Coralville residents happy with city services

CORALVILLE — Eighty percent of Coralville residents believe the city provides good services and value for their tax money.

That was the response received by Darrell Lewis, a consultant hired to help the City of Coralville draft a comprehensive zoning and land use plan. Lewis surveyed 400 households and said the one-third who responded provided "statistically valid data."

Lewis also reported that 36 percent of the residents said the most important issue before the city was to visually improve Highway 6. Lewis reported the best way to do this was to remove the gravel from the shoulders of the road and asphalt them. Lewis spoke at Thursday's City Council meeting.

Gas leak causes explosion at Florida naval base

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — A natural gas leak caused an explosion that blew apart a vacant building and damaged a supply center Thursday at Pensacola Naval Air Station, injuring 33 people, officials said.

A Navy firefighter was seriously burned when the vacant building, set to be renovated, exploded and burned as he was approaching to investigate the leak, spokesmen said. He was in stable condition at the University of South Alabama Burn Center in Mobile, Ala., a university spokeswoman said.

Thirty-two of 450 military and civilian workers at the supply center suffered cuts, scrapes and other minor injuries, said a base spokesman.

Three boaters are rescued after 10 days at sea

NEW YORK (AP) — Three pleasure boaters survived Hurricane Bob in a life raft after their yacht sank and were rescued after 12 days lost at sea by a Navy sailor who dropped from a helicopter into shark-infested waters.

The castaways, including a pregnant woman, ate fish and seaweed during the ordeal, a survivor said Thursday after they were flown to New York for treatment.

Cambodia talks fail to reach an agreement

PATTAYA, Thailand (AP) — Cambodia's warring factions failed Thursday to forge a comprehensive peace package to end the nation's 12-year-old civil war.

As four days of talks came to a close, the opposing sides were still deadlocked on the format for national elections.

They also appeared to have put aside a dispute over disarming fighting forces and monitoring a cease-fire to a later date.

The conflict pits the Vietnamese-installed government in Phnom Penh against three guerrilla groups — the Khmer Rouge, Prince Norodom Sihanouk's followers and the Khmer People's National Liberation Front. All sides are represented on the council.

Kuwait forces intercept Iraqi soldiers

KUWAIT CITY (AP) — Kuwaiti coast guard units have captured dozens of Iraqi soldiers intercepted on a mission that apparently sought to salvage abandoned ammunition at strategic Bubiyan Island, off-Island Thursday.

Jay's thwarted mission was described as Iraq's most serious military move since U.S.-led multinational forces drove Iraqi invasion troops from Kuwait in February after a seven-month occupation.

UI students respond to budget cuts

Facility shortage poses problems

Lesley Yazel
Daily Iowan

There's no question that UI faculty and staff are feeling the burn of budget cuts. But they're not the only ones. As the first week of school comes to an end, students are also feeling the heat.

One problem is the closing of the Currier dining hall. "Everyone has to eat at Burge. The lines are long, and there are a lot of people crammed in there every day," freshman Brad Ullman said.

Donney Jackson, a senior, said, "I wanted a board plan at Burge for lunch, but they don't sell single board plans anymore if you don't live in the dorms."

But the problems with the cuts don't stop there. "A lot of last year's double rooms in Burge turned back into triples," junior Ronald Hacker said. "I also have classes that meet less often and have a lot more people in them. I think that's a real reflection of the cuts."

Erin O'Malley, a freshman, said, "I can't go swimming at the Field House because the hours have been cut back so much."

Freshman Katherine Femal said, "In one of my lecture classes, there was a slide projector that we needed so that everybody could see the slides, but it was broken and because of the cuts they can't get a new one so we have to make do with an old one that you can't see very well."

P.E. department crippled by cuts

Budget cuts at the UI this year have brought tales of fewer faculty and reduced classes in many departments. What's the latest in this ongoing saga? The department that lost all their secretaries.

"At the current time, (faculty) are fumbling to find files on students — the cuts have been terribly crippling," Peg Burke, a professor in the physical education and sports studies department said. "It is demoralizing for the faculty."

The department, one of three sub-units of the Division of Physical Education, lost one and a half secretaries last year. One was released, and the other transferred to avoid a downgrade in status and pay, according to department Chairwoman Bonnie Slatton.

"We had an excellent secretary, and now we are finding out just how much she did," she said. "The office is currently being run by an 'emergency' secretary for two weeks."

Slatton said two work-study freshmen have been hired part-time with funds she has appropriated from the department's general See PHYS ED, Page 5A

Mikhail Gorbachev gestures in Moscow during Thursday's special session of the Supreme Soviet, when it voted to suspend all activities of the Communist Party.

Communist Party suspended due to role in attempted coup

Deborah Seward

MOSCOW — Soviet lawmakers dealt a potential death blow Thursday to the Communist Party, suspending the crippled and discredited organization and freezing its bank accounts because of the party's leading role in last week's coup.

In Kazakhstan, rallies and protests were held amid fears that the Russian Federation, led by an increasingly powerful Boris Yeltsin, could try to seize parts of the Central Asian republic's territory where most of the inhabitants are ethnic Russians.

As politicians worried about who controls the many nuclear weapons in Kazakhstan, the republic's president shut down its huge Semipalatinsk testing range. President Mikhail Gorbachev sent a delegation to Kazakhstan to keep things from "snowballing."

Ten dizzying days after the announcement of the coup that hastened the demise of the central government, Yeltsin went on the radio to calm the people.

"I want to firmly assure you that the collapse of the center is not the collapse of the country, moreover of Russia," he said on Radio Rossiya.

Yeltsin welcomed the destruction of "that powerful, bureaucratic system which has for six years stood in the path of transformations" during Gorbachev's rule.

Capping nearly a week of attacks on the Communist Party for its role in the coup, the Supreme Soviet legislature halted party activity nationwide.

The step — taken near the end of three days of marathon debates — was part of changes that restructured the pillars of Soviet society and raised fears of further economic turmoil, ethnic unrest and political chaos.

Without drama, legislators voted 283-29, with 52 abstentions, to suspend the party that had ruled the nation by fear and intimidation for 74 years with a presence in every factory, school and city hall. They also froze its bank accounts and halted its financial operations, meaning party operatives cannot be paid.

"I frankly rejoice in ... the demise, the fall of the totalitarian non-democratic party," President Bush said in Maine.

Party archives were sealed, which could hurt party officials seeking jobs elsewhere.

JEAN JEW

Still grappling with UI over settlement terms

The anatomy professor says the UI has not created a 'hostility-free' work environment.

and Diana Wallace

Nearly a year after UI anatomy Professor Jean Jew settled a seven-year sexual harassment lawsuit with the university, resolution of the case has hit a snag.

Jew contends that the UI has failed to provide her with a "hostility-free" work environment — one of the terms of the settlement reached last November in federal court.

Lawyers for Jew and the UI met for an hour Wednesday afternoon in the chambers of U.S. District Judge Harold Vietor, who presided over the case. The meeting, according to a story Wednesday in The Des Moines Register, was held in order to avoid further litigation.

According to Deputy Iowa Attorney General Gordon Allen, who requested Wednesday's hearing, a large part of the controversy concerns a request by Jew that the UI transfer the academic tenure of fellow anatomy Professor Robert Tomanek to a different department. Tomanek was found guilty last year of defaming Jew when he spread sex-based rumors about her in the department.

Jew confirmed Thursday that she requested Tomanek's transfer because she thought it was essential to the creation of a hostility-free work environment.

She defended her request for Tomanek's transfer, saying it would not hinder him from teaching in his field of expertise.

"There are faculty members in other departments, inside and outside the College of Medicine, who teach anatomy courses," Jew said. "Just because (Tomanek's) appointments were outside the department, that wouldn't preclude him from teaching in the anatomy department."

Allen requested Wednesday's hearing after the UI filed an application for the court to acknowledge that the university was complying with the terms of the settlement.

"We wanted the judge to say, 'They're on course,'" Allen said. "The plaintiff suggested we had not done enough."

He added, "We said it's not necessary to transfer (Tomanek's) academic tenure."

While Allen said progress had been made, he acknowledged that no resolutions had been reached during the meeting.

Tomanek could not be reached for comment Thursday.

Jew filed suit against the UI and state Board of Regents in 1985 because, she said, they failed to address her complaints that she had been the victim of sexual and racial harassment by Tomanek and other faculty members in the anatomy department. This was a year after a UI faculty committee ruled in her favor.

Jew, who is Asian-American, also filed a defamation suit against Tomanek, who was believed to be responsible for spearheading a smear campaign against her. He was found guilty by a Johnson County jury in June and was ordered to pay Jew $35,000 in damages (eventually paid by the state of Iowa).

Budget cuts discussed at conference

Eric Detwiler
Daily Iowan

The fear of future budget cuts, more layoffs and requests for last minute funding dominated the Iowa state Board of Regents teleconference Thursday.

The 58 notices delivered Thursday raised the total number of eliminated UI positions or layoffs to 344. The areas most affected by this latest round of layoffs were student services, the Physical Plant and the Graduate College.

UI President Hunter Rawlings stressed to the board what effects these cuts were having at the UI.

"Two years ago with the initiative that the board afforded ... we were able to place extra faculty in the classrooms," Rawlings said. "Every bit of gain from two years ago has now been lost because of budget cuts."

Regents President Marvin Pomerantz said he was disappointed that the universities had not utilized the provided funds efficiently.

"I feel let down because we have worked very hard to make sure that the universities and the special schools got the maximum amount of funding," Pomerantz said. "But I don't think the universities carry out their end of the bargain in making sure those funds were focused in the way they were submitted."

In an effort to trim the deficit, state purse strings are likely to get tighter, and the board is faced with economic uncertainty regarding long-term funding.

"We ought to be finding in our annual budget the capital component that's consistent year to year instead of going to the governor and the Legislature with big capital requests and receiving them on a periodic basis, and then not receiving them for a long time," Pomerantz said. "There are better ways to manage this."

Board members also discussed proposed construction planned at the three state universities and questioned the necessity of these projects.

"The idea that by not building you have a cost go away is a misconception," Pomerantz said. "We've had buildings that have been started but are stopped in mid-process. I think it's not good stewardship to just waste away in terms of what's already invested."

Pomerantz warned board members and university administrators against restricting their economic options at a time when budget cuts call for creative use of funds available.

"We must remain flexible if we're going to deal with the kind of environment that we have to deal with," Pomerantz said. "I think it is imperative we keep all our options open."

TOUCHING HEARTS

UIHC nurse gives advice on dealing with infant loss

John P. Waterhouse
Daily Iowan

When a baby dies, is there anything you can say to the grieving parents? Or is it best to avoid discussing their loss with the hopes that the pain they are experiencing will eventually pass?

Jane Wilkins, a nurse in the obstetrics and gynecology department at the UI Hospitals and Clinics, says, "It's OK to bring it up and show them that you care."

In 1985, Wilkins created the "Touching Hearts" program to assist families after they have experienced a pregnancy loss, whether it is a miscarriage, stillbirth, newborn death, ectopic pregnancy or other infant loss.

"When I started in nursing in 1969, we didn't do a real good job for families who lost a baby," Wilkins explained. "At the time, it was thought if you just swept it under the rug, so to speak, that people would recover better, rather than dwelling on such a sad event."

"I left nursing for a while when my kids were little, and when I came back... some nurses and physicians were doing a wonderful job (in dealing with a pregnancy loss), but it wasn't consistent. So we really needed a program where we could educate the medical staff and better serve each patient," she said.

When a baby dies, no one wants to hurt the grieving parents, but sometimes inappropriate words are said. "People have said things before like 'You are still young' or 'There was something wrong with the baby anyway' or 'It is better that this happened before you really knew the baby,'" Wilkins said.

Since the program began in 1985, according to Wilkins, more information has become available to the families, networking with other programs has increased and more mementos are distributed.

"When someone in your family dies and you have been with them for years, you have a lot of mementos from their life to remember them by," she said. "But when a baby dies you have basically nothing other than hopes and dreams."

The "Touching Hearts" program presents the family with a quilted envelope made by hospital volunteers filled with mementos. These include such items as little blankets, a comb, some baby powder or the baby's blood pressure cuffs. Other items consist of footprints and handprints of the baby, a lock of hair, gowns or dresses, or even the baby's identification bracelet.

Families have written to say the mementos were helpful in their recovery because it helped them share their baby with friends and other family members, she said.

Wilkins said the other segment of the program is to educate the hospital staff and the community about the needs of these families.

"We tell the nurses to make sure after introducing themselves to express their sorrow with something as simple as 'I am so sorry that this has happened to you' or 'I am sorry you lost your baby. Would you like to talk?'"

"The nurses then go on to try and make an acknowledgement of the significance of that child by asking the parents if they opted to name their baby," she said. "By referring to the baby by name when talking about the baby is significant to the family."

Wilkins has a personal understanding of the way some of her patients feel. Before she started her nursing career, she experienced the loss of twins due to a miscarriage in the 12th week of her pregnancy.

Some cases are followed up with a telephone call and others by a letter to let the parents know that someone is still thinking about

Weekend assembly will draft state resolution for gay rights

Organizers' goal is to have Iowa protect against discrimination based on sexual orientation.

Diana Wallace
Daily Iowan

In what may be the first assembly of its kind in the United States, hundreds of Iowa gays, lesbians and gay rights advocates will gather in Iowa City today and Saturday to draft a gay rights resolution to be submitted to the Iowa Legislature.

At least 300 people are expected to attend the All-Iowa Lesbian/Gay Rights Assembly at the Union this weekend to draft the State of Iowa Lesbian/Gay/Bisexual Rights Resolution, which will be introduced to the state Legislature and Gov. Terry Branstad during next year's session by Sen. Jean Lloyd-Jones (D-Iowa City).

Linda Yanney, a member of the National Gay and Lesbian Task Force, said the resolution's aim is to extend the scope of Iowa's civil rights code to include protection from discrimination based on sexual orientation.

Though other states already have civil rights codes that acknowledge sexual orientation as a target for discrimination, Iowa is apparently the first state that has gathered gays, lesbians, bisexuals and their families and friends for a grassroots assembly to draft its own resolution.

The caucusing will take place during a two-day event scheduled to include discussions of state and local civil rights bills, a dance and a keynote address by Angela Bowen, founder of the National Coalition of Black Lesbians and Gays. The event is being sponsored by the UI Lesbian, Gay and Bisexual Staff and Faculty Association, the UI Gay People's Union, and the Women's Resource and Action Center.

Participants can register at the Union from 3 to 6 p.m. today and 7:30 to 8 a.m. Saturday. There is a sliding-scale registration fee.

The schedule of events includes the following:

- Friday, 12:10 p.m. at WRAC, 130 N. Clinton St.: Brown Bag Luncheon followed by a discussion with keynote speaker Angela Bowen.
- Friday, 3 p.m. at WRAC: Welcoming reception with author Cherry Muhanji, winner of two 1991 National Lambda Book Awards, who will give a reading.
- Friday, 8 p.m. in the Union Triangle Ballroom: Bowen will present her keynote address, "Why Homophobia Is Everyone's Issue."

- Saturday, beginning at 8 a.m. in the Union Main Ballroom: "An overview of nationwide litigation affecting lesbians, gay men and bisexuals" by UI law Professor Pat Cain; "The significance of gay rights for people of color" by UI law Fellow Angela Gilmore; "Family law affecting lesbians and gay men and bisexuals" by UI law Professor Jean Love; and "Religious responsibility and gay rights" by Iowa Episcopal Deacon Susanne Watson.
- Saturday, 1 p.m. in the Union Main Ballroom: "The future of lesbian/gay rights in Iowa" with Sen. Jean Lloyd-Jones, Susan Buckley, coordinator of UI Pre-Vocational Training Program, and Michael Current, Iowa gay rights lobbyist.
- Saturday, 8:30 p.m. in the Union Main Ballroom: Dance with Akilah Blackwomyn Jazz Trio and Shelly the D.J.

For someone who "doesn't make a big habit of watching MTV," Winegarden is certainly getting a vacation from classes and life in Mayflower Residence Hall. Her trip includes free airfare and hotel accommodations (she leaves Wednesday morning and returns Friday evening), tickets to the MTV Video Awards Thursday night and passes to the VIP party afterward.

Oh, and she gets to bring a friend — one friend.

"Maybe I'll take him," Winegarden said, pointing at a young man she said always walks through the mall past her work.

She said she'd like to take a male friend and has established a criteria to narrow down her choice. "I'll call and just ask them if they would like to go to a 'formal event.' If they say 'no,' it's their loss."

The native of Deep River, Iowa (about 50 miles west of Iowa City), says she "isn't nervous, just really excited" about her first trip to California.

"I've never won anything before except out of a Cracker Jack box — here I am, a banjo-picking hick from Iowa," she joked. "But I guess everyone has their 15 minutes."

Winegarden doesn't have a particular celeb or VJ she's hot to meet, but she likes dance music groups like C & C Music Factory.

If she gets to say "hello" on TV to folks back home, she said she'll say, "I'm here and you're not" to all the people (at work) who have been begging me to take them," she said.

Winegarden is a little worried about the 10 class periods she'll miss while in Hollywood. But is she taking books? "No way!"

Her manager at work, Gordon

For Winegarden, winning the contest has given her a new appreciation of her job. "Reebok and I have the same motto — life is short, play hard."

Argument continues over site

Bill Vogrin
Associated Press

PEORIA, Ill. — The sniping over a negotiations site persisted Thursday between Caterpillar Inc. and the United Auto Workers union as a contract deadline loomed just a month away.

Caterpillar said the union refuses to compromise on the location issue.

The UAW responded by criticizing Caterpillar for using "a public relations ploy" to disguise its "confrontational, unproductive approach toward negotiations and its workers."

The situation is the same, albeit much less volatile, between the UAW and Deere & Co. of Moline, Ill. Talks opened Aug. 15 in East Moline, but have stalled since as the two sides negotiate a meeting place.

"We have made several 50-50 compromise proposals which the union repeatedly turns down," said Wayne Zimmerman, Caterpillar's vice president for human services.

"The UAW International union continues to ignore the facts that have caused Caterpillar to strongly prefer Peoria or Bloomington," he said.

The Peoria-based company said it suggested alternating talks weekly between central Illinois and a city of the union's choice. Caterpillar also suggested holding central talks in Peoria and allowing extensive subcommittee work to take place in Detroit or Chicago.

And Caterpillar said it would agree to launching talks for eight days in Louisville, Ky. — the union's preferred site — then return to central Illinois for the duration.

UAW secretary-treasurer Bill Casstevens said the union suggested meeting in Bloomington, Ill., on Sept. 4-15 and then moving to another location for the remainder of the talks.

"We expressed a great deal of flexibility in the mutual selection of that location, and we indicated a half-dozen possible sites for Caterpillar to consider," Casstevens said. "We are awaiting Caterpillar's response to this latest in our series of efforts to get negotiations under way in an atmosphere of mutual respect."

Layoffs cause higher case loads for Human Services

Larry Offner
Daily Iowan

Thursday's layoffs in the Johnson County Department of Human Services may result in burdensome case loads for remaining caseworkers, according to some members of the Johnson County Board of Supervisors.

Jay Barfels, district administrator for the Iowa Department of Human Services, told the supervisors Tuesday that the 95 people laid off will result in a case load of about 190 cases per remaining caseworker.

Supervisor Dick Myers said the projected case load was "absurd."

He asked if the department had any priorities for rendering aid or services.

Barfels said that the department's first priority will be child abuse cases, and the second will be to get eligible people signed up for Aid to Families with Dependent Children and food stamps within the 30 days mandated by federal law.

However, Barfels warned, "We don't have staff to provide services for all those people."

Board Chairwoman Betty Ockenfels said, "How can the system work? At the state level we have cut upon cut."

Supervisor Steve Lacina said that a caseworker would be able to spend only an hour per month with each eligible person.

"That would be enough just for the Lacina asked Barfels what maximum case load per social worker was projected. That depends upon the county, Barfels said.

"In the past we have moved workers to adjust case load," he said.

On other issues, the board discussed "deategorization," or allowing state funds to be used for purposes other than those originally authorized.

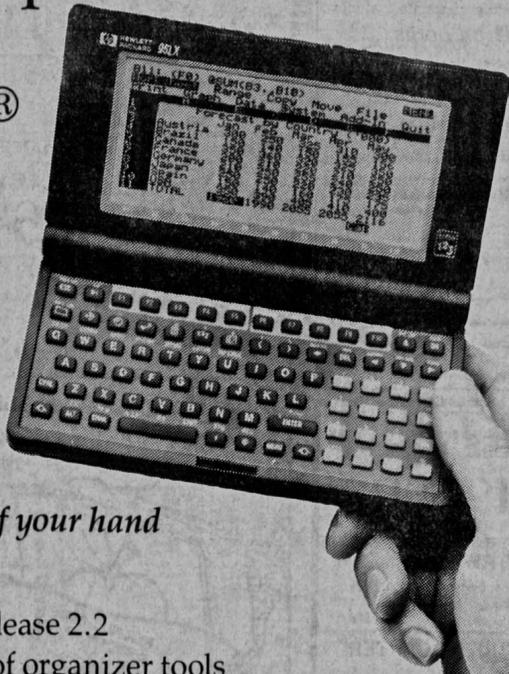

Contacted Thursday, county Human Services Director Carol

Thompson said decategorization is the best way for Johnson County to use what funds it will get from the Iowa Department of Human Services.

Thompson explained that under decategorization, the county, working with the juvenile courts, can use funds from several categories to meet the needs of a troubled juvenile's family.

For example, $1,500 could be taken from the county's foster care funds to pay a family's rent, thereby avoiding eviction and the $15,000 annual cost of foster care for the troubled juvenile in that family.

New campus-based AFAR supports abortion rights

Loren Keller
Daily Iowan

Defending a local women's clinic will be the first action taken by the new campus-based abortion rights organization called Action for Abortion Rights, or AFAR.

The "clinic defense" scheduled for Tuesday morning at 8 a.m. by AFAR members was the main topic of discussion at the group's meeting last night.

Chicago members of the anti-abortion group Operation Rescue, on their way to Kansas City, are expected to stop in Iowa City to protest at one of the clinics. Which clinic they plan to protest at is unknown.

Operation Rescue was the group that recently targeted clinics in Wichita, Kan.

AFAR formed in light of recent legislation overturning legal abortion in some states, the nomination of Clarence Thomas for the Supreme Court and the intensifying activities of anti-abortion groups.

AFAR's second action will be a rally for abortion rights on the UI Pentacrest on Monday, Sept. 9.

AFAR is self-described as a political organization dedicated to the fight to secure safe, legal and accessible abortions for all women in the United States. The group was formed this summer and after five meetings now has 35 members.

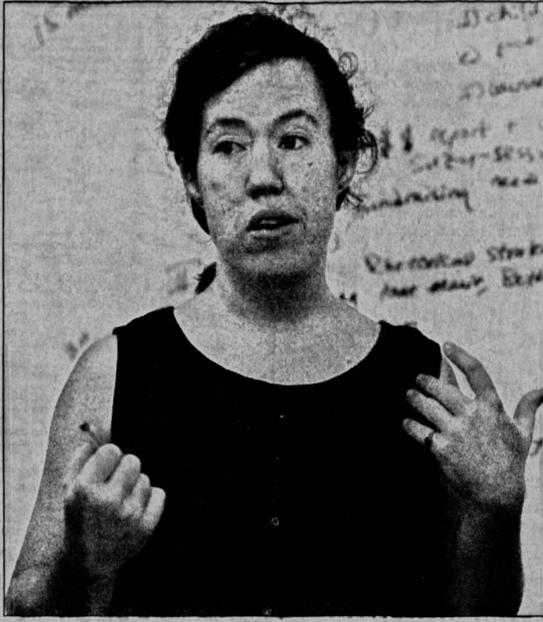

Though AFAR aligns itself with larger groups such as the National Abortion Rights League, the National Abortion Federation and NOW, members are acting locally.

"The point isn't necessarily to send lobbyists to Washington but to be heard here in Iowa City," said Dana Cloud, AFAR chairwoman.

"Our way to go is in the streets," AFAR member Beth Parker said.

In addition to supporting clinic defenses, the group will sponsor literature tables and display cases in the Union. AFAR has also discussed holding a public debate about the abortion issue.

"We need to take the arguments of both sides very seriously. ... We need to get the questions and answers out in the public," Cloud said.

AFAR meets regularly every other Thursday night at 7 p.m. on the UI campus.

Dean Eckstein retires from UI after 40 years

Daily Iowan

Dr. John Eckstein, dean of the UI College of Medicine, retires Saturday after 40 years of service.

Eckstein, 67, came to the UI in 1951 as a resident at the UI Hospitals and Clinics. He was appointed a professor in the UI Department of Internal Medicine in 1965 and dean of the medical college in 1970.

Dr. James Clifton, 67, a professor of internal medicine, will serve as interim dean while a UI committee searches for Eckstein's replacement.

The Human Biology Research Building was renamed the Eckstein Medical Research Building in 1989. The building is still under construction.

Under Eckstein, the medical college won nearly $79 million in grants and contracts in 1990 to support research and training.

Eckstein also published over 200 scientific papers and abstracts in the field of cardiovascular physiology and pharmacology during his tenure at the UI.

State unemployment rate sees 0.2 percent decline

Mike Glover
Associated Press

DES MOINES — The unemployment rate dropped to 4.3 percent during July, though state officials reported the employment picture had remained essentially stagnant.

The July rate was down from the revised 4.5 percent rate in June, but the drop came primarily because there were fewer first-time entrants in the job market, said Cynthia Eisenhauer, Department of Employment Services director.

Despite the decline, Eisenhauer said there was "no significant change in hiring activity," and the July rate remained above the 4 percent jobless figure for the same month last year.

There were 64,600 Iowans without work during July, down 3,000 from the previous month but well above the 60,300 out of work during July of last year, she said.

"Although unemployment was down in July, the state's job market continued to be soft with no significant change in hiring activity," she said.

The number of Iowans without work increased in July as schools continued to lay off workers for the summer break, but fewer people seeking work drove the rate down, she said.

Public school employment dropped by 17,700, while the number of private school workers was down 1,400.

"The drop in unemployment was due primarily to a decline in the number of first-time job seekers," she said.

"The school employment drop somewhat obscured the employment picture for July," Eisenhauer said. Total employment for the month increased slightly, she said.

UNI enrollment up from last year

Associated Press
CEDAR FALLS—Enrollment at the University of Northern Iowa has topped 13,000.
UNI officials said Wednesday that preliminary figures show there are more than 13,000 students enrolled at the Cedar Falls school for the first time.

UNI Registrar Philip Patton said the official count will not be completed until the third week of classes.

Preliminary tallies indicate that enrollment will be up about 400 students or 3.2 percent from last year's 12,638 students.

Despite the demands placed on the university by the increased student population, Patton said officials were pleased with the figures, particularly in the freshman class.

"When we look at the fact that this May was the smallest graduating class in the state of Iowa, we are delighted with number and quality of the new freshmen," he said.

He said the number of returning students is also increasing.

AP poll asks U.S. views on Soviet Union

Seventy-two percent of Americans say the U.S. should recognize the Soviet Union's breakaway republics.

Associated Press

NEW YORK — The Associated Press poll on the Soviet upheaval was conducted Aug. 23-27 among a random sample of 1,017 adults in the contiguous 48 states.

Interviewing was done by telephone by ICR Survey Research Group of Media, Pa., part of AUS Consultant Cos.

The results were weighted to represent the population by key demographics such as age, sex, region and education.

Chance variations in the sample should not cause the results to vary from the answers of all Americans in households with children by more than 3 percentage points more than one time in 20. This margin of sampling error is larger for responses of subgroups, such as a region or age category.

There are other sources of potential error in polls, including the wording and order of questions. Here are the AP poll questions: (Because of rounding, sums may not total 100.)

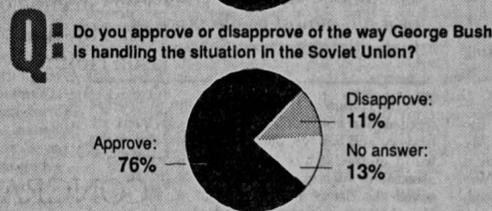

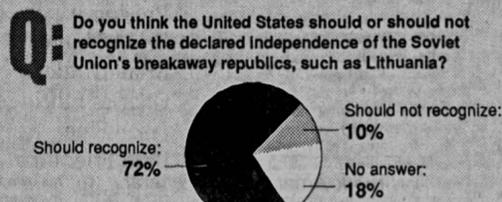

1. Do you approve or disapprove of the way George Bush is handling the situation in the Soviet Union? Approve: 76 percent. Disapprove: 11 percent. Don't know or no answer: 13 percent.

2. Did the outcome of the coup make Gorbachev a more reliable or less reliable partner for the United States to deal with? More reliable: 44 percent. Less reliable: 32 percent. DK-NA: 25 percent.

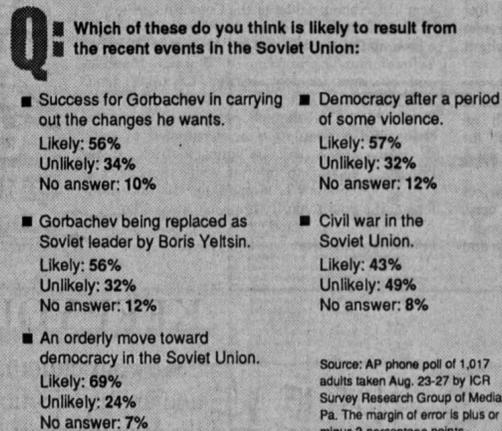

3. Do you think the United States should or should not recognize the declared independence of the Soviet Union's breakaway republics.

SOVIET CRISIS

Nuclear arms made less ready; Pentagon officials analyze move

Robert Burns

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Soviet Union has put some of its nuclear weapons capable of striking the United States in a lower state of readiness, the Pentagon said Thursday.

Private U.S. analysts said the move, which started during last week's failed coup, probably was intended to signal to the United States that the Soviet strategic nuclear arsenal was under control during the political upheaval.

Pete Williams, the chief Pentagon spokesman, declined to say exactly what actions the Soviets took to make their strategic, or long-range, nuclear weapons less ready. He said the Soviets did not directly tell the Bush administration about the change, meaning it probably was detected by U.S. spy satellites.

He declined to say how the administration interpreted the Soviet actions. "I'm not sure that this general lowering of strategic readiness was intended merely as a signal to the United States or the world," Williams said.

The Washington Post reported on Wednesday that the commander of Soviet Strategic Rocket Forces, in apparent defiance of the attempted coup, pulled SS-25 mobile missiles from positions in the field and ordered them into their home bases.

Williams declined to confirm the Post report.

Soviet SS-25 missiles can be launched from their home bases, where they normally are kept in huge garages which have roofs that slide open to permit launch. But taking them out of their field positions, where they can be launched from trucks, can be interpreted as reducing their readiness, analysts said.

The Soviets have about 27,000 nuclear warheads, including about 11,000 designed for missiles and bombers that can reach U.S. soil. Like the U.S. nuclear arsenal, the Soviet arms are divided among land-based missiles, missiles on submarines, and missiles and bombs carried by long-range aerial bombers.

Research shows sexual preference may be biological

Paul Recer

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A cluster of brain cells that may guide the sex drive of men is twice as large in homosexual males as it is in heterosexual males, suggesting that homosexuality could be a matter of biological destiny, a researcher reports.

In microscopic examinations of the brains of 41 men and women, including 19 homosexual men, Simon LeVay of the Salk Institute for Biological Studies, San Diego, Calif., found that a specific cluster of cells was always larger for heterosexual males than the other specimens.

LeVay cautioned that while the evidence demonstrates a strong link between the size of that group and the sexual preference of males, researchers still aren't sure which is cause, which is effect. But he made clear that, based on his own findings and earlier animal studies, he believes the odds are that there is a strong biological determinant of homosexuality — something long argued by many within the gay community.

His research focused on a cluster in the interstitial nuclei of the anterior hypothalamus, or INAH, which has been identified in animal studies as a principal root of male sexual behavior. LeVay said he found a difference in a cluster called INAH 3, which is one of four INAH groups of cells.

QUALITY OF EDUCATION

Save your school

Even as new buildings have gone up around campus, the quality of education has gone down. It is quite possible that when this year's incoming students finally graduate, the UI may have slipped a few notches down the academic ladder.

With a strong commitment to undergraduate education, a well-respected research community and a number of departments that consistently rank in the top 25 in their field, the UI offers students much more than just a fine city in which to live. Unfortunately, however, not all is well.

Why? Because of the recent budget cuts. Throughout this past week, The Daily Iowan has been documenting the effects of these cuts: few and larger classes; a loss of faculty and student advisers; an increase in the number of sections led by TAs rather than professors; reduced hours, services and acquisitions at UI libraries; fewer employees in departments like the Office of Cooperative Education and the Physical Plant; higher fees for recreation services; and, of course, increased tuition for students.

That's the immediate list, and it appears that things may get worse.

It's ironic that in the midst of this confusion, the recent edition of Peterson's Competitive Colleges guide listed the UI as one of the top universities in the country. Peterson bases this analysis on the quality of students that applied and were accepted to the UI. But how long will this continue? Will quality applicants continue to choose a school that can't afford to offer a competitive education?

Clearly the blame for this sad development belongs in Des Moines. The UI administration was faced with a limited number of alternatives. Some cuts were inevitable, but only because of the decreased funding mandated by the governor and the Legislature. In addition, Branstad's recent layoffs have had a chilling effect on the morale of university staff and faculty. It follows then that the only way to reverse this trend is to make the governor and the Legislature realize they are destroying one of Iowa's greatest resources.

For this to occur, students must take advantage of all opportunities afforded to them. Both United Students of Iowa and the UI Student Association are active in communicating student needs to the statehouse. While these organizations have had some success in the past, they would be much more influential if a larger number of individuals actively participated.

Students have another great asset that remains untapped: friends, parents and relatives scattered across the state. A widespread response from concerned Iowans could greatly influence the amount of funding that state schools receive.

But the most useful tool that students possess is the power to directly communicate with their representatives. When cuts are being proposed, a letter or a phone call could make the difference. For those who travel to Des Moines, a visit to the statehouse would be effective. And, of course, during the next election, students must be vocal and active.

No, the sky is not yet falling; but the UI certainly is. Still, it is not too late to reverse this trend. Iowans should be proud of the fact that the UI is one of the best universities in the country. Students, faculty and staff have the power and responsibility to counteract this recent downswing. Action will make a difference, and the time to act is now.

Help needed in the fight against breast cancer

To the Editor:
In 1991 there will be 175,000 new cases of breast cancer diagnosed in the U.S., and 44,500 women will die of the disease. Of these new cases, 2,200 will be in Iowa. Another way to understand these national figures is to realize that one in nine women will develop breast cancer in her lifetime — that is, one woman every three minutes. The National Breast Cancer Coalition is calling this situation an epidemic.

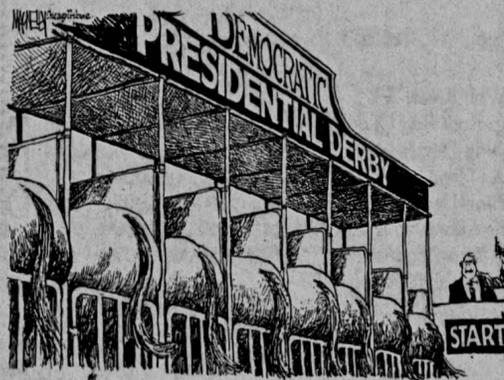

All women are at risk. Over one-half of all breast cancers occur in women with no identifiable history of the disease in their families. The cause is unknown. The death rate has not been reduced. Something must be done to increase funding levels for research and to ensure that all women have access to accurate information and diagnostic screening procedures.

You can help. Women with breast cancer, their families and friends, health-care professionals, and others concerned can join the national letter-writing campaign sponsored by the Breast Cancer Coalition. One hundred seventy-five thousand letters to President Bush and to U.S. senators and representatives are needed for presentation in Washington, D.C., on Oct. 8, 1991. Two thousand two hundred letters are needed from Iowans. These letters can be sent to: Breast Cancer Coalition of Iowa, P.O. Box 3067, Dubuque, IA 52004, by Oct. 1, 1991. Sample letters are available by writing to the above address. Thank you.

Great expectations are unwarranted

It was Scott Rauch, the toughest white guy in the seventh grade, who let me know that I was living in a world where bravery and righteousness were not guaranteed their just rewards.

I was walking in from recess one day at the precise moment Scott was having some problems with his self-image. I happened to look at him as he was standing against the fence with all his friends. He asked me if I had a problem. I told him that I was pretty sure I did, and while I couldn't put my finger on it, I did know my problem favored extremely fake leather jackets and had as its greatest goal in life membership in the KISS army. Although his friends weren't exactly sure what the hell it was I was talking about, they still thought it was pretty funny. I, to this day, think it was a pretty good one.

Scott Rauch beat me silly. In the aftermath of the failed putsch in the Soviet Union, I keep thinking about Scott. My favorite man-on-the-street quote came from a young Muscovite who, as quoted in The New York Times, said simply, "We were pretty good, weren't we?"

Hell yes you were, CNN, that great purveyor of the earth-shattering, keeps showing me all these brave things that make me cry: the fall of the Berlin Wall, the Velvet revolution, Tiananmen Square and now this. Imagine, people acting brave and humane and wonderful, just like they're supposed to. I do worry though, as a man of the '90s, that my sensitivity is all too reliant on Heritage Cablevision.

I think Americans in general succumbed to the vicarious thrill of it all, almost to the point of jealousy. To have such a thrilling, such an apparently clean-cut, opportunity to fight for what you believe in looked pretty darned good, at least from the comfort of the TV room.

But now, even for the participants, the clear-cut part is largely over. And while they were very, very good, the next question is: Is that enough? Will this revolution succeed in forging a free and productive new society? Most revolutions fail. The really awful thing about the Batistas of this world is that they unwittingly pave the way for the Fidel Castro's of the world. Russia has already had to go from a Czarist frying pan into a Marxist-Leninist fire. And now again, it is beset by many of the same problems that turned the last revolution into nothing more than a new form of dictatorship. A dysfunctional economy, knee-jerk nationalism and rampant social ills are but a few of the problems that will face the newly freed republics.

I think Americans in general succumbed to the vicarious thrill of it all, almost to the point of jealousy.

Boris Yeltsin is the latest Russian to promise freedom for his people. He has shown personal bravery and resolve, but he also reeks for all the world of the sort of personal integrity usually associated with a used car salesman. He has saved the democratic movement in the Soviet Union for the time being, but he has also picked the peculiar strategy of issuing decree after decree as a way of safeguarding this democracy.

I am not saying that Boris Yeltsin is headed toward a pure dictatorship. I am saying that, as his mentor Mikhail Gorbachev before him, he is very much the product of the Communist Party's command structure, a structure designed to keep power at the top and not in the people. If Boris Yeltsin manages to keep the Russian republic and his own ideology headed toward a true multiparty democracy — in the face of a still formidable if weakened right-wing, economic chaos and a population unaccustomed to self-governing — it will be quite a trick. It is important to remember that while there was a strong public show of support for the anti-coup forces, the vast majority of people stayed home.

On the other hand, the best part of this revolution is that it has been almost an evolution. It was sad to see Yeltsin taking so much pleasure in sticking it to Gorbachev because without Gorbachev, there would be no Yeltsin. If Yeltsin would have attempted his style of reform five years ago, the hard-liners would have dropped him like first period French. Gorbachev's vacillating, slow-moving reforms may have seemed inept, but they were exactly what was needed to allow the democratic movement to take root without frightening the right into snuffing it out.

In the end, Gorbachev's drive toward a deeply entrenched not only in the country but in his own mind. He had already done more to free his country than one has a right to expect from a man so deeply a part of the Communist Party. His mistake was that he tried to do what made Abraham Lincoln America's greatest president — hold together a union that no longer wished to be together.

Gorbachev's reforms were prefigured by the brief, limited openness of the Khrushchev era. And Yeltsin — a man as limited in vision for his time as Gorbachev — will prove to be only one evolutionary step ahead. So while it would be nice to think that this one brave week in the Soviet Union's history would be enough to lead them to the promised land, I suspect the people of those republics are going to have to take their beatings for some time to come.

I do know one thing. When I took my beating from Scott Rauch I didn't think it was worth it, but now I do. For the seventh grade, it was a pretty good line. And I realize the analogy of my bloody nose is a bit on the weak side. But it kind of fits. Because I know deep in my heart Scott Rauch, if he has really outdone himself, is attending over-the-road school. And I am at a major research university with a laser center adorned with several copper shingles. So sometimes the good guys do come out on top. It just usually takes longer than you would think and happens in ways a little less obvious than you would like.

GUEST OPINION: M. WEE & M. TIRONA

Citizens denied medical breakthrough of RU 486

You are a college student who missed your last period. After stopping by the Emma Goldman Clinic for Women for a free pregnancy test, the results have come back positive. Unfortunately, it is Jan. 22, 1993, and the nine justices of the Supreme Court have today overturned the Roe vs. Wade decision that legalized abortion. Your options, as a result of this ruling, are limited to 1) carrying the pregnancy to term and 2) having a back alley abortion, thereby risking criminal arrest, maiming or death.

Fortunately for you, it's 1991 and Roe vs. Wade has not been overturned. It's not 1993 yet, but it's right around the corner and even today your options are becoming more limited. In fact, your options are even more limited than those of women in France, China and Great Britain. This is because these countries have access to Mifepristone.

Mifepristone, more commonly known as RU 486, can be used to terminate a woman's pregnancy up to seven weeks after her last menstrual period. However, the advantages of RU 486 are not limited to its abortive ability. Other potential applications for RU 486 include the possible treatment of Cushing's disease (a disorder of the adrenal gland), glaucoma and certain types of breast cancer. Considering its obvious advantages, why isn't RU 486 available to U.S. citizens?

The FDA has not only banned the use of RU 486 in the United States but has also limited research on it as a result of heavy pressure from the anti-choice faction. The anti-choice forces compound several non-truths about the pill's abortive ability in order to keep the general public and the government from investigating this important advancement on the road to reproductive freedom.

The first of two major myths concerns the assumption that RU 486 would be available over the counter, thus encouraging frequent use of the drug.

The anti-choice forces compound several non-truths about the pill's abortive ability in order to keep the general public and the government from investigating this important advancement on the road to reproductive freedom.

RU 486 is in fact dispensed by licensed clinics and requires three clinic visits (including after-care) to complete the process of using it to abort a pregnancy. The pill is only administered in the first seven weeks of pregnancy, meaning that the pill is taken at home in a more personal setting and the material aborted is similar to that of menstrual flow and a blood clot the size of a pea. The process is not highly complicated, but it is strictly regulated.

Secondly, the anti-choice faction falsely claims that the effects of aborting a pregnancy with the "mindless" and "convenient" use of a pill are psychologically damaging to the woman.

Such a position ignores the decision-making process which a woman undergoes in considering abortion. More importantly, it also belittles the mental capacity of a woman to decide what is best for her. In reality, what are psychological damaging are the controlling measures of the anti-choice forces. While they keep women in fear of the after-effects of abortion and RU 486, the pro-choice movement encourages women to make their own decisions. The availability of RU 486 would allow a woman this control over her reproductive abilities and for this reason offers liberating choice.

RU 486 also has the potential to be a liberating choice for women outside the United States. In developing countries, where women are limited by a lack of resources more debilitating than an anti-choice faction, an estimated 100,000 women die each year from illegal, septic abortions (Population Crisis Committee). For these women, RU 486 could literally be a life-saver. RU 486 would be safer and potentially less expensive in settings where sterile abortion services are unavailable. A pill that could be administered on an outpatient basis, eliminating the need for surgical personnel and facilities.

Women in the Third World will never come to know RU 486 as relief from unsterile abortion. The drug remains one of the best kept secrets of a few privileged countries. Indeed, the government must bring RU 486 into the United States for research and medical application. Until this happens, it is sending a clear message that it denies women their right to reproductive freedom, it also denies all citizens their rights to the latest technological advances in health care.

Marit Wee and Marissa Tirona were summer interns at the Emma Goldman Clinic for Women.

LOS ANGELES—An 80-year-old man who lost $101,000 buying a junk bond at Lincoln Savings testified in Charles Keating's fraud trial Tuesday that he thought the risky investment was insured like a certificate of deposit.

Leon Bonan, the first witness to testify, hobbled to the witness stand and said he wouldn't have bought a junk bond had he understood the risk.

Bonan and his wife were the first in a parade of investors scheduled to testify as prosecutors put a pitiful human face on the collapse of Keating's Lincoln Savings & Loan, which cost taxpayers a record $2.6 billion.

estate and financial services company owned by the Keating family.

Keating, 67, is accused in 20 counts of helping dupe investors into thinking the bonds were safe. He could be sentenced to up to 10 years in prison if convicted of six or more counts.

Bonan said bond sellers never encouraged him to read the prospectus, and he signed a purchase agreement without reading it. During a 10- or 15-minute sales pitch, one bond seller told him it would yield higher interest than a certificate of deposit and that it was safe, he said.

Prison hostages finally receive food

Hoyt Harwell
Associated Press

TALLADEGA, Ala.—Federal officials on Thursday sent food to rebel Cuban inmates and their nine hostages, ending a weeklong starvation siege at a prison.

But at least two hostages need medical help, said officials who fear for the hostages' mental state.

The inmates, meanwhile, posted a sign that said "Pray for us."

The seven men and two women hostages, as well as 121 Cuban detainees and 18 American inmates in the occupied unit, were given hamburger, rice, beans, bread and coffee only a few hours after the Cubans released one ailing hostage.

Prison officials said the released hostage — Kitty Suddeth, a 34-year-old prison secretary — was receiving medical treatment Thursday, but they refused to disclose her condition or location.

Food had been withheld from the unit since the takeover began the morning of Aug. 21 but was delivered early Thursday.

Inmates posted a sign from the roof Tuesday night that read, "We have not been fed for a week. The hostages are dying due to the lack of food."

Among signs raised by five Cubans who went on the roof of the besieged unit Thursday was one that read "Pray for us."

Greg Bogdan, a spokesman for the U.S. Bureau of Prisons, said Thursday at least two hostages needed "significant medical attention." He didn't elaborate.

"Moreover," Bogdan said, "we are concerned about the long-term psychological effect that this stressful ordeal is having on the hostages and any detainees that might not want to be there."

The Cubans in the besieged cell-block are among thousands who arrived in this country during the 1980 Mariel boatlift, and some have said they would rather die than return to their homeland.

Warden Roger Scott said that doctors examined the nine hostages and detainees at a grille at the entry to the unit, but that they "were not allowed to fully assess the condition of the hostages."

He said that some of the hostages need medical attention and that at least one Cuban is known to have a potentially life-threatening diabetic condition.

Robert Ray, 38, motorman of a subway train that crashed in Manhattan Wednesday, leaves New York's 13th Precinct accompanied by police.

Subway operator intoxicated, drowsy at time of fatal accident, says report

Catherine Crocker
Associated Press

NEW YORK — The operator of a speeding subway train said he had been drinking and was falling asleep at the controls just before the train derailed, killing five people, according to court documents released Thursday.

Robert Ray, 38, had a blood-alcohol level of 0.21 percent, twice the legal limit, according to tests taken about 13 hours after the accident. Tests showed no trace of drugs, police said.

Police had reported earlier that a vial with traces of cocaine was found in the motorman's cab.

Ray was arraigned on five counts of second-degree manslaughter and was ordered held without bail.

The transport union representing him announced it will agree to random drug and alcohol testing in an effort to restore confidence among riders after the worst accident in 63 years in the nation's largest subway system.

The National Transportation Safety Board completed its on-site investigation Thursday but will not issue a final report for at least seven months, said Ken Lopatkiewicz, the board's spokesman.

Ray told police he had been drinking before work and was falling asleep as he operated the 10-car train, which crashed as it switched from the express to the local track at the Union Square station in lower Manhattan, according to the complaint that charged him with manslaughter.

At least 133 passengers of the approximately 500 people aboard the train were injured in Wednesday's accident, which sheared off part of the first car, folded the third car around a wall and derailed several other cars. An additional 126 people, including police and firefighters and other rescue workers, were treated at the scene.

Five late-night workers — two women and three men — were killed, police said.

The motorman told police he "consumed alcohol prior to his operation of said train and was falling asleep as he operated the train prior to the crash," according to the complaint prepared by Detective William Barger of the Police Department's Major Case Squad.

Ray also said the train was traveling about 35 to 45 mph when it crashed, according to the complaint. Steven Blakely, acting general superintendent of the Transit Authority's Rapid Transit Department, said the speed limit where the derailment occurred is 10 mph.

According to the police complaint, the train's conductor, David Beerem, told police Ray was operating the train at a speed "far in excess of a safe speed" when it made the track change and crashed.

Beerem also said Ray had been operating the train erratically before the crash, overshooting two stations in the Bronx. At one, five cars went beyond the end of the platform; at another, one car did, the complaint said.

Immediately after the accident, Ray talked to two police officers but then left the subway tunnel. Authorities did not see him again until they picked him up at his apartment about 5½ hours after the midnight accident.

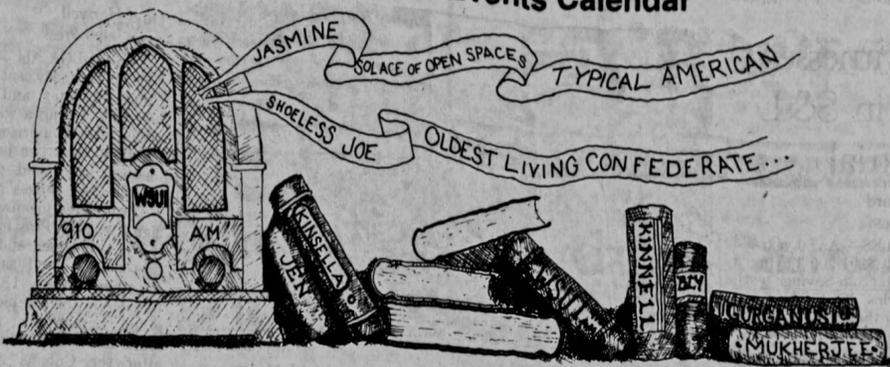

Sonny Hall, president of Transport Workers Union Local 100, said his union was willing to accept random drug and alcohol testing to offset "the perception of substance abuse among transit workers."

He said he planned to propose testing to Metropolitan Transportation Authority head Peter Stangl at a meeting late Thursday.

The Transit Authority tests employees when they are hired, for any promotion, as part of their regular physical check-ups and when an accident or "any incident warrants it," said Bob Previdi, a transit spokesman.

Meanwhile, workers were using torches and axes "to cut the train out of there piece by piece," Transit Authority spokeswoman Karen Gardner said. Officials hope to return service by Tuesday morning.

Steinbrenner upset about draft choice signing

NEW YORK — George Steinbrenner, banned from operating the Yankees or becoming involved in their baseball decisions, is making his feelings known in the only way possible — through the media.

Steinbrenner earlier this week blasted the team's front-office staff for failing to sign No. 1 draft pick Brian Taylor, saying, "If they let him go, they ought to be shot."

Now Steinbrenner is unhappy that the 19-year-old left-handed pitcher has a minor-league contract worth $1.55 million.

Steinbrenner told Newsday that the last figure he read in a newspaper was that Taylor had asked for $650,000.

"Never in my wildest dreams would I have paid that kid a million-and-a-half," Steinbrenner said from his home in Tampa, Fla. "I'm getting damned tired of people spending my money like this."

Derby vows to follow Foster's footsteps

Chuck Schöffner
 Associated Press

IOWA CITY — Few Iowa football teams have had a leader like Melvin Foster.

He was intense, he was vocal, he kept his teammates on their toes. An all-Big Ten linebacker, Foster was tough enough and good enough to back up everything he said.

Coach Hayden Fry goes so far as to call Foster "one of the finest leaders in the history of Iowa football."

But that was last year. Foster is gone now so the mantle of leadership is being handed down. It has landed on the broad shoulders of John Derby, a pretty good linebacker in his own right.

"Melvin Foster was an unbelievable leader," Derby said. "I know I'm the one to be the leader now, and I'm very excited about that. I've always felt I've been a leader in every game I've played."

"I just play as hard as I can and hope people follow in my footsteps. I'm not really a vocal leader."

If his teammates do follow him, they'll probably end up around the ball. Although Foster reaped most of the individual honors last year, Derby more than held his own.

The 6-foot-1, 235-pounder from Oconomowoc, Wis., made 88 tackles last fall, including six behind the line of scrimmage. He also recovered two fumbles, broke up five passes and intercepted a pass. Foster led the team with 107 tackles.

"Melvin and I both had consistent years," Derby said. "That's why I think he was such a good player. He was consistent."

"It's always been my goal to improve from one game to the next. I'm not looking for fame. Whatever it takes to get the team a victory, that's what I'm going to do."

Fry rates Derby as one of the better all-around linebackers he has coached at Iowa.

"We've had the Larry Stations, the Fosters, those kind of people that were usually real good against the run and not that good against the pass," Fry said. "Other guys are good against the pass, but not that strong against the run. Derby is real good in both areas."

One of Derby's biggest plays last fall came in one of Iowa's biggest games — a 24-23 victory at Michigan. Iowa was clinging to its one-point lead late in the game when Derby intercepted a pass.

He took off running like he was determined to score but settled for a 9-yard return and dashing Michigan's last hopes of winning.

"I played fullback in high school and one of my big goals has been to score a touchdown in college," said Derby, Page 2B

U.S. OPEN

Heavyweights cruise at Open

Steve Wilstein
 Associated Press

NEW YORK — It is all so easy for Pete Sampras at the U.S. Open, and all so hard for him off the court.

Give him fortune without fame, respect without responsibilities, and he'll be happy to hit tennis balls forever.

Sampras, a manchild at 20, is caught between his desires and his needs, wanting to make the U.S. Open his "home away from home" as Boris Becker has done with Wimbledon, but feeling he must escape the inevitable celebrity.

He barely strained himself on the court to reach the third round Thursday, then looked so uncomfortable talking about it, as if every question were a volley to his throat.

On a day when fans and players were collapsing in the heat and humidity, Sampras breezed in the shade of the grandstand when his opponent, Wayne Ferreira, quit with a sprained ankle while losing 6-1, 6-2, 2-2. The abbreviated match lasted about as long as Sampras' first-rounder, a straight-sets romp in which he yielded only five games to Christo van Rensburg.

Sampras, the youngest U.S. Open men's winner in history last year, seems poised to go for the title again. His 125-mph serves are kissing the corners as they did a year ago, his volleys are crisp and his legs don't hurt the way they did most of the year after his victory here last September.

"My game is as high as it has been in a long time," Sampras said. "I played probably as well as I could have played in the first two sets today."

Sampras is peaking at just the right time, coming in here after winning two tournaments this summer following many months of injuries and self-doubt.

The first few months after winning the Open last year, he said, were "just utter chaos" as he bounced from exhibition to exhibition, talk show to talk show and one interview and reception after another.

"Maybe it was a bit my fault," he said. "Maybe I didn't control the situation the way I should have. But you live and learn about these things. If I had to do it over again, I would do it differently. I don't think I would have done the exhibitions and talk shows, which I was committed to, I would have taken a two- to three-week vacation and let it sink in."

"I don't enjoy doing talk shows. I was a little nervous when I went to see Johnny (Carson). But I'll have a tape to show the grandkids. I don't like to be the center of attention. I don't like to be famous."

Yet, he is caught in a contradiction here in one of the media capitals of the world, insisting that he would "like to make the U.S. Open be my home away from home. You know, like they talk about Becker at Centre Court at Wimbledon being his home. This is a good tournament to be my home."

Becker wouldn't mind making the U.S. Open his second home. He won here in 1989 and is looking strong this year, reaching the third round with a 6-0, 7-6 (7-4), 6-1 victory over Alexander Volkov.

Volkov upset Stefan Edberg in the first round last year, but couldn't cope with Becker's power or quickness to the net.

"I could sense after I won the tiebreaker that the match was over," Becker said. In truth, it looked as if Volkov just quit trying in the final set, either overwhelmed by Becker or the heat, or both.

PIGSKIN CLASSIC

Seminoles rout BYU in Classic

Associated Press

ANAHEIM, Calif. — Casey Weldon threw for 268 yards and two touchdowns, outplaying Ty Detmer in the contest of quarterbacks as top-ranked Florida State whipped No. 19 Brigham Young 44-21 Thursday night in the Pigskin Classic.

Heisman Trophy winner Detmer was 19-for-32 for 229 yards with one interception. But kept his 24-game TD passing streak alive when he hit Eric Drage with a 30-yard shot with 7:22 remaining.

But the effort came far too late for the 19th-ranked Cougars, whose inexperienced offensive line made Detmer an easy target all night.

Behind Weldon, the Seminoles' explosive offense rolled up 543 yards, and he completed 21 of 28 passes with no interceptions.

Leading 28-14 at halftime, the Seminoles continued to roll in the third quarter, marching 86 yards on 11 plays to score on a 2-yard run by Edgar Bennett with 7:10 left in the quarter.

Florida St. 44 BYU 28

Detmer threw for only 16 yards in the third quarter while being sacked for an 8-yard loss. The Cougars' ground game was even worse, posting a 13-yard loss during that span.

A bad snap on a punt by Florida State resulted in a 40-yard loss and set up the Cougars' second touchdown of the half, a 6-yard pass from Detmer to Eric Hughes with 2:27 remaining.

Florida State's Edgar Bennett scored two touchdowns, rushing 19 times for 87 yards and making six catches for 57 yards. Amp Lee ran for 75 yards on 13 carries.

Against the undermanned BYU defense, the Seminoles rolled to a 13-0 lead on their first two possessions as Bennett caught a 4-yard pass from Weldon and ran 3 yards for another score.

Bell's three RBIs carry Cubs

Braves keep on rolling behind Smoltz, shut out Mets 2-0

Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO — George Bell came out of a slump and the Chicago Cubs came up with a victory.

"My bat was silent for a couple of weeks, but usually my slumps don't last long," said Bell after his home run and three RBIs led the Cubs to a 5-4 triumph over the San Francisco Giants on Thursday.

"Today, I saw the ball pretty good, and I connected pretty good," said Bell, who hadn't homered since August 11.

Right-hander Greg Maddux (11-8) pitched an eight-hitter for his fourth complete game and got the win when pinch hitter Dwight Smith's two-out single in the eighth inning broke a 4-4 tie.

Bell gave the Cubs a 2-0 lead with a sacrifice fly in the first inning. He doubled in the third and hit his 22nd homer off starter Trevor Wilson following a two-out triple by Andre Dawson in the fifth.

"I was more happy to get the win than the complete game," Maddux said.

"Late in the season is usually when you slow down, but I felt strong all the way through. I found my control the last few innings, so I was able to spot my fastball better."

Maddux struck out six and walked four as he passed the 200-inning mark for the fourth straight season and pitched his fourth complete game.

Trevor Wilson, going for his sixth consecutive victory for the Giants, fell behind 4-3 in the fifth inning on a triple by Andre Dawson and Bell's homer.

Padres 1, Cardinals 0

ST. LOUIS — Andy Benes pitched a two-hitter and struck out 10 as the Padres cooled off the Cardinals for the second straight game with a 1-0 victory Thursday night.

Oscar Azocar singled home the only run in the fourth inning as San Diego won for the fifth time in six games. The Padres have not allowed an earned run in their last 15 innings against St. Louis.

Benes (10-10) retired the final 16 batters to improve to 6-0 in his last eight starts. He walked only one for his third complete game, and second career shutout in outdueling rookie Omar Olivares (7-5). Olivares gave up four hits in seven innings, ending a three-game winning streak.

Azocar is 6-for-15 since being called up from Triple-A Las Vegas Aug. 9.

Braves 2, Mets 0

ATLANTA — Ron Gant scored from first base on a single by Dave Justice and streaking John Smoltz pitched seven strong innings Thursday night as the surging Braves defeated the Mets 2-0.

The first-place Braves, the hottest team in the NL since the All-Star break at 32-16, have won four straight and seven of nine. The Mets, meanwhile, dropped their third in a row and 23rd in 29 games.

Smoltz (10-13), allowed six hits, struck out five and walked one. He is 8-2 since the All-Star break and earning his fifth victory in six decisions. Mike Stanton relieved in the eighth and earned his sixth save.

 The Braves were held to three hits through 5 1/2 innings by rookie Anthony Young (0-1), but finally broke through in the sixth when Gant was hit by a pitch and Justice knocked him home.
Reds 5, Expos 4
CINCINNATI—Barry Larkin and Chris Sabo hit consecutive homers in a five-run fifth inning as the Reds came from behind to beat the Expos 5-4 Thursday night for their fourth straight win.
 The Reds had failed to get a hit off Brian Barnes (3-5) until the fifth, when Paul O'Neill led off with a single. The Reds then scored five times with two out to wipe out a three-run deficit and send the Expos to their fourth loss in a row.
 Jose Rijo (11-5) survived a three-run first inning set up by his two throwing errors. He allowed four hits in six innings to improve to 7-0 in 12 starts this season at Riverfront Stadium. Rob Dibble pitched the ninth for his 27th save in 29 chances.

 The Reds have won six of their last seven to move above .500 (64-63) for the first time since Aug. 5.
Astros 5, Phillies 1
PHILADELPHIA—The Phillies' team record-tying streak of 16 straight home victories ended Thursday night when Ken Caminiti drove in four more runs as the Astros won 5-1.
 Caminiti drove in five runs Wednesday night in Houston's loss. In his last four games, he is 9-for-16 with 14 RBIs. He has tied his career of 72 RBIs, set in 1989.
 Mark Portugal (10-6) pitched a six-hitter, struck out six and walked none in his first complete game since Aug. 13, 1990. He lost a bid for his first shutout since since Sept. 17, 1989, when Wes Chamberlain led off the ninth inning with his 10th home run.
 Danny Cox (4-6) gave up four runs on six hits in five innings.

He has won only once in his last nine starts, and was the loser the last time the Phillies lost at Veterans Stadium on July 14. Philadelphia matched the longest home winning streak in club history, accomplished in 1977.
American League
White Sox 7, Indians 2
CHICAGO—The White Sox erupted for four homers, including a pair of two-run shots by Carlton Fisk, to end a nine-game losing streak Thursday night with a 7-2 win over the Indians.
 Robin Ventura also had a two-run homer and Frank Thomas hit his 27th, a solo shot, for Chicago.
 Fisk's 12th homer of the year and 366th of his career with nobody out in the second off loser Willie Blair (1-2), held up, enabling the White Sox to end their longest skid since 1978.
 McDowell (15-8), snapped a personal two-game losing streak, setting the Indians back with only their second loss in six games. McDowell walked one and struck out six.

 The White Sox took out their frustrations on Blair, the same pitcher who beat them in Cleveland 4-3 last Friday. Blair gave up six runs on eight hits in 2 1/2 innings.
Blue Jays 6, Yankees 2
NEW YORK—David Wells won for the first time in more than a month as the Blue Jays beat the Yankees 6-2 Thursday night for their fifth straight victory and a 2 1/2-game lead over Detroit in the AL East.
 Wells and the Blue Jays went through a rough time for much of August, but both seem going in the right direction heading into September. Wells (13-9) had given up 27 runs over 26 1/2 innings in losing his previous five starts.
 The left-hander gave up eight hits, struck out five and didn't walk a batter for his second complete game. He won seven straight decisions from May 31-July 24.

U.S. OPEN: Favorites breeze in heat

 Ferreira was one of four players who quit in midmatch for different reasons. Courtside temperatures over 100 degrees took a toll on Sweden's Christian Bergstrom, who retired because of heat exhaustion in a match against France's Arnaud Boetsch.
 Aaron Krickstein, who upset Andre Agassi in the first round, reached the third round when Jaime Yzaga suffered a strained right knee while losing 6-1, 3-6, 6-1, 3-2.
 Thierry Champion retired with a pulled stomach muscle while trailing Anders Jarryd 7-5, 6-2, 1-1.
 French Open champion Jim Courier, wearing his familiar baseball cap to block the sun, needed only 1 hour, 39 minutes to beat Jimmy Arias 6-3, 6-2, 6-0.

 Courier, the fourth seed, looks as comfortable on the hard courts at the National Tennis Center as he did on the clay at Roland Garros.
 "I feel that the hard court is my best surface overall," Courier said. "My game is pretty adept at it. I hit a pretty big serve. I have a pretty good return of serve."
 "I don't know that I have many weaknesses, so I feel that is a pretty big edge here. I can pretty much adapt to a lot of circumstances, which is key."
 David Wheaton, who reached the semifinals at Wimbledon, advanced easily by beating Horst Skoff 6-1, 6-2, 6-2. Wheaton said it's important to get matches over quickly in the heat and humidity, but sometimes would like more of a challenge.

 "It's more important here than somewhere like Wimbledon, because the points are shorter at Wimbledon," he said. "But on the other hand, you don't want to be just going through without any resistance."
 "When there is pressure, you start going neck and neck. The second set is where you get in trouble. You kind of relate to that the whole tournament. You want to have some pressure tennis, so you are used to that environment later in the tournament."
 Four-time champion Martina Navratilova reached the third round with a 6-1, 6-4 victory over 1990 NCAA singles champion Debbie Graham of Stanford.

 Navratilova, seeded No. 6, dominated the net against the error-prone Graham, a 21-year-old who recently turned professional.
 Wimbledon champion and top seed Steffi Graf took only 39 minutes to beat Catherine Mothes, 6-0, 6-0, the first double-bagel of the tournament.
 "I told myself to concentrate on every single point and see how it goes," Graf said. "The thing is, she didn't really have the strokes to make the points."
 Arantxa Sanchez Vicario, the No. 4 seed, also advanced easily, beating Kristin Godridge 6-1, 6-1 in a night match.

DERBY: Leader

 Derby, who ran for 1,780 yards and scored 30 touchdowns in his prep career.
 "I tried in that game, but they sent all of those big linemen after me so I thought I'd better fall down."
 Derby and his teammates will be trying to maintain a tradition for solid defense at Iowa. The Hawkeyes led the Big Ten in rushing defense and total defense last year, when they shared the conference title and went to the Rose Bowl.
 Iowa has finished in the top 10 nationally in total defense four times since 1981, and the Hawkeyes have been nationally ranked in rushing defense seven of the last 10 seasons.
 Derby gives much of the credit to defensive coordinator Bill Brashier, who like Fry is starting his 13th season at Iowa.

 "Coach Brashier is an unbelievable coach," Derby said. "At half-time, he makes such great adjustments. He also sets up such great game plans."
 "It's a motivation for me to keep the defense going. Coach Brashier always says it's the No. 1 defense in the Big Ten that goes to the Rose Bowl. He's right. As far as I can tell, all the No. 1 defensive teams have gone to the Rose Bowl."
 Derby is one of many players from Wisconsin who have enjoyed success at Iowa. This year's team includes running back Mike Saunders of Milton, offensive lineman Ted Velicer of Green Bay and fullback Paul Kujawa of Cudahy.

 Fry and his staff have been so successful at luring Wisconsin players to Iowa that the University of Wisconsin's second-year coach, Barry Alvarez, has made keeping the state's high school stars at home one of his major goals.
 Alvarez is a former Iowa assistant who is trying to revive a program that has seen only 10 victories in the last five years.
 "Mike Saunders came from a winning program in high school, I came from a winning program," Derby said. "We did not like to lose, so we came to a place that played winning football."
 "I really think they'll get better at Wisconsin with Alvarez. I'm sure they'll start to get a lot of Wisconsin players."

 Keeping Iowa No. 1 in defense isn't the only thing driving Derby this year. He's still sick about the way the 1990 season ended.
 Iowa won its first five Big Ten games last fall, was 7-1 overall and ranked sixth nationally. But the Hawkeyes stumbled in the stretch. They lost two of their last three regular-season games, then were beaten by Washington 46-34 in the Rose Bowl.
 "That's one thing that kept us going during the off season," Derby said. "It hurts when you're having a dream season and then everything turns on you and you go downhill. I really want to get back to the Rose Bowl and win it this time."

NL WEST

Dodger skid finally lands them in 2nd

John N. ... Associated Press
 LOS ANGELES—The way things have gone since the All-Star break, it was only a matter of time before the Dodgers fell into second place in the NL West.

It happened Wednesday night, causing them to look up in the standings for the first time since May 13. But as Tim Belcher suggested the other day, that may be just what they need to get going again.

After a three-run homer by Brett Butler off Doug Drabek in the eighth lifted the Dodgers into a 4-4 tie with the Pirates on Wednesday night, Pittsburgh scored twice in the ninth for a 6-4 victory.

Following their fifth loss in six games, the Dodgers found themselves in second place for the first time in 106 days. They trailed the first-place Braves by one game entering Thursday night's action.

The Dodgers fell into second place by virtue of losing 10½ games to the Braves since July 11.

The Braves, who finished last in the NL West last year, haven't been alone in first place this late in a season since 1983.

"You know, I've been thinking, maybe we need to drop into second place," Belcher said earlier this week after the Dodgers lost their third straight game at St. Louis. "Maybe we need to look like just another run-of-the-mill team in the standings, just like we've looked like a run-of-the-mill team on the field."

"You know, maybe that will wake us up."

The Dodgers were in first place from May 18 until Tuesday when they lost to the Cubs and the Braves beat the Expos, leaving the teams tied for the top spot. Then came Wednesday night's results — the Dodgers lost and the Braves beat the Mets 3-1.

"We're struggling a little bit now, especially offensively, and the key thing is for us to get some key hits," Dodgers catcher Mike Scioscia said. "I don't feel any negative momentum. We haven't built up much positive momentum the last couple of weeks, honestly, but I think that'll change."

"I have a lot of confidence in this team. Everyone is playing as hard as I've ever seen any teammates I've ever had play. And that's very reassuring."

Pirates manager Jim Leyland said he wasn't surprised about the success of the Braves, but had some reassuring words for the Dodgers.

"The Braves have kicked our butts all year," Leyland said. "But the Dodgers have an outstanding team and they're going to be right there. They'll battle the rest of the way. Hey, they could be tied again tomorrow."

Butler said, "We've got 36 games left, so I'd say there's a lot of baseball left. You tip your hat to the Braves because they fought us all the time to try and catch us — and now they've caught us."

"It's like I said in a meeting on Monday. It's a two-team race, and the best team is going to win."

One thing the Dodgers have in their favor is the schedule — after Thursday night's games, they'll have 19 home games and 16 road games. The Braves will have 13 home games and 22 road games.

"This is how it's going to be, it's a pennant race," Bob Ojeda said. "That's competition, and that's what it's all about. It's going to come down to the end. In the meantime, one good game is not going to magically make everything fall into place and a bad game is not going to cut our throats."

Certainly, the Dodgers didn't seem ready to cut their throats when they fell into second place. In fact, they were willing to give the Braves credit.

NL EAST

Cards doing it inexpensively

R.B. Fallstrom
 Associated Press

ST. LOUIS—A year ago, general manager Dal Maxvill was seen as a villain, a cheapskate and a chump by St. Louis fans for allowing a free-agent exodus that threatened to leave the team in second-division exile for years.

You couldn't really blame him for crowing now that the surprising, overlooked Cardinals are only five games out of first place in the NL East with a little more than a month to go.

Contending status is more than enough for him, thank you. "I don't care about vindication and I don't look for it," Maxvill said. "We just try to do what we think is right for the club and we go from there. So, the hell with vindication."

The Cardinals would be any general manager's dream, a contender with a balanced budget. The team saved $41.45 million last winter by electing not to sign outfielders Vince Coleman and Willie McGee (who was traded to Oakland), third baseman Terry Pendleton and reliever Ken Dayley, electing instead to go with products of their own farm system.

On opening day, the Cardinals had two rookies and two second-year players in the starting lineup, as well as a catcher beginning his first year as a regular. And they've been without left-hander Joe Magrane, who had elbow surgery, for the entire year.

The Cardinals finished last in the East in 1990 and it looked like another nightmare in the making to closer Lee Smith, who leads the league with 37 saves.

"Had I known all those guys would be leaving when I signed, it probably would have been a little tougher on me," Smith said.

Instead, the Cardinals have been tough on everybody else with a nice blend of youthful zest and experienced players like Ozzie Smith, Pedro Guerrero and Lee Smith. As the rest of the contenders in the East have dropped by the wayside, the Cardinals have been keeping the heat on the Pirates.

One of the rookies, center fielder Ray Lankford, leads the major leagues with 13 triples and is tied for the team lead with 30 stolen bases. He's also been an impressive clutch hitter, batting over .300 from the seventh inning on.

Second-year men Todd Zeile and Felix Jose have had big seasons.

Zeile has made a successful transition from catcher to third base and leads the team with 61 RBIs. Jose, acquired from Oakland in the McGee deal, has been among the league leaders in hitting all year.

Zeile said he never had a doubt the team would be competitive.

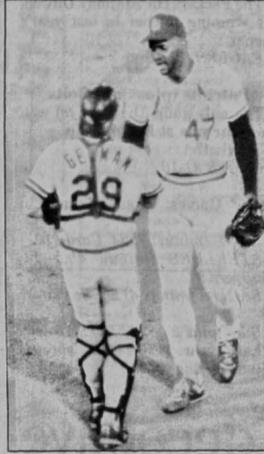

"We still have quality guys, we just haven't had to go out and sign anybody," Zeile said. "And just because we don't have a major free agent doesn't mean we don't have any people who have that potential, like Ozzie and Pedro."

Win or lose, the austerity program may be scrapped, at least temporarily, this winter.

The team is unlikely to offer a contract to Guerrero, who can become a free agent, and is undecided whether to exercise an option in Ozzie Smith's contract. Because they are the cornerstones of the team, free agent replacements will be costly.

"I still believe after this season when we find a hole exists, I believe we'll spend the money," manager Joe Torre said. "This season it was just a business decision."

"It wasn't that we didn't want to spend the money, but we wanted to see whether the players we've been developing are major-league caliber."

The Cardinals are rumored to be interested in acquiring Angels first baseman Wally Joyner, who can become a free agent this fall and who would replace Guerrero nicely.

"Over the years we've signed a few free agents, but that's not our means, our primary mode of building," Maxvill said. "The farm system is the only way to go, long term. Those quick fixes every year don't work."

"Just ask the Cubs."

New coach Schoenstedt takes spikers into Texas

David Taylor
Daily Iowan

The Iowa volleyball team begins its season in the heart of Texas this weekend as they take part in the Asics Tiger Classic tournament, competing with Houston, Wichita State and host Texas-Arlington.

New coach Linda Schoenstedt takes over the Hawkeye program after compiling a 101-48 record at Wright State and a 331-154 overall coaching record. Schoenstedt replaces Ruth Nelson who left after two years at Iowa to become Sports Marketing Manager with Special Olympics International.

Schoenstedt, a native of Joliet, Ill., native has coached at three other colleges in her 13-year career, entering Iowa with an impressive .678 winning percentage.

Iowa will also have many new faces on the player roster with only one senior returning from last year's 19-15 (10-8 in the Big Ten) squad. The team won seven matches in a row after starting the season at 2-9 and went on to compete in the Women's Invitational Volleyball Championship, where they lost to eventual runner-up Cal State Northridge.

Lost to graduation are seven players from that team and there will be nine incoming freshman. The Hawkeyes will also face a difficult schedule, competing against seven teams currently in the Top 20 and beginning the season with eight straight road contests.

Senior middle hitter Trista Schoenbeck of Roseville, Minn., is being counted on to lead the team, along with juniors Patty Griffith of Sturgis, Mich., and Michelle Haywood of Phoenix, Ariz. Schoenbeck was fourth on the team in kills and second in blocks last year. Haywood is a transfer from Arizona and Griffith saw spot duty with the Hawkeyes last year.

NFL kicks off season Sunday

Dave Goldberg
Associated Press

Nothing like starting the season with another Monday night game between the Giants and 49ers.

A few things to note as the 49ers meet the Giants for third time in their last eight games:

■ The 49ers have won the last four regular-season games against the Giants, starting with a 1987 strike replacement contest.

■ The Giants have won the last three playoff games, capped by the 15-13 last-second win in last season's NFC title game.

■ In last year's two games, only two touchdowns were scored, both by the 49ers. San Francisco won the aggregate, 20-18.

■ Phil Simms won't start for the Giants and Joe Montana won't play for the 49ers. On the other hand, Jeff Hostetler beat the 49ers in last year's NFC title game and Steve Young went 54 of 69 in the preseason.

The two games last season were at Candlestick Park, and this one is at Giants Stadium, which makes the Giants 2½-point favorites.

But the 49ers have won 20 straight on the road and lost two of the last three at home.

The streak ends here.

GIANTS, 7-3.

Dolphins (plus 7) at Bills

Like the Giants and 49ers, these guys seem to play every week — this is the third time they've played in the last half-dozen games.

Unlike the Giants and 49ers, they score a lot of points (44-34 Buffalo in the playoffs).

Don't take Dan Marino's 14 for 45 in the last two exhibition games seriously, but pay attention to injuries — Sammie Smith and Richmond Webb with the Dolphins; Jim Kelly (perhaps), Bruce Smith (perhaps) and Leon Seals with the Bills.

If nothing else, this should be fun.

BILLS, 34-24.

Vikings (plus 2) at Bears

This one belongs on frozen tundra in December. The Vikings should come back this year, but they haven't won outdoors since 1989.

BEARS, 13-10

Raiders (plus 2½) at Oilers

A good matchup for the Raiders. If they can hurry Warren Moon, they can negate some of the run-and-shoot's power. And they should be able to run the ball, particularly with Ray Childress aching.

RAIDERS, 24-20

Cowboys (minus 2) at Browns

Cleveland is (almost) what Dallas was two years ago. But the Cowboys are going into the Dawg Pound against a fired-up team under a coach, Bill Belichick, who used to play Dallas twice a year and knows how to prepare.

BROWNS, 20-16

Lions (plus 7½) at Redskins (Sunday night)

"I don't know what's wrong with us," Joe Gibbs said after the Redskins' 1-3 preseason. Whatever it is, the Lions should help it get better.

REDSKINS, 27-17

Falcons (plus 7) at Chiefs

An intriguing clash of styles. Jerry Glanville is fun to watch, Marty Schottenheimer wins games.

CHIEFS, 20-10

Bengals (plus 2) at Broncos

Each day, another Cincinnati offensive lineman seems to get carted off.

And the Bengals haven't won in Denver since 1975.

BRONCOS, 24-13

Eagles (minus 2½) at Packers

The Packers cut Anthony Dilweg, the winning pitcher in last year's opener.

EAGLES, 21-16

Patriots (plus 8) at Colts

The only game the Pats(ys) won last year was at Indianapolis. So what?

COLTS 21-10

Other Games: Home Teams in CAPS:

RAMS (minus) 7, 24, Cards 10

STEELERS (minus 4½) 14, Chargers 9

SAINTS (minus 4) 20, Seahawks 13

Bucs (plus 2½) 17, JETS 13

Last year: 120-111-2 (spread) 150-83 (straight up)

Hostetler is in for the Giants, Montana is out for the 49ers.

Lewis breaks

while Bubka

wins pole vault

Bert Rosenthal

TOKYO — Sergei Bubka know if he could win, and Foster didn't know if he did it. But with one last leap and one lean, both had gold medals for their third straight time at the Track and Field Championships. Foster edged Jack Pierce in the 110-meter high hurdles on Tuesday, while an ailing Bubka Soviet Union soared 19 feet 4 inches for a dramatic victory pole vault.

It was a bittersweet day for Americans, though.

Antonio Pettigrew won the 100 meters.

Carl Lewis prepped for Friday's long jump final with the best ever in qualifying.

Dan O'Brien gained the midway through the decathlon.

Delisa Floyd, an 800-meter runner, was suspended for four days by the International Amateur Athletic Federation after she tested positive for amphetamines.

"Delisa took nothing that was on the banned list," said her husband and coach Stanley Floyd, who was in Houston. "Every day, I supplement, every vitamin, we all called the Olympic committee. I want to make sure it wasn't on the banned list."

It was not disclosed what type of amphetamine Floyd tested positive for.

"How can they tell someone is banned but they can't tell why?" Floyd asked.

Bubka, meanwhile, has been tugging his emotions over the pole vault tension in the Soviet Union as well as injuries to both heels.

"The first thing is we have to work, whether under capitalism or socialism," said Bubka, a native of the Ukraine, one of seven Soviet athletes to declare independence.

"Now, the Soviet Union is working toward capitalism. I think that will remain difficult, unless we settle down."

Bubka added that the most important thing for him was to continue participating "under no matter what flag," especially in the Barcelona Olympics.

Bubka had trouble with his feet Thursday. To curb the pain, he gave an injection 90 minutes before the competition and another late in the competition.

After clearing his first attempt at 19-8¼, he passed until 19-4¼, missed his first try at that height then passed, and missed again on his first shot at the next height of 19-6¼.

At that point, he was sixth.

He had been unsuccessful on his next attempt, he would have finished there and Istvan Bagyula of Hungary would have won. But as he did in the '88 Olympics, world record holder won on his final jump, clearing 19-6¼, breaking the championship record of 19-2¼ he set in 1987.

"Today's victory was very hard for me," Bubka said. "My confidence level was 50-50."

Bagyula, who attends Georgetown Mason University, figured Bubka would pull out the victory.

"It would be unrealistic to beat Bubka even if he had his injuries," Bagyula said. "First place is given to him. It's decided before the competition. Second place is what we're going for."

Like Bubka, the 33-year-old Pole is unbeatable in World Championship finals, and just like the Soviet he set a championship record.

Both he and Pierce were timed at 13.06 seconds, but Foster overtook them and was declared the winner. Pierce asked for an official review before conceding.

"I couldn't tell who won," Pierce said. "I thought it was a photo finish. It looked dead even."

"I didn't think I had won," Foster said. "When I looked up at the scoreboard, I wasn't sure who I won."

"This was definitely the best, toughest, of the three titles."

While Foster's career is still in peril, Floyd's probably is over.

She became the first athlete suspended for four years by the IAAF after the world governing body's Congress changed the mandate suspension for a positive drug test from two to four years last week.

The amphetamines were found to be performance-enhancing, which led to the stiffer penalty," said Olan Cassell, executive director of The Athletics Congress, the sports governing body in the United States.

Pettigrew, a senior at St. Augustine's College in Raleigh, N.C., and the 1989 and 1991 U.S. champion, scored the biggest victory of his career in the 400, clocking 44.57, just ahead of Britain's Roger Black and American Danny Everett.

Lewis, already the winner of the 100-meter dash in a world-record 9.86 and winner of seven gold medals in seven world championship events, served notice that he was on target for another gold by leaping 28-1 in the long jump qualifying.

The best previous qualifying jump was 27-4 1/4 by Randy Williams at the 1972 Olympics.

"Technically, I'm as sound as I've ever been," Lewis said. "There's no question that I'm ready."

Is he ready to break another world record — Bob Beamon's 29-2 1/4?

"Everybody's talking about that... but it doesn't matter," he said. O'Brien, who missed the decathlon world record total of 8,847 points by Britain's Daley Thompson by three points at the U.S. Championships in June, finished the first five events with 4,602.

Life imitates 'Scooby-Doo'?

Locke Peterseim
Daily Iowan

Welcome to the first meeting of Survivors of the Pepsi Summer Chill Out. To get things started, let's go around the room and I want each of you to tell your name, your year in school and something you're really proud of.

Sorry, that's just a joke — you can stop screaming now. I don't want to do a "Welcome to the UI" kind of speech for the freshman; my esteemed, tall, balding colleague Mitch Martin already took care of that Monday. Just one word of wisdom for any newcomers, Mitch is a very nice guy, but when reading his columns it's important to keep in mind that this is a 24-year-old man who still believes in love, hope and Bruce Springsteen lyrics.

For those of you returning to Iowa City after a summer spent in faraway places, you should know the cable channels are a little different. It seems good, God-fearing folk were just darn sick of flipping on their tubes and getting MTV right off the bat at Channel 1. So that Satan-spawned force of video evil is now consigned to the nether regions of the dial while Pat Robertson's Family Channel takes the lead-off spot. Just a warning in case you go looking for Kari Wuhrer and get "Rin-Tin-Tin, Canine Cop."

Up one channel from Pat's Reactionary Playhouse is CBS, edging ahead of gay-controversy-fearing PBS for the title of Official Wimp-Ass Network. First there was CBS' dropping of the final reruns of "Pee-wee's Playhouse" the day after Reuben's arrest (I'm not going to jump on the Pee-wee Bad Pun bandwagon, but I am reminded of what Dennis Miller said a few years ago about Jimmy Swaggart:

"Let's face it, all he really did was get caught masturbating. I think we should let him have a free hand throw the first stone.") Now Larry Tisch's lame-o network is refusing to run ads for the new Miramax film "The Pope Must Die," claiming the ads may be offensive to a significant portion of the viewers. More offensive than "Prime Time Pets"? I doubt it.

When it comes to offensive there are always a few good targets to be found in the music industry. After we beat Larry Tisch soundly around the neck and ears, let's give a few whacks to Bob Seger and the Black Crowes. Seger's not a bad guy nor a bad rocker (that heinous blight upon wedding dances and oldies bars, "Old-Time Rock and Roll," not withstanding), but when I heard he was going to cover my second all-time favorite Face-down on the Bar Bemoaning Lost Love song, Tom Wait's "Blind Love" (No. 1 is still "I Got the Blues" off Sticky Fingers), I can't help but feel scared, confused and, yes, a little bit angry.

As for that Georgian band of competent-imitators-turned-saviors-of-rock, the Crowes, my feelings on them and their particular brand of hypocrisy was well-documented this summer. Still I can't help gloating a bit. A recent article in The Village Voice reprinted a memo from the PR offices of Island Records, telling employees how to speed-dial the very influential "Dial MTV" in order to boost the up and coming Drivin' and Cryin' into the video charts. The memo went on to note that this slimy, but legal promotional cheat was used to great effect to make the Black Crowes the darling of the teen-rock world they are today. Artistic integrity my ass.

And speaking of artistic integrity,

I'll bet you've been wondering what happened to last year's Queen of Self-Righteous Outrage, Sinead O'Connor. Well, seems she's going the acting route with the role of narrator Emily Bronte in an upcoming remake of "Wuthering Heights". But as perfect as Sinead O'Sluggo may seem for the part of that angst-ridden scourge of undergrad lit classes everywhere, she's even more perfect for another upcoming role — Joan of Arc. That crusading spirit! That shaved head! That martyr-syndrome! Honey, bring the Kingsford, we got ourselves a barbecue!

Finally we come to my favorite bit of news trivia from the summer. Seems a couple out East bought a new house, paid the downpayment and then discovered the place was haunted. Not exactly the "Poltergeist" or "Amityville Horror" kind of haunted, with melting faces, flies and demonic pigs, but more like a friendly paternal figure walking the halls late at night. Still, the wife was pregnant and probably feared her newborn would be born with horns and red eyes or eventually get sucked into the television set (which is, incidentally, a nice metaphor for modern childhood). So the couple wanted their money back and ended up, as do any and all arguments in the United States, in civil court. Did the judge laugh them right out of his chambers? Of course not — these are, after all, the '90s and goof-ball spiritualism is out of the séance parlors and into the legal system. The judge ruled for the plaintiffs, stating the haunting was a "pre-existing condition" the realtors failed to disclose. Life imitates "Scooby-Doo."

And we would have gotten away with it to, if it weren't for those meddling kids and that dog.

WEEKEND

IC Labor Day holiday entertainments: Head Candy at Gabe's, films at Bijou

Mandy Crane
Daily Iowan

At last the weekend is here and complain what you will about shorter library hours, it's also the last holiday of the summer so, as the commercial says, "Lash Out!"

While Labor Day may be an excuse for many to take to the open road, those of us with jobs and cars without air-conditioning may opt to stay in this cultural mecca of the Midwest. And we won't be bored, either.

■ For the freshmen to the university or to the total Iowa City music scene, one of the area's newest commercially successful bands, Head Candy, is playing at Gabe's Oasis, 330 E. Washington St., tonight. Once familiar with this band, fans can become well-oriented to much of the alternative crowd in I.C. Just remember that there is a small fee for this initiation, and you must be 19 to get through the toughest bouncers in the state.

■ It's back to the Bijou time. The Bijou is to the left of the box office in the Union, and tickets to films may be bought ahead of time. Value this information, first-timers, as this would have been very helpful indeed to this reporter last semester when she came in half an hour late to Bergman's "Autumn Sonata."

"Summertime," made in 1955, features the superb direction of David Lean ("Lawrence of Arabia" and "A Passage to India," among others), and the sensitive performance of Katharine Hepburn. This film also takes us to the land of pizza and pasta, with Hepburn as a spinster.
