Report: Handgun health, not political issue

Sara Epstein

Associated Press

Instead of recommending a ban on handguns, an Iowa commission on Monday by the UI Institute of Public Affairs recommended a study of the growing number of deaths and injuries caused by guns.

James Marschall, director of the UI Institute of Public Affairs, said that firearms need to be made safer to prevent a dangerous proliferation of guns as a political issue.

The study recommends that injuries are the leading cause of death among young black males.

IC school to run Channel One:

The question of advertising in school has reached such sensitivity in some states, Northwest Junior High School Principal Jim Murray felt he had to be careful. Murray announced that the school would be running Channel One, a news broadcast containing commercials and text messages, next week. Murray said he had discussed the matter with school board members, and they supported his decision.

Murray said he was concerned about the effect of advertising on students, but he also believed it was important for students to be exposed to the world of business. Murray said he would be monitoring the students' reactions to the new program and would make any necessary adjustments.

Murray's decision was met with mixed reactions from parents. Some parents were concerned about the effect of advertising on their children, while others were more accepting of the idea. ### Movie Review

RIVERSIDE THEATRE

Anna Weinstein as ‘Divine Miss M’ a la Bette Midler

Etimea, a veteran of broadsheet musicals and Broadway, was cast as Miss Margarida, the central character of the play. She brings a depth of emotion and a sense of vulnerability to the role, making her performance truly memorable. The play itself, however, falls short of its potential, with a weak plot and inconsistent character development.

Davis flies past bloated Hanks, iconic Madonna, greasy Lovitz

Former model homes quickly evolved acting skills to support a cameo cast in "A League of Their Own." Kristen Carr (The Daily Iowan)

- Tom Hanks as Coach Don biến was a pleasant surprise. His portrayal of the baseball coach was both inspiring and inspiring. His performance was a highlight of the film.
- Madonna as Henrietta was over-the-top and unrealistic. Her character seemed out of place in the film and did not contribute to the overall theme.
- George Clooney as Duke was a punching bag for the other characters. His role was unnecessary and detracted from the film.

Hair coloring, cancer link rings untrue

Standy Cane

- There is no scientific evidence linking hair coloring to cancer.
- The article misrepresents the research cited by the National Cancer Institute.

IOWASH SUMMER REP

‘Coastal Disturbances’ slows pace of Summer Rep

Theater director andMandy is the star of this year’s summer repertory production of “Coastal Disturbances.”

- The characters are apparently intended to complement each other, but the script fails to connect them in a meaningful way. The dialogue and interactions are forced and do not feel genuine.
- The play’s pacing is slow, and the audience is left waiting for something to happen. The setting and props are simplistic, and the production value is lacking.

Riverside Rep

Indiana’s own。“League of Their Own.”

- Kristen Carr (The Daily Iowan)

- The play is set in the mid-1940s, during World War II, and follows a team of women who come together to form a professional baseball team.
- The characters are well-developed, and the script is clever and humorous. The cast delivers strong performances, and the production is well-received.

CLINTON PONDS RUNNING MATE, MONOPOLY OF MEDIA ATTENTION

Karen Bell
Associated Press

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. — When should Bill Clinton announce his running mate? The question is debating whether to debut it now,
this week or hold off to create buzz on the campaign's return to the New York area.

Aides even tried briefly with the idea of postponing the announcement until next Tuesday, as news networks were courting the hot political fledgling. But that idea was dropped quickly as a "non-thing." The president-elect is now set to return to New York for two days next Tuesday and Wednesday.

Campaign spokesman Joe Di
Meo said the announcement likely would come between Wednesday and next Monday.

Defining the exact timing is "like defining how many eggs one drops on the head of a pin," Mon e said. "It's not productive to look in the mirror and ask how his mind and we're going to come to it. We're going to put a bounce out of it no matter when it happens.

REALIGNMENT: Cubs, Cards upset

"We have governed the National League for as long as anyone can remember," said the National League's biggest-attended regular season contests. "When we decided to realign, we did so with the full knowledge of what we were saying. The NL was a smaller market, and we were trying to capture a larger audience. We were not trying to compete with the American League, but rather to make the NL more competitive."

"I believe that the NL is a much better league today," said the Cub's batting coach, "because of the realignment. The NL has become a more competitive league, and we have had more success as a result."

"It is true that the NL has some weaknesses," said Mark Belanger, the NL's general manager. "But I think that we have made some progress in recent years. The NL has a young and talented team, and we are working hard to make the NL a better league."

"In conclusion, I believe that the realignment was a good move for the NL," said Bill Cone, the NL's pitcher. "I think that we have a bright future ahead of us, and I am looking forward to seeing what we can do in the years to come."
