Assistance fund for victims created

A general assistance fund for Miya Rodolpho-Sioson and Linhua Shan's widow have been set up through Iowa State Bank & Trust Company.

Persons wishing to offer financial support should address donations to the bank at P.O. Box 1700, Iowa City, IA 52244.

Members of T. Anne Cleary's family have established the Dr. T. Anne Cleary Psychology Scholarship for international students in her memory.

Contributions to the Cleary fund and in memory of any of the victims may be made to the UI Foundation. The use of those funds will be related to the university's mission and will be determined by family members at a later time.

Five U.S. presidents open Reagan library

SIMI VALLEY, Calif. (AP) — Ronald Reagan opened his presidential library Monday and invited the world to "come and learn from it." He was joined by President Bush and their three predecessors in the first gathering ever of five U.S. chief executives.

Eleven years to the day since he was elected president, the 80-year-old Reagan joined Bush, Jimmy Carter, Gerald Ford and Richard Nixon at the hilltop library.

Ukraine joins new Soviet economic union

MOSCOW (AP) — The resource-rich Ukraine reversed its go-it-alone strategy Monday and agreed to join a new economic union that Mikhail Gorbachev has hoped would replace the old centrally run system.

The announcement was a breakthrough in the Soviet president's efforts to bring all 12 remaining republics that belonged to the Soviet Union into the new economic union.

The participation of the Ukraine, the Soviet Union's second-most populous republic and a major food producer, had been seen as vital to the success of any attempt at economic cooperation.

Political violence flares in Nicaragua

NANDAIME, Nicaragua (AP) — President Violeta Chamorro told a packed church to pray for reconciliation Monday after a resurgence of political violence that coincided with a power struggle between her government and the Sandinistas.

At least one person was killed and nine were wounded in weekend violence. The house of Vice President Virgilio Godoy was the target of gunfire for the second time in five weeks, but no one was hurt.

Many see the attacks as part of a campaign to frighten the government into backing off a law that would force the return of millions of dollars in state property that the Sandinistas awarded themselves after losing the elections.

Rat bite cuts off communications

DHAKA, Bangladesh (AP) — A rat sneaked into a microwave telecommunications center and bit a telephone cable, cutting off eight northern districts from Dhaka for 19 hours, a newspaper reported Monday.

The rat was found dead on the floor of the Dinajpur microwave center, 170 miles north of Dhaka, the Bengali-language daily Khabar said.

Local community grieves together

Loren Keller
Daily Iowan

In the wake of Friday's tragedy, over 200 people gathered in the Union's Main Ballroom Monday morning, where UI officials emphasized that a large number of counseling services are available to people throughout the UI and the Iowa City community.

"This has been a week of deep and terrible sadness at the University of Iowa," said UI President Hunter Rawlings before encouraging questions and comments from the crowd. "The injuries we have suffered are devastating. These are all of our people — every one of them — and there is no way to measure such a loss."

Gerald Stone, director of the UI Counseling Service, said, "I've been asked by my colleagues if Iowa will be able to recover from this tragedy. There is no doubt in my mind — given the resources that we have within the university and community — that, yes, we will."

The UI has received an outpouring of offers from the Iowa City mental health community as well as from national organizations, said Vice President for Academic Affairs Peter Nathan.

Over 20 community individuals, including mental health practitioners, psychologists, social workers and religious leaders, were introduced as a sample of the human resources available for counseling services.

Help is available through the faculty and staff of the UI clinical psychology program, the UI Counseling Service and the Office of International Education and Services.

"We're all in this together for as long as it takes," said Nathan, who is also a psychologist.

Reactions of anger, sorrow and guilt are normal and are experienced by nearly everyone after tragedies such as Friday's occur, Nathan added.

Nathan also said that sleeping and eating problems are normal and predictable consequences of a tragedy of Friday's dimension.

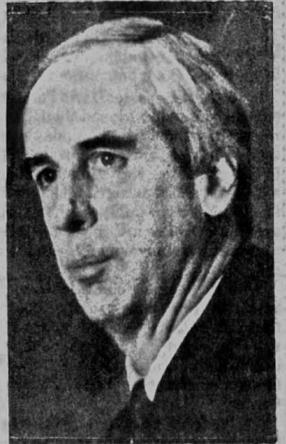

The UI physics and astronomy department is currently working on plans for memorial services for the professors who were killed. An acting chairperson will be appointed today to serve the department for the rest of the year, said Dean of the College of Liberal Arts Gerhard Loewenberg.

The UI will be providing funeral services for families of the victims who need assistance. A fund has been established through the Iowa State Bank & Trust Company to assist the widow of Linhua Shan, and there has also been an account set up for T. Anne Cleary.

A universitywide memorial service will be held Thursday, Nov. 7, at 7 p.m. in Carver-Hawkeye Arena. Rawlings encouraged everyone present to attend, as well as other friends and colleagues.

In another memorial, the U.S. House of Representatives observed a moment of silence Monday morning in honor of the shooting victims at the request of Congressman Dave Nagel, D-Iowa.

Israel, Syria plan future talks despite differences

Ruth Sinai
Associated Press

MADRID, Spain — Arabs and Israelis went home Monday with mixed feelings of frustration and anticipation after an intense foray into the realm of peace. Israel and Syria were mired in recriminations but promised to meet again.

Few concrete achievements resulted from last week's three-day Middle East conference and the three sets of direct Israeli-Arab talks that ended early Monday with a bitter Israeli-Syrian session.

But the talks smashed a 43-year taboo on direct Israeli-Arab talks, setting in motion a process of face-to-face negotiations to resolve one of the most intractable regional conflicts in the world.

The United States and the Soviet Union sponsored the talks, and President Bush's assessment was "we have a long way to go and interruptions will probably occur, but hopes are bright."

The brightest are for negotiations between Israel and the 1.7 million Palestinians living under its military rule in the West Bank and Gaza Strip. The dimmest are for a thaw between Israel and Syria, the region's strongest military powers

CITY COUNCIL

Candidates happy with campaigns

Eric Detwiler
Daily Iowan

On the eve of the Nov. 5 Iowa City City Council election, the seven candidates running for the four spots on the council were all confident about their chances.

Newcomers John Crabtree and Paul Egli, along with incumbent candidates Karen Kubby and William Ambrisco, are battling for the council's two at-large seats. Incumbent Susan Horowitz and challenger Jim St. John are competing for the District A seat, while incumbent Randy Larson is running unopposed for the District C seat.

Many of the highlights of the campaign have come from the battle for the District A seat between Horowitz and St. John, as the two candidates have traded charges and countercharges.

"I ran an inclusive campaign," St. John said. "My opponent has mentioned instituting user fees for the public library, and she's tried to distance herself from that. On recycling she was pointed out as a major foot-dragger so I've got all the good reasons to run."

St. John has also been on the offensive about the Walnut Ridge development that Horowitz supported, saying that the development benefited an affluent few at the expense of everyone else in Iowa City. Horowitz, in response, has dismissed the accusations as a "misinformation campaign."

"I've already commented on some of the misinformation in the campaign," Horowitz said. "I feel that when you don't put out the facts, it hurts the citizens more than it does the candidates."

Horowitz added that the Walnut Ridge expansion was only a $1.3 million portion of the $39 million that was spent on sewer and water upkeep that year.

In contrast, the race for the at-large seats on the City Council, according to candidates and observers, has been more cordial.

"Everything we've wanted to do in the campaign, we've done," Ambrisco said. "I feel confident and I feel good about the campaign. When I go into something, I don't go into it halfway, and I expect to win."

Ambrisco added that all the candi-

SHOOTINGS

Ambiguity of news caused apprehension

Brad Hahn
Daily Iowan

The vagueness of initial media reports on Friday's shootings caused thousands of concerned friends and relatives to call the UI, filling telephone circuits.

Helen Zeilmann of Naperville, Ill., whose daughter attends the UI, said the use of the word "random" in the initial reports of the shootings worried her.

"The first thing I heard was there was a shooting on the University of Iowa campus, and there were injuries and some fatalities," she said. "Five minutes later they said they still didn't know much, but the shootings were in the center of campus and they were random."

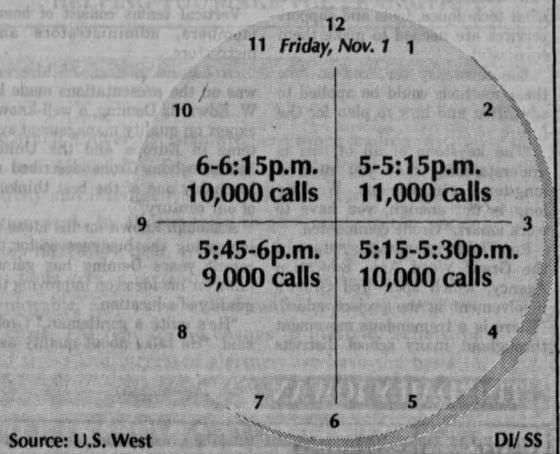

According to Lynn Gibble, spokeswoman for U.S. West Communications in Iowa, in a usual 15-minute span 3,000 to 4,000 calls come into Iowa City.

On the date of the shootings, 11,000 calls came in between 5 and 5:15 p.m. The number decreased slightly for each 15-minute period after that. However, numbers remained above average for all of the early evening.

According to Paula Bontrager of the UI Office of Telecommunications, there was such heavy phone traffic that the U.S. West circuits which feed into the UI were full, and some calls couldn't get through immediately.

Jo Van Nyhuis of Sioux City, Iowa, also has a daughter at the UI and said she first heard about the shootings when a friend called.

"I received a call from a friend who heard there were shootings, and it sounded like it was random. I heard there were several people killed, and I thought somebody just went out shooting," she said.

The initial reports from both The Associated Press and Campus News Service did not use the word "random," but they didn't provide many specifics either.

AP reported that a gunman "opened fire at two locations on the UI campus Friday afternoon, killing one person and injuring others and then fatally shot himself."

The first release from Campus News Service said "an undetermined number of individuals were apparently shot on the UI campus late Friday afternoon by an

IC residents serve on Iowa Peace Institute advisory group

Jessica Davidson
Daily Iowan

Seven Iowa City residents are participating in the Iowa Peace Institute's PeaceMakers Council, creating programs to increase the involvement of the local community in the international arena.

Vice President Emeritus Philip Hubbard, Elizabeth Rawlings and Iowa City residents Betsy Hawtrey, Sandy Most, Clayton Ringenberg, Kathleen Staley and Martin Tracy as well as people from 29 other Iowa communities are members of the council which held its first meeting in October.

Iowa Peace Institute Executive Director Robert Anderson said the PeaceMakers Council was formed as an advisory group to increase the involvement of local communities in IPI programs.

"We want to establish relations between Iowa and other parts of the world, not only for business and trade opportunities but future peacemaking opportunities as well," Anderson said.

The institute, based in Grinnell, Iowa, was created in 1986 to develop programs in conflict resolution, global education, international development and world trade.

In 1990, U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar honored the IPI as a Peace Messenger organization.

Staley, UI senior staff psychologist at the UI Counseling Service, said the Iowa City participants are planning to meet to talk about specifics of bringing IPI ideas to Iowa City.

Hubbard said although there are no concrete plans yet, one possible program could be supporting certain political candidates.

"We would look for candidates who seem to be effective and whose platforms support our ideas," Hubbard said.

Staley said one idea is fostering international understanding through personal contact.

"It's difficult for world peace to grow from ignorance," she said. "War comes from hate and ignorance and stereotypes. We need to break through those."

Staley took her teen-age children on a Soviet peace walk and a home stay. She said these types of activities work toward international understanding.

"How could you think about people on the other side of the world as enemies when your children and theirs are friends?" she asked.

Tracy, a UI associate professor of social work, also said personal contact is important.

"The relationships between people are the basis of peace," he said. "The more we know about our similarities and where we differ, the more likely we are to maintain peace."

Tracy said international understanding is important because the world is shrinking due to increasing information and travel.

 dates connected their campaigns well with the issues that face city government.
 "I want to compliment the other candidates that ran in the at-large race," Ambrisco said. "I thought they did it issue-oriented just like I did. They kept it fair and square, which is the only way it should be in a town like Iowa City."
 Challenger John Crabtree said he had accomplished in his campaign what he and his supporters had set out to do in the election.
 "The cornerstone of my campaign has been talking about fiscal responsibility, about being responsible with the taxpayers' money," Crabtree said. "I think that's an issue that wasn't being raised before, and it's been paid a lot of attention since I came into the campaign."
 Crabtree also said the issues he brought up during the campaign would not have been discussed by the incumbents.

 "Win or lose we've done a service to the community here, and win or lose I'm going to be here when the elections are over, and win or lose I'm going to keep paying attention to these issues," Crabtree said.
 Incumbent Karen Kubby said Monday she was pleased with the response her campaign had gotten from the community.
 "I feel really good; there have been a lot of people contacting me who have said they haven't supported me in the past but have seen me on the job and are quite pleased," Kubby said. "It feels from those comments that my base of support is broader than I'd imagined it to be."
 Paul Egli, who is also running for an at-large seat, added he was satisfied with the response his campaign had generated among the candidates and the public.

 "One thing I do feel good about is that the issues I have mentioned and have been mentioning repeatedly — affordable housing, economic development and the Americans with Disabilities Act — have caught some attention," Egli said. "The other candidates now, and other people, are talking about those issues. That's encouraging."
 Incumbent Randy Larson, who is running unopposed in the election, said the campaign was a good opportunity for incumbents and candidates to familiarize themselves with Iowa City issues.
 "I think it's probably going to be up to the incumbents again," Larson said. "I thought the turnout at the candidate forum was pretty good. That was pretty much all I did since I didn't have an opponent."

 unidentified gunman who fatally shot himself.
 Connie Kindsvater of Riverwoods, Ill., said the first report she heard was close to what happened and specified somewhat on who was shot.
 "The report first said that six people were killed. It mentioned that it was on campus, a graduate student did the shootings and it occurred in the physics department," she said. Kindsvater added that the report said professors and administrators were the victims, not students.

 Despite the fact that the initial report she heard was very vague, Nancy Leahy of Northbrook, Ill., said she'd prefer the media tell what they know as they find out rather than waiting until they have a more complete picture.
 "It's better that they let you know. Because I found out quickly, I was able to get right through to my two girls," she said. "I think the media did a good job and handled it well."

However, Leahy did speak of the fear she felt when she heard the initial report.
 "You panic and all you want to know is if your kids are all right," she said.
 Kathy Riley of DeKalb, Ill., who has a sister at the UI, said she believes there are cases when the media should not give out information immediately.
 "If the news is really bad, they should wait until they know," she said.

 and most bitter foes.
 "I would like to express our regret for leaving this city without having tangible results," said Syrian Foreign Minister Farouk al-Sharaa.
 In a reminder of how relentless the conflict is, hard-line Israelis inaugurated a new Jewish settlement in the Golan Heights just hours after the talks ended. Syria's main demand is for the return of the Golan Heights, captured by Israel in the 1967 Mideast War.
 There were also reports that Israeli troops shelled the positions of radical Muslim guerrillas in Lebanon.
 In the Iranian capital of Tehran, Shiite Muslim demonstrators burned American and Israeli flags and an effigy of Uncle Sam outside the former U.S. Embassy compound to mark its takeover 13 years ago by Iranian radicals.

 The late-night talks in Madrid were the first-ever direct discussion between Israel and Syria, and they lasted five hours into the early morning Monday. But the enemies failed to move even an inch from their positions or even shake hands. Even coffee breaks were taken in separate rooms.
 Syria refused an Israeli request to establish direct contacts to arrange the site for the next round of talks, scheduled later this month.
 Nonetheless, both agreed to meet again — if the United States comes up with an acceptable location.

Officials on both sides said Washington or other sites in North America were possible.
 According to both sides, it was a dialogue of the deaf.
 Israel's delegates "talked about everything except the land that the Israelis occupied and have been occupying for the last 24 years. That is the Golan Heights," al-Sharaa said.
 The Israelis countered that Syria's demand for Israeli concessions dominated the meeting. "If they keep up their ... demands, there will not be any progress," said Israeli spokesman Yossi Olmert.
 Israel repeatedly insisted territorial concessions were unrelated to its goal — a peace treaty with Syria.

UI Healing

There are no words that can be put to paper to describe the sorrow and confusion that everyone at the UI feels in the aftermath of Friday afternoon's slayings. A university is often referred to as a community. But in the wake of this tragedy, the UI must now be a family, grieving together, ready to reach out and console each other with open arms until the pain fades away — if it ever does.

A university is often referred to as a community. But in the wake of this tragedy, the UI must now be a family, grieving together, ready to reach out and console each other.

The soul of this university aches for the families, faculty members, students and co-workers who best knew those whose lives were senselessly ended by gunfire. And for those who routinely pass by and attend classes at Van Allen and Jessup halls, it will be impossible not to remember where each of us was on a blustery, gray November afternoon when we learned of the shootings.

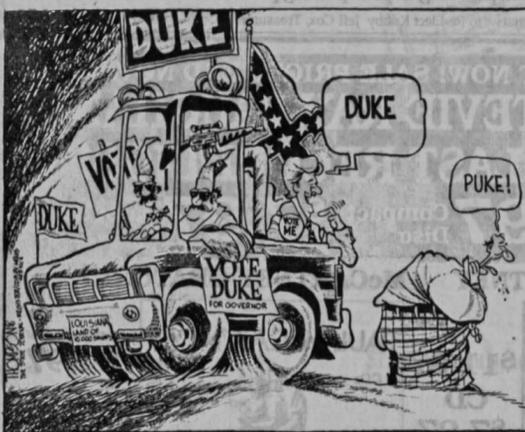

Enough pain has already been inflicted because of one individual's rage. We must not allow our sorrow to turn vile. No group is to blame; no others should be implicated. We must all unite as we attempt to cope with our loss, as a family should.

In mourning the deaths of five special members of our UI family, let us also remember in thoughts and prayers one of our sisters, Miya Rodolpho-Sioson, as she struggles to hold on and rebuild her life.

Life at the UI will continue, it must — but it will never be the same.

Eliminating apartheid in South Africa

A few days ago, an important event took place in South Africa's maritime city of Durban. This Indian Ocean seaport was chosen as a meeting ground by more than 70 anti-apartheid forces. For the first time in the recent history of this mineral-rich country, diverse and even antagonistic associations and organizations have decided to work together in order to achieve an ultimate goal: the elimination of all forms of racial oppression and discrimination.

The immediate and short-term objective of this new anti-apartheid coalition, however, is to put pressure on the minority government of F.W. de Klerk to commence pre-consultations on how to achieve, through democratic methods, the drafting of a new constitution for South Africa.

Some analysts have compared the latest formation with the defunct but efficient United Democratic Front, or UDF, whose national and international strength contributed, among other things, to the release of Nelson Mandela and the lifting of a ban on all the liberation movements.

This comparison is to some extent deficient in two respects. First, some important organizations like the Pan African Congress have now resolved to play an active role in the new alliance. Second, this latest anti-apartheid coalition is more representative of various political, ethnic, racial and professional groups and associations opposed to the existing order of things. And there lies its greatest strength.

Conspicuously absent from the Durban meeting was the Inkatha "Freedom" Movement, a Zulu ethnic organization led by Mongosithu Buthelezi. Despite his repeated "claims" that his organization is "opposed" to apartheid, recent revelations by South Africa's influential free presses like The Weekly Mail and Weekblad (an Afrikaner paper) proved convincingly that Buthelezi and his group are financed and armed to the teeth by the apartheid government.

The same newspapers demonstrated with pictures and letters that Buthelezi's men were trained in neighboring Angola by South African troops and later sent into the black townships to harass and kill anti-apartheid protesters. The basic aim of this strategy is to present any anti-apartheid group, including Mandela's ANC, as irresponsible, unruly and uncouth political organizations which are incapable of leading a post-apartheid South Africa.

This detailed searchlight on Buthelezi and his organization is indeed necessary to dispel the unfounded notion that South Africans are mainly polarized along racial lines in the ongoing battle against apartheid. This is not true. There are white South Africans like the 1991 Nobel laureate in literature, Nadine Gordimer, and other creative writers like Andre Brink and Breyten Breytenbach (just to name a few) who are equally hated and disliked by the racist regime. These individuals have rebelled against apartheid because they regard it as a crime against humanity and their individual, humanist consciences.

De Klerk's government is bound to react, very soon, to the latest moves by these coalition forces and individuals. In fact, President de Klerk himself has, several times, spoken in favor of an all-party conference on South Africa's future. But he had been under pressure from the extreme conservative elements in his party, particularly from the much-dreaded hierarchy of South Africa's armed forces. These individuals, including members of Terreblanche's neo-Nazi group, fear the loss of their "undeserved" material and social privileges.

Political analysts are of the opinion that the struggle for a new constitution will be complicated. For example, both de Klerk and Buthelezi are vehemently opposed to the ANC's 1955 Freedom Charter, which supports the basic and fundamental principle of one person, one vote in a united, democratic and non-racial South Africa. All the various anti-apartheid groups support this democratic ideal. Buthelezi and de Klerk have come up with suggestions for a government based on tribal and racial representation. There is nothing new in this proposal because the current Bantustan structures and the apartheid laws are shaped by "a government based on tribal and racial representation."

The elimination of an unjust colonial and racist (apartheid) order in South Africa can only be resolved through democratic means. Responsible and influential leaders like Nelson Mandela have repeatedly assured all racial and ethnic communities that their democratic interests, human rights aspirations and economic well-being will be defended and consolidated as long as the new constitution promotes the principle of one person, one vote and the abolition of all laws based on racial, ethnic, political and economic prejudices.

And just like in South Africa's neighboring countries of Zimbabwe and Namibia, South Africa's minorities should not entertain any fear of being marginalized in a new democratic and non-racial society. Both the internal forces and especially the international community will ensure, through various mechanisms, that a new, democratically elected South African government does not deviate from the laid down, principle of rule of law. De Klerk and Buthelezi should realize that it is too late to create unnecessary obstacles to the democratic wind of change blowing inexorably across the whole world.

Concern, sympathy, prayers

To the Editor:
On behalf of the bishop, clergy and people of the Episcopal Church in Iowa, I would like to share with the university community the following resolution, unanimously adopted at the 139th Annual Convention of the Episcopal Diocese of Iowa, meeting in Des Moines on Nov. 2, 1991:
■Whereas, tragic violence has visited the campus of the University of Iowa, leaving pain, sorrow and grief;
■Be it resolved that this Convention of the Episcopal Church of the Diocese of Iowa expresses to the university community its sympathy and concern, and offers its prayers for those who suffer.
■Also be it resolved that the Secretary of the Convention communicate this resolution through our Chaplain at the University of Iowa to the university community.

Response from Oklahoma

To the Editor:
An open letter from the Society of Chinese Students and Scholars at the University of Oklahoma to the UI's faculty, staff, student body and all their families.

We greatly bereave the tragic and senseless deaths of your professors and graduate student. We hope that by coming together and sharing the resulting feeling of fear, anxiety and loss that we can express our unequivocal opposition to that brutal violence.
Those acts represent an anathema to the most precious of traditional Chinese values: respecting the sanctity of human life, respecting one's teachers and fellow students, and disdaining suicide.
The history of the UI's warm relations with China and Chinese students and scholars is a history with deep roots and many fruitful experiences. We hope that the unforgettable nature of the recent tragedy will not erase the positive aspects of that important historical relationship.

We are deeply saddened by this massacre. We hope that other individuals who might be similarly in the throngs of loneliness and depression would not act on such dark impulses but seek counseling in spite of the cross-cultural differences.

To the families of the innocent victims, and indeed to the family of the senseless perpetrator, we extend our wholehearted sympathies. We hope the utter lack of meaning in this tragedy will not lead to further suffering but hope the community of Iowa City can come together to ensure communitywide healing.

We mourn the losses with you.

Jim St. John doesn't support library user fees

To the Editor:
On Nov. 5 all voters in Iowa City will have a chance to select a person to fill the City Council District A seat currently held by Susan Horowitz. Horowitz is being challenged by Jim St. John.

Horowitz has suggested that the increasing demand for public services will require increased use of fees (over and above taxes). Among the services she lists is the public library. This would mean that people of lower income (including many children) would not be able to use the library. St. John, on the other hand, has come out strongly in favor of continuing the tradition of a free Iowa City Public Library.

My own love of books comes largely from wandering in the public library. I didn't need the price of a ticket — all I needed was my curiosity. I would rather see a few services cut for all of us, than to see even one child denied access to books.

Susan Horowitz's idea of charging money to use the library is at best poorly thought out, at worst disturbingly elitist. I think Jim

St. John is clearly the best choice to make in the election of Nov. 5.

Duke's message is racist

To the Editor:
Though David Duke frightens me, it is people like Jay Casini who terrify me. Casini's position ["Duking it out with a former Klansman," Oct. 30] that "Republicans currently searching for a serious domestic agenda should be listening to what David Duke has to say" ignores the obvious: Duke's "comprehensive platform of serious domestic reform" revolves entirely around white supremacy.

On National Public Radio, Duke asserted that streets in the South were safe for both races before integration. Yeah, right. Duke wants a return to the good old days of the South, women in the home and African-Americans in the cane fields and vigilante groups working out of the governor's office to ensure they stay in their place.

Casini apparently wants a candidate who hasn't worn a sheet in public and doesn't toast Hitler's birthday to pick up the "legitimate themes of the Duke campaign."

Duke's message exploits the fear rampant in bad economic times, and that is a message we cannot afford to follow.

Egli will work hard for you

To the Editor:
When you go to the polls on Nov. 5, I urge you to vote for Paul Egli for Iowa City City Council. Paul is an honest, hard-working person who really cares about people and their concerns. This is reflected by the issues he views as important to many citizens of this community.

Areas that he is addressing include: increasing employment opportunities, providing affordable housing for low- to moderate-income citizens, and ensuring accessibility to public facilities and services for people who have disabilities (as mandated by federal law with the passage of the Americans With Disabilities Act). With Paul on the Iowa City City Council, he would enthusiastically strive to make these visions a reality.

Paul is currently working with the Housing Commission on the Comprehensive Housing Affordability Strategy and is serving on the Iowa City Section 504 Advisory Committee which provides accessibility recommendations to the city. His involvement with these committees provides a base of experience to work from and reflects his sincere interest in working toward solutions.

In conclusion, if you vote for Paul Egli, you will be voting for an honest, enthusiastic person who is willing to listen to your ideas and concerns and is willing to work hard for you.

Is "Ambrisco" dangerous?

To the Editor:
There are a number of neighborhoods around Iowa City I try to avoid because they frequently have warning signs of pesticides applied to their yards. For the last five years, I have spent a lot of time studying the health effects of these pesticides and suffice it to say it's best to stay away.

Recently, on many of these yards, "Ambrisco" signs have appeared. At first, I thought it was some pesticide I wasn't aware of, but then I realized it was Ambrisco, the City Council candidate. This connection seems fairly logical. People who cannot tolerate a variety of plants in their yard.

But, over the last years, research has begun to show possible correlations between organophosphate exposure and learning disabilities. Now I am beginning to wonder which is the cause and which is the effect.

Ronald F. Vogel

Kubby represents us all

To the Editor:
In the coming years Iowa City's elected officials will make important decisions about the prospects for residential and commercial development in town.

Based on her proven track record, we strongly urge voters to support Karen Kubby for re-election to the City Council. Short-sighted officials have eagerly jumped at any carrot dangled under the city's nose in the name of economic development and an increased tax base. But Kubby's decisions have been based on thoughtful consideration for both the current and long-term health of our community.

In addition, while other candidates have been allied with special interest groups, Kubby has proven to be a fiercely independent thinker whose concern is for the greater good of the entire community.

Who will represent you in the coming years — another good old boy or Karen Kubby, who works for all of us?

Sue and Chuck Scott

We know these are letters

To the Editor:
Why do you insult the intelligence of your readers by including an annoyingly banal heading above each headline? Presumably your rationale is that such headings make it easier for the reader to quickly identify the subject of each article.

But this sort of officious and facile "help" is actually a hindrance to any reader with a mind. To take one example, what does the generic heading "Achievement" add to the headline "UI professor presented with alumni award." If someone is getting an award, presumably there has been some achievement, so the heading is stupidly repetitive.

ELECTIONS

Campaign attacks heat up in Senate race

Michael Blood
Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA, Pa. — Republican Dick Thornburgh, looking for his lost momentum in Pennsylvania's Senate race, attacked Democrat Harris Wofford Monday for either lying or being naive about the cost of national health insurance.

Campaigning hard on the eve of the election, Thornburgh ripped away at what has been the most potent issue in the nation's only U.S. Senate race this year. Wofford's campaign manager, Paul Begala, accused Thornburgh of using "pathetic scare tactics."

Wofford wound up his populist campaign by telling supporters he would "work like hell" for the forgotten middle class.

Candidates also took their last shots in governor's races in Kentucky and Mississippi, in congressional races in Pennsylvania and Virginia, and in mayor's races in more than a half-dozen big cities.

Tuesday's elections also feature some closely watched ballot issues, particularly a measure in Washington state that would limit the terms of elected officials including the state's representatives in Congress. Washington voters also will consider whether to permit physician-assisted suicides for the terminally ill.

The election that has drawn the biggest headlines — the Louisiana governor's race between ex-Ku Klux Klansman David Duke and former Gov. Edwin Edwards — isn't until Nov. 16.

The Pennsylvania Senate campaign pits President Bush's former attorney general against a hitherto unheralded Democrat. Many see it as a dry run for next year's presidential and congressional races.

Wofford erased a 40-point deficit in the public opinion polls by telling voters they had as much right to a doctor as a lawyer and that he would fight in Washington for universal health-care coverage.

Thornburgh told reporters, "Harris Wofford is either lying or dangerously naive when he says that the government can provide health insurance for over 30 million uninsured people, lower health insurance costs for everyone else and pay for long-term care for the elderly, all without a dime of new taxes."

He referred to a 1990 study conducted for a business coalition that estimated that 319,000 workers in Pennsylvania could lose their jobs if employers are forced to pay for national health insurance.

Wofford's campaign shot back a response.

"Those are the same kind of pathetic scare tactics that Republicans like Dick Thornburgh used against Social Security and Medicare," said Wofford's campaign manager, Paul Begala. "They didn't work then, and they won't work now."

Begala said Wofford's plan would save money for working families and businesses that already provide benefits.

The 65-year-old Wofford, a former college president, state senator and state labor and industry secretary, was appointed by Gov. Robert Casey to serve as an interim senator following the plane-crash death of Sen. John Heinz in April. Earlier in his career, he had been a civil rights adviser to President Kennedy and co-founder of the Peace Corps.

He has framed himself as the outsider who wants to sweep clean the corridors of power. From the start, Wofford focused on a need for national health insurance. He also opposed a Mexican trade agreement that he said would cost the state jobs and called for tax cuts for the middle class.

"The people are going to rise up and say they're fed up," Wofford said at a noon rally downtown that drew 500 people. "Fed up with professional politicians who preserve, protect and defend power and privilege in Washington for themselves and their rich friends at the expense of working men and women who do the work, foot the bills and pay the taxes."

NUTRITION

Regulated food labels to educate consumers

Diane Duston
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — For years, beverage manufacturers have told us that each 12-ounce can of soda pop sold in vending machines contains two servings.

But most people drink the whole can in one sitting, and the federal government is likely to propose Wednesday that the label say it's just one.

The change is expected to be one of the hundreds of serving sizes that will be specifically designated as the Food and Drug Administration unveils its plan for implementing the bulk of the new Nutrition Labeling and Education Act.

When all is done, the sporadic, conflicting, often purposefully unclear labels now voluntarily stamped on food packages will conform to specific rules. The labels, which will be required on about 90 percent of all food sold in grocery stores, could revolutionize the way Americans eat by making them more aware.

The FDA has already laid out its ideas for changing ingredient listings, adding details about sweeteners and including whether the product contains monosodium glutamate, a flavor enhancer said to produce allergic reactions in some people.

The agency has also detailed how juice beverage manufacturers should specify the percentage of real fruit juice contained in their products and how grocery stores should display nutrition information for fresh produce and fish.

This week, the food industry and the public will learn for the first time specifically how the government wants terms such as "low-fat," "low-cholesterol," "low-sodium" and "light" to be defined.

They'll find out what kinds of foods are recognized by the government as helpful in fighting certain illnesses.

And, after years of debate over what constitutes a serving size, federal regulators will give their opinion.

The regulations are expected to fill more than 300 pages of tiny print in the Federal Register, the government's daily publication of new and proposed rules for enforcing federal statutes.

The public will be given time to comment on the proposals. By this time next year, the government will make its final ruling. The law says that by May 8, 1993, every affected food package must reflect the new regulations.

Simultaneous with the FDA's announcement, the Agriculture Department is expected to detail proposals for labeling fresh meat and poultry and processed foods containing meat and poultry. The action, which is not required by the new law, is an acknowledgement that a similar law could very well be passed to mandate the changes unless USDA acts voluntarily.

The Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms has even gotten into the act, announcing Monday that it will consider a petition to require nutrition labels on all alcoholic beverages.

In remarks prepared for the American Dietetic Association last week, FDA Chairman David Kessler said the new label would increase consumer awareness of what is needed for a healthy diet.

Kerrey discusses strategy to cut budget, departments

Jill Lawrence
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Nebraska Sen. Bob Kerrey said Monday he would seek dramatic cuts in the federal bureaucracy, congressional operations and the defense budget if he is elected president in 1992.

Kerrey, one of six Democrats seeking the party's nomination, proposed cutting the number of federal departments in half and reducing the military budget by up to 40 percent in the next decade.

Kerrey, who like other candidates is campaigning against a government he says has gone astray, also said Congress should cut its staff by 30 percent and make do with only a quarter of the committees and subcommittees now operating.

"Government waste at the Washington level is a moral issue," the former governor said in a speech at the National Press Club. "This is an attempt to re-establish the confidence of the American people that we understand that our tax dollars come from them."

Kerrey's government-reduction plan is similar to a proposal advanced by House Budget Committee Chairman Leon Panetta, D-Calif., a fact the senator acknowledged in a note accompanying his speech text.

The Kerrey version would consolidate the current 14 federal departments into seven: defense, state, justice, treasury, human resources, natural resources and economic policy.

"We have a Department of Commerce that creates no commerce," he said. "We have a Department of Labor that fails to protect American workers. We have a Department of Agriculture which has presided over the destruction of the American family farm."

Kerrey, a decorated Vietnam veteran, said deep defense cuts could be made without relinquishing global military superiority.

"Destiny has indeed selected us to lead, and I as one Democrat will promise that our military retains the strength that we enjoy," he said.

Kerrey acknowledged that some people will say he can't win the 1992 election because he voted against authorizing the Persian Gulf War.

"My response will be that I fought in the war in Vietnam, and I've learned... that the cause should be just," said Kerrey, who lost part of a leg in Vietnam. "I didn't feel the cause was."

At last.

Israel will finally be able to negotiate directly with its Arab neighbors.

As the Middle East finally stands on the threshold of historic negotiations, no people are more eager for success than the people of Israel.

From the first day of its existence, May 14, 1948, Israel has struggled to live in peace. That very day, the new nation was attacked by six of its neighbors.

In the 43 years since, only one Arab country has recognized its right to exist. When Egypt's President Anwar Sadat made his unprecedented journey to Jerusalem, the Israeli people welcomed him with open arms. Eventually, with cooperation from the United States, an agreement was reached in 1979 that has nurtured a lasting peace between the two countries.

Regrettably, until now no other Arab country has followed suit. Yet the people of Israel have called again and again for their Arab neighbors to sit down with them, face to face, to negotiate for peace.

Now, after tenacious diplomatic efforts in recent months by President Bush and Secretary of State Baker, other Arab nations have agreed to direct talks with Israel. In just a matter of weeks, Israel and its Arab neighbors could meet not on the battlefield, but at the bargaining table.

Israel and the United States, steadfast partners in peace, have great hopes that the talks will lead ultimately to better lives for all people in the region, Arab and Israeli alike.

Indeed, Israel's Declaration of Independence reads: "We offer peace and unity to all the neighboring states and their people, and invite them to co-operate with the independent Jewish nation for the common good of all."

At last, Israel's vision of peace may soon become a reality.

Black South Africans strike, seek joint power

Greg Myre
Associated Press

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — Millions of blacks went on strike Monday as anti-apartheid groups shut down large parts of the economy in a bid to force the white government to share power. At least 19 people were killed in strike violence.

The massive strike, which was to continue today, was officially called to protest a new tax. But it was widely seen as a power struggle between the government and black opposition groups.

The strike appeared to be one of the most politically effective actions taken recently by opposition groups, which have frequently been left on the defensive by President F.W. de Klerk's rapid reforms.

Skeleton staffs made up of mainly white workers kept many businesses operating at partial capacity, but the streets of some cities were deserted.

Johannesburg's sidewalks were clear of the hundreds of blacks who normally sell fruit and vegetables, and white supervisors unused to cash registers struggled to serve whites.

Essential services were not hit by the strike, and power stations, most transportation and other services ran normally.

Strike organizers claimed at least 3 million people were taking part in the action, but the figure could not be confirmed. The Congress of South African Trade Unions alone has 1.2 million members.

The African National Congress and the allied Congress of South African Trade Unions, the groups that called the strike, want a say in economic policy. Although de Klerk has scrapped apartheid laws, the opposition says little has changed.

"The organized working class has today and will tomorrow strike a body blow to apartheid," said Jay Naidoo, general secretary of the trade union congress.

The government alleged that many blacks were intimidated into staying home, a charge denied by the groups. Opposition leaders threaten further action if the government does not accept their demands.

Business spokesmen said they had no nationwide figures but that 50 percent to 80 percent of black workers did not show up at most major businesses. The country has 30 million blacks.

Government officials estimated the strike will cost the economy about $800 million in lost production.

The strike is opposed by the ANC's main black rival, the Zulu-dominated Inkatha Freedom Party. Fighting between ANC and Inkatha supporters has claimed thousands of lives in recent years. The walkout appeared most effective in ANC strongholds such as Johannesburg, Pretoria and the southern city of Port Elizabeth.

Johannesburg, Pretoria and the southern city of Port Elizabeth.

Johannesburg, the country's financial and industrial center, was largely deserted except for whites.

"Well, now we know what Johannesburg would look like if it was a white city," said one white shopkeeper, Hank Hankinson.

In the central Orange Free State, 15 workers were killed and 32 injured at a gold mine when miners backing the strike tried to stop other miners reporting to work late Sunday, police said.

Terrorist attack in Peru kills 15

Alex Emery
Associated Press

LIMA, Peru — Hooded gunmen burst into a barbecue party and killed 15 people in an attack authorities blamed Monday on leftist guerrillas. Others linked the massacre to paramilitary squads that target rebel sympathizers.

The slaying late Sunday was the worst terrorist attack on record in the capital. The victims included a 9-year-old boy and villagers who came to the city for jobs and to escape the civil war.

About 40 people were attending the party in the rundown neighborhood of Barrios Altos. They were listening to folk music from the Andes when five masked men stormed the home, forced everyone into a rear patio and opened fire, an Interior Ministry spokesman said.

The official said the shooting was carried out by Maoist Shining Path guerrillas, who have waged an 11-year battle against the government.

But witnesses, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said the gunmen arrived in two four-wheel drive vehicles with flashing roof lights of the type used by police.

The assailants also had silencers on their guns — used in the past by right-wing paramilitary groups.

Leroy Smith honored ... again

IOWA CITY, Iowa — Iowa's Leroy Smith, who led a sacking of Ohio State quarterback Kent Graham, has been named the Big Ten's defensive player of the week.

The senior defensive end had a school-record five sacks among his 14 tackles in Iowa's 16-9 victory over Ohio State on Saturday. The old record was four by Jim Johnson against Purdue in 1989 and Ron Geater against Purdue this year.

Smith now has an Iowa record 13 sacks for the season. Johnson set the old record of 12 in 1989. This is the second time this year that Smith has been named the Big Ten player of the week. He also was honored after Iowa's victory over Northern Illinois.

Iowa had six sacks in all against Ohio State, giving the Hawkeyes 20 in the last three games and a school-record 41 for the season. The old record was 36 in 1986 and 1990.

FOOTBALL

Long signs with the Lions ... again

DETROIT — Former Iowa star and Heisman Trophy runnerup Chuck Long re-signed with the team which didn't want him.

The Detroit Lions decided that Long wasn't needed after changing their offense to a run-and-shoot and needing a more mobile quarterback.

Last week, Long signed with the Lions after Rodney Peete was injured.

Long is Iowa's career leader in passing with 10,461 yards. While he was at Iowa (from 1981-1985) Long threw 74 touchdown passes, 37 more than the second best passer Chuck Hartlieb.

BASKETBALL

Another SWC team bites the dust

COLLEGE STATION, Texas — Texas A&M's men's basketball program was placed on two years' probation Monday by the NCAA Committee on Infractions for major violations under former coach Kermit Davis Jr.

Texas A&M, which was put on probation in 1988 for rules violations, escaped the NCAA's so-called "death penalty." The Aggies will not be eligible for this season's NCAA tournament and will be limited to two scholarships for the 1992-93 season and can have only eight instead of the usual 15 expense-paid official visits for the 1992 calendar year.

BASEBALL

Cubbage remains in NY

NEW YORK — Mike Cubbage, who finished the season as interim manager of the New York Mets, will return next season as third base, base running and infield coach.

New manager Jeff Torborg completed his coaching staff Monday with the additions of Cubbage, Barry Foote as dugout coach and Dave LaRoche as bullpen coach.

They join Tom McCraw, who was hired as hitting and first base coach, and Mel Stottlemire, who is returning for his ninth season as pitching coach.

Foote and LaRoche were coaches under Torborg with the Chicago White Sox this year.

John Benson, who was bullpen catcher with the White Sox this year, is joining the Mets in the same capacity.

Canseco arrogant?

MONTGOMERY, Ala. — Jose Canseco and his agents were accused in federal court on Monday of "scheming, arrogance and ruthlessness" in their dealings with the promoter of a 1988 baseball card show in Alabama.

But an attorney for the Oakland Athletics slugger said he never got paid for his appearance even though he "bent over backwards" to make this show a success, signing more than 1,000 autographs.

Former Hawkeye Hansen traded to Bulls

Bobby Hansen

Associated Press

SACRAMENTO, Calif. — The Sacramento Kings acquired shooting guard Dennis Hopson from the Chicago Bulls on Monday in exchange for veteran guard Bobby Hansen and a 1992 second-round draft pick.

"We're very pleased to acquire a young shooting guard that still has outstanding potential. Dennis Hopson will have an opportunity to enhance his career," said Jerry Reynolds, Kings player personnel director.

The Kings acquired guard Mitch Richmond from Golden State last week in exchange for the rights to forward Billy Owens.

Hopson was dealt to the Bulls from the New Jersey Nets last season for several draft picks. Playing in 61 games for NBA champion Chicago, he averaged 4.3 points playing 11.9 minutes per game.

Hopson, originally the third pick in the 1987 NBA college draft by New Jersey, averaged 9.6 points as a rookie. In the following two seasons with the Nets he averaged 12.7 and 15.8.

As a senior at Ohio State, Hopson was the Big Ten Player of the Year and the second-leading scorer in the nation at 29 points per game.

Hansen, acquired by the Kings from the Utah Jazz before the 1990-91 season, played in a career-low 36 games for Sacramento. He was sidelined by two surgeries — for torn cartilage in his left knee and then in his right shoulder.

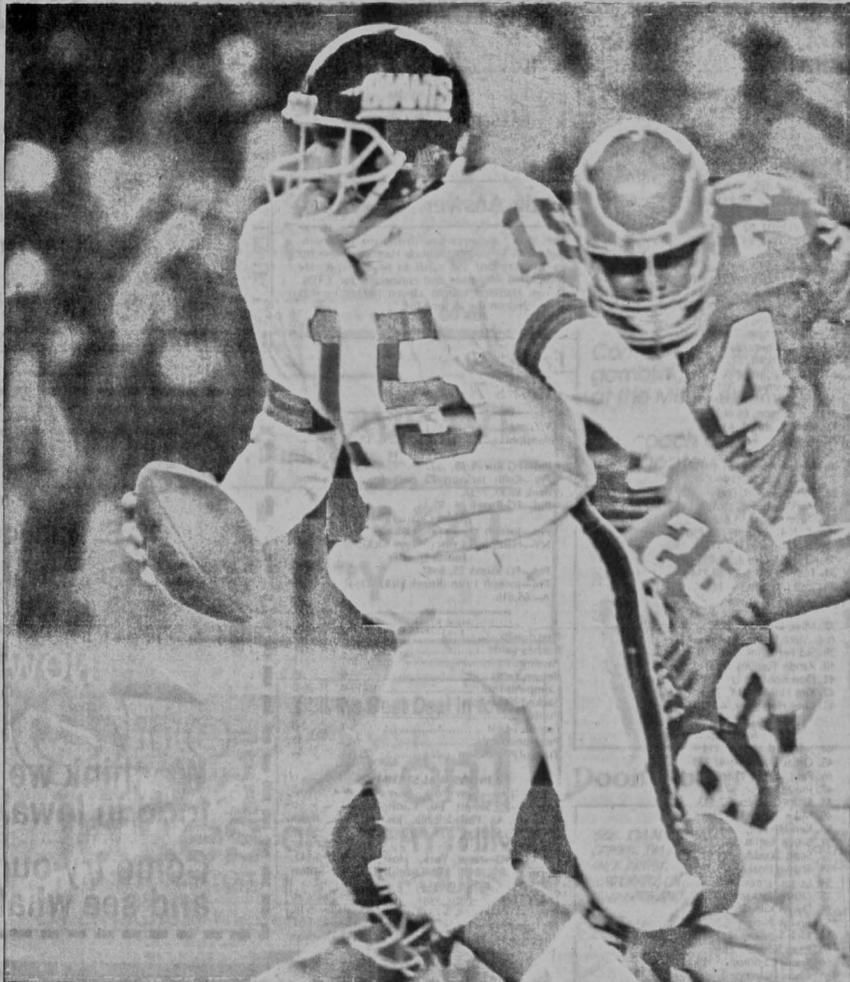

Jerry Krause, Bulls vice president of basketball operations, said Hansen is a "tough, no-nonsense competitor with eight NBA seasons behind him. He was an excellent performer while at Utah."

"We feel that Dennis Hopson needs to get more minutes than he would have received here and he will have that opportunity in Sacramento," Krause added.

Eagles batter Giants 30-7

Dave Goldberg

PHILADELPHIA — No matter who plays quarterback for the New York Giants, Reggie White, Clyde Simmons and the Philadelphia defense always seem to have his number.

The victim Monday night was Jeff Hostetler (15) instead of Phil Simms (11), but the result was the same, a 30-7 Philadelphia victory that put the playoff hopes of the defending Super Bowl champions in severe peril.

Jim McMahon and Keith Jackson chipped in with a 73-yard touchdown connection and James Joseph ran for 11-yard and 1-yard touchdowns as the Eagles won for the sixth time in the last seven meetings with the Giants and left both teams at 4-5.

McMahon was 16-for-26 for 229 yards as the Eagles ended a four-game losing streak that began when he injured a knee in Washington on Sept. 30. The Philadelphia running game, averaging only 67 yards a game coming in, ground out 137 yards, most on two second-half drives which lasted over nine minutes each.

But the key was a defense that sacked Hostetler four times and forced a fumble that set up one of Roger Ruzek's three field goals. Simmons and White each had 1½ sacks against an offense that had allowed only 13 sacks in its first eight games, none in the last two.

Putting constant pressure on Hostetler, they held New York without

Howe becomes free agent while Griffey Sr. retires

Ronald Blum

Associated Press

NEW YORK — While 13 more players filed for free agency Monday, the New York Yankees still made no decision about Steve Howe, the last potential free agent with an option year.

Howe, who came back from drug and alcohol problems to pitch 48 ½ innings and save three games, has an option at a salary to be agreed to by Dec. 20 or determined by an arbitrator. The Yankees have until Tuesday to exercise the option.

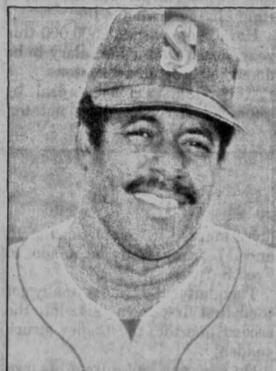

"We're still talking," New York general manager Gene Michael said from the major league GM meetings in Boca Raton, Fla. "That's all I can say."

The 13 players who filed Monday raised the free agent total to 80. Twenty-five more can file by next Monday's deadline.

One who could have filed, Ken Griffey, announced Monday he was quitting after 19 years in the majors, and Seattle placed the 41-year-old outfielder on the voluntary retired list. Griffey hit .282 with one homer and nine RBIs.

He was injured in a car accident during spring training and played just 30 games before going on the disabled list June 6. He had surgery Sept. 11 to repair a bulging disk in his neck.

"I was hoping to be able to come back for one more year," said Griffey, a three-time All-Star. "But I realized about a week after the operation that it probably wasn't going to happen."

Griffey's 21-year-old son, Ken Jr., already is a two-time All-Star for the Mariners.

Cooper surprised by Buckeyes' ineptitude

Rusty Miller

Associated Press

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Ohio State coach John Cooper wasn't surprised his team was beaten by Iowa, but that it played so poorly and didn't get trounced.

"The amazing thing is as bad as we played or as well as they played, we still had a chance to win the ball game up until the last play," Cooper said Monday.

But a pitiful passing game was the difference when the Buckeyes needed help through the air.

Cooper said his team's 16-9 loss to Iowa wasn't the fault of the people calling the plays but of the players executing them.

"I'm not sitting here saying the fact that we called that many passes lost the game," he said. "I'm just saying we were not effective throwing the ball. We called more passes and had more sacks and for whatever reason we didn't get the job done."

Cooper said that Iowa shut down the Buckeyes' robust running game and forced them into passing, which sealed Ohio State's fate.

"We called 34 running plays and 32 passing plays," he said. "That's not like this Ohio State football team this year. Obviously, we're more of a running team. Out of the 32 passes we called, we attempted 24 and we completed eight."

"If you don't throw the football and catch it better than that, you're not going to beat many teams, particularly a good team like Iowa."

Ohio State had come into the game averaging 255 yards a game on the ground. Iowa laughed at that figure, putting the backs in a vise and allowing just 124 yards on 42 rushes.

The loss dropped the Buckeyes from a tie for second in the Big Ten with Iowa and Indiana into a tie for fourth with Illinois. Now 6-2 overall and 3-2 in the conference, the Buckeyes also plummeted from 13th to 19th in this week's rankings.

Cooper made it clear he wasn't blaming the loss on quarterback Kent Graham, who passed for only 97 yards and had an interception. Nor did he finger an offensive line that permitted Graham to be sacked six times nor a receiving corps that Cooper said dropped five passes.

"Kent Graham is only as good as we (the line and receivers) allow him to be," Cooper said. "I don't care who it is, if they don't have time to throw, or if the receivers don't catch the ball..."

While Iowa maintained a patient mixture of passes and runs that ate up ground and took time off the clock, Ohio State was always in a hurry, Cooper said.

"It seemed like they had the ball for a long period of time and it seemed when we got it, maybe we were too urgent trying to score," Cooper said. "Field position was a factor in the game, starting with the opening drive. We got the ball one time in good field position and converted that into a touchdown. Other than that, we just weren't in synch. We didn't do the things in this game that we have been able to do in some of the previous games that we won."

Trailing by a touchdown going into the final quarter, the Ohio State staff called passes on 15 of 22 plays. Graham completed 3 for 11 for 38 yards, with three others dropped by receivers. Iowa's defense had as many sacks as the Buckeyes had completions.

The Buckeyes travel to Minnesota for a game Saturday. They lost in their only previous trip outside Ohio, 10-7 to Illinois.

Asked what his team had to shoot for after the Iowa loss, Cooper said, "The only goal we have right now is to win the game this week."

Volleyball team drops another home match

David Taylor

Daily Iowan

The Iowa volleyball team lost another Big Ten home match this past weekend in Iowa City.

This time it was Northwestern who had their way with the Hawkeyes, beating Iowa 3-1 (6-15, 6-15, 15-13, 9-15) and dropping their record to 6-20 for the year. The loss also puts the Hawkeyes at 1-11 in conference play, the lone win coming against Michigan State back in September.

Iowa was supposed to have played a match against Wisconsin on Friday night, but the contest was forfeited due to the shootings in Iowa City that afternoon. The Northwestern match was postponed from Saturday night until Sunday afternoon.

Michelle Haywood led Iowa against the Wildcats with 15 kills Toronto won for only the fourth time in 15 games. The expansion Sharks are 0-11-0 on the road, including a seven-game trip that ended at Maple Leaf Gardens.

The victory saved face for Montreal goaltender Patrick Roy, who allowed a freak goal to tie the game in the third period.

New Jersey's Peter Stastny, headed off the ice on a line change, flipped the puck in from center ice at the shot bounced over Roy's glove at 11:00. Roy, who had allowed only 19 goals in his past 12 games, just dropped his stick and stared ahead in embarrassment.

NFL TRENDS

Anything can happen on Sunday

Dave Goldberg
Associated Press

It was that "any given Sunday" in the NFL. Atlanta won on a usually impossible desperation pass and eight NFC West losers had a chance to win in the waning minutes.

Even the winless Colts. Of the 11 games played Sunday, eight weren't decided until the final two minutes or later — two games went into overtime. In addition to the Billy Joe Tolliver-Michael Haynes game-winner for the Falcons over the 49ers, there were two other successful "Hail Mary" passes — making three more on one Sunday than there usually are in a season.

The Tolliver to Haynes connection, which Haynes caught on the ground in a "jump ball" situation, gave the Falcons a 17-14 victory. It came 52 seconds after Steve Bono, in for the injured Steve Young, found John Taylor from 30 yards to give San Francisco the lead.

The New York Jets also scored on a 50-yard "Hail Mary" at the end of the half against Green Bay.

But the Rams had less luck with long-distance heaves in their 24-17 loss to New Orleans.

Jim Everett's potential game-tying pass from 50 yards out in the last seconds was intercepted by Vince Buck at the goal line. New Orleans' victory margin was a 31-yard TD pass from Steve Walsh to Wesley Carroll through the hands of two Los Angeles defenders with four seconds left in the half.

The Washington Redskins and the Jets each won in overtime. The Redskins (9-0) beat Houston 16-13 to remain the league's only unbeaten team. But each would have lost if the other team's kicker hadn't missed a makeable field goal — the Oilers' Ian Howfield from 33 yards with a second left in regulation, Green Bay's Chris Jacke from 42 yards in overtime.

Cincinnati won its first game. The Bengals beat Cleveland 23-21 and finally got some of the luck it hasn't had this year.

Matt Stover, who had beaten the Bengals in September with a 45-yarder, hit the left upright from 47 yards out with 1:55 left, his first miss in 10 tries. Brian Brennan, normally one of the NFL's sure-handed receivers, had a Bernie Kosar pass hit him in the shoulder-pad in the end zone. And Eric Thomas blocked Stover's 34-yard try as time expired.

"It's almost like we won the Super Bowl," Cincinnati's Boomer Esiason said. "That's how important and significant this is to us."

Pittsburgh blew two late chances in its 20-13 loss to Denver. Gary Anderson missed from 24 yards, his first miss from 35 yards or closer in 57 kicks. And Neil O'Donnell's fourth-and-one pass in the last minute bounced off Eric Green on the goal line.

New England, an underdog by more than two touchdowns, lost by 22-17 at Buffalo. The Bills needed an interception by Darryl Talley at the 30 with :15 seconds left to end the Patriots' final threat.

"I looked across the field and they were jumping up-and-down," said James Lofton of the Bills (8-1). "I almost felt like going over there and saying 'Hey guys, WE won.'"

As for the 0-9 Colts... They haven't scored a touchdown for five consecutive games. Rick Venturi, who took over for Ron Meyer four games ago, hasn't even seen his team score a TD. For the season, the Colts have scored just 61 points in 9 games, an average of less than a TD, while giving up 203.

But they were in Sunday's game with Miami. After falling behind 10-0 in the first quarter, they got two field goals from Dean Biasucci. But Louis Oliver's interception killed one drive, then they reached the Miami 47 where Jeff George's fourth-down pass with 1:53 remaining fell incomplete.

It was not a good day for kickers.

Not only did Howfield, Jacke and Stover miss potential game-winners and Anderson miss from close, but San Francisco's Mike Cofer missed twice from 32 and a third time from 47. Had he made them, "Big Ben" would have been irrelevant.

Bear John Mangum gets a hand in the face of Lion Barry Sanders during NFL action Sunday. The Bears won the game 20-10 in a weird week for football which saw eight of 11 losing teams almost win.

But Jacke's miss against the Jets gave Pat Leahy a chance for redemption. The 40-year-old Leahy, who had missed a 28-yarder in overtime against the Bears six weeks ago, connected from 37 to beat the Packers.

"I forgot about that," said Leahy, who became New York's kicker 17 years ago when he beat out Bobby Howfield, Ian's father. "We don't win easily, do we?"

MUSIC REVIEW

Zounds, it's lame: new Trip Shakespeare

Talent goes to the Trip-sters' heads as Lulu rings of pop 'new wavers' the Romantics.

Kimberly Chun
Daily Iowan

A Midwestern rock mag recently described Minneapolis' Trip Shakespeare as "a glee club for pot-heads," and forsooth, the band does hit a new, high note of dumbness with its latest release Lulu.

The spirit of folk rock combos with a penchant for all things medieval hovers over the polished corpse of Lulu. But, where Fairport Convention took on folk rock with the ever-subtle guitar work of Richard Thompson and the understated yet idiosyncratic phrasing of Sandy Denny, the Trip-sters tend to wrap their choral chops around the most innocuous and polished pop since such "new wavers" as the Romantics (not to be confused with Wordsworth and Shelley). "Your Mouth," in particular, reeks of "Talking in Your Sleep" with a soupçon of politely controlled feedback and more mondo-dramatic vocals than humanly necessary. Triple "icks" also go to the vacuous "Bachelorette" and "Down My Block." Someone told these guys they were talented, and apparently they never quite recovered. Admittedly, Matt and Dan Wilson have two of the most octave-leaping male voices in college-oriented rock. But on Lulu, their vocals are so overwrought, robust and manly (imaginably in response perhaps to those who accuse them of feyness) that they verge on, and often tumble into, kitsch. The Wilsons remind me of drama students who burst into songs from "South Pacific" on long car rides because they know they've got a captive, unfortunate audience for their unrepentant hamming. Get these boys to Robert Bly's summer camp. Other tunes are redeemable, however. "Will You Be Found" is replete with boyishly unabashed "lalalala"s and a quasi-Renaissance-era rhythm culled from the back of a Jethro Tull songbook. It just might make you grab fistfuls of turkey legs and cat-o'-nine-tails, put on big pointy green elf-boots, stomp around like a troll, kicking over toadstools. To which I say: Go with that feeling, Trip Shakespeare, go with that rootsy, Old English weirdness. Go with what distinguishes you from those other college pop bands and sing the "Song of Roland," my child.

Dennis Keeley

Watch out or they'll belt out the score to the "Fantasticks": Trip Shakespeare tests your patience with Lulu.

MOVIE REVIEW

"Big Bill" Shakespeare auditions all 29 of his plays before a passive stage director in Barry Purves' "Next." "The British Animation Invasion" shows at the Bijou Thursday through Sunday.

Not far from Saturday cartoons

Kevin Ruby
Daily Iowan

The latest Bijou extravaganza is an army of animated shorts, "British Animation Invasion," but the film is armed with toothpicks, not swords. Rather than enjoying the nearly two-hour exhibit of animated wonder as I have with past animation anthologies, I found myself getting both angry and bored. Experienced barrel-scrappers, please take note. "Invasion" shows at the Bijou Thursday through Sunday.

As with other cartoon collages that have passed through the UI, "Invasion" offers a variety of animated shorts, this time all from British filmmakers. "Invasion" is press kit is crammed with smarmy little sound bites like "sure-fire round of high-tech fun" or "hotbed of creativity." It neglects, however, to mention that about half of the animated pieces are commercials for liquor and even Legos.

It's bad enough that I am forced to sit through commercials during "Cheers." But I really hate it when I have to watch them during a film, or, in this case, a series of small films. Defenders of "Invasion" might say something like: "Artists need to work with advertising to pay the bills," or "It's a great way to showcase a particular artist's early stages of development." But these arguments are only partly valid — product-placement is still product-placement, and it really doesn't belong in cinema.

Another downer of "Invasion" is the inclusion of Peter Gabriel's video "Sledgehammer" (directed by Stephen Johnson), which combines the best of stop-action photography, claymation and just about every animation trick in the book. I don't knock the video itself — personally, I think it is one of the best videos ever made — but the piece has been running on MTV for six years now; the large majority of the campus has probably seen it 20 times. "Sledgehammer" doesn't feel like a part of the invasion, more like a long-time conqueror.

However, there are four animated shorts that stick out in my mind as being worthwhile. The Academy Award-winning "Creature Comforts" (directed by Nick Park) is a five-minute claymation comic, mock-documentary on zoo animals and their complaints. It's a funny piece with brilliant insights on human nature, disguised in the world of the wild.

Another claymation piece simply titled "Next" (directed by Barry Purves) is a homage to Shakespeare, who "auditions" before a passive stage director. I particularly enjoyed "Bluesfields Express" (directed by Charlie Fletcher Watson), which combines actual film footage with a collage of still-life and animation. Watson's piece tells the true story of how two remote villages in Nicaragua adapted to difficult living conditions after their only link of transportation was destroyed. Although much of the politics that obviously influenced "Bluesfields" is now passé with the new Nicaraguan government, it is still an interesting work that highlights a once-important topic in U.S. politics.

The best of the lot is undoubtedly "Dolphins" (directed by Ian Andrew), a three-minute piece done in water colors. No story, no dialogue — just a barrage of these graceful creatures' images as they move through the water, set to an eerie score by Brian Eno. This piece truly affected me and made me angry that such innocent and beautiful animals are being killed in fishermen's nets. Apparently Greenpeace had the same reaction — after seeing the short, they used "Dolphins" as a part of pressure campaigns in Scotland and Wales.

But these are only a few blue ribbon entries in what I thought was a sea of mediocre animations. Candy Guard's shorts display an obvious Bill Plympton influence — and it's like watching bad Bill Plympton. "Ident" by Richard Golezowski is a claymation, social commentary about the urban jungle — but the claymation is awful. Joanna Quinn's "Body Beautiful" is not only slow-moving and boring, it's also vividly stereotypical — even borderline racist toward the Japanese.

Animation is probably the most difficult form of cinema to pull off well. The only person to blame is the artist, who is also frequently the director/film editor/writer/chief contributor to voice effects. Festivals like these are usually enjoyable because the majority of the pieces are well-crafted and deliver a unique message with a creative presentation. But "Invasion" is like shifting through TV channels looking for a good show to watch; there's a few contenders, a lot of pretenders and interruptions from a lot of really annoying commercials.

Punk-folkie discovers his body

David Bauder
Associated Press

ALBANY, N.Y. — Weeks after the Communist Party was toppled from power in the Soviet Union, music's best-known socialist Billy Bragg was busy promoting his latest work — about sex.

"To release a pop song about sexuality is definitely not what people are expecting from me," the voluble British songwriter said. "The whole linchpin ... was to put out an album where people would say, 'Wow, this is Billy Bragg? We always thought of him as a one-dimensional, political kind of guy.'"

The collection of socialist anthems was released months after the Berlin Wall fell.

"In some ways I've been hoisted by my own petard because I want to talk about the issues that we've been talking about," he said. "I'm not in any way trying to reject that or walk away from that. But I do feel like I've been painted into a corner by people who think I only write political songs. I write about anything."

The only overtly political songs on Bragg's 16-song album are "Don't Try This at Home," concerning the economy and bigotry in Britain, and "Everywhere," about the internment of Japanese-Americans in World War II, a song Bragg didn't write.

Songs like "Wish You Were Her" and "Mother of the Bride" are bittersweet love odes with appealingly original twists.

"It is difficult to write emotional songs if you try to write about a perspective that hasn't been covered before," he said. "I tried to do that with 'Sexuality.' I tried to talk about the importance of safe sex and protecting yourself and at the same time enjoying your sexuality." He considers "Sexuality" the album's most important song, both for what it does to change his image and for setting a standard of quality he tried to make the other songs live up to. Bragg, usually a loner when it comes to writing, co-wrote "Sexuality" with guitarist Johnny Marr, formerly of the Smiths. He also wrote with R.E.M. guitarist Peter Buck.

Young violinist plays at Clapp

Brett Ratner
Daily Iowan

Success always came easy for violinist Chee-Yun. The 21-year-old native of Seoul, Korea, will demonstrate why Wednesday at 8 p.m. in Clapp Recital Hall.

"I started playing violin as a hobby when I was 6 years old because my sisters were getting all of my mom's attention," said Yun. That "hobby" would soon garner her international recognition and acclaim.

According to Yun, the secret of her success was the gentle encouragement of her mother, a Juilliard graduate and music teacher, as well as Yun's own clever means to make practice fun.

"I never liked the long hours of practice so I would make things interesting by learning songs we sang in kindergarten," said Yun. "That really impressed my teacher."

Others were soon to be impressed as well. By the age of 8, Yun won the Korean Times Competition.

"I hope that I never stop learning. There is so much you can do with performing; I hope that I can keep playing and improving until the day I die."

Chee-Yun, violinist

The national competition was the first contest she ever entered, and she "hasn't really lost one since."

This winning streak includes an '83 victory at the New York Philharmonic Young Soloist Competition, the Juilliard School Competition, Young Concert Artist Series and her most recent prize, the Avery Fisher Career Grant, in April 1990.

She also has been a featured soloist with the New York Philharmonic, the Juilliard Orchestra and the New York String Orchestra.

Wednesday's performance features a workload worthy of her credentials. Yun, accompanied by pianist Akira Eguchi, will perform Mozart's Violin Sonata in A major and Szymanowski's Sonata in D minor. After a brief intermission, Yun will continue with "Duo Concertant" by Stravinsky, "Serenade Melancolique" by Tchaikovsky and will finish with Polonaise in D major, Op. 4, by Wienawski.

Any one of these pieces would be a formidable challenge to mere mortal musicians, yet all five, one after another, would be quite an accomplishment indeed.

Despite her achievements, Yun feels that she is still a beginner and plans to continue to learn and perhaps even compose when the rigors of touring lightens up. Most of all, Yun wants to play and have fun, as when she played her first kindergarten tune by ear.

"I hope that I never stop learning," said Yun. "There is so much you can do with performing; I hope that I can keep playing and improving until the day I die."

Violinist Chee-Yun will perform Wednesday at Clapp Recital Hall as part of Hancher's Young Concert Artists Series.

Shooting survivor's condition

Miya Rodolpho-Sioson, a surviving victim of Friday's shootings, was reported to be in stable condition at the University of Iowa Clinics Tuesday.

Rodolpho-Sioson is experiencing paralysis in her neck and shoulder, but her spinal cord, but fragments remain in the canal. The paralysis is permanent. However, she is breathing without mechanical assistance.

Physicians expect Rodolpho-Sioson's condition to improve. She was admitted to the surgical intensive care nursing unit within a few hours.

Payne named a recipient of physics and astronomy award

The UI Tuesday named Payne, 53, to the position of chairman of the Department of Physics and Astronomy. She was appointed to the position in 1974 and to the position of associate professor in 1980.

Payne, whose research interests are in nuclear physics and plasma physics, came to the UI in 1969 as an assistant professor. She was promoted to associate professor in 1974 and to full professor in 1980.

Payne succeeds Dr. Robert D. Serber, who chaired the department from 1985 until his death in 1988 as a result of the shooting.

Donations for victims of Friday's shootings taken at downtown Gages

A donation center for victims of Friday's shootings in the Old Capitol building was open Tuesday.

A wreath, table and other items will be set up at the center court room of the Old Capitol building Wednesday through Friday. Donations will go to the State Bank & Trust Co. to help pay the medical bills of Rodolpho-Sioson and the widow of Linhua Shih.

Course withdrawal deadline extended

The UI has extended the deadline for dropping courses to Tuesday, November 12, at 4:30 p.m. The previous deadline was today.

The extension applies to graduate students in the Liberal Arts, Pharmacy, Business Administration, and the Division of Continuing Education.

Associate Dean of James Lindberg said the extension was made in consideration of Friday's campus shooting and the fact that faculty have been as ready to advise students this week.
