U.S. formally recognizes 3 former Yugoslav republics

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — President Bush on Thursday granted full diplomatic recognition to three former Yugoslav republics and asked the United Nations to authorize force if needed to protect humanitarian aid deliveries.

Bush — criticized by Congress and Democratic rival Bill Clinton for responding too timidly to continued ethnic fighting in the former nation of Yugoslavia — said such a resolution was needed to assure humanitarian relief to the new nation of Bosnia-Herzegovina.

The president announced that the United States would open formal relations with Bosnia-Herzegovina, Slovenia and Croatia.

House passes reversal of 'gag rule'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House voted overwhelmingly Thursday to overturn the Bush administration's "gag rule" restricting abortion information at federally supported family planning clinics.

But the 251-144 vote fell short of the two-thirds majority needed to override the president's threatened veto.

The vote, which came on a conference report resolving differences between bills already passed by the House and Senate, would strike the administration's restrictions on abortion counseling at the clinics, which serve low-income women.

Knights of Columbus will erect tombs for 'unborn'

NEW YORK (AP) — The Knights of Columbus voted Thursday to establish tombs of the unborn in every Roman Catholic diocese in the nation, calling abortion the new "Slaughter of the Innocents."

At the end of a Supreme Council Convention that included anti-abortion appeals from Mother Teresa and President Bush, the group's representatives voted unanimously to create memorials to the "holy innocents" in Catholic cemeteries modeled after the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington, Va.

Supreme Knight Virgil Dechant said later that the organized activities of abortion rights groups can be compared to the biblical account of King Herod's attempt to kill Jesus by ordering the massacre of children 2 years and under.

Clinton / Gore CR visit draws 5,000

Eric Detwiler
The Daily Iowan

CEDAR RAPIDS — Nearly 5,000 people gathered in the sweltering heat for a campaign rally of Democratic presidential and vice-presidential nominees Gov. Bill Clinton and Sen. Al Gore Thursday in the Quaker Oats factory parking lot in downtown Cedar Rapids.

The candidates were an hour late getting to the podium but still received a rousing reception from the throng.

Once he arrived, Clinton didn't waste any time before attacking the Bush administration.

"There's a lot of talk about family values," Clinton said of the Republicans. "That's their way of taking the attention away from issues. America has family values. Values a lot better than those of the government."

The presidential nominee also poked fun at Bush's assertion that the recession was already over.

"The president said the recession is over and that the people just don't know it yet," Clinton said. "Do they think we're a bunch of idiots? In 1980 we had the highest wages in the world. Now we're 13th and falling."

The candidates were accompanied by their wives on their bus tour across the Midwest. The tour will end in Minneapolis, Minn., later in the week.

One of the things on the Clinton agenda was the education issue.

"We need an education program in this country second to none," Clinton said. "We need to open the doors to higher education to anyone who wants to go to college."

He added that people who did not attend college should be provided with two years of apprenticeship in a trade.

SCOPE hindered by limited use of facilities

Dean Jones nixes Guns N' Roses

Tad Paulson
The Daily Iowan

UI students and Iowa City residents hoping to see rock concerts in Kinnick Stadium will have to wait until next year, the UI decided Wednesday. A second opportunity to host Guns N' Roses and Metallica in Kinnick, this time in mid-September, was vetoed by Dean of Students Phillip Jones.

According to Jen Smith, director of the Student Commission for Programming Entertainment, Jones relayed a message to her Wednesday afternoon that said, "After the football season starts, we will not entertain concerts on the field."

SCOPE received the option on the concert after Guns N' Roses lead singer Axl Rose suffered vocal cord damage, which forced the band to cancel several recent shows. Show promoters have been rerouting dates throughout the Midwest, and SCOPE received a call from promoters Wednesday, who offered one of roughly 30 open dates for the band to play in Kinnick.

ROLLING STONES	Tickets sold: $2,000
GENESIS	Tickets sold: $5,000

The announcement came on the heels of several months of negotiation between Smith, the UI Athletic Department, UI Student Association and UI administrators to find a solution to the lack of big-name rock concerts in Iowa City.

"We indicated that we would work with them on use of athletic facilities for concerts, and we gave them a fairly broad window for use of Kinnick Stadium," said Ann Rhodes, UI vice president for uni-

Alcohol policy at park stands despite sales offer

Despite a local businessman's urging that the UI allow alcohol to be served at Hubbard Park rock concerts, it is unlikely that the ban on alcohol sales and consumption will be lifted for the Student Commission on Programming Entertainment's proposed show Sept. 19.

Donnie Stalkfleet, owner of the Sports Column bar and restaurant, 12 S. Dubuque St., has proposed to sponsor both alcoholic and non-alcoholic beer vending at the concert, and donate all profits and proceeds to either the UI or a charity organization.

"It's like the university is saying to students 'You're intelligent and responsible enough to come to this university, but we don't think you're responsible enough to conduct yourself in a decent and proper manner,'" Stalkfleet said.

Stalkfleet has formed a close association with director of SCOPE Jen Smith, former SCOPE director Chad Nicholls, and University Box Office supervisor Chris Graham.

Working closely with this group and with other SCOPE members, Stalkfleet would like to put up money to acquire and promote future rock concerts in the Iowa City area.

However, Dean of Students Phillip Jones refused Stalkfleet's efforts to discuss either his sponsorship or alcohol sales.

Graham feels discouraged by Jones' refusal to speak with Stalkfleet.

"We have an Iowa City businessman who's trying to get something going here, and he gets the door shut in his face," Graham said.

According to Ann Rhodes, UI vice president for university relations, the UI's policy on alcohol is in place to keep concert and athletic-crowd under control.

"Alcohol tends to be associated with crowd-control problems," Rhodes said. "You can't control what people drink once you start offering it to them."

Stalkfleet hopes that the UI will see his efforts as positively motivated, and not a personal money-making gambit.

U.S. seeks resolution to use force

Peter James Spielmann
Associated Press

UNITED NATIONS — The United States is pressing other Security Council member nations to adopt a resolution permitting the use of military force to deliver humanitarian aid in Yugoslavia, diplomats said Thursday.

Acting Ambassador Alexander Watson discussed the text of the draft on Thursday morning with Secretary-General Boutros Boutros-Ghali, U.S. diplomats said.

The resolution would permit the use of all "necessary means" — U.N. parlance for military intervention — to assure that food, medicine and other aid reaches the war victims in Bosnia-Herzegovina and other conflict areas in the Yugoslav area.

"We must stop the ethnic cleansing."

President Bush

Speaking in Colorado Springs, Colo., on Thursday, President Bush said, "I'm hoping that we will not have to use force. ... I would only suggest this is a very complicated military question."

But, he added: "We must stop the ethnic cleansing," referring to the forcible removal of ethnic Muslims and Croats from wide areas of Bosnia's territory by Serb irregulars.

Bush also demanded that Serb detention camps, the site of reported torture and murder, be opened to international inspection.

However, he turned aside a question about what he would do if inspectors were denied access, saying it was "too hypothetical."

Not all 15 Security Council ambassadors have received the draft text of the resolution permitting the use of military force to deliver aid to Yugoslavia, said one diplomat, speaking on condition of anonymity.

The distribution of the text to all council members indicates that the five permanent members with veto power — the United States, Russia, China, France and Britain — are in basic agreement on the issue and that none would block it.

The other council members are Austria, Belgium, Cape Verde, Ecuador, Hungary, India, Japan, Morocco, Venezuela and Zimbabwe.

LOCAL LEGENDS

Tales of ghosts, witches haunt IC landmarks

Lesley Kennedy
The Daily Iowan

Mysterious tombstones, haunted dorm rooms, witches in parks. These may sound like mysteries out of a Time / Life book commercial, but stories of occurrences like these can be found right here in Iowa City.

From almost any part of Iowa City a ghost story can be told. According to Lori Erickson's book, "Ghosts of Iowa City," many places in Johnson County are truly haunted. But no one should get too frightened, because Erickson says that eastern Iowa ghosts are friendly and good-natured.

One of the most famous "mysteries" of Iowa City is the Black Angel headstone/monument located in Oakland Cemetery, 1000 Brown St. The facts about the bronze statue of the angel have given way to myths, superstitions and legends, according to Iowa City historian Irving Weber in his book "Iowa City."

One legend says that the burial of a "bad woman" caused the previously white statue to turn black. Another says that a bolt of lightning struck the angel on the night of the burial when it was installed and the lightning turned it black.

More scandalous stories tell of a preacher, who, after the murder of his son, placed a white angel over the boy's grave and it turned black. And, finally, it is said that if a virgin is kissed in front of the statue it will turn white.

However, these stories are merely fiction. The real story is that a woman, Teresa Dolezal Feldevert, commissioned the statue to mark the graves of herself, her husband and their son. When the statue arrived in Iowa City in 1912, Feldevert was angered at the black color and litigation followed, but she eventually lost the suit and so the Black Angel stands today over the three graves.

Another story that has been settled is the story of witches who roam through Hickory Hill Park.

While walking through the park, a number of cement blocks can be found in the ground. The cement is actually the foundation of one of the three Iowa City Pest Houses torn down over 50 years ago.

Weber writes that "the Pest House was an isolation house for smallpox victims, and victims is indeed the correct word. Smallpox patients in the Pest House were persons who did not have a family to care for them. With the disease so highly contagious, the Pest House was an answer to the problem of isolation."

Myths and legends talk of witches and warlocks but the graves of Teresa Dolezal Feldevert and her family.

Al Goldis/The Daily Iowan

A different story of ghosts in Iowa City still remains a mystery. When Currier Hall was first built in 1913, the builders had no idea that a certain room would be thought to be haunted.

Currier was originally a women's dormitory. According to Erickson's book, three women who lived on the fourth floor of the dorm in its early years became good friends. Each woman soon had a mysterious boyfriend of whom each would not speak of until one day they discovered that the mystery men they were dating were, in fact, the same man.

They decided that life was no longer worth living and committed triple suicide in what has since been called the "red room." They are said to still roam the halls.

The same room on the fourth floor is also said to be the scene of a brutal ax murder by a jealous lover.

The room is no longer used for housing, but instead is used for storing old carpeting and trunks.

SUMMER SCHOOL

Class provides international business experience

Lynn M. Tefft
The Daily Iowan

This summer has consisted of more than suntan lotion and parties for UI business graduate students Nancy Piehl and Dane Bogaard.

For five weeks in June and July, Piehl, Bogaard and four other UI students toured Europe and learned the ropes of the international economy, talking with representatives of foreign businesses and studying international differences in accounting and other subjects.

The six enrolled in a program called Europe 2000, which is sponsored by the Manchester Business School in England. Meeting such qualifications as diversity in class work and work experience, the UI students were chosen along with 49 others from around the world. An enrollment fee of 1,850 pounds (about $3,500) covered the cost of class materials and other necessities.

The first few days in Europe were spent taking introductory classes in Manchester and then the group set off on a two-week tour of London, England; Paris, France; and Brussels, Belgium, where they met with representatives of European companies and toured the NATO and European Community headquarters in addition to sight-seeing.

"By meeting with the representatives we were able to learn how each company is approaching the new Europe," Piehl said.

Two weeks of research followed and each student completed a case study proposal for expansion of an international company.

Moscow, Russia, was the final stop on the students' tour and Bogaard said that lectures presented there emphasized how Russia is changing and assimilating into the world economy. He added that he was impressed by the opportunities the country offers.

"The expansion opportunities are tremendous if you have the right contacts within and some dollars behind you," he said.

Bogaard said he jumped at the opportunity to participate in the program because it offered a chance to expand his horizons.

"I think that America has a lot of problems economically and I want to have a leg up on the competition in other countries," he said.

He added, however, that he underestimated the value of learning about other countries' traditions and customs.

"I think I learned more culturally than educationally," he said. One introduction to the more personal side of French economics and politics proved to be rather frustrating, Piehl added.

She said the group was traveling on the state highway outside Paris when they were stopped by a roadblock of striking French truck drivers. The truckers, protesting against newly imposed governmental regulations, had completely obstructed the road. The students had to prove their intents and purposes in traveling before they could proceed further.

"There were five policemen, none of which spoke any English and us with our mediocre French, trying to get out of this," Piehl said.

To make matters worse, the students' French guide was still in Paris, helping some Russian students who had been detained at customs.

Finally after some negotiating and haggling, the students were allowed to pass through and even took some photos of themselves with the police as mementos.

"It was hard to believe that the government had allowed that to happen, a complete blocking of a city," Bogaard said.

Another memorable part of the trip for Bogaard and Piehl were the sleeping quarters in Moscow. After discovering cockroaches crawling on them the first night, everyone slept with the lights on for the duration of the trip.

Despite the inconveniences and frustrations, the two said they would highly recommend the program to others who have a chance to go.

"If you have even a small desire to do business internationally, this is your opportunity to learn about it," Bogaard said.

Piehl agreed.

"I'd like to go back in five years and just see how much everything has changed," she said. "Everything is changing constantly."

Galaxy emits high-energy rays

Associated Press

AMES — Iowa State University researchers are getting international attention for helping find the most distant source of high-energy gamma rays known to man — a finding that could provide clues to the mysteries of black holes in outer space.

The gamma rays are a trillion times as powerful as starlight, and are coming from a galaxy up to 500 million light-years away, according to research published this week by the Whipple Observatory Gamma galaxy make it a new and stunning discovery in gamma ray astronomy," Lamb said. "We think the discovery will lead to a much better understanding of nature's highest energy processes."

The research was conducted from late March to early June at the Whipple Observatory south of Tucson, Ariz.

The researchers studied the galaxy Markarian 421, up to 500 million light-years away. A light-year, the distance light travels in a year, is about 5.88 trillion miles.

The galaxy emits huge amounts of gamma ray energy from its core, the researchers found. Gamma rays, produced by nature's most violent physical processes, have energy trillions of times greater than visible light but have wavelengths smaller than the nucleus of an atom.

The scientists believe the source of the newly discovered gamma rays is a black hole that is more than a million times as massive as the sun.

"It's hard to imagine any other way such an object of this size can produce such prodigious amounts of energy," Lewis said.

The black hole would suck in matter and create kinetic energy, a portion of which would be converted to electromagnetic radiation in the form of trillion-volt gamma rays. Such energy levels can be produced on Earth only by subatomic collisions in the most powerful particle accelerators.

Scientists knew that Markarian 421 emitted huge amounts of energy but the discovery of such high-energy gamma rays was a surprise, they reported.

"We are anticipating major progress in this area because it may help us to understand how massive black holes work," Lewis said. "We also can use the emissions from the black holes as a yardstick to gauge how filled our universe is with starlight."

In addition to Iowa State and the Whipple Observatory, scientists involved in the project came from University College in Dublin, and St. Patrick's College in Maynooth, Ireland; Purdue University; the University of Michigan; and the University of Leeds in England.

State revenue aided by tax increase

Associated Press

DES MOINES — Several factors contributed to a 12.4 percent increase in state revenues in July, including an increase in the state sales tax, budget officials said.

Gretchen Tegeler, Gov. Terry Branstad's chief budget adviser, said that despite the revenue increase, Iowa's economic growth remains modest.

"It's a very slow, sluggish recovery," Tegeler said Wednesday.

Tegeler said the increase in the state sales tax brought in an extra $4 million, although the full revenue impact of the tax increase will not be felt until August and thereafter. The tax increased to 5 percent from 4 percent on July 1.

Money collected from all state taxes and other revenue sources totalled $227.4 million in July, which is $25.1 million more than was collected in the same month a year ago.

income-tax collections. There was a 49 percent drop in corporate income-tax receipts.

Tegeler said July tax collections are a first step in meeting the state's annual revenue target, which is used by the governor and Legislature in setting the state budget.

The current official estimate is that revenues for the fiscal year will climb 4.1 percent, but the sales-tax rise and other adjustments represent an additional 6.5 percent increase, she said.

"It probably reflects that we probably are where we should be considering the rise in the sales tax and some other adjustments," Tegeler said.

Tegeler said sales tax collections also may have been helped by people making last-minute purchases in June before the sales tax increased.

"It probably reflects that we probably are where we should be considering the rise in the sales tax and some other adjustments."

Navy warship named for Iowa brothers

Associated Press

WATERLOO — A new U.S. Navy warship has been named in honor of the five Sullivan brothers of Waterloo.

Acting Secretary of the Navy Sean O'Keefe said the Arleigh Burke-class guided missile destroyer will be named USS The Sullivans.

Construction will begin in September 1994 and the ship is scheduled to launch in June 1995.

This will be the second ship named in tribute to the five brothers.

The first destroyer served in World War II and the Korean War. It earned 11 battle stars before being decommissioned in 1965.

The ship is now a floating museum at the Buffalo Naval and Service-men's park in Buffalo, N.Y.

George, Francis, Joseph, Madison and Albert Sullivan died in the Battle of Guadalcanal on Nov. 13, 1942.

CLARIFICATION

In the last printed paragraph of "Former UI Football Player to Testify in Murder Case" in the Aug. 6 edition of The Daily Iowan, the sentence should have read that Hall "was originally found guilty by a Johnson County jury for the murder of Ottens."

Due to space constraints in the same edition, the intended final paragraph of the story was cut. It read: "Hall served seven years in prison before his conviction was overturned because of prosecutorial misconduct. A new grand jury returned no indictment, and Hall was released from prison."

British physician helps women give birth among dolphins

1 LONDON, England (AP) — An obstetrician is organizing a trip to the Red Sea for expectant mothers hoping to have their babies enter the world in the company of dolphins.

"We hope to make these children more in tune with nature, more in tune with the environment and able to communicate with other mammals who are as intelligent as we are," Dr. Gowri Motha said Wednesday.

The orthodox birthing plan is aimed at making "birth a joyous event rather than a technological event," she said.

Up to 12 women will participate in the experiment at the Dolphin Reef Sanctuary in the Israeli resort of Eilat on Sept. 5, Motha said.

In Eilat, Maya Zilber, chief trainer at Dolphin Reef, said the sanctuary has found that dolphins can help depressed people, autistic children and children with Down's syndrome.

Motha said she will have expectant mothers swim with the animals in the late stages of pregnancy, when she hopes the dolphins will be able to make ultrasound contact with the fetuses.

Abortion divides east and west in reunified Germany

2 BERLIN, Germany (AP) — As a reunited Germany nears its second anniversary, Germany's eastern and western halves remain deeply divided over abortion.

The Supreme Court this week blocked a liberal new law that would have established a single rule nationwide and scrapped the restrictive practices of the former West Germany.

Western Germany still requires a woman to get a doctor's approval for an abortion, and she must show that it is necessary for health reasons or other specified hardships.

In eastern Germany, the old Communist rules remain in force that give women an unquestioned right to abort within the first three months of pregnancy.

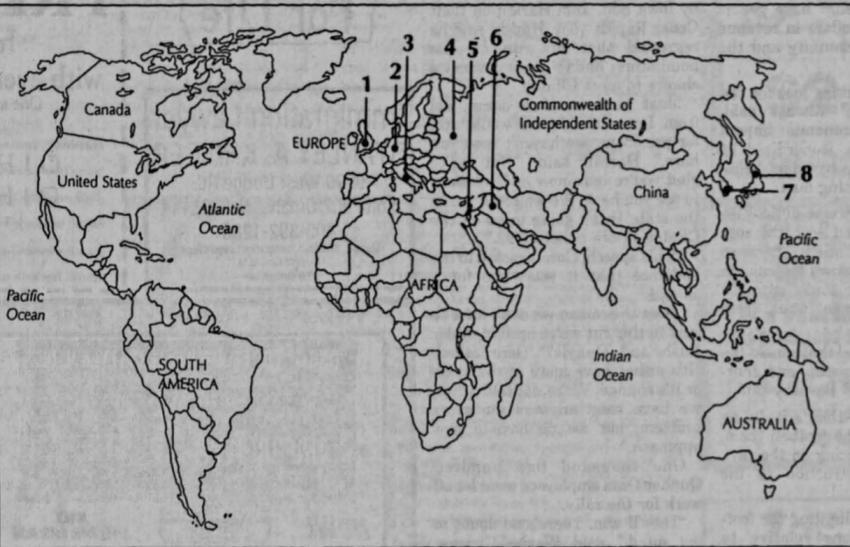

Politicians, church leaders and others on Wednesday made varying predictions about the court's final ruling after a hearing this fall.

The new law, passed by Parliament in June, would have given women the right to abort within the first 90 days but would have required a counseling session three days or more before an abortion.

Romans engage in warfare . . . against pigeons

3 MILAN, Italy (AP) — Out-of-towners love those swarms of pigeons, the classic prop for a snapshot in the Piazza Duomo. But the city government wants the birds to get out — and stay out.

The Art Superintendency has long complained that the birds' droppings eat away at exquisite architectural details on monuments and churches. And health authorities say the pigeons carry a tick to which many humans are allergic.

Several plans to reduce the pigeon population have failed and there now are estimated 400,000 pigeons in town — one for every three of Milan's 1.2 million residents.

The latest strategy, expected to be implemented next month, is to move some 200,000 pigeons to the countryside, then feed contraceptive-spiked seed to the rest.

In previous assaults on the pigeons, a repellent was doused on cornices of palaces and the edges of monuments, but that use was discontinued after bird lovers said the chemical gave the pigeons' foot sores.

Belarus joins dispute over former Soviet Black Sea Fleet

4 MOSCOW, Russia (AP) — Belarusian leaders objected Thursday to an agreement by Russia and Ukraine to joint control over the Black Sea Fleet, saying all 11 commonwealth countries have some rights to the warships.

Belarusia, which is landlocked, said it was not claiming possession of any ships but believed the fate of the fleet should be decided by the leaders of all the former Soviet republics.

Russian President Boris Yeltsin and Ukrainian President Leonid Kravchuk agreed Aug. 3 in the Crimean resort city of Yalta to put the former Soviet fleet under joint Russian-Ukrainian command at least until 1995.

The powerful flotilla of about 350 ships previously had been under the command of the 11-nation Commonwealth of Independent States that was formed when the Soviet Union collapsed last December.

Israel to propose general elections in Occupied Territories

5 JERUSALEM, Israel (AP) — Israel will offer general elections in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip to select a Palestinian administration to run the territories under Palestinian self-rule, according to newspaper reports this week.

The plan would replace one that calls only for municipal elections, made by the previous government of Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir, that Palestinians said was too limited.

The proposal for general elections will be offered in the next round of U.S.-backed peace talks, set for Aug. 24 in Washington, D.C., the newspaper reports said. The daily Yedioth Ahronoth said the idea was discussed at a meeting Tuesday by heads of the Israeli negotiating teams.

The office of Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin, who has promised to speed up the peace process, refused to comment on the reports today.

Meanwhile, eight members of the Palestinian negotiating team were leaving for Jordan for discussions on the coming talks.

The autonomy plan is designed to lead to negotiations on the final status of the West Bank and Gaza, which Israel seized from Jordan and Egypt in the 1967 Middle East war.

Iraq will deny permission to search ministries to new U.N. inspectors

6 MANAMA, Bahrain (AP) — Iraq said today that a newly arriving team of U.N. weapons inspectors would not be allowed to search government ministries in Baghdad, Iraq, the official Iraqi News Agency reported.

It quoted Culture Minister Hamed Youssef Hammadi as saying visits to ministries have a political, not a technical purpose, and are meant to humiliate Iraq. The agency, monitored in Cyprus, paraphrased, giving no direct quotes.

Hammadi made the comments the day before a 22-member inspection team was to head for Baghdad, the first to test Iraq's promise of cooperation after last month's standoff over U.N. demands to search the Agriculture Ministry for weapons-related materials.

The latest Iraqi statement is certain to raise anew the specter of another confrontation in Baghdad, which could lead to more allied threats of military intervention.

The U.N. inspectors are charged with eliminating Iraq's nuclear, chemical and biological weapons programs as well as long-range missiles, under the terms of the cease-fire that ended the gulf war.

Advocate of pre-marital sex, pornography creates stir in South Korea

7 SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — A professor advocating pre-marital sex, pornography and legalized abortion has shocked South Korean conservatives and stirred a national debate on how far to push the sexual revolution.

In a nation where half the marriages are arranged and adulterers can go to jail, the advocacy of permissive sex has stunned even those who consider themselves liberal.

"The traditional Korean view of sex is intercourse," says Ma Kwang-soo, a professor at Seoul's prestigious Yonsei University.

Ma says sex should include fondling, foreplay and much kissing. He advocates experience with several partners and says couples should be able to live together before marriage.

In many countries, Ma's remarks would barely raise an eyebrow. But in South Korea, where faithfulness is a Confucian ideal, adultery is a crime and pornography is banned, Ma is a one-man revolution.

In May, after he used words like oral sex and virginity on a Buddhist-run radio station, the government banned him from radio and television for three months.

Hiroshima marks 47th anniversary of atomic bombing

8 TOKYO, Japan (AP) — Some 50,000 people gathered in Hiroshima and offered prayers for peace today, the 47th anniversary of the world's first atomic-bomb attack.

The dignitaries, visitors and Hiroshima residents who gathered for the solemn memorial observed a minute of deep silence at 8:15 a.m.

It was exactly at that moment on Aug. 6, 1945, that the city vanished in a mushroom-cloud inferno that killed 140,000 people.

The flame Hiroshima has vowed to keep lit until nuclear weapons are wiped out flared and some 1,500 doves were released into sunny skies over the lush park that marks the spot beneath where the bomb exploded.

SCOPE

 versity relations. "But it did not include during the football season."

On Thursday, Rhodes said the rejection of the Guns N' Roses concert stemmed primarily from the concern that the stage setup would severely damage the stadium's turf.

"Because the nature of the turf is quite different from grass, we don't know how long it would take after a concert to get the turf rehabilitated to the point where it could be played on again," she said.

There was also concern about the level of noise and potential problems the large crowds could cause, Rhodes said.

UI Men's Athletic Director Bob Bowsby said time would have to be allowed for the grass to grow back since the turf would be damaged.

"The greatest amount of problems come from getting the equipment in the stadium, setting the stage up, and driving forklifts on it," Bowsby said. "Putting plywood down under the stage is going to kill all the grass underneath."

Bowsby added that irrigation pipes underneath the turf could also be damaged by the weight of the stage.

Rhodes said the UI didn't want to attempt hosting a concert in Kinnick with only a couple weeks between football games.

"The point of that facility is for football games, and if something happened where we couldn't have a football game there, we'd really have a problem," Rhodes said.

SCOPE had an earlier option on Guns N' Roses for Aug. 12, but was forced to decline due to the short amount of time before the Iowa-Miami football game. SCOPE also missed out on the U2 concert, which will hit Cyclone Stadium in Ames on Sept. 11.

"It's frustrating when we have Jam Productions calling us from Chicago while we've got a month open with nothing but football practice, and knowing that whatever they offer we won't get," Smith said Wednesday.

Chris Graham, a supervisor at the University Box Office, added that the economic benefits a Kinnick concert would raise could generate massive revenue for both the UI and Iowa City.

"It affects every business in the community, from gas stations to clothing stores," Graham said. He added that a recent study showed that concerts at Cyclone Stadium and Hilton Coliseum have generated millions of dollars in revenue for the Ames community and the university.

"We don't do things just for the economic impact," Rhodes said. "Any possible economic impact could be seriously jeopardized by serious incidents of crowd misbehavior or anyone getting hurt."

Bowsby said extreme difficulties would also be faced with the concert setup in Kinnick. Because there are no entryways big enough to allow trucks or semis onto the field, stage equipment would have to be craned in.

"It's not the crowd that causes the damage, it's the setup and tear-down of the event," Bowsby said.

Bowsby added that scheduling difficulties with the football team, who will be practicing on the turf, are a major obstruction to the shows.

"We will not be limiting the football team's options relative to where they practice and when they practice," Bowsby said. "When practice starts the first day, we need to have the stadium ready for their use."

While there has never been a rock concert at Kinnick, Smith and other members of SCOPE have recently been pursuing the idea vigorously, as they have been facing a shrinking budget and an increasing lack of appeal Iowa City venues have to concert promoters.

Efforts to schedule shows at Carver-Hawkeye Arena have also been futile, because of the high cost of the facility and scheduling difficulties with UI athletic teams. Opportunities to have both Elton John and Def Leppard were declined because of previously scheduled women's volleyball games.

However, SCOPE plans to have a show on Hubbard Park field on the weekend of Sept. 19. According to Graham, current acts being considered are "middle-level" college bands such as the B-52's, the Red Hot Chili Peppers, and Pearl Jam.

But the appeal of a Kinnick show has not faded in Smith's eyes, and Rhodes believes it can definitely happen, if planning with community and UI officials begins now.

"We need to start addressing these issues now, so the next time something comes up we have everything set to go," Rhodes said.

VISIT

 The candidates were accompanied by Iowa Sen. Tom Harkin on their Cedar Rapids visit. Harkin said he regretted that his run for the nomination hadn't given Iowans a chance to meet Clinton.

"Just because some damn fool from Iowa thought he would run for president, we haven't seen you here," Harkin said. "But we're glad you're here now and we want to see you back. We welcome you to the state that's going to go on the Clinton/Gore ticket in '92."

In his speech, Gore stressed to the audience that it was time for a change.

"Does this mean we don't have to stay in this rut we've been in under Bush and Quayle?" Gore asked. "It's either have more of the same or it's change. We're not telling you we have easy answers for every problem, but we do have a new approach."

One thousand five hundred Quaker Oats employees were let off work for the rally.

"They'll win. There's no doubt in my mind," said Wayne Greiner, who works for the Quaker Oats company. "They've got to do something about the economy. We've lost a lot of jobs in this town."

"Things can get a lot worse for the Republicans and they can get a lot better for you," Clinton said. "We have to have the courage to change. Stay with us another 88 days to Nov. 11."

games at Wrigley Field. They have lost eight of 11 games overall.

Braves 5, Reds 3

ATLANTA—John Smoltz pitched a six-hitter for the Braves.
Smoltz (14-6) walked two and struck out five in winning his ninth decision in 10 games as the Braves won their sixth consecutive game. Smoltz has won five straight decisions.

In his last six starts over 50% innings, Smoltz has allowed only four earned runs. It was his eighth complete game.

Atlanta pounded Reds starter Greg Swindell (10-5) for nine hits and five runs before he left after six innings.

Red Sox 3, Yankees 1

NEW YORK — Frank Viola had the New York Yankees cornered.
"You can count on your hand the number of pitches he threw down the middle," catcher John Marzano said.

Viola (10-7) allowed four hits in 8 1/2 innings — none between Don Mattingly's double in the fourth and Mel Hall's two-out single in the ninth.

"I didn't have an overpowering fastball," Viola said. "Today was probably the first time in a long time I used as many curveballs."

Brewers 4, Mariners 2

MILWAUKEE — Jaime Navarro won his 12th game and the running Milwaukee Brewers turned a double steal into two sixth-inning runs and complete a three-game sweep.

The steals gave Milwaukee 154, tops in the major leagues.
The Mariners got a hit in each of the first six innings off Navarro but couldn't score again. Edgar Martinez, who leads the AL in batting with a .341 average, collected four of the Mariners' 11 hits, tying a career-best for the third time this year.

Royals 7, Angels 6

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Mike Macfarlane homered leading off the eighth inning to break a tie.
Juan Berenguer (1-1) pitched four innings of scoreless relief. Jeff Montgomery pitched the ninth for his 27th save.

George Brett hit the 634th double of his career to tie Henry Aaron for eighth on the all-time list.

Expos 7, Phillies 4

PHILADELPHIA — Delino DeShields drove in four runs with a three-run homer and a solo shot.
It was the first two-homer game for DeShields, who leads the league in runs scored with 73.

Ken Hill (13-5) allowed four runs and eight hits over 5 1/2 innings in winning for the eighth time in his last nine decisions. John Wetteland, the fourth Expos pitcher, got the last three outs for his 26th save.

score, outplaying Arvidas Sabonis, the center for the 1988 Soviet team that beat Robinson and Team USA in the Olympic semifinals.

"Revenge wasn't really a factor. There's no motivation like standing up and doing your best in front of your peers," Robinson said.

By late in the game, the Americans literally had turned the Lithuanians into spectators. One Lithuanian player sat on the floor near the corner of the court, taking pictures.

"They're not related. They're not even normally doubles partners, but the American team of Mary Joe and Gigi Fernandez will play for a tennis gold medal on Saturday against the Spanish team of Arantxa Sanchez Vicario and Conchita Martinez.

On Thursday, the Americans beat Leila Meskhi and Natalia Zvereva of the Unified Team 6-4, 7-5.

"I feel more pressure here than playing in a Grand Slam — maybe because it's only once every four years, and you can't get used to it," Gigi Fernandez said.

Gigi teamed with Zvereva to win the Wimbledon and French Open doubles titles this year.
On Friday, 16-year-old Jennifer Capriati takes on Steffi Graf for the women's singles championship. Capriati is 0-4 against Graf.

"Jennifer's chances are maybe 40 percent," U.S. women's coach Marty Riessen said. "Steffi's on a roll, but Jennifer's right there."
Kristin Babb-Sprague of Pleasanton, Calif., edged world champion

Sylvie Frechette of Canada for a gold medal in solo synchronized swimming because of a judge's error. The Canadian team protested, but the jury refused to change the scores — 191.848 for Babb-Sprague, 191.717 for Frechette.

A Brazilian judge punched in 8.7 instead of something higher during Wednesday's portion of the event. She tried to change it, but wasn't allowed.

The U.S. water polo team advanced to the medal round with a 7-2 victory over Germany, and the U.S. women's volleyball team lost to Cuba 8-15, 15-9, 6-15, 15-5, 15-11 in the semifinals.

WRESTLING

Baumgartner makes history; Campbell alive

Stephan Nasstrom
Associated Press

BARCELONA, Spain — Bruce Baumgartner gave the United States its first wrestling gold medal of the Summer Games Thursday, beating Canada's Jeff Thue 8-0 in the freestyle finals at 286 pounds.

Baumgartner became the first American wrestler to win medals in three Olympics.

Aggressive from the start, Baumgartner took Thue down only five seconds into the match, and went on to claim his second Olympic gold medal. He captured his first gold in Los Angeles in 1984, and the silver in Seoul in 1988.

U.S. teammate Kenny Monday fell short in his bid for a second gold, however, losing to South Korea's Park Jang-Soon 1-0 at 163 pounds. It was the only point given up in Barcelona by Monday, who was a gold medalist in 1988.

Monday and Park battled to a draw with both wrestling cautiously until Park grabbed the American at the armpits and took him down for a point with 15 seconds left. Park then held off Monday's repeated attacks until time ran out.

In earlier rounds, John Smith finally had it easy.

The five-time world wrestling champion, who had to sweat out two narrow victories earlier, cruised to an 8-0 decision over Germany's Karsten Polky to remain unbeaten.

Smith, from Stillwater, Okla., took Polky down in the opening seconds of their 136.5-pound match and continued to pile up the points. It was a far cry from his 3-2 and 2-1 victories on Wednesday.

"It feels good to get a couple of shots in and actually score with them," said Smith, who's seeking a second straight Olympic gold medal. "The first two matches I didn't score with my shots and that's a little disappointing. That's my strength."

Kevin Jackson and Kendall Cross also remained in contention for golds, which will be awarded in their weight classes Friday. Chris Campbell remained in medal contention, too, but two losses today knocked teammate Tim Vanni into a fifth-place match.

Jackson, an assistant coach at Iowa State University, took a 3-2 decision over Canada's David Hohl at 180.5, while Cross, from Stillwater, beat Iran's Oveys Mollahi at 125.5.

Campbell beat Japan's Akira Ota 4-0 to keep his medal hopes alive at 198. The 37-year-old attorney from Fayetteville, N.Y., has one loss so his chances for a gold medal are slim. But he was in strong contention for a bronze.

Someone has to beat six-time world champion Makharbek Khadartsev of the Unified Team to give Campbell a shot at the gold, and Bruce Baumgartner that seems unlikely.

Vanni lost to Romania's Romica Rasovan 10-7 and to South Korea's Jong Kim 5-2 at 105.5.

BOXING

Byrd, De La Hoya advance to finals

Ed Schuyler Jr.
Associated Press

BARCELONA, Spain — Hang Chris Byrd's artistic boxing performance in a museum.

Roll up Oscar De La Hoya's and stuff it in a drawer out of the sight of children.

Call one pretty, call one ugly. But call them both much-needed victories for the beleaguered U.S. Olympic boxing team, which can take home only three medals, but still has a chance to make them gold.

Tim Austin of Cincinnati will try Friday to reach the 112-pound final when he boxes Raul Gonzalez of Cuba.

Byrd, the son of U.S. head coach Joe Byrd, jabbed, countered, slipped and blocked punches and outpointed Chris Johnson of Canada 17-3 Thursday and moved into Saturday's 165-pound final.

"I've never boxed better," said Byrd of Flint, Mich., whose final opponent will be Ariel Hernandez, one of five Cubans who won semifinals Thursday. "I don't know anything about him, but it doesn't matter."

"I feel kind of bad," De La Hoya of Los Angeles said after his 11-10 win over Hung Song-Sik of South Korea at 132 pounds.

"I like to look good. I like my performances to impress people. It was my first time up in the ring wrestling. It was a terrible experience," De La Hoya said.

Hong clutched and grabbed and pushed De La Hoya's head down to the point that coach Byrd worried that his boxer might injure his neck. Midway through the second round, the Korean was penalized three points.

"I thought he should have been disqualified," De La Hoya said. Instead, referee Stretan Yabucanin of Yugoslavia penalized De La Hoya with nine seconds left in the match for holding.

"I thought of Roy Jones," De La Hoya said of the American who lost a highly controversial decision to a South Korean in the 156-pound final at the 1988 Olympics at Seoul.

De La Hoya's opponent in Saturday's final will be Marco Rudolph of Germany.

COLLEGE FOOTBALL

FSU could face investigation

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. — The Florida State University athletic department could face an NCAA investigation into disclosures that some athletes accepted money and drugs from a professor who now faces cocaine charges.

The inquiry involves history professor David Ammerman, 54, who was the subject of a Tallahassee Police Department investigation into claims he shared drugs with football players and others for more than a decade. Ammerman was arrested in May on a charge of buying $20 worth of crack.

BASEBALL

Rodgers' return delayed

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — California Angels manager Buck Rodgers, seriously injured in a bus accident in May, said Thursday that his return to the club would be delayed until at least Aug. 28.

Former Kansas City manager John Wathan has managed the club in Rodgers' absence.

Schembechler may sue

SOUTHFIELD, Mich. — Bo Schembechler threatened to sue the Detroit Tigers over his firing as president if they can't come to a settlement. "He was to finish his working life with the Tigers, until age 70," said Schembechler's attorney, Joseph A. Golden. "Bo was prepared to honor the 10-year commitment; the Tigers, obviously, were not."

Team owner Tom Monaghan said he would take over the president's duties after notifying Schembechler by facsimile transmission that he was fired. Golden and Schembechler said they hope to work out a settlement with team officials, but they said they will sue if necessary.

"I'm sitting here, disappointed and confused," Schembechler said. "The truth is, I would still be at the University of Michigan, and very happy, if Monaghan had not offered the Detroit job," Schembechler said.

NFL

Hill in fair condition

BEREA, Ohio — Former Cleveland Browns hopeful Tim Hill had a bullet removed from his left thigh Thursday, one day after being released by the club for getting involved in a fight outside a Columbus bar.

Hill, a ninth-round pick from Kansas, was cut by coach Bill Belichick just a few hours after the shooting. He is in fair condition.

"We sent him home to get his leg better because we didn't think there was much more we could do for him here," Belichick said. "And he's out screwing around in a bar."

NBA

Morris headed to Spain?

BARCELONA, Spain — New Jersey Nets forward Chris Morris met on Thursday with officials of F.C. Barcelona, which is attempting to lure him to Spain.

The Nets were eliminated in the first round of last season's playoffs, but Morris averaged 18.8 points and 5 rebounds per game. He has said he wanted to return to the Nets.

NCAA

Athletic success breeds classroom success

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Some of the NCAA's biggest winners on the field in 1990 were also winners in the classroom.

Duke, which lost the 1990 basketball title to UNLV but won it the next two years, had a 100 percent graduation rate of male basketball players during a two-year period studied by researchers. Colorado, the 1990 college football champion, graduated football players during the period at more than 20 percent above the national average.

Lewis soars past Powell

Rick Warner
Associated Press

BARCELONA, Spain — It wasn't his best jump or even his best meet. But to Carl Lewis, it was his best day ever in the Olympics.

Lewis, the greatest long jumper ever and perhaps the best track and field athlete of all time, proclaimed that his seventh gold medal was his most precious.

He leaped into Olympic history Thursday night, becoming the long jump's first three-time gold medalist and edging world record-holder Mike Powell by 1/4 inches in the most hyped matchup of the Games.

"This is my best gold medal of all," he said after surviving a furious final leap by Powell that fell just short of the winning distance of 28 feet, 5 1/2 inches.

"I had a rough time earlier this summer and I was so down. To come back and win is so exciting."

Weakened by a virus at the U.S. trials in June, Lewis failed to qualify for the Olympics in the 100-meter dash — in which he holds the world record — and the 200. But he recovered in time for the Olympics and reasserted his reputation as the best big meet performer in the sport.

"I just didn't have it today; I felt flat," said Powell, who didn't blame the loss on the sore hamstring and lower back that have slowed him recently. "I finally got going at the end, but I came up just short."

Lewis went wire-to-wire, uncorking his best jump on his first try and then watching Powell try to catch up. Before his final leap, Powell knelt in prayer for about 15 seconds. After completing the jump, he again clutched his hands in prayer while waiting for the scoreboard to post his distance.

When he got the news, Powell broke into tears before Lewis came over to console him with a brief embrace.

"I thought the last jump would be enough, but it wasn't," Powell said. Said Lewis of Powell's final jump: "It was in his hands and the hands of the Father."

Joe Greene gave the United States its first medals sweep of the Games by taking the bronze at 27-4 1/2. It was the fourth U.S. sweep of the long jump at the Olympics, the others coming in 1896, 1904 and 1988.

Greene, who fouled on his first two jumps, made his best leap on his fourth effort.

"I came here to win, but I'll settle for the bronze medal," he said. "The greatest thing is being part of a U.S. sweep of all the medals."

But all the pressure and all the attention were on Powell and Lewis, who waged the greatest long jump competition ever at last year's world championships, when Lewis topped 29 feet three times and still lost to Powell's world mark of 29-4 1/2.

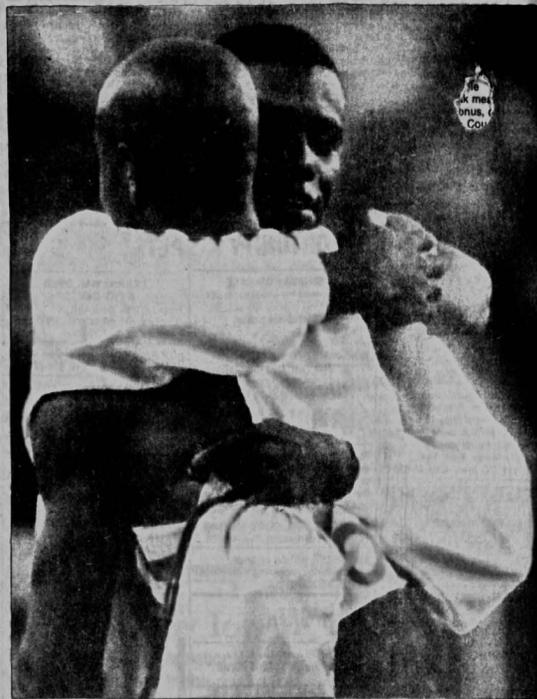

That led to speculation that the 30-foot barrier might fall in Barcelona. Despite an enthusiastic crowd that clapped and shouted before each of their jumps, neither man came close on a hot, muggy night when they usually were leaping against the wind.

In fact, Lewis' winning leap was a quarter-inch shorter than his best qualifying leap the previous day.

"The wind was very difficult," said Lewis, who won four golds at Los Angeles in 1984 and two at Seoul in 1988. "It was hard to get my strides in."

Powell, who wore a red, white and blue zebra-patterned track suit, said he felt great in the warmup. But it took him time to find his form once the competition began.

"I got going at the end, but it was a little too late," said Powell.

Long-time rivals Carl Lewis and Mike Powell embrace after going 1-2 in the long jump. Joe Greene's bronze completed an American sweep.

OLYMPICS

USA on track to take medals lead

John Nelson
Associated Press

BARCELONA, Spain — King Carl led a U.S. sweep in the long jump, Kevin Young shot down a 9-year-old world record, and Mike Marsh had a very merry un-birthday. It seemed like a golden opportunity to throw an All-

American party at the Summer Olympics.

"I've got the gold, I've got the record, I've got it all. Today's my lucky day," Young said, echoing the sentiments of a marvelously talented group of American athletes, who heard enough national anthems Thursday for a week of baseball.

Let's invite sprinter Gwen Torrence to the party, too. Torrence is new to these parties.

Save a piece of cake for Dave Johnson, while you're at it. He didn't make the gold-medal party, but he toughed it out in the decathlon with a sore, possibly broken, right ankle for a bronze medal.

"That hurt so much, it hurt so much," Johnson said. "I had to battle my injury, battle the competition and battle the crowd. . . . If everything had been healthy, we'd be talking about a different thing right now."

Now, he can go back to selling shoes.

The U.S. men's basketball team beat Lithuania 127-76, and their party is scheduled for Saturday night. That's when the men go for the gold against Croatia.

Every party has a pooper and that party pooper's you, Gail Devers.

The United States lost out on a gold when Devers, who won the women's 100 meters earlier, tumbled in a heap of pain and disappointment after she stumbled over the final hurdle in the 100-meter hurdles. Despite the fall, she got fifth, as Paraskevi Patoulidou gave the Greek women their first-ever medal in track and field.

With three days left in the Games, the United States was sneaking up on the Unified Team in the medals chase. America started the day 10 medals behind the Unies. By day's end, the score was Unies 87, Americans 86. The Unified Team led in golds, 35-27.

In the 400 hurdles, Young, of Los Angeles, demolished one of track's oldest records, set by one of track's most revered record-makers. His time was 46.78 seconds. The old mark was 47.02 by Edwin Moses in 1983.

Marsh, also of Los Angeles, celebrated his 25th birthday two days late by capturing the 200 meters in 20.01, well off the Olympic record of 19.73 he set in the semifinals. Frankie Fredericks of Namibia won the silver, and Michael Bates of Tucson, Ariz., won the bronze.

Torrence, of Decatur, Ga., ran the women's 200 in 21.81 seconds. On the medals stand, she held her hand over her mouth as she shook with emotion and wept, tears staining her cheeks.

"I had to work five long, tough years and it finally came," said Torrence, who was fourth in the 100 last Saturday. "I may not win another race, but this is what I worked for. I am the Olympic champion."

Johnson, of "Dan and Dave" shoe commercial fame, started the day in ninth with five events left. He moved into third with strong showings in the discus, pole vault and javelin, then, in one of the Games' most courageous moments, held onto his medal in the event-ending 1,500 meters.

With two good legs, it is a grueling end to a painful event. With only one, it was excruciating.

Robert Zmelik of Czechoslovakia won the gold medal with 8,611 points. Antonio Pinalver of Spain won silver with 8,412 and Johnson finished with 8,309. Rob Muzzio of Lake Ridge, Va., was fifth with 8,195.

The men's basketball players came out with their mean faces on, fired up and ready for a blowout. They scored the game's first 11 points and led by 26 with 9:11 in the first half as Magic Johnson and David Robinson growled those mean NBA growls and cheered from the bench.

The 127 points tied their record against Brazil earlier in the tournament.

Michael Jordan scored 21 points, and Robinson also settled an old

Johnson hit streak to 20 as Sox sweep

Associated Press

CHICAGO — The Chicago White Sox have a lot of ground to make up if they want to catch Oakland and Minnesota in the AL West.

They can do it, though. That's if they can continue to play the way they did against the Twins the past three days.

The White Sox completed a three-game sweep as George Bell singled twice, doubled and scored two runs in a 5-3 win that had a number of heroes.

Lance Johnson extended his hitting streak to 20 games, matching the longest for the White Sox in 25 years.

From the mound, Kirk McCaskill beat the Twins for the ninth time in 11 career decisions while reliever Roberto Hernandez struck out six of the nine batters he faced for his second save.

"We still have a long way to go,"

said Johnson, whose hitting streak is seven games shy of the White Sox' record of 27 set by Luke Appling in 1936. "If we're going to get back into the race, we're going to have to sweep Oakland and California starting tomorrow."

"They just whacked the hell out of the ball. We just didn't pitch worth a damn," Twins manager Tom Kelly said.

Blue Jays 15, Tigers 11

DETROIT — Joe Carter drove in four runs, three with a fifth-inning homer, and scored three.

The Tigers lost for the 11th time in 13 games, falling a season-worst 12 games under .500.

Jack Morris (14-4) won for the 10th time in 11 decisions, but needed the offensive explosion to do it. He allowed six runs on nine hits and five walks in five innings.

Frank Tanana (9-7) got shelled for Detroit, allowing eight runs in just 2 1/2 innings. He gave up five hits, including two homers, and walked three.

With the win, Morris moved ahead of Tanana for third place among active pitchers with 230 wins.

Cubs 5, Mets 2

CHICAGO — Greg Maddux pitched a six-hitter and hot-hitting

The White Sox' Steve Sax scores from second as Minnesota's Brian Harper tags him without the ball.

Derrick May drove in two runs, sending the slumping Mets to their third straight loss.

Maddux (14-9) walked two and struck out eight in pitching his sixth complete game and winning for the fourth time in five starts. He has averaged eight innings in four starts against New York this season.

Wally Whitehurst (1-7) lasted 4 1/2 innings, giving up three runs and seven hits and four walks. He is winless in seven starts this year.

The Mets are 1-9 in their 10 night
