Shooting remains under investigation

The shooting Friday morning which wounded 31-year-old Iowa City resident Kris Jarrard is still under investigation by the Iowa City Police Department.

According to Iowa City Police Sgt. Craig Lihs, it has been determined that a small caliber handgun was used in the shooting which occurred in the 700 block of First Avenue.

Lihs said police investigators were to talk with Jarrard, who remains at the UI Hospitals and Clinics, sometime Tuesday.

Faculty Council stresses need for building repair

UI President Hunter Rawlings and several faculty members presented a gift to Gov. Terry Branstad Tuesday — a moldy book ruined by the leaking Main Library roof. The gift was intended to stress the continued need for building maintenance and repair, as announced at the Faculty Council meeting Tuesday.

During the meeting, the council approved a recommendation to add one staff and one student member to administrative review committees, which would include the offices of the president and the vice presidents. These members would be appointed by the Faculty Senate president after consultation with the Staff Council president and UI Student Assembly president.

The recommendation will now be presented to the Faculty Senate and Rawlings for approval.

House votes for expansion of taxpayer-financed abortions

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — The House on Tuesday voted to expand taxpayer financing of certain abortions.

In a 51-47 vote that did not follow party lines, the House agreed that abortions performed to protect the health of the mother should be eligible for public funding.

Currently, the state will only pay for abortions performed to protect the mother's life.

Though a relatively minor expansion, the issue touched off a full-fledged abortion debate.

Arafat disappears over Libya

LONDON, England (AP) — An aircraft carrying Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat disappeared in "bad weather" over the Libyan desert Tuesday night, Libyan radio reported.

The plane, en route from Sudan, disappeared from radar screens at 8:45 p.m. Libyan time (2:45 p.m. EDT) when the plane was 70 miles from the village of Sarah, said Libya's Voice of the Greater Arab Homeland, quoting the Libyan news agency JANA.

Clinton claims victory in primaries

David Espo
Associated Press

Front-runner Bill Clinton thumped Jerry Brown in the brutal New York primary Tuesday and added a Kansas landslide for good measure, advancing his bid for the Democratic presidential nomination despite persistent voter unease over his integrity.

Campaign dropout Paul Tsongas made a surprise bid for second place in New York, but deferred a decision on whether to re-enter the race.

Brown said he would press ahead with his candidacy, but Clinton's showing — he led in Minnesota and Wisconsin, as well — prompted party elders to suggest the Arkansas governor was all but assured of the nomination.

If so, it would propel the 48-year-old Arkansas governor with the soft Southern accent into a fall campaign against President Bush in a time of exceptional turmoil overseas and economic hardship at home.

Tsongas was elated over his unexpected showing.

"Let me say, the message survives and the message lives and the message has real power. I've spoken to a number of people who asked me not to make a decision tonight or tomorrow and to wait until Friday, so there's a lot of analysis that has to take place. . . . I have an obligation to do something that is deliberative and thoughtful."

Bush won Republican primaries in Kansas, Wisconsin and Minnesota over the deflated conservative challenge of Patrick Buchanan. He was gaining nearly all the delegates at stake, and seemed on track for clinching a nominating majority when Indiana, North Carolina and Washington, D.C., hold primaries on May 5.

Bush's victory margin ranged from 62 percent of the vote in Kansas to 69 percent in Minnesota and 78 percent in Wisconsin.

The president's campaign manager was pointing at Clinton already. "We're taking comfort from the fact that voters in New York particularly do not seem to find any of the Democratic candidates

BUSINESS COLLEGE

Scholarship for women established

Jon Yates
Daily Iowan

A scholarship fund in memory of former Iowa City Director of Finance Rosemary Vitosh has recently been established to benefit women in the UI College of Business.

Vitosh, a 1972 graduate of the UI business college, died last year after a two-year battle with a degenerative disease that left her unable to speak.

The scholarship, which will be awarded for the first time in the fall 1992 semester, is one result of a fund set up by the Grant Wood American Business Women's Association Scholarship Fund. The association initiated the fund last year to help support Vitosh as her illness progressed.

Funds for the scholarship will come from money still remaining in the trust.

"This is a very good way to use part of that money," said Joanne Dickson, president of the local Grant Wood ABWA chapter. "The scholarship will mean that Rosemary's legacy will live on."

According to Duane Thompson, associate dean of management and organization at the UI College of Business, the Vitosh scholarship will become the only scholarship in the UI business college earmarked specifically for women. Approximately 43 percent of the undergra-

Party spokesmen debate pros, cons of ideologies

John P. Waterhouse
Daily Iowan

Witnesses to a confrontation of political ideologies, more than 80 members of the UI community met in Shambaugh Auditorium Tuesday night not to rally for the current political candidates but to discuss the strengths and weaknesses of the Republican, Democratic and Socialist parties.

In the first UI election-year debate David Tingwald, an activist representing the Iowa Democratic Party, Will Lynch, the political director and deputy executive director of the Iowa Republican Party, and Ahmed Shawki, the editor of Socialist Worker and a leading member of the International Socialist Organization, were asked to answer the question, "Will the Elections Make a Difference?"

Iowa politician Eric Tabor, who was asked to represent the Democratic Party, was unable to attend.

In the upcoming elections, Shawki said the Republicans and the Democrats are asking voters to defend a system that profits a small minority in America, the rich.

"Socialists have always fought for the rights of the people," he said. "In the elections we are given choices that we don't want to choose from."

The downfall of asking, "Will the Elections Make a Difference?" according to Tingwald, is that some people may think their vote doesn't count. "The biggest lie in our society is that one person cannot make a difference," he said.

Like it or not, Tingwald said, the political system in the United States is broken.

NEW POSITION

Alejandro assumes post of internal audit director

Estela Villanueva
Daily Iowan

Juan Alejandro assumed the newly created position of director of university internal audit Monday. Among his responsibilities is ensuring that all resources for the university are accounted for.

"It is part of the reorganization of the internal audit office and a new position that was created to address concerns that the UI might have had concerning the resources here. This is just the university's actions to address those concerns," Alejandro said.

Doug True, UI treasurer and interim vice president for finance and university services, said the new position creates an "umbrella" internal audit structure within the president's office. Alejandro will strengthen existing internal audit functions and supervise staff, improve coordination with the UI Hospitals and Clinics internal audit function, and add analytical audit capabilities, True said. "The internal audit director will focus on cash receipts and disbursements, charge-back unit fee structures, auxiliary system finances, and computer and financial information system security. These are all areas where we want to achieve and enhance accountability," True said.

Alejandro said one of the main reasons he came to the university was because of the UI's reputation.

"I had heard a lot of good things about the university. Iowa City and Iowa are both nice areas. The university was well known as far as its research capabilities, and overall it is one of the top universities. When I was given the opportunity to come here I was honored and was even more honored when I was offered the position," he said.

Although he just started his position Monday, Alejandro's reaction has been positive. "So far my opinion hasn't changed from the initial trip over here in January.

Juan Alejandro

Everyone has been very cooperative and the working environment has been great," he said.

Alejandro, a certified public accountant, was director of internal audits at the University of Texas at San Antonio for two years and previously served eight years as a supervising auditor in the state auditor's office in Austin, Texas.

PULITZER PRIZES

Workshop alumni win awards

IOWA CITY (AP) — The list of Pulitzer Prize winners with ties to the Iowa Writers' Workshop at the UI just got longer.

Two graduates — Jane Smiley of Iowa State University and James Tate of the University of Massachusetts — each won the prestigious award on Tuesday.

"There are now some 200 two-year writing programs in the country and almost all of them are based on Iowa's. There's sort of a mystique about ours," said Writers' Workshop Director Frank Conroy.

"This is a remarkable. . . I don't want to sound jingoistic or whatever, but people don't really understand that this place is a national resource. It's an amazing place," Conroy said of the 56-year-old program. "It's an arts colony. It's a writers' colony inside the institution."

Smiley, who earned a master's degree in 1976 from the Writers' Workshop, won the Pulitzer for fiction for her novel "A Thousand Acres."

Smiley's book had won the National Book Critics Circle award in the same category. The 42-year-old Los Angeles native who now lives in Ames is the author of six previous fiction books, including "The Age of Grief" which was nominated for a National Book Critics Circle Award.

Tate, who earned his master of fine arts degree from the Writers' Workshop in 1967, won the poetry award for his work "Selected Poems."

He lives in Amherst, Mass.

Ducks face benefits, hazards of life in IC

Mother ducks may lay their eggs up to a mile away from the river, and their wanderings can cause problems for motorists.

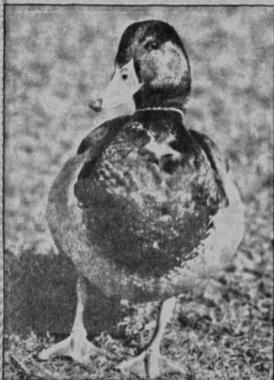

Jon Yates
Daily Iowan

Spring: when the swallows return to Capistrano, the Cubs return to Chicago for another season of futility, and the ducks return to Iowa City for a season of rompin', stompin' fun along the banks of the Iowa River.

But it's not all fun and games for our friendly, feathered fowl.

"During the course of the year, we get about 20 to 30 calls to pick up dead ducks that were hit by cars and buses," said Joe Messenger, animal control officer for Iowa City. "Especially now, when the mothers are laying eggs. They don't nest next to the river, and can lay their eggs up to a mile away."

Messenger said the resulting duck traffic from river to nest can cause problems for the automobile traffic near the river, often resulting in duck soup.

Mr. Drake

"They are a traffic hazard, but I don't know of any serious problems they cause," said Bill Fuhrmeister, director of the UI Department of Public Safety.

Not all of the calls officials receive are to report traffic fatalities.

"We get a lot of calls to help ducks cross the street, or people will want us to pick up mother and baby ducks," Messenger said. "We also get calls when people find ducks in their back yard and they wonder if that's normal or if a mother duck attacks some children."

Some calls to the Iowa City Animal Shelter call for nothing short of heroics.

"Last year, we got a call about a mother duck that had led her baby ducks over a sewage grate near the Civic Center," Messenger said. "Well, the mother duck was too big to fall in, but the baby ducks were just small enough, and they kept following the mother duck and just fell in, one at a time, one after the other."

It took shelter workers about 15 minutes to fish the dozen chicks out of the sewer with a net.

According to Jean Fitzgerald, a biologist at the UI, the convergence of ducks on Iowa City every spring is due in part to the Iowa River and also to the abundance of food.

"They come for the handouts," she said. "They come and mooch a lot." Fitzgerald said the mallards are particularly tolerant of people, and that all ducks learn very early in life that humans can provide a good food supply.

"You get mamas with lots of little bitty babies eating from our hands, so they learn that we feed them early," she said.

Officials say drivers who want to avoid hitting a duck should be most cautious when driving during the early hours of the day, the time when most ducks wander from the river bank.

"You have to remember that the ducks are not domesticated, they're wild animals that have just adapted really well to the city

Al Goldis/Daily Iowan

Ducks return to Iowa City every spring, giving enjoyment to some and creating a hazard for others. Cathy Berke and John Swartzendruber, two of the former, feed popcorn to the ducks by the Union.

environment," Messenger said.

As for controlling the animals, Fuhrmeister said there really isn't much that can be done, and added that as long as people respect the ducks, humans and fowl can peacefully coexist in Iowa City.

"They pretty much come and go as they please," he said. "People tend to look out for them pretty well, and we get more comments on how friendly they are than any problems they cause. They are just a part of our community."

Attorneys general combat dieting, weight-loss scams

Sleep Away Weight Overnight! Lose 10 Pounds a Week Effortlessly! Miraculous New Diet Pill! Millions of Americans would like to lose the ring-around-the-belly / thigh / butt cks and who among them doesn't dream of it being so easy? Diet and weight-loss products which claim such abilities and don't deliver are the target of a new nationwide public education campaign by Iowa and state attorneys general offices throughout most of the country. The attorneys general will be working together with the U.S. Food and Drug Administration.

Iowa Attorney General Bonnie Campbell is chairwoman of the FDA Working Group of the National Association of Attorneys General. The group is organizing the campaign to inform the public about fraudulent programs and products. Information about the weight-loss industry, weight maintenance tips and how to evaluate a diet program is also included.

"We're sending a message to the public to be cautious. We're sending a message to fraudulent industry that we'll be watching them more carefully," Campbell's spokesman Bill Roach said.

The campaign printed a brochure and will run radio and possibly television spots with information about fraudulent weight-loss claims. Enforcement efforts will also be part of the campaign.

Roach said enforcement could take the form of consumer protection lawsuits filed by the state or actions by the FDA and Federal Trade Commission. Most state attorneys general have the authority to investigate and prosecute unfair or deceptive acts and practices.

Companies which dishonestly represent their programs or products could face restitution charges, civil fines and the revocation of the authority to do business.

Roach said while people have the right to choose fad diets and weight-loss gadgets, the choice should be "informed and smart."

Americans spend billions of dollars on diet programs and products, some of which are misleading, unproven or completely fraudulent.

The campaign's brochure details some products which have not been proven safe or effective, such as starch blockers, the Oriental secret Glucomannan and a species of algae, Spirulina. The FDA and FTC have seized or brought legal action against other products, such as diet patches, fat magnet diet pills and bulk fillers containing guar gum.

The brochure warns against gadgets such as appetite suppressing eyeglasses and weight-loss earrings which show no evidence of working.

Lost income and possible physical harm is not the only issue, Roach said. There is also the psychological question.

"It's manipulative and troubling," Roach said of some weight-loss advertising schemes. "Many people who are seriously overweight get

WEIGHT LOSS FACTS

- Experts recommend a goal of losing one pound a week. A modest reduction of 500 calories a day will achieve this goal since a total reduction of 3500 calories per day is required to lose one pound of fat.
- Americans spend an estimated $30 billion a year on diet programs and products.
- An estimated 50 million Americans will go on diets this year.
- About 8 million Americans a year enroll in some kind of structured weight-loss program involving liquid diets, special diet regimens, or medical or other supervision.
- An estimated 5 percent will manage to keep the weight off in the long run.

DI/Sheri Schmittke

caught in a cycle of trying a product, failing to lose weight and blaming themselves. People's esteem and self-value are involved."

Roach said the financial, physical and emotional health risks are some of the reasons the attorneys general are starting the campaign.

Roach said the need for consumer protection from weight-loss fraud has become more important following the increased interest in health and fitness in America.

"The con-artists follow what's hot," he said. "And our culture right now is putting the emphasis on health and appearance. The con-artists rush in with the legitimate businesses."

Barbara Young, owner of the Iowa City Diet Center, said she has worked with people who have tried the quick diets and gadgets.

"They try to lose weight without eating or with liquid diets. They run into problems," she said.

Young said when she asks them about their motivation for trying the diets and gadgets, there is usually one answer.

"They wanted quick weight loss," she said.

One product Young mentioned was a diet pill with parasites inside. The pills contained tapeworm larvae and was marketed for weight loss.

"There's so much abuse with weight-loss schemes and gimmicks," she said. "If it sounds too good to be true, it usually is."

"Unfortunately there are no easy answers to weight loss and dieting," Roach said. "When people are faced with a product advertised with words like quick and easy and scientific, they need to be skeptical. That's the bottom line: They need to be skeptical. The only way to lose weight safely and keep it off is to exercise more and eat less, though none of us are anxious to hear that."

HELPING THE NEEDY

Heifer Project International offers unique solution to hunger

Susan Kreimer
Daily Iowan

People often donate canned foods to help the needy. While these items may last for a number of meals, once they are gone a starving family is left to cope with hunger pangs once again.

The Heifer Project International seeks to deliver a replenishable source of food to the needy all over the world through the gift of livestock.

Founded in 1944 as a non-profit, interfaith agency, the project's philosophy is "a helping hand is better than a handout."

Donors' gifts help pay for a starter flock of chickens, which run about $40 each, or for a $500 heifer, a young cow who has not yet given birth to a calf.

But the project doesn't just provide food-bearing animals. It also gives technical assistance to families, so their commodity can deliver food, according to Pasha Martin, the program's regional director for the Great Plains areas.

The project encourages that the animal's progeny be shared with other families in need, Martin said.

"One of the unique features about the Heifer programs is that it avoids the stigma of charity," said Barry Barnes, a retired veterinarian. He participated in the project in both Belize and Nicaragua and served on the Board of Directors for Heifer International from 1985-1991.

The project has a budget of $9 million a year, $6 million of which comes from churches and individual donors, Martin said.

Bruce Fischer, minister of the Iowa City Congregational United Church of Christ, took part in the project in 1988 in Little Rock, Ark., for a weeklong workcamp.

Several other local congregations are now sponsoring various fundraising drives to raise money for the project.

Jane MacDonald, director of the church school program at Trinity Episcopal Church, is conducting a mission project for children during Lent. The children are baking and making craft items, which they sell to people at the parish to raise funds for the project, MacDonald said.

Last Sunday the church sponsored a walkathon to fight hunger. Some of the funds raised will go toward the project. The rest will be donated to the Iowa City Crisis Center, MacDonald said.

"Children come to realize that the small amount of work they're doing is going to help a family somewhere," she said. "They can raise money to help others. . . They can do something about world hunger because they understand."

At Christ the King Lutheran Church, members are also raising money for the project during Lent. The church provides Heifer calendars with messages instructing members to contribute, for example, three cents to the project for every blanket in their home on a given day, according to Julie Baird, who is promoting the activity.

The Heifer Project International is supported by 13 Christian denominations and a few Jewish congregations in the United States, Martin said.

UIA

Relations still strained between UAS, GPSS

Brad Hahn
Daily Iowan

The new UI Student Assembly administration and the new body of senators met for the first time Tuesday night, but neither overcame the bickering which has plagued the UIA in the past.

Members of the Undergraduate Activities Senate and the Graduate and Professional Students Senate played tit for tat when voting on legislation.

Problems started when the UAS voted against bringing legislation which dealt with GPSS special elections on the floor. Although the bill passed in the other two bodies, it must pass in all three to be considered.

GPSS senators responded by holding their own meeting outside. When they returned, they voted against three non-controversial

"Earlier we agreed to discuss UAS issues . . . but they refused to even look at ours."

Al Beardsley, graduate student legislation it had originally voted against.

This is the latest incident in a series of conflicts between the undergraduate senates and the GPSS.

Graduate student Al Beardsley said the GPSS didn't understand why the UAS refused to let the motion on the floor.

"If it had been tabled or failed, that would have been fine. Earlier we agreed to discuss UAS issues which were equally as difficult, but they refused to even look at ours," he said.

Wilcox said he felt the GPSS was wrong in its counteraction.

"It was poor judgment by the GPSS; members acted a little less than mature," Wilcox said.

UAS Sen. Mike Clark said he voted against the motion because he didn't understand it and didn't get a chance to look at it.

UAS President Dustin Wilcox refused to draw attention to the situation in the meeting.

"I don't think we need to recognize coercion of that childish type. . . If that's how they feel, let them do it," Wilcox told the senate.

A motion was made to reconsider the GPSS bill, which eventually passed. The GPSS then voted to pass the three pieces of UAS and drag us around, the worse we look," Senate Majority Leader Bill Hutchins, D-Audubon, said.

"I just wonder if it occurs to him that maybe he ought to step up and lead one of these days."

With legislative expense money for the year slated to run out April 21, Branstad and lawmakers have yet to begin serious discussions of paying for a state worker pay raise ordered by the Iowa Supreme Court two weeks ago.

The raise is slated to cost up to $165 million in the fiscal year beginning July 1. That includes $15 million in back pay that state employees have agreed to accept in delayed payments.

Branstad and legislators agree that the state has no money to pay the raises.

"Had a copy of the motion been in my mailbox before the meeting, perhaps I would have considered it," Clark said. "It was a two-page resolution that was handed out in the meeting, and we were expected to understand it and consider it instantly."

Wilcox said the whole incident was a misunderstanding, and he hopes relations improve.

"There was no malicious intent toward the GPSS. I'm hoping that now that they know there is no malice, we can get off on a better foot," Wilcox said.

Beardsley said the GPSS is currently working on secession or other adjustments.

In other UIA business, a resolution was passed commending the UI administration for agreeing to help fund Blue Cap safety phones, which Wilcox hopes will be installed by next fall.

BOARD OF SUPERVISORS

Work project considered; area town asks assistance

Kim Dykshorn
Daily Iowan

The Johnson County Board of Supervisors is considering a letter of support for an employment project that was presented at their informal meeting Tuesday morning.

"There's something wrong here."

Charles Duffy, Chairman

permanent employment during their senior year and after graduation. This, Mirr said, will eliminate the transition problems associated with finding employment after graduation from high school.

The five to 10 mentally disabled students at whom the project is aimed would work approximately 20 hours per week, Mirr said.

The supervisors will vote on the letter at their formal meeting on Thursday.

The board also discussed a request from the city of Swisher to assist in the cleanup of five underground storage tanks that are suspected of being contaminated.

The tanks, which are buried in the middle of Swisher, may be a hazard to the many shallow wells scattered around the town. Mike Singer, executive director of East Central Iowa Council of Governments, said the Swisher City Council will ask for formal assistance from the county at their meeting on Monday.

Chairman Charles Duffy is concerned that assistance would be too costly for the county.

"There's something wrong here," he said. "It's strange that we don't have a priority system" for these kinds of projects.

Branstad blames lawmakers for budget woes

Tom Seery

DES MOINES — Republican Gov. Terry Branstad continued his statewide public relations campaign against the Legislature on Tuesday as Democratic lawmakers sat in the Capitol and grumbled.

"He knows it's an election year and the longer he can keep us here and drag us around, the worse we look," Senate Majority Leader Bill Hutchins, D-Audubon, said.

"I just wonder if it occurs to him that maybe he ought to step up and lead one of these days."

With legislative expense money for the year slated to run out April 21, Branstad and lawmakers have yet to begin serious discussions of paying for a state worker pay raise ordered by the Iowa Supreme Court two weeks ago.

The raise is slated to cost up to $165 million in the fiscal year beginning July 1. That includes $15 million in back pay that state employees have agreed to accept in delayed payments.

Branstad and legislators agree that the state has no money to pay the raises.

Branstad used a statewide radio broadcast Monday to announce $36.5 million in cuts to balance the budget for the year ending June 30. As he has done in speeches around the state in the past week, the governor used the forum to blame the Legislature for the state's fiscal woes and complain that legislators are too eager to raise taxes.

TEXAS

Only the first floor of a three-story house remains after a gas line explosion that killed one and injured 17 people near Brenham, Texas, Tuesday. The resident of the house was treated and released from hospital. The explosion registered between 3.5 and 4.0 on the Richter scale.

Pipeline explosion causes damage, leaves 1 dead; NTSB to investigate

Michael Graczyk
Associated Press

BRENHAM, Texas—An explosion packing the power of an earthquake ripped open an underground gas pipeline Tuesday, killing at least one person, flattening nearby mobile homes, and shaking buildings more than 140 miles away.

Cars were thrown from nearby roads. Leaves were ripped from trees whose trunks were blackened. Livestock lay dead in fields. At least 16 people were injured, said Mike Cox, Department of Public Safety spokesman.

"It looks like a tornado came through except there was a path of fire," said Ron Haussecker, emergency management coordinator for Washington County.

More than three hours later, a plume of flame more than 30 feet high still spewed from the ruptured pipeline.

"Right now we haven't decided yet how to shut it off," said Haussecker. "We're just sitting there."

At least one resident said pipeline workers had earlier warned residents to turn off appliances because of a gas leak.

The pipeline carried liquefied petroleum gas, often called LP gas, said Department of Public Safety spokeswoman Lauren Chernow.

The explosion occurred in a rural area seven miles south of this eastern Texas town of 12,000. It rattled homes and buildings as far away as Galveston, more than 90 miles away, and Vidor, 140 miles to the east.

It registered 3.5 to 4.0 on the Richter scale, or as strong as an earthquake that could cause slight to moderate damage, Rice University in Houston reported.

The only confirmed death was that of a 6-year-old boy who was blown out of a flattened mobile home, authorities said. Rescuers searched damaged homes in the area for more victims.

"We had windows shaking, pictures falling off the wall. Our phones and electricity went out immediately," said Andrea Allen, who lives nearby.

"It was worse than any earthquake I've ever been through," she said. "I used to live in California, and the sound . . . it was like intensified thunder that just kept going and going and shaking at the same time."

The 6-inch pipeline was owned by Coastline Gas Pipeline Co.

ROE VS. WADE

Justice Department wants ruling reversed

James Rowley
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Bush administration is again asking the Supreme Court to overturn its landmark ruling legalizing abortion — this time in a case about a Pennsylvania law that imposes a 24-hour waiting period and requires a husband be notified.

Reiterating a position it has taken in previous cases, the Justice Department said Monday that the 1973 Roe vs. Wade decision was wrongly decided and should be set aside.

The friend-of-the-court brief by Solicitor General Kenneth Starr asked the court to consider overruling Roe vs. Wade in reviewing the Pennsylvania law, which requires a woman seeking an abortion to wait 24 hours and for married women to notify their husbands before having the abortion.

Even if it doesn't specifically overturn the 1973 precedent, the Justice Department said the high court should make clear that women do not have a fundamental right to obtain an abortion under the Constitution.

The department contended that states can restrict abortions because "the protection of human life — in or out of the womb — is certainly the most compelling interest that a state can advance."

Starr said that if the court takes a narrower approach than overturning Roe vs. Wade it can uphold the Pennsylvania law as advancing a "legitimate state interest."

"The state's interest in prenatal life is a wholly legitimate and entirely adequate basis for restricting the right to abortion derived in Roe," he said.

The brief was filed one day after an estimated 500,000 protesters marched in Washington in the biggest demonstration ever held by abortion rights activists.

UNIVERSITY CUTS

Schools see decrease in opportunities, quality

Tamara Henry
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Leaders of 16 state universities said Tuesday that deep budget cuts are jeopardizing the quality of higher education and closing opportunities for low-income students.

"It is time to sound an alarm. The moment has come to make it clear that a crisis exists in higher education," said C. Peter Magrath, president of the National Association of State Universities and Land-Grant Colleges.

"In almost every state our public universities are coping with unprecedented cutbacks in state support," Magrath said.

"All of these trends exacerbate the problems of minority participation in higher education," said Florida A&M University President Frederick Humphries.

Magrath said cuts in state-supported budgets ranged from 1 percent at the University of California system and 5 percent at Florida A&M to 15.4 percent at the University of Virginia.

Also, Magrath said, students are facing dramatic increases in tuition, including a 19 percent increase at Delaware State and 33 percent at Oregon State this year.

Many classrooms are crumbling, and labs are deteriorating, he said. Libraries are canceling subscriptions to scholarly journals and reducing hours.

Magrath and the 16 university presidents and chancellors discussed the problems of public research universities during a quarterly meeting of the association, which represents 149 institutions.

"We in higher education recognize the budgetary problems of states' brought on mainly by a lingering recession and a host of federal mandates to improve health care, the criminal justice system and the environment, said E. Gordon Gee, president of Ohio State University.

"But without a doubt, the one thing we can do well in this country is our higher education system," said Gee. "When you move from belt-tightening to strangling the goose that laid the golden egg, it's time to stand up."

Gee said Ohio State eliminated more than 300 positions, including 70 faculty, 135 staff, 35 graduate research associates and 115 part-time workers. Also eliminated were three academic departments — photography and cinema, educational research and medical technology.

A total of 635 positions were eliminated at the University of Georgia, and about 1,000 system-wide at the University of Maryland, officials said.

John Byrne, president of Oregon State University, said last year the entire College of Education was eliminated and a score of departments and programs closed. About 150 administrators, faculty and staff received pink slips, he said.

"Today, we're mandated to cut an additional 211 positions at OSU by June 30, 1993. We're looking at a minimum tuition increase of 6.75 percent next year," said Byrne.

Humphries of Florida A&M described the decreasing financial support as "a slow undoing of the best that America has in education."

"The fiscal climate is one of indifference or even discouragement. There are no visible signs of relief on the horizon," he said.

RUSSIA

Yeltsin moves to create army, control fleet

Alan Cooperman
Associated Press

MOSCOW, Russia — President Boris Yeltsin on Tuesday seized the initiative from his critics by speeding up creation of Russia's army, reasserting control over the Black Sea fleet, and warning of "chaos" if parliament reduced his powers.

His tough talk was aimed both at countering Ukraine's claims to the Black Sea armada and neutralizing the challenge to his authority by former Communists in parliament.

But it was certain to raise tensions in the Commonwealth of Independent States, which has been divided by bickering between Russia and Ukraine over the fleet of more than 300 warships.

"This decree on the Black Sea fleet will give Yeltsin the votes of 'patriots' in the Congress," said presidential adviser Galina Starovoitova, referring to hard-liners.

"But it's a step toward the Yugoslav-ization of relations between Ukraine and Russia," she said.

The moves once again demonstrated the bold side of Yeltsin, 61, who came back from political troubles in 1989, and rose to lead the country following the demise of his rival Mikhail Gorbachev.

His decree asserting Russian control over the former Soviet fleet was made in response to an order Monday by Ukrainian President Leonid Kravchuk, who claimed the fleet for Ukraine.

The competing Ukrainian and Russian orders had no immediate military effect, because the fleet remained under the control of Yevgeny Shaposhnikov, commander of the commonwealth's joint armed forces.

Both leaders' rhetoric appeared designed to appease growing militancy in their respective parliaments, as well as to serve them in complex negotiations over former Soviet property.

Although Shaposhnikov read Yeltsin's decree to Congress, Vice President Alexander Rutskoi told reporters that he, Shaposhnikov and Yeltsin had initialed but not signed it. That, underscored the symbolic nature of the dispute.

In another effort to appease hard-liners, Yeltsin said all former Soviet troops in "Germany, Poland, the Baltics, Mongolia and in the Caucasus and (other former Soviet) republics" will be placed under Russia's control.

"Russia took a long time to decide to form its own army, hoping until the last moment to preserve the single commonwealth army. We did not manage to do that, however," Yeltsin said.

The aquatic horse is currently in "police custody" until the matter is sorted out.

REPUBLICS

Air strikes, increased violence coincide with U.S. recognition

Julijana Mojsilovic
Associated Press

SARAJEVO, Yugoslavia — Air strikes by Yugoslav jets killed at least six people in Bosnia-Herzegovina on Tuesday as the United States recognized the republic's independence along with that of Croatia and Slovenia.

Ethnic Serbs in northern Bosnia proclaimed their own state and said they intended to remain allied with Serbia, the largest republic in what was the Yugoslav federation. Two Serb members of Bosnia's seven-person presidency announced their resignations.

The Serb-dominated federal army, believed to have about 150,000 men stationed in Bosnia, is generally viewed as the decisive factor in the Bosnian equation. Ethnic Serb leaders have called on it to support a separate Serbian state.

In Belgrade, Gen. Zivota Panic, acting head of the federal general staff, said the army would not withdraw from the republic and warned: "We are closer to war than peace."

Bosnia's deputy premier, Muhamed Cengic, said the commander of the Sarajevo corps of the Serb-dominated federal military had promised to respect Bosnia's independence, "and I trust him."

But federal air force jets rocketed an ammunition depot and a factory in Siroki Brijeg, near the Adriatic coast, and an armaments factory in nearby Citluk.

Bosnia's President Alija Izetbegovic claimed the air force also hit the village of Medjugorje, site of a major Roman Catholic shrine. Croatian radio reported street battles in a suburb of Mostar, where a large federal army and air force contingent are based.

Another 14 people were reported killed elsewhere in the republic on Tuesday, many of them near Kupres, 50 miles west of the capital, Sarajevo.

Serbs, who make up a third of Bosnia's population, vehemently oppose independence. But Slavic Muslims, who make up 44 percent, and Croats, who compose 17 percent, see it as the only alternative to remaining within a Serb-dominated Yugoslav federation.

Most parties in Bosnia-Herzegovina want to avoid a bloody civil war like the one between Croats and ethnic Serbs in Croatia, which has left about 10,000 people dead. One person was reported killed Tuesday in Croatia, which has been under a U.N.-brokered truce since Jan. 3.

CAPITALISM

The crisis that never ends?

"Capitalism works." That is the first commandment of rightist orthodoxy, and conservatives are half right in making that assertion. We should ask, "Capitalism may work, but for whom?"

Real wages for American workers peaked in 1973, and have declined 19 percent since then. During the latest recession, some 2 million jobs simply disappeared, and 20 percent of Americans have experienced a layoff in their family. During the last two years, over 1,000 banks out of a total of 12,000 have failed. One thousand more could go under during the next two years. Debt is the only growth industry in the United States. The federal deficit, at nearly $4 trillion, is indeed impressive. However, it pales next to private debt, accumulated during the corporate raider feeding frenzy of the Reagan years, which is a monumental $13 trillion.

Traditional Keynesian economics, gospel of the U.S. ruling class during the 1950s and 1960s, will not work. The Reagan military build-up, which increased war appropriations from $150 billion per year to $300 billion, was the stimulus that pulled the economy out of the 1982 slump. Policymakers cannot now resort to such federal intervention because of the deficit.

Capitalism is a global system. The recovery is not only hindered by the huge debt load, it must also cope with the vulnerable German and Japanese economies. Germany must shoulder the burden of reunification. Japan's economy depends on stock and real estate speculation: A crash in Japanese stock and land values would have international repercussions.

The suffering capitalism produces is not equally shared. While two-thirds of black families headed by women live in poverty, the top 0.5 percent of the U.S. population saw its annual income triple during the Reagan years. Four percent of the landholders own 50 percent of all U.S. farmland. Although the Federal Reserve has cut interest rates, you will have a hard time financing your new car, will continue to pay 18 percent interest on credit cards, and must help service that $17 trillion debt load.

Do you blame minorities for your plight? Or welfare recipients? Or immigrants? The ruling class would be delighted if you did, because the most oppressed people make convenient scapegoats. But as you struggle to keep food on the table or pay the next U-bill, remember that U.S. executives are paid 160 times what their workers earn. Capitalism works — you only have to make working people bleed enough. It's time to make the ruling class bleed.

GLOBAL WARMING

The plain truth

Myths are wonderful things for children. They can entertain and delight while still teaching some valuable lessons about life. But myths in the adult world are very dangerous. Adult myths do not amuse or instruct, they distort, cover up and conceal. The chief and most dangerous mythmaker in the adult world is the environmental movement. They pour out an almost endless stream of myths, fantasies and lies in order to cover up their real socialist agenda.

The biggest and most destructive myth spread by the environmental cases is that there is a scientific consensus that global warming exists. With the acquiescence of the dominant media culture, environmentalists continually claim that almost all scientists believe that global warming is a serious threat to our planet. That is bull. The Center for Science, Technology and the Media recently hired the Gallup company to conduct a random survey of the members of the American Geophysical Union and the American Meteorological Society. These experts were asked about the evidence supporting the global warming theories. ONLY 41 percent thought there was "scientific evidence" that the earth is heating up. Seventy-seven percent of these experts believed that the research on global warming is "fair to poor." In other words, most of the experts do not think the greenhouse effect is occurring, and even some who do believe the earth is heating up think that the evidence to support their view is of poor quality. There is no scientific consensus about global warming, and anyone who tells you otherwise is a stone-cold, flat-out, bottom-line liar.

Another myth of the environmental movement is that all the scientists who are warning of ecological disaster are noble people who only care about the health of the planet. This claim is utterly laughable. In the Aug. 23, 1991, issue of Science, Wallace Broecker, marine geochemist at Lamont-Doherty Geological Observatory, and Thomas Crowley, paleoclimatologist at ARC Technologies, state that many scientists are jumping on the greenhouse gas-powered bandwagon not because they care about the earth, but because they care about money. "Everyone under the sun seems to be lining up under global change," says Crowley. "It all may be good science, but some of them are doing it because they think it will help with funding."

The only way to combat myths is with truth, so here is a little more. Satellite measurements show that Earth's lower atmosphere did not, I repeat, DID NOT get warmer during the 1980s. The data was analyzed by NASA's Marshall Space Flight Center and by the University of Alabama. Between 1979 and 1988, the satellites recorded global temperature shifts but no overall warming trend.

Now if you are some wacked-out, paranoid tree-hugger and you think I am making this stuff up, if you think NASA, the University of Alabama and the Gallup Poll are all lying, I do not care. If that is what you believe, you are beyond hope. But if you are at least willing to consider the possibility that I am writing the truth, go down to the library and start looking up information for yourself. Do not rely on others to tell you what to think. This issue is too important to let the myths of others cloud your judgment.

BYRON KENT WIKSTROM

Branstad caves in, gives workers their due

It looks like Gov. Terry Branstad is finally going to give in. For over a year now, he's been trying to withhold a pay increase from state workers. It didn't matter that the raise was mandated by state law. Nor did it matter that the Legislature appropriated the necessary funds. Branstad decided the state was a few million dollars short and the best way to make up the difference was on the backs of state workers. But that's over now; Branstad caved in and the workers are finally going to get their money.

The whole mess started when the governor refused to accept an arbitrator's decision on pay increases for state workers. The decision went to the arbitrator because the state and the union could not reach an agreement on a contract for the 1991 and 1992 fiscal years. Under a collective bargaining agreement hammered out by the state government in the late 1970s, if an agreement could not be reached between the state and the union, the dispute would be settled through binding arbitration.

For 15 years the system worked fairly well, with both sides abiding by the agreement. But that ended last year, when Gov. Branstad decided not to honor the arbitrator's decision. Branstad reasoned that since the state was out of money, he couldn't be forced to raise wages — even if the increases were mandated by state law.

Of course there weren't many people who supported the governor's position. The Democratically controlled Legislature voted to honor the agreement and appropriated the funds. Legal scholars argued that the state was required to follow its own laws and award the pay increase to state workers. But in the end Branstad wasn't convinced and the pay raises were essentially vetoed by the governor.

Branstad's decision also wasn't very popular with the courts. In early January, a Polk County judge ruled that Branstad did not have the authority to deny the pay raises to the workers. And then a couple of weeks ago the Iowa Supreme Court, in a unanimous decision, concurred with the decision. "It would lead to untenable results if a government, after having those workers who would receive the raise would be furloughed once a week until the end of the fiscal year.

Objections to this new plan were quick and fierce. Kathy Shaffer, president of the AFSCME Local 12, told The Daily Iowan that the proposal was "unacceptable, and totally against our collective bargaining agreement." House Speaker Bob Arnold said Branstad was obstructing justice. "The sooner [Branstad] starts to abide by the laws of this state instead of being a lawbreaker," Arnold told a Des Moines Register staff writer, "the sooner we can resolve the differences we've got."

On Monday the governor finally decided to stop breaking the law. After being advised that his plan to furlough the bargaining unit staff was illegal, Branstad backed away from his proposal and indicated he would support the plan put forth by union. It took over a year but Branstad finally got the message: Even the governor is not above the law.

It's a shame he didn't figure that out sooner. A lot of people suffered because of Branstad's handling of the situation. As Jan Corderman, associate director of AFSCME/Iowa Council 61, said, "First, Branstad didn't bargain in good faith, then he failed to honor the arbitrator's decision and finally he tried to furlough state workers. The governor hasn't dealt reasonably with his employees."

You usually don't expect a CEO to deal with his or her employees in a reasonable way. But when your CEO is also your governor, it's a little different. Branstad doesn't see it that way. He doesn't seem to feel any loyalty to state workers. Or to state law.

And that's his choice — a choice Branstad probably thinks is politically expedient. But you can bet the next time Branstad is running for office there'll be a lot of people who decide to not show any loyalty to him.

Byron Kent Wikstrom's column appears on alternate Wednesday's on the Viewpoints page.

For 15 years the system worked fairly well, with both sides abiding by the agreement. But that ended last year when Gov. Branstad decided not to honor the arbitrator's decision. Branstad reasoned that since the state was out of money, he couldn't be forced to raise wages — even if the increases were mandated by state law. Of course there weren't many people who supported the governor's position.

contracted for needed things, did not have to pay for them," wrote Justice K. David Harris according to the Cedar Rapids Gazette.

So it looked like the conflict was resolved by the court and the workers would get their pay raises. But Gov. Branstad wasn't happy about the decision. In fact he seemed quite bitter about the the whole affair. In an attempt to circumvent the ruling, Branstad proposed that

Movie review

To the Editor:
I can no longer control my disgust. After reading Kevin Ruby's review of Woody Allen's "Shadows and Fog" I had to respond. I did not see the film, but I must say to Ruby and all other DI staff members who write movie reviews: "It's OKAY to LIKE a movie! We'll still think you're somewhat important even if you don't hate everything you see."

I realize that not every movie in the theaters in our area is an Academy Award winner. But DI reviewers don't like anything, even though there are many good movies that do come to town. The only explanation I can offer is that Ruby and other DI reviewers are stroking their own self-inflated egos.

But no matter. While you continue your endless whining, the rest of us will be enjoying great movies like "Cape Fear," "JFK" and "Black Robe" (all of which were ripped by Ruby and other DI writers). Yes, all of us will ignore all of you and continue to be fascinated, stimulated and thrilled by some really terrific films.

Fragrances

To the Editor:
It's a personal habit. Some people do it and some people don't. Some people like it and some don't. It's a personal choice. Yet, it affects others. It affects the air that others breathe. It threatens their health. It gets on other people's clothes, in their hair, into their lungs. It makes their food taste bad. It triggers asthma attacks, causes headaches, nausea. It delivers toxic chemicals into the air that other people are forced to share with you. Yes, it is an individual choice — but the choice you make can have drastic effects on other people — is that your right?

Wearing perfume and cologne, using chemically synthesized scents to "freshen" rooms or public areas, putting scents into soaps, detergents and floor waxes that are used in public buildings — the general proliferation of perfume is a serious problem for a significant number of people, which can sometimes have life-threatening consequences.

Why people feel the need or desire to wear fragrances is a deep issue, involving psychological questions of shame and vanity that I will not go into here. Some people claim that they wear fragrances "just because I like the way it smells." This is certainly understandable. But if that is the case, then why wouldn't someone merely dab a little scent under their own nostrils? Why do people wear enough perfume for others to smell? One obvious answer is that the very purpose of wearing perfume is to impose your scent (albeit store-bought) on others, to make them aware of your presence by compelling them to breathe in your essence.

This is a remarkable attitude! The wearing of perfume and cologne is such an invasion of other people's personal physical space, that if we could actually see the chemical molecules belonging to one person entering the deep areas of others' bodies (mouth, throat, lungs), such an activity would likely be criminalized. But we can't see this very real physical violation, and because we can't see it, many people do not take it seriously.

Yet there are 35 million people in this country suffering from allergies. There are more than 10 million with asthma. You probably know someone who is seriously affected by perfumes, who has been silently suffering with headaches, sore throats, nausea, feelings of intoxication and light headaches, swollen air passages, etc., for years. Many fragrance-wearers are unaware that a majority of today's synthesized perfumes contain chemicals which are so toxic that their disposal is regulated closely by the federal government — and relegated to the same toxic waste dumps reserved for those substances which are uncontested threats to both human life and to the environment. Why are such dangerous substances allowed on the market? A very good question that the FDA has yet to answer.

There are individuals whose health is so severely affected by other people's fragrances that they are forced to leave jobs, to avoid public places such as grocery stores, theaters, laundromats — many of these people cannot even pray in public houses of worship because of the levels of perfume in the air. Does this seem right?

An individual's capacity to earn a living should hinge on his / her level of education, experience and work skills — not on her level of tolerance for other people's odiferous vanities. A student's performance on an examination should hinge on his / her knowledge of the subject matter, and on his / her insights — not on whether or not the person three seats over is wearing half a bottle of Prince Brut.

I won't go so far as to make the (too, too radical) suggestion that people stop wearing perfumes and colognes altogether. No, that would be too much of an invasion of other people's personal space — an invasion of personal space that would resemble too closely the way in which fragrance-wearers violate my space. But certainly those wearing scents could tone it down — quite a bit. If you like the smell, that is fine with me. But don't impose it on me, please. Wear just enough for yourself to smell and enjoy — and let others breathe in peace.

Christian humility

To the Editor:
This letter is in response to the letter from Casey Harrison which appeared in the DI April 1, 1992. Casey Harrison's observations are correct. "Christian humility," for all practical purposes, is a contradiction in terms. We Christians are judgmental, backstabbing, hypocritical people who, just as in ages past, are capable of "ritual violence." The Bible says that God reveals things to the "foolish" in order to humble the "wise." In this respect, I'm sure that a lot of us could really learn a lot from someone like you. I want to sincerely apologize to you for every hurt that you have suffered at the hands of Christians or church people. I also want you to know that the God that we serve is not like us. The Lord Jesus Christ is kind, forgiving and pure. Please do not let our behavior influence your opinion of him.

The Mexican adventure of an American student

Editor's Note: Jana Lynott is a student in the UI Global Studies Program. She has lived and studied in Mexico.

Me pasas la ensalada, por favor?
Gracias.
Toni, oiste de los resultados del partido de fútbol? ¡Chile ganó!
Diana, la comida es deliciosa.

Does this look like a foreign language to you?
It did to me when I was 11 years old, growing up in Ames. At that time, my best friend was Maria Gonzalez (not her real name) and we spent every moment possible together. Together we'd climb trees, practice gymnastics, and in the evenings we would always have dinner together — alternating homes.

At Maria's house, her family always spoke Spanish at the dinner table. Even though I could not understand one word of the language back then, I would nevertheless follow the conversation, turning my head back and forth like a tennis spectator.

Gradually, after listening to them over many months, I knew I wanted to become a Spanish speaker. I did not, of course, become bilingual overnight. It took me seven years of formal Spanish education before I applied to the International Student Exchange Program at the UI Study Abroad Center which allowed me the opportunity to live and study in Guadalajara, Mexico.

My study abroad experience had a rocky start. When I arrived at ITESO University in Guadalajara in January 1991, I was told that the two other Americans who were supposed to attend classes there had canceled their plans, and consequently I was the only foreigner among 5,000 students.

"Great," I thought. "This will truly be a complete cultural immersion for me." The cultural differences, however, first became evident in their educational system. For instance, the characteristic American method for going to college classes — falling asleep while taking notes and never getting to know anyone the whole semester — was rare. Instead, homework was assigned to a group of people rather than individually.

A two-hour class might be broken into segments. Typically we'd spend 45 minutes outside on the lawn, developing a class skit or our lesson plan. Because ITESO students were familiar with this, we didn't waste time discussing the weather. After the meeting outside, we would come back into the classroom and present our skits and discuss the lesson. Major surprise. I got used to it, and was actually disappointed when I came home and attended one of our traditional history course lectures.

The group mentality also spilled outside the campus. This system enabled students to stay within the same group throughout the length of their degree program which translated into strong friendships, like the ones we develop in high school in the United States.

One weekend, my class went camping. We took a bus to the mountains as far as it would take us, then caught rides with local residents into even smaller villages. When the cars would not take us farther, we backpacked for six hours to reach our destination — a lake hidden by three dormant volcanoes.

The return trip was much more exciting. We missed the bus that would have taken us back to our first Monday afternoon class, so we had to hitchhike back to Guadalajara by thumbing a ride on a semitrailer truck. We had to sit outside the truck on the rack above the cab.

I sat cursing to myself for being such an idiot for missing the bus, because standing in the bed of the truck, in the same area where I was seated, were 13 long-horned bulls on their way to the bullfights in Guadalajara. When the driver climbed up to check on the bulls, he pointed out two of them (he called them assassins), saying they had killed a boy the previous week. For me, it would be death either way, to be squished and gored like an inexperienced toreador or death on a gravel road. Although I was scared, I thought about how much I was enjoying being out in the sun, riding in the wind, and feeling as if I was as high as the mountains lining the bumpy Mexican road.

Because of my study abroad experiences, I have returned many times to Mexico.

particularly acceptable," said Fred Malek.

He was right about that. Interviews with voters in several states reflected continuing concern about Clinton's integrity. The Arkansas governor has been besieged with controversy throughout his campaign over alleged womanizing, the use of marijuana, his record in office and his draft record during the Vietnam War.

Against that backdrop, his triumphs in New York and elsewhere were testimony to his polished campaign machine and his remarkable political skills.

Clinton's victories were probably enough to dampen any hopes Tsongas — or anyone else — harbored of a late run for the nomination.

In New York, with 83 percent of the precincts counted, it was:

- Clinton: 325,564, 40 percent.
- Tsongas: 234,972, 29 percent.
- Brown: 207,926, 26 percent.

Clinton's Kansas victory was a landslide. He was gaining 51 percent of the vote, with Tsongas, Brown and an uncommitted line on the ballot bunched far behind.

Returns from Wisconsin gave him 38 percent, to 35 percent for Brown and 22 percent for Tsongas with 24 percent of the precincts tallied.

Returns from 23 percent of the precincts in Minnesota showed Clinton leading Brown, 38 percent to 35 percent, with Tsongas at 22 percent.

Tsongas, meeting with reporters outside his home in Lowell, Mass., said he didn't want to play the role of spoiler, a declaration that no doubt will draw sighs of relief from Clinton and his camp and party officials.

SCHOLARSHIP

duates in the UI business college are women.

Thompson said the scholarship will help in financing students who need aid, while providing a fitting tribute to Vitosh's life.

"It is something that everyone should recognize, that students need financial aid," he said. "It's a nice way to honor a life."

Some of the remaining money will also be used to fund ongoing research by Richard Hurtig, a UI associate professor of speech pathology who is currently working to develop devices to help people with communication disabilities. Hurtig developed a computer system that allowed Vitosh to communicate during her illness.

Vitosh used finger speech to communicate and, as the disease progressed, used a system of Morse code which was encoded into a computer, allowing her to speak despite the loss of her vocal abilities and most of her motor skills.

"She was a remarkable woman," Hurtig said. "She learned finger spelling in just a couple of days and Morse code virtually overnight. She had an incredible will and understanding of the world around her.

"The scholarship in her name and support of the research I am working on should give us all a little hope," said Hurtig.

States comprises two parties. "We need to deal with that system, and if you want to see a change, you have to vote for a Democrat," Tingwald said.

When a country resorts to socialism, said Lynch, it will reduce its standard of living.

At the onset of the debate, Lynch said he hoped the party representatives could speak openly about the issues and respect the others' opinions. "One of the things I hate is liberal Democrats' stereotypical caricatures of Republicans," he said.

"As much as I disagree with the Democrats, we both have to work together," Lynch said.

Dahl best of the month

Iowa junior distance runner Tracy Dahl was honored as the Big Ten's Track Athlete of the Month for March on Tuesday.

A native of Champlin, Minn., Dahl won Iowa's second-ever NCAA championship for women by taking the 5,000-meter run March 13. Nan Doak won the 10,000 meters in 1985.

Dahl and the rest of the Hawkeye women travel to the Jim Duncan Invitational at Drake Stadium in Des Moines Friday and Saturday.

Ultimate team takes fifth

The Iowa Ultimate Frisbee team took fifth place at the annual Big Ten Open Tournament in Madison, Wis., last weekend.

The Hawkeyes lost to Illinois and Big Ten champ Wisconsin, but scored decisive victories over Michigan, Michigan State and Penn State.

Iowa will host the Ultimate Players Association Central-West Collegiate Sectional Tournament on Saturday at the rugby fields adjacent to the Married Student Housing Complex in Iowa City.

Kansas, Grinnell and Iowa State will be in attendance and the top two finishers will go to the UPA regional tourney in Oberlin, Ohio, in April.

Harris resigns

MILWAUKEE — Del Harris resigned as vice president of basketball operations for the Milwaukee Bucks on Tuesday, and says he will look for another coaching job.

Harris quit as Bucks coach in December, after four years on the job, to concentrate on his front office post.

Daly undecided

AUBURN HILLS, Mich. — Chuck Daly is undecided about stepping down as coach of the Detroit Pistons after five straight 50-win seasons and two NBA championships.

"I am not sure," Daly told The Detroit News in a story published Tuesday. "I have to survive this season. And it has not been easy."

Booth Newspapers, quoting an unidentified Pistons player, reported that Daly called a team meeting Saturday to announce his departure.

Daly, 61, is scheduled to coach the U.S. Olympic basketball team this summer in Barcelona and may be in line to become coach and general manager of the San Antonio Spurs, Booth reported.

Wolverine fans go nuts after loss to Duke

ANN ARBOR, Mich. — The University of Michigan mopped up Tuesday after postgame revelers who clashed with police following the Wolverines' loss in the NCAA basketball final.

Three people were arrested and at least five others suffered minor injuries when an estimated 6,000 people crowded downtown streets after Duke beat Michigan 71-51 on Monday night.

Ann Arbor police were criticized for using tear gas to disperse the crowd. But officials said Tuesday they took the action only after revelers began pelting police with rocks, bottles and other objects. Three officers were among the injured.

Ryan goes on DL

SEATTLE — The Texas Rangers placed 45-year-old Nolan Ryan on the 15-day disabled list Tuesday night because of a strained left calf muscle and an aggravated right Achilles tendon.

The Rangers said Ryan will be examined Wednesday in Los Angeles by Dr. Lewis Yocum, an orthopedist.

Ryan was forced to leave Monday night's 12-10 season-opening victory over Seattle in the fifth inning because of his calf and was not involved in the decision. Ryan was bothered by his calf during spring training.

Backlund cranks one in Hawks' win

WATERLOO — Solid pitching, a Brett Backlund homer and a couple of key hits by Steve Fishman led the Iowa baseball team to a 3-2 victory over Northern Iowa Tuesday at Waterloo Stadium.

"It just wasn't in the cards for us today," Panther coach Dave Schrage said. "We played a good game, but sometimes you play well and don't win."

Iowa will be back in action today, hosting Upper Iowa in a single game at 2 p.m.

The Hawkeye pitching corps was led by starter Chad MacKendrick (1-3), who gave up two hits and one run while striking out five and walking one in four innings. He was relieved in the fifth by Chris Schubbe (1-1), who surrendered five hits and one run, struck out five and walked two to pick up the win. Senior Ken Burgess threw a perfect ninth for his first save.

"The pitching went just as planned," Iowa coach Duane Banks said. "It was outstanding. All three did a great job."

Derek Sandknop (0-4) took the loss, giving up eight hits and three runs, fanning five and walking one before being relieved in the eighth by Jon Goerlich.

The Hawkeye bats didn't start to warm up until the fourth inning when Jay Polson led off with a single — Iowa's first hit of the game. After a Bobby Morris strikeout, Backlund launched the ball over the left field wall to give Iowa a 2-1 lead.

The Panthers, who had scored their first run in the first inning by virtue of a walk and a double, added another run in the bottom of the sixth. Designated hitter Dan Thielen got aboard on an error by Backlund, advanced to third on a single by Tom Bach and scored on a double by Marty Schilmoeller.

But the Hawkeyes broke the tie in the top of the seventh as Jeremy Lewis led off with a double, advanced on a sacrifice by Cory Larsen and went home on a single by Fishman.

"It was nice to come off a Big Ten series with a win during the week," Banks said. "UNI is vastly improved. They just don't give in. They did everything but beat us." Fishman, Backlund and Reed each went 2-for-4 to lead the Hawkeyes at the plate.

Iowa made some lineup adjustments Tuesday as catcher Tim Killeen and first baseman Kevin Minchik sat out because of minor injuries. Killeen is hitting .371 with six home runs and 24 RBIs, while Minchik sports a .273 average with 18 RBIs. Both are expected to return to the lineup later this week.

"We rested Killeen and Minchik because they're dinged a little," Banks said. "That hurt us a little, but we adjusted."

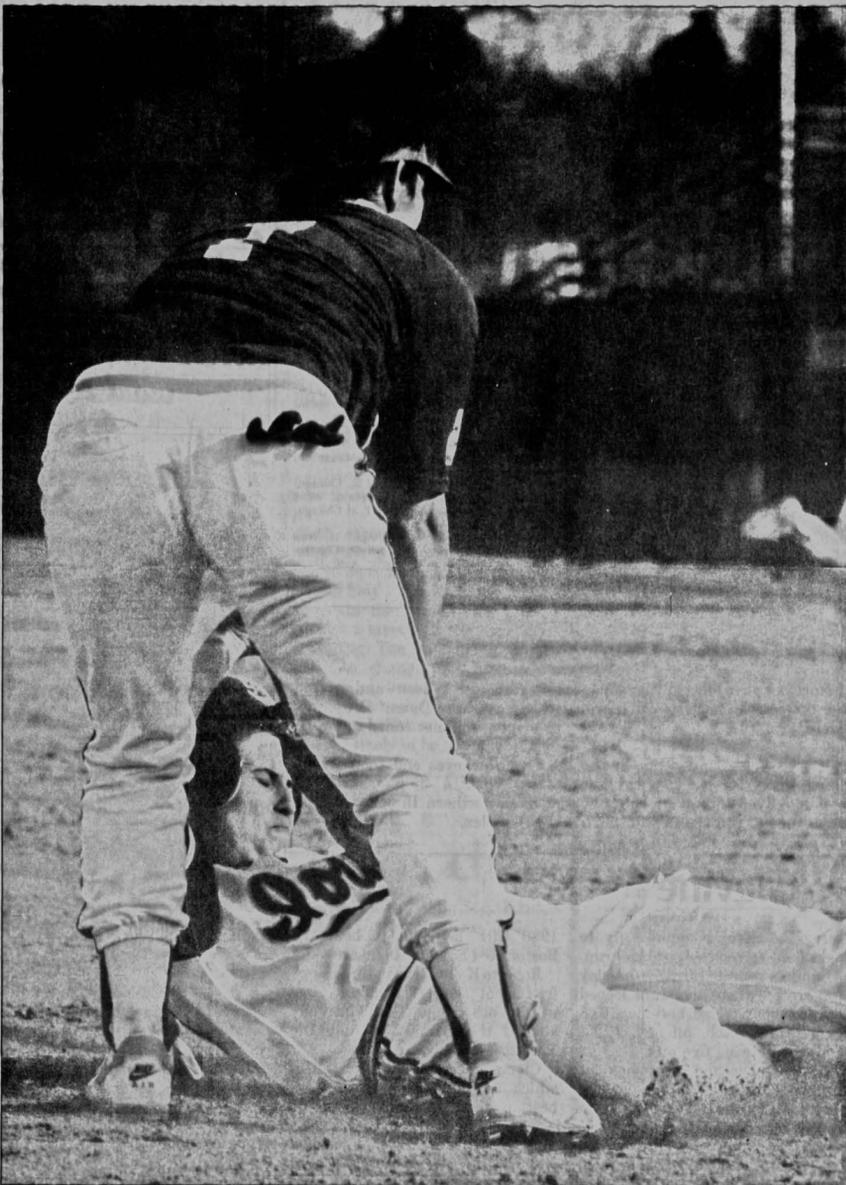

To compensate, Fishman started at catcher and Backlund was moved from designated hitter to first base. Fishman, a freshman from Glendora, Calif., has played in eight games this season, start-

Lack of consistency shows in Iowa's split

Jay Nanda
Daily Iowan

There was no doubt that the long faces exiting the Iowa softball team's dugout Tuesday afternoon were a consistent flow of emotion.

But it wasn't the kind of emotion, or consistency, that Coach Gayle Blevins was expecting from her Hawkeyes.

After doing no wrong in a 2-0 shutout of Western Illinois in the opening game at the Hawkeye Softball Complex, Iowa could not put the pieces together in the nightcap, stranding seven runners in a 4-1 loss.

And it wasn't hard for Blevins to find where the problems lay.

"It has been a difficult task to get our team to play consistently," the Iowa coach said after falling to 12-14 on the season. "It's been a nightmare for us. It's as if we allow things to happen to us and instead of stopping them from getting fairly significant, we continue to let it run until it runs its course. We're trying to get away from that."

The Hawkeyes appeared to have Westerwind freshman starter Leslee Hoover in trouble in the bottom of the first, as catcher Diane Pohl and centerfielder Kim Davis both singled and stole bases.

But three straight groundouts by Jenny Roe, Amy Hartsock and Christa Davis left Iowa with a pair of runners in scoring position and Western Illinois with some renewed confidence.

"That's the time we've gotta expect ourselves to be able to score," Blevins said. "Some people hit real well when there's nobody on but put a runner down on the bag, and they suddenly have a difficult time hitting."

"I would think that gave a lot of energy to Western to work out of what looked like could be a fairly big inning," she added.

"I think we left way too many people on base," Christa Davis said. "We get the people to start it, we just need someone to come up and close and bring runners in. We need to be a team that plays on emotion and when we're not playing emotional, we're not playing at our best."

Meanwhile, the Westerwinds made the most of their earned opportunities, as well as the ones Iowa gave them.

In the top of the third, errors by thirdbaseman Dawn DeVore and shortstop Roe led to a pair of runs and offset two earlier running catches in the outfield by Jenni Stotmeister and Kim Davis. Then, Westerwind centerfielder Lori Tubbs delivered a two-run double to right center for a 4-0 lead.

Iowa got one back in the bottom of the sixth, as Roe scored when a diving Amanda Nave in right field could not handle pinch hitter Stacey Harrison's fly ball. But it was too little, too late.

Kim Davis led the Hawkeyes with three hits in four at-bats, while pitcher Karen Jackson dropped to 4-9 with the loss.

But Blevins doesn't have any problems with the pitching of the Hawkeyes. Again, it boiled down to consistency.

Or rather, a lack of. "It probably doesn't help (Jackson) that it seems like every time she pitches, we never score any runs for her," Blevins said. "She's not responsible for that aspect of the game. You can pitch a lot differently when your team gives you a couple runs."

"I just don't feel that we have yet captured, with any degree of consistency, a real kind of killer instinct," she added. "We're thinking about making some lineup changes but we're not real deep. We just don't have many options to go to."

"So much of what's happened in our play right now is just trying to get our team to be real consistent when it comes to a good approach."

Iowa's pitching and overall game shined in the opener, however, as the Hawkeyes disposed of the Westerwinds 2-0.

Hunger remains with Atlanta after Series

Have you ever noticed that Cincinnati and Atlanta are considered Western cities while Chicago and St. Louis are Eastern?

It is eerie how things have changed in the N.L. West in only one season. Before the first pitch last year, magazines and all-knowing sports editors were writing that the Braves might be good enough to finish out of the cellar but were not capable of contending.

The Braves did in fact win it last season, and even Dodger fans had to like the fact that the Million Dollar team couldn't find enough incentive at the end of September to hold a lead.

Cincinnati did to the Dodgers in the winter what Atlanta did last September. The Eric Davis unloading left the Reds smiling and the Dodgers blue.

San Diego finished hot behind masterful pitching and the Giants fell apart once again.

Houston's youth movement moved them into the bottom but there are some good young players down in Texas, waiting for a shootout.

1 — Braves: No matter what you think about the talent in the league and the ups and downs of a young pitching staff, the fact is that the Braves are the only team who wants to win enough to win.

This team surprised everyone last season by beating the Dodgers and the Pirates before falling to the Twins in one of the best World Series ever. They will again find themselves in the thick of it in August, turn it up in September then watch the rest of the league crumble in October.

When Otis Nixon comes back after his short and forced rest due to drug use, the Braves will have a perfect lineup. Nixon can hit well and runs faster than the Roadrunner. Pendleton, Just- See ARNOLD, Page 2B

Chicago squeaks by Phils

PHILADELPHIA — The big crowd at Veterans Stadium on Tuesday had seen this act before.

Philadelphia blew a lead as Mark Grace's two-run homer sparked the Chicago Cubs past the Phillies, 4-3, Tuesday to make Jim Lefebvre a winner in his first game as manager of the team. The Phillies lost their eighth straight season opener and 17th in the last 21.

The crowd of 60,431 was the largest ever at Veterans Stadium for a day game. The record for a day game is 78,672 on April 8, 1958, when San Francisco played Los Angeles in the Coliseum.

"It really was his first win. We've been telling him that all that American League stuff doesn't count," Grace said of Lefebvre, händer Terri McFarland was honored as the Big Ten's Pitcher of the Week for the second straight week. McFarland then went out and picked up where she left off against Indiana last weekend by stymieing the Westerwinds on four hits.

McFarland baffled the WIU hitters with eight strikeouts, six of them called, in raising her mark to 8-5. All of her wins have come by shutouts.
"Terri's been pitching quite well," Blevins said. "She's been doing a good job for us."

The victory was costly for St. Louis, however. Cleanup hitter Andres Galarraga cracked a bone in his right wrist when he was hit by a Saberhagen pitch in the fourth and will be sidelined for five or six weeks, the team said. Second baseman Jose Oquendo suffered a dislocated shoulder in Monday's opener and also will miss five or six weeks.

HOUSTON — Tom Glavine pitched a two-hitter and sparked a tie-breaking rally with single as the Atlanta Braves started the defense of their National League championship with a 2-0 victory over the Houston Astros Tuesday night.
Glavine, the 1991 Cy Young Award winner, entered the game 0-8 lifetime in 12 career starts against the Astros. He struck out nine and walked two.
With the score 0-0 in the eighth inning, Glavine singled off loser Pete Harnisch and moved to third base on Deion Sanders' double.

Cincinnati began the winter with a good staff in Tom Browning (always good for a no-hit bid or two), Jose "Can You See" Rijo and youngster Chris Hammond "Cheese". Adding Belcher and Swindell gave them the best staff in the majors.
Once Rob Dibble comes back from his shoulder injury, this staff could go weeks without allowing a run.

'Nova finds it hard to replace Rollie

Mike Owen

PHILADELPHIA — Alternately a jovial face, an angry face, a content face, a contented face, an observing face, a smiling face, Rollie Massimino's face was always familiar.

For 19 years it was the image of Villanova basketball, and suddenly it is gone from the Wildcat scene, off to the glare of Las Vegas as the agent and image of change for a tarnished program.

Speculation on a new Villanova coach had turned to Xavier's Pete Gillen, a former Villanova and Notre Dame assistant who visited the suburban campus Monday. But late Tuesday afternoon, he withdrew his name from consideration.

"I was very impressed with the great situation they had at Villanova. I love it at Xavier and love living in Cincinnati. This is our home," Gillen said in a statement.

Villanova spokesman Jim DeLorenzo said no visits by other prospective coaches were immediately scheduled.

Gillen, 156-61 in seven seasons at Xavier, didn't return a phone call Tuesday but had told newspapers in Philadelphia that he was interested.

"We like where we are now, but this is an unbelievable opportunity," Gillen, 44, told The Philadelphia Inquirer before returning to Cincinnati on Monday.

The person who eventually takes the Villanova job gets the task of putting his own stamp on a Big East program that boasts a national championship under Massimino.

It's a task many coaches would welcome.

"The Villanova job is a plum," said Notre Dame coach John MacLeod.

Coaching changes are unusual at Villanova. The Wildcats have had only three coaches in the last 56 years.

Feminist scholar and basketball nut.

Sue Lafky is the first to admit that the two phrases are an odd combination but both accurately describe her.

Lafky, an assistant professor in the journalism school, spent last Saturday in the nosebleed seats of the Metrodome watching the NCAA Final Four. Her beloved Indiana Hoosiers lost to eventual champion Duke in the semifinals so she didn't stick around for the finals.

"I would have stayed for the finals and drove all night to be to class (Tuesday afternoon) if Indiana had been in it," she said.

Lafky said she became a fan of the game after moving from Oregon to Indiana as a graduate student and was looking for a way to break up the long, dreary Midwest winters.

"This (basketball) was a cheap way to be entertained," she said.

"I never dreamt I would like basketball this much when I went to Indiana, it's contagious."

Lafky's love of Hoosier basketball is sometimes tempered by the presence of Indiana Coach Bob Knight. As a feminist Lafky was deeply upset a few years ago when Knight made a now famous comment comparing being a coach and a rape victim.

She said that she tries to separate Knight's off-court behavior from his accomplishments as a coach.

"I think he's a genius as far as being a basketball coach," she said.

Lafky, who had tickets four rows from the top, said she is glad she made the trip to Minneapolis but the Metrodome isn't a great place to watch basketball.

"You needed binoculars to see the court," she said. "You really appreciate Carver-Hawkeye Arena."

Minnesota committee debates issues

Associated Press

MINNEAPOLIS — A faculty committee at the University of Minnesota is debating Big Ten recommendations that could result in elimination of some men's sports and addition of some women's sports at the university.

Under the plan, within five years at least 40 percent of the intercollegiate athletes at each Big Ten school would have to be women. Only 29 percent of University of Minnesota athletes now are women.

Further, within 10 years, the number of men and women athletes would have to reflect the percentage of all female and male students enrolled as undergraduates at each school. Minnesota's current enrollment is about 49 percent women and 51 percent men.

The proposals are part of the Big Ten's effort to contain spiraling costs of intercollegiate athletics, while providing equal opportunities for women athletes.

"The two of them are speeding freight trains running right at each other, and there has to be some way of enhancing women's opportunities and still slowing the increases in expenditures," said Mark Dienhart, Minnesota's associate athletic director.

"It's a very serious and important issue," said Robert Stein, the University of Minnesota law school dean and faculty member who represents the Gopher men's athletic program to the NCAA and the Big Ten.

"If this sort of approximate ratio comes into effect, that has to come about either by increasing the women's department greatly or decreasing the men's department," Stein told the Saint Paul Pioneer Press.

Each school has been asked to review the proposals in time for them to be considered at a Big Ten meeting May 11 and 12. University presidents then would take final action at a meeting June 7 and 8.

The Big Ten presidents could decide to change the proposals, which were sent to the schools early last month. However, Stein said some similar recommendations are likely to be adopted.

BRAVES

Atlanta Braves won't give up name, chop

Marc Rice
Associated Press

ATLANTA — The Atlanta Braves plan to keep their name, their tomahawk emblem and their chopping fans despite protests from American Indian leaders, team president Stan Kasten said.

"No name change is being contemplated. No logo change is being contemplated," Kasten said on Tuesday. "We are the Braves. Our logo is the tomahawk. We will continue to promote the Braves and the tomahawk."

Regarding the tomahawk chop and Indian chants popularized by Braves fans last season, Kasten said, "We won't discourage any of that."

"The chop salute doesn't have anything more to do with Indian culture ... than the wave," he said.

Kasten also unveiled the Braves' championship rings, featuring the engraved words "Tomahawk Chop," at a media luncheon. "You can't think about our season without the tomahawk chop," he said.

The Braves, and especially the antics of their fans, drew the ire of Indian activists last year when the team's success put them in the national spotlight. Protesters, who called the chops and chants insulting, gathered outside the stadiums in Atlanta and Minnesota as the Braves and Twins played the World Series.

After the 1991 season, Kasten met with officials of the Minneapolis-based American Indian Movement, which wants sports teams to drop all Indian-related names and mascots.

AIM officials did not immediately return phone calls Tuesday seeking reaction to Kasten's comments.

Kasten said the Braves would try to be sensitive to the Indians' feelings, but offered few concrete plans. While the team will not encourage fans to wear Indian headdresses to games, neither will such costumes be prohibited, he said.

Pressed for an example of how the team would respond to the Indians' concerns, Kasten said the team would discard a "Scalp 'em" billboard that has been used in the past.

"That did cross the line," he said.

MASTERS

Daly plays long ball, fan ball

Bob Green
Associated Press

AUGUSTA, Ga. — The driving range at the Augusta National Golf Club is in front of the white, colonial style clubhouse.

It's 260 yards from the tee to a high screen fence bordering busy Washington Road. The fence has been raised to 65 feet from 50.

Tournament officials insist the additional 15 feet of protection has nothing to do with Long John Daly's first Masters appearance.

"That decision was made last year when some balls were knocked over the net," new tournament chairman Jackson Stephens said.

No matter the reason or timing, the change was enough to fence in even Daly's enormous, longest-in-the-game power.

"I tried, but I couldn't do it," he said after several unsuccessful attempts to loft a ball over the fence and into the Washington Road traffic.

"I can hit it high, and I can hit it long, but not that high and not that long."

Still, Daly's reputation for the long ball made him the gallery favorite in a practice session for the tournament that begins Thursday.

The man who became an instant celebrity with his rise from ninth alternate to the 1991 PGA title was trailed by a boisterous crowd of several hundred in a practice round.

Daly, who loves to play to the gallery, gave them a show.

He hit a 4-iron second shot to the 555-yard second hole. He hit a 3-iron to the uphill, 535-yard eighth hole.

On the two par-5's on the back, so frequently the pivotal holes in this tournament, he hit a 6-iron to the dogleg 13th and flew an 8-iron over the green on the 500-yard 15th.

Then, on the 18th, he overlooked a Masters prohibition against playing more than a single ball during practice rounds. Daly spotted some children in the crowd and began chipping balls to them, rolling them gently among the scampering feet of the youngsters who scrambled for the treasured mementos.

"It was fun. I enjoyed it. Had a ball," said the free-spirited Daly, whose great ability to hit long seems ideally suited to the demands of this long, wide-open course.

"He doesn't have to learn to hit it long," Jack Nicklaus said of the 25-year-old power-hitter with the wrap-around swing.

"He hits it long now."

"He doesn't have to learn to hit it high. He does that now."

"He doesn't have to learn to fade the ball. He does that now."

But Daly, after his first couple of trips over Augusta National's rolling hills and sloping, undulating greens, said he is a few years away from winning the Masters.

"Not yet," said Daly,

CARDINALS

After years of rehab Worrell finally returns

R.B. Fallstrom
Associated Press

ST. LOUIS — For the first time in more than two seasons, Todd Worrell took the ball. It was like he'd never been gone.

Vince Coleman tapped out. Willie Randolph took a called third strike. Bobby Bonilla struck out. Then Worrell, the St. Louis Cardinals' relief pitcher, strode off the mound Monday night to a huge ovation in his first appearance since Sept. 4, 1989.

"What can I tell you?" Bonilla said. "Same as ever. He had great movement on the fastball. I'll tell you, he was bringing it."

"Worrell pitched terrifically," Cardinals manager Joe Torre said, adding that the fan response gave him goose bumps.

Worrell has 126 career saves, including three 30-plus save seasons in his four full major league seasons. Until opening night, he had nothing to show for the 1990s.

Worrell said he's just happy to be pitching again after elbow surgery and related shoulder problems kept him off the mound. Still, he said he somewhat expected to be a hit his first time back after his success in spring training, where he had 14 strikeouts in 11 1-3 innings.

"It was really a sweet ending to the preparation I had," Worrell said. "It's no surprise what I was capable of doing tonight. That doesn't mean I couldn't have had a bad night, but I had glimpses of this in spring training."

Not that there weren't doubts. For one, Worrell, 32, had wondered whether the fans would still recognize him.

For another, he's not the old Worrell anymore. Durability remains a question mark.

He's also likely to be stuck on 126 saves — one shy of the team record held by Bruce Sutter — for a while. Now he's the set-up man for Lee Smith, who led the major leagues with 47 saves in 53 chances last season.

"We feel that if we do things right, the other team has seven innings to beat us," Torre said.

This time it didn't work. First, Smith blew a save when he gave up two hits and a run-scoring groundout to pinch hitter Mackey Sasser in the ninth. Then he gave up a two-run home run to Bonilla in the 10th and got pulled for only the second time in two seasons.

As impressive as he was, Worrell wouldn't second-guess Torre for removing him after one inning.

"The plan is for me to get in, try to shut the game down and try to set it up for Lee to come in and polish it off," Worrell said. "It's going to work like that great."

"Lee just didn't have a good outing. It was one of those days. We all have those days."

DUKE

Krzyzewski hints at one more banner

Cindy Roberts
Associated Press

DURHAM, N.C. — Two-time NCAA champion Duke, who came home Tuesday by thousands of screaming fans, wasted no time in hinting at the possibility of a third championship.

"I'm probably stupid for saying this, but I wonder where a third one might go," coach Mike Krzyzewski said, referring to the championship banners.

Thousands of fans shouting "We're number one" greeted Krzyzewski and the team as they returned to the Duke campus Tuesday.

Krzyzewski told the crowd he would prefer a new version of the chant: "We're number one twice."

Duke defeated Michigan 71-51 Monday night to become the first team in 19 years to win back-to-back NCAA championships.

Guard Bobby Hurley also suggested a third championship isn't unthinkable.

"The best thing about winning back-to-back for me is that I'll be back one more time," he said.

The players carried their trophy and the net they cut down after the game to Tuesday's celebration in Cameron Indoor Stadium.

The celebration in Cameron followed a party after the game Monday night that Duke public safety officials said was worse than the one last year because the party continued for six hours.

Duke Public Safety Corp. David Nicholson said at least four people were arrested and dozens were injured.

Four of the injured had second- and third-degree burns from horseplay at bonfires, he said. One person suffered alcohol poisoning and five had head cuts from beer bottles that were thrown.

Also, Durham police said they arrested at least 20 people on charges ranging from assault to drunken driving to arson for several unauthorized bonfires.

Chancellor Keith Brodie greeted the team and described its accomplishments before Krzyzewski took the podium for a 25-minute speech.

The coach said he was concerned that his team, ranked No. 1 all season and with a 34-2 record, might become a little impulsive.

"For these guys to focus so well and win against Indiana and then still beat Michigan is one of the most incredible things we've done," he said.

Senior co-captain Brian Davis, who played Monday with a high ankle sprain, told the fans: "This has been the best team to be around."

He advised Duke students to cherish the moment.

"This isn't normal. I would hope that next year... I hope you would give the same kind of support because you never know what can happen," he said.

When someone in the crowd yelled a derogatory statement about arch-rival North Carolina, Krzyzewski admonished him, saying he would be happy if Duke were the only team mentioned during the celebration.

The sea of students dressed in blue and white waved banners, chanted and cheered, and a band played "We Are the Champions" as they awaited the team's arrival.

At one point, the crowd chanted: "Dean's got one and Mike's got two," a reference to coach Dean Smith of North Carolina, which won the NCAA championship in 1982.

Graduate student Greg Miracle said he watched the game, celebrated at a bonfire afterward and watched the game twice more on video before going to bed at 6 a.m.

"The only reason that I went to bed is that I had to get some sleep so that I could come back here again," he said.

Burroughs Wellcome attorney Barry Pea, 34, skipped work and picked his children up early at school to attend the Cameron celebration.

CHATTERBOX

An unhappy camper's tales of the not-so-good outdoors

Mandy Crane
Daily Iowan

I heard on the news the other day that camping may be the new recession-sponsored vacation ideal.

Yuck.

The words "happy camper" have always been foreign to me.

Why is that, Mandy? Glad you asked. It was Girl Scouts.

Every summer we packed up our Brady Bunch sleeping bags and headed for the woods with Troop 21.

After a long night of mosquito swatting and rain, the girls in my tent would crawl out into the already sweltering heat and wait in line for the latrine. Then we'd have to do something no one should do that early in the a.m.

We had to hunt for our breakfast. Stacey came back with a raccoon and we skinned...

No. Not that kind of hunting. Instead we had to search the trees for little Baggies holding miniature boxes of cereal and a piece of fruit. I always got stuck with Kellogg's All-Bran and ended up spending more time in the latrine.

The day was outlined before us. Sometimes we were lucky and got to stay inside an air-conditioned shelter and work on our Writing badge. Most of the time, however, we had to hike 5,000 miles and sing wholesome Girl Scout songs — "Mary had a steamboat, steamboat had a bell, steamboat went to heaven, Mary went to hell-o, operator, give me No. 9..."

We discovered all kinds of fun things on these hikes. With my cohorts we initiated our troop of city girls to things like nettles, poison ivy and poison oak. We found dog tracks in the mud and dead fish by the pond. When we went swimming in the "lake" we discovered that if we weren't careful we could skin our toes on the cement bottom.

Mmmm. Camping.

The afternoon was spent practicing handy domestic things that would make us better young women. We learned how to spread peanut butter on celery and sprinkle raisins on it and call it "bugs on a log." We learned how to make portable sinks by taking an empty bleach bottle and poking a hole in it, stopping it up with a curler pin, and using pantyhose with a bar of soap inside to wash our hands.

Nighttime was for more songs with deep, sisterly meaning — "Billy, Don't Be a Hero," and "Daddy, Please Don't." We sang them around the campfire that would scent our clothes for the entire summer, itching our rashes and cooking our "foil dinners."

A foil dinner is a quarter pound of hamburger, a cup of Veg-All and a couple of potatoes thrown into foil and then into the coals. The potatoes and meat come out in a delightful charred-on-the-outside, raw-on-the-inside fashion. If it hadn't been for the s'mores (a Girl Scout invention) I'd have died.

Then the younger Juniors get initiated by the older girls in our troop. This includes getting tricked into sitting on wet washcloths in your pajamas or rummaging through the woods on a "snipe" hunt. Kids, don't be fooled. It's all a hoax. Our "snipe" was a beer can with branches stuck inside.

Finally we got to go to bed, with warnings that eating Cheetos before we slept could attract bears and other critters that would eat our fingers.

The last time I went camping was when our leaders wouldn't let us go home until someone had claimed a pair of giant underpants one of them found under a tent. We sat there for an hour looking at the only overweight girl in the troop and I felt so bad for her. She finally grabbed them just so we could all leave. I don't suppose she enjoys camping much either.

Mandy Crane's column appears Wednesdays in the Arts section.

THEATER REVIEW

'The Misanthrope' hits the casting couch

Molière goes Hollywood in a production that puts a '90s twist on a classic French import.

Amy Brammer
Daily Iowan

"The Misanthrope," written by French playwright Molière, was presented to Iowa City last weekend in a contemporary adaptation by Niel Bartlett. The 17th-century play of human corruption with rich language and rhymed verse was transformed into a modern Hollywood setting to make it more appealing to a contemporary audience.

The story begins with Alceste, a Hollywood writer who has grown tired of the constant kissing-up that he has to do to maintain his career. He would rather have no career at all than to have to compromise his integrity. Alceste, however, finds himself madly in love with the hot new star Cle-mine, who loves the very lifestyle Alceste despises. Alceste is then forced to choose whether to follow his heart or his morals, which is the source of much turmoil.

One of the goals of the characters in "The Misanthrope" was to maintain Molière's original ideas in a contemporary setting. As Ron Clarke, artistic director, put it, "It's pleasing to find an interesting contemporary adaptation of a classic that brings together some of the challenges of verse drama along with modern language and contemporary characters. The juxtaposition of Molière's well-known characters transported out of their history and into present day Hollywood is very exciting to work on as an actor."

Clarke is accurate in his description. The use of rhyme brought an unexpected humor that captivated the audience. This, paired with the characters' desperate attempts to please those already established in Tinseltown, makes for a delightful performance. "The Misanthrope" is a classic with a contemporary twist that makes the message all the more immediate and moving.

Guest director Bruce Wheaton took the adaptation seriously. As he put it, "Such adaptations are not only about 'updating.' They are about providing two simultaneous points of view, as opposed to simply making an historic work 'accessible' to contemporary audiences. This version sheds light on the original, and the original sheds light on the contemporary version as well."

Wheaton, a UI graduate, last directed the sell-out performance of "Waiting for Godot" for the Riverside Theatre. Ron Clarke, most recently seen in "Of Mice and Men," plays Alceste, and the role of Cle-mine is played by Edith Campbell, who performed last in "Road to Mecca."

Those still interested in catching "The Misanthrope" can find it at the Riverside Theatre from April 9-11 and 15-18. All shows begin at 8 p.m.
