Sen. Lloyd-Jones endorses national health-care plan

James Anderson

The Daily Iowan

Sen. Jean Lloyd-Jones of Iowa City, candidate for U.S. Senate, delivered Tuesday what her campaign called a "major statement" on health care in her address at the Iowa Citizens Action Network. It was an emotional gesture to make.

Lloyd-Jones said she endorsed a universal, single-payer health care system that all will make health care affordable regardless of employment status, calling it a "positive prescription for change."

"A national, single-payer health-care plan that is affordable, accessible, workable and that is shared by all people of this country is the only way to achieve a fair, healthy population," Lloyd-Jones said.

Battle intensifies before peace talks

Joan Nowak

Associated Press

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina - After nearly two years of war, the Bosnian Muslims, Serbs and Croats have been trying to forge their own peace in the heart of Bosnia-Herzegovina.

The United Nations special envoy to Bosnia, Ralph Bunche, said today that the Muslim and Serb delegations have made progress in talks aimed at ending the civil war.

The two sides have made progress in discussions that began nearly two months ago. They are focusing on the main issues of the conflict, including the control of the capital, Sarajevo, and the division of the country.

The latest progress was made today, with both sides agreeing to begin a dialogue on the future of the country. The agreement was reached after the two delegations met in Belgrade.

The Muslim delegation is led by Alija Izetbegovic, who is also the president of the Bosnian Muslim entity. The Serb delegation is headed by Radovan Karadzic, who is the leader of the Serbian entity.

The talks are being mediated by the United Nations, which has been trying to bring about a lasting peace in the region for more than 20 years.

Meanwhile, fighting between the Bosnian Serbs and Croats continues to rage, with both sides blaming each other for the conflicts.

The latest round of fighting began last week, when the Serbs launched an offensive against a Muslim-held enclave in eastern Bosnia.

The offensive has forced thousands of people to flee their homes, and has raised concerns about the safety of the population.

Meanwhile, the United Nations has warned that the situation is deteriorating rapidly, and has called for an immediate ceasefire.

The Bosnian government has agreed to hold a conference with the United Nations to discuss the situation.

Meanwhile, President Bill Clinton has called for an immediate end to the violence in the region, and has pledged to send an envoy to the area to help broker a peace deal.

The envoy is expected to arrive later this week.

Restrants under Clean Air Act endanger future usage of ethanol

Thomas Watan

The Des Moines Register

Ethanol plants are facing a tricky dilemma under the Clean Air Act amendments that will take effect next year.

The amendments are part of the Iowa Corn Growers Association's efforts to address the issue of MTBE contamination. The proposed changes to the Clean Air Act will require ethanol plants to reduce their emissions of MTBE, a byproduct of the ethanol production process.

The proposed regulations could lead to a decrease in the production of ethanol, which could in turn affect the corn industry. Corn growers are concerned that the regulations could lead to a decrease in the price of corn, which could have a negative impact on the overall economy.

The Iowa Corn Growers Association is urging Congress to consider the impact of the proposed regulations on the corn industry and to work with corn growers to find a solution that will protect the environment while also supporting the corn industry.

The proposed regulations are expected to take effect next year, and corn growers are calling on Congress to work with them to find a solution that will protect the environment while also supporting the corn industry.

City to place cameras in buses

Associated Press

GRANVILLE, Iowa — The Woodward-Greiner Community School District said it will install surveillance systems in its schools because the east Missouri city wants to ensure that the ride between Greiner and Woodward is safe for students and drivers.

"When you get passengers all at once, it becomes the tendency to get careless," said Superintendent Richard W. Hargreaves.

Three thefts take students and staff by surprise

What Woodward-Greiner has seen (12 thefts) is more than a year's worth of cases on the trial postponed until 5 p.m. in the United Methodist Church on the Pentacrest.

She was charged with assault and battery with an object and simple assault by lying down on the aisle of a bus. She also threatened to throw a bottle of water on the bus.

The indictment against Gray charged her to be in the Pentacrest in 1987 when he denied any involvement in the agreement to the trial.

The San Francisco Chronicle reports that the City Council has approved a $25,000 budget for the program and is seeking $20 million for the fiscal year 2013-14.

The council approved the budget on a 6-0 vote, with one abstention by Councilman Scott Wiener, who was not present for the vote.

The budget includes $2 million for new staff positions and $3 million for capital improvements.

In addition to the $25,000 for the fiscal year 2013-14, the council approved a $20 million bond for the fiscal year 2014-15.

The bond would fund a new $20 million building for the City Council.

The new building would be located on the site of the current City Hall in downtown San Francisco.

CIA vows to prosece defector

Laurel Krey
Associated Press

STOCKHOLM, Sweden — Edward Howard, the CIA's top defector to the Soviet Union, was in the capital city of Sweden Tuesday, after being offered an ultimatum: leave Russia or face prison.

Officials refused to say where Howard went.

But his lawyer said Howard was happy with the deal. And Howard was headed to a country where he promised to return to the United States for trial on charges that he helped the Soviet Union gather intelligence.

Howard, 40, is a newspaper investigative reporter who was offered a job and housing in the United States if he would agree to leave Sweden.

"We believe he is a free man," said a official at the Swedish intelligence agency.

As far as we know, he is today in the United States," the official said.

Howard, an avid reader and writer, is a frequent visitor to the United States. He has written several books on the Soviet Union and is known for his sharp mind and incisive writing.

"I want to be a free man and I want to be a journalist," Howard told reporters. "I want to have access to the same tools that I have in Russia, where I can do my job and help the American people."

Clinton's draft history fueling Bush speech

Robert Barnes
Associated Press

"There can be no doubt that when Bill Clinton takes office," Bush said today, "we'll be dealing with a president who's also a gamer, a full-on clown of a president."

Bush was speaking at the National Cartoonists Society's annual convention in Chicago, where he also was given a lifetime achievement award. The speech wasBush's first since Oct. 31, when he and other Republicans made their last attempt to win public sympathy over the promise of $500 billion in tax increases, mostly for education and health care.

"I believe it's going to be a dead zone," he said. "But we have a few things to look forward to in the way we spend lots of money."

Bush added that he would do "our part" to keep the 1993 budget agreement with the Congress intact.

Bush said the administration was looking into "the possibility of some kind of a settlement" over the budget. The administration is also trying to negotiate a new budget deal with the Democratic-controlled Congress.

"I'm not going to be taken advantage of," Bush said. "I'm not going to be taken advantage of."
Government will fight proposed 'no-fly' zone

Japanese emperor accepts invitation to China

Officials: Better planning needed

Now nearly everyone can join

Certain restrictions apply

For those three years, Chinese leaders have patiently responded to invitations to visit China, accepting the warnings of foreign observers.

The acceptance by Japan's Cabinet represents Beijing's second diplomatic coup in two years. On Monday, China gained the backing of one-time Cold War foe South Korea.

Top government officials including President Jiang Zemin have vowed to fight any U.S. no-fly zone over southern Iraq and warned that such a measure would 'destroy Iraq's unity and divide the region.'

In London, England, Acting U.S. Secretary of State Lawrence Eagleburger said the U.S. was prepared to go to war to maintain its no-fly zone. In a brief statement quoted by the official Iraqi News Agency that the U.S. was "ready to go to war" to protect its forces and the "peace that Iraq won in the Gulf War".

President Bush had been expected to announce Tuesday that the U.S. would act to protect its forces and the "peace that Iraq won in the Gulf War." The president, who has been under growing pressure from the Congress to act, also was expected to announce that he had asked the United Nations Security Council to authorize a no-fly zone over southern Iraq.

Although critics including the British and French governments have argued that a no-fly zone would undermine Iraq's unity and divide the region, the Bush administration has been working to secure United Nations approval for its plan.

The United States plan to extend no-fly zones to 3,500 sq. km around observers to help protect and reconcile the aids. The Security Council could vote on the proposal this week.

"The United States makes a serious commitment to deal with the issue of no-fly zones," said a security official.

The war of soundbites

T urn on the evening news and they bite out everywhere. Spokespersons, sons, daughters, grandchildren, generally intended to boost a candidate's name in the polls, pronouncing words that have never seen a battle, rarely mentioning the future of a war.

That's the soundbites. I've seen them qbite on camera from newsroom to newsroom. In an election-wriving "real" world, the candidate has all the time in the world to speak the queen of soundbites' platitudes and front-page headlines.

The actual content of the soundbites is appallingly small. Their purpose is in the mind to muddy the waters, clouding the quick applause and acceptance.

The problem, the real and only problem is that there are so many soundbites, all campaigns, at any level, meant to secure an audience in an evident attempt to avoid focusing on the issues affecting the electorate. And, to be honest, it is the candidat's fault itself.

For the past year, I have been fortunate to have opportunities not only to participate in the world of broadcast and newspaper journalism, but also to compare the results of obtaining the precious treasure of a soundbites. Talk to any broadcast journalist and he or she will tell you of the pressure to get the firmed 30-second bite, of which only less than 20 seconds of it is actually worth a hearing.

They will tell you of the love/hate relationship between the microphone and the role of the reporter. Of how media soundbites, and the elected or un-elected officials will reach a consensus on what to say or something halfway sensible to the viewing audience.

Ray, Shawn Nagle, and Gayl Bevans are perfect examples of the local politicians who will go out of his way to speak to the leaders, from personal experiences that Nagle said that Gladys has a family-type Deneuve bite to talk about the Capitol Bill closing arguments. To keep their name and position in the speaker's position at the Iowa Republican Convention for a chance to be a reporter's nightmare.

Political scientists argue that because this year's candidates are all occupying a high position in the thought of the viewers' perceptions of the candidates will largely depend upon what they say. In addition, this year's candidates are too busy in the sessions that had a smaller ratings percentage that the Democratic convention.

With what the majority of the Republicans and Democrats will tell us on the 20-second soundbites of barking sounds.

There are still so many who listen to the barking sounds. That means there are about 40 days left of merciless political coverage, of TV news programs choosing the soundbite of the afternoon, way over the ones on the economy, war care, or whatever else is more sensible to the viewers. The truth is, it sometimes are in a for a long, boring full.

Animal rights

To the Editor:

I have been in and out of several iterations of wild and free animal rights organizations, and the national and state organizations over the years. There is always a sense of genuine passion and dedication that is involved in this project, such as Green Peace and the group, 'Animal Coalition,' are animal rights groups that are national and state organizations that focus on the animal rights movement.

While I have seen many passionate individuals involved in this problem as a past professor, I have found that the animal rights activists are often times more vocal than motivated. They are often seen as more extreme than the average person.

At times, I have found it difficult to tell the difference between these two groups. Often, animal rights activists are quick to jump to conclusions and make assumptions about the groups that they believe are working against their cause.

Some of these assumptions can be quite false. For example, the Green Peace group is not always portrayed as being bad, but rather as being misunderstood. The Animal Coalition is often times portrayed as being too extreme.

In some cases, these assumptions can be quite harmful to the groups involved. For example, the Green Peace group is not always portrayed as being bad, but rather as being misunderstood. The Animal Coalition is often times portrayed as being too extreme.

Furthermore, some of these assumptions can be quite harmful to the groups involved. For example, the Green Peace group is not always portrayed as being bad, but rather as being misunderstood. The Animal Coalition is often times portrayed as being too extreme.

I hope that people will take this opportunity to think about the role of dogs and cats in our culture. As a society, we need to come together and make a change to ensure the well-being of all animals.

And good for you. The animal rights movement has come a long way in the past few years. From small beginnings to a global movement, it has been a difficult journey. But the progress that has been made is a testament to the power of love and compassion.

I believe that the animal rights movement will continue to grow in the future. As more people become aware of the issues facing animals, I believe that the movement will become even stronger.

Finally, I would like to thank everyone who has supported the animal rights movement. Without your help, we would not be where we are today.

Yours sincerely,

Sen. Bill Young

Three-time all-star third baseman Ken Griffey, Jr., hit two home runs and drove in four runs as the Reds topped the Montreal Expos 10-6 in the second game of a three-game set at Riverfront Stadium. Griffey finished with five hits and improved his batting average to .325.

Mike Boddicker (7-8) pitched the third complete game in three games with the series and started the offense with a two-out single in the first inning. The first baseman then scored on a bunt single by Burke Walsh.

Oliver also helped the Reds in the second game with a two-out single in the third inning. He added another two-out hit in the fifth inning to drive in two more runs.

The Reds improved their record to 13-3 in interleague play and 32-22 overall.

Solitary debut for pinstripers

New York Yankees

By Howard Strack

Associated Press

WILLIAMSBURG, Wisc. — Bob Wickman made his major league debut Monday night against his home-town Yankees.

The dream may have been that of the young pitcher. But it was also a dream some Yankees fans had, too. The right-hander, who went 16-0 for Wisconsin-Whitewater, had a dream last week in which he got his first major league hit against the Yankees.

"It was very big," said the 21-year-old right-hander, who was invited to try out for the Yankees during last year's Instructional League and is now the latest in a line of college pitchers to try on a Yankees uniform. "I don't know what he was thinking, but it was in the back of my mind to try to make the team."

Yankees manager Yogi Berra thought Wickman had a better shot in the minor leagues, but the 6-foot-1, 180-pound hurler got the chance when Bill Robinson was placed on the 15-day disabled list.

"I was thinking of the Yankees," Wickman said. "I just wanted to look at the dugout and see if I was an everyday player.

"I knew it wasn't going to happen, but at least I was going to get the opportunity."

"I've never dreamed of playing on the Yankee pitching staff," Wickman said. "It was unbelievable."

The dream may have been that of the young pitcher. But it was also a dream some Yankees fans had, too.

"It was real unbelievable," said the owner of the Yankees' home-run hitting machine. "It was one of those dreams where you wake up and think, 'I need to get the major league hit."

"But the only thing that happened," Wickman said, "was that I woke up.

"I didn't bother to get up to get the ball," Wickman said. "I just worked better," said the owner of the Yankees' home-run hitting machine. "And it didn't bother to get up to get the ball,

"I just worked better, everything," Wickman said. "The only thing that happened," Wickman said, "was that I woke up.

"I didn't bother to get up to get the ball."
The Daily

With the 500th anniversary of Christopher Columbus' "discovery" of the Americas coming this fall, it is not surprising that novelists are beginning to write stories about this great sea voyager. "Columbus" is one such story, and it is not just any tale. The book is not just about the famous explorer, but also about the men who sailed with him. It is a story that examines the lives of these men, their motivations, and their contributions to the discovery of the New World.

The novel, "Columbus," is written by India's most famous author, Svetlana Lene. It is a captivating and moving story that captures the essence of the age of exploration and the spirit of adventure that drove these men to undertake such a perilous journey.

The story is told through the eyes of the ship's doctor, a young man named John, who is fascinated by the tales of the old sailor who returns from his travels with tales of distant lands. John is determined to embark on a voyage of his own, and he is drawn to the sea by the stories of the men who have sailed before him.

As the ship sets sail, John begins to learn more about the men who are on board. Each has his own story, his own reasons for making this journey. Some are seeking wealth, others are driven by a desire for adventure, and still others are simply following their fathers' footsteps.

The journey is not without its challenges. The sea is rough, and the crew is tested by the elements. But John and the others are determined to reach their destination, and they work together to overcome the obstacles that stand in their way.

When they finally arrive in the New World, John and the others are amazed by the unfamiliar sights and sounds. They encounter strange and exotic creatures, and they are struck by the beauty of the new land.

The novel is a moving exploration of the human spirit, and it shows how the voyages of discovery changed the world forever. "Columbus" is a story of adventure, courage, and discovery, and it is a tribute to the men who risked everything to open up the New World.
Iowa teachers display art in Union exhibit

Inquisitive, charming, and breathtaking: The world of these teachers is bound to move you. Betty Kinder

The works of Judith Eastman, Barbara Welsh, and Barbara Driskell, will be on display at the Union Art Gallery from the third of Sept. 20th until the third of Oct. 20th. The exhibit is open to students of all ages.

"The primary goal of these artists was to create art for their students," said Judith Eastman.

"The art works created are designed to get some recognition. The recognition of their work is important for the students and their work on art teachers. The work on art teachers is a very important role in this institution because they create a medium of visual artistry.

Judith Eastman, teacher at Iowa Community College, has an elegant black and white action of giclee print on paper. The artist said "School Art" as her title for the piece with a row of different that works on and to the smoothness and the painting.

Another piece, titled "Two-sided" is a woman's utile white canvas raised to a series of black and white lines along with the lines and steps making a medium of visual artistry.

Barbara Welsh, teacher at Anamosa Community College has work seen in a watercolor of a piece of visual artistry.

"The work on art teachers is very important for the students and their work on art teachers. The work on art teachers is a very important role in this institution because years create a medium of visual artistry."

Robert Hancher, College of Education, has work seen in a watercolor of a piece of visual artistry.

"The work on art teachers is very important for the students and their work on art teachers. The work on art teachers is a very important role in this institution because years create a medium of visual artistry."

The photo shown here is titled "Confluence". The photo shows the world of these teachers is bound to move you.

Some of the most interesting work is the work of the teachers who display art in the Iowa Art Teacher Exhibition. Some artists have a medium of visual artistry. Some artists are interested in the world of these teachers is bound to move you.

If you are interested in the world of these teachers is bound to move you, please contact the Iowa Art Teacher Exhibition at 330-8050.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration Wednesday declared hundreds of over-the-counter medications don't work and producers taking them off the market, including those that don't work and those that do. For instance, the agency said pain relievers in American medicine cabinets are of no proven use. More said it was good to see the FDA take action to throw out stuff that doesn't live up to its claims.

A gunman released hostages and shot himself at a hotel in Rapid City, S.D., police said. Police Chief Tom Hennies identified the gunman, whom he identified as Jeremiah D. Kayton, as a 17-year-old who released hostages he took at a hotel this morning, then shot himself in the stomach, police said.

Police, Chief Tom Hennies, the gunman, whom he identified as Jeremiah D. Kayton, was taken to the Rushmore Plaza Hotel for treatment.

The gunman, carrying more than 450 rounds and possibly a second weapon, shot out a window, police said, and shot out a window, police said.

Four were killed in an Israeli-Palestinian clash in the Bank town of Jenin, the army said. Three people, including two small children, were injured in a gunbattle that erupted after a shoot-out that lasted for seven hours.

The clash was one of the bloodiest since Israeli undercover police began using Arab disguises to hunt for armed Palestinians four years ago. Palestinian officials claim the units are death squads that kill suspects without warning.

Legislators call for Colombe's impeachment

BRASILIA, Brazil (AP) — Legislators on Wednesday overwhelmingly approved a report that accuses President Fernando Collombe of massive corruption and recommendations for his impeachment.

The congressional panel drew up the report and approved it by a 159-3 vote, with the surprise support of government opponents who switched sides at the last minute.
