Pomater's firm outlines debt restructuring plan

Associated Press and Tad Pavlock

A company re-formed by prominent Atlanta investment bankers is seeking to buy a sprawling 85-acre campus program after an apparent failed restructuring plan.

"Our objective is to complete the financial restructuring, and the strongest deal available," stated a republican source. In the roundup.

The proposals are explained with three plans:

1. Offer: The offering company, in a loan and bond sale, is made to the company, and 15 percent would be refinanced.

2. Propose: The company would offer a loan and bond sale.

3. Refinancing: The company would refinance the debt.

"While we realize it will be difficult to reach that level, we will aggressively work to complete the exchange offer." Pomater and longtime investment partner Warren Hoytday founded General Bonny Campbell is from the University of Texas - Austin, and a master's degree and a Ph.D. in economics from New York University. He also has a law degree from the University of Texas - Austin.

Attorney general warns of scholarship schemes

THE NEWS (AP) - Attorney General Brenda Campbell warned today that students and their families should be wary of scholarship schemes that charge families as much as $200,000 for worthless representation.

Campbell said he has received reports of calls from parents and students about opportunities to participate in scholarship programs. Some parents have been told to send money in order to have their children accepted into the programs.

"Parents and students should be wary of scam-like schemes that are greedy," Campbell said.

Gingrich wins after Georgia primary recount

Repeve hospital after intestinal surgery

RCALD, Italy (AP) — Pope John Paul II was in critical but stable condition today after undergoing intestinal surgery for the second time in three days.

The surgery was performed after the pope, who is 85, fell Wednesday afternoon and was taken to a hospital. He was taken to Rome's Ospedale San Paolo about two hours later.

"Older people don't feel welcome downtown. There are a lot of university students down there acting silly, and it makes me sad," Dorothy Grapp, who has lived in downtown for 40 years, said.

"We're not sure why they're acting that way. We're not sure if it's because of the drug and alcohol activity in downtown," Grapp said.

CANDIDATES CASH OVER FOREIGN POLICY

Robert Naylor Jr.

Associated Press

ATLANTA — The Democratic presidential contender is focusing on foreign policy experience, with Sen. John Kerry and others trying to upstage him.

Sen. John Kerry (D-Mass.) said today that he was "very much" willing to do the same thing.

"I have been working on this issue for quite some time," Kerry said.

Former President Carter joined a full-fledged effort to recover from the operation to remove a cancerous tumor.

"The situation in these countries is going to get worse," the 85-year-old said.

"I met the members of the government and made a few suggestions about demonstrations away from the society," Kerry said.

Price scanners 94.6% accurate

Campbell advises shoppers to stay alert at check-out

Iowa City, Iowa -

According to a report in The Daily Iowan, Iowa City, Iowa, a survey conducted by the Iowa Attorney General's Office found that price scanners at supermarkets are only 94.6% accurate. The survey, conducted at 20 stores in the area, found that 15% of items were overcharged, 13% were undercharged, and 1% of items were charged at the wrong price.

The survey was conducted by randomly selecting items at the checkout lanes of the stores and checking them against the prices on the shelves. The results showed that the accuracy of the scanners varied widely, with some scanners being as accurate as 100% and others as low as 70%.

Campbell, in his report, advises shoppers to be aware of the potential for errors and to check their receipts carefully. "Our goal is to ensure that people are not being overcharged for the food they buy," he said. "The results of this survey show that there is still work to be done to improve the accuracy of these scanners."

The results of the survey have been shared with the Iowa Attorney General's Office, which will use them to inform the development of new regulations to improve the accuracy of price scanners. The office has also urged consumers to be vigilant and to report any instances of overcharging or undercharging.

The big lie

The employment figures for the month of June reflect poorly on George Bush and the ruling elite's administration when on. The official numbers lag it a bit.2 Over 10 million people are without work. During June, the total number of jobsharks by 117,000. It is obvious that "American" campaign promises were presented as a solution.

The main industry shows how disavowed "buy American" in which car is more "American," a Dodge Stealth built at Mitsubishi in Japan, or a Brawne built in Missouri? Each of the Detroit Big Three owns a share of a Japanese company. GM's Ignis is a Mitsubishi, while GM holds on interest in Isuzu and operates joint ventures with Toyota.

The Big Three complaints that Japanese factories which operate in the United States also assemble parts produced by themselves. For example, each Big Three automaker has factories in Mexico, Chrysler's own assembly plant will be back in Ontario. When announcing the elimination of 74,000 by 1996 in U.S. GM, revealed that its profitable European division will be building new plants in Poland. The United Auto Workers union has suffered severely. During the 1980s, the UAW lost 127,000 jobs at GM alone. If GM eliminates 74,000 more, the union will be membership reduced by 43 percent in the last 10 years. The UAW leadership has been castrated by the conquest of the "buy American" campaign. The Big Three have not stopped shipping jobs. More, the union will see the same the 1980s, the erosion of their bargaining power.

The Coralville City Council agreed to pay $15,000 to the police department to settle a lawsuit filed by police officers over a drug testing policy.

The council approved the settlement during its meeting Monday night. The officers had claimed the city's random drug testing policy violates their constitutional rights to privacy and free speech.

"It's fantastic, I was crushed and now I'm breathing," said police officer Nate Allen.

The settlement agreement includes a provision that bars the officers from discussing the case with the public or the media.

The city's attorney, Tom Bausch, said the settlement was reached after negotiations with the officers' union.

The officers had filed the lawsuit in December 2013, challenging the city's policy of testing police officers for drugs and alcohol.

"It's a win for the police officers," Bausch said. "We're pleased that we were able to settle the case and put it to rest."

Salaries outsourced by inflation

John D. McKern
Associated Press
WASHINGTON - Americans' salaries and wages fell in June, posting the smallest increase in the past two decades, the government reported Tuesday.

The 0.4 percent gain in the Labor Department's Labor Cost Index was less than the 0.6 percent projected by economists and was far below June's 1.8 percent increase.

The Labor Cost Index rose 0.4 percent but was revised down from 0.6 percent after the Labor Department's initial estimate Thursday was revised up.

The government's latest estimate for June was just above the 0.3 percent increase economists were expecting in May, but it was lower than the 0.4 percent gain reported in March.

Inflation surged in April after a long period of low growth, leading many economists to forecast a strong recovery in May. However, they were wrong.

"Inflation is rising, but it's not at a rate that would threaten the economic recovery," said economist Paul Clements at Bank of America Corp. in New York.

Others say that the increase in inflation could be a sign that the economy is improving.

"We're seeing a pickup in inflation, which is good news for the economy," said economist David Stern at Wachovia Corp. in Atlanta.

But some economists say that the increase in inflation could be a sign that the economy is overheating.

"We're seeing a pickup in inflation, which is bad news for the economy," said economist David Stern at Wachovia Corp. in Atlanta.

The report also showed that the manufacturing sector is slowing down, which could dampen the economic recovery.

"We're seeing a slowdown in manufacturing, which is bad news for the economy," said economist David Stern at Wachovia Corp. in Atlanta.

Some economists say that the increase in inflation could be a sign that the economy is nearing a recession.

"We're seeing a slowdown in manufacturing, which is bad news for the economy," said economist David Stern at Wachovia Corp. in Atlanta.

Israel's government moves to complete homes already under way

OCCUPIED TERRITORIES

Kathie Ladd
Associated Press

JERUSALEM - Israel will again begin building in the occupied territories - or at least the territories that Israel considers occupied - according to a report Wednesday in "The Daily Israel.

Ayelet Shaked, a Junior Minister in the Prime Minister's Office, is the reported source of the report. Shaked, a senior member of the right-wing Jewish homegrown party Otzma Yehudit which supported the recent election of Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu, said Netanyahu has ordered the resumption of construction in the territories.

"We left a number of housing units to the territories for the purpose of building," Shaked said. "Now that Netanyahu has come to power, the construction will begin again."

The new policy is expected to trigger international condemnation and could escalate tensions with the Palestinian Authority.

The United Nations has repeatedly called for a halt to all settlement activity in the West Bank and East Jerusalem, arguing that it undermines the prospects for a two-state solution.

Netanyahu has long been critical of the U.S. position on settlements, saying they are a necessary part of Israel's security strategy.

The announcement comes amid growing concern over the potential of a new round of violence in the region, with tensions high following the killing of a Palestinian teenager in Jerusalem.

On Monday, Israeli troops had been deployed in the West Bank after a Palestinian youth was killed in a stabbing attack.

The move is likely to further disrupt talks between Israel and the Palestinian Authority, which have been stalled for years.

Israel has occupied the West Bank and East Jerusalem since 1967 and has established a large number of settlements there.

The U.N. Security Council has repeatedly condemned Israeli settlements, arguing they are illegal under international law.

The international community has called for the Israeli government to freeze settlement activity in the West Bank and East Jerusalem.

The move comes as Israel prepares to celebrate its 70th anniversary and as the country faces a growing domestic political crisis.

The announcement is likely to be met with outrage from Israel's neighbors, who have long criticized its policies in the West Bank and East Jerusalem.

The move is also likely to be seen as a sign of the Netanyahu government's determination to maintain its hold on power in the face of growing opposition.

The government has faced a series of scandals and corruption allegations, and has been struggling to maintain public support.

In a statement, the Prime Minister's Office said the announcement was a "necessary step" to address the country's security needs.

"We have been clear that we will continue to build in the territories to ensure Israel's security," the statement said.

The move is likely to further complicate the already difficult situation in the region, with tensions running high over issues such as Palestinian rights and Israeli security.

The U.N. Security Council is expected to meet later this week to discuss the situation in the region.

In a statement, the Palestinian Authority said it was "deeply concerned" by the move and called for international intervention to prevent further violence.

The move is also likely to be met with criticism from Israel's allies in the West, who have long criticized its policies in the West Bank and East Jerusalem.

The move is also likely to be met with resistance from some members of Netanyahu's own Likud party, who have been critical of the government's policies.

The move is also likely to be met with criticism from Israel's neighbors, who have long criticized its policies in the West Bank and East Jerusalem.

Barkey, Lewis center of attention in Barcelona

"The USA is a little jealous about how much attention we're getting," Barkley said. "It's an ego thing. We don't think we're above the rules. We don't think we're above criticism. We shouldn't put on every little thing that we do. We should be given the right for the games to be a great basketball game."

More reacted sharply to Barkley's comments. "The Dream Team is out of touch with the rest of the Olympic world," said one of the U.S. women's basketball team's assistant coaches. "They've had this all planned out."

But not the families between the USA and the Dream Team.

The Dream Team could also be involved in a conflict over Barkley's earned Olympic medals. The U.S. basketball team has been accused of using performance-enhancing drugs, which is a violation of Olympic rules. The issue of drug use is a sensitive one for the athletes and the governing bodies of sports. The U.S. Olympic Committee has been critical of the Dream Team's performance, and there has been speculation that the team could be stripped of their medals. The USA basketball team has been under scrutiny for its use of the best players in the country, which some believe is unfair to other teams. The controversy has been a source of tension between the USA and the rest of the world, and it has raised questions about the future of Olympic sports.
