Anti-abortionist found not guilty of harassment charges

Carol Schmitt of Dubuque, who was accused last year of assault and disorderly conduct during an abortion demonstration at the Emma Goldman Clinic for Women, was found not guilty on both counts Thursday night.

The charge against Schmitt was filed by Liz Seim, an employee at the clinic, who alleges that Schmitt physically and verbally harassed her while she was walking and protecting two clients of the clinic from protesters.

Social Security benefits smallest in 5 years

WASHINGTON (AP) — Social Security recipients in January will see the smallest cost-of-living increase in their benefits in five years: 3.7 percent, the government said Thursday.

The average check for the nation's 43 million beneficiaries will rise just $22 a month to $629, reflecting more moderate price inflation this year because of the sluggish economy.

That was disappointing news for the roughly 60 percent of Americans older than 65 who rely on Social Security for at least half of their income and the 25 percent who rely on it for 90 percent or more of their income.

Sen. Boren to support Gates nomination

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Democratic chairman of the Senate Intelligence Committee said Thursday he will support Robert Gates to head the CIA, predicting Gates will be confirmed by the full Senate.

"I believe ultimately he will be the next DCI (director of central intelligence) and that he will be confirmed," David Boren, D-Okla., said at a news conference on the eve of a committee vote.

But another member of Boren's committee, Sen. Bill Bradley, D-N.J., said Gates was too entwined with the abuses of the 1980s, when his mentor Bill Casey headed the agency, to restore CIA credibility.

Sikhs kill 41 in India bombings

RUDERPUR, India — Sikh separatists killed 41 people in deftly timed twin bombings at a Hindu festival and then a nearby hospital where doctors were treating survivors, police said Thursday.

More than 140 people were wounded.

The first bomb went off Wednesday night in a crowd of thousands gathered in this rice farming town 135 miles east of Punjab, the Sikh-dominated state that has borne the brunt of the insurgency's violence.

Public display of affection banned at Beijing campus

BEIJING (AP) — Young love is out at Beijing University.

School officials have banned hugging and kissing in public as "offensive against decency," and campus police are energetically enforcing the rules.

Students and teachers said more than 100 people have been taken in for failing to contain their affectionate impulses since the ban took effect Oct. 5.

PLO considers delegates for peace talks

Barry Schweid
Associated Press

JERUSALEM — Only one major issue — the final selection of Palestinian delegates and their appraisal by Israel — awaited settlement Thursday before President Bush and Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev announce a Middle East peace conference.

Leaders of the Palestine Liberation Organization were drafting a list of delegates at their headquarters in Tunisia, while Secretary of State James Baker conferred separately here with Palestinians and Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir.

"We had a very good meeting; we've made good progress," Baker said after meeting with Shamir for more than seven hours in the prime minister's office on a stony Jerusalem hillside.

Israeli spokesmen and other officials agreed with that assessment, but Baker's schedule is slipping after prolonged talks in Syria Wednesday.

As co-sponsors, Bush and Gorbachev are determined to convene the peace conference by the end of October. Invitations will go out at least 10 days in advance.

A few days ago, Oct. 29 was circled on the calendar and Lausanne, Switzerland, was designated as the peace conference site.

Pushing against that deadline, Baker persuaded Syrian President Hafez Assad on Wednesday to approve U.S. terms for negotiations with Israel.

But Assad would not budge in his refusal to deal with Israel on arms buildups, scarce water supplies and other regional problems.

Baker's pace was slowed when he and Assad conferred for more than 12 hours over two days.

In Jerusalem, Baker has made headway — but slowly — with Shamir and the Palestinians.

Even so, Baker realized he could not be finished by this afternoon so he made plans to spend the night in Jerusalem.

To a large degree, the pace is being set by Yasser Arafat's PLO. Ten Palestinians are believed to have been selected for the peace talks, but final approval of four others is still being debated in Tunis.

Baker meanwhile sought to ease Israel's concerns about the Palestinians and Syrians.

Mental health center to lose funds

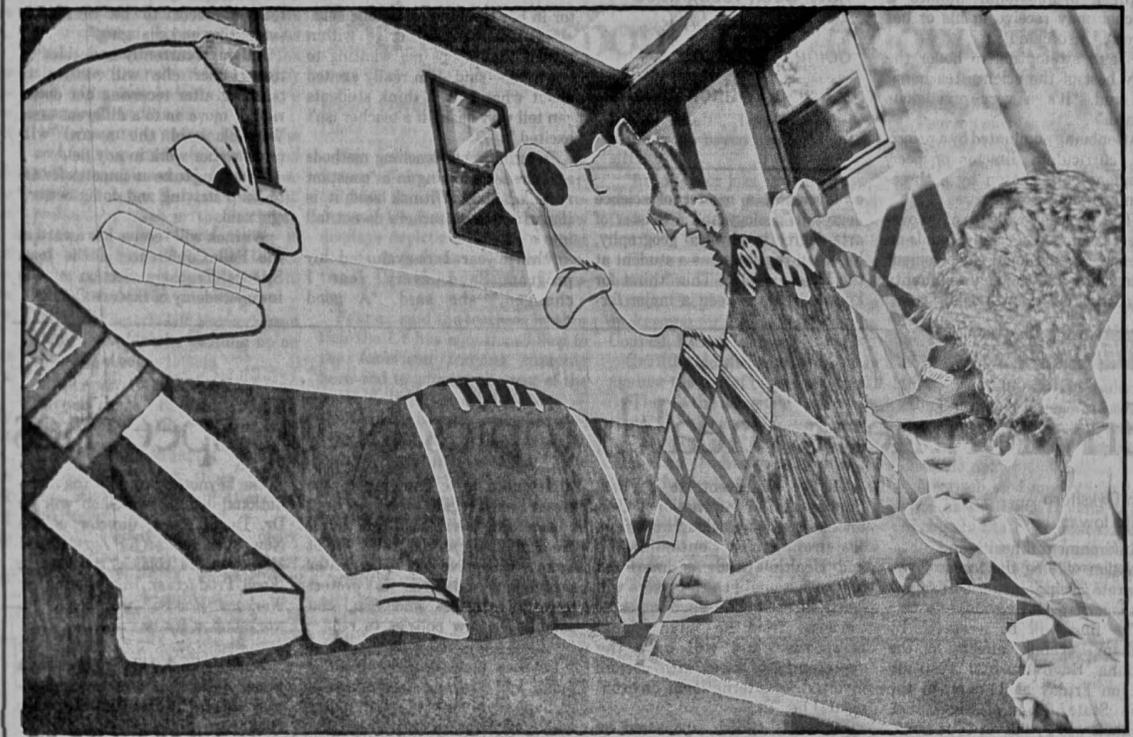

Mitch Martin
Daily Iowan

In Johnson County's human services community, there is a general feeling of apprehension and doubt over how the state's proposed budget cuts will damage the county's ability to care for the mental health of those that are most in need.

As part of Gov. Terry Branstad's across-the-board 3.25 percent budget cut, the state will reduce or eliminate several mental health and medical aid programs in the Iowa Department of Human Services.

Perhaps the most significant cut will take place at the Community Mental Health Center, 505 E. College St., which stands to lose all of its state Medicaid funding. The center currently has approximately 280 patients covered under Medicaid.

In the Medicaid program, the state pays for approximately one-third of the program, and if it meets federal guidelines the remainder comes from the federal government. However, certain programs are considered optional for receiving Medicaid funds. Community mental health services is one. This allows the state to eliminate funding in one program without losing federal funding in other Medicaid programs.

"We can't do it without the state," said Bob Jackson, director of the center, at the Tuesday meeting of the Johnson County Board of Supervisors. He warned the board of the impending cuts, saying that if the measures take effect as scheduled on March 1, there would be nowhere else to turn but the county. The shortfall from the cuts would amount to approximately $25,000 this fiscal year and

Harkin, Quayle plan Iowa visits; Tsongas cancels Grinnell stop

Eric Detwiler
Daily Iowan

Two prominent politicians — Vice President Dan Quayle and presidential candidate Sen. Tom Harkin — will be visiting Iowa this week for a myriad of political events.

Harkin, a Democratic presidential candidate, will hold a rally in the Union Ballroom Sunday at 11:45 a.m. According to campaigners, Harkin will be speaking both on issues of the upcoming presidential election and current events such as the recent Supreme Court nomination of Clarence Thomas. The event is sponsored by University Democrats.

Dan Quayle
U.S. vice president

Harkin stated before the Thomas vote that he thought Anita Hill's testimony had been compelling and convincing. He was one of 48 senators who voted against the Supreme Court nominee.

Vice President Dan Quayle will be in West Branch Monday for a tour of the ongoing $6.5 million expansion of the Herbert Hoover Presidential Library and Museum. The vice president and his wife, Marilyn, will be touring the facility and will present a memorial tribute to Hoover at his gravesite. Hoover died Oct. 20, 1964, at the age of 90 in New York City and is buried in West Branch where he grew up.

Also, an appearance at Grinnell College by presidential candidate Paul Tsongas has been canceled. Tsongas, a Democratic former senator from Massachusetts, had been scheduled to appear in Grinnell today.

Former SCOPE regulator Taylor to face sentencing

Marcey Bullerman
Daily Iowan

The sentencing of former UI Administrator Kevin Taylor, who pled guilty in September to misappropriating funds from the UI, will be held today.

The charges against Taylor, former director of the UI Office of Campus Programs, stemmed from a state auditor's report issued June 27 that revealed $58,011.16 had been embezzled from SCOPE, an office that Taylor regulated.

Assistant Johnson County Attorney Rod Reynolds said the state would try to recoup all the losses the UI suffered. However, he said that the university's bonding company will cover most of the losses, and therefore Taylor would only be responsible for $8,014. Reynolds said the state is also seeking to recover the $20,000 cost of the state auditor's report.

"The bottom line is going to be $28,014," Reynolds said. "I don't see any reason why he won't be responsible for the full amount."

Taylor could face an indeterminate

SCIENCE

Local instructor receives national teaching award

Chris Pothoven
Daily Iowan

A UI doctoral candidate and Iowa City schoolteacher has been selected as the recipient of the 1991 Excellence in Science Teaching Award.

Patricia Witinok, a seventh-grade earth science teacher at Northwest Junior High School in Coralville, is receiving the award in the field of earth science. Witinok is currently on professional leave to finish her doctoral work in physical geography at the UI.

"I'm really proud to have been recognized as someone who is doing a good job in teaching earth science," Witinok said. "I find it to be a high honor, especially here in the state of Iowa because we have such high standards."

Eight science awards are presented each year by the Iowa Academy of Science, said Roy Unruh, director of the ESTA program of the academy. These include biology, earth science, chemistry, physics, environmental education, and junior high and elementary science awards.

The award, which has been given since the 1960s, is one of the highest professional honors a teacher may receive in his or her career, Unruh said.

"We're attempting to honor the very best of the science teachers," he said. "It's a very prestigious award."

After being nominated by a principal, curriculum director or peer, recipients are chosen by a three-member committee.

"They look for evidence of innovative teaching, especially hands-on science, professional involvement of teachers and the general quality of instruction," Unruh said.

Principal Bryce Hansen of Northwest, who nominated Witinok, said she helped enhance the science program and learning opportunities available to students.

"Pat was very aggressive in trying to provide some special opportunities for kids in science," he said. "She generated a lot of energy and enthusiasm for science."

Witinok said one of the things she did to establish a good earth science program was to make use of the many resources available to her through the UI, especially in the geology department.

"I've really worked hard on the university-community school district relationship," she said.

This relationship included graduate students participating in some labs and the use of UI lab specimens in her classes, Witinok said.

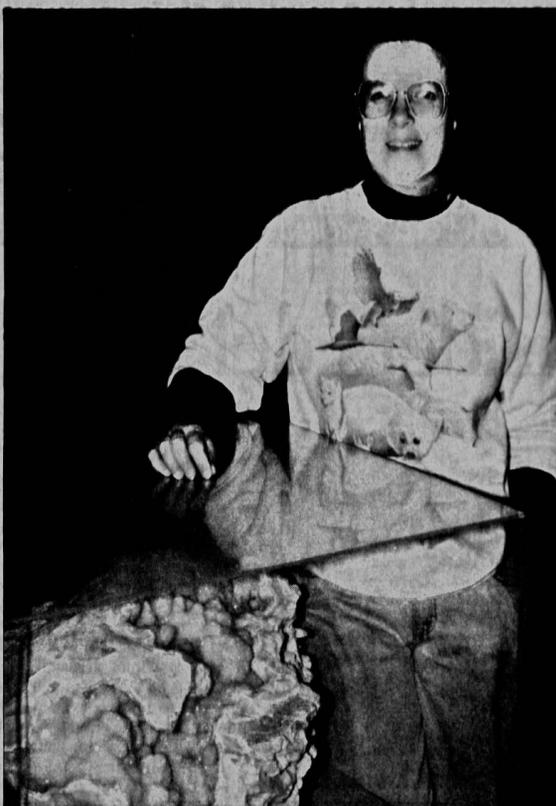

"The geology department here is an excellent department, and it gave me a great base for becoming a good earth science teacher," she said.

tor in her teaching skills, she said. "It's the personal drive within myself that keeps me wanting to learn," she said. "I'm really excited about what I do. I think students can tell very easily if a teacher isn't excited."

Describing her teaching methods and classes as being in a "constant state of flux," Witinok said it is important that teachers do not fall into a rut.

"Every year I re-evaluated my program, and every year I changed," she said. "A good teacher needs to be constantly evaluating and changing."

Although currently undecided as to whether she will return to teaching after receiving her doctorate or move on to a different area, Witinok said the award will improve her work in any field.

"It's going to be an impetus for me to keep striving and doing better," she said.

Witinok will receive her award at the Fall Conference of the Iowa Science Teachers Section of the Iowa Academy of Science Oct. 24.

Environment, health topics of UI speeches

Kim Dykshorn
Daily Iowan

Environmental health and contamination will be the focus of two separate events on the UI campus this weekend.

The first will be a speech by William Beranek, director of the Indiana Environmental Institute Inc. on Friday at 11 a.m. in the Ohio State Room of the Union. Beranek will speak on "The Great Lakes Initiative to Protect Streams From Toxics: Too Early or Too Late?"

The second event, to be held Sunday at the International Center Lounge, is a daylong workshop, "Environmental Contamination and Health." Students interested in international health careers will learn about several environmental concerns from an international perspective and will have the opportunity to meet with doctors involved in international environmental health.

Beranek's speech, sponsored by the UI Center for Health Effects of Environmental Contamination, will focus on a controversial initiative to regulate toxic dumping in the Great Lakes region.

According to a release from the UI Medical Laboratories, the Great Lakes initiative "revises water protection standards to protect humans, animals and fish, and establishes new policies to reduce discharges into the water."

Beranek, an associate professor of public and environmental affairs at Indiana University-Indianapolis, will discuss new water quality legislation for the Great Lakes region and upcoming debates about the issue.

The keynote speaker at the international health workshop will be Dr. David Pratt, director of the New York Center for Agricultural Medicine and Health. His speech, "Food Production: Implications for Workers' Health," will begin the workshop at 9 a.m.

Pratt's speech will be followed by a panel discussion and a documentary video, "Environmental Health Risks in Poland." In addition, students will learn about career opportunities in international and environmental health.

Local man plans flashlight battery recycling project

John P. Waterhouse
Daily Iowan

In his attempt to begin Johnson County's first dry-cell battery recycling program, Rockwell Williams now says he will need more information and some more help before he can begin accepting household batteries.

"I kicked the ball, and now I just need some help to get it rolling," said Williams, the flashlight battery recycling project organizer and owner of Storm Cellar Music and Used Books, 521 E. Washington St.

Originally, Williams had announced he would begin accepting all small batteries used for flashlights, portable electronic devices, wristwatches, hearing aids, cameras, etc., on Saturday, Oct. 19.

Williams said he urges Iowa Citizens to continue to save their batteries and not to send them to the landfills. A future announcement will be made when he is ready to accept the batteries.

"I became interested in this battery recycling project when I heard on television there were two factories in Switzerland that were recycling batteries," he said. "I have twice attempted to call the Swiss Embassy to find out what they're doing with the batteries. Are they throwing the remains in the Alps, are they encasing the batteries or are they shipping them over here?"

The Storm Cellar will be a temporary site for the flashlight battery recycling project, but Williams said he is looking for a more permanent location.

"Our ultimate goal would be for governmental agencies, local or otherwise, to take over in this disposal problem. But at the moment this isn't happening, and instead of letting toxins go into our ground water and affect our agriculture, I want people to start saving their batteries either at their house or mine in leakproof buckets," Williams said.

Joe Bolkcum, assistant for consumer affairs for the Johnson County Department of Health, said there is a great concern in Iowa about the contamination of ground water from leaking landfills.

"Studies done on household batteries indicate that when these batteries are disposed of in municipal landfills, both cadmium and mercury will eventually end up in our water," Bolkcum said.

He said it is important to keep toxic materials, including batteries, out of the landfills. "We know today there aren't very many options available to people so we really want to encourage people to take advantage of something like this battery recycling effort," Bolkcum said.

People should use rechargeable batteries and try to use fewer things that rely on batteries, he said.

Bolkcum said there are a number of ways to dispose of batteries. Recycling centers can shred, melt, neutralize and vaporize batteries and their components.

FOOTBALL GAME

Crowding presents problems

Herb Anderson
Daily Iowan

Apparently not all of the pushing, shoving and fighting at the Iowa-Michigan football game two weeks ago took place down on the field. Overcrowded seating conditions in the stands and alleged unnecessary roughness on the part of security guards have brought cries of "Foul!" from students.

UI Associate Athletic Director Mick Walker said the department has received several complaints from students regarding problems in the student seating sections at the game.

"The student general admission section was overcrowded, and there was some trouble because of that," Walker said. "A lot of students were pushing and shoving."

UI senior Lisa Mazzocco said students weren't the only ones causing the trouble.

"The security guards were from hell. I hate them," she said. Mazzocco said the guards wouldn't let her into the section her seat was in.

"While I was trying to explain to him we had tickets, he grabbed my arm and yelled, 'Get out or get arrested!'" she said. "They were jerks."

Senior Kris Pilling, who was with Mazzocco at the game and also was not allowed in her seat, said the guards handled the situation badly.

"The rent-a-cops seem to have it out for students," she said. "One guard said to me, 'I'm sick of you college students getting away with everything.' Like we're the only ones! He was totally out of hand in the way he approached students."

Department of Public Safety Director Bill Fuhrmeister said about 190 security guards worked at the game. He said although the athletic and public safety departments, which contract guards from outside agencies, had hired a higher number for the game than usual because of the large crowd expected, problems still occurred in the student general admission section.

"It was not a pleasant sight over there, especially prior to kickoff and at halftime," he said. "We had people trapped in the ramps, and there was a lot of pushing going on."

Fuhrmeister said after a certain point, guards simply could not let any more people into the section, even if they had tickets.

"We don't know why we had so many people in the general admission area," he said. "Eventually we had to shut the gates so we could clear the area out."

Trouble occurred again at halftime, he said, when people were trying to re-enter the game through one pass gate.

"We had a lot of complaints about that. Most people couldn't get in through the gate," he said. "We had to open up more gates before the situation got too out-of-hand."

UI senior Jeff Moser said he thinks more gates should have been opened sooner.

"It was just a mass of people pushing and shoving trying to get back in through only one gate. People were getting crushed," he said. "One big guard went berserk and went through the crowd screaming at people. Then finally they opened some more."

Moser said he was afraid of what might have happened.

Greeks claim no racist intent

Loren Keller
Daily Iowan

Two UI homecoming window displays that have generated numerous complaints of racism have been misinterpreted, according to the UI greek organizations that helped create them.

"The paintings represented a showdown between two schools, not a showdown between races," said Delta Tau Delta homecoming Chairman Matthew Ferguson. "It was mascot against mascot, not us against Native Americans."

The Delta Tau Delta fraternity helped to create a window painting at Cards Et Cetera Ltd., 109 S. Dubuque St., which depicted the Illini Indian mascot being used as part of a bow and arrow by UI mascot Herky the Hawk. The painting was one of two that were removed earlier this week following charges that the displays promoted stereotypes of American Indians.

Delta Tau Delta President Doug Morgan acknowledged that poor judgment may have been exercised in the creation of the diplays.

"Maybe what we did shouldn't have been done, but we meant no prejudice against the Native Americans," Morgan said.

Morgan added that his fraternity consists of a 10 percent minority population and that the fraternity is sharing in homecoming activities this year with two traditionally black organizations, Kappa Alpha Psi fraternity and Beta Phi Beta sorority.

Tom McGann, president of Kappa Sigma fraternity, said the controversy arose from a "difference of focus."

Kappa Sigma helped create the painting on the window at Land's End Outlet, 10 S. Clinton St., which showed an Iowa football player pulling the hair of the Illini mascot. It was removed Tuesday.

"It was a homecoming week activity," McGann said. "The spirit of it was intercollegiate competition, and it was school vs. school mascots, and that was the spirit of the depiction and that's the spirit of homecoming week if I'm not mistaken."

Delta Tau Delta member David Clark said a lack of sensitivity may have contributed to the controversy but also said he appreciated the fact that the issue was raised.

"We understand that it's a sensitive issue for Native Americans, but we really didn't believe it to be that offensive... maybe just because we're oblivious to it, but we want to rectify the problem," he said.

In creating the window displays, greek organizations worked from the '91 homecoming theme "Showdown With A Chief Opponent," which was created by the UI Homecoming Committee.

"When we were given that theme, we assumed that it meant the mascot, which is what we went by," said Morgan.

Clark believes the issue is broader than the recent conflict at the UI.

"If this issue is to be tackled, it shouldn't be here with our university. They should go to Illinois and say, 'We don't approve of your mascot,' and change it there, directly at the source," said Clark.

The Chi Omega and Gamma Phi Beta sororities, which were also involved in creating the controversial window paintings, were unwilling to comment on the matter Thursday.

Indians respond to window displays

Jessica Davidson
Daily Iowan

The Iowa governor's liaison on Indian affairs, Maria Pearson, participated in a discussion of controversial UI homecoming window displays depicting violence against American Indians at the International Coffeehouse Series Thursday.

Pearson said as a teaching institution the UI has a responsibility to the American Indians studying here and to educate the rest of the community.

"If the university condones this type of behavior, it is in essence backing up mob violence," she said.

She said several American Indians in the Iowa City community had received threatening phone calls for protesting the windows.

Judy Morrison, a Cherokee Osage and member of the governor's interstate advisory council on Indian affairs, said the window displays go beyond cultural insensitivity.

"An off-color joke is insensitive," she said. "This goes way beyond that. This is blatant, violent racism."

The panel also included American Indian Student Association spokeswoman Stephanie Griffith and a spokesman for the UI Homecoming Council, Rich O'Connor.

Griffith said she is not completely against the use of ethnic mascots.

"There's the acceptable and unacceptable," she said.

O'Connor and Griffith said an American Indian representative would be part of the float judging to check for racism.

Griffith, a Sioux, said it is depictions that are violent or trivialize American Indians that bother her.

"Sometimes it's embarrassing," she said. "I don't think we carry tomahawks now."

Pearson also said the Illini mascot trivializes Indians.

"Have you ever gone to our dances and seen our chief dance?" she asked. "You won't see them dancing for sports entertainment. If you like that sort of thing, we should have President Bush and Dan Quayle out there."

Pearson said Indian mascots for such teams as Illinois, the Washington Redskins and the Atlanta Braves are racist because they "zoom in" on an individual ethnic group, whereas mascots for teams such as the Pittsburgh Pirates or the Tampa Bay Buccaneers do not.

Morrison said mascots for teams such as the USC Trojans and the Michigan State Spartans are not racist because "those are all dead. We're not dead."

Morrison said the displays are a result of students' racism.

MENTAL HEALTH

approximately $100,000 in the next.

The supervisors were generally indignant and concerned about the state's reduction in services. Supervisor Stephen Lacina termed the cuts "a nightmare," adding that there were indications that further, deeper cuts in human services were under consideration for the years ahead. In the section of the current proposal concerning public reaction to the cuts, it is suggested that patients could ask the county governments to make up for the state's reductions.

"We're going to become the state for the state," Lacina said. "You know that saying from the movie, 'Build it and they will come'? That will happen to us. Johnson County may do more than other counties. And then what? It's obvious if I had a kid and he needed help, I'd move if that's what it took."

Cause for worry exists above and beyond the Mental Health Center as a host of other programs will be hurt by the proposed cuts. Some, but not all of the programs in danger of losing state Medicaid funds are ambulance services, dental care, hearing aid dealers, hospice services, medical equipment and supplies, optical care and psychological services.

Debi Meyers, a spokeswoman for the Iowa Department of Human Services, which drew up the proposal upon the governor's request, said the decision for the measure is not final. "We don't want the cuts to happen. However, we have a legal responsibility to live within our budget."

Meyers said several things had to happen before the measure would take effect March 1. The proposal has been given to the Council of Human Services, a group of private social workers appointed by the governor, for reaction and input. She said that public reaction to the measure would be considered. Also, there have been indications from the governor's office that there might be room for supplemental spending measures to lessen or avoid the cuts.

said Syria's boycott of the regional phase of the peace conference was "not a sign of a real desire for peace."

But there was no indication that the boycott would alter Israel's tentative decision to attend the conference.

Referring to the major issue of Palestinian representation at the talks, Zalman Shoval, the Israeli ambassador to the United States, said there were only questions — not problems — on other issues.

Shoval said the Palestinian list was not ready. He said its composition was "a puzzle, not only for us but for the American side as well."

Expenditure limits not answer to budget woes

Mike Glover

Associated Press

DES MOINES — A committee studying state spending limitations was told such limits haven't stopped government growth in the 19 states which have tried them.

In addition, a budget expert said, the two states which experienced the worst budget problems this year both have long had spending limits on the books that haven't worked.

At the same time, he provided a new study showing that taxes collected from Iowans have grown beyond the national average.

"Expenditure limits have not had the effect in limiting state government growth that most people thought they would," said Ron Snell, a budget expert with the National Conference of State Legislatures.

"There is no significant difference between spending in states with limitations and those without," he said Thursday.

Instead, Snell said, states which have set spending limits have seen government grow about the same as those without the lids.

Foreigners learn about UI traditions

John P. Waterhouse

Daily Iowan

In an effort to provide cross-cultural activities to the UI community, several UI international organizations will offer a variety of programs, including a presentation to teach foreign students the idea of homecoming associated with American football.

The Office of International Education and Services, or OIES, will sponsor its second annual "Football for Foreigners" today at 3:30 p.m. in the International Center Lounge.

With homecoming activities touching all corners of the UI campus this week, LeAnne Howe, assistant to the director at OIES, said many foreign students are rather perplexed as to what "homecoming" actually means.

"Some foreign students try to understand the literal meaning of the word, and they assume that everyone who is from Iowa will return this week," Howe said.

She said participants will learn everything from the Statue of Liberty Play to the Iowa fight song. After OIES foreign student adviser John Rogers demonstrates how to play "tag football," the participants will be escorted to the homecoming parade downtown.

The 15th annual Oktoberfest celebration to be held Saturday in the Main Ballroom of the Union will introduce modern German rock, which is something new this year to Oktoberfest, according to Michelle Hertz, co-director of the celebration.

"For the last hour of the celebration, the music will switch to modern German rock, in an effort to attract the younger crowd," Hertz said.

She said "in past years there was not a lot to do." This year activities will include educational displays, bingo, a slide presentation and a dance demonstration.

The Oktoberfest celebration is sponsored by UISA, Educational Programs, the Hillcrest Foreign Language House and the UI Department of German.

The OIES also is offering International Ghost Stories Oct. 31 in the International Center Lounge. Howe said this Halloween party "should be interesting because what might scare one foreign student may not scare another."

The evening of cross-cultural "scary tales" will feature storytellers from Asian countries, Great Britain and America.

The wild excitement that erupted told the story: the Emerson Quartet's appearance was magnificent. Their work captured the spirit of the music, giving it a freshness rarely heard on the concert stage today."

IVAS MASSACRE

Associated Press

Officials remove a gunman's pickup truck from Luby's Cafeteria in Killeen, Texas, early Wednesday morning. The man killed 22 people in the nation's deadliest shooting rampage.

Police sort out clues to gunman's personality

Scott McCartney
Associated Press

BELTON, Texas — He referred to women as "treacherous female vipers," and some neighbors complained of bizarre and frightening behavior. But the question, who was George Hennard, remained as much a mystery Thursday as why he methodically gunned down 22 strangers.

Hennard, 35, a former merchant seaman and the unemployed son of wealthy, divorced parents, left behind an angry letter venting hatred toward women. But authorities said they had few clues about what triggered the worst mass shooting in U.S. history.

"It's like a jigsaw puzzle," said Killeen Police Chief F.L. Giacomozzi. "We may never know the answers."

Neighbors described Hennard as a handsome loner who obsessively mowed his yard and washed his blue pickup truck. On Wednesday, he drove the truck through the front window of a Luby's Cafeteria in nearby Killeen at lunchtime, then opened fire on the crowd with a pair of semiautomatic pistols.

Police said they are investigating his feelings toward women, largely because of a letter a neighbor turned over to authorities June 19. The letter said in part:

"Did you and your sister find new flames yet? Do you think the three of us could get together someday? Please give me the satisfaction of someday laughing in the face of all those mostly white, treacherous female vipers from two towns who tried to destroy me and my family."

After Hennard smashed his pickup through the plate-glass window at the cafeteria, witnesses said, he screamed something about Belton and "This is what Bell County has done to me!"

A diner who escaped unhurt, Susan Robinson-Hester, said Hennard screamed "Look at what Belton's done to me!" Later, the shooting continuing, Hennard said, "Tell me, was it worth it? Wait 'til those f---ing women in Belton see this! I wonder if they'll think it was worth it!"

His letter to the neighbors contained an eerily similar passage.

"It is very ironic about Belton, Texas," Hennard wrote. "I found the best and the worst in women there. You and sister on the one side. Then the abundance of evil women that make up the worst on the other side. I would like to personally remind all of those vipers that I have civil rights, too."

Fourteen of the 22 killed in the cafeteria were women.

House vetoes proposed ban on assault weapons

Matt Yancey
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The House rejected a proposed ban on semiautomatic assault weapons and large ammunition clips Thursday, turning the appeals of gun control advocates who seized upon the Texas shooting rampage to make their case.

By 247-177, the lawmakers voted to strike from a broad anti-crime bill a provision that would have banned 13 models of assault-style weapons, along with 17-round ammunition clips such as those used by a gunman Wednesday to kill 22 people and himself in a Killeen, Texas, cafeteria.

Supporters of the gun control measure had taken heart when Sen. Chet Edwards announced that the massacre in a cafeteria in a home district had persuaded him to drop his longstanding opposition.

But gun control opponents noted that the proposed list of weapons that would be banned did not include the models of pistols the gunman used.

"This is a feel-good measure," said Rep. James Sensenbrenner, R-Wis. "It is not going to affect criminals in any way, shape or form."

Supporters of the ban contended a proposed seven-bullet limit on ammunition clips might have saved some people because the gunman would have had to stop shooting to reload more often.

"The killer was in the cafeteria for over 10 minutes," Sensenbrenner countered. "He had plenty of time to change clips, and apparently he did."

Still, supporters of the ban, many of them hunters, said the Texas shootings emphasized a need to prohibit possession of weapons and clips designed to "spray" bullets.

"I don't need an assault weapon to go out there and kill a deer," said

Rep. John Bryant, D-Texas. "The fact of the matter is that nobody needs an assault weapon except cowards and criminals and weirdos who have to own an assault weapon in order to feel like a man."

The White House expressed sympathy for the victims in Texas but said President Bush was not changing his stance on gun controls.

"You can't legislate behavior," said Judy Smith, a deputy White House press secretary.

Gun control advocate Sarah Brady, whose husband James was critically wounded in an assassination attempt in 1981 on former President Reagan, expressed bitterness over the vote on an amendment backed by the National Rifle Association.

"This is totally irresponsible to the American public's safety," she said. "It's just one more reason to be utterly disgusted with the U.S. Congress."

The author of the proposed prohibitions, covering sale or possession of 13 models of assault-type semiautomatic weapons as well as ammunition clips with more than seven rounds, acknowledged before the vote that he faced an "uphill battle."

"The tragedy yesterday added some momentum in our direction, but at this point I don't think it is enough," said Rep. Charles Schumer, D-N.Y.

It was enough for Edwards, whose district includes Killeen, site of Wednesday's deadliest mass shooting in the nation's history.

"It takes away from being an issue of statistics, numbers, charts and legal issues," he said.

"It's a human story now, a human tragedy," Edwards said, "and I just simply have to vote to put some limit on assault weapons that could be used by drug kingpins and crazed killers to murder innocent victims."

USS IOWA

Navy apologizes to family of accused sailor

Joanne M. Schafer
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Two years after the Navy accused a sailor of causing a deadly explosion aboard the USS Iowa, the service said Thursday there was no "clear and convincing proof" that Clayton Hartwig was to blame and apologized to his family.

"There is no certain answer to the question of what caused the tragedy that killed 47 people, said Adm. Frank Kelso, the chief of naval operations.

"I extend my sincere regrets to the family of gunner's mate Hartwig," Kelso said at a Pentagon briefing. "We're sorry Clayton Hartwig was accused of this."

Family members said they were pleased with the apology.

"They gave us the words I wanted to hear," Hartwig's mother, Evelyn, said in Cleveland. "I think they were sorry the way things went."

Kelso, reporting on a second round of investigation into the blast, said he rejects the finding that the 1989 explosion "most probably" was an act of suicidal sabotage brought on by Hartwig's despondency over a failed relationship with another sailor.

Such a finding, Kelso said, is "not conclusively established by the evidence."

But he said the Navy's initial investigation was "an honest attempt" to weigh all the evidence it had at the time. He said he doubted anyone would ever know exactly what happened inside the second gun turret of the World War II-era battleship.

The investigation into the explosion, which occurred during a training exercise about 300 miles north of Puerto Rico, cost about $25 million, Kelso said.

He said two years of analysis and thousands of tests conducted by Navy and independent scientists could not find — nor rule out — an intentional act nor an accidental cause" for the April 19, 1989, explosion.

Navy experts and independent investigators at the Sandia National Laboratories in Albuquerque, N.M., who have conducted hundreds of experiments to try to replicate the explosion, don't agree on a specific cause for the blast, Kelso said.

"Without clear and convincing proof, an opinion, no matter how equivocally stated, that an individual may have intentionally brought about his own death and the deaths of 46 of his shipmates is inappropriate," the admiral said.

That "qualified opinion ... was interpreted by many as a conclusive finding of wrongdoing," Kelso said. "For this, on behalf of the U.S. Navy, I extend my sincere regrets to Hartwig's family."

He also apologized to the families of the others who died in the blast, saying he regretted that "such a long period has passed, and despite all efforts, no certain answer ... can be found."

Kelso, asked why he was making an apology even though the initial report was made under his predecessors, said, "I think I'm doing what had to be done. It's part of the job. I think it was the right thing to do."

Kelso's move amounts to a stunning reversal of the Navy's initial investigation of Hartwig. Navy officials said that in recent memory, they could not recall such an action by a top Navy official.

In September 1989, some five months after the blast, the Navy released a report that accused Hartwig of putting "some type of detonation device" between gunpowder bags as he supervised the loading of one of the ship's 16-inch guns.

Freight, passenger trains collide; at least 16 killed

Thibault Leroux
Associated Press

MELUN, France — An overnight passenger train from the Riviera to Paris smashed head-on into a freight train Thursday, killing at least 16 people, injuring dozens and littering a freight yard with twisted metal and smashed luggage.

Railway officials said the freight train rolled into the passenger train's path while switching tracks about 6:30 a.m. near the station in Melun, 30 miles southeast of Paris.

Jacques Fournier, president of the French national railway, said both trains were traveling 35-45 mph. However, a black box later recovered from the passenger train indicated it was going 25 mph at the time.

Fournier said the freight train passed by a signal, but he did not know whether the light was red or green at the time. He said the signal was in working order.

The passenger train from Nice, made up of four sleeper cars and several cars carrying automobiles, was knocked off the rails by the force of the collision with the 12-car, 900-ton freight train loaded with metal cables and beams.

The front sleeping car was hurled atop the passenger train's engine, and the crash left a 550-yard trail of buckled metal, bloodstained pillows and other debris.

Fournier told a news conference the railroad was "fully responsible for the accident and must draw the necessary conclusions" regarding safety.

Among those killed was the engineer of the freight train. Most of the other casualties were in the lead sleeper car.

"I was in the corridor in the second car when I felt a violent shock and was thrown against the compartment wall," said one passenger, who did not give his name. "Most people were still asleep."

Fournier said 62 people were injured, 22 of them seriously. Police said 57 people were hurt.

Transport Minister Paul Quilès announced an immediate inquiry. Premier Edith Cresson visited the morgue and expressed condolences to grieving survivors, as did President Francois Mitterrand.

Scores of ambulances, rescue vehicles and helicopters converged on the scene with more than 200 firefighters and rescue workers. They used ladders to climb into the

"Some of the injured were totally panicked, and we had to comfort them before we could evacuate them," said Lt. Col. Guy Bernoux. A crewman aboard the passenger train was killed, but its engineer, Christian Roye, was found alive, trapped in his cabin. His right leg was amputated in order to pull him from the wreckage, six hours after the crash, officials said.

Mozart accidentally poisoned by own doctors, says physician

Randi Hutter Epstein
Associated Press

LONDON — Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart was poisoned, not by a jealous rival but inadvertently by his own doctors, a physician has concluded.

Mozart's death has long been the subject of speculation and romanticizing, and poisoning has been at the center of some theories.

Ian James, a physician and pharmacologist at London's Royal Free Hospital, believes Mozart was poisoned by antimony and possibly mercury, which were used as medicines in 18th-century Vienna. He presented his findings at a weekend conference of the British Association for Performing Arts Medicine.

But Dr. Peter Davies, an Australian physician who has written extensively about Mozart's ailments and death, said the antimony theory is "not new and not tenable."

Davies, a gastroenterologist and author of the book "Mozart in Person: His Character and Health," believes the composer died from complications of a streptococcal infection. He will be republishing his own theory in the December issue of the Journal of the Royal Society of Medicine.

Mozart died in Vienna Dec. 5, 1791, at the age of 35. Speculation about the cause of his death has been kept alive by several factors — his young age, the fact that he was at work on a requiem in his last days and rumors that he was poisoned, perhaps by his jealous rival, Antonio Salieri.

The poisoning rumors were rejected early on by Eduard Vincent Guldener von Lobes, a court counselor who was consulted during Mozart's last illness.

In an 1824 letter, Guldener von Lobes said he had discussed the case with Dr. Thomas Franz Closeset, who attended Mozart and diagnosed his illness as a rheumatic and inflammatory fever.

NATO

European nuclear store to be reduced by 80%

The alliance nations agree to cutback shells, bombs and short-range missiles.

Sally Jacobsen
Associated Press

TAORMINA, Sicily — U.S. Defense Secretary Dick Cheney and other NATO defense chiefs reached a landmark decision Thursday to cut their nuclear arsenal in Europe by 80 percent, effective immediately.

It is the biggest reduction in NATO's 42-year history. The action will rid Western Europe of more than 2,000 nuclear artillery shells and short-range missiles and about 700 gravity bombs dropped from warplanes.

The 700 bombs remaining will amount to one-tenth of the number of nuclear weapons stockpiled a decade ago by the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

The defense ministers cited the easing of fears of a surprise attack by the Soviet Union and its former allies in the Warsaw Pact.

"The risk of a massive and immediate threat that the Warsaw Pact used to pose has gone," British Defense Secretary Tom King said at the end of the first day of talks in this Sicilian resort overlooking the Mediterranean Sea.

"But the uncertainties are very great and... we think it prudent to maintain a minimum level of deterrence."

The ministers' dramatic decision was shaded by concerns about the impact of a Franco-German proposal for a European force that could operate independently of the alliance.

The proposal was offered as part of negotiations by the 12-nation European Community to create a political union, with a common foreign, security and defense policy.

In announcing the nuclear arms reductions, the NATO chiefs emphasized the enormous size of the cuts in battlefield nuclear weapons, most of which are based in Germany.

The United States provides the nuclear weapons for use by forces that come under the NATO command in the case of a conflict.

Italy's defense minister, Virginio Rognoni, said the reductions wiped out 80 percent of the current stockpile.

King added, "The amount of theater nuclear weapons will now be a tenth of what they were some 10 years ago."

The ministers refused to release precise figures.

But NATO sources previously estimated the number at 3,500, including 1,200 to 1,600 nuclear artillery shells and 1,400 gravity bombs dropped from warplanes that can carry nuclear or conventional arms.

There also are 88 Lance launchers, with 700 nuclear warheads.

King said Britain, which has its own nuclear force, would follow the alliance by eliminating ground-based nuclear weapons and halving the number of its gravity bombs. Analysts estimate Britain has a few hundred bombs.

The alliance will be left with only an air-launched system for delivering nuclear weapons, King said. A decade ago, he said, 11 different systems existed.

The allies' move endorsed a decision by President Bush late last month for extensive cuts in the American nuclear arsenal.

Pointing to the upheaval in the Soviet Union, Bush called for withdrawal from Europe of all nuclear artillery shells and nuclear warheads for the Lance missiles.

Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev responded positively to Bush's initiative and then urged NATO to put its nuclear bombs in storage as well.

U.S. defense officials said they would consider the proposal but emphasized there was no intention of storing the bombs outside Europe.

U.S. and NATO officials have maintained the West needs to hold onto some nuclear weapons in case of future threats.

Bush also scrapped plans for a new nuclear short-range attack missile or TASM (tactical air-to-surface missile), a version of which was to be used on NATO planes. But U.S. officials left open the possibility of later development of the TASM.

The ministers discussed the safety and control of Soviet nuclear forces since the collapse of central authority in Moscow and said they would continue to monitor the situation closely.

NATO officials have said the Soviets so far appear to have followed sound practices for control of the weapons.

It's that time of year when Iowa field hockey teams are competing for the title of national champion. The time of year when the regular season is over and the teams are heading into the playoffs. Last year, the team that belonged to the Monarchs, a team that lost its first game in the double-overtime match against the Hawkeyes, shot 31-5, but goalies saved the school. She was named Collegiate Field Hockey Player of the Week.

The Monarchs were the Hawkeyes in the Final Four, where they lost 1-0 to the team that won the NCAA title, while the Hawkeyes were the runner-up.

This year, a similar situation unfolded. The Hawkeyes are ranked No. 4 in the nation while the defending Monarchs find themselves in a familiar position — the heap with a No. 14-0 record. The team that has kept their number one ranking square off in Philadelphia.

Iowa also takes on the Grays Field in Philadelphia. The Owls are No. 13 in the nation.

While Iowa is used to being the underdog, this year they are the favorite. When they hook up with the Grays, Iowa has never defeated them, going 0-9-1 in dates back to 1980. The Hawkeyes may find it difficult to win that six of those games, but they have been by one goal in four — while the Grays have gone into overtime.

With such a decision over the years, one can only hope that the Hawkeyes could win some Saturday. Lisa Sweeney has another story for you.

"I don't think it's a foregone conclusion," says Sweeney. "The Hawkeyes will have to go with it. I think it's the ultimate test of our season. We're going to win this game. I don't think it's unbeatable."

However, unbeatable is something that has never been proved to be true. The Monarchs beat the Hawkeyes with a 10-0 thrashing in Illinois and have won their games. As for the Hawkeyes, they are not an 11-7 winning team. It's a goal. Goalie Eileen Moyer.

Two of those came when Iowa disposed of Michigan 2-0 — in a game that the Michigan State 4-0 — the numbers look good. Hawkeye standpoint, they could not avoid losing this week's showdown.

Hawkeyes head for homecoming hurting

John Shipley
Daily Iowan

Fullback Lew Montgomery will epitomize a very strange season in Iowa football this weekend when he lines up at tailback in the Hawkeyes' homecoming game against Illinois.

The 6-foot, 212-pound junior from Waterloo finds himself one of only two healthy running backs on the Iowa roster. The other is backup fullback Paul Kujawa, who will start in Montgomery's absence at 2:30 p.m. Saturday at Kinnick Stadium.

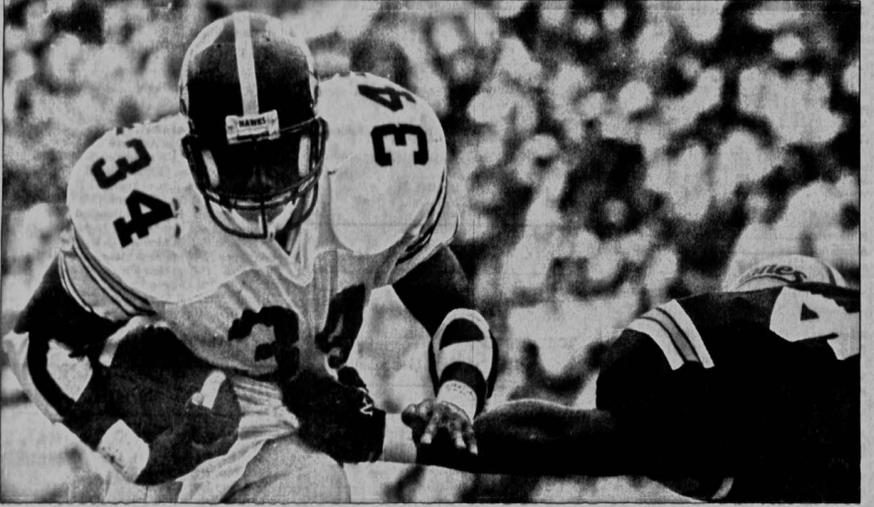

Regular starting tailback Mike Saunders is still smarting from a rib injury he suffered in the first half of the Michigan game two weeks ago. Backup Marvin Lampkin has a cast on his left foot after suffering a stress fracture. Iowa Coach Hayden Fry said Tuesday he expected Saunders to play, but Lampkin will definitely sit.

"You'll see Montgomery at fullback and running back, both positions," Fry said. "Lampkin will be out certainly this week but there is an outside chance that he'll be back next week. Saunders has the type of injury that's going to take complete rest; it's like a hamstring only it's between his rib cages, so every time he laughs or coughs it hurts."

Third-team tailback Chris Palmer is listed as available, but Fry said he also is less than 100 percent, leaving Montgomery as the only healthy running back fast enough to play halfback.

For Montgomery, the situation comes under the heading of "Be careful what you wish for, you just may get it."

"It's something I hadn't anticipated, it's kind of something I was forced into doing," he said quietly, sounding as if he had just read "The Monkey's Paw." "I always See HAWKEYES, Page 2B

FIELD HOCKEY

No. 1 Old Dominion awaits Iowa

Jay Nanda

Daily Iowan

It's that time of year again for the Iowa field hockey team.

The time of year when, after breezing through the first half of the regular season, the Hawkeyes go head-on with the nation's most formidable opponent.

Last year, that distinction belonged to the Old Dominion Monarchs, a team that dealt Iowa its first loss of the season in a 1-0 double-overtime marathon. In that contest, the Hawkeyes were outshot 31-5, but goalie Andrea Wieland set a school record with 25 saves. She was named the Midwest Collegiate Field Hockey Conference Player of the Week for her efforts.

The Monarchs went on to meet the Hawkeyes in the semifinals of the Final Four, where they duplicated that 1-0 outcome en route to the NCAA title, while Iowa settled for third.

This year, a similar scenario has unfolded.

The Hawkeyes stand at 11-0 and are ranked No. 4 in the country, while the defending champion Monarchs find themselves in a familiar position — at the top of the heap with a No. 1 ranking and 14-0 record. The two will try to keep their numbers intact when they square off Saturday in Philadelphia.

Iowa also takes on host Temple at Geasey Field in Philadelphia. The Owls are No. 13 with a 7-4-1 mark.

While Iowa is used to sticking it to their opponents, the same can be said of the Monarchs — especially when they hook up with the Hawkeyes.

Iowa has never defeated Old Dominion, going 0-9-1 in a rivalry that dates back to 1980. However, the Hawkeyes may find a consolation in that six of those nine losses have been by one goal — including the last four — while two of those six have gone into single or double overtime.

With such a decisive disadvantage over the years, one may think the Hawkeyes could be intimidated some Saturday. But senior Lisa Sweeney has another way of putting it.

"I don't think it's so much intimidation," says Sweeney, who leads the Hawkeyes with 18 assists and 40 points, to go with her six goals. "I think it's the ultimate challenge of our season. We're more up for this game. I don't think they're unbeatable."

However, unbeatable and virtually untouched is something both teams have proved to be thus far in 1991.

The Monarchs began their season with a 10-0 thrashing of Northern Illinois and have since won all 13 of their games. As for Iowa, the Hawkeyes are not only working on an 11-0 winning streak, but also four consecutive shutouts by goalie Eileen Moyer.

Two of those came last weekend, when Iowa disposed of unranked Michigan 2-0 — in overtime — and Michigan State 4-0. But although the numbers look good from a Hawkeye standpoint, Sweeney conceded that she and her teammates could not avoid looking ahead to this week's showdown.

"In the past, I haven't realized the emphasis on (winning) conference games versus nonconference games," Sweeney said. "I've done a pretty good job of not looking ahead except for last weekend. I See FIELD HOCKEY, Page 2B

Braves lose loser image

To face Twins in Series

Ben Walker

PITTSBURGH — The Atlanta Braves finally shucked their loser's image, shutting out Pittsburgh in Game 7 of the NL playoffs and setting up the most unlikely World Series ever.

The Braves made winning look easy Thursday night as John Smoltz pitched Atlanta past the Pirates 4-0 for its first pennant.

Now, a season full of surprises ends with the biggest one yet. The Braves, baseball's poorest team last year, and the Minnesota Twins, the only other team this century to go from worst-to-first, meet in the World Series starting Saturday night in the Metrodome.

Brian Hunter's two-run homer capped a three-run first inning, and that was all Smoltz and the Braves needed. The Pirates' big hitters again went poof, and Pittsburgh was shut out for the second straight game.

"This club came a long way from spring training," the Braves' Terry Pendleton said. "People said we were out of it at the All-Star break, but we kept battling. They said we couldn't catch the Dodgers and we kept battling. This is a team that won't give up."

A day after NL playoffs MVP Steve Avery and Alejandro Pena shut down Pittsburgh 1-0, Smoltz won his second game of the series with a six-hitter. In reversing their history, the Braves also stopped the Pirates' series of Game 7 successes — Pittsburgh had played five previous deciding seventh games, and won them all.

"I'm glad this is over," Smoltz said. "I was a little nervous at the start."

It really was over early. After the Braves knocked out 20-game winner John Smiley in the first inning, the Pirates had their best chance when Orlando Merced and Jay Bell led off the first with singles.

But the big three of Andy Van Slyke, Bobby Bonilla and Barry Bonds each made outs, failing for the umpteenth time. They were a combined 0-for-33 with runners on base until Bonilla singled in the eighth.

The Pirates' 3-4-5 hitters were a combined 15-for-75, a .200 average, and didn't drive in any runs after the third inning of Game 1. In last year's playoffs, they were 12-for-63.

In the ninth, with 500 Braves fans chanting and chopping in the far reaches of the upper deck, Smoltz finished it quickly with a 1-2-3 inning. That set off an exuberant celebration on the field, and trig-

Bears keep Packers on no-offense skids

Rick Gano

GREEN BAY, Wis. — The Chicago Bears managed only one touchdown Thursday night. It was plenty against the Green Bay Packers.

The Bears shut down and shut out Green Bay's sputtering offense in a 10-0 victory. It was Chicago's 11th victory in the last 13 games against its longtime rival.

Jim Harbaugh's 8-yard touchdown pass to James Thornton late in the second quarter and Kevin Butler's 22-yard field goal early in the fourth sent the Bears (5-2) to a victory after two straight losses.

The Packers, who had 138 yards total offense and made just five first downs, fell to 1-6 with their fourth straight loss and 11th in 12 games dating back to last season.

Don Majkowski, in one of the worst performances of his career, completed only three of 16 passes for 32 yards before he was replaced by former Bear Mike Tomczak in the fourth quarter.

The Packers' deepest drive all night only reached the Chicago 43.

Majkowski fumbled a snap out of the shotgun and Richard Dent recovered for the Bears at the Green Bay 14 with 30 seconds to go in the third quarter.

Chicago just missed a first down and settled for Butler's 22-yard field goal with 13:48 to play.

Trailing 10-0, the Packers apparently recovered a fumble on a punt return early in the fourth quarter. But a whistle while the ball was loose blew the play dead and allowed Chicago to maintain possession.

Harbaugh then scrambled for 15 yards and Neal Anderson broke loose on a 27-yard run to the Packers' 25. Butler then missed a 47-yard field goal with 7:45 to go.

The Bears, whose first two possessions ended on a fumble and interception, finally scored when Harbaugh hit Thornton for a touchdown with 1:44 left in the first half. The scoring pass capped a nine-play, 66-yard drive, featuring a 16-yard pass to Anderson, a

The Packers, meanwhile, continued to struggle. Green Bay still has not scored in the first quarter

that one setback came during Iowa's only previous trip to Philly.
Even though the Hawkeyes are itching to get their showdown underway with the Monarchs, Sweeney believes playing Temple first will do Iowa some good.
"It's an advantage to play them first so that we can have a game to focus on," she said. "Playing Temple is going to be a very good indication for how we play against Old Dominion."
Smiley also was a failure. He gave up four runs in the first inning in losing Game 3 to Smoltz, and seemed nervous Wednesday night about pitching Game 7.
That's the way it went, too, as he walked Lonnie Smith to start the game and gave up Pendleton's single. After Gant's sacrifice fly to the wall, Smiley struck out David Justice, but got tagged on Hunter's drive into the left-field seats, just inside the line.
When Greg Olson followed with a single, Smiley was out, and, for all intents, so were the Pirates.

NLCS: Braves clinch pennant

gered an ever wilder scene in the clubhouse.
For the Pirates, the loss marked another season of disappointment, far worse than last year's six-game playoff defeat by Cincinnati.
Pittsburgh was baseball's best team during the regular season at 98-64, and came into the playoffs calm and confident. The Pirates won the opener, took two of three in Atlanta and returned to Three Rivers Stadium this week with a 3-2 lead.
But that's where it stopped for the Pirates and started up for the Braves. Smoltz capped a streak of 27 straight scoreless innings for Pittsburgh at home.
The Braves won the fifth pennant in franchise history, and first since 1958 in Milwaukee. Atlanta had been swept in its only other playoff appearances in 1969 and 1982 before this year.

Owner Ted Turner, who bought the team in 1976, was beaming when he accepted the NL championship trophy.
"I had hoped for this sooner, but better late than never," he said.
The Pirates went meekly, and so did their fans. A crowd of just 46,932, more than 10,000 fewer than watched Game 1, saw the season end.
"You have to tip your hat to the Atlanta Braves," Pirates manager Jim Leyland said. "It's very disappointing. They're legitimate champs. What a great performance. What a great story for baseball."
Hunter, a rookie, drove in three runs. He hit a two-run homer after Ron Gant's sacrifice fly in the first inning, and added an RBI double in the fifth.

"I was looking for something over the plate and he got a pitch up and I just hit it as hard as I could," Hunter said of the homer. "We're a big family here. We're a young club with veterans who have helped us out. We had no fear of losing."
Smoltz, in danger of losing his spot in the rotation in midseason when he was 2-11, won for the 14th time in 16 decisions since the All-Star break. He pitched his first shutout of the season — and Atlanta's third of the series — striking out eight and walking one.
His only trouble after the first inning came in the eighth when Bell singled with one out and Bonilla singled with two down. But Smoltz got Bonds on a routine fly.
Bonds is in line for his second straight MVP award, but for the second year in a row, he was a playoff bust. He went 4-for-27 with zero RBIs, and was 0-for-16 with runners on base.

Last year, he managed only three singles in 23 at-bats.
Smiley also was a failure. He gave up four runs in the first inning in losing Game 3 to Smoltz, and seemed nervous Wednesday night about pitching Game 7.
That's the way it went, too, as he walked Lonnie Smith to start the game and gave up Pendleton's single. After Gant's sacrifice fly to the wall, Smiley struck out David Justice, but got tagged on Hunter's drive into the left-field seats, just inside the line.

HAWKEYES: Not 100 percent for Illini

wanted to be a tailback; I guess my wish came true."
Also out for the Hawkeyes will be senior nose guard Rod Davis, who had arthroscopic knee surgery last weekend, and senior defensive end Moses Santos, who is suffering from tendonitis of the knee.
For Iowa, the timing couldn't be any worse. The Hawkeyes were an offensive juggernaut in its first three games of the season, outscoring their opponents 140-27. Lately, however, Iowa has struggled to score points, racking up only 16 over its last six quarters of play. Perhaps not coincidentally, the problems came when Big Ten play began.
Illinois' defense has been surprisingly stingy this season. The Illini lost all-Big Ten defensive performers Mel Agee, Darrick Brownlow and Moe Gardner to graduation, leading most to believe Illinois would be all O and no D. But the Illini have been tough on opposing offenses, holding scoring machine Houston to just 10 points in a 51-10 win Sept. 21 and keeping rushing behemoth Ohio State to just one touchdown in a 10-7 win last weekend.
Quite a different situation from last year, when the Hawkeyes beat Michigan 24-23 in Ann Arbor before putting the hurt on the Illini 54-28 in Champaign. Back then, says senior co-captain Rob Baxley, the Hawkeyes were running on all cylinders.

"I'll give you an example," the 6-foot-5, 280-pound tackle from Aurora, Ill., said. "The next week we scored on our first possession against Ohio State, and the next time we punted. We hadn't punted as an offensive unit in about eight possessions, so it felt a little strange punting."
Fry said the execution in last year's Illinois game was something he may never see at Iowa again. Baxley thinks that's exactly what the Hawkeyes need to rediscover if they're going to hand Illinois its first Big Ten loss.
"It just felt good. You get that confidence and everyone starts doing things right and it snowballs and things just get better," Baxley said. "That's what we're looking to get back to this week. It's been kind of a struggle so far."
Illinois' success this season has Fry baffled. Though he says Illinois "is as well-coached as any football team on our schedule," Fry thought the loss of so many stand-out performers from last year's co-Big Ten champions would leave the Illini struggling.
"To me, I'm more surprised at how well Illinois is playing than I am that Michigan State is 0-and-5," Fry said. "And there is no way in my life I could fathom anything like that happening to Michigan State."

"Going into last year's game, Illinois had more all-Big Ten players than any team in the Big Ten. And they graduated so many of those tremendous players."
But, says Fry, "the key ingredients returned, starting with Jason Verduzco at quarterback."
Verduzco is leading the Big Ten in total offense with 308 yards per game and ranks in the top 10 nationally. Fry has often taken the time to praise the 5-9, junior from Antioch, Calif., and this week was certainly no exception.
"Verduzco's a real challenge, to say the least," Fry said. "He's done extremely well against everyone he's played since he became the starting quarterback there."
"He reminds me so much of Doug Flutie, he makes the big play, he's a little guy, he's a fireball, he's tough as nails, he's very intelligent. He's the kind of kid you like to have as your own son; he's pure class."
But the big

NFL PREVIEW

This week's big game: 49ers vs. Lions?

Dave Goldberg
Associated Press

Bill Walsh once said the 49ers are usually favored by more than they should be because the oddsmakers are so close to San Francisco that there's a West Coast bias in the line.

Which, presumably, is why the 2-4 49ers are 7-point favorites over the 5-1 Lions on Sunday.

Or maybe it's just tradition — the oddsmakers really don't believe the meek are inheriting the NFL.

What we have is this: Detroit's coming off its bye week following a stirring comeback win over Minnesota in which Rodney Peete and Barry Sanders helped overcome a 20-3 deficit in the last eight minutes.

San Francisco is coming off an embarrassing 39-34 home loss to Atlanta. Those 39 points are the most the 49ers have surrendered since their 49-3 playoff loss to the Giants five years ago.

Despite their record, the 49ers are still considered among the NFL's big guys, which is how the Lions want to be considered. San Francisco will be prepared. They always are after an embarrassment.

Close but...
49ERS, 24-20

Kansas City (minus 1) at Denver

The Chiefs have been punching a lot of holes in a lot of juggernauts lately. The Broncos have had a week to recover from getting holes punched in them in Houston.

Marty Schottenheimer is 0-4 against the Broncos and the Chiefs haven't won in Denver since the Broncos quarterback was named Steve DeBerg, who will be pitching for Kansas City this time.
CHIEFS, 17-7

Rams (plus 4) at Raiders
The Rams return to their ancestral home for a crosstown rivalry that really isn't one.

But these aren't the ancestral Rams, despite Jim Everett's first two touchdown passes of the season last week.
RAIDERS, 17-10

Houston (minus 4) at Miami
The Dolphins are falling apart — physically. But don't underestimate Don Shula's ability to pull them back together.

At least part way.
OILERS, 27-24

Cincinnati (plus 13) at Buffalo (Monday night)

Sam Wyche has informed the Bengals they can fire him if they want. General manager Mike Brown says to forget about it.

Besides, ABC wants Wyche on the sidelines. It's more fun that way.
BILLS, 38-17

Atlanta (minus 2) at Phoenix
Suddenly Glanville's lads are lethal on the road.

Suddenly Glanville's lads have a chance to make the playoffs.

But only if this were Miami would Tim McKyer be up two weeks in a row.
CARDS, 20-17

Minnesota (minus 7) at New England

Remember, the Vikings have won just one game outdoors in the last three seasons.
And that was by one point over 1-5

Tampa Bay.
VIKINGS, 20-17
Tampa Bay (plus 12) at New Orleans

You know the Saints won't allow 12 points. But can they score that many?

SAINTS, 17-3
Seattle (plus 4) at Pittsburgh
Jeff Kemp is gone. Bubby Brister is "hurt."

What will Neil O'Donnell do with a week to think about starting a game?

STEELERS, 14-7

Jets (minus 12) at Indianapolis
If you want to know how bad the Colts are, try to recall the last time the Jets were 12-point favorites on the road.

JETS, 22-3
Cleveland (plus 5½) at San Diego

The Browns try hard. The Chargers are confused.

So is this game.
CHARGERS, 12-10

Last week: 6-4-1 (spread), 8-3 (straight up)

Season: 42-46-3 (spread), 57-34 (straight up)

Roenick's two lift Blackhawks

Associated Press

CHICAGO — Jeremy Roenick scored two goals in the third period as the Chicago Blackhawks defeated the Edmonton Oilers 4-2.

Adam Creighton scored from just outside the crease 3:15 into the final period to break a 1-1 tie.

Roenick's first goal of the night 82 seconds later made it 3-1 to help the Blackhawks withstand a goal by Craig Muni. Then, after goaltender Jimmy Waite preserved the tie with a nice save on a close shot by Joe Murphy, Roenick clinched the win with an empty-net goal with 20 seconds left, his sixth of the season.

The win was the fourth in a row for the Blackhawks while Edmonton lost for the fifth time in seven contests (1-5-1).

Penguins 8, Islanders 5
PITTSBURGH — Paul Coffey broke the NHL scoring record for defensemen and Bob Errey had three goals as the Pittsburgh Penguins beat the New York Islanders 8-5 on Thursday night.

Coffey had two assists to give him 1,053 points for his career. That broke the record of 1,052 by the Islanders' Denis Potvin, a new Hall of Famer.

The record was broken when Coffey slipped the puck to Bob Errey behind the New York net in the third period, when the Penguins broke the game open.

Jaromir Jagr's goal halfway through the third period snapped a 5-5 tie and brought the Penguins to life after a listless second period.

Red Wings 6, Blues 3

DETROIT — Rookie defenseman Nicklas Lidstrom and Vladimir Kostantinov scored their first NHL goals during a five-goal second period to lead the Detroit Red Wings to a 6-3 victory over the St. Louis Blues.

After a scoreless first period, the teams combined for seven goals in the second, including two power-play goals in 49 seconds by Steve Chiasson and Lidstrom, a rookie from Sweden. Kostantinov, a Soviet, scored his first goal with 28 seconds left in the period to make it 5-2.

The game was the first between the teams since the Blues rallied to eliminate Detroit in seven games in the opening round of the playoffs.

Flyers 5, Nordiques 3

PHILADELPHIA — Andrei Lomakin had two goals as the Philadelphia Flyers scored five straight times to defeat the Quebec Nordiques 5-3.

The Flyers extended their home unbeaten streak against the Nordiques to nine games. The loss extended the Nordiques' winless streak to five (0-4-1).

Philadelphia's Mark Pederson scored with 4:35 gone in the final period to break a 3-3 tie. Teammate Brad Jones scored his second goal of the season 35 seconds later for insurance.

Illini still mad about last year's 54-28 loss

Chad Schoffner
Associated Press

IOWA CITY — Iowa coach Hayden Fry is smart, throws out one-liners with the best of them and is a master of motivation.

He's also tricky, and that's what may worry Illinois coach John Mackovic the most.

Mackovic says his 13th-ranked team will have to be ready for anything when it visits No. 15 Iowa in Big Ten Conference play Saturday.

Iowa didn't have to be too fancy in its 54-28 whipping of Illinois last year because tailbacks Nick Bell and Tiny Stewart simply ran over, around and through the Illini. With Bell and Stewart gone, Mackovic expects to see more variety in the Hawkeyes' offense.

"We'll see everything — screens, draws and reverses — that they can conjure up," he said. "Hayden Fry knows the game well. He's been in so many big games like this. I expect they'll be ready."

Fry says he might have to resort to trickery to move the ball against Illinois, which has put together a strong defense despite returning only two starters on that unit.

The Illini have given up only 20 points in their last three games and shut down Ohio State last week in a 10-7 victory. They're tied for first place in the Big Ten at 2-0 and are 4-1 overall. Iowa is 4-1 and 1-1.

While Illinois was handling Ohio State, Iowa was struggling against Wisconsin. The Hawkeyes were stymied all day and didn't score a touchdown until the final minute in pulling out a 10-6 victory.

That worries Fry, who doesn't expect a repeat of last year's game with Illinois.

That game still bugs the Illinois players. The victory gave Iowa the inside track to the Rose Bowl. Illinois ended up tying Iowa for first place but had to settle for the Hall of Fame Bowl.

"It was a pretty embarrassing game," wide receiver Elbert Turner said. "I'm looking forward to this one. I don't believe we're anxious. We're just looking forward to it. All our energy is focused on making the offense work."

So far, quarterback Jason Verduzco has done a pretty good job of that. He leads the Big Ten in total offense and has thrown for 1,569 yards and seven touchdowns while completing 62 percent of his passes. Illinois is averaging 481 yards a game.

"He's one of the best in the nation," Iowa nose guard Brett Bielema said. "On the tape I saw of the Illinois-Ohio State game, I saw him take some licks from Ohio State's players, and it seemed he'd be down for the count. But he's a tough kid. He got right back up."

Iowa's Matt Rodgers, the all-Big Ten quarterback last year, hasn't thrown as much as Verduzco but has still been effective. He's 81 of 135 for 1,016 yards and eight

The Illini shouldn't be intimidated by playing in Kinnick Stadium. During Mackovic's tenure, Illinois is 9-2-1 in Big Ten road games.

"We have tried to keep the atmosphere of our preparations and game administration as close to the same as it would be at home," Mackovic said. "We have tried not to accept the fact that teams shouldn't play well on the road."

NFL TRENDS

Is NFL dominance changing hands?

Dave Goldberg
Associated Press

New Orleans is 6-0. Detroit is 5-1 and Dallas, 1-15 in 1989, is 5-2. San Francisco is 2-4 and Joe Montana is gone for the season and may not play again.

Is the NFL's old order changing? Is the NFC, which has been dominated for nearly a decade by the 49ers, Giants, Redskins and Bears, undergoing a metamorphosis? Don't count on it.

"I love our defense but we're not there yet," says Jim Finks, the man who put together the first winning teams in the history of the New Orleans franchise. "We need more on offense."

"We're the best young team in the NFL, but I emphasize young," says Wayne Fontes, the coach of the Lions, who has Barry Sanders as their offensive spark but lack depth on defense.

Perhaps the best indication of skepticism about the upstarts comes from Las Vegas, which has made San Francisco a touchdown favorite over Detroit this Sunday. That's the 2-4 49ers vs. the 5-1 Lions.

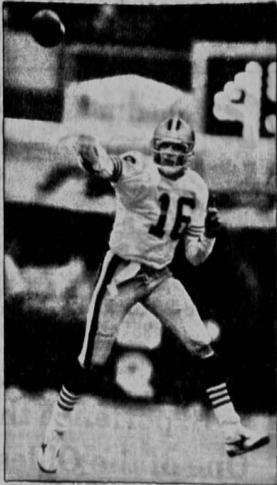

But another indication is Washington, the team rated by most scouts the best in the league as the 1991 season nears its midway point. Going into their off-week, the Redskins are 7-0.

Since 1981, when Joe Gibbs took over as coach, Washington has had just one losing season — 1988, when the Redskins went 7-9 following their second Super Bowl victory under Gibbs.

Some of that was the result of injury; some of it was post-victory letdown; some a problem at quarterback, where Doug Williams was hurt and Jay Schroeder a negative on the field and in the locker room.

So Schroeder was dispatched to the Los Angeles Raiders for Jim Lachey, around whom Gibbs restructured his offensive line; Earnest Byner was brought in from Cleveland and the linebacking corps was bolstered by the free-agent signing of Wilber Marshall.

Mark Rypien was plugged in for Schroeder, last year's draft added Andre Collins to flank Marshall and suddenly a team whose line-backing was one of its weaknesses, now is among the best in the NFL. "I don't like to sit, but when you're on a winning team you don't mind it as much," says Matt Millen, the Plan B acquisition who plays between Collins and Marshall only on first downs.

Then there are the Giants, who are in the classic post-Super Bowl funk.

It was perfectly symbolized by their performance Monday night against the Steelers, where for 2½ quarters they looked like champions; then looked like chumps for all but the final 50 seconds of the game. But they won.

"This kind of win can be the takeoff point," defensive back Everson Walls said after New York won 23-20 on Matt Bahr's field goal with four seconds left.

No, the takeoff point may come after the layoff, two weeks from now, when the Giants and Redskins meet in the Meadowlands. New York, which now has a chance to get some of its banged-up defensive linemen healthy, has won the last six games and nine of the last 10 non-strike contests against Washington.

That's one milestone for the playoffs. Another is Chicago at New Orleans the same week.

David and Goliath weekend commences

Associated Press

Goliath doesn't take chances.

Florida's three college football powerhouses — No. 1 Florida State, No. 2 Miami and No. 6 Florida — go against less formidable foes this weekend in games so lopsided that the oddsmakers won't even quote a line on them.

And in each case, the heavyweights will have the added advantage of playing at home.

Florida State (6-0) faces Middle Tennessee State (4-1) at Tallahassee, Miami (5-0) welcomes Long Beach State (1-5) into the Orange Bowl, and Northern Illinois (1-5) journeys to Gainesville to play Florida (5-1).

At least the visitors are coming in with their eyes wide open.

Middle Tennessee State coach Boots Donnelly considered his team's task against Florida State and reached a simple conclusion:

"It is a 100 percent total mismatch," he said. "It's no doubt about that. What we hope to do in that game is get a first down. Just one. That's our goal."

Florida State coach Bobby Bowden recognizes the pairing for what it is — a schedule breather against a Division I-AA team. "We've got to be realistic about it," he said. "I think you've got to have somebody on there that you're superior to. It's something we're all faced with. It's not attractive."

Unless, of course, you're the treasurer at Middle Tennessee State. The school, plugged in as a replacement on Florida State's schedule for Auburn, earns $175,000 for the game.

And before you start beating on Bowden for scheduling a lightweight, consider that Auburn replaced Florida State on its schedule with Georgia Southern.

At least Middle Tennessee State

"What we hope to do in that game is get a first down. That's our goal."

Boots Donnelly, Middle Tennessee coach comes into the Florida State game with a winning record. The same can not be said, however, for Long Beach State and Northern Illinois. Each has one win for the season and the prospects for getting No. 2 this week are less than scintillating.

Long Beach State goes against Miami in the Orange Bowl, where the Hurricanes have won 41 in a row. Last week, Long Beach challenged Fresno State's 25-game home winning streak and lost 42-14.

Northern Illinois, which goes against Florida in Gainesville, has lost four in a row, the most recent a 22-10 decision to Western Michigan. And that was playing at home.

Now you know why there is no line on the three Florida games.

In other games involving ranked teams, No. 3 Washington is at No. 7 California; No. 4 Michigan plays Indiana; No. 5 Notre Dame visits Air Force; No. 8 Tennessee is at No. 14 Alabama; No. 9 Nebraska hosts Kansas State; and No. 10 Penn State plays Rutgers.

Also, No. 11 North Carolina State goes against Marshall; No. 12 Oklahoma plays No. 22 Colorado; No. 13 Illinois faces No. 15 Iowa; No. 16 Baylor takes on No. 19 Texas A&M; No. 17 Georgia travels to Vanderbilt; No. 18 Ohio State goes against Northwestern; No. 20 Pitt hosts No. 24 Syracuse; and No. 25 Arizona State is at home to Washington State.

Minnesota's Kirby Puckett (right) is congratulated by teammate Kent Hrbek after an HR in Toronto. Puckett finished the ALCS 9-for-21 with two homers, six RBIs and the series MVP award.

As Kirby goes, so go the Twins

Jim Donaghy
Associated Press

MINNEAPOLIS—In the next few days there will be lots of talk about how the teams in the World Series match up. For the Minnesota Twins, all that really matters is how well Kirby Puckett plays.

If Puckett doesn't hit in the Series, Minnesota's chances of winning are greatly reduced.

Take the playoffs. Puckett was 1-for-7 in the first two games against the Toronto Blue Jays and the Twins offense looked dead. He finished 9-for-21 with two homers, six RBIs and the series MVP award.

"Myself, Kent Hrbek and Chili Davis weren't swinging the bat well," Puckett said. "Sooner or later we were going to start swinging well and we did."

Puckett is not one to give up on himself easily.

He doesn't look like a baseball player. He's short and round with a body that resembles a clenched fist. When Puckett builds up speed around the bases, he looks like a bowling ball.

But he's a player, and a great one at that. In eight seasons, Puckett has an average of .320, including a career-high .356 in 1988.

He grew up on Chicago's tough south side and built up leg strength by constantly climbing the stairs to the 14th floor because the elevator didn't work.

Puckett never had the style and grace of Willie Mays or the pure power of Darryl Strawberry.

"All I ever wanted was for people to give me a chance when I was growing up," Puckett said. "I've been playing baseball since I was five years old. I knew I had talent. I just wanted the opportunity to succeed."

For the second time in five seasons, Puckett has that chance in the World Series. In 1987, he hit .357 as the Twins beat the St. Louis Cardinals in seven games.

"I'm so lucky," said Puckett, the youngest of nine children. "I grew up watching a great player like Ernie Banks who never made it to the World Series. And now I'm going to my second. A lot of people never get that opportunity."

Puckett and the rest of his teammates worked out for the third straight day Thursday in the Metrodome.

"I just try to do my best out there," Puckett said. "I figure I'm working only five hours a day, including batting practice. If I can't bust my butt for five hours a day then there's a problem."

His teammates certainly have no problems with his effort.

"I don't know what to say about Kirby except that he's one of the best players in the game, if not the best," first baseman Kent Hrbek said. "He does everything well. It's a joy to go up to the plate after he hits and listen to the catcher talk to himself about how he was able to hit a certain pitch. I've been watching this guy for seven years and he just amazes me."

There were times this season, however, when Puckett was less than amazed. He hit .319 with 15 homers and 89 RBIs.

Volleyball ends stand tonight vs. Penn State

David Taylor
Daily Iowan

The way things have been going at home for the Iowa volleyball team lately, a road trip might be the best idea for the ailing squad.

The Hawkeyes will close out a disastrous homestand tonight against Penn State after losing their last three matches at home. Iowa has lost seven of its last eight matches, dropping its record to 5-14, including a 1-6 conference mark. The latest setback came Wednesday at the hands of Minnesota, who beat the Hawkeyes in three games, leaving Iowa winless in October.

"In my mind we lost from a breakdown in communication, which is absolutely intolerable," said Iowa coach Linda Schoenstedt. "They just let Minnesota dictate the tempo of the match too much."

Penn State will come to town with a 13-2 record overall including a 4-2 Big Ten mark. The Nittany Lions are also ranked 16th in the country, so Iowa will need a far better performance to stay in the game.

"We're anxious to play them," Schoenstedt said. "They have a great ball club and it will be a dogfight, but we are hoping to match up with them pretty well."

After Penn State, Iowa will have one day to catch its breath before heading up to Cedar Falls to play Missouri and Northern Iowa on Sunday.

"UNI has one of the strongest programs in the state," Schoenstedt said. "They have several experienced seniors and it will be a difficult match; Missouri I know nothing about."

"We can compete with these teams, but we are going to have to up our level of play and be more confident than we have these past few matches."

For the Hawkeyes' sake, confidence better get here in a hurry — they don't play at home again until November when the second half of the Big Ten schedule begins.

Magic says Lakers not overconfident

Natasha Arleton
Associated Press

PARIS — After a week of practice in Paris, Magic Johnson and the Los Angeles Lakers are ready to represent the NBA against Europe's best teams in the McDonald's Open beginning today.

The NBA team has won each of the four previous tournaments and Johnson doesn't want the streak to end.

"You always worry a little bit about losing, because we know what it would mean," said Johnson. "Basketball has been improving in Europe every year, the talent is far superior to what it used to be."

The McDonald's Open assembles an NBA team and three of Europe's top pro clubs. This year's field includes Slobodna Dalmacija of Split, Yugoslavia, Joventut Badalona of Spain, and France's CSP Limoges.

The Lakers played the second of the first-round games against Limoges on Friday in the Bercy Sports Palace, after Barcelona faces Split.

The tournament has a combination of NBA and international rules that the Lakers will have to adjust to.

"It's going to be tough, though," Johnson said. "We're not used to the zone and the international rules like the other teams are, but we'll do our best."

"We're bringing showtime to Paris."

Split won the European Championship last April for the third consecutive time and is playing in a third straight McDonald's Open. But the players that led it then are mostly gone, such as Toni Kukoc and center Zoran Savic.

The team that finally made it to France on Wednesday is directly affected by the civil war between the Croats and Serbs. Five of the Split team's players and its coach quit two weeks ago because of the conflict.

The situation in Yugoslavia also worries Vlade Divac, the Lakers' Yugoslavian center.

"I've been speaking with my family and friends both in Europe and America and everyone is worried," Divac said. "Nobody can understand why this is happening."

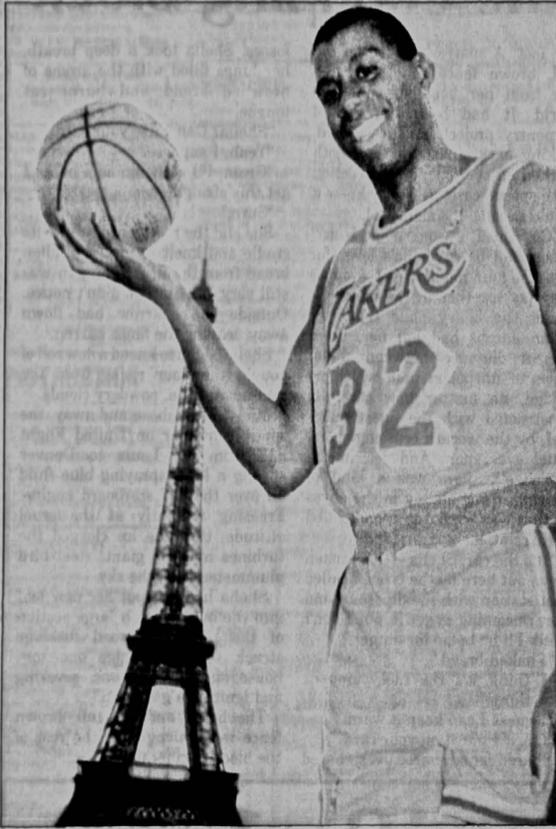

"He fears for his family and his wife's family," Johnson said. "It's tough."

Badalona's roster includes Harold Pressley, a former NBA player.

The CSP Limoges team, making its first appearance in the Open, is led by Stephane Ostrowski, a 6-foot-9 forward in his sixth season.

Former NBA player Kelly Trippucka signed with Limoges this week to bolster its attack. Limoges also has Michael Brooks, who played six years in the NBA.

The first NBA team to win the tournament in 1987 was Milwaukee, on its home court.

Magic Johnson in Paris as the Lakers prepare for the McDonald's Open tonight versus Yugoslavia's Split, whose coach and five team members have quite because of the civil war in their home country.

However, the past four seasons the tournament has taken place in Europe, with the continent's clubs creeping closer to victory over the Americans.

In 1988 in Madrid, the Boston Celtics had to beat a Yugoslav national team that included Divac. A year later, in Rome, the Denver Nuggets won the tournament.

Last year, in Barcelona, the New York Knicks barely won their opening game, needing overtime to be an Italian team.

Mavs: Tarpley had become a distraction

Associated Press

DALLAS — Roy Tarpley was a talented player who the Dallas Mavericks felt could take them to a league championship. But the 7-foot forward "had become a distraction."

Tarpley, 26, who spent most of his five NBA seasons battling drug and alcohol problems, was suspended for life by the league on Wednesday after he refused to take a urine test.

Tarpley, who was to make $3 million this year, forfeits his contract under the anti-drug agreement between the league and the NBA Players Association. He had a three-year, guaranteed contract with Dallas that was to have paid him $8.45 million.

He can reapply for readmission to the league in two years.

"This was probably good for Roy and good for the team," said Rick Sund, Mavericks vice president for basketball operations.

"We would have loved to have Roy, but he became a distraction. It reached the point where if he wasn't going to follow the prescribed treatment, then he needed the third strike. It would have been a trying situation with him on the Mavericks this year," Sund said.

Fans had bombarded sports call-in shows in recent days calling for the Mavericks to get rid of Tarpley, who failed to show up at a practice in Sunday, then made only a brief appearance at a Monday morning practice before leaving abruptly without talking to teammates or coaches.

"It's stupid," Mavericks owner Donald Carter said. "It's stupid that somebody who has that kind of talent would let this happen. ... Maybe his problem is that with drugs, you can't administer logic."

Gary Bettman, counsel for the NBA, said Tarpley refused "repeated attempts" by the league to get him to take a drug test — required under the league's anti-drug policy once he missed his second practice.

"His refusal to take the test speaks for itself," Bettman said. "He knew it was strike three."

Tarpley was informed of the ban in Houston at the John Lucas drug and alcohol rehabilitation center, where he is an outpatient and where he had gone on Tuesday to meet with counselors. He had no immediate comment.

Mavericks general manager Norm Sonju said he asked NBA officials "if they were absolutely certain" that Tarpley understood the consequences of refusing to take the drug test.

"They assured me there was no question," Sonju said.

Tarpley's ban was met with mixed emotions.

Coach Richie Adubato said it is a "minor relief" that Tarpley and his distractions were over.

"The problems with Roy were the most difficult of any I've ever been involved in," Adubato said. "Of course, it's a major problem that a fine individual like Roy has such problems. I believe this team will refocus after a couple of days and do what we have to do."

Mavericks guard Derek Harper said: "Thank goodness it's finally over. I think for the most part we showed concern and we showed sympathy. We tried to help, but he had become a distraction."

Guard Rolando Blackman said it was a shame to see Tarpley toss away $3 million.

"The important thing now is for him to get his life straight," Blackman said. "I was sort of surprised, but we have to put it all behind us now."

The Mavericks' front office will get together in the next few days and make a decision about whether to pursue one or more trades to refashion a team that was built around Tarpley.

IN THE ZONE

Zone: Workshop on the chopping block

Locke Peterseim
Daily Iowan

If I ran the Iowa Writers' Workshop...

Cold Showers at the Rising of Evening

When Shelia heard the news she was baking bread, moving through the kitchen with the kind of sureness and purpose you only find in someone baking bread. The sunlight fell through the yellow-curtained window above the stained porcelain sink, baptizing each tan loaf as it breached the oven door.

Like babies from a 425-degree womb, the bread came forth into Shelia's waiting, oven mitt-clad arms. She cradled the pans tenderly, gently lowering them to the countertop, every one of them the child she could never have. The baking was her redemption and no tears dampened the crusts; her grief had long since congealed into a small ball of tightness near her lower colon.

Now the phone was ringing, its harsh bell shattering the kitchen's, and Shelia's, tranquility. The last pan of bread fell from her heat-resistant hands, clattering to the tile. Emily and Sylvia, her two Persians, moved quickly from under the old oak table, where they'd been viewing the baking ritual, toward the sacrificed loaf.

"Shit," Shelia watched the cats lick the still-hot crust, their small, sandpaper tongues lapping forward only to fall back, blistered and

... Every (loaf was) the child she could never have. The baking was her redemption and no tears dampened the crusts; her grief had long since congealed into a small ball.

curled in pain. "I'm coming, I'm coming."

She tried to grasp the clamorous phone from its wall cradle, only to realize she still wore the oven mitts. Slipping them off under her arms, she picked up the receiver.

"Hello?"
"Hello, Shelia?" Jason's voice sounded distant and cracked.

"Shelia, I have some bad news." Shelia looked out the window as Emily and Sylvia writhed under her feet. A sparrow landed on the tall, brown fence that separated her from her neighbors and the world. It had been Dan's final carpentry project, and it seemed, looking back, that they had both worked on the fence's construction with special care, as if they knew it would become his memorial.

"Go ahead, Jason. What is it?" Jason had been Shelia's lover for the last four months, but even as they lay together in the mornings under the heavy plaid comforter Gram Jacobs had left her, there was a distance between them, miles of unspoken pain which no bridge, no matter how carefully constructed with the finest material, by the world's best engineers, could ever span. And yet, in the gap itself, there was a kind of sharing, Hang-gliding in the abyss — that was what Jason had called their relationship.

"It's the car, Shelia — it's broken down out here by the river. I called that station with the dinosaur, and they're coming to get it, but I don't think I'll be home for dinner."

"I baked bread."
"I think it's the fuel pump or something."

"I guess I can keep it warm."
"OK if I put it on your card?"

Shared cards, shared lives, shared losses. Shelia took a deep breath, her lungs filled with the aroma of browned bread and burnt cat tongue.

"Shelia? Can I use your card?"
"Yeah, I suppose."

"Great, I'll be home as soon as I get this straightened out, OK?"
"Sure."

She slid the receiver back into its cradle and knelt to pick the fallen bread from the floor. The pan was still very hot, but she didn't notice. Outside the sparrow had flown away, leaving the fence barren.

Shelia began to knead a new roll of dough, the flour rising from the counter in little, powdery clouds.

Many miles above and away, the septic container on United Flight 834 from St. Louis to Denver sprung a leak, spraying blue fluid all over the 727 starboard engine. Freezing instantly at the cruel altitude, the blue ice clogged the turbines and the giant, steel bird plummeted from the sky.

Shelia had just put her new loaf into the oven when a large section of the plane's forward fuselage struck the little beige one-story house on the cul-de-sac, severing and igniting a gas main.

The bread and the tall, brown fence were, along with the rest of the block, incinerated.

Werner Herzog's "Herdsmen of the Sun."

Weekend's end? Or only just begun?

Mandy Crane
Daily Iowan

Hank is so busy preparing himself for a midterm — eating doughnuts from Donutland and crying quietly in a corner — that he bequeathed the whole column to me this week. Whee.

Whoa! It's homecoming this weekend so there should be plenty for everyone to do with their parents, in-laws and assorted drop-ins who come to IC and root, root, root for the home team. As a former season ticket holder for the Fighting Illini, however, I feel it is my duty to fill you in on what kind of fans will fill the other side of the stadium.

1. Illini fans are confused about the American Indian exploitation, too, so be prepared for the most politically correct homecoming ever. 2. We like to wear fluorescent orange pants and cowboy hats and whoop a lot, saying clever things like "Oskee-Wow-Wow." 3. We like to win.

So after the Hawkeyes lose, why not take in some of the fine entertainment offerings this weekend?

Campus Theatres drops "Boyz n the Hood" in exchange for "Other People's Money" this weekend. It stars Danny Devito and Gregory Peck, what a killer combination. Campus writer Loren Keller says it's about "a bunch of manipulative financial weasels."

If snapping your fingers and drowning your sorrows is more your style — The Mill Restaurant, 120 S. Burlington St., features Kenny Putnam tonight and Harvest Home Saturday for a "basic kind of folk music." The Sanctuary Restaurant & Pub, 405 S. Gilbert St., hosts local Tex-Mex folk legend Dave Moore. And the Iowa City Yacht Club, 13 S. Linn St., features M.E. and the Guise tonight and Paul Rebek Saturday. Rebek is making a homecoming of sorts, returning to his alma mater while going on a Midwestern tour.

If fine films are your cup of poison, the Bijou's selection is to die for. Today and Sunday, Anne Parillaud stars as a punker put to use by the state — as an assassin — in "La Femme Nikita." That song and dance man Sir Laurence Olivier directs and stars in Shakespeare's "Richard III" today and Saturday. Also today, Buster Keaton's classic silent comedy "Our Hospitality." German film impresario and all-around crack-pot Werner Herzog's latest, "Herdsmen of the Sun," a documentary on the Wodaabe nomadic tribe of the Sahara, plays on Saturday, Sunday and Monday. And Sunday and Monday bring you John Schlesinger's envisionment of Thomas Hardy's "Far from the Madding Crowd" — full of lush, sweeping English countryside and brutish but beautiful limy stars like Terence Stamp and Alan Bates fighting over Julie Christie. Whee, indeed, mate.

Hank and I would like to thank all of our loyal readers for following up on last week's hint for money. NOT! That's why next week will be the NEW and IMPROVED Hank and Mandy Weekend Column. Be prepared. Your weekend may never be the same again.

THEATER

Puccini revisited: 'Butterfly' in town

Robert Fuhrmann
Daily Iowan

If your thirst for sexual intrigue remains unslaked by "Les Liaisons Dangereuses," "M. Butterfly" may be the tall drink of erotic politics for you. The 1988 Tony Award-winning play "M. Butterfly" will come to Hancher Auditorium this weekend for three performances — tonight and Saturday at 8 and Sunday at 3 p.m. "M. Butterfly," the brainchild of Los Angeles playwright David Henry Hwang, ran for 777 performances in New York, becoming Broadway's most successful dramatic event of the 1980s.

The play's title creates a clear connection to the famous Puccini opera "Madame Butterfly." But the bizarre story, as imagined by Hwang, turns the opera on its head. In the Puccini opera, a gullible, submissive Asian woman is seduced, betrayed and eventually destroyed by a Western man. However, in "M. Butterfly," it is the Western man who is deceived and destroyed, both by his lover's intrigue and his presumptions about Chinese culture.

"M. Butterfly" centers around a series of flashbacks from the cell of Rene Gallimard, a French diplomat sent to prison for treason. Most of these flashbacks are set in Beijing against the highly dramatic backdrop of Mao's Cultural Revolution and the Vietnam War.

The impetus for "M. Butterfly" comes from a true story of an international spy scandal. In the spring of 1986, French security agents arrested Bernard Boursicot, a low-level diplomat who had once served in the French Embassy in Beijing. Along with Boursicot, the agents also arrested his mistress of 20 years, Shi Peipu, a soprano with the Beijing Opera. Shi was accused of being a spy for the Communist regime during the American phase of the Vietnam War, and Boursicot was charged as her accomplice.

While the essential plot may seem relatively ordinary, behind the costumes of this masterfully crafted play lies a confrontation between the East and West, the persistence of Western myths about Asia and a tale of extraordinary deception.

Playwright Hwang, a first-generation American, graduated from Stanford and attended the Yale School of Drama. In writing "M. Butterfly," he explains, "I wanted to deconstruct the myth of 'the Oriental'... I am trying to account for the fantasy stereotype Americans and Europeans have of the Orient. The story... gave me the opportunity to look at issues of cultural imperialism, racism and sexism."

In a telephone interview earlier this week, Hwang said, "I suppose one of the things that makes my interpretation of this real-life event particularly different from someone else's is that I see it as an issue of delusion. It was impossible to account for Boursicot/Gallimard's delusions without bringing in the idea of cultural misunderstanding and the desire of the West to see the East in a particular light."

"One of the messages of the play," he continues, "is that when you set out to degrade someone else, you end up degrading yourself. There are a lot of minority groups that claim stereotyping only hurts them. But my play says that when you choose to stereotype, you also hurt yourself. You try to look at reality through a curtain of what you would like it to be, and this prevents you from seeing the truth clearly."

"M. Butterfly" has met with very positive critical response. New York Times critic Frank Rich called it "a brilliant play of ideas... a visionary work that bridges the history and culture of two peoples." Clive Barnes of the New York Post says, "It is not to be missed, and it is a play that once caught will never be forgotten. 'M. Butterfly' sizzles with the immediacy of theater at its most challenging and entertaining."

While on Broadway, the play garnered more than its share of awards. Besides the Best Play Tony Award, "M. Butterfly" was also named best play by both the Drama Desk Awards and the Outer Critics Circle Awards. Hwang received the John Gassner Award for Playwright of a New American Play.

Hancher Director Wallace Chappell will offer pre-performance discussions at 7 p.m. on Friday and Saturday and at 2 p.m. on Sunday. The discussions, held in the Greenroom, are free and open to the public.

Tennessee Ernie Ford dies after long illness

Associated Press

RESTON, Va. — Tennessee Ernie Ford, whose bass voice boomed out on the million-selling record "Sixteen Tons" and on his TV variety show spanning two decades, died yesterday after a long illness. He was 72.

Ford died at 6:15 a.m. at HCA Reston Hospital, where he had been admitted Sept. 28.

"Ms. Ford was at his side, as she has been throughout his illness," said hospital spokeswoman Claudia Smith.

Smith said Ford had suffered from a lengthy liver disease. She would not disclose the nature of the ailment.

Ford became ill at Washington

Dulles International Airport as he was about to fly home to San Francisco following his attendance at a White House dinner.

Ford, known affectionately as "the ol' peapicker" and "ol' Ern," was host of TV shows in the 1950s and 1960s. Ford also recorded more than 80 albums during a singing career of more than 40 years.

READINGS

Charles Fergus gives reading

Charles Fergus will read from his new book, "Shadow Catcher," at Prairie Lights Books tonight.

Hank Olson
Daily Iowan

Even in this great land of ours, history has been altered through flat-out lies or through sins of omission. Nevertheless, writers occasionally attempt to clarify through fiction a past that has already been rendered myth. After eight years of intensive research, author Charles Fergus has done just that.

Fergus will read from his novel, "Shadow Catcher," tonight at Prairie Lights Books, 15 S. Dubuque St., at 8. The reading also will be broadcast live on "Live from Prairie Lights" on WSUI. National Public Radio has recently featured Fergus' novel on "All Things Considered" and it is a Book of the Month selection.

"Shadow Catcher" centers around the 1913 "Rodman Wannamaker Expedition of Citizenship to the North American Indian." The theoretical purpose of the expedition was to preserve through documentation and photography the culture and history of American Indians.

In "Shadow Catcher," photographer Joseph Dixon and Indian agent James McLaughlin lead the expedition, just as they did in real life. In the novel, however, fictional characters join them. Stenographer Ansel Fry accompanies them with a hidden camera and provides an effective foil to Dixon's staged photographs. Dixon's pictures are staged to create his own reality; Fry's candid photos expose the falseness beneath that reality.

In a phone interview earlier this week, Fergus said that he became interested in the Wannamaker expedition when he heard about a proposed memorial for the "vanishing North American Indian." Complete with a museum and a library, the memorial was to be built on the tip of Staten Island and would feature a huge bronze statue of an American Indian. The Wannamaker expedition was to drum up support for the memorial.

According to Fergus, the purpose of the Wannamaker expedition was to encourage the Indians to assimilate themselves into American culture. Dixon's photographs depict American Indian women draped in Old Glory; they offer proof positive of the validity of manifest destiny.

In his novel, Fergus balances this with Fry's candid photos and alternate perspective. In real life, this didn't happen.

said. "I hadn't been playing up to my expectations and capabilities."

Men's tennis
The men's tennis team was in action down in Texas last weekend, playing against some pretty stiff competition.

No. 1 player Klas Bergstrom didn't compete until the qualifying round Tuesday, but freshman Bryan Crowley played well in his absence, winning his first three matches before losing to Carlos Fleming of Kansas 6-3, 6-1.

Bergstrom won both his matches Tuesday, but lost in the next round Wednesday.

Field hockey
The fourth-ranked Iowa field hockey squad shut out both Michigan and Michigan State last weekend.

The Hawkeyes beat an inspired Michigan team 2-0 in overtime Friday and followed that up with a 4-0 blanking of the Spartans on Saturday.

Iowa spent the week preparing for a showdown with No. 1 Old Dominion and No. 13 Temple in Philadelphia this weekend.

Michigan States and it was like a nightmare trying to think and play.

"You can just play ball (at guard). Every year it gets better and better. I can play football, I think, instead of making calls."

But Devlin caught on, and so did the rest of the team, earning a Rose Bowl berth in his sophomore season. Both Fry and O'Hara feel Devlin's unique prowess at such an important position and no-nonsense competitiveness, have made him a team leader in both practice and during games.

"He's very tough, disciplined," Fry said. "If somebody wants to cut up out there in practice, man, he jerks 'em up; he's very business-like." "He wants to win and all the rest of the linemen just rally to Devlin. He was that way as a sophomore, even the seniors rallied to Devlin."

"He's a catalyst, I think. He's fiery in the huddle, he's excitable in the huddle, gets everybody pumped up," O'Hara said. "His strength is that he's a great competitor."

Boy, he'll beat you thinking and he'll beat you physically. I think he's as respected as any player on this team because they all know what he does, they all know how hard he works."

But Devlin casually downplays his role as a leader, citing a common phrase among the offensive line: "We're all a unit."

"We're all leaders and everybody makes their calls. I may make a call and they may see something different and may adjust it. I just have the basic call, they can expand on it." "The coaches put a lot of emphasis on different blocking schemes; we don't have just one thing we do," Devlin added. "And in order to do that they ask me to make the calls. But the tackles make calls, too. It's really a team thing."

Besides, Devlin says, some of those schemes the line is shouting around at the line of scrimmage aren't that far removed from the sandlot.

"Sometimes we just say 'I got him,'" he admits.

This position is one of the Illini's strongest, from senior rush linebacker Mike Poloskey to freshman eagle linebacker Dana Howard.

Poloskey leads the Big Ten in tackles for loss with 12 for minus-49 yards and sacks with 10 for minus-46 yards. Howard, who has 53 tackles this year, earned Big Ten Defensive Player of the Week honors this past week for making 20 solo tackles against the Buckeyes.

"I guaran-dang-tee that Dana Howard is as good as any linebacker in the country," Fry said. "He made 20 tackles last week against Ohio State. And I mean full-fledged tackles, not those paddy-cake tackles. This guy is tough."

Senior linebacker John Derby leads the Iowa defense with 41 tackles.

From the Mouths of Hawkeyes

Fry ambivalent about bowl scouts' visits

"It would make a difference if they had time to take me out to eat," Coach Hayden Fry said about bowl representatives visiting Iowa. "They're nice guys, but a lot of them don't know a volleyball game from football. Then they won't come to see you until you have a loss and they say, 'Now you're not going to the Rose Bowl, so we're here to see you.' Talk about a left-handed compliment."

Hawkeye spirit

Job perk

Fry on the reporters at his weekly press conference Tuesday getting to decide whether to eat lunch in the Indoor Practice Facility or outside: "That's what I call supreme hospitality. The free loaders not only get to eat the food, but they get to choose where they can eat it. I would if I had time for them to take me out to dinner."

Different seasons

Fry, comparing this year's game against Illinois to the contest last year: "New party, new dancing partner."

Famous fullback?

The Iowa skipper mixing up the name of fullback Cliff King with former movie star Montgomery Clift: "Cliff King? Cliff Montgomery? He's no movie star, so it must be Cliff King. The movie star is Montgomery Clift. You can tell I never get to the movies."

Just another game

Baxley, saying that the game with Illinois this weekend is not a big deal to him, even though he is from Oswego, Ill.: "Not in my mind, (it's no big deal); in my father's mind it is. To me it's another Big Ten football game, they're all big games, you've got to prepare for each one."

Easier task

Fry on the difference between preparing for Wisconsin last week and for Illinois this week: "I don't have any ex-coaches on the Illinois staff."

The real thing

Fry discussing Illinois freshman linebacker Dana Howard: "I guarantee that he is as good as any linebacker in the country. He made 20 tackles last week against Ohio State. And I mean full-fledged tackles, not those paddy-cake tackles. This guy is tough."

Not too bad

The Iowa coach when asked how good the Hawkeyes are this season: "We're good enough to win, we're 4-and-1. I know we've lost one time to Michigan, and Michigan pretty well put it on Notre Dame. And their only loss is to the No. 1 team in the nation. We have a very fine football team."

Almost good enough

Fry about Wisconsin during Iowa's 10-6 win in Madison last weekend: "Offensively, they shot themselves in the foot. If their quarterback had passed better, we would have had more interceptions."

Top quality

Fry on Illinois quarterback Jason Verduzco: "Verduzco's a real challenge, to say the least. He's done extremely well against everyone he's played since he became the starting quarterback there. He reminds me so much of Doug Flutie, he makes the big play, he's a little guy, he's a fireball, he's tough as nails, he's very intelligent. He's the kind of kid you like to have as your own son; he's pure class."

It's too new, even to Iowa City, for very many people to have tried R.I.P., but those who have come away astonished that so much fun can be packed into so small a box. Although simple in concept, I believe R.I.P. to be the most intellectually challenging and satisfying trivia game yet devised.

Championship title the following year. In all, she has won over 1,000 trophies. Anderson insists that there are many other strong factors currently in her life which she says press her forward and give her inspiration.

"My family and my Lord are very important parts of my life," Anderson said. "My mom is where I get my strength from, my dad gives me my modesty and faith, and my brother Brian, probably my biggest influence growing up, knows how to keep me laughing.

Like many athletes, Anderson was "recruited" by numerous schools, like Hawaii, Michigan State, SMU, Boston College and Syracuse, but the theatre minor decided upon Iowa.

"The Iowa Athletic Department contacted me when I was still a junior in high school to be Iowa's 'Golden Girl,'" Anderson said. "When I got here, Jayna Sanchez, the twirler at the time, was only a junior so we shared time on the field and I became the 'Iowa Girl' until she graduated."

Because of past interests in sports, Anderson decided to obtain a B.S. degree in fitness/wellness. But, according to the 5-foot-2, 104-pound majorette, that wasn't the only reason.

"Just being involved in sports I was always aware of having to stay in shape and keep up the optimal appearance," Anderson said. "And then, with my mom being diagnosed with a chronic illness (lupus) three years ago, it just made me stop and think about my own self and my own health and my diet.

"About four years ago ... my percent of body fat was extremely high, and I was about 30 pounds heavier. Then, after I became interested in fitness and wellness, I started watching the foods I ate and exercised regularly."

With all of her accolades, Anderson said that performing before crowds is what makes all of the hard work, money and time she has spent over the years worth it.

"When you're in front of that many people it's just a wonderful opportunity to be able to give back to what twirling has given to me," Anderson said. "And to have a little girl or little guy come up to me afterwards and their eyes are really big and excited about what I can do, or if I can make somebody smile or say 'wow' then that makes my day."

gel as a team," Lampkin said. "That's why a lot of people see us as a family because we do have fun with each other and because of the understanding that this is a game."

In life or in football, Lampkin wouldn't have it any other way.

"Even though its a relaxed atmosphere we know there is a job that needs to be done," he said. "It's just like any other profession. Things that you don't enjoy you tend not to have such a positive outlook which results in a negative output. "We have that positive outlook on what's happening," Lampkin

"Most people underestimate me because of my height ... and that's fine. I just try to be a combination of both a slasher and a power type. Whatever it takes."

said, "and we tend to enjoy what we're doing now," he said. "I know it which makes us want to do it more."

When the cold Iowa weather makes it so most scooters are spinning their wheels, this "Scooter" will be running by defenders on the Rose Bowl quest.

"Iowa is a cold state, but I think a lot of guys are acclimated to it shouldn't bother us at all because we're running the majority of the time." If it takes wearing shorts in thirty-below wind chill to get the Hawkeyes to Pasadena, Marvin "Scooter" "Bull" "Stump" Lampkin is the man to call on. He will do whatever it takes.

Hawkeye Profile: John Hartlieb

Young DE not pressured by family name

Michael Watkins
Iowa

Playing football in the Big Ten, with its longstanding winning tradition and perennial powerhouses, poses quite a challenge to most redshirt freshmen trying to prove themselves.

Redshirt freshman John Hartlieb brings down Hawaii slotback Jeff Sydnor (26) during the Hawkeyes' 53-10 win over the Rainbows in the 1991 season-opener Sept. 7 at Kinnick Stadium. (Al Goldis/Daily Iowan)

But when one of those neophytes in cleats comes from a long line of family football success within the Big Ten, the potential for added pressure to fill big shoes can be much greater.

That's not been the case, however, for Iowa defensive end John Hartlieb.

With older brothers Chuck, Iowa's two-time all-Big Ten selection at quarterback; Jim, the current Hawkeye backup QB to Matt Rodgers; and Andy, a former linebacker at Wisconsin, John Hartlieb is the newest addition to the "Hartlieb's Who's Who" in Big Ten football.

But he wouldn't have it any other way.

"I'm very proud of what my brothers have accomplished," said the 6-2, 230-pounder from Woodstock, Ill. "And I wouldn't want to take anything away from what they've accomplished in their football careers. But I can only be as good as I am capable of being."

"Sure there's always pressure, but pressure is only what you make it out to be. I think everyone puts pressure on themselves every day just to be the best that they can. There comes a time when you have to use that pressure to motivate yourself — but everyone has his limits."

Iowa coach Hayden Fry also sees Hartlieb's situation as one that can only be beneficial.

"I think he relishes that (pressure)," said Fry, who has coached the three brothers at Iowa. "They're just such a close family, and they all get along extremely well. In fact, when we have a scrimmage, we don't want John to have a chance to hit Jimmy because we're afraid he might hurt major in.

"I also decided upon it because of the great football tradition. The Hawkeyes have gone to a bowl game nine years in a row, and they really care about you as a whole person, both academically and football. Also, just the whole family atmosphere within the 'football family.'"

Hartlieb's excellence in the classroom also came to life on the gridiron in high school, as Hartlieb, rushing for a team-high 1,386 yards (11 yards per carry) while recording 117 tackles his senior season, led his 14-0 Marian Central team on both sides of the football.

That versatility on both sides of the line of scrimmage paid off for the prep linebacker as he made the transition to defensive end in only his second week as a Hawkeye.

Hartlieb attributes his effective play on the defensive line to his experience at linebacker, coupled with his time served in the offensive backfield.

"As a former offensive player, you know how they're (offensive linemen and blocking backs) going to try to block you," said the two-time state mention player. "And you also have a better understanding of the offensive scheme too, like individual blocks from running backs, stuff like that. But there's always unexpected surprises."

to football continued beyond his high school years, and he soon found himself following in his older brothers' footsteps across the state line to play with the Hawkeyes.

Coming to Iowa, however, held much more for Hartlieb than just football. For him, Iowa contained the "total package" of what he wanted in a school.

"I came (to Iowa) because I thought it was the best school for me," said the business major who finished high school with a 3.5 grade point average. "I looked at a lot of schools, and academically, I liked Iowa because it's a very fine, prestigious institution, as far as Big Ten schools go — I mean you really can't go wrong in the Big Ten. But I thought that Iowa had a great business school, and that's what I want to

Iowa Men's Basketball

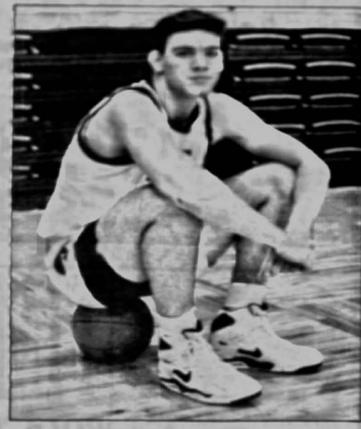

Davis optimistic about new season

Iowa Sports Information

Can Iowa's basketball team make as much progress next season as it did last? That's a question Coach Tom Davis might ask as he looks over a roster that has changed little in a year's time.

All the players return from a season that saw the Hawkeyes win 21 games, finish in the Big Ten's first division and advance to the second round of the NCAA tournament, where they were eliminated by eventual champion Duke. Those were surprising achievements for a team that was pegged a consensus No. 9 in the Big Ten by pre-season publications.

With its entire roster returning, plus the addition of two key players who were medical redshirts and a good recruit, it seems reasonable to assume Iowa will be a better team in 1991-92. How much better is the question, but if the Hawkeyes made the same progress

The player who made the greatest impact in season was center Acie Earl, who led the team in scoring (16.3 ppg) and rebounding (6.7 rpg), while setting a school record and equalling a Big Ten record for blocked shots. Those achievements earned him second-team all-conference honors.

Swingman James Moses and guard Val Barnes got all-Big Ten mention. Moses heated up in the final nine games to average 17.5 points and finished the season at 12.0. In his first year out of junior college, Barnes was Iowa's third double-digit scorer at 11.5.

Seven Hawkeyes averaged between four and eight points in the liberal substitution system employed by Davis. They are front-liners Rodell Davis, Chris Street, Jay Webb and James Winters and guards Troy Skinner, Kevin Smith and Paul Lusk.

Lusk (fractured tibia and fibula) and forward Wade Lookingbill (cracked vertebrae) had their seasons end early because of injuries. Lookingbill started 18 games as a sophomore in 1989-90. Lusk broke his leg just after he had moved into the starting lineup as a freshman.

The other members of the squad are senior Brig Tubbs; sophomore Jim Bartels, who was bothered by injuries last season; and Phil Chime, who red-shirted last year. The only new player is Russ Millard, a 6-foot-8 forward from Cedar Rapids who Davis thinks could have an impact as a true freshman.

Skinner, Barnes and Moses established themselves as 3-point shooters, while Smith also had decent numbers as a true freshman. Street came on strong as a rebounder after he moved into the starting lineup.

Led by Smith and Barnes, Iowa topped the Big Ten in steals. But the Hawkeyes need to cut down on their own turnovers and improve their shooting at the free-throw line.

Hawkeye Profile: Marvin Lampkin

Results, not name, what matters to RB

James Arnold
D'Iowan

No one will ever call Marvin "Scooter" "Bull" "Stump" Lampkin the man with no name. But whichever nickname is being used, Lampkin is just making sure that Hayden Fry knows to call on the speedy running back when the Hawkeyes need to run.

"Whatever it takes" is Lampkin's motto this season, and he is doing it on every play.

"I remember one play he went up the middle and two linebackers came up and hit him and he pushed them both back," fellow running back Mike Saunders said. "I remember another play, he shook one guy, took two steps and ran another guy over."

Lampkin said it doesn't matter what it takes to get an extra yard. He's up for the challenge.

"If it takes running over a guy, if it takes giving him a move," he said. "Whatever it takes to get the job done."

The 5-foot-9 inch, 195-pound junior from East St. Louis, Ill., is out temporarily with an ankle injury, but his theory hasn't changed. He will do anything to help get the Hawkeyes into the Rose Bowl and the injury won't stop him from that goal.

This season, prior to the injury, he teamed up with Saunders to make up Iowa's second edition of a running tandem.

Last year, seniors Nick Bell and Tony Stewart posed different problems for defenses. Stewart was a slashing type of back, while Bell could ring the defender's bell then blow by them. Lampkin said he can be anything to the team, except bigger.

"Most people underestimate me because of my height ... and that's fine," Lampkin said. "I've been a running back most of my career, and I've always had that combination of being able to do both. I just try to be a combination of both a slasher and a power type. I try to combine both of those things. Whatever it takes."

He has pounded and slashed for 200 yards in four games, missing the Wisconsin contest due to the injury. He has yet to reach the end zone for the Hawkeyes, but has one more year of eligibility after this season. Rushing into a game before he is ready, he said, could be detrimental to his future.

"I realize that I do want my legs after football over," he said. "I look at the long run. I am trying to get ready for other games down the road."

Lampkin said he has been swamped with nicknames throughout his career. "Scooter" he said came from Fry after the coach watched him running.

"When I run, I guess my feet are moving real quick and in everything I do I have to be real quick," he said. "I've actually grown to like it."

Lampkin said the nickname "Bull" came from Iowa assistant strength and conditioning coach Paul Longo.

because of my height, they haven't been too negative at all," he said.

He said it took some time to get used to his best-known nickname, but he has grown to like it.

"When you think of Scooter you think of a little kid," he said. "Actually its kind of catchy."

Scooter made a name for himself before choosing Iowa when he was named Super Prep Magazine first team all-American, Bally and USA Today honorable mention all-American and the St. Louis Post-Dispatch Player of the Year.

A good name is a plus for getting recognition, but Lampkin knows that football might not be his future. One of the reasons he chose Iowa, he said, was the lack of a 'win at all costs' attitude from the coaches.

Along with that, Lampkin said he became a Hawkeye because he liked the family environment.

"It's a very relaxed atmosphere. We have fun, and I think that helps us to Saunders said the name fits because Lampkin runs hard and gets good leverage due to his height.

"Stump" might be going a little too far though for Lampkin.

"Other than calling me 'Stump'

Women's cross country 2nd at Indiana

David Taylor
Daily Iowan

The Iowa women's cross country team overcame a slow start to finish second at the Indiana Invitational last weekend in Bloomington. Iowa's Jennifer Brower finished sixth in the 5K course with a time of 17:36, while Tina Stec, Erin Boland, Jennifer Johnson and Christa Holmes placed 17th, 22nd, 23rd and 25th respectively.

"Our athletes made up a lot of ground as the race went on," said Iowa coach Jerry Hassard. "They were able to make up a lot of ground because people became fatigued by going out too fast. I was impressed with the patience our team exhibited."

Volleyball
The Iowa volleyball team closed a disappointing weekend with home losses to Purdue and Illinois, dropping their Big Ten record to 1-5 for the year.

Iowa was unable to play consistently against Purdue, but played Illinois tough before falling in three games.

"I'm just extremely frustrated and disappointed," Iowa coach Linda Schoenstedt said. "I realize that this is a reflection of inexperience, but I'm at a loss to explain why they don't always play to their abilities."

Iowa often used four freshman against the Illini, playing against much more experienced players.

Iowa shot a 1005 tournament total, while winner Minnesota shot a combined 945. High winds hampered the Iowa on Sunday, but Coach Diane Thomason said that she was disappointed nonetheless.

"It was a tough day and I wasn't really pleased with our performance because I know we can do better," said Thomason. "This is all just a learning experience right now; hopefully the more you play, the more you learn."

Stacy Boville shot 247 for Iowa, followed by Mary Jo Rollins with a 249.

Women's tennis
The Hawkeye Invitational had plenty of action for the Iowa women's tennis team last weekend. Senior Lori Hash won the singles title against teammate Andrea Calvert 6-3, 6-2, as she rediscovered the intensity and execution that paced her in the No. 1 singles spot last year.

Hawkeye Profile: Mike Devlin

Junior acts as QB for offensive line

John Shipley
Daily Iowan

Here's what the critics are saying about Iowa junior Mike Devlin, starting at center Saturday in an exclusive engagement with the Illinois Fighting Illini at Kinnick Stadium:

Iowa coach Hayden Fry: "I'll put it this way: I don't know that there's a better center in college football than Mike Devlin."

Offensive line coach John O'Hara: "I have never coached a center that's as capable and as aware as Mike Devlin."

Senior right guard Dave Turner: "Devlin's just so knowledgeable about defenses and schemes; he really helps you at the line of scrimmage."

These aren't guys just looking to say something nice about one of their kids, or a good buddy, these are guys pursuing results — as wins and Big Ten titles and Rose Bowl appearances. Iowa went the Rose Bowl last year and according to these men, Mike Devlin was a more integral part of that achievement than the average fan might think.

"I really wish people would understand that for every play that we run, Mike Devlin has to make at least three or four calls on the line of scrimmage," O'Hara, in his second year at Iowa, said. "He makes that call. If we change it, or audibilize it, he has to do it again."

"Quarterbacks have tremendous pressure, because of reads and audibles and performance — the same thing happens at the center spot for us. He has to do all the same things."

"Mentally, he has to prepare just like (quarterback) Matt Rodgers," Fry said. "He has to study all the different stunts, alignments, blocking schemes and communicate that to all the rest of the players.

"Then he has to snap the ball up to the quarterback so we don't fumble it, and then execute a hit-block just like all the rest of the linemen. And he does that in superb fashion game after game."

The most visible indication of his importance to the Iowa game plan is when Devlin stands up and confers with Rodgers before he gets into his center stance. Both Devlin and Fry, however, are somewhat reluctant to divulge exactly what's going on during these brief conversations.

"I don't want to give away our trade secrets but I'll say this: The communication is very, very important between Devlin and Matt," Fry admits.

Devlin will go on at a little more length than his coach, but he's even more cryptic about what he and Rodgers are doing at the line of scrimmage.

"There are just certain things we do, sometimes I may see it, just to help him because he has other things on his mind," Devlin, a 6-foot-3, 275-pounder from Marlton, N.J., said. "I did it some last year, but I don't think I stood up. It's been loud every place we've played, even Kinnick. Everybody has to hear so I think I'm a little bit more conscious of letting everybody know. If Rodgers knows it doesn't matter if the other guys don't know."

Never has Devlin's ability to think quickly at the line and execute come in more handy than last weekend in Wisconsin, where Iowa escaped with a 10-6 win against a team whose coaching staff basically apprenticed at Iowa. Badger coach Barry Alvarez and defensive coordinator Dan McCarney spent eight and 13 years, respectively, mastering Iowa's attack before moving on to Wisconsin.

Said Fry, "You just will never know the advantage those guys had. They had our quarterback confused, they had our receivers confused, they had our offensive line schemes confused."

Devlin was given the offense's Mr. Hustle Award for his quick-thinking performance last week, and O'Hara couldn't agree more with the choice.

"At Wisconsin they changed defenses on us every down, they wouldn't give us the same front. And that was smart on their part," he said. "So Mike not only has to do his assignment, he has to make sure every call is right across the front — and then block someone." For the past two years, since Alvarez left Notre Dame to take the Wisconsin job, people have been wondering how much his Badger teams would know about the Hawkeyes' game plan. Last weekend it was evident just how well Wisconsin had prepared for Iowa, and Devlin was responsible for breaking that spell.

"I think they knew a lot," Devlin laughed. "I talk about playing football and thinking — I had to think a lot about what to call. A lot of times we were just making up stuff across the front trying to block it because they were trying such crazy stuff."

Being able to think and play football at the same time isn't something that came quickly to Devlin, who was put at center after his redshirt year. He had never played the position before and Iowa may have suffered for it, finishing with a losing record and missing a bowl berth for the first time in eight years.

"My first year it was terrible. I hadn't played center at all," Devlin, a guard during high school, said. "My redshirt freshman year they put me in there, and I was going up against the Michigans and the Illinoises and the

Game Preview: Iowa vs. Illinois

Hawks plan balanced attack on Illini.

Erica Weiland
Davenport

Even with a high-powered offense, Houston managed to score just 10 points in its loss to Illinois Sept. 14. And even with a formidable running attack, Ohio State scored just seven points to the Illini's 10 last weekend.

So what's the plan for Hayden Fry, whose Iowa team (4-1 overall, 1-1 in the Big Ten) will face Illinois (4-1, 2-0) Saturday at 2:30 p.m. in Kinnick Stadium?

"Without giving out the game plan, we'll just try to be balanced," Fry said. "Houston was 90-95 percent pass. Ohio State was 90-95 percent run. We'll try to be more 50-50 between the run and the pass to keep them off balance ... You have to be balanced in the Big Ten. That's what it takes to win in this league."

"Iowa ... has done an excellent job of blending the run and the passing of Matt Rodgers to take some load off the running game and allow it to be balanced with the passing game," Illinois coach John Mackovic said. "There's no doubt that they have the most balanced attack that we will see through most of the season."

Quarterback
Even at just 5-foot-9, 191 pounds, Jason Verduzco is one of the biggest reasons for the Illini's offensive success. The junior from Antioch, Calif., leads the Big Ten and is in the top 10 nationally with an average of 308.4 yards per game in total offense.

Last year against the Hawkeyes, Verduzco completed 32 of 51 passes for 358 yards and four touchdowns.

"Verduzco's a real challenge, to say the least," Fry said. "He's done extremely well against everyone he's played since he became the starting quarterback there. He reminds me so much of Doug Flutie — he makes the big play, he's a little guy, he's a fireball, he's tough as nails, he's very intelligent."

But Iowa's Rodgers is no slouch either. The senior from Walpole, Mass., is third in the league in total offense with a 223.8 average. He has racked up 1,016 yards in the air with eight touchdowns.

Running backs
In the offensive backfield, the Illini feature fullback Kameno Bell, who leads the conference in receptions per game (6.2). He is fourth in the Big Ten in rushing with 362 yards and six touchdowns on 67 carries.

The Iowa backfield is a little more uncertain as running back Marvin Lampkin is expected to miss the game because of an ankle injury. Tailback Mike Saunders is also recovering from an injury (ribs) but will play Saturday.

With Lampkin out, fullback Lew Montgomery will back Saunders up at running back, while Paul Kujawa will start at fullback. Sophomore Cliff King is listed at second team fullback.

"You'll see Montgomery at fullback and running back, both positions," Fry said. "Lampkin will be out certainly this week but there is an outside chance that he'll back next week. Saunders has the type of injury that's going to take complete rest; it's like a hamstring only it's between his rib cages, so every time he laughs or coughs it hurts. He will play, knowing Mike."

Receivers
Other than Bell, Illinois has two receivers in the top 10 in the league: senior Elbert Turner (4.4 receptions per game) and junior John Wright (3.6). Senior flanker Gus Palma is another key member of the receiving corp with 241 yards on 10 receptions this season.

"Illinois has two guys that are just about as fast as (Michigan's) Desmond Howard," Fry said. "Both Turner and Palma are sprinters. They can fly. Then they have that great ball-control player that can beat you deep. That's Wright. He's a tremendous football player."

The Hawkeyes are led by junior Danan Hughes, who has 15 receptions for 334 yards and four touchdowns.

Hawkeye Profile: Gayl Anderson

'Golden Girl' different off the field

Michael Watkins
D. Swan

Every week during pregame and half-time rituals at Kinnick Stadium or whatever arena she is performing in, Iowa "Golden Girl" Gayl Anderson confidently prances onto the field for another rousing routine of aerial flips and jumps beneath a suspended baton.

But according to the two-time national twirling champion, off of the field and out of the spotlight, she's just as ordinary as other students at Iowa.

"On the field, I can be anybody I want to be," said the native of New Albany, Ind. "I put on the costume, and I become an actress with the freedom and imagination to be whatever I choose. I'm very extroverted when I'm on the field, and I have a real hard core motivational drive.

"But when I'm not on the field, I'm very reserved, very introverted, very independent, very focused and disciplined. I like to spend a lot of time by myself."

Because of this Jekyll and Hyde personality on and off of the field, Anderson, who describes herself as "very shy," says sometimes she thinks that people don't fully understand who she really is.

"I figure if they see me perform and they see the personality and the character that I have on the field, they expect me to be the same way off of the field," the former Miss Teenage Majorette of America said. "But since I am so focused and independent, I tend to sit in the corner of the classroom and keep to myself. People seem to misinterpret that. They often think, 'What's wrong?' and 'Why is she doing that?'"

Anderson, who took tap, jazz and ballet lessons as well as numerous acting classes since the age of six, said that initially what would become her lifelong passion started out as kind of a whim.

"I started baton twirling from a local teacher when I was six, so I've been in it for 16 years," said the Iowa senior. "I took lessons for five years just as something to be involved in. It was different and a real challenge for me.

"After the fifth year, I won my first state title, and then I switched to a national coach (Candy Kimball) who would fly in three times a year from Hawaii. I think the desire to become a national champion was what kept me going. And then once I won it for the first time (1985), I wanted to win it again."

At age 14, Anderson served as a United States Ambassador to South America for the National Baton Twirling Association/International, and in 1984 followed up a victory in her home state competition with the Junior Midwest Regional Championship and Junior International/World Twirling Championship.

She added the Junior American League National Twirling Championship trophy to the family mantle in 1985 and the Senior International/World Twirling

Big Ten

The Associated Press
CHICAGO — The rise of Illinois and the fall of Michigan State have been the big surprises this season for Big Ten football coaches.

"Illinois is doing it in a transition period and you have to be impressed," Minnesota's John Gutekunst said Tuesday in the league's weekly teleconference of coaches.

Illinois lost nine defensive starters, including Moe Gardner, Mel Agee and Darick Brownlow, from a team that shared the Big Ten title last season. But the Illini, following last week's 10-7 victory over Ohio State, are tied for the Big Ten lead with a 2-0 record and are 4-1 overall.

Michigan State, ranked among the top 25 in the preseason, is 0-5 with unexpected losses to Central Michigan and Rutgers.

Except for a dropped pass in the end zone in the closing seconds of a 23-19 loss to Missouri, 13th-ranked Illinois could be undefeated.

"Obviously, Illinois has done a lot more than anyone expected," said Michigan's Gary Moeller. "It's a very impressive team. Beating Ohio State puts them in the thick of things. They should constantly improve."

Illinois, along with fourth-ranked Michigan and unranked
