold took an ever-mounting toll of lives at the sprawling camps along the Turkish border.

About 800,000 of Iraq's 4 million Kurds have fled to Turkey and its border and nearly 1.5 million others have sought safety in Iran and along its frontier, according to the latest estimates.

The Iraqi News Agency quoted Iraq's foreign minister, Ahmed Hussein Khuddayer al-Sammarai, as saying it was "unnecessary" for allied troops to protect the refugees because Iraq had agreed to cooperate with U.N. relief efforts for the Kurds.

But U.S. officials said they didn't expect Iraq to interfere with the foreign troops. If Baghdad wants U.N. permission to sell nearly $1 billion in oil to buy emergency food and other supplies, it will have to cooperate with the Kurdish relief, the officials said.

Even as helicopter-borne troops crossed Iraq's northern frontier for the first time, U.S. forces completed their withdrawal from all of southern Iraq except a narrow zone bordering Kuwait. The remaining 18,000 troops will protect and feed refugees until effective alternatives are found, the U.S. military said.

At the sprawling Isikveren settlement on the mountainous Turkish border, thousands of refugees burst into applause as a column of about 30 U.S. special forces troops arrived carrying an American flag.

The soldiers grinned and slapped hands with the refugees. "I feel like Elvis," said Staff Sgt. Clark Allen.

U.S. officials at the Incirlik air base in Turkey said troops had flown into northern Iraq to begin looking for flat terrain. The Pentagon said U.S. forces will set up five or six camps. Sources said at least 5,000 troops will be deployed.

Once the sites are identified, construction of the tent camps will begin — probably within a few days — and the hundreds of thousands of refugees will be encouraged to relocate. The Pentagon said the camps could be providing food and medical aid within two weeks.

Pentagon spokesman Pete Williams said a "quick reaction force" of U.S. Army and Marine Corps troops will be established at an undisclosed location in Turkey to provide firepower in the event that Iraqi troops try to interfere with the relief effort.

In the first air rescue by American forces, two U.S. Navy helicopters on Wednesday swept into a camp just inside Turkey to pick up 64 sick refugees.

Desperation etched on their faces, the shabbily dressed refugees stumbled across a mountain meadow and clambered onto the giant green CH-53 helicopters, which landed within a stone's throw of Iraq across a fast-running stream.

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — Seeking middle ground in the struggle between the Roman Catholic Church and birth-control advocates, the government has proposed making condoms available in more places and to younger women.

The plan — which would lower the legal age to buy condoms from 17 to 16 — is less sweeping than measures sought by reformists. It is expected to be harshly criticized by the clergy in this predominantly Catholic nation.

Details of the proposal were closed Tuesday. It was not immediately known when the plan would be raised in Parliament.

Christine Donaghy, chief executive of the Irish Family Planning Association, said Wednesday the group welcomed the proposed change but was disappointed that vending machines would not be permitted. Also, legislators had earlier discussed lowering the age to 16.

"People need to be able to get condoms in the least embarrassing and simplest way possible," said Donaghy.

Jim Cantwell, spokesman for the Catholic Press and Information Office in Dublin, said there would be no comment on the legislation until it is formally published.

The church's opposition, however, has been clear.

Chernobyl

MOSCOW — Five years after the Chernobyl nuclear disaster, the Soviet Union has identified more than 500,000 people contaminated by radiation and is giving medical care to 300,000 a year, officials said Wednesday.

But officials continued to insist that 32 people have died as a direct result of the explosion of the Ukrainian power plant on April 26, 1986.

Many Soviet and Western researchers dispute the official death toll, which has not changed in three years. They assert that at least 500 people — and possibly many as 7,000 — have died of cancer and other illnesses caused by the accident.

Japan keeps Gorbachev at distance

By Michael Hirsh
The Associated Press

TOKYO — Japan's elite toasted and cheered Mikhail Gorbachev on Wednesday, but turned a cold shoulder to the Soviet leader's frank plea for aid and investment as talks failed to resolve a territorial dispute.

Gorbachev, in a speech to Parliament, urged Japan to join the "new spirit in Soviet-U.S. relations" that began with the end of the Cold War and promised that the Soviet Union would never attack Japan.

He also claimed broad Soviet military reductions in Asia and said he did not intend to interfere with Japan's most important relationship, its security treaty with America.

Yet midway through Gorbachev's historic four-day visit, deep-seated Japanese doubts about their giant Soviet neighbor and its economic stability were proving more difficult to overcome than Cold War hostility.

Accompanied by his wife, Raisa, the 60-year-old Soviet president entered the wood-paneled main chamber of the Diet, or Parliament, to a standing ovation. He received another when he finished speaking 45 minutes later.

In his most plain-spoken request to date for foreign aid, Gorbachev warned that "the development of a new peaceful world order will largely depend on the outcome of perestroika. . . . We are counting on support for our efforts, particularly now as we go through this critical stage."

"If we let the new social processes get out of hand, the country may really be thrown into the chaos that gives birth to dictatorship," he said in a speech interrupted seven times by applause.

At a luncheon meeting earlier, Gorbachev was blunter about asking for aid. He threw out most of a prepared text in trying to persuade 600 business leaders he was serious about reforming the crumbling Soviet economy.

"Our Far East and Siberia have resources, but they lack the infrastructure to develop them," Gorbachev said, adding that the Soviet Union has much to learn from Japan's experience of converting military industries to commercial use.

Gorbachev stressed he was aware of the need for the Soviet Union to deal with its outstanding debts.

"This year has been especially difficult because our oil exports have declined due to the gulf war. But we have the resources to resolve the problem. Your understanding would be appreciated," he said.

But Japan's hard-nosed business elders, whose savvy built this country into the world's No. 2 economic power, said political and economic problems must be resolved.

"It was all requests. (Gorbachev) didn't have any gifts to offer us. That's a pity," said one executive who refused to give his name. Indeed, the Soviets are asking Japan for a loan to pay off hundreds of millions of dollars of debt for Japanese exports.

As expected, there was no progress reported on Japan's main condition for freeing up Japanese capital: that the Soviets return four islands off northern Japan seized in the closing days of World War II.

Territorial concessions of any kind are risky in a nation beset by separatist movements, and Gorbachev seems to be under the sway of hard-liners who oppose such a move.

Irish government proposes greater condom availability

The Associated Press

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — Seeking middle ground in the struggle between the Roman Catholic Church and birth-control advocates, the government has proposed making condoms available at more places and to younger customers.

The plan — which would lower the legal age to buy condoms from 18 to 17 — is less sweeping than measures sought by reformists but is expected to be harshly criticized by the clergy in this predominantly Catholic nation.

Details of the proposal were disclosed Tuesday. It was not immediately known when the plan would be raised in Parliament.

of legislators respecting the moral convictions to which people adhere and which are influenced by their membership of the church," Archbishop Cahal Daly, the Irish primate, said last month.

The condom issue has been highly controversial in Ireland, where more than 90 percent of the people are Roman Catholics and more than 80 percent of them attend Mass every week. Abortion and divorce are illegal.

Prime Minister Charles Haughey's government has charted a more liberal course following Mary Robinson's victory in the presidential election last year.

In his keynote speech to a party conference in March, Haughey spoke of building "a new, enlightened, open Irish society," one that "respects all its citizens, treats them all equally and alienates none."

Robinson, the first woman president in Ireland, has criticized the ban on abortions and urged a more tolerant society.

The bishop of Ferns, Brendan Comiskey, last month condemned "the spiritual and moral bankruptcy" of a country "which can offer only condoms to its young in place of jobs."

The proposed changes in the condom law followed a legal battle from the sale of condoms at a Dublin record store.

Irish Family Planning Association was fined $640 for selling the condoms at the Virgin Megastore record shop. The association lost an appeal Feb. 26 and the fine was raised to $800.

The Irish rock 'n' roll group U2 paid the fine.

Two days later, Haughey promised to change the law to conform "with the realities of today."

The government has also indicated that it will make new proposals this year on divorce and may liberalize its laws outlawing homosexual acts.

The Irish Press on Wednesday criticized the government for not approving condom vending machines, which are legal in British-ruled Northern Ireland.

"What a pity that the government, having braved the initial protest storm over its plans to make condoms more widely available, did not have the political courage to do what it knows ought to be done."

Chernobyl statistics revealed

By Alan Cooperman
The Associated Press

MOSCOW — Five years after the Chernobyl nuclear disaster, the Soviet Union has identified more than 500,000 people contaminated by radiation and is giving medical care to 300,000 a year, officials said Wednesday.

But officials continued to insist that 32 people have died as a direct result of the explosion of the Ukrainian power plant on April 26, 1986.

Many Soviet and Western researchers dispute the official death toll, which has not changed in three years. They assert that at least 500 people — and possibly as many as 7,000 — have died of cancer and other illnesses caused by the accident.

Despite the international skepticism, high-ranking Soviet health and energy officials stuck to the official number on Wednesday at a press conference in advance of the fifth anniversary of the world's worst nuclear accident.

The officials also contended there was no danger of further radiation leaking from the plant, although they conceded the cement-and-steel "sarcophagus" encasing the reactor needs strengthening.

Angelina Guskova, a Chernobyl specialist at the Health Ministry's Institute of Biophysics, said two people died immediately in the explosion, one from radiation and the other from injuries. An additional 28 people succumbed to high doses of radiation within three months of the accident, and two more have died in the past five years, she said.

Guskova put the casualty toll from radiation at 31 and the total number of Chernobyl deaths at 32.

Vladimir Chernusenko, scientific director of the 20-mile evacuation zone around the plant, charged in a recent British television interview that the disaster has claimed more than 7,000 lives.

Guskova said the 7,000 figure was a reasonable estimate of the total number of people in the stricken areas who have died of all causes in the past five years. The same number would have been expected to die regardless of the accident, she said.

Guskova acknowledged that the cancer rate in Byelorussia, the Soviet republic hit hardest by the disaster, has risen in the past five years.

Judge asked to delay Exxon settlement

WASHINGTON — A group of native Alaskans has asked a federal judge to delay a $1 billion settlement in the Exxon Valdez oil spill, saying the agreement harms their right to seek their own damages.

The five native Alaskan villages said they don't want to "upset the settlements between the United States, Alaska and Exxon," but rather are trying to protect their right to live off the natural resources of their ancestral lands.

The villages asked that the settlement be delayed for 90 days, until it can be amended to protect their claim.

In papers filed in U.S. District Court on Tuesday and released Wednesday, they also asked that they be given a share of the settlement fund.

Exxon agreed March 13 to pay a record $100 million criminal fine and to spend an additional $900 million to finish cleaning up the Alaska coastline.

The oil company already has spent $2.5 billion to clean up the spill that occurred when the Exxon Valdez tanker ran aground in Prince William Sound on March 24, 1989.

The criminal fine involved one misdemeanor charge against Exxon and three others against its Exxon Shipping Co. subsidiary.

On Tuesday, Exxon and the government urged U.S. District Judge H. Russel Holland in Anchorage to approve the settlement, saying it would "send a strong message that companies that violate environmental statutes face serious punishment."

Papers name woman claiming rape

To name or not to name? Newspaper and broadcast journalists debated the issue Wednesday after NBC, The New York Times and others named the woman who said she was raped by a member of the Kennedy family in Palm Beach, Fla.

One women's group said divulging the name without the woman's consent was "vulturistic." But a member of the ethics committee of the American Society of Newspaper Editors said withholding rape victims' names "shrouds them in the stigma of being dirty."

Among the newspapers who identified the woman Wednesday were The Des Moines Register, the San Francisco Chronicle, The Denver Post, the Fort Worth Star-Telegram and The Courier-Journal of Louisville, Ky.

"Whatever anonymity this woman had is gone. It became almost an affectation not to run the name," said Geneva Overholser, editor of The Register.

The Register's policy is to shield the name of a rape victim unless she comes forward. The paper won a Pulitzer Prize last week for a series about a rape victim who went public in hopes of drawing attention to an underreported crime.

"Over the long haul, society would be better served if rape victims were treated the same way as adult victims of other crimes," Overholser said. "We are participating in the stigma of rape by treating this crime differently."

The 29-year-old Florida woman had asked that her name not be used. Her lawyer, David Roth, said Wednesday he was "shocked and appalled" it had been divulged.

Miss Piggy's owner takes Disney to court

NEW YORK — First they broke off the wedding. Now Miss Piggy is accusing Mickey Mouse of carrying on as if they were married.

What was once one of America's more tender courtships soured into a court feud Wednesday as the owner of Piggy, Kermit and other Muppets sued Walt Disney for alleged misuse of the famous characters.

The lawsuit, filed by Henson Associates Inc. in federal court in Manhattan, charges that The Walt Disney Co. used images of Muppets without a license in television commercials, movies, books, brochures, T-shirts and other merchandise — and in Disney's 1990 annual report.

The legal action stems from a dispute over whether Disney has the right to show the Muppets after protracted merger talks with Henson Associates broke down in late December.

It also marks a low in a relationship that once was hailed as an aptly touching epilogue for Jim Henson, the Muppet father and company founder who died unexpectedly in May 1990 at 53 from pneumonia. Supporters of the proposed merger said the puppeteer's elfin vision was guaranteed to endure when combined with Disney's marketing magic.

The 90-page lawsuit accuses Disney of "outright theft of Jim Henson's legacy," thus terminating any apparent affection between Disney and the company Henson founded.

The lawsuit accuses Disney of illegally showing Muppet characters in television commercials, "fostering the unmistakable impression that the Muppet characters are part of Disney Inc.'s profit-making machine."

Among the typically Iowan previews of the Opera Theater's production of Benjamin Britten's 1951 opera, "A Midsummer Night's Dream," to be performed at 8 p.m. Friday, April 19, and 2 p.m. Saturday, April 21, at Hancher Auditorium.

An adaptation of Shakespeare's comedy, "A Midsummer Night's Dream" is among the British composer's most popular and ambitious operas, several of which ("Budd," "The Turn of the Screw," "Death In Venice") were derived from great literary works.

Opera

Though he condensed the play into five acts into three, Britten retained Shakespeare's language and virtually all crucial information. Musically, the work is infused with appropriate mystery and fluidity that reflects the story's fascinating moral ambiguity.

Most of the opera's action takes place in a woods near ancient Athens on the eve of the wedding of the hero, Theseus, and the Amazon Queen, Hippolyta. The story involves the manipulations of Oberon, King of the Fairies, to regain the estranged affections of his consort, Tytania, and control the destinies of four unhappy mortal lovers who have fled the city.

The opera will be stage directed by UI Opera Theater Director Beauout Glass. UI School of Music Director of choral activities William Hatcher will conduct the University Symphony for both performances.

Guest performing as the scheming Oberon is countertenor Johnson Flucker; playing Tytania will be student Nancy Hagen, coloratura soprano. The rustic weaver, Bottom, who is magically "translated" into the donkey-headed love object of Tytania, will be played by guest baritone Wayne Neuzil.

The four lovers whose devotions become entangled through the magical intervention of the fairies will be portrayed by several actors, some of whom appear in both productions. They include faculty members Scott McCoy and Ellen Williams, and UI students Chris Goeke, Kirk Griener, Brian Burkhardt and Kerri Rosenberg.

Musician/artist collaboration on display at UI art museum

The Daily Iowan

The UI Museum of Art will present "The Painter's Music, The Musician's Art," an exhibition of 20 paintings, prints and collages by four contemporary artists. The show will be on display April 20-June 23.

"The Painter's Music, The Musician's Art" is the result of a unique collaboration between An die Musik, a chamber music ensemble, and the four artists — Helen Frankenthaler, David Hockney, Robert Motherwell and Kenneth Noland.

The collaboration between these painters and An die Musik began in February 1981. Helen Frankenthaler incorporated a ticket stub from a concert by the chamber ensemble in a collage, entitling the piece "An die Musik." The group decided to make a poster of Frankenthaler's work. Other painters who viewed music as vital to their art created pieces of their own, and posters were also made of works by Hockney, Motherwell and Noland.

The four works specifically created for An die Musik will be on display in the exhibition, along with other works by these artists from private and public collections in Iowa.

An die Musik was formed in 1976 by pianist Constance Emmerich and oboist Gerard Reuter. The group has performed in recital halls across the United States and Canada and in six European countries. Other members of the ensemble include Roland Greutter, violin; Richard Brice, viola; and Jeffrey Solow, cello.

The UI Museum of Art, located on North Riverside Drive in Iowa City, is open 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday and noon to 5 p.m. Sunday. Admission is free. Public metered parking is available in UI parking lots across from the museum on Riverside Drive, and adjacent to the UI Alumni Center.

The exhibition is jointly sponsored by the UI Museum of Art and Hancher Auditorium.

Spring breaks over our heads in clumps of violets, hay fever attacks, clutches of term papers and... puppy love as any Iowa City denizen.

"He's a beautiful dog, but sometimes I wonder if he's playing with a full deck of cards," says Robinson of her animal companion.

Robinson, visiting lecturer in the UI-Writers' Workshop, and Workshop Director Frank Conroy will read from their work tonight at a Shambaugh Auditorium. The reading, sponsored by the Workshop, is free and open to the public. Robinson's "Housekeeping" won the Ernest Hemingway Foundation award for the best first novel from P.E.N. American Center in 1987 and the Rosenthal Award from the American Academy and Institute of Arts and Letters, as well as gaining a nomination for the P.E.N./Faulkner fiction award and the Pulitzer Prize.

The book struck many, mystified, included, as one of the most stunningly fresh and darkly beautiful novels of the late 20th century. Depicting women ever in search of family and home, the beauty and mutability of nature, "Housekeeping's" brilliance as a first novel is comparable to "The Sun Also Rises."

"I've written very little," says Robinson. "I never published anything before that except in a college magazine and many years have passed since that. You see, I write very slowly, so I have very little experience of myself as a writer."

MANDATORY COMPUTER FEE

Necessary evil

The UI Student Assembly voted Tuesday night to support a proposed $40 per semester mandatory student computer fee. The Iowa Board of Regents will consider the proposal later this month. Though some students will complain that by proposing the fee the UI is making higher education more difficult to finance, the levy is necessary if the UI is to continue to maintain and improve student computing facilities.

Currently the UI has one computer for every 34 students. Other Big Ten universities have much smaller ratios. The University of Illinois, for example, has one computer for every 12 students; the University of Michigan's ratio is eight students to every computer.

Additionally, about half of the UI's student computers are obsolete. These obsolete machines cannot support more advanced software, forcing students to use outmoded applications.

About half of the UI's student computers are obsolete. These obsolete machines cannot support more advanced software, forcing students to use outmoded applications.

Older applications can mean spending valuable time in the computer lab instead of studying. New, more modern computers can use updated software designed for ease of use and high productivity. Also, new computers mean expanded software libraries, which provide students with more tools to increase their productivity.

Another limiting factor for student computer use is the hours that the Instructional Technology Centers are open. Many of the ITCs do not open until noon or 1 p.m., and most ITCs close at midnight. Only Weeg Computing Center makes computers available to students 24 hours a day, seven days a week. The student computer fee will be used to extend the hours of ITCs, and it will also help create new ITCs and enhance the support available to student computer users.

A mandatory computer fee will also benefit students in ways they may not realize. Every student uses the ISIS registration system, and it is one of the programs the computer fee will fund. The OASIS system will also benefit from the computer fee, and more classrooms on campus will become computerized through money raised by the fee. Essentially, any computer facility used by students will be eligible to receive a lift from the computer fee.

We are living in the age of information technology. The UI is attempting to provide students with the same types of tools they will need in their occupations. Computers are a very real part of business today, and the first step to providing students with training to use computers is having the appropriate facilities. The student computer fee will help to generate the funds necessary for the UI to provide modern computing facilities.

Save my life, get a free T-shirt

I was in full sloth yesterday. "Cheers" was on, a cold long-neck sat sexily on my belly and all 17 couch pillows had arrived at their final destination. It was all ruined when I heard my roommate turning the doorknob. He is one of those Iowa Boys who dream of becoming the sort of high-school football coach that can take a spineless, aimless adolescent and turn him into a full-grown psychopath. So Coach, as we like to call him, informed me that he had just come home from working. Then, his finger pointed like the Ghost of Christmas Future, asked, "What are you gonna do with your life?"

I instantly retorted, "Gee, I don't know." I began to ponder the question in earnest, however, at the first commercial break. I tell ya, decisions, decisions. I am the kinda guy who can't settle the Canadian Bacon / Pepporoni dilemma without the aid of rock-scissors-paper.

I know most of you probably think I'm just biding my time until Mike Royko goes to that big bar in the sky, but that's simply not the case. I'm afraid I'm destined for the Island of Unwanted Columnists. I have always wanted to be a highly syndicated cross between a sensitive George F. Will and Dave Barry. And Ernest Hemingway and Dylan Thomas. But nobody wants columns that go "the Lebanonization of the Soviet Union left my Wombat Snot tickled by the rub of love. It hurt." Dave Barry, the funniest man in America, will be speaking in the Union next Wednesday night. I'm Hoping That He Will Help Me Find My Voice.

If I had my druthers, though, I would write bumper stickers for a living. Or fortune cookies. See, that's my whole problem. I want to do everything at once. I want to write bumper stickers. "Honk if you're a cherry blossom." "My other car is a tall, dark stranger."

The only job I ever thought I could stick to was the Backing-up-Bob-Seeger position. I wanted to be paid millions of dollars to stand there holding a tambourine in my soulfulness, waiting to step up to the mike and sing "Night moves, night moves, baby." Let me just make it clear that I would not be worth millions because of the way I would sing "Night moves, night moves, baby," but rather because of the way I would stand around with a sort of bluesy, zen bliss waiting to sing "Night moves, night moves, baby." We all have our dreams.

They say that old English majors never die, they just go to grad school. The problem with grad school, of course, would be lots of studying and drinking French Roasted coffee. And I don't think I have the manual dexterity you're telling some guy that you've waited a lifetime to do sales, that in fact working on straight commission sounds like a party, and that you have always admired their product, the Food and Drug Administration be damned! My roommate has not once seen a male with hair past his shoulders without pausing to say, "That's OK. Sooner or later, they'll end up with their butt in the barber's chair." And but true.

All options seem dim. So I have decided that I am going to let you, the readers, decide my life for me. There is nothing more enjoyable than running someone's life for them. Sticking your nose in someone else's business gets your mind off your own troubles. Just look at the Gulf War. And I am not only giving you this opportunity, I am offering a prize to the winner. One free, extra large T-shirt. This grand prize winner will be drawn from the top entry in each of four categories:

- 1) Insulting: "It is not surprising that a man of Mr. Martin's limited abilities should consider a career change. It's just a shame..."
- 2) Supportive: "Mitchie, don't feel bad about being lazy and pathetic. If I were you..."
- 3) Loopy: "I have consulted Bizzaroramba, Grouse Goddess, to see..."
- 4) Wildly inaccurate: "Mr. Martin, I can offer you a career with on-the-job training in electronics and plenty of advancement opportunities. Just come down to the second floor of the post office and we'll sign you..."

Send your words of wisdom to: Mitch Martin's Find-a-Life Contest, The Daily Iowan, 201N Communications Center, The University of Iowa, Iowa City, Iowa, 52242.

There are those of you that may find this to be only a shameless and pathetic cry for help. Well, this is just the sort of people I want to hear from. Otherwise, I'll be sending Ann Landers a T-shirt and a letter. "Dear Aimless in Iowa..."

Mitch Martin's column appears Thursdays on the Viewpoints page.

And with financial aid what it is today, I'd have to beg and plead just to be able to teach Interpretation of Literature. "I don't care what position you play; I will not take papers written in crayon. So PUT ME DOWN."

And there is finally the real job option. This is the one that My Bobby Knight-wannabe roommate espouses. I know that you all probably think that my situation is pretty funny (pleasepleaseplease), but it's gonna happen to you some day. You youngsters not only think you're never going to die, you don't even think that you'll ever graduate.

I was just like that once. One day you're laughing at your friends being choked to death by Bill Blass on the way to the Job Fair. And then you blink and it's three years later and

Tell us about it

To the Editor:

After being sworn in on Monday, April 1, 1991, the UI Student Assembly executive officers and senators for the 1991-1992 term are officially in office. At this time, I would like to suggest that among the inaugurated assembly's first orders of business should be a concerted effort to inform students of goals they have formulated for 1991-1992 and how they plan to "serve" their constituency.

As a concerned student, I would like to know exactly what plans the UISA has for next year. What issues will this new assembly take on and how will they be prioritized? As student leaders representing student views, how will the UISA lead students? Will students see more results due to positive initiatives, or can they expect to hear more about the "quirks" in the new governing system? These are important questions. This past year's Student Assembly did a good job. They have much to be proud of. Students have a better chance of understanding and supporting the efforts of the UISA if the governing body acts now to create this understanding. I, as well as many other students, would like to know what we can expect from the new student governing body.

University fails in effort to conduct public forum on waste incinerators, reader charges

To the Editor:

Running a large university administration is hard work. Making environmentally sound policy decision is even more difficult — especially within the confines of soaring waste disposal costs, operating budget cuts and stringent local, state and federal regulations. But, if the University of Iowa administration officials feel that their duty to the public and to the environment is fulfilled by the "public forum" scheduled for today, they are sorely mistaken.

There are several reasons why this forum is unacceptable to the people who will be affected by the burning of both radioactive dog carcasses and general medical waste: (1) The forum was announced by press release only three days before the event; (2) the event is scheduled for 3:30 p.m., virtually ensuring that 90 percent of the student and working adult population will be unable to attend; (3) the panel is composed of people all employed by the same company — the UI — which ensures the exclusion of dissent among panelists. Finally, it is highly ironic that at 4:30 p.m., Ralph Nader, a renowned environmental lawyer and consumer advocate will be holding a discussion section with numerous university groups, precluding even more people from the forum.

Numerous groups and individuals in the community have lobbied for an open and legitimate public forum on this issue. Unfortunately, today's event is a vehicle grossly inadequate to fulfill the legitimate environmental and health concerns of the community that the UI serves. The university may feel they are acquiescing to the demands of the environmental groups by having this forum, but the guaranteed low attendance, for the reasons outlined above plus the Environmental Advocates' boycott of the event, doesn't really count. Why? The reason is that concern for human health and the preservation of our fragile ecosystems will not go away anytime soon. The university administration would be well-advised to stop applying band-aids to complex and threatening environmental issues of all kinds. Instead, they should building a framework of decision-making that includes an analysis of impact on the environment and meaningful dialogue with the community from the inception of such projects.

Reader objects to claim that Jesus was gay, dispels some misconceptions about Bible

To the Editor:

In response to the column by Kim Painter ("There's no denying homosexuality," April 8) and a letter from Michael Blake ("It was homophobia that killed Jesus..." April 11), I would like to dispel some misconceptions about the Bible and give some of my personal opinions on homosexuality.

Michael Blake begins his argument by asserting that he knows the truth that Jesus was gay. This statement is very arrogant because it is not something he could possibly know; it is mere speculation. The first reason he gives for thinking Jesus was gay was that Jesus never spoke out against homosexuality. Now, I think I'm pretty safe in saying that just because a person doesn't speak out against something doesn't mean he's in favor of it. That kind of argument could be ignorantly used to make preposterous accusations about anyone. The next point the writer makes is that Jesus didn't get married because he was gay. This, again, is no evidence at all. It's the kind of reasoning that says: "Joe Schmo never got drunk, so he must have smoked." Could it be that he did neither?

The reasons for Jesus' lifestyle don't need to be defended because his perfect life speaks for itself. He was falsely accused in his day, and it saddens my heart to see that he is still being falsely accused. Why is this so? The answer lies so plainly in the Gospel of John: "This is the verdict: Light has come into the world, but men loved darkness instead of light because their deeds were evil." It seems funny to me that homosexuals are trying to justify their behavior in a place that stands very firm against what they're doing. Paul wrote to the Corinthians: "Do not be deceived: Neither the sexually immoral nor idolaters nor adulterers nor male prostitutes nor homosexual offenders nor thieves nor the greedy nor drunkards nor slanderers nor swindlers will inherit the kingdom of God. And that is what some of you were. But you were washed, you were sanctified, you were justified in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ and by the Spirit of God." This verse reveals the change that is possible for everyone who will trust in Christ. A lot of people today are trying to change the world. Let me tell you a secret: The change needs to start from within.

I agree with Kim Painter that there should be no reason for homophobia. One of Jesus' main teachings was to love your neighbor as yourself. This should be reflected in the way that Christians treat everyone, including homosexuals. Though Jesus said to love your neighbor as yourself, he declares that the greatest command is to love Jesus with all your heart, soul and mind. And the way to show your love, he claims, is to obey his commands.

Kim Painter is correct in writing that there's no denying homosexuality. Did anyone ever question its existence? The question that seems to facing most homosexuals is if it's right. This matter is brushed over by the columnist when she misquotes Leviticus to justify her own lesbianism. The command says: "Do not lie with a man as one lies with a woman." Can there seriously be a doubt that this command is directed to men alone? No, on the contrary, the columnist treats this question of ethics that is so critical to a believer as a joke.

I would like to stress at this point that the arguments presented here are strictly from a Biblical standpoint because there is no way to defend ethics if there are no absolutes. One could say that being gay is wrong and another could say that it's right, so what is that going to solve? The ideals of society are to have ethics that protect every individual from discrimination. This is what the gay population wants, and I believe it's a right they deserve.

Conroy and Robinson read latest works in Shambaugh

By Kimberly Chun
The Daily Iowan

Spring breaks over our heads in clumps of violets, hay fever attacks, clutches of term papers and... pug fever. Marilynne Robinson, author of the acclaimed "Housekeeping," is as vulnerable to many splendors of puppy love as any Iowa City denizen.

"He's a beautiful dog, but sometimes I wonder if he's playing with a full deck of cards," says Robinson of her animal companion.

Robinson, visiting lecturer in the JI-Writers Workshop, and Workshop Director Frank Conroy will read from their work tonight at 8 p.m. in Shambaugh Auditorium. The reading, sponsored by the Workshop, is free and open to the public.

Robinson's "Housekeeping" won the Ernest Hemingway Foundation award for the best first novel from P.E.N. American Center in 1982, and the Rosenthal Award from the American Academy and Institute of Arts and Letters, as well as gaining a nomination for the P.E.N./Faulkner fiction award and the Pulitzer Prize.

The book struck many, myself included, as one of the most stunningly fresh and darkly beautiful novels of the late 20th century. Depicting women ever in search of family and home, the beauty and mutability of nature, "Housekeeping" is as brilliant as a first novel is comparable to "The Sun Also Rises."

"I've written very little," says Robinson. "I never published anything before that except in a college magazine and many years have passed since that. You see, I write very slowly, so I have very little experience of myself as a writer."

When asked about the voice in

"Housekeeping," Robinson said, "I can't say how much of the voice is mine and how much of it was the character that was speaking. She had a very strong presence in my mind. Ruthie is influenced by Emily Dickinson, though she is turned outward as opposed to Dickinson, who works on a much more microscopic level."

"I've always liked best 19th-century American prose. I like Melville — that gigantic approach to nature — and Whitman. The Bible is very beautiful as well — the scale of it is so wonderful, the rhythms, the obliqueness."

Robinson, who will read tonight from her as yet untitled novel-in-progress, has a few reservations about exposing her current work: "Actually, I shouldn't even be reading from it; I do against my better judgment."

Conroy will also read from a work-in-progress, a novel titled "Body and Soul." "I've been working on it for a couple of years," he said. "It's very long and it'll be published by Houghton Mifflin. It'll probably take me another two years to finish it."

Conroy refers to his novel as "almost historical," as its setting — the New York City of the '30s and '40s — barely exists any more: "It's not autobiographical, but maybe to some extent all fiction is autobiography and all autobiography is fiction. The central character is a piano prodigy, and he's extremely gifted." He added, "It is in a way a kind of wish-fulfillment fantasy. I made my living as a jazz pianist for a while, but I'm a mediocre pianist."

Conroy's past works include the autobiographical "Stop-Time" and a collection of short stories, "Midair." The novel, he said, represents a new direction: "It's a very interesting form. What you have is a general sense of direction, but you don't know exactly how you're going to get there. A novelist may know where he wants to be in 30 or 40 pages but not really know what's going to be on the next page."

"It's a complicated journey; it involves being in a constant state of emergency. You've got so many tracks running, you have to keep all these tracks in your head. You have to keep them in balance, you have to keep aware of them. It requires an enormous amount of concentration. If you plan a novel out like a mathematical problem, the chances are the novel isn't going to be very good. So you discover as you go along, you can't just surrender and have no plan at all, you have to have a plan... It's a sort of dance with the manuscript."

Regents

changes would be made to the building, and estimated an annual savings of $850,000.

George Droll, director of residence services, said the university would spend next year studying the entire residence hall system and ways to attract upper-class, graduate and professional students to the residence halls.

"I urge (the UI) to come forward with an innovative study on how these buildings can work as they were intended to," said regent President Marvin Pomerantz, who toured residence halls Wednesday morning with other regents. The UI will report at July's meeting on the status of its plans.

In a six-to-three vote, the regents passed the increase in residence hall rates. Pomerantz supported the increase but said, "It's not a sound idea to raise rates as soon as there is a decrease in volume — what we're doing is a bad business practice."

Pomerantz prefaced yesterday's meeting by assuring the three state universities that a probable reduction in state appropriations wouldn't detract from strategic goals.

"It's important that the state Legislature not do anything in the short term to detract from our mission and the strategic plans," Pomerantz said.

Wayne Richey, executive secretary for the board, reported that a bill being debated in the state Senate includes cuts to the regent universities of $35 million, while increasing elementary and secondary education funding by $93.3 million and community college appropriations by 3.8 percent.

"It is clear the regent institutions, in the education sector (of the state budget) have been singled out to take the cuts," Richey said.

The regents also approved expenditures for building and maintenance activities. UI President Hunter Rawlings was direct in his words about deferred maintenance to the regents. "Every year it gets worse and worse because no one wants to do anything about it," he said.

The approved plans include replacing the UI Main Library roof, which is projected to cost $750,000, the West Campus Chilled Water Plan Distribution System at a cost of over $1 million, and the replacement of portions of the Quadrangle Residence Hall roof for $277,750.

In other business, the regents heard a proposal from the university for a mandatory $40 per semester computer fee for all students, excluding graduate students.

Business and law students' current fees will increase to $40 per semester, while engineering students will continue to pay $100 per semester.

The UI would take in $1.54 million from the computer fees, said Susan Phillips, vice president for finance and university services, who added that the university is behind other universities with one work station for every 34 students. The University of Illinois has a ratio of one to 12 and the University of Michigan has one work station for every eight students.

A resolution from UISA supporting the fee was distributed at the meeting. "To say we support the fee would be deceiving — we accept it," said UISA President Matt Wise.

The regents disagreed with a provision in the resolution which stated that the fee not increase above $40 for two years. "If there is some reason this would need to be revisited, I'm sure students would be as reasonable then as they are being now," Pomerantz said.

Because it is a fee issue, the board will wait 30 days and vote on the proposal at their next meeting.

In addition, the regents received a report on the potential relationship between higher admission standards and declining enrollments, and urged that the universities continue to monitor the correlation.

Strike

"They want to take our work rules and change them at will," he said. "These are rules that protect our days off, our hours of service, starting times and other things. These are things that those who have gone before us fought for and won over the past 100 years, and they just want to throw them out the door."

"We want to work," said Glen Trexler, a local union official in Albuquerque, N.M. "We're not out here to be dissidents or anything. We just want to support our families."

There was some scuffling on picket lines in Philadelphia and one man was arrested. But in Kansas City, "everybody is being civil," said Al Mauro, vice president of Kansas City Southern.

Though the striking unions work on freight lines, most Amtrak passenger trains and many commuter trains run on tracks owned by the freight railroads and often rely on their union signalmen, brakemen and other employees.

About 21,000 commuters who rely on the state-run CalTrain on the San Francisco Peninsula had to find alternate ways to work Wednesday morning, but an agreement with local unions allowed service to resume on a limited basis in time for the afternoon rush, Southern Pacific said in a statement.

Service was expected to return to normal Thursday, said company spokesman Mike Brown.

But in Chicago, commuter trains ran on schedule after a court order kept open one railroad's commuter lines. Then three other railroads reached agreements to keep their commuters lines running.

Amtrak's busiest region, the Northeast corridor from Washington to Boston, was not affected because Amtrak owns that track, although some commuter lines outside Washington were shut down.

Massachusetts travelers wanting to take Amtrak's Springfield to Boston run had to take buses because Conrail controls the tracks.

General Motors Corp., Ford Motor Co. and Chrysler Corp. predicted a virtual production shutdown by week's end.

"We anticipate that approximately 75 to 80 percent of our operations will be affected within the next 24 hours and all plants will be affected by the end of the week," GM spokeswoman Karen Longridge said Wednesday.

Manufacturers in Rochester, N.Y., said a prolonged strike could have a disastrous effect.

"If the strike lasts longer than a week to 10 days — two weeks tops — it could put a stranglehold on our economy," said Charles Goodwin of the Greater Rochester (N.Y.) Metro Chamber of Commerce.

Eastman Kodak Co. officials said the photography company normally uses trains to deliver 40 percent of its film.

Farmers also were concerned. "In Minnesota, this is the planting season. There's a great deal of fertilizer moving up to Minnesota from the south right now. The strike does threaten to cut off fertilizer movement," said Minnesota Transportation Commissioner John Riley.

Bobby Morris hit his third home run of the season Wednesday as the Minnesota reliever John Low pitched but it wasn't enough to prevent Iowa from dropping the second game to Minnesota, 6-1.

"We're a better team than they are," Morris said. "We should have come out with two wins," Morris said. "We down in the second game, they jumped all over us. If we had won both, we would have broken even in the Big Ten. This hurts a lot."

In the second contest, the Hawkeyes built a 2-0 lead in the third inning when Charlie Nease singled, stole second and was home on a double by Brent Gates. Gates then advanced to third on a sacrifice bunt by Jeff Morlock and scored on a double by John Kopfer.

The Hawkeyes got on the board in the sixth when Kevin Mincey walked and was replaced by pinch runner Steve Eddie. Eddie advanced to second on a balk scored on a single by Mike Beley.

But the Gophers added four runs in the top of the seventh getting four hits, a sacrifice fly, a sacrifice bunt and a base on balls.

NEW YORK — Chicago lost its first game this season as Chicago's Cary made the New York Yankees' six-run second stand up with a strong performance to beat the White Sox 10-1 Wednesday.

The White Sox (6-1) return home Thursday to open the new Century Park with an afternoon game against the Detroit Tigers. Joe McDowell, who won Chicago's game at old Comiskey, is scheduled to start for the White Sox.

Cary (1-1) gave up three runs, struck out five and walked three in his first start, last Friday at Kansas City. Cary gave up eight earned runs in 3 1/3 innings. Plunk pitched the ninth.

Steve Sax, Don Mattingly, Rob Kelly and Mel Hall drove in runs apiece for the Yankees, who won for the third time in three games.

The Yankees sent 11 batters to plate in the second as Alex Fernandez failed to get an out and saw his earned-run average go from 1.27 to 1.78.

BOSTON — Jack Clark bled for a game after eight strikeouts during an 0-for-9 slump, returning with a two-run homer and doubling as Boston beat Kansas City.

Jackson perfect, Softball blanks Drake twice

Karen Jackson

By Brian Gaul
 The Daily Iowan

It looked, for a while, like the Drake softball team might never get a baserunner in its doubleheader with sixth-ranked Iowa on Tuesday.

Thirty-five straight Lady Bulldogs came to the plate.

Thirty-five straight Lady Bulldogs returned to the bench.

Freshman hurler Karen Jackson sat down the first 21 with the first perfect game of her career in Iowa's 1-0 victory in the opener. Junior Terri McFarland then threw 4 2/3 perfect innings in a 2-0 victory in the nightcap.

The sweep gave the Hawkeyes an eight-game winning streak and a 37-6 overall record. Drake fell to 18-20 overall.

The Lady Bulldogs finally broke the perfect string when senior Erin Mullink hit a hard grounder up the middle of the infield that scooted past diving second baseman Shelly Fowler for a two-out single in the fifth inning.

"I couldn't believe she got that hit," said Iowa's Anne Middleton, who caught both games. "She had been up all day, and she hadn't touched anything else. It's hard to believe she reached down and got that curveball."

Still, McFarland extended her scoreless-inning streak to 28 straight with her fourth consecutive shutout. McFarland, 15-4 overall, finished with a two-hitter.

The twin shutouts overshadowed two strong performances from Drake pitcher Laurie Bowden.

Bowden, who pitched both ends of the doubleheader, tossed a three-hitter in the opener and a four-hitter in the nightcap but fell to 15-13 overall. Bowden threw a no-hitter against Central College on Tuesday.

"Bowden threw well for them, but we were slow to adjust," Iowa coach Gayle Blevins said. "We've seen good pitchers in the past, and we've done a better job of adjusting."

Other than that, it was business as usual at the Hawkeye Softball Complex.

Amy Johnson, who is Iowa's leading hitter (.345) in the absence of injured junior Diane Pohl, singled and scored the go-ahead run in each game. The senior from Moline, Ill., went 2-for-5 in the twinbill.

Diana Repp, who leads the team with 10 game-winning RBIs, drove home Johnson both times with run-scoring singles. Repp, a Bobby Morris hit his third home run of the season Wednesday off Minnesota reliever John Lowery, but it wasn't enough to push Iowa past the Gophers in their nightcap Wednesday at Iowa Field.

The Hawkeyes (17-16-1 overall and 4-6 in the Big Ten) won the first game, 6-1, behind a brilliant performance by pitcher Brett Backlund. But they dropped the second game to Minnesota, 6-3.

"We're a better team than them; we should have come out with two wins," Morris said. "We let down in the second game, and they jumped all over us. If we had won both, we would have broken even in the Big Ten, so this hurts a lot."

In the second contest, the Gophers built a 2-0 lead in the third inning when Charlie Nelson singled, stole second and went home on a double by Brent Gates.

Gates then advanced to third on a sacrifice bunt by Jeff Monson and scored on a double by John Kopfer.

The Hawkeyes got on the board in the sixth when Kevin Minch walked and was replaced by pinch runner Steve Eddie, who advanced to second on a balk and scored on a single by Mike Bradley.

Mike Krach followed with a double, but Tim Killeen struck out to end the inning and the game.

Junior Tom Anderson (6-3) took the loss for Iowa, while Eric Slagle (3-1) got the win.

In the opener, Backlund (6-2) gave up four hits and one run while striking out nine and walking three in his fifth complete-game win of the season. David Anderson (1-1) took the loss.

Backlund, who fanned Minnesota's fourth, fifth and sixth hitters in order in the second inning, has 74 strikeouts and needs just 10 more to tie the school record for strikeouts in a season, set by current-Kansas City Royal Mike Boddicker in 1977.

Iowa 'workmen' top 'Clones, 7-2

Netters sweep intrastate series

By Michael Watkins
 The Daily Iowan

In what head coach Steve Houghton called a "workman-like performance," the Iowa men's tennis team defeated intrastate rival Iowa State 7-2 Wednesday afternoon, raising its record to 17-4 on the year.

The victory was the Hawkeyes' second straight over the Cyclones this season — they beat Iowa State 9-0 this January — and avenged a 6-3 loss they suffered in Ames last spring.

"We played well enough to win, but we weren't even close to playing as well as we did last weekend at Minnesota (5-4 win)," Houghton said. "If someone had asked me before we played today if I'd be satisfied to leave here with a 7-2 win, I would have definitely said 'Yes.' It's very difficult to play in Ames."

As indicated by the final score, this matchup with the Cyclones was much more closely contested than their previous meeting, with two of six singles and two of three doubles matches decided in three sets.

Among those going the distance was Iowa freshman Klas Bergstrom, who lost his fourth consecutive match this year at the No. 1 position. After taking the opening set in a 7-6 tie-breaker, Bergstrom dropped the second set 5-7 and the remainder of the match 6-2 to the Cyclones' top player, Anders Karlsson.

In their match earlier this year at the UI Recreation Building, Bergstrom dominated fellow Swede Karlsson 6-3, 6-3, and according to Houghton, both he and Bergstrom had anticipated a much tougher match from the Cyclones' top player.

"We really expected a closer match from Karlsson earlier this spring in Iowa City," Houghton said. "But Klas didn't play badly today. It's a real burden to play in the No. 1 spot — particularly as a freshman."

"I don't think that his game has gone downhill or anything, but you just have to realize that he is playing against the best players every time that he takes the court. That's not an easy task."

In a rematch with No. 2 Cyclone Rob Spears, Iowa senior Thomas Adler turned in a 6-3, 6-4 victory — a performance totally opposite of the way he played versus Spears earlier this spring. In that match, a tight, three-hour battle in which the momentum switched rackets countless times, Adler trailed 0-2 in final set before coming back to win 7-6, 6-7, 6-4.

"Thomas is playing with so much confidence right now that he thinks he's going to win every time he steps out onto the court," Houghton said. "I think that it was also to his advantage to play Spears outside this time rather than indoors."

Remaining strong on the season, team-captain Paul Buckingham rediscovered his lost concentration just in time to easily defeat Iowa State's No. 3 player, Owe Pipkorn 6-4, 6-2. Buckingham, who has consistently eliminated his opponents in straight sets this entire year, came back from being down 0-3 to Pipkorn to take six of the next seven games and the opening set.

Also recording straight-set victories were No. 4 seed Tommy Heiting, a 6-4, 7-6 winner over Cyclone Kai Gunderson, and sixth-seed freshman Todd Shale, who breezed past Iowa State's Mike Bennet 6-2, 6-2. Senior Greg Hebard needed three sets to oust Mickey Ramsey 6-3, 2-6, 6-3 for his 19th victory this year.

"Although the score of his match makes it look like he won easily, Buckingham really had to work for his points," Houghton said. "Tommy also had a tough time in his match after trailing 2-5 and then 5-6 in the second set before winning."

Yankees stop White Sox streak, 10-1

Red Sox beat Royals on Clark homer

The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Chicago lost its first game this season as Chuck Cary made the New York Yankees' six-run second stand up with eight strong innings to beat the White Sox 10-1 Wednesday.

The White Sox (6-1) return home Thursday to open the new Comiskey Park with an afternoon game against the Detroit Tigers. Jack McDowell, who won Chicago's last game at old Comiskey, is scheduled to start for the White Sox.

Cary (1-1) gave up three hits, struck out five and walked two. In his first start, last Friday at Kansas City, Cary gave up eight earned runs in 3 1/2 innings. Eric Plunk pitched the ninth.

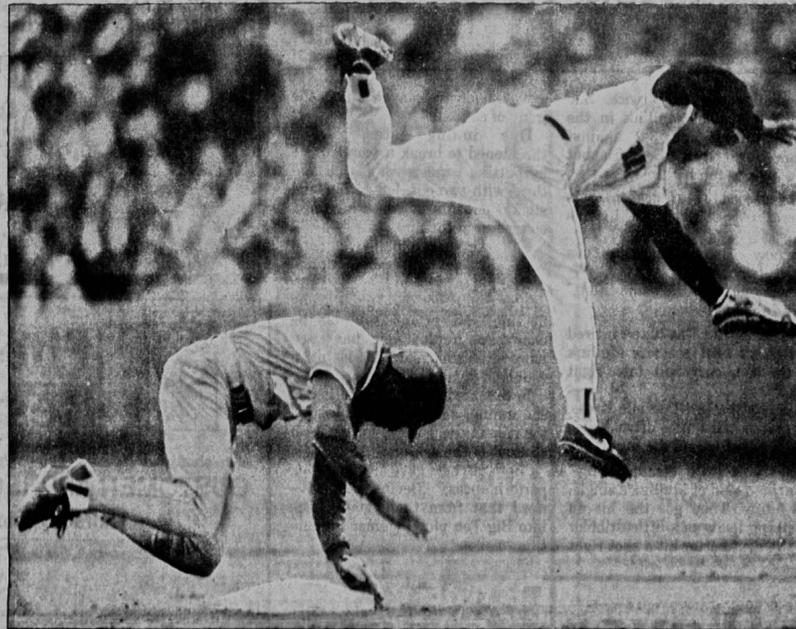

American League

Steve Sax, Don Mattingly, Roberto Kelly and Mel Hall drove in two runs apiece for the Yankees, who won for the third time in nine games.

The Yankees sent 11 batters to the plate in the second as Alex Fernandez failed to get an out and saw his earned-run average go from 1.23 to 7.78.

Red Sox 6, Royals 2
 BOSTON — Jack Clark, benched for a game after eight strikeouts during an 0-for-9 slump, returned with a two-run homer and double as Boston beat Kansas City.

Tom Bolton, making his first start this season, allowed six hits in seven innings as the Red Sox beat the Royals for the second game in a row after losing five of six. Jeff Gray pitched two innings for his first save.

Clark, who ended his drought with a second-inning double, broke a 2-2 tie with his second homer, a drive into the screen in left in the fourth off Storm Davis (1-1). Mike Greenwell hit his first homer and Tom Brunansky drove in two runs.

Danny Tartabull drove in one run and scored another for Kansas City.

Jeff Gray replaced Bolton at the start of the eighth and earned his first save.

Tigers 5, Blue Jays 4, 10

DETROIT — Milt Cuyler's speed and mistakes by Toronto catcher Pat Borders accounted for the winning run in the 10th inning, after Detroit got a game-tying pinch-homer from Lou Whitaker in the ninth.

With two outs, Pete Incaviglia reached on an infield single and Cuyler ran for him. Cuyler stole second and took third when Borders' throw went into center field for an error. After Dave Bergman was intentionally walked, Duane Ward's first pitch to Travis Fryman got by Borders for a passed ball, allowing Cuyler to score.

Ward (0-1) struck out the first two batters to start the ninth before Mickey Tettleton hit a pinch single and John Shelby reached on an infield single. Whitaker, pinch hitting for Tony Phillips, hit the first pitch into the upper deck in right field to tie the game.

Rookie Denis Boucher allowed four hits in seven innings and Kelly Gruber hit his third homer and had two RBIs for Toronto.

Brewers 7, Orioles 3

MILWAUKEE — Paul Molitor doubled to cap a two-out, four-run rally in the fourth inning and Gary Sheffield homered Wednesday night as the Milwaukee Brewers beat the Baltimore Orioles 7-3.

Darryl Hamilton worked Dave Johnson for a two-out walk in the fourth and Jim Gantner, B.J. Surhoff and Billy Spiers followed with singles for a 3-2 lead. Surhoff was 1-for-22 before his run-scoring single.

Molitor got in an 0-2 hole, worked Johnson to a full count and then lined a two-run double into the left-field corner. Sheffield led off the bottom of the fifth with his first homer, finishing Johnson (1-1).

Jaime Navarro (1-0) went 6 1/2 innings.

Cubs sweep Phillies behind red-hot Bell

The Associated Press

CHICAGO — George Bell homered and drove in two runs Wednesday as the Chicago Cubs won their fifth straight game and completed a three-game sweep of the Philadelphia Phillies, 4-1.

The Cubs finished their season-opening homestand with a 6-3 record. They play their first road game Thursday night at Pittsburgh.

Shawn Boskie (1-1) went 6 1/2 innings, allowing one run and four hits. He walked four and struck out three before leaving with a two-strike count on Len Dykstra and a runner on first base. Paul Assenmacher got Dykstra on a fly ball to right and struck out pinch-hitter Ricky Jordan. Dave Smith, the third Chicago pitcher, got the last three outs for his fourth save.

Pat Combs (1-1) allowed three runs on six hits in 5 1/2 innings. He also threw two wild pitches, leading to Chicago's second run.

Bell led off the bottom of the second with his second home run in two days, a drive over the left-field fence on a 3-2 pitch. Two outs later, Shawn Dunston doubled to left, went to third on a wild pitch by Combs and scored when Combs threw another wild pitch while intentionally walking Gary Scott.

Dunston left the game with a strained right hamstring in the fourth inning after pulling up between first and second on his double two innings earlier.

Expos 1, Cardinals 0
 MONTREAL — Bill Sampen pitched seven shutout innings and Barry Jones finished the six-hitter Wednesday night as the Montreal Expos beat the St. Louis Cardinals 1-0.

Montreal got the only run in the first when Delino DeShields led off with a single, took second on Marquis Grissom's sacrifice, stole third and scored on catcher Tom Pagnozzi's throwing error.

three starting pitchers. Sampen (1-0), allowed three hits, struck out five, walked two and did not allow more than one runner in any inning after the first.

Ray Lankford singled with one out in the ninth off Jones and Felix Jose doubled off Tim Lincecum's glove at third with two outs. Todd Zeile, worst in the National League last season with a .162 average with runners in scoring position, flied to right for the final out as Jones got his first save.

Jamie Moyer (0-2) allowed five hits in seven innings for the Cardinals. Dodgers 6, Giants 2 SAN FRANCISCO — Brett Butler broke a dry spell against his former teammates by doubling and scoring the go-ahead run, and Bob Ojeda got his first victory for Los Angeles as the Dodgers beat the San Francisco Giants 6-2 Wednesday. Butler, hitless in his previous nine-at-bats in the three-game series, reached second after getting a hit off the glove of second baseman Robbie Thompson after reliever Rick Reuschel (0-2) retired the first two Dodgers with the scored tied 2-2 in the seventh inning. Juan Samuel doubled to score Butler, who later added a sacrifice fly. Ojeda (1-1) allowed five hits and two runs in six innings. He also got two hits, the second to start the sixth inning, in which the Dodgers tied the score. The Dodgers, getting two RBIs from hot-hitting Mike Scioscia, took two of three games in the series. Astros 4, Braves 3 ATLANTA — Mark Davidson drove in two runs in a three-run Houston first inning Wednesday night and the Astros held on for a 4-3 victory over the Atlanta Braves, who continued to stumble at home. The Braves (3-4) have lost four of five at Atlanta-Fulton County Stadium. Their only victory was 10-4 Tuesday night over the Astros. Houston took a 3-0 lead in the first off Steve Avery (1-1). Rafael Ramirez walked, Craig Biggio singled to extend his hitting streak to eight, Ken Caminiti hit an RBI single and Davidson added his two-run single. Biggio, who had three hits, leads the National League in hitting with a .438 average.

Deion Sanders singled to open the Braves' first and scored on Jeff Treadway's first homer of the season, a 379-foot drive off Mark Portugal (2-0). Houston added an unearned run in the seventh when Jeff Bagwell hit a run-scoring single following third baseman Jeff Blauser's error on Caminiti's grounder. Blauser pulled the Braves to 4-3 in the seventh with a home run off Portugal. Portugal allowed six hits in seven innings, struck out six and walked none. Al Osuna got five consecutive outs and Curt Schilling finished for his third save.

Baseball

The junior from Salem, Ore., gave up one hit to Gopher center fielder Ryan Lefebvre in the first inning, but didn't allow another until the sixth when Lefebvre and Gates both singled. "I thought I had a good fastball and that set up my breaking pitches," Backlund said. "The velocity was there, even with only two days' rest. They were really at my mercy for my breaking balls."

The Hawkeyes, on the other hand, jumped out to a 2-0 lead in the first inning on consecutive singles by Danan Hughes and Matt Johnson and a triple by Morris. Iowa added another run in the fourth when Killeen walked, advance a base on a John Pratt single, went to third on a sacrifice bunt by Bradley and scored on a single by Jay Polson. The Hawkeyes' lead improved to 4-0 in the fifth after Morris walked and Minch tripled him in. The Gophers scored their first run in the sixth when Lefebvre singled, advanced on a wild pitch and scored from second on a single to center by Gates. But with two out in the bottom of the sixth, Larsen and Hughes hit consecutive singles, advanced on a walk to Matt Johnson and scored on a single by Morris as the Hawkeyes won the game, 6-1. Morris, a freshman third baseman, was 3-for-6 on the day with a homer, a triple, two runs scored and six RBIs. The Gophers were led in hitting by 4-for-7 and 4-for-6 efforts by Lefebvre and Gates, respectively. "We played well in the first game," Backlund said. "We're a much-better team when we get out and score first. If we struggle, it's at the plate and when we get behind, it really puts pressure on us."

Softball

senior third baseman, leads the team with 22 RBIs. And the pitching and defense once again did the rest. "Well, it was pitching and defense again today," Blevins said, "and a couple of timely hits by Diana Repp. When you're not hitting much, you've got to get them when they count." While the two seniors were the hitting heroes, it was the freshman who clearly stole the spotlight in the opener. Jackson, a frosh from Roseville, Calif., threw 66 pitches, struck out eight and walked none for her 18th win, 12th shutout, third no-hitter and first perfect game. The closest Drake came to a hit was when senior Kam Butler dropped a perfect bunt in front of the plate in the sixth. Middleton fielded it and threw wildly to first base, but Butler was called out for leaving the batter's box too soon. All that came on the heels of a four-strikeout, five-hit, one-run performance against Iowa State on Tuesday that Jackson said was a poor game. "I had a bad day," Jackson said. "I wanted to come out and prove myself after (Tuesday), not for myself or for the fans, but for the team. The team helped me out a lot Tuesday and I wanted to return the favor." "It's easy to look at the results and think you did fine," Blevins said of Jackson's game against Iowa State. "We look at the approach to the game. Yesterday, (pitching coach) Ruth Crowe and I were both perturbed with her. She was behind in the count a lot, and she just didn't have that same aggressive attitude." Wednesday, Jackson worked to a three-ball count only twice. She went 3-0 against Mullink in the second inning and 3-2 against Aimee Sawdey in the fifth but came back to fan both players. "It was good to see (Jackson) come out and respond like that," Blevins said. So how does one follow up on a perfect game? "I wanted to do the same thing," McFarland said. She nearly did. The junior retired the first 14 hitters before Mullink hit the 0-1 curveball into right field. The next batter, Danielle Kress, then hit a hard line drive which Repp speared to end the inning. "It was a little disappointing," McFarland said of Mullink's single. "It's funny. They got the hit on something I saw as a little dribbler and the next batter hit a shot right at our defensive player. That's the irony of softball." One inning later, Drake threatened to break a scoreless tie by putting runners on second and third with two out, but McFarland struck out Maria Mikuska on a changeup in the dirt. Mikuska took a half-swing and was called out by the field official on the play. "I've finally got that (pitch) going for me," McFarland said of the changeup, a pitch she has used more often this year. "It took me a couple of years." Iowa scored twice in the bottom of the inning, and McFarland retired the side in the seventh for her 10th shutout of the season. "Both pitchers gave us real strong performances," Blevins said. "We need that from them going back into Big Ten play (against Indiana this weekend)."

McFarland Big Ten Player of Week

DI wire services Iowa softball pitcher Terri McFarland was named Big Ten Player of the Week for her performance during the week of April 7-14. The junior from Sacramento, Calif., threw two complete-game shutouts during No. 6 Iowa's four-game sweep of No. 14 Michigan April 12-13.

Bulldogs, is currently ranked 3rd in the nation with an 18-1 record and 0.20 ERA. The Hawkeyes (37-6) are the No. 2 pitching team in the nation, behind No. 1-ranked and four-time defending champion UCLA. UNI signs state champion Scarbrough CEDAR FALLS — State champion wrestler Sean Scarbrough of Waterloo Columbus has signed with Northern Iowa. Scarbrough capped a 32-1 season by winning the Class 3A state title at 160 pounds last month. He finished fourth at 152 as a junior and compiled a career record of 90-17-2. Scarbrough also earned all-metro honors as a running back in football. Northern Iowa was 16-5 this past season. The Panthers finished 11th at the NCAA meet. Dibble, Yelding suspended for fight NEW YORK — Cincinnati reliever Rob Dibble was suspended today for three games for throwing at Houston's Eric Yelding, while the shortstop was given a one-day suspension for charging the mound during a Reds-Astros game last week. Both appealed their suspensions, handed out by NL president Bill White, and will be allowed to continue playing pending hearings. Hearing dates have not been set. A ninth-inning Dibble fastball that went a foot behind Yelding's back touched off a benches-clearing brawl. Yelding sprinted to the mound, took off his batting helmet and threw it at Dibble's left shoulder. The two went down in a tangle, but order was promptly restored. Dibble and Yelding were ejected from the game. Astros manager Art Howe said at the time that Dibble should be suspended. "He's head-hunting," Howe said. "It's not safe for anybody out there. He has too much control to be throwing like that, and everybody knows it. It's a weak act, period." "I've pitched like that my entire career," Dibble said.

White Sox coming to new home

By Mario Fox The Associated Press CHICAGO — After their first loss of the season, the Chicago White Sox could use a change of scenery. And they'll get it when they return home for Thursday's opener against Detroit in the new Comiskey Park. The old Comiskey, built in 1910, still being torn down across the street from the new 44,702-seat Comiskey, which cost $135 million and features everything from unobstructed views of the field from every seat to party suites and skyboxes. "I can't believe we've gotten to this point after so many obstacles," White Sox owner Jerry Reinsdorf said at the "Christen the Park" ceremony earlier this week. Mike Vecek, son of late club owner Bill Vecek, said he could feel "millions and millions of spirits" of old ballplayers crossing from the old park to the new one. "We're opening the doors to millions of kids looking for the 'heroes,'" said Vecek, president of Class A Miami of the Florida State League. The first game in the new stadium will occur less than three years after the club's last move to Florida. It also takes place a day after the New York Yankees beat the White Sox 10-1, Chicago's first loss in seven games. Concerned about the lack of progress being made on a new stadium, Reinsdorf and co-owner Eddie Eischhorn threatened to move the team to St. Petersburg in the spring of 1988. But then-Gov. James R. Thompson went to bat for the team and got the Illinois General Assembly to pass a stadium financing bill in the final minutes of the legislative session on June 30, 1988. After Reliable Paste Co., McCurtin's bar and a group of houses on the South Armour Square neighborhood were knocked down, ground-breaking ceremonies for the new park were held on May 1989. White Sox officials went around the country trying to add the best features of other parks — old and new — to Comiskey II. Other features in the new park are a Stadium Club, skybox, escalators, a giant video scoreboard and diaper-changing areas in both men's and women's rooms. "Remarkably, it is pretty much what I had hoped," said Terri Saveris, vice president of stadium operations. "Most of it is what had pictured in my mind." It's the majors' first baseball-park build in the United States since Kansas City's Royals Stadium opened in 1973. "It's similar to Royals Stadium that it's a baseball-only park, but we have more of a tradition look," said Saveris. "We have more of a plaster and masonry look and there's is more sucsuait."

A year after Busch Stadium opened, the St. Louis Cardinals won the World Series. Three years after Royals Stadium opened, Kansas City won three straight division titles. After Riverfront Stadium opened in 1970, the Cincinnati Reds won six of the next NL West titles. But in the short run, the White Sox would be happy to improve their 0-2 record in stadium openings. They made their AL debut at Park at 39th Street and Princeton Avenue on April 21, 1900, losing the Milwaukee Brewers 5-4, as they opened Comiskey I on July 1910, bowing to the St. Louis Browns 2-0.

Arkansas players get their suspensions reduced

By Ron Fournier
The Associated Press

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. — One-year suspensions given to four Arkansas basketball players involved in a sexual incident on campus were drastically reduced Wednesday by the system president.

Forward Todd Day and three teammates now will be held out only until December, meaning they'll miss a tournament in Hawaii and perhaps some non-conference games, Arkansas system president B. Alan Sugg said. Coach Dan Richardson broke his silence on the matter Wednesday, saying he had been prepared to offer his resignation to university chancellor Dan Ferritor over the incident. Ferritor, according to Richardson, said running away wouldn't solve the problem.

Lawyers for the players said they were pleased with the ruling by Sugg.

Sugg said school officials "up and down the line," including Ferritor, Richardson and athletic director Frank Broyles, made a mistake by dragging their feet on the incident. Broyles was urged by Ferritor in February to make sure strong and quick action was taken against the players. Broyles and Richardson rejected the advice.

Day and teammates Darrell Hawkins, Elmer Martin and Roosevelt Wallace were suspended from the basketball team for a year by the All University Judicial Board, highly placed university sources said. They couldn't play or practice under the ruling, which was appealed to Sugg.

Hawkins would have been suspended from school under the judicial board ruling, sources said Wednesday.

A 34-year-old Springdale woman told police she was sexually assaulted at the athletic dormitory Feb. 27, and identified the four players. The woman did not press charges and prosecutor Andrew Ziser said evidence wasn't sufficient to file charges. The players conceded they had sex with the woman, but said she consented.

Sugg said his review of the hearing before the judicial board convinced him that the woman consented. He declined to comment on the board's decision, but indicated that the issue of consent was the main point

"I do believe that Todd, Roosevelt, Darrell and Elmer broke a university student conduct regulation by participating in a degrading act by engaging in serial consensual sexual intercourse. I consider this conduct simply wrong and insensitive to an appropriate code of conduct on the university campus."

B. Alan Sugg
Arkansas system president of difference between Sugg and the board.

"I do believe that Todd, Roosevelt, Darrell and Elmer broke a university student conduct regulation by participating in a degrading act by engaging in serial consensual sexual intercourse. I consider this conduct simply wrong and insensitive to an appropriate code of conduct on the university campus," Sugg said, reading from a prepared statement.

He said the students:
■ Will be on personal conduct probation effective immediately and extending through the end of the 1991 fall semester, which ends in December.

■ Can practice but can't play with the team until the end of November.

■ Will be required to participate in a non-credit weekly educational seminar on issues "which relate directly or indirectly to this incident."

"It's a judgment call. To the degree of wrong they did, I think it is a fair disciplinary measure of the actions they took," Sugg said. "You have to come down someplace and I had to make a decision."

He said students weren't treated differently because they were athletes.

The players could appeal the decision to the board of trustees, but that didn't appear likely.

The woman's lawyer, Doug Norwood of Rogers, wasn't available for comment. He has threatened civil action against the players and school officials.

"When I met with those players, they were deeply apologetic. They have great remorse. They're very sorry about what they did," Sugg said.

Sugg suggested he "made a bad mistake and I think everybody up and down the line — between the coaches, the athletic director and the president — we made a mistake in not taking immediate action," Sugg said.

"It looked like we were not in control of the situation. It looked like that we're not concerned about it. It looked like we were not concerned about the proper conduct of athletes. It sent a terrible message to the state of Arkansas and, actually, the nation."

"They understand that they have made a mistake," Eddie Christian Sr., Day's lawyer, said of the players. "They understand they have exercised poor judgment. Certainly this has been a learning experience for them."

Christian said he didn't know whether the ruling or the publicity over the case might push Day, a junior, into making himself available for the NBA draft.

Jim Rose, Martin's lawyer, said the "magnitude of the situation, warranted or not, brought on by the excessive, sometimes sensationalized and sometimes inaccurate media coverage, had become a major, if not the major factor, to be dealt with."

Richardson earlier had suspended Hawkins from the first three games of next season for having the woman in his room during hours when woman visitors were not allowed in the dormitory.

Richardson said publicity over the incident has hurt recruiting.

"There is no question that articles show up in recruits' homes," he said during a news conference at the school's athletic complex.

Nuggets clinch as NBA's worst

The Associated Press

DENVER — Many of the NBA's so-called "established" clubs have muscled in — well, more like staggered in — on the draft lottery process usually dominated by expansion clubs.

Thanks to a 153-118 thrashing at the hands of the Phoenix Suns on Tuesday night, the Denver Nuggets have clinched the worst record in the NBA this season. But the Nuggets aren't the only established team embarrassed by their record. They've got plenty of company.

Expansion teams, by comparison, are faring relatively well. In fact, of the six teams with the worst records in the NBA, four — Denver, Sacramento, New Jersey and Dallas — are established clubs.

At 19-60, the Nuggets are a full four games worse than any other team, giving them the best odds at getting the No. 1 pick in the lottery. Sacramento and expansionist Miami are next at 23-56.

Then come New Jersey (24-55), expansionist Charlotte (25-54) and Dallas (26-53), which advanced to the Western Conference playoff finals just three seasons ago.

The Mavericks are followed by a pair of expansion teams, Minnesota (27-52) and Orlando (29-50), then a pair of teams having bad seasons — Cleveland and Washington (both 30-49) — and the perennially downtrodden Los Angeles Clippers (31-48).

With three games left on the schedule, the Nuggets, losers of nine straight games and 16 of their last 17, are assured of their worst record ever. They've already become only the 34th team in the 44-year history of the NBA to lose at least 60 games.

"I have no thoughts about it," beleaguered coach Paul Westhead said when asked about clinching the worst record for the season.

"It can't get any worse, I hope," said team captain Michael Adams — several hours before it actually did get worse. Adams, who scored 23 points Tuesday night despite being hampered by a stiff neck and a chest cold, entered a Denver hospital on Wednesday for tests.

Adams said he wanted to "win at least one more game to get some satisfaction for the rest of the season, anyway." For Adams, 20 wins somehow sounds better than 19.

Westhead insisted he would "like to play 15 to 20 more games if it meant something."

It doesn't, so the May 19th lottery is all that the Nuggets — outclassed and wracked by injuries all season — can look forward to.

In the lottery, which involves the 11 teams that failed to make the playoffs, the Nuggets will be awarded 11 ping-pong balls in the hopper; the second-worst team gets 10 balls, down to the best non-qualifier, which gets one. That means the Nuggets' mathematical chance of getting the first pick in the draft is 16.7 percent — better than any of the other 10 lottery teams.

The lottery process will be repeated to determine the second and third spots in the first round. But thereafter, regular-season records will determine spots four through 11. That ensures the Nuggets of picking no worse than fourth in the first round of the draft on June 26.

"We know we'll pick no worse than fourth," Nuggets general manager Bernie Bickerstaff said, "and I'm confident we can get a good player at any of the top four spots."

Holtz says Phelps left of free will

By Rick Scoppe
The Associated Press

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. — Notre Dame football coach Lou Holtz is convinced Digger Phelps was not forced to quit as the university's basketball coach.

In fact, Holtz said Phelps had advised him in the past to do just what Phelps did Monday.

"He told me on several occasions that I was foolish to continue to coach after we won the national championship," Holtz said Wednesday before playing in the Heritage Classic pro-am.

"He said, 'Man, you ought to retire and get on to other things in your life.' I think there was a lot of things that Digger wanted to do with his life."

Holtz said he believed Phelps left of his "own free will."

"Here's a guy who's been there 20 years. You're going to have to retire sooner or later," Holtz said. "He chose when."

"If you (the school) were going to make a change, you'd do it before signing date. ... I'm perfectly convinced that it was Digger's decision completely."

Holtz also said nothing should be read into the fact Phelps' immediate bosses did not attend his news conference announcing his retirement.

"I would think ... they would have been there had the schedule been such," Holtz said. "I think when Digger makes a decision to go it's not necessary to be there."

Obvious new rock

The package assured "10 HOT PHOTO CARDS" and "10 about your favorite pop and rap stars." Well, I doubt there would be trading cards of my favorite rock, pop and stars, but, ever the sucker for glamour, I made the purchase. One set of ten Yo! MTV ProSet MusiCards and one set of ten ProSet Superstars MusiCards. The Yo! cards are pretty satirical; each of Digital Underground and Nilla Ice, who looks like that of the late John on one of the cards — or so I told. Also included in the set: De La Soul, Public Enemy, Eazy M.C. Hammer, Bell Biv DeVoe, Eric B. & Rakim. Quite the package.

What's Up

By Jennifer Weglarz

The so-called facts about the former aren't exactly new flashes. Hammer's name is Burrell (though magazine art have included "Stanley" as well). The PE facts are pretty surprising including only Chuck D. and Flavor Flav's names (Carlton R. R. Johnson and William Drayton, respectively, if you must know), and cryptic "Yo! Fact": "Public Enemy's DJ is Terminator X. Terminator X never speaks, using his hands. He has been with Public Enemy since its beginning. I also known as 'The Ass Technician.'" Maybe the cards were printed before Sister Souljah joined the group.

The wrapper also offers a Collector Book for a total of $5 including five collector sheets. (Indeed!) I'm not opting for purchase just yet (hell, I still have Batman cards to collect), but Obvious inclusions dominate new rock 'n' rap star cards

The package assured me "10 HOT PHOTO-CARDS" and "facts about your favorite rock, pop and rap stars." Well, I really doubt there would be trading cards of my favorite rock, pop and rap stars, but, ever the sucker for glamour, I made the purchase of one set of ten Yo! MTV Raps ProSet MusicCards and one set of ten ProSet Superstars MusicCards.

The Yo! cards are pretty satisfying: Each of Digital Underground and Nilla Ice, whose hair looks like that of the late John Sex on one of the cards — or so I'm told. Also included in the set are De La Soul, Public Enemy, EPMD, M.C. Hammer, Bell Biv DeVoe and Eric B. & Rakim. Quite the pantheon.

What's Up

By Jennifer Weglarz

The so-called facts about the performers aren't exactly news flashes. Hammer's name is Kirk Burrell (though magazine articles have included "Stanley" as well). The PE facts are pretty sparse, including only Chuck D. and Flavor Flav's names (Carlton Ridenhour and William Drayton, respectively, if you must know), and this cryptic "Yo! Fact": "Public Enemy's DJ is Terminator X. Terminator X never speaks, using only his hands. He has been with Public Enemy since its beginning. He is also known as 'The Assault Technician.'" Maybe the cards were printed before Sister Souljah joined the group.

The wrapper also offers a Card Collector Book for a total of $9.95, including five collector sheets. (Yo, indeed!) I'm not opting for this purchase just yet (hell, I still have Batman cards to collect), but I am going to organize the Yo! cards by record label, since this is helpfully, yet somewhat mysteriously, listed with the "Yo! Facts." So far I have three from Tommy Boy (thumbs up!), two each from SBK, MCA and Def Jam, and one from Capitol.

The Superstars series are not as nifty as the Yo! set. The members of Little Feat, whose faces are all clipped from individual photos and who are not my favorite rock, pop and rap stars, appear a little grizzled next to the likes of Alannah Myles, Ted Nugent, the sadly surnameless Dino, and "Legends" The Doors. There was, however, a second Eric B. & Rakim card, which will go in my Yo! collection. This makes three MCA cards, except the Superstars cards do not list the record label, so it doesn't really count.

When do we get our Superstar MusicCards? Inquire the indisputably angelic members of Redd Kross: Jeffrey McDonald, Steven McDonald and Robert Hecker.

in each case I was urged to "try again," though the 10-cent-off coupon on my next purchase of Superstars Music T-Shirts ("When was the first?" she wondered aloud) more than compensated for this immediate loss.

He talks so hip: I guess at this point it's probably necessary to mention that Shaun Ryder of Happy Mondays is indeed saying the word "melon" in "Step On." I, for one, can rest a little easier having cracked that broad Manchester drawl. Now, as to the bassist of Inspiral Carpets. . .

You know you've got to boogie 'cuz your platforms are fine: Perhaps the most moving moment at the Redd Kross concert last Friday at Gabe's (not counting the truly beautiful falsetto of Robert Hecker on the obligatory Kiss cover "I Was Made For Loving You") was the rendition of the "Charles In Charge" theme. Had I not been dancing, I would have been weeping openly.

"Terminator X never speaks."

There are also Historic Concerts cards, featuring promo posters of "The Byrds at the Fillmore West, San Francisco, January 2-4, 1970" and "Big Brother and the Holding Company at the Fillmore West, San Francisco, September 9-14, 1968." It would seem, though the psychedelic lettering on the Big Brother poster is a rather tricky affair to read, that Santana and Chicago Transit Authority were also on the bill.

As an incentive (though who would really need one?) both packs of cards included Instant Win Games;

Woman sues King, charges plagiarism

The Associated Press

TRENTON, N.J. — A woman is suing author Stephen King claiming the horror novelist plagiarized from her writings and based a character in "Misery" on her.

Anne Hiltner also claims King burglarized her home and stole manuscripts, including ones for his best-selling novel, "Misery." King's attorney angrily denied the allegations.

Hiltner, of Princeton, is seeking damages, a share in book profits, and its removal from store shelves. She claims King stole in 1986 or 1987 eight copyrighted manuscripts written either by her or her brother, James Hiltner.

Hiltner charges the author incorporated parts of her unpublished works into "Misery." The movie based on the book earned actress Kathy Bates an Academy Award for best actress.

King's attorney, Arthur Green, said this week that he had not been served with the lawsuit but added he was "well aware" of Hiltner. He said she has been writing to King for the past decade.

"Nothing about what she does surprises me," Green said. "We've been dealing with her for a long time." Hiltner filed the lawsuit on her own behalf in March in U.S. District Court in Trenton, N.J.

New Seagal movie tops box office

The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — "Out for Justice" was in for money, as the action film starring Steven Seagal made $10.5 million in its debut weekend for the No. 1 spot at the box office.

"Out for Justice," the highest-opening film the ponytailed martial arts star has had, earned nearly twice as much as the No. 2 film, "Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles II: The Secret of the Ooze." It collected $5.9 million, Entertainment Data Inc. reported Monday.

Third place, "The Silence of the Lambs," earned $4.1 million over the weekend, making it the first 1991 release to pass the $100 million mark in total earnings. The movie, starring Jodie Foster as an FBI trainee in pursuit of a serial killer, has earned $100.1 million.

Buoyed by its Oscars, "Dances With Wolves" held fourth place with ticket sales of $3.5 million.

"Home Alone" was in ninth place and about to slip off the charts. It made $1.8 million for a total of $262.5 million and is about to pass "The Return of the Jedi" at $263 million to become the third highest-grossing release ever.

Here are the top movie ticket sales Friday through Sunday according to Entertainment Data.

1. "Out for Justice," Warner Bros., $10.5 million, 2,010 screens, $5,235 per screen, $10.5 million, one week.
2. "Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles II," New Line Cinema, $5.9 million, 2,783 screens, $2,106 per screen, $61.5 million, four weeks.
3. "The Silence of the Lambs," Orion, $4.1 million, 1,635 screens, $2,536 per screen, $100.1 million, nine weeks.
4. "Dances With Wolves," Orion, $3.5 million, 1,612 screens, $2,150 per screen, $155.7 million.

Blues won't get fooled again

Narrow escape from Detroit has them wary of Minnesota

By R.B. Fallstrom
The Associated Press

ST. LOUIS — The St. Louis Blues won't get fooled again.

After their narrow escape in the first round against Detroit, the heavily favored Blues are in no danger of getting overconfident in the Norris Division finals against the Minnesota North Stars.

The series starts Thursday night in St. Louis.

"This favoritism in the playoffs means nothing," right wing Dave Lowry said after the Blues defeated the Detroit Red Wings 3-2 in Game 7 of their first-round series Tuesday night.

"You look at Chicago, and they were favored to win it all. We were favored to take Detroit in four games. Minnesota is playing extremely well and they've got a talented hockey team."

Both of the Campbell Conference second-round series may look like mismatches.

The Blues finished 37 points ahead of Minnesota and the Los Angeles Kings ended up 22 points ahead of Edmonton, who they'll face for the third consecutive year and the sixth time in 10 seasons. That series begins Thursday night in Inglewood, Calif.

Like the Blues, the Kings know better than to look ahead. Edmonton struggled during the regular season, finishing with its worst record in a decade. But the Oilers swept the Kings in four games in last year's Smythe final and went on to their fifth Stanley Cup in seven years.

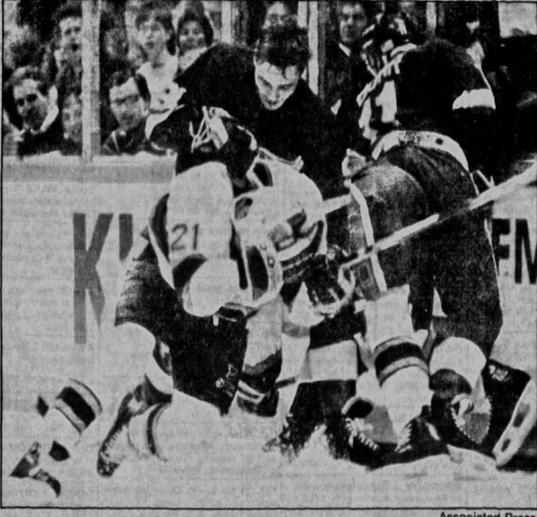

The Oilers advanced to the second round with a 5-4 overtime victory at Calgary on Tuesday night in the seventh game of their first-round series.

"They've got a lot of playoff experience," Kings coach Tom Webster said. "They've been through this so many times. They know what it takes to win a Stanley Cup. They've become accustomed to playing under this kind of pressure."

Plus, it's not hard to be humble when the Stanley Cup field is already missing a couple of top contenders.

The Blackhawks won the overall regular-season title with 106 points but fell in six games to Minnesota. Calgary, which finished with 100 points, couldn't make it past Edmonton.

In fact, nobody had an easy time in the first round. No series went fewer than six games — the first time that's happened since the opening round went to a best-of-7 format in 1987. So the Blues don't put much stock in their 5-1-2 regular-season record against the North Stars.

Jeff Brown of the St. Louis Blues is attacked by Red Wing Sergei Fedorov during the Blues' 3-2 win Tuesday, which capped the 7-game series. The Blues will face Minnesota tonight in the Norris finals.

"Right now we're on a good streak, but we're starting from scratch again," left wing Rod Brind'Amour said.

Against Detroit, the Blues became the eighth team in NHL history to come back from a 3-1 deficit to win a playoff series. Brett Hull's league-leading eighth playoff goal on a breakaway with 21 seconds left in the second period put the Blues ahead to stay.

Hull has 94 goals and is zeroing in on Wayne Gretzky's NHL record of 100 goals in a season, counting playoffs. Adam Oates also had a productive series against Detroit, finishing with 4 goals and 9 assists for 13 points, tying him with Hull for the playoff scoring lead.

North Stars coach Bob Gainey didn't say whether he planned to match one player on Hull or one line against Oates' line. The North Stars don't have a regular checking line, so he'd have to create one.

"Obviously, if you stop Oates' line, you've stopped about 70 percent of their scoring," North Stars defenseman Mark Tinordi said. "That's a big factor in our game plan. But they were the second-best team in the league and they didn't get that way because they only have two good players."

Although Hull finished second in the league in scoring and Oates third, defense is the real key to the Blues' success.

In the Blues' four first-round victories, they allowed only five goals. Goaltender Vincent Riendeau, who was yanked in a 6-3 loss in Game 1, went 121:12 in one stretch without allowing a goal.

The North Stars also enter the playoffs with a hot goaltender, Jon Casey, who was pulled twice against Chicago but ended up with a 2.55 goals-against average and a shutout. But it was the Minnesota power play that buried the Blackhawks, tying a playoff record by going 15-for-54.

Brian Bellows had 12 points in the first round, and three of his four goals came with the man advantage. Tinordi and Brian Propp also had three power-play goals apiece.

"They're not wasting any time," Riendeau said. "They don't look for the pretty goals."
