Abortion opponents converge on capital

Cathleen Sklarck

WASHINGTON - Abortion foes converged on the national mall, marking the start of the annual dedication to abortion with a new emphasis on the role of government in health care.

The court agreed to rehear a landmark Pennsylvania abortion law and for the first time made a decision that each human being has a constitutional right to privacy. The vote was 5-3.

The ruling came in the case of Planned Parenthood of Southeastern Pennsylvania, where a lower court had struck down the law as unconstitutional.

In the majority opinion, Justice Sandra Day O'Connor stated that the government has a role in health care and that the decision should be left to the states.

With the victory, Planned Parenthood can now continue to offer abortion services in Pennsylvania and other states that allow the practice.

An oil slick threatens Mexican coastline

VERACRUZ, Mexico (AP) - A large crude oil spill has hit the Mexican coastline, causing concern for the environment and the economy.

The spill, which is estimated at 50,000 barrels per day, was discovered off the coast near the city of Veracruz.

Local authorities are working to contain the spill and prevent it from spreading.

Residents in the area are advised to stay indoors and store food.

The oil slick is expected to reach the coast within the next few days.

The city of Veracruz is seeking federal assistance to clean up the spill.

The coast is also home to a large petrochemical plant, which is at risk of being damaged by the spill.

President Bush, addressing the Washington Post, said he would support efforts to contain the spill and prevent it from spreading.

He also said he would support efforts to develop alternative energy sources.

The spill is expected to cause significant damage to the coastal ecosystem and the local economy.

City Council rezoning will allow for condos

Ange Johnstone

At the meeting of the City Council on Tuesday night, the council voted unanimously to rezone a block of land to allow for the construction of condominiums.

The rezoning was proposed by a local developer who wanted to build a new residential complex.

The development would include 100 units of housing, which would be sold to the public.

The city council members were concerned about the impact of the development on the surrounding neighborhood.

They agreed to a conditional use permit, which would allow the developer to build the complex.

The rezoning was expected to be completed within the next few months.

The development is expected to bring new jobs to the area and improve the quality of life for the residents.

Democratic bill seeks employer contribution

WASHINGTON - Senate Democrats introduced a bill on Wednesday that would require employers to contribute to their workforce's health-care coverage.

The bill, proposed by Sen. Edward Kennedy, would require employers to pay at least 30% of the cost of health-care coverage for their employees.

The bill includes provisions that would expand eligibility for Medicaid and Medicare.

The bill was introduced in response to concerns about the rising cost of health-care coverage.

The Senate is expected to vote on the bill in the coming weeks.

The bill is expected to be passed by the Senate and sent to the House of Representatives.

The House is expected to pass the bill in the coming weeks.

The bill is expected to be signed into law by the end of the year.

The bill is expected to be beneficial to low-income families and seniors.

Revisions anger employees

Irina Villanueva Daily Iowan

A proposed revision of the current retirement plan is not being welcomed by UI employees, who say it would lead to layoffs of custodians and other essential workers in the situation. The new plan would also force workers to retire earlier and limit their pension contributions.

The current early retirement plan, at the UI, Iowa State University, and the University of Northern Iowa, has been in place for over 25 years. The policy would have to be changed at this time because of a conflict with the national plan for the other Universities.

The plan prohibits early retirement and requires workers to retire at age 60. It also contains provisions for a pension at age 65. The North American plan stresses about early retirement.

The drug, not yet licensed for sale in the United States, has been approved for use in the United States, but has been denied by the Food and Drug Administration.

Bush promises $645 million to former union

Barry Schwid
Associated Press

WASHINGTON, D.C. — President Bush pledged $645 million to former Soviet Union disbandments on Tuesday as his administration began to chart a new foreign policy for the region.

Bush said that the money would be used to help former Soviet nations meet the challenges of economic and political reform.

"I have made it clear that the United States will provide the necessary support to help these nations as they seek to move toward democratic governance," Bush said. "We will provide assistance that is appropriate and timely, and we will do so in ways that build to the strength and security of the United States and the world.

Some officials had expressed concern about the possible use of the money for military purposes, but Bush said the money would be used to help all nations in the region.

"This money will be used to help all nations in the region, including those with democratic governments," Bush said. "We will provide assistance that is appropriate and timely, and we will do so in ways that build to the strength and security of the United States and the world.

It will not go away

Last Monday, while we all celebrated Martin Luther King Jr. Day, the sad content of our electronic devices and television screens were filled with stories about Dr. King and his dream. They were also filled with stories about the racist evil Dr. King battled. For all the media coverage and condemnation of the white supremacists and their causes, however, a single individual, in the form of the former Governor of Michigan, was not mentioned.

Why is this? Because racism still exists. It would be easy to answer the question if the only racists were among those who freely confess their prejudices and their desire to perpetuate a system of oppression on the basis of race.

The filled question grew up to be a racial epidemic. It's been almost 30 years since the 1964 Civil Rights Act but if you listen to so-called black leaders, they will tell you racism is as big a problem as the 1960's. We have tried to use our schools to teach tolerance and we still get young bigots. Despite affirmative action, blacks still do not excel. We bused black children into all-white schools and the black schools still do not work because they do not understand the problem.

And yet, we still get young bigots. Despite affirmative action, blacks still do not work because they do not understand the problem.

Liberals still believe the answer to prejudice is more money, more education, and more quotas. But these remedies are not working.

We have not gotten rid of racism because we cannot get rid of it. The prejudices are not innate but have grown up to be a racial epidemic. We have tried to use our schools to teach tolerance and we still get young bigots. Despite affirmative action, blacks still do not work because they do not understand the problem.

And yet, we still get young bigots. Despite affirmative action, blacks still do not work because they do not understand the problem.

The most notable legacy of Democratic presidential candidate Richard Gephardt's otherwise forgettable 1988 bid for the presidency is his crossing of the line in no uncertain terms about his stance on racism. Gephardt told a clothing line that he did not believe in the concept of equal opportunity and that affirmative action would be a disaster for America. Considering the way racism has been dealt with in American history, Gephardt's positions are no more out of line than anything proposed by President Bush.

The vice president has repeatedly stated that Bush's economic policies are contributing to the growth of racism. The president himself has even said that some of his fellow Republicans support racism. Bush's economic policies are contributing to the growth of racism.

Reflecting back on the days before he crossed the line, Gephardt showed with similar attack on the right is the recognition of the nationalistic impulses of the Depression-era "American First" movement.

Democrats gear up for New Hampshire

John King

WASHINGTON - Democratic presidential hopefuls Thursday scrambled for last-minute support, with both the front-runner and the underdog aiming to win votes from wavering supporters. Republican-led elections for the post of president are scheduled for March 11.

The Democratic race is tightening. The vote for New Hampshire on Feb. 11 is shaping up as a battle between the two leading candidates, former President Bill Clinton and former Sen. Albert Gore Jr.

Clinton, the clear favorite, has been working to solidify his support among New Hampshire voters. He has been barnstorming the state, making appearances at local events and meeting with key political leaders.

Gore, who has been lagging behind Clinton in recent polls, is trying to gain momentum by emphasizing his experience and his ability to work across the aisle. He has been holding town hall meetings and appearing on local news shows.

The race is also heating up in other key states, including Iowa and New Mexico, where primary elections are scheduled for March 18 and March 25, respectively.

The outcome of the Democratic nomination could have significant implications for the future of the party and the country. A Clinton victory would likely lead to a more liberal agenda, while a Gore win could result in a more centrist approach.

As the candidates continue to campaign, they will be hoping to gain momentum and win over undecided voters. The race is expected to be closely contested, with both candidates working to build momentum in the final days before the New Hampshire primary.

Health care is the newest of the new large-ticket issues, and the proposed solutions come with a heavy price tag. The Bush administration has offered up tax incentives, and the idea of reducing the cost of health care was one of the key planks in the president's economic stimulus package.

"If a war was declared for the gold of stopping off and taking over, I'd take off too," Captain Phil Smith said that if only he were officially in a "unjacketed," he would join the protest playing," Smith said.

The only way you might shun the wheels of war is if you are worn out with fortified blood and feeling a swell over your eye, which is perhaps its triangle in the eye," Smith said.

NBA: Mavericks edge Bucks

Adidas had zero pairs in the New England region for the first three games of the NBA season. The Bucks were on the road again against the Mavericks on Friday night, looking to secure their first victory of the season. The Mavericks, on the other hand, were looking to extend their winning streak to four games.

In the first half, the Mavericks took control with a 26-17 lead, thanks to a strong performance from Dirk Nowitzki. He scored 13 points on 5-of-8 shooting and added four rebounds. The Bucks, however, were able to keep the game close, trailing by just five points at the halftime break.

In the second half, the Mavericks continued their dominance, extending their lead to 12 points. However, the Bucks were able to fight back, narrowing the gap to just five points with 10 minutes remaining in the game.

With one minute left on the clock, the Mavericks' Robert Jumper hit a deep three-pointer to extend their lead to seven points. The Bucks, however, were unable to catch up, as the Mavericks pulled away to secure a 108-101 victory.

The win marked the Mavericks' fourth consecutive victory, while the Bucks' losing streak continued. The Mavericks will look to keep their winning streak alive when they face the Utah Jazz on Monday night, while the Bucks will seek their first victory of the season against the Los Angeles Lakers on Wednesday night.

Indian groups rally for protest of Redskins

A group of Indian groups will protest the use of Native American mascots and nicknames on Saturday when the Minnesota Twins face the Atlanta Braves at the Metrodome. The protest is particularly aimed at the Redskins, who have played in the NFL since 1937.

The demonstration is to be held by a 10- to 15-mile march along the interstate, where most of the Indian groups will meet before heading to the stadium. The marchers will be joined by police officers on duty.

David Dobrotka, Minneapolis Star Tribune, said his biggest concern is to make sure the protest is peaceful and that it does not interfere with the game.

The demonstration is expected to draw about three hours before the game.

The protest comes in the wake of the National Football League's decision to ban the name "Redskin," which has been used by the Washington Redskins since 1937.

The Redskins have faced criticism from Native American groups for using the name, which they consider offensive.

The Iowan—Iowan's Jose Sanchez negated McEnroe's chip and come strokes and dramatic rallies, he said.

John McEnroe begins a choke as a reaction to losing three straight sets to South Africa's Wayne Ferreira at the Australian Open Wednesday in Melbourne. McEnroe was broken only once, as a reaction to Ferreira's weak serve. McEnroe said, "He just surprised me." "He just surprised me," Ferreira said. "It's the way, damp and all air of the stadium, with the unpredictable roof closed for the first time this year, the light moved heavily and blazed away from the baseline while opposing McEnroe's chip and change tactics.

"The ball just didn't seem to have quite the same zip as it would have in a dome atmosphere," Ferreira continued. "I was surprised at how well McEnroe wasn't moving quite as quickly." Ferreira who is approaching 40 in his fourth year as a pro, agreed with McEnroe. "I felt the ball was coming really deep," said the 30-year-old McEnroe. "Nobody was hitting it wide.

"It's a very difficult to play, the ball wasn't moving quite as quickly." Ferreira, who hit 44 aces in the second set, said, "I was a little bit too early for everything. I just got in front of the ball." McEnroe decided to close the roof and was untroubled by the drizzly weather. The roof was opened on and off during the match. "The rain was never really a factor," McEnroe said. "We didn't have any rain on our court, and we were able to hit the ball.

"I didn't really think about the rain," McEnroe said. "We were able to hit the ball and it didn't rain on our court.

"It wasn't a problem at all, and in our court we were able to hit the ball. We didn't have any rain on our court, and we were able to hit the ball. We didn't have any rain on our court, and we were able to hit the ball.

"I think it's pretty important, and that's what it is," McEnroe said. "I think it's pretty important, and that's what it is."

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. — Three Hoosiers coaches who during their respective tenures left their teams in the hands of interim coaches are now employed as college athletic directors. Two of them, basketball coach Bob Knight and football coach Ken Berry, have been linked to the coaching vacancy at Oregon State, while the third, football coach Larry Coker, is reportedly a candidate for the head coaching job at Iowa State.

"We're just thinking of Indiana燃煤火电厂 committee, " Knight said. "I don't think anyone has a winning mentality at the moment, so we're just trying to be patient and get through this."

"But the fact is, we're not going to get into any kind of panic mode, " Knight said. "We're going to keep working and keep trying to improve the team."

Hoosiers fans are hoping that Knight's optimism is justified, as the team has struggled to find consistency under interim coaches during the last few seasons.

"I think we're just trying to make the most of this situation, " said Knight. "We're not going to panic, but we're going to work hard to improve our team."

For now, the Hoosiers will have to rely on interim coaches to lead them through the remainder of the season. The team is currently 5-7 in conference play and 13-10 overall.

But whether James was cut or not, we just didn't play well. We made as many mistakes as we could make. We just didn't play well.

"I think we're just trying to get our team together, " said Knight. "We're just trying to get them ready for the next game."

MOVIE REVIEW

Neo-noir ‘Griffers’ enthralls

William Falk

One of the best reviews of the past few years is "Griffers," a neo-noir film by William Falk. "Griffers" is a contemporary film noir that more vividly captures the attention or action it merits. The film will play at the Iowa Film Festival, which runs through October 29th.

Produced by Martin Shousman, "Griffers" is based on Jon Thompson’s novel and is directed by the masterful Jonathan Glazer. The film opens with a shot of a man walking down a street, and the audience is soon enveloped by the film’s gritty, urban setting.

The story follows three main characters: a young man named Griff, a middle-aged woman named Lily, and a retired detective named Pete. Griff is a petty thief who is trying to make ends meet in the city, Lily is a former actress who is struggling to make ends meet as a single mother, and Pete is a former police officer who is trying to come to terms with his past.

The film is shot in grainy black-and-white, giving it a sense of nostalgia and adding to its noir aesthetic. The actors are fantastic, with particular standouts being Griffin Dunne as Griff and Lily Tomlin as Lily.

"Griffers" is a gripping, tightly plotted film that keeps the audience on the edge of their seats. It is a film that will stay with you long after the credits roll.
