Board learns of state's decision to reduce funding for Youth Homes juvenile facility

Larry Officer

The Johnson County Board of Supervisors learned Thursday that the state of Iowa would be removing Youth Homes juvenile facility from the Iowa City school district. The move, according to Larry Officer, Youth Homes' executive director, was not unexpected.

"This is a non-profit, non-profit organization, and when you're non-profit, non-profit, you're at the mercy of the state," Officer said. "It's been an ongoing issue for the last eight years."

The move, which has been in the works for several years, is expected to take place in the next six months. Officer said the move would affect about 90 children currently in the facility.

Supervisor Steve Lacina, who represents the area, said he was disappointed by the decision.

"I think it's a terrible decision," Lacina said. "Youth Homes has been a part of our community for a long time, and it's going to be a big loss for us."

Officer said the facility would continue to operate, but it would need to find a new home.

"We're going to have to find a new facility," he said. "We're going to have to get the kids out of there."

The move will mean a loss of about $2 million per year for the facility.

Supervisor Charles Lacina, who also represents the area, said he was concerned about the impact on the community.

"This is a big loss for us," Lacina said. "We're going to have to find a new facility, and that's going to be a big challenge."

The state of Iowa has been cutting funding for juvenile facilities across the state, and Youth Homes is not the only one to be affected.

"This is just the beginning," Lacina said. "We're going to have to find a new facility, and that's going to be a big challenge."

Schlotte's attack on his wife was not premeditated, psychologist testifies

Heather Chase

The defense in the case of John Schlotte, who is on trial for murder, presented a psychologist to testify that Schlotte's attack on his wife was not premeditated.

"I believe that what set off the severe event of circumstances was the presence of several factors, including the potential loss of his child," Dr. Craig Bynum, a clinical psychologist, said.

Schlotte, who is accused of murdering his wife, was testified to by Bynum that there were several factors that contributed to the attack.

"When he placed the bathrobe tie around his neck and pulled for an undetermined amount of time, he was striking out to kill his wife," Bynum said.

The defense presented the psychologist to argue that Schlotte was not premeditated.

"I believe that what set off the severe event of circumstances was the presence of several factors, including the potential loss of his child," Bynum said.

The trial is expected to continue for several more weeks.

"I believe that what set off the severe event of circumstances was the presence of several factors, including the potential loss of his child," Bynum said. "I believe that what set off the severe event of circumstances was the presence of several factors, including the potential loss of his child."
Branstad wants to keep it all to himself

Go to: Terry Branstad has asked his fellow members of the National Governor's Association to oppose a proposed federal ban on sports gambling. In Iowa looking for the best in the hands of the government, or he is looking for yet another quick-fix for Iowa's dismal economy?

Branstad claims that he is simply trying to keep the federal government out from where it doesn't belong. A noble cause, and one that may actually divert attention from his real motives for about two minutes. He went so far as to say that the ban should be avoided as a way to keep "the state of Iowa from being used for yet another quick-fix for Iowa's dismal economy?"

Dirty dealer left ASCME with no card

To the Editor:

True, it is true, we have a dirty dealer in Des Moines who has left the ASCME with no card.

I am writing to you as an ASCME member also, to ask if Terry Branstad believes it is ever necessary to walk into a big time gambling joint. If so, he might want to pick up his desk and go home.

UI Okla attacks on gays

To the Editor:

The intellectual pundits of the United States are attacking the state of Iowa for allowing gay people to speak out. Does anyone know that the people of Iowa are protected by freedom of expression? They said, "In a democracy, the right to express your opinion is a fundamental right. When you are denied that right, it is a violation of your constitutional rights."

Midi March: Has anybody seen my toothbrush?

Today, I would like to talk about the mobile society in which we live. When I say "mobile," I mean we are all hanging from invisible strings, bouncing round and round in mindless patterns. The interesting thing about the mobile society is that we are all slaves to the phone ring. Even when we are not using the phone, we are still connected to it. The phone is always on and we are always connected to it.

The reason for the rise of these new devices is the mobile society. In the past, we had a landline phone that was connected to the wall. But now, we have a mobile phone that can go anywhere with us.

The Giants are on an NL rampage.

Dennis Gangemi
Associated Press
SAN FRANCISCO - There go those pesky Giants.
After enduring a sluggish start for most of the season, the San Francisco Giants are suddenly win-ing to bend.
A 1-0 win Tuesday over the New York Mets and Wednesday's 22-8 rout of the St. Louis Cardinals on the same day that the Mets were blanked by the Los Angeles Dodgers 2-0 pushed the Giants into first place in the National League East.
There are more than a few optimists in the Giants' clubhouse who think that their team can do more than just rest above .500 the rest of the season. Some claim the Giants can return to the World Series.
But no matter what the future holds, the Giants are aware now that their team is capable of playing a solid game.
"We're not going to be 22-8 every day," manager Bruce Bochy said. "But we're going to win enough games to get back to where we want to be."

Nokels rips Twins as Yanks win

Associated Press

NEW YORK — Mike Nokels homered twice, giving him 30 for the season, and Dave Winfield also hit a two-run homer as the Yankees defeated the Minnesota Twins 6-1 Friday to win the final game of their four-game series. Nokels hit a three-run homer in the fourth inning and a two-run shot in the seventh. He also drove in three runs for his 10th straight game with at least one hit.

Chicago Cubs pitcher Greg Maddux was the winning pitcher. He allowed only one run and three hits in seven innings. Chicago reliever Jacque Jones was the loser, giving up two runs in 2 2/3 innings.

The victory improved the Cubs' record to 51-27 and kept them in first place in the NL Central Division. The Cubs are now 12 games ahead of the second-place St. Louis Cardinals.
