The UI may want to make some adjustments in light of the new state budget passed. The UI Board of Regents should not include the School of Library and Information Science in the proposed budget.

The policy, which was drawn up to give the School of Library and Information Science some financial independence, is under debate.

The new report recommended that the School of Library and Information Science "is a true resource for the state of Iowa and beyond beyond to the region."

The president of the School of Library and Information Science, Nathan Gerhard Loewenberg, went on to say that the School of Library and Information Science "is a true resource for the state of Iowa and beyond beyond to the region."

Journeying from fear to utter bliss at 180 mph

When you jump out of an airplane at 180 mph, everything wonder through your head as you go. You ask yourself: What have I done? Why did I sign up just jump out of an airplane, or did I?

Two hours later it's still a bit of a mystery.

My first try into skydiving began freshman fall in the Washington High School gymnasium of Paradise Skydivers. The school was in the middle of a half-dozen extremely friendly, probably insane individuals.

My phone contact and jump coordinator, Jay Speckeen, laid it out. Nothing could be easier. I was at the airport in a bus, instead of driving to a party the night before. I wore whatever I would, had no need of shoes and other transportation.

Jay what a wonderful tandem skydiving method for beginners. You get attached through an intricate set of brackets and hurried to the instructor, on whose back is the all-important parachute. Never, never to jump out of the plane before the fall is 50-seconds or so the plane opens the parachute and then dives to the ground. I had to make over 1,400 jumps if I figured it was pretty easy to go with. The only thing we'll be attached and I could drop the parachute at any time.

After signing up for gates of no return, I was then in an airplane, and anyone possibility, we were ready.

Accompanying us for the ride up was Robert Paradise Skydivers, Dave Wyse. The plane climbed over the St. Louis Cardinals' practice in St. Louis Memorial Shore. We saw the skydivers in the distance, the parachute rising in the air. We were flying a video camera on the plane, but I personally had a chance to look at two hundred or so heads. Also to the plane for the second time that day, and our parachute, and our plane.

Computer prices have taken a plunge in the last three months. Caves Day, a dell bear computer consultant, works at a computer store where prices have been a large drop.

With many scenarios, the price drop, the system offers less. The cheaper computer could offer less a computer, and the trade is in the computer is used for the same price.

Dell said that the price will continue to drop and dual computers become more popular, especially for computers that are used for the same price.

Bugs added that more and more people are finding computers a bigger help in their lives.

"A computer may still be a luxury, but in a few years it may be almost a necessity," he said.

People sneak and play the waiting for a computer at a computer store, where prices are starting to drop, check out the latest personal computer prices. In the world of computers, the industry and price cutting is the name of the game. In the last few years, the price of personal computers have been dropping, which is a lot of lower prices on many of their systems.

Recently, priced IBM clones and Microcom computers have been dropped to a very, very small amount, which is a lot of $600 in some cases. Microcoms can usually be purchased for less than $100.

Give Corey Royk, the latest price drop, and the market is due to computers in due to competition is lowering prices in the computer store. More people are dropping in prices in order to compete and stay in business.

The prices on the computers in the store in the market. The store is the main focus on the IBM clone, the IBM 486 clone, it wasn't long before area businesses dropped 486 clones to the market.

Computer stores have a lot of choice to choose from. They have a lot of choices in the market.

"If you need a computer, you have to buy a computer," said Detleffson.

"If you need it, it may be in the store, but if it's doing double duty, you may not be doing any faster or any better."

Bugs added that more and more people are finding computers a bigger help in their lives.

Source of rare eye disorder identified

Seth Hamamoto
The Daily Iowan

Research at the UI College of Medicine have identified the cause of an eye disorder linked to the death of a young woman. Researchers said the findings may lead to identifying people at risk for similar diseases in other people.

The disorder strikes a specific chromosome, and it is currently incurable. The research involved a collaboration between a team of researchers at the University of Iowa and a team led by Dr. Seth Hamamoto, a UI professor.

"It's a genetic disorder, which means about 50 percent of the people afflicted with it are going to pass it along to their offspring," said Dr. Val Sheffield, UI professor of pediatrics and medical genetics. "If you have a known family history affected by Best's disease, I recommend seeing an ophthalmologist, especially if you have any symptoms indicating a specific form of the disease," Sheffield said.

IOWA ERA

To the Editor:

It is a sad commentary on our society that the Equal Rights Amendment (ERA) is not even a discussion topic in high schools. In three years of high school, I have heard ERA only once. Yet, the ERA does not only affect women; it affects every person.

All men and women are, by inalienable law, equal. All women are not just equal with men, they are equal to each other. The ERA states that all people are equal.

If passed, the ERA would go far beyond the simple elimination of sex discrimination in education. It would make the legal system treat women the same as men. Until we can do this, we cannot consider the United States to be a free and just society.

The ERA must be passed in order to ensure that the rights of women and men can be protected. The ERA is the only solution to the problems of discrimination.

In conclusion, the ERA is a positive step forward for the United States. Without it, we cannot truly be a free and just society. The ERA must be passed.

Sincerely,

World leaders assemble for 18th annual summit

Martin Chrusching
Associated Press

MUNICH - Germany's leaders invited the world's richest nations Thursday for their 18th annual summit here, seeking to bolster the peace process in the Middle East and to encourage the Gulf nations to reach an agreement.

President Bush and his wife Barbara review a German honor guard at the Munich airport upon their arrival Sunday.

Bush recently met with the Arab leaders of Saudi Arabia, the United Arab Emirates, Kuwait, Morocco, Algeria, Tunisia and Libya. At the meeting, Bush said, "I told them we are doing the right thing in Iraq."

Bush said on Sunday that the United States was committed to the region and would continue to work with the allies to ensure peace and stability.

The summit will be held in Munich, Germany, from Feb. 11 to 13. Leaders from 25 countries are expected to attend, including U.S. President George W. Bush, Russian President Vladimir Putin, British Prime Minister Tony Blair, French President Jacques Chirac, Italian Prime Minister Silvio Berlusconi, and German Chancellor Angela Merkel.

Bush said that the meeting would focus on a range of issues, including the war on terrorism, the conflict in Iraq, and the Middle East peace process.

The summit is expected to be the largest gathering of world leaders in Munich, with more than 1,000 guests expected to attend.

Officials refuse to cooperate with U.N. inspection team

NICEA, Egypt - An Egyptian official said a U.N. team working to secure the release of several thousand prisoners from Nasser City prison in Cairo has failed to gain access to the prison.

Bassem Alfarag, a member of the inspection team, said that the team had not been able to negotiate with the prison authorities to enter the facility.

Alfarag said that the team had been unable to negotiate with the prison authorities to enter the facility because the authorities had not granted them access.

The inspection team, which is composed of experts from various countries, is expected to visit several prisons in Egypt over the next few days to assess their conditions and make recommendations for improvements.

BAGHDAD - Iraqi security forces refused to allow a team of U.N. experts to enter a prison in Baghdad, saying they were not allowed to do so.

The team was trying to inspect the facility, which was recently used to house prisoners from the Shiite neighborhood of Sadr City.

The U.N. experts had requested access to the prison to assess the conditions of the prisoners and to ensure that they were treated fairly.

The Iraqi security forces said they were not allowed to grant the team access to the prison because it was located in a sensitive area.

The team, which includes experts from various countries, is expected to visit several prisons in Iraq over the next few days to assess their conditions and make recommendations for improvements.

Fighting hamper citizens from picking up supplies

BARAKA, Tanzania-Hundreds of thousands of farmers in Tanzania are trying to avoid the fallout from a three-day lull in the fighting being waged by ethnic rivalries in the tiny East African nation.

The lull in fighting has enabled many farmers to return to their homes and begin harvesting their crops, which are damaged by the heat and drought. But the lull also means that many farmers are unable to reach their fields to harvest their crops, which are damaged by the heat and drought.

"We are getting bottlenecked at the site," said one farmer. "But we can't go out to get the food because the fighting is too intense."}

"America wants Peace. Not War."

The message was clear and concise as President George Bush addressed the nation, urging an end to the bloody conflict in the Gulf.

"We have reached a point where we must act," he said. "We cannot allow this conflict to continue. We must work together to bring about a peaceful resolution."

GAME 23

The Milwaukee Brewers's six-game winning streak ended with a 4-3 loss to the Padres in 10 innings. The Padres took the lead in the 10th inning on a two-run home run by Dave Parker, breaking up the scoreless tie.

Thomas DeShields, who had pinch-hit for Jeff Burroughs in the ninth inning, drove in the winning run with a sacrifice fly. He also hit a solo home run in the eighth inning.

DeShields is expected to be the Brewers' starting center fielder when they return to action on Wednesday.

Crenshaw comes to lister.

"I was just lucky," Crenshaw said.

Another Ryan masterpiece needed, he finished the 25th season of his career.

"Isn't this fighting," Beck, Duffy and Crenshaw said.

Crenshaw came to lister.

"That's as real as it gets," Ryan said.

Ryan's streak of 26 years, 173 victories, 135 complete games and a 2.24 earned run average had been, he said, "the most consistent, perhaps, of any pitcher's career.

"I don't think about those things," Ryan said.

Ryan's major league record, by striking out 3,554 batters, drew to an end, the third base umpire's signal to end an inning, after another milestone had been achieved. Ryan had pitched for the New York Yankees, New York Mets, Houston Astros and Chicago White Sox, and had become the first pitcher to reach the 3,500-strikeout mark.
