Horner cancels appearance at UI

Lt. Gen. Charles Horner has canceled his scheduled appearance at the UI as a result of escalating tensions in the Persian Gulf.

Horner was to deliver this year's Distinguished Alumni Lecture Thursday and attend a dinner in his honor. The general was in charge of the allied air force in the Persian Gulf and was to speak on his experiences there in a presentation titled "Desert Shield / Desert Storm."

Horner graduated from the UI in 1954 and also has a master's degree in business from the College of William and Mary.

4 die in campground accident

FOLLETT, Iowa — A man driving a van veered out of control in a campground Sunday, killing an Illinois family of four sleeping in their tent only a few feet from relatives.

The Clinton County Sheriff's Department charged Jason Van Scoyoc, 18, of nearby Camanche with four counts of vehicular homicide. He was being held in the county jail in Clinton and was scheduled to be arraigned at 9 a.m. today.

Chief Deputy Sheriff Bill Rowe said authorities were investigating whether Van Scoyoc had been drinking. Additional charges could be filed, he said.

U.N. inspectors to leave Iraq

MANAMA, Bahrain (AP) — U.N. nuclear inspectors who spent five days in a Baghdad parking lot in a standoff with Iraqi officials were preparing Sunday to leave the country.

Meanwhile, another group of weapons inspectors, whose job is to track down Iraqi missiles and missile launchers, was due to leave Bahrain for Baghdad on Tuesday.

That group could become the first U.N. inspection team to make independent helicopter flights to conduct their work, which has been another source of conflict between the Iraqis, the United Nations and Western powers.

China praises Bush proposal

BEIJING (AP) — China on Sunday praised a proposal by President Bush that Washington and Moscow negotiate the elimination of all their land-based ballistic missiles equipped with multiple nuclear warheads.

The United States and the Soviet Union "have a special responsibility for nuclear disarmament" because they have the largest nuclear arsenals, the Foreign Ministry said.

However, it made no reference to China's own nuclear arsenal, the smallest of the five known nuclear powers.

Rebel leader Savimbi returns to Angola

LUANDA, Angola (AP) — Rebel leader Jonas Savimbi was greeted by thousands of supporters when he returned to the capital on Sunday for the first time after 16 years of civil war against the nation's leftist leaders.

He has returned to lead his movement's political campaign for elections scheduled for next year.

His return, the National Union for the Total Independence of Angola, and the ruling Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola agreed to the elections in a peace pact reached on May 31.

German department's film causes uproar

Ann Rhodes

The university says The Des Moines Register was erroneous in its coverage of the incident.

Wendy Alesch
Daily Iowan

A film shown to UI German students depicting homosexual acts created controversy Friday over the film's content as well as over the question of whether students were required to view the film.

The film, titled "Taxi zum Klo" or "Taxi to the Bathroom," was used as part of the UI German curriculum and contained scenes of graphic homosexual acts.

The German department had warned students that the film might be considered offensive. A flyer was posted in the UI German department warning students to stay away from the film if they were upset in any way by homosexuality.

University officials said an article that appeared in The Des Moines Register Friday contained "factual error." The article said students were required to see the film and were "irate" over the film's content. UI officials said the film was not, in fact, required for class.

A statement issued Friday afternoon from UI President Hunter Rawling's office said, "According to the instructors of the course, as verified by students of the course, no students were required to watch this film. No course assignments required the students watch the film. All of the students were warned that the film might be considered offensive."

The statement also said that of the two instructors mentioned in The Des Moines Register's article as requiring the film be viewed, one had told students Wednesday that viewing the film was not required and the other had told students if they found the content offensive they should leave.

"The article was inaccurate and created a false idea of perception that is erroneous to the university," Ann Rhodes, UI vice president for university relations, said.

She also said the incident could not have been prevented because the UI would never tell teachers what to use in the context of their courses.

"The UI doesn't tell teachers what to teach. That would be censorship, and it would violate academic freedom," Rhodes said.

"The film was not required, and there was an attempt made to warn students," Rhodes said. "We will deal with any complaints we receive."

When the office of liberal arts closed Friday afternoon, there had been no complaints filed, she said.

Joel Nielson, a sophomore German major from Iowa City who saw the film, said that on Friday his instructor told the class they would not be discussing the film and that there would not be a test over it.

"The lines of communication were broken down obviously because now our instructor is acting as if it was a great misunderstanding," Nielson said.

ARMS REDUCTION

Cheney says cuts bring costs

Sec. emphasizes military must maintain readiness

Pete Yost
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Administration officials said Sunday there will be no short-run savings in defense costs from President Bush's dramatic nuclear weapons stand down.

"Over the next few months, or in fiscal year '92, there are added costs with terminating contracts, moving systems around, destroying warheads, etc., that had not previously been expected," Secretary of Defense Dick Cheney said on ABC's "This Week With David Brinkley."

Cheney said the nation's military must be ready to fight a regional conflict anywhere in the world and that the Strategic Defense Initiative is needed in a world of nuclear proliferation.

He defended the B-2 bomber program as necessary to the country's defense and said the armed forces already are in the midst of a massive build down that will cut their troop numbers by 25 percent.

The need to prevail in a regional conflict like Operation Desert Storm forms "the basic underlying assumptions by which we size our forces today," said Cheney.

National Security Adviser Brent Scowcroft said that "five years out, I think there will be a peace dividend" and "hopefully it will be" sizable.

But "I honestly don't know how much," said Scowcroft, speaking on NBC's "Meet the Press."

Defense spending is heading down to 3.6 percent of gross national product, the lowest level since 1939, said Undersecretary of Defense Paul Wolfowitz.

"The United States can afford the programs it needs and still afford an adequate defense," Wolfowitz said on CNN's "Newsmaker Sunday."

The administration got an expression of support from one congressional Democrat, Sen. Sam Nunn of Georgia, chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee. "I do think those who believe we're going to be able to declare a peace dividend and have a huge amount of money for domestic purposes are not looking at the fiscal picture of the country," said Nunn.

"Most of the defense savings are going to have to go to try to meet the deficit, which is growing," added Nunn, speaking on CBS's "Face the Nation."

Nunn also said he doubts the need for 75 B-2 bombers that cost $850 million apiece.

"The strategic role has been diminished somewhat by the president's speech if we carry through on this action, and I think we have to re-examine the number of B-2s," said Nunn. "I don't think we can afford 75."

But Nunn added that the B-2's conventional role is "if anything, growing more important" because air force bases are closing, the plane carries a tremendous payload and it can fly all over the world with one refueling.

Nunn said the Air Force should "take another look" and that "my guess is" the need will be for "somewhere in the range of half" the currently designated complement of 75 planes.

Bush administration officials defended the Soviet response to Bush's initiative.

President Mikhail Gorbachev welcomed the disarmament proposals but offered no immediate reciprocal cuts.

"It's just as if somebody had hit us with this cold within 24 hours, we would not prepare a substantive response and say, 'OK, we'll take down the following systems,'" said

Secretary of Defense Dick Cheney upheld the nation's defense program on "This Week with David Brinkley" Sunday. He said President Bush's nuclear weapons reductions will not save the country money and said the nation must be ready for conflicts.

Union continues grievance, wants students fired 1st

Jessica Davidson
Daily Iowan

The UI merit staff union is continuing grievance arbitration against the UI despite the rehiring of more than 90 of 142 employees laid off in recent months.

Lyra Dickerson, UI employment supervisor with Personnel Services, said the employees — who were paid with general education funds before they were laid off — were rehired using different funds such as research and grant monies.

Rehired employees, according to their seniority, were moved to vacant positions. Dickerson said since the UI knew the layoffs were coming, places were held for rehiring.

If there were no vacancies, employees with less seniority could be bumped. During this rehiring, 15 people were bumped. Laid-off employees also had the option of getting on a wait list for their job or another job for which they were qualified.

Most employees got the same sort of job they had before, Associate Vice President for Finance Mary Jo Small said.

Despite the rehiring, local American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees President Kathy Shaffer said AFSCME still protests the way the layoff procedures were handled.

She said the procedures resulted in full-time employees being laid off before part-timers and students.

"There will be some serious changes in procedure if we win the arbitration, believe me," Shaffer said. Shaffer said AFSCME will spend "hours and hours, days if we have to" when renegotiating the contract next year to make sure "this doesn't happen again."

AFSCME filed against the UI when the first round of Physical Plant employee layoffs went into effect. Shaffer said the arbitrator received briefs last week, and a response is expected by the end of October.

The employees were laid off in July following an arbitrator's ruling that a state-mandated salary freeze was unfair. Although AFSCME won a 5.5 percent salary increase, Gov. Branstad responded by requiring the layoffs of more than 800 state employees to pay for the increases.

According to AFSCME's current contract, which was created by collective bargaining agreement, all layoffs are decided by seniority, which is determined by the amount of time an employee has spent in continuous employment at the UI.

NEW NOMINEE

Bush asks UI's Phillips to take position at Fed

Leslie Yazel
Daily Iowan

President Bush announced Friday that he will nominate UI Vice President for Finance and University Services Susan Phillips for a seat on the Federal Reserve Board.

The nomination will not be official until it is received by the Senate and followed by a Senate confirmation hearing.

Word of Phillips as a nominee for the seat first arose in April, but administrators at the UI are still not prepared to see her go.

"It is a bad time to lose our chief financial officer because she does such a good job," Ann Rhodes, vice president for University Affairs, said.

Rhodes said the position would require Phillips to resign from her vice presidency and an interim vice president would be appointed while a search committee interviewed candidates. If confirmed, Phillips will fill the unexpired term of Martha Seger and will sit on the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System until 1998.

"The opportunity to serve on the Federal Reserve Board is something to which I'm looking forward," Phillips said in a release. "My excitement, however, is tempered by the fact that I will have to leave the University of Iowa. I will miss the university and the community very much."

Phillips has left the UI to work for the federal government before. In 1981 Phillips moved to Washington, D.C., to serve on the Commodity Futures Trading Commission and became chairwoman of the commission in 1983. She returned to her vice presidency at the UI in 1987.

Rhodes said she and Phillips discussed the possibility of Phillips leaving for Washington two years ago when Bush was elected because Phillips had worked with the president during her term with the CFTC.

"She told me then that the only thing that would make her leave would be a seat on the Fed. Well, here we are," Rhodes said.

Rhodes was not sure of the timetable for Phillips' departure but said the current confirmation hearings with Clarence Thomas and Robert

WORLDWIDE QUEST

Cyclist visits IC on mission of peace

John P. Waterhouse
Daily Iowan

When Papri Chatterjee heard from a friend that the transcontinental bicyclist Ram Chandra Biswas wanted to visit Iowa City, Papri told many of her friends... and they in turn told their friends.

In all, nearly 40 members of the local Indian community, including UI faculty, families and friends, gathered Saturday evening for a reception at the International Center to listen to Chandra Biswas' message of peace and love as he entertained children of all ages with magical tricks.

Chandra Biswas, 34, is a missionary from Calcutta who for nine and a half years has traveled the world on bicycle spreading a message of peace and love. Yet he is more than a missionary. He is also a painter, a photographer, a reporter, a chef and a magician. He said that he began juggling and performing magic tricks in order to earn money to continue his journey.

Chandra Biswas' journey — which he calls "Cycling for Peace" — began on April 21, 1982, in Calcutta when he promised God that he would speak to people around the world about injustice, drug abuse and divorce, and to protest nuclear war. He has bicycled in 79 countries and speaks 10 different languages. After visiting another 57 countries, he plans to return to India in 1997.

As a missionary Chandra Biswas doesn't promote any particular religion. "This isn't so much a religious journey as a humanitarian journey," he said.

He began his journey with one dollar in his pocket — and as Sukumar Ghosh, a UI computer science professor who attended the reception said, that is all he has needed. "If he would have carried $5,000 on him, he would have been robbed because people fight for money," Ghosh said.

"Ram has no greed. He is a very simple man who doesn't want to make money," Ghosh continued. "We can learn a lot about the world from books, but here is a person who has seen the world and this a wonderful opportunity for us to experience Ram's travels."

Chandra Biswas said he has found reason to have faith in humanity. "I have never met any bad people in my travels. I haven't been robbed or beaten up. People in all countries have been respectful and hospitable."

The reception began with an introduction from Chatterjee, a resident assistant in the anesthesia depart-

Ram Chandra Biswas, a missionary from Calcutta, performs fire juggling and magic tricks at the UI International Center lounge Saturday night. He has ment at the UI Medical Laboratories and with whom Chandra Biswas has been staying since Thursday. She said he has devoted the past nine years of his life trying to establish a sense of brotherhood and international fraternity.

"Violence cannot be conquered with violence but can only be conquered by love."

Ram Chandra Biswas, transcontinental bicyclist

When Chandra Biswas hopped off his Raleigh bicycle last week in Des Moines to meet Gov. Branstad, he said he had ridden a total of 228,192 kilometers in his nine-year journey. He left Iowa City Sunday to get his bike in Des Moines and continue his trek toward the East Coast.

Chandra Biswas entertained his audience as he juggled three flaming torches, performed card tricks and pulled an "infinite" number of objects out of a supposedly empty box.

Between each of the magic tricks he performed, Chandra Biswas spoke of his traveling experiences. "In my travels I have found courage, determination and strength of character — the three most important things necessary for peace."

To illustrate his feelings about peace, Chandra Biswas asked five children to participate in a magic trick with him. Each child represented the leaders of conflicting countries, including a little girl as Saddam Hussein. The children all began with different cards in their hands, yet when the trick was complete the children's cards were the same. The audience applauded as Chandra Biswas emphasized there was no difference between the children.

"Violence cannot be conquered with violence," he said, "but can only be conquered by love."

Chandra Biswas' travels have occasionally brought him in contact with danger; two years ago, he said, he was captured by guerrillas while riding through El Salvador. "Accusing me of being a spy, my captors forced me to watch as they sliced another man's throat and pulled the victim's tongue through the wound," he said. While telling the story he dramatized it with a magic trick, as he tied a rope around the neck of an audience member who then was "magically" freed from her captivity.

Also, Chandra Biswas said while in the Amazon jungle he had been uncomfortably close to two boa constrictors who slithered into his hammock one night.

Rollerblading's popularity is skyrocketing

Wendy Alesch
Daily Iowan

The popularity of rollerblades on the UI campus, as well as across the United States, has taken off in the past two years. Iowa City has become a playground for the young at heart, with rollerbladers of all ages trying out the newest cross-training sport.

Don Bugler of Active Endeavors, 138 S. Clinton St., said the media has also picked up on rollerblading, causing its popularity to skyrocket in the last year.

"There has been a dramatic increase in interest in the last year," Bugler said. "There have been many ads on television, a commercial for orange drink and another for McDonald's that have rollerblades in them. The popularity keeps multiplying."

"We rent between 40 and 50 pairs a week during the busiest time," Bugler said. "We rent mostly to college-age, but people of all ages want to try it."

Rollerblading began in Minnesota in the early '80s as the skates were developed as a summer workout tool for hockey players. Since then many people have substituted them in a regular workout routine for running, biking or any form of aerobic exercise. Many people also enjoy leisurely skating as a way of touring or enjoying light exercise.

The blades resemble hockey skates and require balance much like that needed on a bicycle. Safety on the rollerblades is something that Craig Carney of Racquet Master, 321 S. Gilbert St., tries to impress on all renters.

"We tell people that you have got to control your speed, stay away from hills, traverse across them if you must go down them," Carney said. "We tell people to use wrist guards because that is the most common injury — people put out their hands to stop themselves."

Active Endeavors and Racquet Master both suggest using elbow and knee pads and rollerblading only on flat surfaces. City Park and the area around Hancher Auditorium are areas they both recommend because the grass on either side of the sidewalk can be used as a last resort for stopping.

If people follow the rules, they will have a good time, Carney said.

"Ninety-five percent of the people enjoy it," Carney said. "In two years, I have only had one person tell me they didn't like it after they tried it."

The popularity of rollerblading may have to do with the cost. After the initial purchase of a pair of skates — $140 to $240 — the rest is free. If people don't want to pay the initial cost, rollerblades can be rented for as little as $10 a day.

Finding the right area to rollerblade may not be just as easy as finding a flat surface. In different areas of Iowa City it is illegal to rollerblade.

"You can't rollerblade anywhere in the downtown area from Clinton Street to Gilbert Street and from Burlington Street to Iowa Avenue," Bugler said.

UI junior Hillary Hawk has been rollerblading since she bought a pair two years ago. Hawk rollerblades as an alternative form of exercise.

"I find it very similar to skiing," Hawk said. "I proceed according to the terrain. If it is steep I have to traverse quickly so I stay in control. There is no way to stop if you are not in control."

First-time renter Christina Mygdal, a UI senior, found this out about 10 minutes after she rented the blades for the first time this summer.

"I just put them on and started going. I didn't learn how to stop," Mygdal said. "I started going really fast and there was no grass around and I didn't want to go into the oncoming traffic so I just fell backwards."

Mygdal suffered a severe cut on the back of her head that needed stitches, as well as several abrasions on her elbows.

According to the emergency care

Rollerblader Bobby Murphy

unit of UI Hospitals and Clinics, this is the normal type of injury that occurs, along with wrist fractures and scraped knees.

"We haven't seen anything really serious," Robert Hageman, director of UIHC's emergency unit, said.

UIHC and Mercy emergency units both suggested that wearing knee pads, elbow pads and helmets along with choosing the right area can reduce the likelihood of injuries.

Council hopefuls put forth platforms

Eric Detwiler
Daily Iowan

The Nov. 5 Iowa City City Council race will pit incumbent Karen Kubby against newcomer John Crabtree.

Crabtree, 27, is part of the canvassing staff of the Iowa Citizens Action Network and is basing his campaign, he said, on possible future city economic problems as a result of rampant council spending. "I think the city government in Iowa City has been fiscally irresponsible," Crabtree said. "Right now we're spending more money than we're taking in. Our surplus is being dwindled away, and that means we'll be seeing higher taxes and probably cuts in important city services."

Incumbent Karen Kubby is a self-employed artist who has lived in Iowa City for 16 years. Kubby admits fiscal problems exist within city government but adds that state and federal budget cuts force

"I think the city government in Iowa City has been fiscally irresponsible. Right now we're spending more money than we're taking in."

John Crabtree, candidate

the council to spend surplus money on mandated government programs.

"We have very little money coming from the state government, and yet we have more mandates than we've ever had before," Kubby said. "We don't have a choice whether to do them or not. In a few years it's going to be a serious problem."

Cuts in spending in future years and where those cuts will come from could be an issue that decides the election. One program for prospective cuts that has candidates divided is the Iowa City Public Library.

"Maintaining the library as it is is very important, but that's a service, and if we have to make cuts, that's probably one of the things have a place to meet. People who are involved in our community don't have a place to go that is accessible to gather and plan activities and stay involved in the community. There's a lot of ripple effects when the library is cut." Both Kubby and Crabtree have listed city environmental and recycling issues as important in their campaigns. The candidates also agree planning will be paramount for future life in Iowa City.

"If we don't do those things, we're not going to be able to maintain the quality of life we have here in Iowa City," Crabtree said. "We've got a great city, a great place to live but that could change."

Crabtree and Paul Egli are battling incumbent candidates Kubby and William Ambrisco for the two at-large seats on the council. Incumbent Susan Horowitz and challenger Jim St. John are competing for the District A seat, while incumbent Randy Larson is running unopposed for the District C seat.

U-bills to include fee cards

Jessica Davidson
Daily Iowan

UI students will once again have the opportunity to contribute to their favorite student organizations when October's U-bill arrives with optional fee cards.

Optional fee cards allow students to contribute a minimum of $2 to as many as 15 UI student organizations.

UIASA Collegiate Senate Executive Officer Byron Wallace said the optional fee cards are a good way for students to make sure their chosen organization can survive at the UI.

"With mandatory student fees, the students don't get to decide where the money goes," he said. "So the organization they want to receive money may not get any."

"The optional fee card allows a direct contribution," he said.

Wallace said the past two years have seen a decrease in funds from optional fee cards.

"In the past, when we handed the cards out at registration, we had a tremendous response," Wallace said. "It was substantial enough that some organizations depended on it."

"Now that we've moved to computer registration, we've lost that captive audience," he added.

Wallace said the cards will now be sent with U-bills and handed out at orientation. They are also available in room 48 of the Union.

Wallace said the optional fee cards can bring in anywhere from $20 to over $1,000, depending on the group. He said KRUI, the Rape Victim Advocacy Program and Cambus are popular organizations.

"And with the budget crunch affecting every organization, these funds help a lot," Wallace said.

Wallace said the funds from optional fee cards have fallen off since students began registering by computer. He said now most returns are from freshmen who received the cards at orientation.

"A lot of people are willing to contribute," Wallace said. "The problem is letting people know the option is out there, and, of course, making sure they don't have to walk too far to do it."

Student Services Coordinator Belinda Marner said she thought mailing the cards was an "excellent idea" to make students aware of the program.

"Everybody gets a U-bill," she laughed.

Diana Funk, director of the Rape Victim Advocacy Program, said she noticed a drop-off in last year's returns, which she attributes to computer registration.

"We just didn't get a lot of response last year, while in the years before that we had great support," she said. She said RVAP received $1,000-$2,000 in past years.

Money from optional fee cards would "help a lot," Funk said, especially since human services have experienced severe cuts.

"We piece our funding from a lot of different sources," she said. "Any contribution helps."

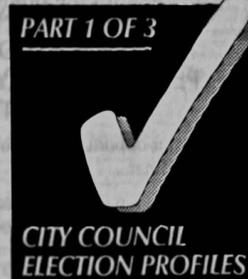

Funk said receiving fee cards in the U-bill should reawaken students' awareness of student organizations on campus that need funds.

Cambus Coordinator Brian McClatchey said the optional fee cards have brought in about $2,000-$3,000 a year to supplement the Cambus program's $1.1 million budget.

"Obviously, it's not a major portion of our budget," he said. "But every little bit helps. It pays for a bit of this or a bit of that."

McClatchey said when the Cambus program has fallen on hard financial times in the past, active campaigning for funds through the optional fee cards has had a "significant response."

"Things have gotten a little tight again this year, of course," McClatchey said. "And if we have any problems, we know we can ask for help from the students again."

that would get cut," Crabtree said. "I believe having a good fire department, a good police department, these are all important things, but we've got to find ways of being more economical and making our money stretch a little further."

Throughout her term on the council, Kubby has been a strong supporter of library funding and adamantly opposed cuts.

"The library is a very important institution that needs to be fully funded," Kubby said. "When we close down the library a couple of extra nights a week, groups don't

Socialist intent on effecting change

Loren Keller
Daily Iowan

Changing the general order of things on a large political scale may be a seemingly impossible task to accomplish, but for John Rees, a leading member of the Socialist Workers Party of Great Britain, it has become a mission.

Rees spoke to about 50 people gathered at the Union Friday evening as part of his two-month tour of the United States.

"There exists an ideological offensive against socialist ideas that wants you to believe that it's all decided for you by the people 'up there' and the best you can do is go home and watch the tube," Rees said.

"We don't believe that for one moment. . . . The history of struggle has proved that changes can be made," he added.

Rees spoke at length about the importance of political action on all levels, from international to local. He used the UI as an example.

"Whether or not they get away with the attack on political correctness, budget cuts at the college or the attack on abortion rights are not closed questions," he said.

Rees believed the 20th century to be the most revolutionary in history, but said a politically conservative and reactionary atmosphere was responsible for the lack of social change during most of the 1980s.

"But that picture has changed a lot in the past few years," he said, citing examples of recent revolutions in Russia, Eastern Europe and Iran.

East European turmoil hasn't necessarily enhanced the cause for socialist ideas, Rees said.

"The crisis in Eastern Europe has given the right a stick to beat the left with. The right says 'This is what happens if you try to change society, and therefore the best of all possible worlds is the one you've got,'" he said. "Most of their case rests on the negative."

Kinnick Stadium won't be moved at this time

Leslie Yazel
Daily Iowan

Construction of new sports fields, football facilities, a service park and the relocation of Kinnick Stadium were discussed by the Campus Planning Committee Friday.

Rumors about moving Kinnick Stadium are just rumors, at least at this time, according to Dick Gibson, director of Planning and Administrative Services.

Additions to the athletics program were recommended by the Long Range Athletic Planning Committee chaired by Vice President for University Affairs Ann Rhodes, which met three times beginning last April.

The committee concluded building a stadium on land already owned by the university would not be a logical use of space.

Gibson said moving the stadium would require 250 to 350 acres to accommodate parking at the games and might cost $100 million, although no estimates have been made.

"If the stadium is to be relocated, it really doesn't have to be on campus. We could buy relatively inexpensive farm land, but there is a strong feeling at the UI that the football stadium belongs on the campus," Gibson said.

The committee also discussed the possibility of constructing a permanent roof on "the bubble" practice facility, expanding football locker rooms, weight rooms and classrooms, and widening Highway 6 from First Avenue to Hawkins Drive.

A softball field, tennis courts, an aquatics center and multipurpose fields primarily for use by intercollegiate athletics may also be included in the plan for land near Hawkeye Drive apartments.

Committee members, comprised of faculty, administrators and a student representative, expressed concerns about access to facilities so far from the main campus area.

Gathering will honor children who died of starvation in past year

Jude Sunderbruch
Daily Iowan

The Iowa Student Bar Association will hold a candlelight vigil tonight to commemorate the 12 million children who have died of starvation since the United Nations convened a World Summit for Children one year ago.

The vigil will be held at the Boyd Law Building at 7, opening with a discussion of world hunger in Levitt Auditorium.

Speakers will include UI Professor Emeritus Margaret Wisor, Victor Arango of the United Nations Association in Iowa City, South African writer and political activist Rushdy Siers, and Marci Thomas, a local volunteer with The Hunger Project.

The candlelight vigil will follow in the courtyard.

Thousands of similar vigils are being held around the world today, according to Rich Wayman, president of the Iowa Student Bar Association. He said the group is getting involved because "law students should be involved in the community."

"As law students, we realize that personal and civil rights don't mean very much to a person who is dying of starvation," Wayman said.

Thomas said the purpose of the vigil is to focus attention on the fact that 24,000 children die each day of chronic hunger.

"One year ago, 71 world leaders gathered at the United Nations for the World Summit for Children," Thomas said. "They signed a declaration which endorsed the development of a plan of action to eliminate starvation by the year 2000. If the plan is successful, the lives of 50 million children will be saved in the next decade."

In addition to the vigil, Wayman said that a petition urging President Bush to act upon the United Nations declaration is being circulated among law students. Bush signed the declaration, but the United States has not yet ratified it.

Stress Blocks Creativity and Happiness

Research from Cornell University, Stanford, and other leading institutions confirm that Maharishi's Transcendental Meditation program increases creativity and intelligence, and reduces stress. ■ Transcendental Meditation works by allowing you to go directly to the source of your thoughts to develop incredibly clear, creative thinking. As the mind settles down during TM, the body gets an extraordinarily deep rest—nature's antidote to stress. ■ TM is enjoyable, easy to learn, and can be practiced anywhere sitting comfortably in a chair. TM requires no change in lifestyle, beliefs, or religion. ■ With reduced stress and increased alertness we have the basis to enjoy and improve every aspect of our life.

New Pioneer fair features natural food

Kim Dykshorn

Close to 3,000 people gathered under a hot, Indian summer sun Sunday to feast on drinkable yogurt, organic chicken and beef, honey and natural peanut butter on homemade bread, mocha cheese cake, Great Midwestern ice cream and many other delights at the New Pioneer Co-op's Open Air Market and Food Fair.

Along with the free samples, spectators could listen to live music by the Thompson Grismore Quintet, register to vote, enjoy a free 10-minute massage by Kevin Eggers and visit with local environmental organizations.

The annual event features natural food products made exclusively by Midwest farmers and producers who sell their products to New Pioneer Co-op Fresh Food Market, 22 S. Van Buren St.

According to Theresa Carbrej, services manager and education director of New Pioneer, the fair is "a chance to highlight these local vendors and strengthen the region by keeping trade in the community."

In addition, she said, "we're throwing a party for all of our loyal customers" and giving others a chance to experience the "funnest grocery store around."

Rochelle Prunty, general manager of New Pioneer, said the vendors are invited to give customers the opportunity to meet with them and talk about their products.

Dickerson said AFSCME agreed with and helped write the contract so any problems it has now are partly its fault.

"I'd like to point out, it's their contract," Dickerson said. "Whatever they said they wanted, they wanted."

"The contract is very specific," she continued. "Layoffs are performed according to seniority, and seniority is not determined by full- or part-time."

During this rehiring, some full-time employees came back as part-timers, while some part-timers ended up full-time. Small said some employees got promotions.

Shaffer said the UI never laid off by seniority so strictly in the past. She said "it only makes sense" that temporary help and part-timers, including students, should be laid off first.

Dickerson said in the past she and other UI administrators involved in layoffs operated on that principle.

"In the past, we applied the spirit of the contract, not the letter," she said. "But with the across-the-board cuts, there are eyes on us. Now the language of the contract directs everything I have to do."

Dickerson said some student employees who work in the same sort of jobs as the merit staff are not necessarily merit staff themselves and so are not covered by the same contract.

CHENEY

Cheney. "It'll take some time for them to work it. But I think they will."

Cheney also said that "I don't see any call" to reduce U.S. strategic nuclear capability below the 50 percent level envisioned in the START treaty.

"As of this moment, we have now stood down almost half of our ballistic missile force; 450 out of the 1,000 ballistic missiles we had deployed... are now deactivated," said the defense secretary. He said they're on standby status.

Cheney said the accord should be implemented aggressively "before we start talking about reducing it even further."

Scowcroft said the treaty will be sent to the Senate in October.

PHILLIPS

Gates might slow the process.

"Susan Phillips will be an outstanding member of the Federal Reserve Board," UI President

Hunter Rawlings said. "She is a talented administrator and a valued colleague, who has played a vital role in the success of the University of Iowa."

NORIEGA TRIAL

Government reveals witness has ties to Contra-aid flights

Richard Cole
Associated Press

MIAMI — The prosecution's star witness against former Panamanian dictator Manuel Noriega has links to U.S.-supported guns-for-drugs flights in aid of the Nicaraguan Contra rebels, a government source says.

Panamanian drug pilot Floyd Carlton, 42, currently in the U.S. witness protection program, took the stand last week and is expected to resume testifying today in Noriega's drug and racketeering trial.

Carlton provided the lion's share of evidence leading up to Noriega's February 1988 indictment. Last week he gave the most damning trial testimony against Noriega so far, tying him directly to drug payoffs and relating conversations between the two men about cocaine flights.

But Carlton also provides Noriega's defense with its first opportunity to contend that the United States had links of its own to Central American drug trafficking, by working with Florida-based smugglers flying arms to the Contras and returning with cocaine.

Noriega's defense has long claimed that he was doing U.S. bidding in many undercover operations in Panama, especially in aid of the Contras. Prosecutors say, however, that Noriega's claims are simply a smoke screen designed to cloud his private drug-smuggling transactions.

Through at least 1985, Carlton used the Miami-based aviation firm DIASCA as a cover for drug flights through Central America, according to the Drug Enforcement Administration and his own testimony before a U.S. Senate investigating committee.

"DIASCA was working with the Contras and flying cocaine to the United States at the same time," said a government source in Washington who spoke on condition of anonymity. "And the State Department was giving aid to DIASCA."

The State Department legally funded humanitarian aid to the Contras through a variety of companies in the mid 1980s, but the agency's operations center had no immediate reaction to the DIASCA report Sunday, spokesman D. Bard told The Associated Press.

CHILD ABUSE

Girl handcuffed, beaten, scalded, starved by parents as punishment

Eight-year-old endured four years of abuse for having a voracious appetite.

Christopher Sheridan
Associated Press

NEW YORK — An 8-year-old girl was handcuffed to bathtub faucets, beaten with a hammer, burned with scalding water and denied food for days as punishment for a voracious appetite, authorities said.

The girl was found Friday night in a closet at her family's Bronx apartment after her grandmother told housing police, "I can't lie anymore," Officer Virginia Grimm said.

"From head to toe, she was entirely covered with scars, burns, bruises, lacerations, swelling," Grimm said. "Her wrists were swollen, her stomach was swollen; there was obvious malnutrition. The grandmother said the child was fed only once every two weeks."

The girl's mother, Marilyn Carter, 35, and John Medina, 31, who also lived in the apartment, were arrested and charged with attempted murder and endangering the welfare of a child.

The girl was taken to Lincoln Hospital, where she was in stable condition Sunday, said hospital administrator Clark Griggsby.

"This kid is a real fighter," Grimm said.

The grandmother, who wasn't charged, at first denied any children lived in the apartment but eventually revealed the girl and detailed abuse. The 71-year-old woman said she begged her daughter to end the abuse but feared for her own life if she told.

The grandmother, who is in ill health, said she finally told a friend, who anonymously reported the abuse.

A year-old stepsister of the girl was found in a crib in the apartment and showed no sign of abuse, Grimm said.

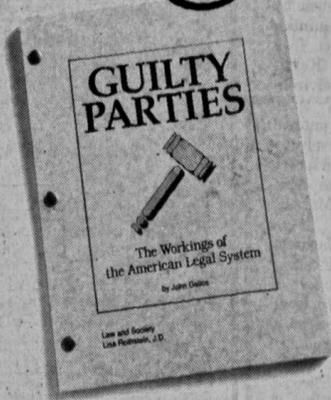

The grandmother said the beatings began four years ago as punishment for a voracious appetite that drove the girl to steal food.

"There were lacerations on her neck; it looked like her neck had been scraped by a cheese grater. She had hair missing where the mother had pulled it out in large clumps," Grimm said.

"The mother beat the child on the face, split the eyelid and sewed it shut herself with a needle and thread," she said. "The eye looked like it had been in a boxing match."

Grimm said the grandmother told police the girl's mother often handcuffed her upside down to bathtub faucets and beat her.

EL SALVADOR

Army officer found guilty of 8 murders

A colonel faces 20-30 years in prison for the murders of six Jesuit priests, their housekeeper and her daughter.

Associated Press

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador — A jury on Saturday found an army colonel guilty of the 1989 murders of six Jesuit priests, their housekeeper and her daughter. But it acquitted eight other military men.

A lieutenant was found guilty of murdering the housekeeper's daughter.

The conviction of Army Col. Guillermo Benavides was a landmark. Though the rightist armed forces have been blamed for the abduction, torture and murder of thousands of suspected leftists during nearly 12 years of civil war, no army officer had been tried for the politically motivated abuse of a citizen's human rights.

The massacre of the priests strained Salvadoran relations with the United States, which has funded the government war effort. Congress made successful prosecution of the priests' murderers a condition for continued aid.

Associated Press

Col. Guillermo Benavides, center, holding hands with two other accused army officers, listens to the judge read his verdict of guilty on all counts against him in the Jesuit murder trial Saturday.

The jurors — three women and two men who for fear of eventual reprisal had been hidden from public view during the three-day trial — informed 4th Criminal Court Judge Ricardo Zamora of their verdict after 5½ hours of deliberation.

Zamora has 30 days to pass sentence. Benavides and Lt. Yushy Mendoza, convicted of the murder of 15-year-old Celina Ramos, face sentences of 20-30 years in prison.

Benavides, director of the National Military College on Nov. 16, 1989, when the priests were killed, was accused of ordering the priests' murders. The other eight defendants — one of whom is a fugitive and was tried in absentia — formed part of a 35-man detail that raided the Central American University earlier the same day.

The slain priests were administrators and professors at the Jesuit-run school. Several had long been considered leftist subversive ideologues by the far right, which includes many military officers.

After the defendants' arrest in January 1990, several made detailed confessions. Two of the lieutenants testified that Benavides explicitly ordered them to kill the Jesuits and to eliminate any witnesses.

The defendants, in green uniforms, listened to the verdicts while sitting in a row before the judge, prosecution, defense and about 100 spectators.

Seven of the nine accused were acquitted of all charges, including murder, acts of terrorism and conspiracy.

ZAIRE

Zairean prime minister chosen; critics threatening assassination

Robert Weller
Associated Press

KINSHASA, Zaire — President Mobutu Sese Seko and his opponents chose an opposition leader as prime minister Sunday despite threats by government critics to kill the new minister if Mobutu remained in power.

Etienne Tshisekedi, leader of the Union for Democracy and Social Progress, was selected to form the so-called government of national crisis, unconfirmed French media reports said.

The appointment, which was widely expected, remains to be approved by a national conference of political leaders that will convene Tuesday, the reports said.

It was not clear what role Mobutu would play in a new government or what powers Tshisekedi would have as prime minister.

Earlier, about 20 opponents of Mobutu forced their way into his marble palace and disrupted the nine hours of talks aimed at keeping this vast country from slipping further into chaos.

The group told reporters that they would kill Tshisekedi, 58, and other opposition leaders if they agreed to form a coalition government with Mobutu remaining even as a figurehead.

The scene demonstrated Mobutu's loss of control since unpaid soldiers mutinied a week ago, pillaging Kinshasa and other cities in this sprawling Central African country of 30 million people.

France and Belgium sent 1,750 troops to evacuate foreigners, and the soldiers' presence helped to quell the rioting in the former Belgian colony. But both Paris and Brussels have demanded Mobutu end 26 years of dictatorial rule and allow democracy.

The unrest in Zaire comes amid a wave of strikes, riots and protests that have swept Africa in the past 18 months. So far, 16 one-party states have been forced to legalize political opposition and three Marxist governments have been unseated at the ballot box.

Mobutu's presidential guard reacted with confusion as the band of minor opposition figures pushed their way onto Mobutu's palace grounds Sunday. A week ago, they would have been shot.

Twelve representatives were allowed inside the palace, but not immediately permitted to attend the talks between Mobutu and the Sacred Union for Democracy, a coalition of 10 pro-democracy parties and groups.

Leopold Kazadi, a spokesman for Tshisekedi, rejected claims that his party's leader would betray the opposition. Tshisekedi will submit his candidacy to participants of the talks for approval, Kazadi said, and stand aside if rejected. French Ambassador Henri Pothore said Saturday that Tshisekedi would be able to win the confidence of both ordinary Zaireans and international creditors. He urged any new government to make its priorities restoring order and feeding the population.

State-run radio said that according to preliminary figures 117 people died and 156 were injured in last week's unrest, which ended when French and Belgian paratroops intervened.

Relief agencies have reported 60 deaths in Kinshasa, but say the total could be three times higher and that at least 1,750 people were injured. A French soldier was the only foreigner confirmed killed.

About 8,000 foreigners — mostly French, Belgians, Americans and Italians — have been evacuated, and operations are winding down. France withdrew one unit of soldiers on Saturday.

Zaire refused to allow 100 more Belgian troops with provisions to enter the country Sunday, Belgian Defense Minister Guy Crome said. He did not say why.

Zaire, which is about as large as the United States east of the Mississippi, is practically bankrupt despite having huge mineral deposits, especially in copper.

Davis 'turned jazz world around'

The famous trumpeter introduced America to cool jazz, hard bop and the use of electronics.

Robert Jablon
Associated Press

SANTA MONICA, Calif. — Miles Davis, one of America's finest jazz trumpeters and the most consistent trendsetter in jazz history, died Saturday. He was 65.

Davis died of pneumonia, respiratory failure and stroke, Dr. Jeff Harris said in a statement read by Pat Kirk of St. John's Hospital and Health Center, where Davis was admitted earlier this month.

Davis was the most famous trumpeter in his generation, in the line of jazz trumpeters that stretched from Louis Armstrong to Dizzy Gillespie to Wynton Marsalis.

He was the innovator of more distinct styles than any other jazz musician. He pioneered in cool jazz, hard bop, modal playing, free-form explorations and use of electronics.

"You can really say he turned the whole jazz world around," said Leonard Feather, a longtime friend and author of "The Encyclopedia of Jazz."

"He just had a guiding principle: Move ahead. . . Don't do what you were doing yesterday," Feather said.

"He played some of the most musical passages ever played on the trumpet, some of the most beautiful intervals you just don't hear any more," said trumpeter Clark Terry, who took Davis to jam sessions in St. Louis when Davis was a teenager.

"He seemed to be able to turn anything into something good," said drummer Max Roach, a longtime friend. "He was musically one of the restless ones, constantly seeking."

He was an astounding spotter and developer of talent, providing the springboard that brought many players to prominence. Tony Williams was just 18 when Davis hired him in 1963; Herbie Hancock was 23 when he joined the same year.

Davis had the respect and admiration of musicians, but every time he changed direction his audience divided between loyal and disenchanted listeners. He ignored them.

In his 1989 autobiography, "Miles," he wrote, "To be and stay a great musician you've got to always be open to what's new, what's happening at the moment. You have to be able to absorb it if you're going to continue to grow and communicate your music."

Davis was a fascinating figure because of his enigmatic personality, seemingly remote and arrogant; his thin body and striking face; his angry statements about white people though he often hired white musicians; his whispery, raspy voice — which came after he yelled at somebody following 1956 surgery to remove polyps on his vocal cords.

"A lot of people thought he was a salty, cool cat," Terry said. "He was totally a real pussycat. Once you got past that facade of 'Don't touch me, get away from me,' he was a pussycat."

Davis was plagued by illness much of his life, at various times battling diabetes, pneumonia, a stroke and hip joint problems caused by sickle cell anemia. He broke both legs in an auto accident in 1972. He wrote in his autobiography that he overcame heroin addiction in the early '50s but continued to use cocaine until 1981.

Miles Dewey Davis III was born in Alton, Ill., on May 25, 1926, the son of a dentist. When he was 2, the family moved to nearby East St. Louis, Ill., where he grew up.

He got his first trumpet from a family friend as a child and was playing professionally at age 15. His parents wouldn't let him go on the road until he finished high school.

Davis moved to New York in 1944, at 18, to locate Dizzy Gillespie, one of his early trumpet heroes, and saxophonist Charlie Parker. When Gillespie left Parker's combo, Davis replaced him. He also attended the Juilliard School for a year. In 1946 he toured for several months with the young bebop revolutionaries in Billy Eckstine's band.

In 1947, he began a long and successful relationship with Gil Evans, an arranger who knew how to provide a framework for Davis' distinctive sound.

In 1948 he left Parker and, looking for a lighter, subtler, tuneful sound in jazz, he established a nine-piece band, with Evans' arrangements, including Gerry Mulligan, Lee Konitz, John Lewis and Roach. They recorded "The Birth of the Cool."

That influential album ushered in cool jazz and set the stage for the chamber jazz that followed. It included Davis' best composition by that time, "Boplicity."

Two of his later compositions became jazz standards, "All Blues" and "So What."

He was a parent of cool jazz, but when it became popular, Davis turned his back on it and surrounded himself with bebop players. He became the founder of hard bop. In the 1950s he played spare jazz with all irrelevance purged. And he made records, with Evans arranging, with lush orchestral settings, some of the earliest successful orchestral jazz.

In 1955 he performed at the Newport Jazz Festival. His sensational improvisations, lyrical and tonally pure, creating excitement without screaming, made him the hit of the festival.

He was then able to create a quintet — it set the pattern for jazz combos of the 1950s — with drummer Philly Joe Jones, bassist Paul Chambers, pianist Red Garland and saxophonist John Coltrane. Saxophonist Cannonball Adderley later made it a sextet.

By 1959, he had tired of bop. He made records that used scales instead of chords as structure, which greatly influenced jazz of the 1960s. He discarded standard tunes for compositions by band members.

He changed direction again toward rhythmic freedom; his rhythm section played in different rhythms from each other.

In 1963, he brought in Williams on drums, Hancock on piano, Ron Carter on bass and later added saxophonist Wayne Shorter. This combo, recording on electric instruments, became as influential as the 1955 quintet. Their "Bitches Brew," the album that sparked the jazz-rock or fusion of the 1970s, became Davis' best-selling album and brought jazz record sales out of the doldrums.

His trumpet played melodic improvisations or fragment bursts over electronic instruments and rock-influenced rhythm. This created a climate for much of what came afterward in popular electronic music. Some fans always hoped that he would return to pure jazz, but he never did.

Davis' strength in early and middle years came from a singing tone — soft, rich, intimate, best in the middle register, his ability to put intensity and tension in the music and original rhythmic and melodic ideas. Later, he increasingly played in the upper register.

After 1968, the personnel in Davis' groups became less stable because of his temperament and periods of inactivity. He didn't play at all between 1975 and 1980. He brought in some fine experimentalists — Chick Corea, Joe Zawinul, Dave Holland, John McLaughlin, Keith Jarrett, Airoto Moreira, Billy Cobham and Jack De Johnette — many of whom went on to become influential.

Many listeners weren't as thrilled by the musicians he used in the

AFTER THE WAR

U.S. policy neglects the needs of the Iraqi people

The cancellation of this week's scheduled appearance by Air Force Gen. Charles Horner means that Iowa City students and residents will not have the opportunity to question him face-to-face about the gulf war. However, since his cancellation is due to the increased tension in that region, it is worth asking those questions even in his absence.

The current justification for gearing up the war machine, including sending 100 Patriot missiles and 1,300 American troops to Saudi Arabia, is Iraq's refusal to comply with U.N. cease-fire terms regarding nuclear capability. Iraqi troops' detention of 44 U.N. inspectors was undeniably stupid. However, the solution is — just as it was a year ago — not for the United States to go in and slaughter Iraqis.

The January-March bombing inflicted what a U.N. report termed "near-apocalyptic" damage on Iraq and utterly destroyed its infrastructure. One may well wonder how the alleged nuclear capability escaped intact while virtually every post office, telecommunications center, water purification plant and electrical generator in the country was destroyed.

Be that as it may, what needs to be examined now is Bush's vision of the United States as arbiter of the "New World Order." He sees the people of Iraq and other Third World countries as incapable of dealing with their own problems or establishing their own forms of government. He wants to portray the United States as the guy in the white hat, knocking out bullies and making the world safe for democracy.

The spuriousness of this claim is revealed by a look at postwar Kuwait, Saudi Arabia and Iraq itself, which have not seen any of the democratic reforms touted during the war. The rallying cry of "Free Kuwait" looks ludicrous in the war's aftermath: pogroms against Palestinians, continued torture and human rights violations, and no democratic reforms.

In fact, the United States is more often at the root of the problems, which it later comes in and pretends to "solve." U.S. aid was an important factor in Saddam Hussein's ability to maintain power and to terrorize his own people during the Iran-Iraq War. Moreover, had Bush really wanted to get rid of Saddam, he could have provided arms directly to the Kurds and Iraqi rebels near the end of the war. Instead, he urged them to rise up against their ruler and then failed to provide any support when they did so, with the result that thousands were slaughtered.

Meanwhile, the United States has benefited from the increased postwar instability in the region by selling arms to nations like Syria, Egypt and Turkey — hardly paragons of democracy and human rights. The fact is, the U.S. government does not want stability in the Middle East. It can take advantage of continued strife in the region to sell arms, assert its military might (conveniently rallying people at home in the face of a recession) and maintain a foothold in an oil-rich region.

Unfortunately, it is the ordinary people of Iraq and of the world as a whole who will continue to suffer from this system, and it is corrupt leaders like Saddam Hussein and George Bush who will continue to benefit.

Why should students pay more when they are getting so much less?

To the Editor:

Where is this guy from? Is he even a student? Does he have the slightest clue what's going on?

William Roderick ["Proposed tuition increase is not such a bad deal for students" Sept. 27] feels a 9 percent tuition increase is a small price "to help stop the bleeding." After all, UI students are from the Reagan eighties where you can have it all and make someone else pay for it, he says.

Have it all? What the hell are we getting? Why should we pay so much more when we're clearly getting so much less? Cuts have devastated the UI this year, and a tuition increase will not be the end of it. Is Roderick blind to the impacts on this campus? Is he unaware that even with a tuition increase there will be more cuts, more classes lost, more programs decimated? We're supposed to sit back and smile at this?

Roderick claims we need to make choices. A tuition increase means holding off on the new laser printer or, "Oh my God!" he writes, skipping South Padre over spring break.

Look buddy, you skip South Padre. I'll skip the weekend marshmallow roast at home so I can cram in more work hours. Roderick as well as the state government need to get their heads out of the clouds. Tuition increases at such a drastic rate mean deep personal sacrifices. In combination with reduced financial aid, many would not return to the UI.

See, remember what happens next? Enrollment drops again, and the UI has less money. More cuts. This should not come as an earthshaking surprise. For a healthier financial return, the state must invest in its greatest resource: the students.

We must draw the line. We cannot allow the state to slaughter the UI's services and programs and then ask us to pay more and more for what we're clearly not getting.

Jordan's occupation of West Bank is forgotten

To the Editor:

In 1948 the United Nations set up plans to have a Palestinian state and a Jewish state in Palestine. The Arabs rejected that plan and declared war on the nation of Israel. Jordan gained control of the West Bank and annexed it in 1950. Thus the West Bank became a part of the state of Jordan, and the Palestinians had no state because the West Bank was occupied by Jordan.

In all that time there was no attempt by Jordan to work toward a Palestinian state. They had about 18 years to do it, but for whatever reason they did not. Thus the West Bank was occupied first by Jordan from 1948-1966. That means that in 1967 Israel did not take land from the Palestinians, but rather from Jordan.

A number of years after the Six Day War, when the West Bank was solidly in Israel's control, Jordan gave the Palestinians political autonomy on the West Bank. In my opinion, that was a pretty weak gift as the area was completely in Israeli control.

Everyone talks about Israel's occupation of the West Bank. No one talks about Jordan's 18-year occupation and annexation of the West Bank.

German class film harms gays most of all

A stupid riddle: What speaks with an accent, holds a pointer like a whip and requires UI students to watch graphic sex films? A Queer Nation leader? Nope. A lesbian teaching assistant in the Rhetoric Department? Nope, guess again. A German professor? RIGHT! HAHHAHAHA.

Those of you who missed the front-page story in last Friday's Des Moines Register missed some fun coverage. UI students of German were "required" to watch a sexually graphic film last week, the article said. It depicted men engaging in acts of a dramatically offbeat nature. The Register author labeled it "a gay film." The film, "Taxi zum Klo," is to adult, gay sexual life what "Deep Throat" is to adult heterosexual sexual life. Such things are out on the periphery, people are vaguely aware of them and they have less than nothing to do with most people's daily lives. Gays, however, become guilty by association of way-out sexual acts whenever such films are discussed in mainstream media. Our heterosexual friends would do well to remember this dismal and pointless fate the next time they enjoy yuks over "Debbie Does Dallas."

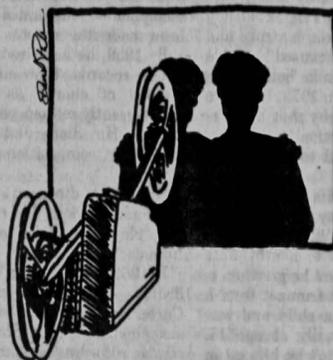

Many students were repulsed by the film, and none could quite determine the benefit to their conversational skills it was intended to provide. The department now claims viewing was not required and repeatedly mentions a posted flyer that warned, "Don't watch this film if the world of homosexuals upsets you."

The trouble with this sort of faux pas is that those who end up looking the worst are not the instructors in the German department who cooked up the scheme. Neither is it the governor, who strapped their budget to the extent that obtaining more reputable or appropriate films was impossible. Nor are the filmmakers, who occasionally weave material from bizarre undercurrents in the minds of the maladjusted. Whenever gays are grossly misrepresented, the ones who take the most heat and hate are gays themselves.

The argument could be made, in fact, that gays were not even depicted in the film. But that doesn't matter. It's still the real, everyday gay guys who come out of this episode looking like totally twisted weirdos who enjoy nothing in this life so much as having a wee on one another.

The questions that come to mind in the aftermath of the incident are legion. Do educators in our German department honestly believe that the film contains the best representation of gay male life for undergraduates to view? Do they think the vocabulary building segment that could be compiled from this film is especially appropriate to undergraduate students of German? If so, they could use some help. They need sensitivity training and suggestions for ways to go about this introduction to the wild side of the German language in a more tender way in the future.

While it may be in hot water, the German department is also in luck. So are all other UI departments with course components pertaining to gay, lesbian or bisexual lifestyles. The UI Lesbian, Gay and Bisexual Staff and Faculty Association can help you avoid curricular pitfalls. You can avoid landing in the doghouse (or on the front page of the Register). More importantly, perhaps, you can avoid taking your favorite institution of higher learning along with you for the ride.

The association has a standing committee on curriculum. It is composed of UI faculty and staff willing and able to make intelligent, carefully considered suggestions to help you construct a course segment on these issues. An education committee can make a presentation to your department on pedagogical or sensitivity issues germane to the academic community.

That reads like advertising copy. Just consider it a public service announcement, and I'll along and hard before you rebel against the notion on the grounds of academic freedom or departmental autonomy.

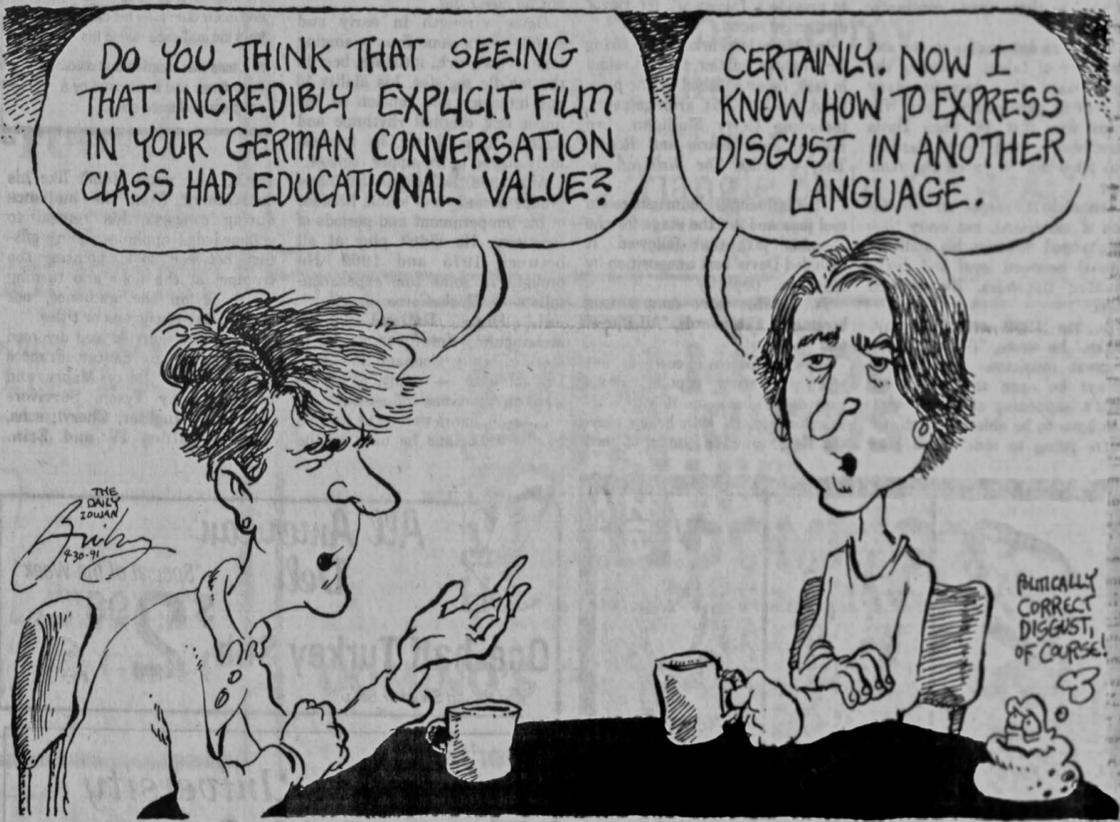

There couldn't be a worse time for the UI to take this sort of slap across the chops. The Register reporter was careful to interview a female student from Urbandale, all the better to infuriate the fine folks of Des Moines. He was also careful not to seek comments from any representatives of the local gay community. As a result of the article's anti-UI tilt, we will probably see outraged letters calling for the Board of Regents to approve our curricula or calls for further cuts, specifically to language departments (I hope to God they're not showing "In the Realm of the Senses" to students of Japanese).

A torrent of hateful mail is doubtless also forthcoming — allegations that the film shows the "real" story of gay life, that people who act this way don't deserve civil rights and that the film "proves" gays are warped. All that in spite of the fact that there's no group less deserving of being deemed responsible for this mess than gays.

The UI's gays, lesbians and bisexuals formed the association, the first group of its kind in the nation, to help prevent the very real anguish and violent anti-gay sentiment perpetuated by depictions of gay life such as those in the film shown last week. The German department owes apologies to two segments of this community: students who felt "required" to view the film and gay men tainted by the public's naive acceptance of the singular artistic interpretation of "gay life" therein.

RUSS BAILEY

GUEST OPINION: TOM LEWIS

Anti-PCers want to expunge past reforms

Like the "war on drugs" and the phony "Pledge of Allegiance" issue during the 1988 presidential campaign, "political correctness" has become a focal point for a conservative ideological assault on the rights of dissidents and the oppressed. As far as President Bush and the rest of the "anti-PC" watchdogs are concerned, racists, sexists and anti-gay bigots are not the ones to blame for inciting prejudice. Rather, the guilty are allegedly those who oppose racism, sexism and homophobia.

This twisted logic has been a hallmark of the entire PC debate, which this year has moved from college campuses onto the front pages of The New York Times, The Wall Street Journal, Newsweek and Time. Bush told graduating students at the University of Michigan in May 1991 that "political extremists roam the land abusing the privilege of free speech, setting citizens against each other on the basis of their class or race." In uttering the astonishing proposition Bush seemed like none other than Sen. Joseph McCarthy, who vowed in the 1950s to expose "Communists and Communist thinkers" in order "to promote freedom of thought and expression in college!"

But it is Bush and his flunkies, such as ex-Secretary of Education and ex-Drug Czar William Bennett, who are the real bigots seeking to eliminate freedom of thought and expression on campus and in society at large. It was a racist Bush who used the Willie Horton case to terrorize citizens into voting for him in the last presidential election, a racist Bush who opposed the new civil rights bill, and a sexist and racist Bush who colluded with his predecessor in the gutting of affirmative action programs.

Meanwhile, in fits of hysteria, Bennett and others have condemned "multiculturalism" — the idea that radicals have taken over university faculties and are undermining the traditional "canon" of Western literature and thought. Nobel Prize-winning novelist Saul Bellow, for example, attacked Stanford University's revision of the Western "canon" with this disgusting statement: "When the Zulus have a Tolstoy, we will read him." Yet, until the trend began to shift slightly in 1987, the American Council of Education had documented a 20-year trend of increasing numbers of college freshmen declaring majors in business. This is hardly the work of Marxist radicals.

Indeed, the picture of American campuses as fortresses of intellectual tyranny ruled by radical professors is a delusion of the anti-PC imagination. A recent Higher Education Research Institute survey of 35,000 faculty members at 392 U.S. colleges and universities showed that only a small minority of faculty members identify with radical left-wing politics. Forty percent identified themselves as "moderates," 37 percent as "liberals" and 18 percent as "conservatives." Only 5 percent identified themselves as "far left."

According to the same survey, moreover, few college and university courses actually address issues of race and gender. One-third of the respondents said they thought many university courses did deal with these issues, but only 11 percent said they assigned reading on race and gender. Thus the idea expressed by Newsweek and others that "PC is, strictly speaking, a totalitarian philosophy" has no basis in reality.

The war against PC in fact represents an all-out attack on affirmative action programs for women and minorities, special programs for minorities, and the very right of existence for gay and lesbian student organizations. After their barbaric military victory in the gulf war, right-wingers feel confident in launching a new ideological war at home. Make no mistake about it: What the anti-PCers want is nothing less than to obliterate all the gains that women and minorities won in the 1960s and '70s.

Anti-PCer Dinesh D'Souza characteristically explains the upsurge of racism on campuses as a backlash against what he calls the "victim's revolution." Any racist incident which occurs, he insists, can be explained as white frustration at the "special preference" enjoyed by minority students. This is little more than an apology for racism. It is also a lie. The percentage of minority high-school graduates attending college dropped during the 1980s.

Successful opposition to the unprovoked assault on political correctness requires a broad-based coalition of people willing to speak out against racist violence, attacks on abortion rights and gay bashing. The fight to preserve and extend reforms won during the '60s and '70s will be difficult, but it can be won if individual battles become part of a larger struggle that unites different groups against the system that promotes exploitation and oppression.

It is important to not only be politically correct but also to be proud of it.

Tom Lewis is a UI associate professor of Spanish and comparative literature.

Editors note: William Bennett, former U.S. Secretary of Education, will debate a panel of UI students on the issues associated with political correctness and curriculum on Tuesday, Oct. 1.

SOVIET UNION

Explosion in broadcasting center interrupts leaders' truce meeting

Thomas Ginsberg
Associated Press

TBILISI, U.S.S.R.—An explosion rocked Georgia's broadcasting center Sunday while it was occupied by opponents of President Zviad Gamsakhurdia, and violence in a breakaway region of the republic reportedly left two dead.

The evening blast injured at least one person and blew out most of the windows in the four-story building. Opposition leader Tengiz Segua called it a "provocation" by Gamsakhurdia's forces. Few details were immediately available.

The explosion came after a day of relative calm in the capital of 1.2 million, and as government and opposition leaders were meeting in the Justice Ministry to try to establish an agenda for truce talks.

Elsewhere in the Soviet Union, tens of thousands of people marched in a solemn 50th-anniversary commemoration of the Nazi massacre of Jews at the Babi Yar ravine in the Ukraine.

In the Central Asian republic of Tadzhikistan, the embattled Communist government called a special session of Parliament as an estimated 10,000 people demonstrated in the rain outside.

In Moscow, 1,000 people attended a memorial service for three men who were killed by soldiers in a clash near the Russian Parliament building during the failed August coup.

Mourners vowed never to forget the three, who have been named "Heroes of the Soviet Union, the country's highest honor. But people in the crowd also said they believed the Communist Party was still ruling their country despite being suspended by President Mikhail Gorbachev following the Aug. 18-21 coup.

In the wake of the coup, increasing unrest has flared in the republics with the collapse of central authority.

One rebel Georgian national guardsman was slightly wounded in a clash overnight outside the television center, which was occupied by the opposition last Sunday, the Tass news agency reported.

Gunshots were heard in other parts of Tbilisi Saturday night and Sunday morning, but there were no other reports of injuries. Gamsakhurdia's forces remained in control of most key points in the city, including the Parliament building.

A few hundred protesters remained at the broadcasting center after the explosion, down from thousands in recent days.

The government-rebel talks were bogged down over an agenda and the question of who would represent the opposition, said Eldar Shengelaya, one of the rebel leaders.

Both sides are non-communists who seek independence from the Soviet Union.

The Georgian leader, elected in May, has been accused by the opposition and officials of some Western countries, including the United States, of disregarding human rights and concentrating power in his hands. He has severely restricted the press, arrested opposition politicians and clamped a state of emergency on the capital.

In the restive South Ossetia region of Georgia, two people were killed and four wounded in an overnight attack by Georgian militants on the village of Patknet, the Russian Information Agency said Sunday.

Gunfire also broke out in Tskhinvali, capital of the region, which is trying to secede from Georgia. The Ossetian ethnic minority claims it is suffering discrimination at the hands of the Georgian majority.

Ukrainians, Israelis and Jewish leaders from around the world began a weeklong commemoration of the Nazi massacre at Babi Yar. More than 30,000 Jews were shot to death at the ravine outside Kiev, the Ukrainian capital, on Sept. 29-30, 1941.

German death squads continued to execute Jews, Communists, Gypsies, homosexuals and others at the ravine for two years. At least 100,000 people, and possibly as many as twice that number, are believed to have died before the Red army liberated Kiev in 1943.

One of the Israeli participants in the 50th anniversary commemoration voiced concern Sunday that Nazi collaborators may be among the 50,000 Ukrainians who have been officially "rehabilitated," or vindicated, of Stalin-era crimes since April.

Shimon Samuels, European director of the Wiesenthal Center in Jerusalem, said he gave a list of 1,000 suspected collaborators to Ukrainian officials for checking.

YUGOSLAVIA

Fighting renewed in Croatia

Julijana Mojsilovic
Associated Press

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia—Fighting flared again Sunday in several parts of battle-scarred Croatia, and the federal army surrendered more barracks besieged by militias of the separatist republic.

The army has been beset by increasing morale problems and mass desertions as the Croatian campaign drags on. This situation could have contributed to a move by the generals to regroup in parts of Croatia where there are large concentrations of ethnic Serbs who support the Serb-dominated army.

In other developments, Stipe Mesic, the head of Yugoslavia's collective presidency, said after consultations in New York with Javier Perez de Cuellar that the U.N. secretary general had offered to negotiate a peaceful end to the crisis.

A referendum on the independence of Kosovo province was almost complete, with nearly all of the Serb-ruled territory's ethnic Albanian majority expected to opt for sovereignty. The voting in Kosovo ended late Saturday, but Albanians born in Kosovo and now living elsewhere continued voting in other Yugoslav towns and abroad.

Tensions were high in Kosovo, another potential flashpoint of ethnic violence, where at least 100 people have died over the past two years in clashes with Serbian police. But no major incidents were reported after the arrests Saturday of dozens of referendum organizers and participants.

In Croatia, sporadic violence continued despite a cease-fire signed last week by Croatian and army leaders. At least six people were reported killed in fighting overnight and Sunday.

The Croatian Defense Ministry said federal warplanes dropped three bombs on a suburb of the Dalmatian port of Sibenik, damaging buildings in the first air attack in a week.

The army denied it had bombed Sibenik.

Late Sunday, Belgrade TV showed grief-stricken villagers from Brlog, 70 miles southwest of Zagreb, and claimed other villagers had been massacred by Croatian militiamen.

The claim could not be independently verified, and there were no other details.

More than 600 people have been killed in fighting since Croatia declared independence June 25. The fighting began as clashes between Croatian militias and Serbian fighters in the republic who oppose secession.

But the Serb-dominated federal army has become increasingly involved in the combat, leading to accusations by Croatia and others that the military is siding with the Serbian insurgents.

Fighting was at its fiercest just before the latest cease-fire, with army tanks, navy gunboats and airforce warplanes leading a large offensive on several fronts.

Clashes have continued past the cease-fire but in fewer areas than before.

LEBANON HOSTAGES

More controversy surrounds swap

Rima Salameh
Associated Press

BEIRUT, Lebanon—A radical Palestinian guerrilla leader appealed Sunday for pro-Iranian kidnappers to demand that thousands of Palestinian detainees be included in any prisoners-for-hostages swap with Israel.

Ahmed Qril, leader of the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine-General Command, made the plea after a two-hour meeting with Sheikh Abbas Musawi, head of Hezbollah. Musawi's group is believed to be an umbrella organization for groups holding all or most of the Western hostages in Lebanon.

Musawi carefully avoided any reference to the hostages during a joint news conference with Jibril, casting doubt on the seriousness of Jibril's proposals. Musawi focused on the need for guerrilla groups to keep up attacks on Israel.

U.N.-led negotiations have focused on winning the release of the Westerners as part of a swap of several hundred Arabs held by Israel's allies in southern Lebanon for information Israel wants on missing Israeli servicemen.

At least nine Westerners are missing in Lebanon—five Americans, a Briton, two Germans and an Italian. In addition, Briton Alec Collet was kidnapped in 1985. British officials say he is assumed dead following claims he was killed in 1986 in retaliation for London allowing U.S. bombers to attack Libya from Britain.

"There are 19,000 Palestinians as good as hostages because they were taken to prisons in Israel from their homes without any guilt," Jibril said. "These innocent Palestinians, along with dozens of innocent Lebanese captured from their homes in south Lebanon, should be traded for the Western hostages held in Lebanon."

Israel says there are between 8,000 and 10,000 Palestinians in its prisons. In August, officials said 4,742 were serving sentences, 3,535 were awaiting trial and 612 were in jail without trial.

Jibril said an additional 2,000 Palestinians and some 300 mainly Lebanese guerrillas captured in combat with the Israeli army also should be freed in any prisoner swap.

Jibril has long been an ally of Iran as well as Syria. His group was linked to the December 1988 bombing of a Pan Am jumbo jet over Lockerbie, Scotland, killing 290 people, but he has denied it.

In mediating, U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar has mainly focused on the 300 prisoners held in southern Lebanon whose release was demanded by Islamic Jihad, the kidnap group holding American hostages Terry Anderson and Thomas Sutherland. Anderson, the chief Middle East correspondent for The Associated Press who was kidnapped on March 16, 1985, is the longest-held hostage.

The demand was contained in a letter from Islamic Jihad.

Bills burst Bears' 4-0 start, 35-20

Associated Press

Buffalo showed once again Sunday that it takes a little pressure to get the Bills going.

The Bills (5-0) scored on three consecutive possessions during a 10:26 span starting late in the second quarter, taking a 21-6 lead and going on to a 35-20 victory over the previously unbeaten Chicago Bears.

In the first 28 minutes, the Bills gained just 38 yards and had the ball for just 6 minutes. Buffalo was lucky to only be trailing 6-0.

"When the clock is running down on us, it seems to get us going," center Kent Hull said. "It's an offense that seems to thrive under pressure and not do so well when there isn't much."

Chicago (4-1) had two first-half touchdowns called back by penalties and could have been ahead by a lot more than six points.

"We'd done such a good job playing them for the first 30 minutes until the last 30 seconds," Chicago coach Mike Ditka said. "But this is a 60-minute game and you have to play all 60 minutes."

Jim Kelly completed 19 of 29 passes for 305 yards and three touchdowns. Thurman Thomas gained 117 yards in 25 carries, getting 90 yards in the second half.

"Thurman opened it up," Kelly said. "We had a couple of running plays we didn't use in the first half. The misdirection was one of them."

Saints 27, Falcons 6
Bobby Hebert threw two touchdown passes to Floyd Turner as New Orleans (5-0) completed the first perfect September in its 25-year history. The Saints have won seven straight over two seasons and eight of nine against the Falcons (2-3).

Rickey Jackson sacked Atlanta's Chris Miller three times at the Superdome and recovered one of two fumbles that led to field goals by Morten Andersen.

Deion Sanders played his second NFL game in eight days. He also got in as a pinch-runner twice for the Braves in Wednesday's double-header and stole one base.

Cowboys 21, Giants 16

Troy Aikman threw a 23-yard touchdown to Michael Irvin with 2:13 left and the Cowboys ended a six-game losing streak against New York. Dallas (3-2) moved over .500 for the first time since Jimmy Johnson became coach in 1989.

The Cowboys took a 14-3 lead in the third quarter, let the visiting Giants (2-3) go ahead 16-14 on Jeff Hostetler's 19-yard TD pass to a diving Stephen Baker with 5:41 left, then rallied and held on as Iasiac Holt intercepted Hostetler's pass for Baker in the Dallas end zone with 1:11 to play.

New York linebacker Lawrence Taylor tore a ligament in his left thumb early in the fourth quarter and missed the game-winning, 84-yard drive.

Lions 31, Buccaneers 3

Barry Sanders scored three touchdowns for the first time in his career and Detroit (4-1) won its fourth straight. It's the best start for the Lions since they won their opening four games in 1980.

Sanders had his third consecutive 100-yard game, rushing for 160 yards in 27 carries. He had touchdowns of 7, 1 and 69 yards — the longest of his career.

Twins clinch West in worst-to-first fashion

Mike Nadel
Associated Press

TORONTO — The Minnesota Twins did more than finish first in the AL West. They finished first in baseball's history books.

"Anytime a team can accomplish something that's never been done in the history of baseball, you have to be excited about it," general manager Andy MacPhail said Sunday after the Twins became the first club in major-league history to go from last in a division or league one year to first the next.

"We did it in the game's most difficult division. There was no winning by default. To go from last to first in that climate was very difficult and very rewarding."

The Twins failed to wrap up the title earlier in the afternoon, losing 2-1 to Toronto. But when the White Sox fell 2-1 to Seattle, Minnesota won, anyway.

Minnesota rebounded from a season in which it went 74-88 and finished in last place. No team had ever gone from worst to first, but the Twins did it in taking their first division championship since winning the World Series in 1987. Atlanta, meanwhile, is trying to do the same thing in the NL West.

MacPhail and the rest of the Twins heard about Chicago's loss while aboard the team bus on a trip to Hamilton, Ontario. The Twins later boarded a flight to begin a series in Chicago on Monday night.

"We really played well after the first couple weeks of the season," Twins manager Tom Kelly said, referring to a 2-9 start. "We got into the lead, we maintained our lead and we increased our lead."

The Twins were still in sixth place,

7½ games back, when they beat Texas on May 28 to end the Rangers' 14-game winning streak and begin a 22-2 run of their own — including a 15-0 start to June.

Minnesota took sole possession of first place for good on July 11 and, though the White Sox drew within one game in mid-August, they could not overtake the Twins — who went on to eliminate the three-time division and league champion Oakland Athletics.

"By the end of May, even though our record was hovering around .500, I thought we could be a contender," said MacPhail, who improved the team in the offseason by signing free agents Jack Morris, Chili Davis and Mike Pagliarulo and by making other, more subtle moves. "But I don't think anybody expected us to go quite as far as we have."

When the Twins reached Hamilton's airport, players streamed out of two buses and began hugging and exchanging high-fives.

Morris, who won Saturday to bring the Twins to the brink of their title, said before climbing onto the

Iowa stomps NIU; Michigan awaits

John Shipley

Iowa spent its final nonconference Saturday practicing for the Big Ten season with a 58-7 rout of overmatched Northern Illinois. The Hawkeyes rolled up 577 yards of total offense in a game they were using as a final tuneup before facing No. 7 Michigan next weekend in Iowa City.

Three different quarterbacks threw touchdowns, 10 receivers caught passes for a total of 367 yards and seven running backs rushed for 190 yards.

The defense tied a team record with 14 tackles for loss, including six sacks, held the Huskies to 223 yards of offense and scored a touchdown when Leroy Smith recovered a fumble in the NIU end zone.

Three running backs and three receivers scored touchdowns. Sophomore Kenny Jones caught two passes, both scoring strikes from backup quarterbacks Jim Hartlieb and Paul Burmeister.

Starter Matt Rodgers threw for 258 yards on 14-for-23 passing. He hit Mike Martens and Danan Hughes for eight- and 15-yard touchdowns strikes in the first half.

"The ball game was an opportunity to tune up parts of the offense and defense, and I was very happy that we got to play a lot of young people," Coach Hayden Fry said afterward. "I really feel fortunate to be 3-and-0 and have a relatively healthy football team."

Iowa has outscored its three opponents 140-27 this year.

Iowa didn't get on the scoreboard until its third possession, 13:44 into the first period. Rodgers' 45-yard pass to Ken Jones for another Hawkeye touchdown.

Ken who? Jim Hartlieb? Jones, a sophomore wide receiver from Duncanville, Tex., and Hartlieb, a junior quarterback and younger brother of former Iowa signal caller Chuck, were just two of several Hawkeye players who got some extended playing time in Iowa's 58-7 rout of the Huskies Saturday in Iowa City.

A 31-0 lead at the half meant a chance for the second- and third-string players to shake the splinters out and see a sold-out Kinnick Stadium from the center of the field.

Rout affords backups some playing time

Erica Weiland
Daily Iowan

Iowa was leading Northern Illinois 52-0 when Jim Hartlieb hurled a 52-yard pass to Ken Jones for another Hawkeye touchdown.

Ken who? Jim Hartlieb? Jones, a sophomore wide receiver from Duncanville, Tex., and Hartlieb, a junior quarterback and younger brother of former Iowa signal caller Chuck, were just two of several Hawkeye players who got some extended playing time in Iowa's 58-7 rout of the Huskies Saturday in Iowa City.

A 31-0 lead at the half meant a chance for the second- and third-string players to shake the splinters out and see a sold-out Kinnick Stadium from the center of the field.

"This was just the opportunity to get on the field and experience the things I did my redshirt freshman year," Jones said. "Last year I got in at the end of the games and that was my highlight."

Jones ended the game with two catches for 64 yards and two touchdowns — one from Hartlieb and the other a 12-yard pass from third-string quarterback Paul Burmeister.

But the pass from Hartlieb was the more dramatic. Jones burned downfield with Northern Illinois cornerback Corey Frazier trailing. Hartlieb's throw was just ahead of Jones, but the 6-foot-0, 185-pound receiver stretched his hand out, juggled the ball then grasped it firmly as he crossed into the end zone.

"Toward the end of the game they were thinking we were just going to run the clock out and they were playing kind of tight to our receivers," Hartlieb said. "Coach (Hayden) Fry made a great call on an out and up off some sprint action. Kenny Jones is so fast he just got right behind the guy. I just had to lead him out there so I didn't overthrow him, and he made a great catch."

"Jim threw a beautiful spiral, and it was just a little long so I reached for it," Jones said. "I couldn't grab it with two hands; if I had done it with two hands, I would have had to land on my stomach. I kind of had to stick out my one hand and try to tip it up a little and it happened for me. I got lucky on that one, I guess."

Saturday also gave senior receiver Mike Martens, sophomore running backs Cliff King and Chris Palmer and sophomore fullback Pete Mid-

Hawks get Beglin's message

Jay Nanda
Daily Iowan

It's not often that an undefeated team needs a kick in the rear to get motivated — especially after coming off a win less than 24 hours earlier.

But that's just what the fifth-ranked Hawkeyes found themselves subjected to last weekend in Columbus, Ohio. And it seemed to have paid off.

The Hawkeyes started defending their Midwest Collegiate Field Hockey Conference crown last Friday with a 4-1 win over Ohio State.

But because the Hawkeyes awarded seven penalty corners to the Buckeyes, after going the previous two games without allowing one, as well as giving up 14 shots to the Buckeyes, Coach Beth Beglin resorted to a little motivational tactic prior to Saturday's contest with Michigan State.

"We watched videotapes of the Ohio State game and I wasn't really happy," Beglin said. "Defensively we were making errors and we weren't pursuing the ball well."

"We knew Michigan State was going to be a weaker opponent than Ohio State, but (the Hawkeyes) needed to motivate themselves and not play to the level of their opponent. So, I just told them that for every shot they allowed, they were going to run 100-yard sprints (in practice)."

Looks like the Hawkeyes don't like dashes.

Following the pep talk, Iowa went out and thrashed the Spartans by a count of 7-0. Furthermore, the Hawkeyes shut out Michigan State in the shot and penalty corner departments, while earning 23 and 15, respectively. The victory gave Iowa an 8-0 record, 2-0 in the MCFHC, while the Spartans fell to 3-3, 0-1.

"I don't like to use running as a motivational factor but I didn't want them to get in a situation where they would make mental mistakes," said Beglin.

And the Hawkeyes followed Beglin's directions perfectly, starting when sophomore Amy Aaronson took a feed from junior Jamie Rofrano and put the ball in the cage 10:27 into the game.

Although that would prove to be the only goal Iowa would need, they continued the rout when senior captain Jibs Thorson scored on a penalty stroke 20 seconds later for a 2-0 lead. Senior Amy Fowler made it 3-0 with 18:41 left in the first half, off a direct corner from Rofrano and Thorson.

It was more of the same in the second half, when Fowler converted another corner 1:15 into the period. Sophomore Heather Bryant and Thorson registered assists on the play.

Bryant then netted a pair of goals, one off a penalty stroke and the other off a pass from Fowler to make it 6-0, before sophomore Aimee Klapach got her first career

Vikings drop 2nd straight to Broncos

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—Gaston Green ran for 158 yards and John Elway scored the go-ahead touchdown on a 17-yard draw play as the Denver Broncos continued to rebound Sunday night with a 13-6 victory over the Minnesota Vikings.

Green, playing in place of All-Pro Bobby Humphrey, a contract holdout, had seven runs of 11 yards or more. The previous week against San Diego, he gained 127 yards and scored three touchdowns.

Denver, which finished last in the AFC West last year at 5-11, improved its AFC West-leading record to 4-1.

Minnesota (2-3), which was last in 1990 after winning a division title, continued to struggle with its new one-back offense. The Vikings were shut out 26-0 at New Orleans last week and haven't scored a touchdown in 10 quarters since a 17-14 victory over San Francisco. The Vikings have scored just 49 points in five games.

Wade Wilson threw three interceptions, giving him 10 for the season. He was replaced by Rich Gannon with 7:20 to play and Carl Lee recovered Greg Lewis' fumble in the end zone.

QB's: Backups excel

 dleton a chance for some playing time. But it was perhaps the backup quarterbacks who gained the most experience in the contest, as starting signal caller Matt Rodgers left the game in the middle of the third quarter.
 "Anytime the quarterbacks can get some experience it's valuable and today was no exception," Hartlieb said. "I think we're pretty solid right now. Paul got some good experience in a couple games, and I got some good repetitions. If our chance comes, we'll be all right."

 Hartlieb, who is known more for his running than passing, finished the game with four completions on six attempts and 85 yards and a touchdown. Burmeister, a native of Iowa City, was 2-for-3 for 24 yards and one touchdown.

 "It felt really good to play," Burmeister said. "I've been looking forward to this game because it looked like I'd have a chance to get in. I'm glad it worked out the way it did."
 Rodgers, who watched a great deal of the second half from the sidelines, said he was proud of the play of Hartlieb and Burmeister.

 "We're not going to have anything to worry about after I'm gone," the senior quarterback said. "Both those guys can play. Jim Hartlieb's a great leader, and he's been around here a long time. Paul Burmeister's learning but it didn't look like that today; he had everything together. This was a great confidence builder for those guys."

NIU: Michigan awaits

 Punter Scott Fisher, starting in place of Jim Hujsak, punted only three times — all in the first half — once pinning the Huskies inside their own 10. One play later Matt Hilliard recovered a fumble by Northern fullback Adam Dach, leading to a Jeff Skillett field goal that made it 17-0 with 7:38 left in the half.
 The Hawkeyes led 31-0 at the half and the score was 58-0 in the fourth quarter before Northern backup quarterback Rob Rugai hit Vaurice Patterson for an 11-yard touchdown with 1:30 remaining.
 The victory puts Iowa at 3-0 for the first time since 1986, when the Hawkeyes won their first five games en route to a 9-3 record. Now the Hawkeyes will be concentrating on Michigan, which lost to No. 1 Florida State, 51-31, in Ann Arbor Saturday. The winner of next weekend's Big Ten opener for both teams will likely be the favorite to win the conference race and automatic Rose Bowl berth.

 Iowa beat the Wolverines last season, 24-23, in Ann Arbor on the way to its third Rose Bowl appearance in 10 years.
 "We'd like to think that what happened last year will happen again, but it won't," Smith, whose fumble recovery gave him his first collegiate touchdown, said. "Michigan will be ready. They probably overlooked us. I don't think they're going to overlook us this year."
 Smith, who had four tackles behind the line of scrimmage for minus 11 yards, was as much a part of Northern's option attack as quarterback Stacey McKinney. Smith sacked McKinney twice as the NIU starter was held to 31 yards on 3-for-13 passing and 23 yards rushing. The two NIU quarterbacks were tagged for a total loss of 67 yards rushing.

 But Smith knows Michigan's behemoth offensive line will be harder to get through and around than that of the Huskies.
 "They have a very good line," Smith said. "They've got very good team, period."
 Fry, who said he was thinking of changing Smith's name to Leroy Sack, is pleased with the way the season has gone so far, even though Iowa has yet to play a genuine football power, like Michigan.
 "We haven't been tested like we will be this coming week, that's for sure," Fry said, adding, "I'd never second-guess 3-and-0 and healthy.

I've been in this game too long. Everything has just turned out fine."
 Rodgers agrees. "As long as the team's playing well, we'll be ready for a big game," he said. "We get up for the big games and they're going to up for us and it's going to be a great ball game."
 "We're ready. Every week we concentrate on the team we're playing, so we'll be really focused," Smith said. "It's a different attitude, Michigan will probably have the same thing: When the Big Ten comes, it's a serious game."

 goal — off yet another penalty stroke. Goalie Eileen Moyer did not have to make a single save as she recorded the shutout. Meanwhile, Spartan goalie Sara Humpage stopped 14 Iowa shots.
 "We stepped up the intensity level and our ball movement was really good," said Beglin. "Additionally, I was much happier with our corner execution — that's something that had been of great concern to me."
 Against the Buckeyes, the penalty stroke proved to be Iowa's foremost weapon, as Thorson netted a pair for a 2-0 lead. The Buckeye defense was called for blocking the ball with the body, leading to the stroke opportunities. The first goal came with 10:14 left in the first half and the second with just 50 ticks left.

 Ohio State made a game of it 4:55 into the second half, when Kim Bush and Mienke Blans assisted on Danielle Dayton's penalty corner shot. But Iowa countered 10:01 later when senior Lisa Sweeney "blew by the defense," according to Beglin, and scored on a breakaway for a 3-1 Hawkeye lead.

 Then, senior Kerry Horgan notched her first goal of the season when she took a long corner hit from Bryant and deflected the ball past goalie Sue Willson. It was Bryant's first career assist.
 Beglin was pleased with the play of Moyer, who unlike Saturday, saw plenty of shots versus the Buckeyes.

 "Eileen played spectacularly. She had three really terrific saves on corner shots, including one to the far right with her stick, and another that was hit high, with her glove."
 With the loss, Ohio State dropped to 2-4, 0-1.
 The Hawkeyes now get set for their first conference game ever at Grant Field, when they take on Northern Illinois Saturday.

 touchdowns in the first 10:14 as it fell to 0-5.
 Tampa Bay quarterback Chris Chandler, who completed only 10 of 26 passes for 64 yards with one interception, was forced from the game late in the third quarter with a concussion. Vinny Testaverde came in and finished.
Raiders 12, 49ers 6
 Jeff Jaeger kicked four field goals for Los Angeles (3-2), which held off a late charge.
 Mike Cofer's 25-yard field goal with 3:54 left pulled the visiting 49ers (2-3) within six points after Charles Haley recovered Steve Smith's fumble. The 49ers got the ball back at their 26 with 2:30 remaining after a punt and moved to the LA 19 before Steve Young threw consecutive incompletions, the second on fourth-and-7 with 1:53 left.
 Jerry Rice, who has caught at least one pass in 84 straight games, was without a catch until 12 minutes remained and finished with three receptions for 38 yards.
Rams 23, Packers 21
 Special teams veteran Paul

Butcher sparked Los Angeles (2-3), which scored two touchdowns in a 7-second span and took a 20-7 lead.
 Visiting Green Bay (1-4) led 7-6 when Butcher, a 5-year veteran who's started just one game, set up the Rams' first touchdown by recovering Allen Rice's fumble at the Packers' 15.
 Butcher, filling in at linebacker on the fumble by Rice, then hit the Packers' Vai Sikaheha on the ensuing kickoff, forcing a fumble that Anthony Newman grabbed in midair and ran 17 yards for a touchdown.
Seahawks 31, Colts 3
 Six-foot, 8-inch Dan McGwire became the tallest quarterback in NFL history, but only got to attempt seven passes.
 McGwire, a first-round draft pick from San Diego State, did little more than hand off as Seattle (2-3) took a 17-3 halftime lead in the Kingdom. He completed three passes for 27 yards and was intercepted once before Jeff Kemp replaced him in the second half.
 Indianapolis (0-5) lost its sixth straight game and two more starting offensive linemen. Tackle Zefross Moss and guard Randy Dixon both were injured in the first half. Jeff George was sacked four times for 51 yards and was intercepted twice. He completed 17 of 31 passes for 144 yards.

Chiefs 14, Chargers 13
 Christian Okoye scored on a 1-yard run three plays into the game and Steve DeBerg threw an 11-yard touchdown pass to Robb Thomas for the Chiefs (3-2).
 San Diego (0-5) trailed 14-10 and had third-and-goal on the Chiefs' 5 with 10 minutes left. But Neil Smith sacked John Friesz for a 7-yard loss and Friesz lost 7 more yards on a fumble. John Carney then kicked a 37-yard field goal.
Jets 41, Dolphins 23
 Chris Burkett blocked a punt by Reggie Roby — the first blocked punt in the NFL this season — and returned it 11 yards for the Jets' second touchdown in a 26-second span just before halftime. It was the first time in 12 years New York blocked a kick and turned it into a score.
 New York (2-3) had just taken a 14-10 lead with a 10-play, 62-yard drive ended by Brad Baxter's 2-yard plunge into the end zone.

 Visiting Miami (2-3) trailed 21-13 at halftime. The teams traded field goals in the third quarter and the Jets scored 17 points in the fourth, including Baxter's 2-yard TD run and Erik McMillan's 83-yard interception return for a touchdown.
Cardinals 24, Patriots 10
 Tom Tupa, shaking off the stigma of being a career-long backup, passed for a career-high 312 yards and three touchdowns for Phoenix (3-2). The game at Sun Devil Stadium was attended by just 26,043, the smallest ever there for an NFL game.
 Tupa inherited the job in the preseason when Timm Rosenbach went out with a knee injury. He threw a 17-yard TD pass to Ernie Jones and a 15-yarder to Johnny Johnson — both in the second quarter — and connected with Ricky Proehl on a 62-yard scoring pass play in the fourth.
 Jon Vaughn, a rookie running back, scored on a 99-yard kickoff return for the Patriots (2-3).

Braves sweep Houston

Mets give Cabbage win in inaugural game

HOUSTON — The Atlanta Braves completed a three-game sweep of the Houston Astros 6-5 Sunday in 13 innings, keeping the pressure on Los Angeles.

Atlanta entered the game trailing Los Angeles by one game in the NL West. The Dodgers played host to San Francisco in a night game.

Ron Gant walked to start the 13th and raced home with the go-ahead run off Mark Portugal (10-11) on Brian Hunter's double to left.

Former Houston pitcher Jim Clancy (3-5) pitched the final three innings for the victory. The Astros had runners on second and third with two out in the bottom 13th when Clancy got Andujar Cedeno to pop out.

It was the Braves' first sweep at the Astrodome since 1985, and sent Houston to its fifth straight loss.

The Braves held a 5-0 with Steve Avery pitching when the Astros started their comeback in the seventh inning.

Mets 4, Phillies 3

NEW YORK — Only hours after Ed Harrelson was fired as manager, New York beat Philadelphia under interim manger Mike Cabbage. The Mets announced Harrelson's dismissal at a morning news conference in a move that came only as a surprise by its timing.

The Mets were 74-80 under Harrelson this year, heading for their worst finish since 1983.

Frank Viola (13-15) ended a seven-game losing streak and Keith Miller drove in three runs for New York.

Pirates 6, Expos 3

PITTSBURGH — Barry Bonds and Curtis Wilkerson hit solo homers and Bob Walk won for the first time since July 14 as Pittsburgh beat Montreal.

Bonds broke a 2-2 tie in the fifth with his 25th home run and 111th RBI. The Pirates had tied the score earlier in the inning off Bill Sampen (9-5) when Gary Varsho doubled for his third hit and scored on Andy Van Slyke's groundout.

Rookie Bret Barberie went 4-for-4 with two doubles and two RBIs for the Expos, raising his average to .365 in 65 games.

Cubs 5, Cardinals 3

ST. LOUIS — Rick Sutcliffe overcame wildness to win for the fourth time in five decisions and Ryne Sandberg drove in two runs as Chicago defeated St. Louis. The victory kept the Cardinals from clinching second place in the NL East. St. Louis already has clinched a tie.

Sutcliffe (6-5) walked six and gave up six hits in five-plus innings, throwing 103 pitches. He left with runners on first and second and a run in with no outs in the sixth, but reliever Chuck McElroy escaped without further damage.

Reds 8, Padres 1

CINCINNATI — Paul O'Neill's first sacrifice fly of the season tied the score in the sixth and Chris Sabo followed with a three-run homer, sending Cincinnati past San Diego.

Shortstop Craig Shipley's fielding error set up Cincinnati's four unearned runs in the sixth off Ricky Bones (4-6), who lost his third consecutive start. Ted Power (5-3) pitched one perfect inning in relief of Gino Minutelli to get the victory. Rob Dibble got the last three outs.

team plane that the division title is like living a dream.

"They'll always remember the 1991 Minnesota Twins," the long-time Detroit ace said. "Worst of first. This is a culmination of a lot of hard work, a lot of breaks, a lot of things coming together for a lot of very good ballplayers."

Minnesota will face either Toronto or Boston in the playoffs, starting Oct. 8 at the Metrodome. The AL East-leading Blue Jays sliced their magic number to three against Boston, which lost to Milwaukee.

Scott Erickson (19-8), hoping to become baseball's first 20-game winner, was outduelled by Toronto's Todd Stottlemyre — who was happy that he didn't have to witness Minnesota's celebration.

"It was inevitable that they were going to clinch. Everybody knew they were going to do it sooner or later," said Stottlemyre (14-8), who was making his 100th career start. "I'm just glad it didn't happen here."

"This is the best of times. When you win in a pennant race, you get a feeling like no other."

Mariners 2, White Sox 1

CHICAGO — Randy Johnson pitched the Seattle Mariners past Chicago 2-1, eliminating the White Sox from the AL West race.

Minnesota, which lost in Toronto 2-1 earlier in the afternoon, clinched the title when Johnson (18-10) outduelled Charlie Hough.

Johnson, 0-2 in his last six starts, gave up four hits and struck out 10 in 7½ innings. Bill Swift got the last two outs for his 15th save.

Hough (9-9) lost despite giving up only two singles in eight innings.

Brewers 5, Red Sox 4

MILWAUKEE — The Boston Red Sox blew it again, falling to Milwaukee for their fourth straight loss and fading to 4½ games behind AL East-leading Toronto.

Boston wasted an early 4-0 lead and lost for the sixth time in seven games when relief ace Jeff Reardon gave up a two-run double to Dale Sveum in the eighth inning.

Milwaukee, which reached .500 for the first time since May 8, scored three times in the sixth. In the eighth, Darryl Hamilton singled off Dan Petry and Reardon (1-4) gave up doubles to Jim Gantner and Sveum.

Julio Machado (2-3) pitched 1½ innings of hitless relief and Doug Henry came on in the ninth for his 13th save.

Orioles 7, Tigers 4

DETROIT — Hot-hitting Cal Ripken homered twice and drove in four more runs as the Baltimore Orioles beat Detroit 7-4, eliminating the Tigers from AL East contention.

Ripken went 4-for-5 and increased his season totals to 34 home runs and 114 RBIs, both career highs.

In his last five games, he is 12-for-22 with 13 RBIs, three homers, one triple and two doubles.

Jose Mesa (6-11) gave up three runs on nine hits in six-plus innings and Todd Frohwrth finished for his third save. Scott Aldred (2-4) was the loser.

Royals 8, Angels 4

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Rookie Tim Spehr hit his first career grand slam and Kevin Appier won his career-high 13th game, leading the Kansas City Royals over the California Angels.

Spehr hit his second home run of the season in the second inning off Jim Abbott (17-11). Appier (13-9) matched his lifetime best with 10 strikeouts in 7½ innings and won for the ninth time in 11 decisions.

Indians 5, Yankees 2

CLEVELAND — Rookie Ed Taubensee had three hits and his first three major-league RBIs and Eric King won for the first time in his last nine starts as the Cleveland Indians beat the New York Yankees.

King (6-11), who hadn't won since Aug. 5, gave up six hits in seven innings. Steve Olin escaped a bases-loaded, no-out jam in the ninth for his 16th save. Alan Mills (1-1) lost his first start.

Athletics 19, Rangers 5

OAKLAND, Calif. — Rickey Henderson went 5-for-5 and drove in four runs and Jose Canseco got four hits and drove in four runs as the Oakland Athletics routed the Texas Rangers.

COLLEGE ROUNDUP

Florida State makes picking No. 1 easy

Rick Warner
Associated Press

ANN ARBOR, Mich. — Who's No. 1? For now, at least, there's little doubt.

"We are the best in the country," tailback Amp Lee said after his top-ranked Florida State Seminoles overwhelmed Michigan 51-31 Saturday. "We wanted to come up here and show our stuff. I think we made a statement."

Few would disagree with the statement. Certainly not Michigan coach Gary Moeller, whose team fell from third to seventh in the AP poll Sunday.

"They're as good a football team as we've played since I've been here," said Moeller, who was an assistant coach at Michigan for 18 years before becoming the head man last season.

However, Michigan linebacker Erick Anderson isn't quite ready to concede the national championship to the Seminoles.

"They're a good team, but they're not invincible," he said.

If anybody is going to beat Florida State (4-0) during the regular season, it will probably be second-ranked Miami, No. 10 Syracuse or No. 13 Florida. The Seminoles play Syracuse next Saturday in Tallahassee and close out their season with Miami at home and Florida on the road.

Lee rushed 20 times for 122 yards and two touchdowns. He also caught three passes for 79 yards, including a 56-yarder that set up his second TD.

While the loss may have ended Michigan's hopes for a national championship, it didn't damage the Wolverines' annual goal of winning the Big Ten title and going to the Rose Bowl. They open league play Saturday at Iowa.

"We've got to be ready to play next week and prove we're good enough to win a Big Ten championship," Skrepenak said. "We can't even begin to think about national titles right now."

No. 2 Miami 34, Tulsa 10

Stephen McGuire scored twice and Gino Torretta threw two short TD passes as Miami (3-0) overcame some early rustiness in its first game in 16 days.

No. 3 Washington 56, Kansas St. 3

Billy Joe Hobert threw three TD

passes and Jay Barry ran for two scores as the Huskies improved to 3-0. Hobert completed 13 of 18 passes for 234 yards.

No. 4 Tennessee 30, No. 16 Auburn 21

Andy Kelly passed for 355 yards, including two long TD tosses to Carl Pickens, as the Vols (4-0) handed Auburn (3-1) its first defeat.

No. 5 Oklahoma 27, Virginia Tech 17

Cale Gundy threw for one touchdown, ran for another and set a school record by completing 18 passes for the Sooners (3-0).

No. 6 Clemson 9, No. 21 Georgia Tech 7

Ronald Williams' 2-yard run gave Clemson (3-0) the lead and the Tigers survived when Tech's Scott Sisson missed a 44-yard field goal with eight seconds left.

No. 8 Notre Dame 45, Purdue 20

Senior Tony Brooks rushed for a career-high 141 yards, while Rick Mirer ran for one touchdown and passed for two as the Irish (3-1) beat Purdue for the sixth straight time.

No. 9 Iowa 58, N. Illinois 7

Matt Rodgers threw two TD passes and the Hawkeyes (3-0) allowed the Huskies to cross midfield only twice.

No. 10 Syracuse 24, Tulane 0

Qadry "Missile" Ismail scored on a 45-yard reverse and a 64-yard pass from Marvin Graves as Syracuse (4-0) handed winless Tulane its second straight shutout.

No. 11 Baylor 45, SMU 7

J.J. Joe threw for two touchdowns and ran for another as Baylor (4-0) handed SMU its 13th straight loss.

No. 12 Penn St. 28, Boston College 21

Tony Sacca passed for one TD and ran for one, but Penn State (4-1) struggled to hold off the winless Eagles.

No. 13 Florida 29, Mississippi St. 7

Shane Matthews topped the 300-yard mark in passing for a school-record seventh time and Errict Rhett rushed for 142 yards as Florida (3-1) bounced back from a loss to Syracuse. Mississippi State, 21st last week, fell out of the poll.

No. 15 Nebraska 18, Arizona St. 9

Keithen McCant scored on a keeper and threw a victory-

Tommy Vardell ran for 114 yards and three TDs as Stanford (1-2) handed the defending national champs their second loss.

Northwestern gets its first win

Associated Press

Michigan gave up the most points ever at home and Michigan State flopped to 0-3, but Northwestern — yes, the Big Ten's perennial doormat — finally won a football game.

"We needed this with the Big Ten coming up," said Northwestern linebacker Jason Cunningham after the Wildcats ended a seven-game losing streak with a 41-14 win over Wake Forest, a week prior to the beginning of conference play.

Also on Saturday, Michigan was dumped by No. 1 Florida State 51-31, Michigan State lost 14-7 to Rutgers, Minnesota was nipped 14-13 by Pittsburgh, Purdue was beaten 45-20 by Notre Dame, Indiana tied Missouri 27-27, and Wisconsin got by Eastern Michigan 21-6. Illinois and Ohio State were idle.

Heading toward the opening week of league play, the Big Ten is 17-12 against non-conference foes. This Saturday finds Michigan at Iowa, Michigan State at Indiana, Wisconsin at Ohio State, Minnesota at Illinois and Purdue at Northwestern.

Hawks net 1st Big Ten victory

David Taylor
Daily Iowan

In a season of firsts for the Iowa volleyball team, Hawkeye coach Linda Schoenstedt and her young squad picked up their first Big Ten victory over the weekend.

Iowa beat Michigan State 3-2 Saturday night after losing to Michigan 3-0 on Friday, but Schoenstedt said the important thing was just getting the home conference win.

"We had some jitters for our first Big Ten match and we came out a little tentative. But the team was able to shake it off and regroup," she said. "We were much more aggressive against Michigan State than we were against Michigan."

The Hawkeyes improved their record to 5-9 and 1-1 in the Big Ten with the win.

"It was very important for us to go out and win so we wouldn't have a monkey on our backs," Schoenstedt said. "We've been a little tentative, but we have also had some injuries and without any depth we go about half speed."

Iowa was picked to finish near the bottom of the conference, but Schoenstedt sees the victory as a hopeful precursor of things to come.

"Ohio State, Illinois, Wisconsin and Penn State are all excellent teams and we'll have to work hard to win at home, but I think with the more wins we get, the more confidence there will be on the road," Schoenstedt said. "Hopefully we can get a chance to sting some unexpected opponents on the road."

Junior Michelle Haywood.

The new court positions Iowa has been playing the past few matches had much to do with the improved offensive attack against Michigan State, according to Schoenstedt. The offense, although conservative, has shown better ball control and has eliminated some of the inexperienced mistakes made early in the year.

"We are very comfortable with the changes we've made," she said. "There has been a little confusion sometimes, but we are a more efficient team and it has helped our offense and our blocking."

Iowa continues conference play on Friday and Saturday with away matches against Northwestern and defending Big Ten champion Wisconsin. Schoenstedt said she expects stiff road tests from the two teams.

"I know Northwestern is improved and Wisconsin returns several seasoned players, so we are going to have an important weekend," Schoenstedt said.

IOWA TENNIS

Men strong at Iowa State Invite

Michael Watkins
Daily Iowan

With gutsy wins from last year's returners as well as some newcomers, the Iowa men's tennis team picked up where they left off last spring with strong performances up and down the lineup this weekend at the Iowa State Fall Invitational.

Captain Klas Bergstrom, last year's No. 1 player as a freshman, made the strongest showing of the tournament for the Hawkeyes as he advanced to the finals in the top section before falling to Iowa State's Atle Willems 3-6, 6-2, 6-4 for the championship.

"Last week during practice, Klas hurt his lower back and played hurt throughout the tournament," head coach Steve Houghton said. "I'm confident that had he been 100 percent, he would have won that match."

"My back was very sore, but I don't think that was entirely why I lost," Bergstrom said. "I played really great in the first set, and had some break points in the second set but he played well, too."

"Then in the final set, I was down 3-4, but I broke his serve to even it at 4-all and then he broke me back and then served out the match. I just didn't play the big points well when I needed to."

Also stepping forward with impressive wins were sophomore Todd Shale, who played in the No. 6 position last season, and freshman Bryan Crowley and Naguib Shahid. Shale finished third in the second flight with a 7-6, 6-4 win over Iowa State's Lars Orzessek, while Crowley placed fifth in the same draw. Shahid advanced to the finals in the third section before losing 6-4, 0-6, 6-4 to Drake's John Judish.

With his lower back giving him further problems, Bergstrom and teammate Crowley defaulted in the first round in the top flight of doubles action, and Neil Denahan and Calle Mannheim, who'd never played together before the match, upset the Cyclone team of Willems and Hesser 7-5, 6-4 before losing in the semifinals.

Shale and Shahid overcame early-match jitters to defeat the Drake tandem of Nissell and Nwachukwu 2-6, 6-3, 7-6 in the finals of doubles section two.

"If this had been a veteran team like last year's, I would have been fairly upset," Houghton said. "But I think that this is a very good sign for such a young team."

Freshmen key women in Indiana

Michael Watkins
Daily Iowan

Chalk up another one for the Iowa freshmen.

Led by freshman Minna Hatakka's strong performance, playing in her second final in as many weeks, the Iowa women's tennis team put in another solid showing this weekend against conference rival Indiana and a host of other schools at the Indiana Invitational.

"This tournament was much tougher than last weekend's and I think we really raised our level of play to that of our competition," head coach Micki Schillig said. "We've only been practicing for about two weeks and the way we've been playing is definitely a good sign. But we still have a lot of work to do."

Hatakka, out of Espoo, Finland, dropped the final in the top bracket 6-1, 6-7, 7-6 to Indiana's top entry Jody Win, the Hoosiers' third-ranked player last season. Indiana's No. 1 and 2 players were both absent, competing instead at the All-American tournament.

"I was happy with my play, but when I lost the third set after leading I was very angry," Hatakka, who held a 5-2 lead in the final set, said. "I lost a couple of the important points, and I think that's where it hurt me most. She just played the big points better."

Hawkeye freshman Laura Dvorak, who lost to Hatakka in last week's All-Iowa tournament final, eliminated two opponents to advance to the semifinals in the top section but had to retire with a strained forearm muscle that had been hampering her most of the preceding week.

"We decided that it was better to hold Laura out than to have the forearm become a chronic injury," said Schillig.

In doubles, the No. 1 flight team of Catherine Wilson and Lori Hash had to default in the consolation rounds when Wilson's strained knee became aggravated after several rounds of play. Andrea Calvert and Hatakka finished third in the second flight of doubles before losing 7-5, 7-5 in the semis. Miyuki Moore and Kara Cashon finished fourth.

"After this weekend and the caliber of teams that we played, I think the girls now know what we're capable of," Schillig said. "This just gives us that much more to shoot for."

Women runners dominate at Illinois

Steve Collins
Daily Iowan

The only question left to ask after Iowa dominated the women's division of the Illinois Cross Country Invitational Saturday is how much more lopsided would things have been had the Hawkeyes been well rested?

Iowa easily won the eight-team meet with 25 points. Runnerup Michigan State finished with 84 points. Five Iowa runners placed in the top nine at a meet that included five other Big Ten schools.

Coach Jerry Hassard said Saturday's meet was the only event of the year that his team would train through and hard practices may have affected his team.

"I don't feel the team recovered well," Hassard said. "When they got done they all told me how bad they felt. I said 'Jeez, just think how bad the people that finished behind you must feel.'"

For the second week in a row Iowa's Tracy Dahl won the race. Dahl completed the 5K course in 16:49. Teammate Jennifer Brower was runnerup in 17:00. Jennifer Johnson (fifth in 17:25), Tina Stec (eighth in 17:38) and freshman Erin Boland (ninth in 17:39) all scored for Iowa.

Hassard said Boland's performance was particularly important because the Hawkeyes were without two of the team's top runners in Christine Salsberry and Christa Holmes. Salsberry was held out with shin splints and Holmes had been left home to rest. The highest Iowa finisher Boland was Patty Jones in 40th.

"I think the team is demonstrating they have the depth as well as the quality," Hassard said.

Hassard said that he has also been impressed with the communication his top two runners, Dahl and Brower, have had in the last two meets. Hassard said they have developed the uncanny ability to sense when the other wants to make a move.

Dahl agrees but said that hasn't always been the case.

"This year we work more closely, which is beneficial for both of us. She's a senior and I know she wants to be an all-American very bad. That's my goal as well," Dahl said.

BANDS

Ex-big cheese of Squirrel Bait (second from the right), singer Peter Streachy turns — and perhaps even rocks — into Gabe's Oasis with his current band Big Wheel.

Big Wheel rolls into Iowa City tonight

John Kenyon
Daily Iowan

The mellow moods of Big Wheel are featured tonight at Gabe's Oasis, 330 E. Washington St.

When Squirrel Bait broke up oh-so-many-years-ago, David Grubbs and Clark Johnson took their guitars to Bastro et al.; Ben Daughtrey took his drums all over and settled with the Lemonheads; and Peter Searcy took his amazing voice to Big Wheel. Now, that voice seems to have lost its edge, and so has Big Wheel. But that seems to all be a part of the plan.

On its debut disc, East End, Searcy still had that raspy howl that carried old Squirrel Bait gems like "Sun God" and "Kid Dynamite." The whole sound was more muted, but one could theorize that with a decent producer who would make Searcy strain once again, push the guitars way up in the mix and make 'em speed things up a bit more, the next record could be as big as Skag Heaven.

But, on the new Holiday Manor, everything is turned down even more, and Searcy has pulled back the reins on his vocal call-to-arms. They don't want to be Squirrel Bait and instead look toward something else.

"We wanted this record to be a lot more polished; we put more thought into this one," said guitarist Glenn Taylor.

The band recorded at Ardent Studios in Memphis, Tenn., with Ross Humphrey, who, according to Taylor, is partly responsible for Searcy's mild demeanor.

"Yeah, Ross wanted Peter to kind of mellow out, and some of the mellowness on the record is due to the fact that we recorded, mixed and mastered in 8 days," Taylor said. "And, to be honest, we don't know how Peter got that old voice; he can't do that anymore."

Taylor said they were looking for less of a punk crowd with this release.

"It seemed like a lot of people were into it for the wrong reason, just to slam dance and stuff," Taylor said. "And now that Peter's not screaming anymore, we're getting some bad reviews."

Searcy talks up this new mellow tone in "Power Ballad" from the new LP. "I've always hated this kind of song and swore I'd never write one... but now I find myself between a rock and a lonely place." How true. The band doesn't rock out a lot anymore, and yet it won't be lonely once radio gets an earful of this.

"Power Ballad" is followed by the mock epic "Rock Opus" (hope these are working titles). As with every other "rocker" on this album, the guitars are way too understated. Searcy's voice is one of the few that can carry the weight of a song, but he has to be complemented by something. What's there isn't bad at all — downright catchy once it gets in your head — it's just real hard to hear. Big Wheel is in desperate need of a second guitar player.

Could this record be some move on Mammoth's part to turn Big Wheel into America's newest hitmaker? Many of these songs could become AOR staples, and the aforementioned "Power Ballad" and the album's closer, "Sleep," could see some top-40 action in the right markets. Of course, it could be that these guys never really wanted to rock out in the first place. Searcy has really learned how to use the range of his voice, for it's certainly more expressive on this outing, even if it's not as exhilarating.

Last time Big Wheel graced the stage at the Oasis, it turned in an energetic set that was, again, a bit muted. Then, on the last song of the set, Taylor popped a button on one of his pedals, and the room filled with the roar of his chords as they ricocheted off the walls. It was so dramatic after the rest of the "we recorded our album in the basement of my mom's house, and she kept telling us to turn it down" set that one wondered why they didn't play like that the whole time.

READINGS

David Lehman

Poet Lehman gives reading

Jenny Mueller
Special to The Daily Iowan

To act without certainty, to make a leap of faith: This is the frequent imperative of David Lehman's poetry. The hero of Lehman's poem, "Third and Icarus," faces this challenge — "Here in this elaborate maze of fire escapes, themselves fire hazards, the hero/Without knowing why, receives his instructions on how to fly."

Lehman will read from his work tonight in a free Van Alsen Lecture Hall II at 8 in event sponsored by the Writers' Workshop. He is the author of two books of poetry, "An Alternative to Speech" and "Operation Memory," and of "The Perfect Murder" — a critical study of detective fiction and murder mysteries. Lehman may be best known, however, for 1991's "Signs of the Times: Deconstruction and the Fall of Paul de Man" — an account of the influence of deconstructionist theory focusing on de Man, one of its foremost proponents.

Paul de Man may seem far removed from the usual territory of poetry, yet theory is closely linked to Lehman's poetic concerns. Lehman argues in "Signs of the Times" that deconstruction fosters "a drastically reduced conception of human freedom." In contrast to deconstructionist thought, Lehman still assumes the poet's task of wresting significant meaning from language and the world.

Fictions, and the fictional archetypes by which we make patchwork repair of a general loss of faith in a deconstructed universe, provide Lehman's work with a major source of imagery and narrative. In a sequence of poems in "Operation Memory," Lehman scavenges among mythic genres, ranging from classical myth and historical fictions. Familiar images are readily accessed and quickly inverted or pushed in fantastic directions, only to be overthrown by the next fiction. A stripper turns into Eurydice; a quote from Keats is converted into a Monet image of the Gare St. Lazare. The rapid turnover of images conveys a sense of life in perpetual motion, in which "history is being made but like the biography of an amnesiac/It's a different fiction every day, image yoked violently to image."

Lehman's formal complexity and surprising imagery; his elegant, witty sensibility and the complex arguments of his poems; and his thematic preoccupation with the paradoxes of postmodern faith recall, at times, 17th-century metaphysical poetry, that modern metaphysician Wallace Stevens. But his work is broadly allusive, often humorously so, as in his Ezra Pound parody "With Tenure."
