Smoking policy restricts departmental autonomy

The task force on college smoking policies has recommended that a total ban be imposed by the central administration on all smoking in all campus buildings. This recommendation is authoritarian, overprotective, and unrealistic. It should be rejected.

It is unrealistic to assume that the college campus is a small world in which everyone lives, works, and learns together in an unvarying daily routine. The individual needs and wishes of each person within the campus must be taken into account. Smoking is only one of a variety of personal habits that should be respected.

The college community includes a wide range of people with different backgrounds, values, and preferences. Some may find smoking relaxing or stress-relieving, while others may find it disturbing or offensive. It is unfair to impose a ban on everyone without considering the rights of those who benefit from smoking.

The task force's recommendation is authoritarian and coercive. It assumes that the college administration has the right to dictate the behavior of its employees and students. This is a violation of their freedom of choice and self-determination.

In conclusion, the college community is diverse and complex. A total smoking ban is not a realistic or wise approach. The college administration should consider other options that respect the rights and needs of all members of the community.
Waste can be safely dumped on ocean floor, says biologist

Environmentally aware citizens continue to fight with study to find solution for dumping in the ocean.

Associated Press

WOODS HOLE, Mass. - Marine scientists and the ocean floor could be in for a test of endurance, a prospect that the environmentalists and oceanographers say could be a test of wills.

Citing new research on the ability of the ocean floor to absorb waste, marine scientists said Tuesday that dumping on the ocean floor could be a viable solution for waste disposal and expensive landing procedures.

"The ocean floor can take millions of tons of sludge at a time," said Dr. Martin Steen, director of the Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution and Monday. "We should do it for the sake of the environment."

IC artists express their ideas on AIDS in 'Day Without Art'

Kylene Carr

Daily Iowan

Judging from the anxiety of works displayed at the "Day Without Art," exhibit being shown Dec. 1-7 outside UI's MacBride Hall, it is clear the University of Iowa community is concerned about the threat of AIDS, the epidemic that is claiming so many people across the nation. While the concept is intended to shock, it is also to make a statement that brings attention to the issue, while utilizing the talents we know best.

"The idea is simply to highlight the idea that AIDS is a personal thing, that each person is responsible for his or her actions," said Barbara Andrishok, whose title is simply a Rand McNally cartoon, "Same Time in Scotland.

Andrishok noted that the works are not merely a presentation of AIDS awareness, but also a presentation of the effect of an artist missing in action. Barbra Bremner's "Cross Chair," a piece of china "which probably would be destroyed to get the message across," is set up in the CARE lobby at 101100-420-

Ellington collection goes to Library of Congress

W. Dale Nelson

WASHINGTON - The first Duke Ellington collection to go outside the Metropolitan Museum of Art was purchased for $11,000 by the Library of Congress. The collection was assembled by the late Duke Ellington and includes his personal correspondence, scores and other papers. The library purchased the collection from Andrus/Andrus, Inc., of New York for $11,000. The library also has a 15-minute program, "Duke's Song," which includes an interview with Duke Ellington.

The library also has a collection of 78-rpm records, 5,000 LPs, and 3,000 printed pages of Duke Ellington's music. The library said the collection includes a complete set of Duke Ellington's compositions, as well as his personal correspondence, interviews, and other papers. The library has plans to make the collection available to the public and to conduct research on Duke Ellington's music. strength made that Davis reformulated his defense. The Hawkeyes, who didn't have anyone from last year's NCAA Tournament team, have already seen their first two games this season, a 71-65 win over Marquette on opening night and a 76-68 defeat to No. 12 Arizona State last Saturday.

Bain said he doesn't think that will necessarily work to the Hawkeyes' advantage. "At this point, you're not sure what your opponent is going to do," he said. "While we certainly enjoy taking and shooting our 3-pointers, we've still not seen what they're going to do in a regular-season game. A lot of times coaches will experiment in games that they wouldn't in the regular season. Davis also said that he doesn't plan to change Iowa's style of play to date. The probable starter at the center is sophomore Darvin Johnson, who played well in the opener. Darvin's forward, and Ted Harmon and James Moore at guard. Harmon and Moore are guards, but Harmon said he was a guard and Moore said he was a forward. "We're not better than the guards who are playing now and would be more comfortable with the year of experience," he said. "But it's clear every game and how prepared to play.

"The situation of turnovers point guard Kevin Smith is still question-able, but Davis said a freshman scoring his return won't be made until the season starts. When Smith was benched for inactivity before the preseason game, his minutes went to forward Paul Smith, who is now the starting center. Smith also played some point. "We've been lucky," Davis said. "I think we've got a lot of talent. I don't think we're better than the guards who are playing now and would be more comfortable with the year of experience. DAL. REEVES

Garth mania: New Elvis or Vanilla Ice?

Joe Edwards

Associated Press

DAVIE, Fla. — It was a slow Friday night at the Okeechobee, a dive bar spot for the young and restless.

Few people were dancing. Suddenly, without warning, the door slammed shut in a thundering racket. It played "Friends in Low Places," and the mostly empty crowd instantly formed a line against the wall with the edge of the room as a defense against the stormy weather. The music was loud, and the room was packed.

Ava Zinnick, from West Palm Beach, took the lead on "Friends in Low Places." She was the lead singer of a band called "The Dixie Band," and she sang a song called "Rock and Roll." The crowd was so loud, you could hardly hear her.

Garth's sound is like a cross between the Freddie Mercury of Queen and the Rolling Stones. He用工, with his high falsetto, and his smooth, almost Marilyn Monroe-like voice.

Garth is having the greatest impact as a solo artist since Elvis Presley.

The 29-year-old singer is a unifying force in rock music.

He's rarely described as hardrock. His hair is long, and he wears a hat. His sound is bluesy, with a hint of Hawaiian in the mix.

Garth is an icon for young people who are looking for something new and exciting. He's been described as "the new Elvis Presley."
