PHILIPPS NEW FEDERAL BOARD MEMBER

Phillips, after interest rates on Tuesday, in his position in the United States Treasury Department, President Bush's nomination for the board's vice chair, has been confirmed by the Senate. Phillips is a former Treasury official who served in the administration of President Ronald Reagan.

The confirmation brings to six the number of board members for the Federal Reserve Board, which oversees the operations of the nation's central bank. The confirmation also fills a vacancy created by the resignation of former Board Member Michael Prendergast.

Phillips, a career official at the Federal Reserve, has been serving as its director of research and policy. He joined the Reserve in 1987 and has served in various positions, including as a member of the Board of Governors and the Board of Directors.

The Senate confirmed Phillips with a vote of 79-19, with 15 Republicans voting no. Several of the Senate's Republicans were concerned about Phillips' ties to the financial industry, but the Senate ultimately approved his nomination.

Phillips will now take on the role of vice chair of the Federal Reserve Board, a position that oversees the operations of the nation's central bank. He will serve alongside Chairman Ben S. Bernanke and other Board Members.

The Federal Reserve is responsible for setting monetary policy, including interest rates, and stabilizing the economy. Phillips will play a key role in these decisions, working closely with Bernanke and the Board's other members.

In his new position, Phillips will be expected to contribute to the Board's efforts to maintain price stability, promote maximum employment, and ensure financial system stability.

"I'm a Junior at the UI and I roll out of bed three times a week to work in the Reserve Officers Training Corps," said Capt. Scholes, who has graduated or will graduate with every class from the ROTC program in 37 years. "I've been teaching and training students for the Army or the Air Force. Some students come to the program to simply learn more about the United States military, while others enter with aspirations of becoming an active-duty officer."

Following college graduation, Capt. Scholes will be deployed to Afghanistan ROTC after he was contacted by University of Iowa ROTC during the freshman year.

"The ROTC is one of the most important programs in our school," said Scholes. "During my senior year, I was assigned to be the ROTC advisor at the UI."

"The program also provides an opportunity for me to share my experiences with others," said Scholes. "I have been teaching and training students for the Army or the Air Force. Some students come to the program to simply learn more about the United States military, while others enter with aspirations of becoming an active-duty officer."

Capt. Scholes said that he is currently working with ROTC students to prepare for the US Army Officers' Recruitment Program. This program is designed to help ROTC students secure OROC assignments.

Scholes called the program a "lifeline" for ROTC students who are interested in pursuing a career in the military. He said that the program provides financial assistance to students who are accepted into ROTC programs and that it is open to both men and women.

Groups lobby Board of Health to keep HIV testing anonymous

Diana Walters

With a bag over his head to symbolize his struggle with the AIDS virus, the Rev. John F. Lee visited the Board of Health on Monday to argue for keeping HIV testing anonymous. He also asked the board to set up observation rooms for people coming in for AIDS testing.

Lee, a Calcutta, India, native who has been counseling AIDS victims for years, said the board should be "simply asking a few questions to be sure you're not infected." He said the board had done "a lot of things with regard to AIDS in Iowa.

C.F. Brown, the president of the board, said, "We're trying to do the best we can with what we're given," referring to the board's efforts to keep people with AIDS in the state.

While the possibility of a change in the height of the board's ruling may seem like a small thing, it could make a difference to someone who would rather know that he's infected than to have the stigma of being diagnosed.

The Daily Iowan, the newspaper of the University of Iowa, is one of the few papers in Iowa that have been covering the story of the tribe's appeal of rulings by lower federal courts that had thrown out the tribe's claim. The tribe, which is worth about $4 million, is trying to keep its reservation status intact.

In the wake of the tribe's appeal, the board is expected to make a decision on whether to hear the case. The tribe's leaders say they'll appeal the decision of the U.S. Supreme Court, which had thrown out the tribe's claim.

The board is expected to hear the case in the next few months. The tribe's leaders say they'll continue to fight the case, even if they lose.

American caught in Germany with snake, crocodile, weapons

Associated Press

FRANKFURT, Germany—Police said Sunday that a citizen U.S. Army reservist has been arrested in Germany. The reservist, who was in a vehicle with a man and woman, was found in possession of a large python and a crocodile.

Police said the 36-year-old U.S. citizen was arrested Saturday on charges of keeping endangered species. The reservist is a member of the U.S. Army Reserve and was on a deployment to Germany.

The reservist was arrested after police found the python and crocodile in his vehicle near a military base. The reservist has been charged with two counts of illegal possession of endangered species.

The U.S. Army Reserve said it is investigating the incident and will provide an update as soon as possible.

Street fighting, shelling mark most recent battle

GROZNY, U.S.S.R.—Nationalists fired heavy artillery and machine guns into a residential area of the Chechen capital on Sunday, pressuring the government to concede to demands of independence.

The fighting began after Chechen officials said 80 people were killed in an air raid in Grozny on Saturday. The official death toll was not confirmed, but it was believed to be much higher.

The nationalists have rejected the government's offer of a referendum on independence. They want full independence from Moscow.

The fighting has continued for days, with both sides claiming victory. The government has accused the nationalists of violating a cease-fire agreement.

In Moscow, Russian legislators met Sunday to debate the emergency rule. Russian President Boris Yeltsin has asked for emergency powers to deal with the situation.

The government has been pressuring the nationalists to accept a peaceful solution.

Iowa runs Indiana into ground

Led by a strong performance from the backfield quarterback, as well as record-setting rushing by tailback Mike Saunders, the Hawkeyes dominated the Hoosiers. Saunders, who had a career-high 117 yards rushing, led the team with 104 carries on the season. The Hawkeyes also held Indiana to just 24 points, the lowest-scoring game in the series in nearly 10 years.

The Iowa’s defense was its usual outstanding defense by any standards. The Hawkeyes dominated the Hoosiers throughout the first half and outscored them 15-10 in the contest. The red-ribboned Hawkeyes, however, showed that they were the best team in the nation this year by a score of 21-7. Show some class, students, they were a part of all of us

Students should have been the first to be quiet. The shootings happened on their campus...and on their lives.

No noise was heard from the spectators as the final seconds ticked away in the game that was to be the last home game of the season for the Hawkeyes. The mood was somber as the Hawkeyes celebrated a 31-6 victory over the Hoosiers in front of a sellout crowd of 56,833 at Kinnick Stadium in Iowa City.

The Hawkeyes had been unbeaten in their last five home games, and they had been playing for the Big Ten Conference title. But the Hoosiers were also a tough team, and the game was even closer than the final score would suggest.

The Cleveland Browns’ game against the Philadelphia Eagles before it ended in the 4th quarter, earning Player of the Game honors and a school record.

Iowa had the ball on the Hoosier 31 to give the Chiefs the lead. Then, as Smith set a new standard for NFL passing yards, Donnelly beat the number two defense in the country.

The streak began last Dec. 16, when Iowa beat Penn State 10-7 in the last game of the season.

"They know that the ball is coming, they just don't know where," Donnelly said of the Sooners.

Bart Smith, another key to Iowa’s defense, said: "We work so hard together. When we play against the number two defense in the country, we don’t want them to get the ball and score on us."

For the Iowa-ten, Iowa had a pair of interceptions, one each from Tyson Jackson and Hunter Smith.

"I’d like to say that our defense did a good job of holding them to 30 points," Smith said. "But we want to get to 100 points on them."

Los Lobos tear up Macabride with a raucous, rocking show

Jennifer Hare
Daily Iowan

We'd like to welcome you to a musical experience that will take decades to warm your heart. Los Lobos, the quintessential Tex-Mex band, brought their unique sound to the city last week, filling Macabride Auditorium with a sound that has been described as "an American symphony.

The band, comprised of frontman David Hidalgo, guitarist and harmonica player Alberto B棄os, drummer Louis Perez, and bassist Steven Somervell, opened the evening with their signature blend of Mexican rhythms and American rock 'n' roll. Their set was a testament to their talent and dedication, as they moved effortlessly from blues to rock, with each member contributing his unique style.

"Initially, I came to 'Green Streets' with a certain idea of what I wanted to make," says Mark Flaherty, the filmmaker behind the documentary. "I thought it would be a straightforward look at urban gardening in Iowa City. But as I delved deeper into the project, I realized that it was much more than that." The documentary, titled "Green Streets," follows the efforts of a group of community members as they work together to create a garden in the heart of Iowa City.

The documentary explores the history of urban gardening in the city, and how it has become a source of social and environmental change. The film features interviews with community leaders, gardeners, and residents who share their stories and experiences. The documentary also includes footage of the gardeners at work, and the physical transformation of the garden over time.

The film was produced and directed by Flaherty, and was shot over the course of several years. It was recently released in the United States, and has received positive reviews for its engaging storytelling and inspiring message.

"I hope that 'Green Streets' will inspire people to get involved in their own communities," says Flaherty. "It's important to remember that we all have a role to play in creating a better world, and that we can all make a difference." The film is a powerful reminder of the importance of community engagement, and the positive impact that it can have on our society.

The documentary will be shown at the Iowa City Film Festival, which is taking place in November. It is one of many films being shown at the festival, which celebrates the power of film to inspire, educate, and entertain.

"Green Streets" is a must-see for anyone interested in the power of community, and the impact that it can have on our lives. It is a beautiful film, and a testament to the importance of working together to create a better future."
Miami against Florida State could decide champ

For the third straight year, the defending national champion will be at stake in the Orange Bowl. Florida State, which has not lost since the 1988 Sugar Bowl, is considered a strong favorite to repeat as national champion.

With 11 wins and an impressive victory over Nebraska in last year's Orange Bowl, the Seminoles are primed for another national title run. Coach Bobby Bowden's team has shown that it can perform well in big games, winning three national championships in the past five seasons.

Florida State's defense, which has allowed just 14.6 points per game, is led by All-American linebacker Randy Starks and All-American safety John Lynch. The Seminoles' offense, led by quarterback Ronny Elrod and running back Darrell Jackson, is expected to put up plenty of points against Oklahoma.

Oklahoma, on the other hand, has struggled on offense this season, averaging just 21.5 points per game. The Sooners' defense, however, has been solid, allowing just 14.1 points per game.

A win by either team would solidify its place in the national title game. Florida State is the clear favorite, but Oklahoma is not to be discounted, especially with its strong defense.

No bunk, Superchunk offers slack good times at Gabe's Oasis tonight.

John Kenyon (Daily Iowan)

A tightly wound band by the name of Superchunk will arrive into Gabe's Oasis tonight, bearing a load of perfect pop songs and loose, easy energy.

Superchunk plays grungy garage pop at its dirtiest, each song a nail-biting moment of titanic noise. Luckily a loud bass or guitar line saves a song given its immedi- ately unlistenable grind. Various other ele- ments are thrown into the mix, quickly become- ing overwhelming.

The most impressive part of the Superchunk experience is the seemingly endless batch of songs that can play backburner well into their set, but lose the drive of a rock 'n' roll crunch. Superchunk aside, a band that would drop five minutes worth of playing time only to play the song again in a more mellow fashion. But unlike the run-of-the-mill noise bands, Superchunk is guaranteed every time, which is guaranteed every time.

The latest, No Peck For Entry, is an aural delight. It's easy to imagine this as a compila- tion of great singles, pairing every two songs as skillfully as possible. From the release of a song to the release of the next, there is never a clunker.

Once a break is found in this morning's set, the band takes a much more ch.assical offering. Superchunk hits the road when it rolls into the Street, 351 8th St. The pop factory will set up shop and play out hit that will drive even the most jaded eyes into the pit.

Superchunk is a powerful fact, a fact that can't be denied. Songs can be saved by its content. So hold true to your beliefs, Superchunk lives here in a grade book, it's double A it will let go.
