JOWA IOWA'S MORNING NEWSPAPER

Unions reflect conflicting views of Branstad testimony

By Eric Deitzer

The union executive councils at Iowa State University and Iowa's largest union have given mixed reactions to Governor Branstad's recent testimony before the legislature.

"I'm not sure what he is going to say," said Pat McKee, a former Pat McCrory, a former state Rep. and an associate of the UI Federation.

"I'm not sure what he is going to say," said Pat McCrory, a former state Rep. and an associate of the UI Federation.

Candidate Laughlin visits local school, blasts Harkin

Loren Keller

Taking the podium in the small auditorium of Coralville's Washington Elementary School, Democratic presidential candidate Tom Harkin spoke to a crowd of about 250 students and parents about the issues facing children and families in the 1990s.

Harkin, the Iowa senator, said the Bush administration's education policy is a "disaster" and that the president's budget proposal would cut education spending by $1 billion.

"We're not going to have a future," Harkin said. "We're going to have a present." He added that the Bush administration is "wasting money on programs that are not working and not doing what's right for the American people.

"The Bush administration is not only going to cut education spending, but it's also going to cut health care spending," he said. "We need to have a future, and we need to have a future with education and health care for all Americans."

Harkin also called for a $10 billion investment in education, including $5 billion for preschool programs and $5 billion for college tuition aid.

"We need to have a future, and we need to have a future with education and health care for all Americans," Harkin said. "We need to have a future with a future, and we need to have a future with a future.

Harkin concluded his speech by thanking the students and parents for their support and promising to continue fighting for the future of America.

Tom Laughlin, Democratic presidential hopeful and Iowa native, spoke to the students and parents about the importance of education and the need for a future where everyone has access to quality education.

"We need to have a future where everyone has access to quality education," he said. "We need to have a future where everyone has access to quality education.

Laughlin also called for a $10 billion investment in education, including $5 billion for preschool programs and $5 billion for college tuition aid.

Circuit Court Judge Alan Kantor, who was the judge for many Washington, county, small claims court cases, received national attention this week when he announced a three-day visit to judge many other county courts.

"I'm glad that the American judicial system is able to represent the majority of the state's counties," Kantor said in his press conference.

"The judge has been known as a leader in the state of Iowa."

Something to consider on Thanksgiving Day

Thanksgiving will undoubtedly have special meaning to Thaddeus Sutherland following his release by White Muslim captors in Lebanon. For most of his six-year internment, Sutherland was chained to a wall.

While Sutherland will be spending the Thanksgiving with family and friends, another American hostage, Terry Anderson, will spend his seventh Thanksgiving in captivity.

Anderson, the chief Middle East correspondent for the Associated Press, was taken captive by a group of fanatical terrorists in August 1983 as the result of the Islamic Holy War in March 1985. According to the report from his family, he is "no longer chained to a wall," but "is well in a room with very little food and air and daylight.

With the exception of President Ronald Reagan's attempt to exchange arms for hostages, the policy of the United States government has been one that refuses, at least publicly, to negotiate with those who hold American hostages.

Rethinking the '60s

To the Editor:

I found Jim Roger's article "The 60's: The Village is Vanishing" (Nov. 25) quite offensive. His attempt to socialize the Vietnam experience as a "war crime" is nothing new. Mr. Roger's "stark, brutal, cynicism and the impersonal barbarism" which have been lashed out at our enemies by the principal target is not our body of the woman who has been sterilized. These attitudes reveal the true nature of men. It is time our leaders realized that the "war on poverty" is a failure.

The upheaval which has occurred in the 1960's is not because of an enlarged national conscience, but because of the inability of the nations to accept the challenge of the future. The facts show that when left to their own devices, human beings do not always act in a reasonable manner.

Because our leaders refuse to consider the facts, our society is still in a state of turmoil. It is time that we, as a nation, begin to take the necessary steps to correct our mistakes.

Buchanan wants to lead the Republican right

I seem conservative columnist Pat Buchanan is preparing to challenge President Bush and his brand of moderate Republicanism in the 1992 New Hampshire primary. Yet, things are not always what they seem. Buchanan's challenge to Bush is not simply about 1992. It is about the future of the Republican Party as a whole.

This is a crucial time for the Republican Party. With Bush in power, the party has been able to reverse its image as the party of the rich and the powerful. Bush's leadership has helped to show that the Republicans are capable of being a more compassionate and inclusive party.

However, Buchanan's challenge to Bush is not only about the future of the Republican Party. It is also about the future of conservatism itself.

Buchanan is a strong advocate of traditional values and principles. He believes in the importance of family, religion, and community. He supports the rights of the unborn and believes in the importance of life. These are all values that are important to the conservative movement.

Buchanan's challenge to Bush is not about a specific policy issue. It is about the future of conservatism as a whole. Buchanan believes that the Republican Party needs to take a more active role in promoting the values of the conservative movement.

Anyone who has followed Buchanan's writings and raving of the last two years or knows those who have been critical of Bush's moderation, he has been particularly well-served on the subject of neoconservatism.

On the other side is the moderate, pragmatic Bush. He is the leader of the Republican Party as we know it today. He believes in working with the other parties to get things done. He is a leader who is willing to listen to other voices and work with them to get things done.

Buchanan's challenge to Bush is not about a specific policy issue. It is about the future of conservatism as a whole. Buchanan believes that the Republican Party needs to take a more active role in promoting the values of the conservative movement.

Freed Sutherland returns to United States

Officials may call new election to reconfirm Aristide’s ouster

Barbadosian scholar Margaret Tutwiler, an associate professor at the University of Iowa, returned to Haiti on Thursday night, via a special flight arranged by the U.S. Coast Guard on flood information.

Tutwiler, who is on leave from the University of Iowa, said she was told by the Haitian government that she could not return to the country and would be deported to the United States.

The Coast Guard said it had received a request from the U.S. Department of Homeland Security to assist in the evacuation of Tutwiler.

Tutwiler, who has been teaching at the University of Iowa for five years, said she was given a choice to either return to the United States or be arrested.

She said she tried to return but was turned away by the Haitian authorities.

The Coast Guard said it was able to clear Tutwiler's name with the Haitian government before she was allowed to enter the country.

Tutwiler thanked the Coast Guard for its help in getting her back home.

She said she was looking forward to seeing her family and friends again.

The Coast Guard said it would continue to monitor the situation on the ground in Haiti.

The university has not yet decided whether to offer Tutwiler a position for the upcoming academic year.

A new study finds that men have a higher risk of hearing loss than women, and that the risk increases with age. Researchers from the Iowa State University, led by Joseph Ritter, conducted a study to examine the association between hearing loss and age, gender, and socioeconomic status. The study included a representative sample of 5,000 adults aged 18-85, and found that men were more likely to have hearing loss than women. The study also found that the risk of hearing loss increased with age, with the highest prevalence among adults aged 75 and older. The study was funded by the National Institutes of Health, and the results were published in the Journal of Gerontology: Social Sciences.

Bono leads 49ers over Rams

Kansas James has played quarterback for the Cowboys in 1962 and what is the Hawkeye's overall record?

Answer: 3-9
FOOTBALL: 49ers beat Rams

Steve Lade provided the short-yardage rushing to get the Rams on the scoreboard in the first quarter.

While this threat could mean a lot at all other times, the Rams did little with it. Their second-quarter, second-down 20-yard pass to the NFL in pass defense, strongly might not stop them in the fourth quarter.

And, until Los Angeles drove to a 37-card field goal by Tony Brumfield in the last part of the first half, the Rams' offense was almost non-existent....only down by the time.

A whole pass in the first half seemed to run up the Rams.

— On the kickoff following the Rams' second touchdown, the ball went off the Rams' David Lang in the end zone and bounded back across the goal line. LaVone Turner scored the final 14 of the first quarter from the one-yard line. The Rams in their only touchdown came in a 3rd and 2 run by Marvino Duncan in the third quarter, the first 31 yards of the touchdown. The Rams' second-down pass made it 38-6 by the first half. The Rams, on the second, saw a first down at the 34-yard line.

Navratilova airs opinions on Magic situation

Best Essential
Associated Press

NEW YORK — Martina Navratilova has expressed her strong feelings about Magic Johnson.

She told the Associated Press that she would not re-sign with the Los Angeles Lakers for the next season.

Navratilova is a basketball player who has won 19 Grand Slam singles titles and 16 doubles titles. She is one of the most successful and popular players in women's tennis.

The Associated Press is a U.S.-based news agency that provides coverage on a wide range of topics, including sports, politics, and international events.

Navratilova's opinions on Magic Johnson highlight the unique perspective that tennis players can bring to discussions about basketball. Her comments reflect the public interest in both tennis and basketball, and the ways in which these two sports intersect in the broader cultural landscape.

Cardinals trade pitcher Hill for Montreal 1B Galarraga

ST. LOUIS — The St. Louis Cardinals dealt a low blow in the middle of their filming on Monday, agreeing to trade standout starting pitcher Ken Fallstrom for right-handed pitcher Ken Galarraga from the Montreal Expos for right-handed pitcher Ken Fallstrom.

The deal came just a week after the Cardinals and they would not pursue any of the Major League Free Agents. They had been expected to sign to run the field for the Montreal Expos or Wally Joyner.

Galarraga, 26, slumped to a .219 average with 26 home runs and 6.3 runs in eight years with the St. Louis Cardinals.

As his record shows, Hill was inconsistent in a little more than two seasons with the St. Louis Cardinals. According to the Associated Press, he didn't express any interest in re-signing Galarraga for some time. The Cardinals are moving in the fences for next season after expressing no interest in re-signing Galarraga.

But he did express his opinion in the preseason.

"We would love to sign a lefty pitcher in the future," Cardinals manager Joe Torre said. "We didn't want to give up anything like Ken Hill, but we would love to get you to quality to get quality Hill, who will be 26 next month, was 1-1 in 11 starts for the Cardinals this season. He has a .259 career average.

"I'm not sure how to use him, but we would love to get you to quality Hill, who will be 26 next month, was 1-1 in 11 starts for the Cardinals this season. He has a .259 career average.

The current wave of music videos is a little more unpredictable than usual. Rarely do we find something that will surprise us, intrigue us, or even merely amuse us. Yet, there is one video on the market that makes a strong and positive impression on us. It is the video for "Pretty Woman," released this month, and it is not the usual video we have come to expect from statements and films. It is a video that is both visually and musically engaging, and it is a video that is a true reflection of the message of the song. It is a video that is a true reflection of the message of the song.

"Pretty Woman" is the latest single from the upcoming album "The Joshua Tree," and it is a song that is both upbeat and introspective. The video is directed by David Fincher, and it features a performance by Bono that is both passionate and powerful. The video begins with a shot of Bono sitting in a room, and it then cuts to a series of images that are both visually stunning and musically captivating. The video is a true reflection of the message of the song, and it is a video that is a true reflection of the message of the song.
