ZAGREB, Yugoslavia (AP) — Yugoslav soldiers backed by tanks and helicopters moved into Slovenia on Wednesday to quell the growing rebellion there, three days after the nation's president declared a state of emergency.

A wing of the Yugoslav army crossed the border into former Yugoslavia's Istria peninsula, seizing Slovenia's capital of Ljubljana, and other towns. Slovenia's government reported that several people were killed and dozens more wounded in the fighting.

The operation, which began Tuesday, was the first major military action since the breakup of Yugoslavia in 1991. It was also the first time that Yugoslav troops have been deployed outside the country since the war began in 1992.

FHA will provide low-interest loans

Jennifer Dean

The Daily Iowan

WASHINGTON — Low- and moderate-income homebuyers would have an easier time purchasing homes under a new program announced Thursday by the Federal Housing Administration.

Under the program, the FHA will guarantee up to $150,000 in loans for homebuyers earning up to $25,000 a year. The program would end in three years.

The FHA's Board of Directors approved the program Thursday. The program will be available to homebuyers earning $25,000 a year or less. The FHA will guarantee up to $150,000 in loans for homebuyers earning up to $25,000 a year. The program will be available to homebuyers earning $25,000 a year or less.

The program will provide a guarantee to mortgage lenders for loans up to $150,000. The FHA will require mortgage lenders to charge a lower interest rate on loans guaranteed by the FHA. The rate will be set at 2 percentage points below the market rate.

The FHA will also offer a down payment assistance program for homebuyers earning up to $25,000 a year. The down payment assistance program will provide a grant to homebuyers up to $5,000 to help with the down payment on a home.

The FHA will also allow homebuyers to receive up to $1,000 in closing costs assistance. The FHA will also allow homebuyers to receive up to $1,000 in closing costs assistance.

Harkin courts a conference call with Iowa reporters.

The fight will come over House-passed legislation to lower Medicare premiums, a plan that has drawn intense criticism from budget hawks on both sides of the aisle.

Harkin heads a House panel that is working on health care legislation that could include provisions curbing future budget shortfalls for Medicare, which has been a major focus of the health care debate.

The Senator is also negotiating with House Speaker John Boehner over a potential compromise on the long-term deficit.

"...the Senate's overall manufacturing sector had 1,400 jobs over the month, the report said.

ISLAMIC PRAYER

Wisdom for the House

Although no one is certainly, it was probably a first. On Tuesday, June 30, the House of Representatives began the day with an Islamic prayer. After years of Christian applications reverberating through the halls of Congress, the leaders of this multifactional nation finally heeded their call to Allah.

It's difficult to understand why this move occurred before. A small but growing number of Americans are Muslim. In fact, for years, when Edward Long, a member of the U.S. House of Representatives, asked whether any member of Congress was a Moslem, he received no more than a shrug from the audience. Now that Congress has officially begun the day with prayer, it is likely that the religious diversity of the House will be more fully realized.

Syril Wahij asked God to help the leaders of the country in their day-to-day situations and grant them righteousness and wisdom.

This — they have a large stake in knowing who they represent. But maybe they don't want to upset their Christian constituents.

Still, it is certain that the leaders of this country, at least in theory, have no right to refuse Allah. In a democracy, in which the majority then do itので — even if they've got no cause to do it at all.

But the fact is: they don't — the same description can be applied to most American lieutenant governors. Even here, in the University of Iowa, only a scattering of courses regarding Middle Eastern culture.

I do hope, however, that the petition — offered by the leaders — will be answered. Syril Wahij of Mogadish or Yashik asked God to help the leaders of this great nation in their day-to-day situations and grant them righteousness and wisdom.

It seems to be a large step in knowing who they represent. But maybe they don't want to upset their Christian constituents.

Complete care?

To the Editor:

The editors of the Iowa City Daily Iowan, have asked me to write a letter about the care of our patients. As a patient myself, I can tell you that the care is excellent. I was discharged from the hospital the day after surgery, and I am now back to normal.

The doctors and nurses were very kind and helpful. I would like to express my gratitude to them for all the care they gave me.

Sincerely,

Dr. John Smith

Byron Kent Wickstrom

Simple living simply means live long and live well.

The letter is in response to Kate Ratliffe's column "Simple living: PATH to wisdom" in the June 17 issue. This column was very well written, and it made me think about my own life.

I love the idea of simplifying my life and focusing on what really matters. I have tried to do this for the past year, and I have found that it has made me much happier.

The author's point about the importance of slow living is something that I completely agree with. In today's fast-paced world, it is easy to get caught up in the hustle and bustle and forget about the things that truly matter.

I have found that by simplifying my life, I have been able to focus on what is truly important to me. I have been able to spend more time with my loved ones, and I have also been able to find more time for self-care.

The author's advice about the importance of taking breaks and being present in the moment is something that I have really tried to follow. I have found that taking breaks and being present has made a huge difference in my overall happiness.

The author's advice about the importance of surrounding yourself with positive people is also something that I agree with. I have found that being around positive people has made a huge difference in my overall happiness.

I think that the author's advice about the importance of simplicity is something that we all need to take to heart. In today's fast-paced world, it is easy to get caught up in the hustle and bustle and forget about the things that truly matter.

rights of criminal suspects, fought the imposition of the death penalty, and took an expansive view of the right to privacy in the areas of reproductive choice, affirmative action, and other affirmative issues.

He voiced the view of the majority in a series of decisions, including that in Planned Parenthood v. Casey, which held that a state's abortion law must offer "a workable, meaningful opportunity to choose among alternative therapies." It was a view that he held repeatedly, and during confirmation hearings on his appointment to the Court, he told Senator Joseph Biden: "If your opponent is right, if he is right, I am wrong, God help me if I am wrong."

But Marshall was also a jurist who was willing to make changes and was willing to compromise, even when his views were not in the majority. He was one of the few members of the Court who was willing to change his views on the issue of affirmative action. When the Court was divided on the issue, he was willing to change his vote and side with the majority to uphold affirmative action programs.

In the end, Marshall was a man who was true to his principles and who was willing to take a stand, even when it was unpopular. His decisions, both for and against, will be remembered as a testament to his commitment to the Constitution and to the rule of law.
