Pioneer outlines AIDS intricacies

Kelly Hansemann
The Daily Iowan

Research into the prevention and treatment of AIDS may have slowed, but according to Dr. Lyle Montgomery, the French-Canadian forensic pathologist, recent findings are opening new avenues of research.

"AIDS is a very complex disease," Montgomery said at the beginning. Montgomery, who works in the field of toxicology in the French province of Quebec, is currently researching the transmission route of AIDS in offspring of infected mothers. By testing them for antibodies he hopes to determine whether the disease is transmitted before, during or after birth.

Montgomery spoke at the UI Wednesday afternoon as a College of Medicine distinguished lecturer. A crowd of over 300 people attended despite the "Repeal of Co- Factors in the Pathogenesis of AIDS" presentation by Dr. J.M. Montagnier, co-discoverer of HIV.

Montagnier, unique amongst American and European AIDS researchers, is currently researching the transmission of the virus by contact with other people. A recent study in France revealed that the virus was transmitted from a mother to her child in utero. The Irish great-grandmother of the child, who also had antibodies to the virus, later tested positive for AIDS.

"The virus has a great potential to transmit to another person," Montgomery said. "No matter what your health status is, you are at risk of being infected." The disease can be transmitted through semen, saliva, breast milk, tears, sweat and blood, he said.

Montgomery said he would "traditionally have" a research vehicle to demonstrate the crucial role serological testing plays in AIDS prevention. However, due to a last minute schedule change, the demonstration vehicle was not available. Montgomery instead demonstrated through technology the results and forms of serological testing.

Montgomery concluded his presentation with the following questions:

- Are there any other means of transmission of AIDS other than sexual contact?
- If so, what are they?
- Is there a safe sexual activity in which the virus cannot be transmitted?
- Can the virus be transmitted to animals?
- Is the use of condoms effective in reducing the spread of AIDS?
- How is it transmitted to newborns?
- Does the disease have a more virulent form in particular parts of the world?
- If so, what are the risk factors in these areas?

Montgomery utilized the presentation for a novel investigation into the disease and encouraged UI students to become involved and pursue careers in AIDS research.

The huge turnout reinforced the ANC's claim that it represents the majority of Africans.

Barry Reffin

PROTECTOR, South Africa — South Africa's police killed 100 and injured 300 protesters today as the ANC proposed legislation to regulate arms possession.

Still, the huge turnout will help legitimize the ANC's claims to represent the majority of the population.

Meanwhile, the South African National Congress yesterday widened its base to include people of all races.

"The campaign for peace and democracy must become a total war," Mandela told the meeting convened in Pretoria, "the interior government of national unity is an organ and eternal aim."

The Kimberley must get the black man out of South Africa," Mandela said in his address.

"Since government and opposition leaders have failed to reach a peaceful solution to the crisis, the only way to prevent further violence is to bring in the army," Mandela said.

Mandela has indicated the talks cannot be resumed until the "riot" subsides.

"I look forward to the day when the talks can resume," Mandela said.

The ANC has already been in open talks with the government.

"There is an open door to the government. There is no closed door," Mandela said.

In Pretoria, the crowd numbered in the thousands, with Naas de Waal saying that the ANC's goal is to "accelerate" the disbanding of the apartheid system.

For the last year, Kimberly has generously given her time and energy to helping others. She is a volunteer with Crisis Center, an organization that helps people facing personal and domestic crises by offering support, counseling, and finding solutions.

Kimberly’s involvement has been vital in helping many people, and her commitment has not gone unnoticed.危机中心 is grateful for her dedication and is excited to recognize her contribution.

LifeGuarders work in air, not ocean, to save Iowa man

Sherri L. Williams

SAN FRANCISCO — LifeGuarders are often mistaken for lifeguards, but they are actually volunteer firefighters who save lives in the air. LifeGuarders like Derick W. have saved many lives in the Bay Area, but they never thought they’d have to use their skills in the air.

On a flight from San Jose to Philadelphia, Derick was called into action when an Iowa man had a heart attack on board.

In the captain’s office, Derick was able to provide the necessary care, which included administering a drug to help lower the man’s blood pressure and providing oxygen.

Thanks to Derick’s quick thinking and the LifeGuarders’ training, the Iowa man was able to make a full recovery and return home to his family.

UI Museum of Art sets all-time record

Sandra Bower
The Daily Iowan

On Sept. 1, Stephen Prendergast will take the director's chair at the University of Iowa Museum of Art. He arrives at the museum 20 years to the day after he graduated from the University of Iowa, and he looks forward to leading the museum as it undergoes a major transformation. Prendergast brings with him a wealth of experience in museum administration and a deep understanding of the art world. He succeeds Lyman Sharp, who retired last year after serving as director for 31 years. Under Sharp's leadership, the museum has grown significantly, both in terms of its collection and its reach.

Prendergast will oversee a major expansion and renovation of the museum's facilities, which is expected to be completed in 2025. The project will include the addition of a new wing dedicated to contemporary art, as well as improvements to the museum's existing galleries and public spaces. Prendergast is also committed to increasing the museum's accessibility and engagement with the community, particularly in underserved areas.

Prendergast's appointment marks a new chapter for the museum, as it continues to evolve and adapt to the changing landscape of the art world. With his extensive background in museum administration and a deep understanding of the art world, Prendergast is well-positioned to lead the museum into its next phase of growth and innovation.
