Dental records confirm body as Zywicki's

Melanie Burney
Associated Press

MARLTON, N.J. — The odds were against them, but Hank and JoAnne Zywicki remained hopeful until the end Thursday.

Minutes after telling reporters they were hoping for a miracle, authorities in southwestern Missouri confirmed that a body found there is their missing 21-year-old daughter, Tammy Zywicki.

"We all feel this is a horrible, horrible situation," JoAnne Zywicki said at a news conference outside the family's home in this suburban community about 13 miles southeast of Philadelphia, Pa. "This touches all of our family."

Zywicki was a student at Iowa's Grinnell College and was last seen alive Aug. 23 on Interstate 80 near Utica, Ill., where her car broke down.

The body was found Tuesday in a ditch off Interstate 44 near Mount Vernon, Mo. An autopsy was inconclusive Wednesday and dental records were sent for positive identification.

Meanwhile, the family anxiously waited, although they said authorities had said they were 90 percent sure the body found was their daughter's. The victim's three siblings left college to join the vigil at their parents' home.

"It was so saddening, but we expected it after the details of the physical evidence were revealed," the family said in a statement released after authorities confirmed the victim's identity. "We felt anger and sorrow at the realization of the brutal and dehumanizing conduct."

Authorities said Zywicki had been stabbed seven times and her blanket-wrapped body was dumped in the ditch around Friday. She probably had been dead four to five days before the body was discovered, authorities said.

"She was a warm and friendly individual, tough and disciplined," Hank Zywicki said as he clutched a picture of his blond-haired daughter. "I call her my princess."

After notifying the parents that the body had been identified, Evesham Township Police Lt. Jonathan Wainwright told reporters the family had no immediate comment. A note was later posted outside the house requesting pri-vacancy. Word quickly spread Thursday through the close-knit community where the Zywicki family has lived since April. Television vans were scattered along the neatly kept block.

"At least now they know," said John Wild, 28, who lives across the street. "Now they have to start dealing with it. It's going to be hard."

Zywicki was headed to Grinnell College after dropping her brother off at Northwestern University in Evanston, Ill., where he is a student.

Daren Zywicki, 19, said he and his sister had car trouble on their way west from New Jersey but that she believed it was fixed when she left

Two IC residents charged with arson

Two Iowa City residents were charged with second-degree arson after setting fire to a pallet and some trash that had been placed up against a fence at 200 Iowa Ave. on Wednesday at 1:15 a.m. Jennifer Miller, 23, 1009 Wylde Green Road and William Cave, 22, 118 E. Jefferson St., Apt. 3, were charged shortly after police officers appeared on the scene.

Iowa City firefighters arrived at the location of the fire just 34 minutes after they had previously been there, only to find another fire had been set.

Additional blood lead level tests offered

The UI Department of Pediatrics will hold an additional screening clinic for children attending UI day-care centers to test blood lead levels from 7-8:30 p.m. on Tuesday, Sept. 8. The clinic will be held at St. Andrew's Church, 1300 Meirose Ave.

Children who have attended a university-affiliated day-care or preschool center since September 1991 and who have not yet been tested are invited to attend. Children attending the HACAP Headstart Program, 300 Myrtle Ave., are encouraged to attend, as they were not included in earlier screenings.

The blood tests are being offered to the children following the discovery of high lead levels in both the interior and exterior of five UI-affiliated day-care centers.

Safe drivers to be ticketed

WATERLOO, Iowa (AP) — Some 100 safety-conscious, courteous drivers in Black Hawk County will be ticketed during the next four weeks, but they won't be paying fines.

Instead, the drivers will receive free movie tickets from Black Hawk County sheriff's deputies who will be on the lookout for motorists who exhibit good driving habits and wear their seat belts.

SCOPE

UI students to see BAD II in concert

Tad Paulson
The Daily Iowan

Thanks to an Iowa City businessman, UI students will have the long-awaited chance to satisfy their rock 'n' roll taste buds Saturday, Sept. 19, when Big Audio Dynamite II will play at Hubbard Park.

Donnie Stalkfleet, owner of the Sports Column bar and restaurant, 12 S. Dubuque St., teamed up with members of the Student Commission on Programming Entertainment to organize and promote the concert, which will also feature the local bar band . . . these days as the opening act.

General admission tickets will go on sale today at 5 p.m. at the University Box Office. The cost will be $9 and UI students will have the option of charging tickets to their U-bill.

The concert will begin at 7 p.m., rain or shine.

The scheduling of the BAD II concert comes on the heels of a difficult and frustrating summer for SCOPE. Faced with massive cuts to its operating budget and repeatedly futile efforts to secure Kinnick Stadium for the current tours of U2 and Guns N' Roses, SCOPE and Stalkfleet hope the upcoming show will provide some serious musical rejuvenation for UI students and Iowa City residents.

"I'm taking a definitive risk by doing this," Stalkfleet said, "but I'm not in it for the money — I'm doing this for the Iowa City community and for SCOPE."

Stalkfleet and Sports Column Productions are providing the funding for the event, including the cost of the stage setup, lighting and liability insurance coverage. SCOPE will not be liable for any monetary losses that could possibly occur.

Chris Graham, a former University Box Office employee who is working with SCOPE and Stalkfleet on the BAD II show, sees Stalkfleet's contribution as an extremely positive and timely helping hand.

"Donnie is trying to create something new and different for the community to do," Graham said. "He wants to generate some revenue for the community and establish a precedent for future concerts."

Stalkfleet feels enthusiastic about the Sept. 19 concert, and hopes students and Iowa City residents will too. He has one major contention with the UI, and that is the refusal of the administration to allow controlled beer sales at Hubbard Park during the concert.

"In controlling and supervising beer sales, you slow down the drinking process for students," Stalkfleet said.

Ann Rhodes, UI vice president for university relations, said Wednesday that the decision to prohibit alcohol sales was "consistent with our policy."

Rhodes said that alcohol is often associated with problems concerning unruly concert crowds — a scenario the UI wants to avoid. "Alcohol tends to exacerbate crowd-control problems," Rhodes said. "Without beer sales, at least they're limited to what they can smuggle in."

Stalkfleet pointed out that there were no alcohol-related arrests at the Buddy Guy-Blues Traveler concert at Hubbard Park in May and that the Genesis concert in Ames last summer had 14 minor arrests among the 33,000 people attending at Cyclone Stadium.

RECESSION

U.S. poverty level highest since 1965

Tim Bovee
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The tightening recession dumped more than 2 million Americans into poverty in 1991, the Census Bureau said Thursday. The number of Americans officially categorized by the government as poor reached a 27-year high.

Last year, during the depths of the recession, 35.7 million Americans were listed as poor. In 1991, poor Americans made up 14.2 percent of the population, up from 13.5 percent the year before.

The government counts people as poor if their income falls below the national poverty line. Last year a family of four earning $13,924 was poor. So was an individual earning $6,932 or less.

Americans in general earned less in 1991 than the year before. The government said median household income declined by 3.5 percent, to $30,126, after adjusting for inflation.

The poverty numbers immediately became ammunition in the presidential campaigns.

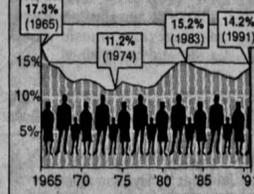

The Republican Bush administration defended its record. "Certainly I think we have to expect that the recession would have a significant and serious impact on income and on poverty levels," said White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater. "We have tried to target a number of programs in the last couple of years particularly to those problems, knowing that the recession would have a deleterious effect."

UI COLLEGE OF EDUCATION

Alumni recall good old days at U-High

Sara Epstein
The Daily Iowan

Rushing through the long, dark halls of North Hall on your way to class, you might not realize exactly where you are. Perhaps you never stopped to think about the fact that lockers line the halls.

But the old brick building that sits on the hill behind Stanley Residence Hall holds a lot of fond memories for students who attended University High, or U-High.

In August about 800 alumni gathered in City Park for an all-school reunion. The school, which served as a laboratory school for faculty and graduate students in the UI College of Education, housed kindergarten through 12th-grade students.

UI Professor Emeritus John Haefner taught at the high school for 36 years.

"It was a ready-made high school and elementary school for them," he said, explaining that while department heads held permanent positions, doctoral and master's-degree candidates were also teaching. "It was great — the kids got to see new faces and they were exposed to new teaching methods. ... Graduate students brought fresh air — the kids didn't get into the routine of having just a textbook."

Those teaching methods really stood out in former U-High student Jonathan Jordahl's mind. The educational adviser in the UI Division of Continuing Education said he felt almost overprepared for college.

"The most important thing about U-High was that they asked you, 'What do you think?' and not, 'What's the answer?' We were taught that our opinion is valuable and that's not really characteristic of high-school education," he said.

The 1972 graduate explained that classes were often divided into small groups where students would share ideas and chew on them.

"Going from that environment to a college lecture was an abomination to me," said Jordahl, who attended Luther College. "With all these intelligent minds together, including the professor's, there's nothing better to do than have a lecture?"

Though Polly Pagliai didn't get to graduate before the school was closed in 1972, she said she has a soft spot in her heart for U-High.

"U-High is where I got my social conscience," she said. "They taught us to think for ourselves, to make decisions on our own. They even allowed us to participate in the peace march against the Vietnam War, which wasn't common."

Of course enrollment in the school was limited. Haefner said there were rarely more than 15 students in a class, but the majority of the students were highly motivated. If anything, he said the small school made the education that much better.

Sally Orr, a 1969 graduate, agreed and added that the small school had a good curriculum for a school of 2,000.

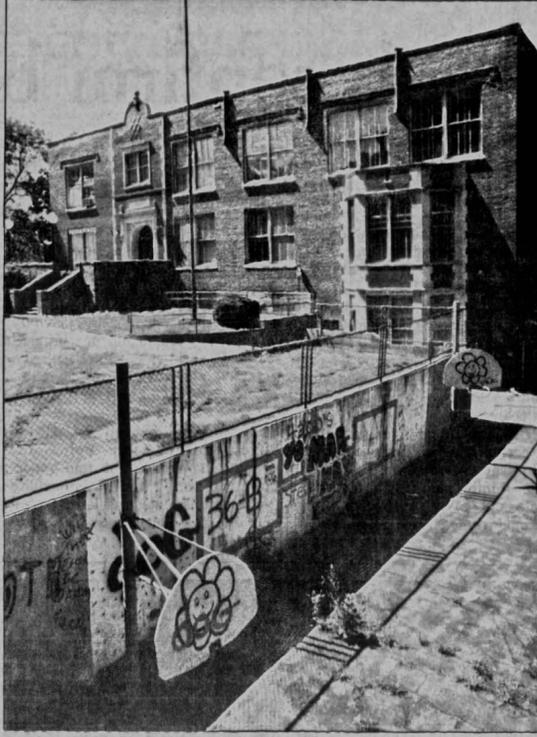

"You could be involved in anything you wanted. And you knew everyone so you felt like you belonged there," she said.

June Allison is a 1942 graduate who sent three of her children to U-High.

"It was a very good education, though I don't think I appreciated it as much then," she said. "And though it was an experimental school, you never felt like you were being experimented on."

Haefner agreed, stressing that the student-teacher relationships that developed were unique.

"The teachers became the kids' friends. The faculty really cared about the kids and they showed it," Haefner said. "The grad students were going to school themselves so they were sympathetic and I think that really rubbed off on their relationship."

Carl Bonnett/The Daily Iowan

Formerly an elementary and high school run by the UI College of Education to train graduate students and try out innovations in teaching methods, North Hall now houses the UI School of Social Work.

Unfortunately, the school had to be closed in 1972 due to lack of funding. Haefner said the building was getting old and constructing a new facility was not high on the UI's list of priorities.

"I thought it was wrong in 1972, and in 1992 I know it was wrong," said Haefner. "We really need the kind of school that U-High was."

After the August reunion, Haefner said he was able to walk away with a tremendous feeling of pride.

"Out of about 150 former students that I talked to, I found that these kids had gone out and made something of themselves. ... Many of them said they didn't realize how good a school it was until they grew up."

that we are all special and in the belief that it is good and right to ask questions of those in authority," said Jonathan Jordahl, educational adviser in the UI Division of Continuing Education and 1972 U-High graduate.

The purpose of U-High, which was shut down 20 years ago due to lack of funding, was to provide an on-campus site where UI education students could try out new teaching methods.

The U-High School Innovative Developments in Education Award fund, or the U-High IDEA, will be awarded annually to an outstanding student-teacher or graduate student doing innovative research in education. Recipients will be

In order to keep the spirit of University High alive, alumni have created a scholarship to encourage UI College of Education students to employ new and innovative teaching methods in the classroom.

"The spirit of U-High lives on in the feeling of freedom, in the sense selected by the faculty of the College of Education.

"There's a need for experimentation in teaching and it shouldn't be a question of public funding," Jordahl said. "There is too much that was good about U-High in that aspect to allow it to die. ... The recipient of the award will be a student who reflects those values."

Small-scale publications celebrated in zine show

Thomas Wanat
The Daily Iowan

Saturday Stephen Perkins will host an event in Iowa City where people from countries around the world will express their views.

Perkins is sponsoring an international zine show, with over 250 self-published, underground zines from 16 countries.

"I'd say a zine is basically an uncommercial, not-for-profit, small-scale publication using accessible technology that provides a voice for a variety of groups whose views are not portrayed or not portrayed as they would like by mass media," said Perkins, who is pursuing a doctorate in art history.

"All zines are magazines, but not all magazines are zines," said Perkins. "It has to do with attitude, politics, where you're coming from. They're a breeding ground for new ideas."

"A defining characteristic is that they're not printed up in very large numbers," he said. "They're the underbelly of a mega-publishing business."

Included in his collection to be displayed are artzines, assembling zines, anarchist zines, comic zines, femzines, mailzines, music zines, neoist zines and queer zines.

What we must defend is dialogue and the universal communication of men. Slavery, injustice and lies are the plagues that destroy this dialogue and forbid this communication and that is why we must reject them," he wrote.

Robert Ford, the editor of Thing, a zine from the Chicago, Ill., area, said, "Documentation is perhaps the most important function of any journalism."

These are really networking tools; they keep people in contact with each other, whole underground cultures," Perkins said.

Perkins organized the exhibit not only to show people in Iowa City what others around the world are doing but also as a project for Aggressive School of Cultural Workers Iowa Chapter, or ASCW-IA, in conjunction with the Decentralized World-Wide Congress 1992.

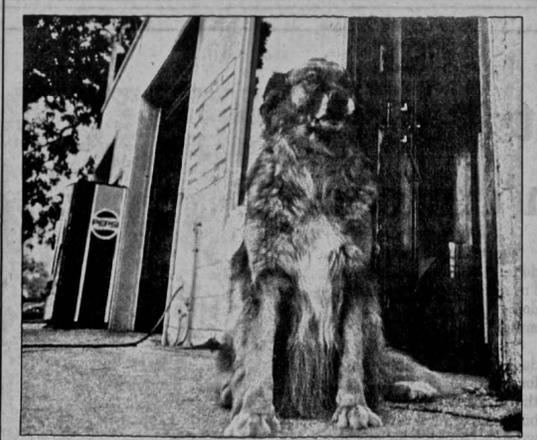

The ASCW-IA describes itself as an anonymous collective that seeks to invent, discover and propagate new forms of cultural interaction.

"Networking" is the buzzword used to describe the interpersonal communication that takes place via the zines.

"In my perspective, then, networking is a subject and a technique of knowing," wrote David Cole, a contributor from Brooklyn, N.Y., in ASCW-IA literature.

The Rev. Paul Alchemist, another contributor from Baltimore, Md., wrote, "When people can communicate directly, political leaders cannot keep the BIG lie going about people in other countries."

Albert Camus, a French writer, is also quoted. "What we must fight is fear and silence, and with them the spiritual isolation they involve.

Kinnick night raise security

Chris P. Owen
The Daily Iowan

As the Hawkeyes get ready to do battle with the Miami Hurricanes Saturday night, UI and Iowa City law officers are preparing for problems that might arise from Kinnick Stadium's first-ever night game.

"A night game is something we've never experienced here," said William Fuhrmeister, director of the UI Department of Public Safety. "We're not quite sure what to expect."

About 180 law enforcement officers, compared to about 140 at normal day games, will be working at or around the game, he said. This will include members of Public Safety, the Iowa State Patrol and the Iowa City Police Department.

Many UI and local officials are uncertain what extra problems might occur as a result of the sold-out 7 p.m. football game, especially when the game ends between 10 p.m. and 11 p.m., and 70,000 fans try to leave the stadium and the town.

"Our biggest concern is safety after the game, especially the safety of pedestrians and fans leaving the game," Fuhrmeister said.

Darkness, the glare of headlights and fatigue are some factors which could affect both motorists and pedestrians, he said.

In an attempt to reduce possible problems, Fuhrmeister said only one-way traffic will be allowed on Hawkins Drive from the stadium area to the Coralville Strip.

Additionally, a temporary sidewalk will be erected on the north side of Melrose Avenue near Kin-

Kinnick night games raise security concerns

Chris P. Owen
The Daily Iowan

As the Hawkeyes get ready to do battle with the Miami Hurricanes Saturday night, UI and Iowa City law officers are preparing for problems that might arise from Kinnick Stadium's first-ever night game.

"A night game is something we've never experienced here," said William Fuhrmeister, director of the UI Department of Public Safety. "We're not quite sure what to expect."

About 180 law enforcement officers, compared to about 140 at normal day games, will be working at or around the game, he said. This will include members of Public Safety, the Iowa State Patrol and the Iowa City Police Department.

Many UI and local officials are uncertain what extra problems might occur as a result of the sold-out 7 p.m. football game, especially when the game ends between 10 p.m. and 11 p.m., and 70,000 fans try to leave the stadium and the town.

"Our biggest concern is safety after the game, especially the safety of pedestrians and fans leaving the game," Fuhrmeister said.

Darkness, the glare of headlights and fatigue are some factors which could affect both motorists and pedestrians, he said.

In an attempt to reduce possible problems, Fuhrmeister said only one-way traffic will be allowed on Hawkins Drive from the stadium area to the Coralville Strip.

Additionally, a temporary sidewalk will be erected on the north side of Melrose Avenue near Kinnick and extra officers will be posted to keep pedestrians out of the streets, he said.

Because of the late finish of the game, there may be even greater crowd congestion and traffic problems than usual, said Ann Rhodes, vice president for university relations.

"People may want to leave right away instead of tailgating in the parking lot after the game," she said.

As usual, state patrolmen will be stationed on all roads and interstates leading into Iowa City to deal with traffic problems before and after the game, said Sgt. Dan Jahnke of the Iowa Highway Patrol.

"The way we work is to prepare for a worst-case scenario," he said. "When we have an accident during a football game, we have a real problem in a hurry."

Public intoxication, drunk driving and other alcohol-related problems could also be a concern both before and after the game. Tailgaters have all day to party, as opposed to most weekends when the game starts at 1 p.m.

Fuhrmeister said he did not expect a great increase in the amount of drunkenness problems before the game. Most people will probably not begin their tailgating activities until mid-afternoon, he said.

"We are beefing up security in case there is a problem," Fuhrmeister said. "We don't expect one, but we will be prepared."

The Iowa City Police Department will also be increasing its forces during and after the game to deal with alcohol and traffic problems, said Capt. Richard Harney. The Saturday evening and late-night shifts will be changed to overlap by two hours, he said.

In addition to the extra security measures, football fans once again will be asked to follow the UI's "Safe Saturday" guidelines at this and all home football games. Implemented by the UI since 1985, the guidelines include:

- Alcoholic beverages, botas, all coolers, all canned or bottled beverages, banners, seat backs, noise-makers, horns, bugles, video cameras, or any other disruptive device are prohibited from the stadium.

- No objects may be thrown from or in the stands.

- No "body-passing" is permitted in the stands.

- No beer trucks, kegs or open bars are allowed in UI parking areas.

- No open fires, amplified sound or alcoholic beverages are permitted in the UI parking ramps near the stadium.

Although UI and local officials are uncertain about what to prepare for, they are trying to be prepared for any possible situation, Rhodes said.

UI students make sizable profit parlaying tickets into quick cash

Yokota Masuo
The Daily Iowan

"Desperately needed: 2 Iowa vs. Miami tickets (Preferably student). Call Russ after five." ... "Selling Miami tickets. Good seats, call soon." ... "Wanted: 3 non-student Miami tickets."

Ticket sections in the classified ads of newspapers have been a little longer and bulletin boards in the residence halls have been more crowded than usual in the past couple of weeks.

Before Saturday's nationally televised face-off with first-ranked Miami at Kinnick Stadium, some football fans are rushing to buy and sell tickets for one of the hottest college football games of the season.

Since the ticket office sold out of tickets over a week ago, a lot of fans are relying on scalpers to secure tickets.

"The game is the biggest game since the Michigan-Iowa game in 1985, when Iowa was ranked No. 1 and Michigan No. 2," said Jerry Slocum, an owner of Sportsman's Ticket Service, 114 1/2 E. College St., who has been in the ticket business for 10 years.

Slocum has already sold 60 to 70 non-student tickets, which have a face value of $22, at somewhere between $60 and $125 apiece, depending on the seat locations.

The profit range for these tickets is $5-$50, he said. The most expensive tickets he sold for the coming game were $145 for a pair to a UI student who bought them for his parents.

The ticket-selling business is not only for professionals like Slocum. Some students try to take advantage of the great demand for the tickets to make a fortune.

Natalie Krebill, a pre-nursing major at the UI, put a "wanted" flier on a bulletin board in Burge Residence Hall. She eventually paid $40 for a student ticket with a face value of $8. Afterward, another student called her to buy a ticket from her, assuming that she had owned a ticket and tried to sell it.

"He said he would give me 40 bucks for my Miami ticket, but I told him no, because I wanted to see a Miami game," Krebill said. "He said, 'I just sold my ticket for 60.' I can't believe it. Sixty bucks is too much for just one student ticket."

She said that she guessed the caller was a student-scalper.

Although she put up a flier in Burge also, Kelly Engbreton, a pharmacy major at the UI, was lucky enough to purchase a student ticket for $10 from a friend who can't go to the game. When she received a phone call and somebody offered her a $35 student ticket, she laughed.

"That's ridiculous," she said.

But paying $35 for a ticket for the Miami game may not sound so ridiculous to some. One UI student, who was interviewed under condition of anonymity, said he has received about 50 phone calls a day since putting classified ads in local newspapers and hanging up six fliers in residence halls.

His price is $40 for a student ticket and $110 for a pair of non-student tickets, and he has sold 40 tickets so far. He managed to collect the tickets through a lot of people he knew, he said. He paid $35 apiece for student tickets and up to $40 for a non-student ticket.

He said he gets a variety of reactions when he quotes his price.

"Some hang up with a laugh and others are quite happy to find a ticket since they're so hard to find, especially non-student tickets which students are buying for their parents or whoever," he said. "The highest tickets I sold were a pair of $150 non-student tickets to students seeking them for their parents."

Asked how much money he has made so far, he said "I don't really have a figure. I mean a lot."

A 5-minute phone interview with him was interrupted twice by people calling for the tickets. "That's how fast it came in. It's just continuous," he said.

Though the UI Ticket Office is glad to sell all the tickets out, it frowns at people scalping tickets.

"We don't appreciate it," Pam Finck, an assistant manager of the UI Ticket Office said. "We wish we could accommodate all of the people who want tickets, but we can't. It's nice to be sold out; on the other hand there is no other way for us to try to force people, who are willing to pay for more than face value, to buy tickets from scalpers."

Abducted Mich. woman last seen near Tiffin

Associated Press

CEDAR RAPIDS — Iowa authorities are helping Michigan officials investigate the apparent abduction of a woman who was seen Thursday morning on Interstate 80.

The son of Toni Lynne Mount, 45, said that his mother was abducted Wednesday night in the Kalamazoo, Mich., area by her former boyfriend, officials at the Kalamazoo police department said.

The Kalamazoo police department said it received a phone call from a woman at a rest stop near Tiffin in Johnson County.

The woman said she had been handed a note from Mount saying she had been kidnapped and to contact Kalamazoo police.

Donations for hurricane victims to be accepted

The money will be given to the Red Cross.

The Daily Iowan

Monetary donations for assisting south Florida's hurricane disaster victims will be accepted by the UI at all gates of Kinnick Stadium at Saturday's football game with Miami.

The money will be presented to the American Red Cross.

"I feel so sorry for those people down in that area," UI head football coach Hayden Fry said. "If everybody that came gave a dollar, that would be $70,000, and that would be a lot of money."

Fry added that there would be a private contribution from the football players and coaching staff.

Hurricane Andrew, which ravaged southern Florida Aug. 24, has left thousands homeless and in need of basic necessities.

President George Bush has promised federal aid to cover 100 percent of public property renovations.

Laser scientist leaves UI for Tulane

Chris Pothoven
The Daily Iowan

A UI professor and researcher originally hired to be part of the laser program in the Iowa Advanced Technology Laboratories has left the UI for a position at Tulane University in New Orleans, La.

Susan Allen, a UI chemistry and electrical and computer engineering professor who was hired in 1987 to be a part of the laser science and engineering program, became the vice president for research and dean of the graduate school at Tulane in August.

Although Allen is officially on leave from the UI, she said she has no plans to return. Taking a leave of absence was the easiest way take care of her students and research which still remain at the UI, she said.

Most of the students in her research group will move to New Orleans in December, Allen said, but will still receive their degrees from the UI.

Her leave of absence will continue until all the students graduate, she said.

Although the Tech Labs has had a history of controversy and cutbacks since it was proposed by former UI President James O. Freedman in 1986 as a world-class laser center which would bring the UI to the forefront of laser research, Allen said the problems had nothing to do with her leave.

"The problems were disappointing, but professionally the University of Iowa was very good for me so I had no complaints in that regard," she said. "I would not have gotten this position without the opportunities I had at Iowa."

"It was just a career move," said

Ann Rhodes, vice president for university relations. "She wanted to get into administration."

Leo Davis, an associate vice president for academic affairs who was responsible for hiring Allen, said she was quite pleased with the laser program.

"She never once expressed any dissatisfaction with the center," he said. "She was very happy with its progress."

He said Allen's move should not affect research in the laser program.

"Everything she was doing is still in place. There won't be any impact, at least for this year," Davis said.

There are still 12 scientists and engineers who will be moving into the Tech Labs as part of the laser technology program, Davis said.

BOARD OF SUPERVISORS

Funding for services approved

The allocations will be used to help those with disabilities or mental-health problems.

Victoria Forlini
The Daily Iowan

The Johnson County Board of Supervisors voted unanimously to approve allocations for community services in Johnson County at a formal meeting Thursday.

The funds have been allocated for Mental Health/Mental Retardation/Developmental Disabilities/Brain Injury Community Services and are for the 1993 fiscal year.

Supervisor Richard Myers commended the Planning Council, which prioritized the allocations, on "a very good job" of evaluating and deciding which programs would receive funding.

The allocations, which total over $400,000, will be used to help the population of Johnson County with disabilities or mental-health problems.

The funds will go to programs such as the Association of Retarded Citizens, mental-health centers, Goodwill Industries, supported-living projects and other social services.

Human Services Coordinator Marge Penney said earlier in the week that all of the proposed programs deserved funding.

"The process was agonizing," said

Penney, referring to the task of the Planning Council to decide which programs should be recommended for funding and which should not.

Four of the 22 programs requesting funding received no allocations.

In other business, the board decided to hire the National By-Products Company to remove deer carcasses from Johnson County roads at a cost of $40 to $45 a call.

Until recently, deer carcasses would be picked up and disposed of free-of-charge by the state. Seventy-five to 100 deer carcasses are reported every year in Johnson County.

"This is another example by the Department of Natural Resources passing back obligations to the counties," said Johnson County supervisor Patricia Meade.

New parking

Early morning parkers are now limited to the upper floors, making more lower-level spaces available for shoppers.

Lynn M. Tefft
The Daily Iowan

"Make more parking available, and they will come" is what area merchants are hoping with a new strategy designed to draw more shoppers to downtown Iowa City businesses. The plan, however, is drawing fire from some local residents.

In response to pleas from the Iowa City Downtown Association, the Old Capitol Merchants Association and other local businesspeople to make more parking available in the downtown area, the Iowa City Parking Systems department has prohibited parking in levels A, B and C of the Capitol Street Ramp from 6-10 a.m. Monday through Friday.

"The goal is to move long-term and all-day parkers to the top of the ramp and leave the bottom open for shoppers," Parking Systems Superintendent Joe Fowler said.

Fowler said the regulation is being implemented on a trial basis and the department has issued over 700 tickets to offenders so far. It will be evaluated for permanent adoption after one month.

Paul Smith, president of the Downtown Association and owner of Austin Burke Clothiers, 116 E. College St., said the association approached the parking department with concerns about the ramp after many merchants reported receiving complaints from

UI RESEARCH

Study: Hoarseness may be early sign of throat cancer

Lesley Kennedy
The Daily Iowan

Unexplained changes in voice quality, including hoarseness lasting more than two weeks, could mean trouble for men over 50, a study by UI researchers shows.

UI Professor Hughlett Morris said the retrospective study found that of 73 patients with throat cancer studied, 75 percent reported hoarseness as an early sign of cancer.

The patients, studied between 1984 and 1987, all had surgical removal of the larynx or voicebox due to cancer, said Morris, a professor of speech pathology and otolaryngology.

Through the study, the researchers found that 73 percent of the patients were male, 40 percent were ages 61-70, and 22 percent of the patients reported combined heavy use of both cigarettes and alcohol.

specialist is the only way to have it done," he said.

One purpose of the study was to find more information about the development of the 8-year-old tracheoesophageal fistula, or TEF, which is arguably the best of all methods for restoring the ability to produce sound for talking, Morris said.

"During the treatment period we use two major methods for restoring the voice — the battery-powered electrolarynx that allows the patient to generate sound at will by using the tongue and teeth, and the TEF," he said.

Morris said the major biologic purpose of the larynx is to "protect the lungs during swallow." The TEF allows voicing without the aid of mechanical devices. A small opening between the windpipe and esophagus is fitted with a one-way valve. When a breathing-hole in the neck is covered, air expelled from the lungs pushes the valve

"The data show that it could be an early indicator of throat cancer."

Hughlett Morris, professor

"A question we always ask the patient is, 'What happened first that made you think that you had a problem?'" Morris said. "That way we can find out some history about the patient and discover the initial complaint."

Morris said that hoarseness or a change in voice quality has previously been seen as an early indicator, but this study is the first time the data have been so clear.

"This leads us to an important health rule," he said. "Any adult, particularly men older than 50, who has a change in voice for more than two weeks that can't be explained should go see an otolaryngologist. The data show that it could be an early indicator of throat cancer."

Morris said that having your throat checked by a family doctor is not enough in this case.

"The best should be done to detect signs of cancer and going to a open and moves out through the esophagus, producing sound.

Morris said two main things were learned about the TEF from the study.

"We learned that the new TEF was successful in 75 percent of the patients in which it was tried, which is a high enough number to encourage us to continue using it. We also learned that about half of the patients were also still using the electrolarynx from time to time."

Morris attributes this to the device's simplicity.

"Initially, patients don't like the sounds of the electrolarynx because it sounds mechanical, like a robot. But patients are able to get very proficient at it fairly quickly. TEF is a little more complicated because it requires some care. For instance, you must be sure it fits properly and you have to get new ones periodically," he said.

ECONOMY

Census Bureau: 1 out of 10 Iowans report earnings below poverty level

According to the bureau, the three-year average poverty rate in Iowa was 10.1 percent. The South had the highest rate in the country at 16 percent.

Associated Press

DES MOINES — About one in 10 Iowans is poor, the Census Bureau reported Thursday.

The government estimated poor Iowans accounted for 9.6 percent of the state's population in 1991, compared with 10.4 percent in 1990 and 10.3 percent in 1989. But because the state figures are subject to statistical sampling errors, it would be inaccurate to say the report confirmed a decline in Iowa's poverty rate while the national rate is rising, Census Bureau analysts said.

The same report said the national poverty rate rose last year to 14.2 percent of the population, from 13.5 percent the year before, topping 14 percent for the first time since 1985.

The national figures are subject to a sampling error of plus or minus

0.2 percentage points, much smaller than the errors possible in statewide estimates. For example, the 1991 Iowa figures are subject to a sampling error of plus or minus 1.5 points, something that could make the poverty rate as high as 11.1 percent or as low as 8.1 percent.

The Census Bureau also estimated the three-year average poverty rate in Iowa was 10.1 percent, with a sampling error of 1.1 percentage points.

The government defines a poor person as someone whose income is below the national poverty line. For a family of four in 1991, the poverty line was $13,924. For someone living alone, the line was $6,932.

The South had the highest poverty rate at 16 percent. Poverty rates for other regions were the Northeast, 12.2 percent; Midwest, 13.2 percent; and West, 14.3 percent.

In neighboring states, the 1991 poverty rates were 13.5 percent in Illinois, 14.8 percent in Missouri, 12.3 percent in Kansas, 9.5 percent in Nebraska, 14 percent in South Dakota, 12.9 percent in Minnesota and 9.9 percent in Wisconsin.

The state with the highest poverty rate was Mississippi, at 23.7 percent, while New Hampshire had the lowest, 7.3 percent.

Improved New parking plan paying off for merchants

Early morning parkers are now limited to the upper floors, making more lower-level spaces available for shoppers.

Lynn M. Tefft
The Daily Iowan

"Make more parking available, and they will come" is what area merchants are hoping with a new strategy designed to draw more shoppers to downtown Iowa City businesses. The plan, however, is drawing fire from some local residents.

In response to pleas from the Iowa City Downtown Association, the Old Capitol Merchants Association and other local businesspeople to make more parking available in the downtown area, the Iowa City Parking Systems department has prohibited parking in levels A, B and C of the Capitol Street Ramp from 6-10 a.m. Monday through Friday.

"The goal is to move long-term and all-day parkers to the top of the ramp and leave the bottom open for shoppers," Parking Systems Superintendent Joe Fowler said.

Fowler said the regulation is being implemented on a trial basis and the department has issued over 700 tickets to offenders so far. It will be evaluated for permanent adoption after one month.

Paul Smith, president of the Downtown Association and owner of Austin Burke Clothiers, 116 E. College St., said the association approached the parking department with concerns about the ramp after many merchants reported receiving complaints from customers who spend as long as 30 minutes finding a place to park. This inconvenience, the businesspeople said, was caused by long-term parkers filling the lower levels of the ramp before the mall even opened its doors in the morning.

Smith said he sees the new regulation as beneficial for downtown businesses and the shoppers they serve.

"It just allows for more ease of parking all through the day," Smith said. "It's working out great — you have a lot easier time finding parking in that ramp now." Phil Shive, owner of Sweets and Treats in the Old Capitol Center the Old Capitol Center, said that students and other long-term parkers should not feel discriminated against. She said the goal is not to prohibit them from using the ramp completely, but rather move them to the upper levels and leave the bottom open for shoppers who need to park there for shorter periods of time.

"The city is simply trying to respond to the needs of the community, especially the downtown community," she said.

Castle said that about a third of the ramp spaces are held until 10 a.m., and that there is still substantial long-term parking available.

keep students and faculty out of Old Capitol Center."

The complaints have continued to roll in, however. Cory Connors, a cashier in the ramp, said she has received a steady flow of grievances since the regulation went into effect.

"I think people just don't want to be told where to park," said Connors, who refers unhappy parkers to the parking department.

Some businesses in the Old Capitol Center do open before 10 a.m., but Jane O'Brien, manager of Cookies and More, said the regulation hasn't been in effect long enough for her to notice any changes in the number of customers she serves.

"Of course we'd like to keep things as open as possible, but we'll support whatever's best for the majority," she said.

Mary Boxa, manager of the Old Capitol Deli, which opens before 10 a.m., said she opposed the regulation when it first went into effect but now sees the benefits.

"At first impression, I thought it was bad. But after thinking about it, I realize most of our customers come in after 10 and it's probably to our advantage to have those spaces open."

Boxa said she feels, however, that a compromise to close only the two lowest levels of the ramp, might be just as beneficial and still take those early opening businesses into consideration.

City Councilor William Ambrisco said he has received both positive and negative input about the regulation and urges people to give it a chance.

"Let's have more patience with the parking department," he said at Tuesday night's council meeting. "They are monitoring the regulation on a weekly basis."

"The goal is to move long-term and all-day parkers to the top of the ramp and leave the bottom open for shoppers."

Joe Fowler, parking systems superintendent and a member of the parking committee of the Downtown Association, said he used to hear customer complaints about parking on a regular basis.

"I feel it's working," said Shive, who worked with the city to draft the plan. "There's more space available now for shoppers after 10 a.m."

Some Iowa Citizens, however, are not as thrilled with the regulation. "The businesses are totally discriminating against the students — I think they're forgetting who their customers really are," Brianna Latko, a UI senior who sometimes uses the ramp to park before early morning classes, said.

Deirdre Castle, general manager of "The plan seems to be working out fine, and customers are expressing gratitude about having a place to park," she said.

Keeping shoppers in Iowa City has been a key advantage of the new regulation, according to JC Penney Manager Daryl Marshall.

"In the past you could go out into the ramp at 1 p.m. and there wasn't a parking place to be had," Marshall said. "We were driving our customers away, right up 380 to Cedar Rapids."

Marshall echoed Castle's sentiments about not wanting to discriminate against students.

"We do certainly need and appreciate their business," he said. "The regulation was not an attempt to

Johnson County to try man on drug-related charges

Journal entries of a 17-year-old implicate him as the man who dealt her LSD which could have contributed to her death.

Timothy Connors
The Daily Iowan

An Iowa City man, who allegedly sold LSD to 17-year-old Stacy Thomas and her friend five days before Thomas plunged to her death from the top of the Dubuque Street parking ramp, will go to trial for drug-related charges Sept. 21.

Gary Wheeler is charged with possession and intent to deliver LSD, possession of marijuana and violation of the Drug Tax Act. Wheeler was arrested June 11 following a police search of his apartment.

Court documents indicate that it's not clear whether Thomas' June 1 fall was an accident or a suicide.

According to court documents, Iowa City Police Officer Michael Brotherton stated "investigation indicated that Thomas was high on LSD when she willingly fell off the top of the parking ramp."

In her journal entries, Thomas indicated she had given the LSD acquired from Gary Wheeler to her friend on June 1 and that she had been contemplating suicide.

A confidential informant who is an admitted drug user identified Wheeler to investigators as the person who dealt the LSD to Thomas and her friend.

Johnson County Attorney Dan Tiffany said no charges exist against Wheeler related to Thomas' death because, "so far we don't have sufficient evidence to tie him to that."

According to court documents,

Wheeler had been under investigation before Thomas' death. Wheeler allegedly sold LSD to an undercover police officer on March 6, nearly three months before his alleged transaction with Thomas and her friend.

Charges against Wheeler for the alleged March 6 sale have been dropped because Wheeler's defense demanded the identity of an undercover informant present at the alleged transaction be revealed. The police department refused, honoring a deal to protect the informant's identity.

Wheeler's attorney refused to comment on the case Thursday.

FOREIGN RELATIONS

Council brings international speakers to IC

Jude Sunderbruch
The Daily Iowan

As diners finish off their meal in a room festooned with rows of colorful flags from around the world, a speaker from Africa addresses the audience about problems in her homeland.

While the scene could be at the United Nations in New York or a conference in Geneva, Switzerland, it might also be the East Room of the University Athletic Club if the Iowa City Foreign Relations Council happens to be meeting that day.

Celebrating its 10th anniversary this year, the council begins its new season of international speakers Friday with a speech by Rep. Jim Leach, R-Davenport. His topic will be a congressional review of foreign policy.

The council was created by two bankers and an attorney in 1982 who felt Iowa City lacked a proper venue for speakers on international affairs, according to Tom Baldrige, the council's current director.

"We started with the idea of one luncheon and one brown-bag seminar per month," Baldrige said.

He said that over the years this format has changed to a more flexible schedule where up to four speakers a month come and speak to members on a variety of topics from arms control in the Middle East to international environmental issues.

"We meet when it's convenient for speakers," Baldrige said. "That means if two speakers come in a successive week, we respond or make a choice."

John Chadima, the newest addition to the council's governing board and a member for five years, said the Iowa City Foreign Relations Council offers members a valuable perspective on international affairs to which most people don't get the chance to be exposed.

"It's really gaining hands-on insight instead of having it filtered through other news media," he said.

Gertrud Champe, a fellow board member and the director of the UI's Translation Laboratory, echoed that sentiment.

"I would say that in general the news media in this country give rather superficial coverage of world events," she said. "Going to ICFC meetings gives us more information about any given situation."

The council has witnessed steady growth in its numbers over the past several years, according to Baldrige. He said that currently there are about 240 members in the organization, and normally there are about 70 people in attendance for each speaker.

"I think the most we ever had was 167," Baldrige said. Mike Dukakis, former Democratic presidential candidate, addressed the council on that occasion, he said.

During election years, the non-partisan council is careful to invite speakers from both parties, Baldrige said. For that reason Jan Zonneveld, a contender for the 1st District seat Leach now holds, is also invited to speak Friday.

Despite witnessing growth in the organization, Chadima said he believes there is probably more interest in the community than the council's current size indicates.

"It's a fairly well-kept secret in Iowa City, and I think others would be interested," he said.

Baldrige agreed that more interest probably exists, and added that the council wants to diversify its membership from being dominated by UI-related members.

"What we need to do now is to get the word out to the non-UI members of the community," he said, adding that he hopes the council will be able to maintain a quality program with at least its current numbers.

According to Baldrige, nearly every week for the next two months the council will feature a different speaker from all corners of the globe, and new members are encouraged to attend.

Speeches are normally aired at a later date on WSUI AM 910.

ACT expansion plan discussed at meeting

The forum gave locals a chance to air their views.

Lynn M. Tefft
The Daily Iowan

"We're not opposed to progress" was the cry of area residents, concerned about the proposed closing of Old Dubuque Road where it intersects the American College Testing Program campus in northeast Iowa City, at a public discussion during the meeting of the Iowa City Planning and Zoning Commission Thursday night.

The discussion preceded the commission's vote on its recommendation to the Iowa City City Council on the road closing. ACT has requested the closing as part of a 450,000 square foot expansion to its campus in northeast Iowa City. While the commission's recommendation is not binding, the council will consider it when voting whether to grant ACT's request.

"I don't want to be the guy who is thought of as opposed to progress in Iowa City," said Mike Gatens, who lives and manages a business on Old Dubuque Road. Gatens and others would be forced to use less convenient access points to their homes and businesses if the road is closed.

"We don't oppose the expansion of ACT, just the way they've been doing it," Gatens explained.

Gatens cited ACT's bypassing the commission and presenting its Large Scale Non-Residential Development plan to the council first as an example of ACT not following proper procedure.

"I'm seriously opposed to some actions ACT took," he said, adding that he and neighbor Dean Hunter have been before the commission and the council five times to argue their position.

Iowa City Director of Planning and Community Development Karin Franklin said the expansion of ACT complements the city's comprehensive plan with its growth potential and consistency with the existing labor force. She acknowledged inconvenience to some residents, but stated that the road closing does not deny access to anyone.

Joe Pugh, a legal representative of ACT, disagreed with Gatens, saying that the corporation has properly followed the LSNRD procedure and has fulfilled its responsibilities.

"We're very aware of our impact on our neighbors with our development," he said, after presenting some maps and diagrams outlining ACT's plans.

Other residents and community officials were also present for the discussion. At press time, the commission had yet to vote on its recommendation.

Bush promises future support for ethanol legislation

Sharon Fink
Associated Press

HUMBOLDT, S.D. — President Bush, in corn country to talk about wheat exports, said he could not be surrounded by corn fields without stating his support for ethanol.

"I am a strong supporter of ethanol. We have worked hard to take ethanol to new heights through everything from tax credits to research to new programs for clean fuels," Bush said to strong applause during a speech at a small family farm near Humboldt Wednesday.

The president has been criticized in South Dakota this past week for not speaking out for ethanol in a battle over clean air regulations.

Bush also said Wednesday his administration is working on "a very difficult legal problem facing the White House to make sure ethanol plays a leading role in America's drive for cleaner air and America's drive for great markets, for diverse markets, for corn growers of this country.

"We're going to lick that problem," Bush did not provide details of the legal problem.

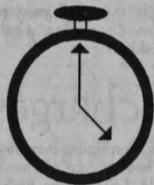

Ethanol supporters blame the president for not pressuring the Environmental Protection Agency into allowing the use of ethanol-blended fuel to meet new clean air requirements. EPA officials have refused to do that.

During a campaign stop in Brandon last week, Senate Republican Leader Bob Dole of Kansas said the president had to announce his support of new ethanol incentives soon or risk political damage.

On Tuesday, South Dakota Democratic Sen. Tom Daschle wrote Bush, urging him to direct the EPA to make sure ethanol will remain a growing industry. Also Tuesday, ethanol supporters held a press conference in Sioux Falls to say Bush should end federal policies that have ethanol production in a stranglehold.

Crime and violence, lower taxes and other issues typically believed to be top on the list of voters' interests in Iowa were surpassed by the concern for Iowa's children, according to a recent report released by the Child and Family Policy Center.

The Child and Family Policy Center, a Des Moines firm interested in research and policies necessary to children and families in Iowa, conducted a public opinion poll among 500 random Iowa registered voters in February to find out how important and recognized Iowa's children's issues are.

"The poll was conducted at a time when the Iowa Legislature was struggling with budget cuts," said Mike Crawford, director of data management at the Child and Family Policy Center. "With upcoming elections, we wanted to

Poll: Kids high priority for Iowans

Molly Spann
The Daily Iowan

Crime and violence, lower taxes and other issues typically believed to be top on the list of voters' interests in Iowa were surpassed by the concern for Iowa's children, according to a recent report released by the Child and Family Policy Center.

The Child and Family Policy Center, a Des Moines firm interested in research and policies necessary to children and families in Iowa, conducted a public opinion poll among 500 random Iowa registered voters in February to find out how important and recognized Iowa's children's issues are.

"The poll was conducted at a time when the Iowa Legislature was struggling with budget cuts," said Mike Crawford, director of data management at the Child and Family Policy Center. "With upcoming elections, we wanted to show politicians where Iowa voters' priorities are."

According to the report, titled "Where Iowa's Children Rate," health and education of children ranked in the polls above taxes, crime and violence, the environment and care for senior citizens. The top area of concern was the economy and jobs, which 48 percent of those polled ranked No. 1 while the health and education of children headed 22 percent of respondents' main concerns.

Crawford said Iowa's children have always been of main concern to Iowa voters. However, with the upcoming elections and the constant talk between politicians about family values, the concern for children is perhaps raised in the minds of voters, he said.

"In some people's minds, especially those with children, they think their child's education is not as good as they had," Crawford said. "I think we feel more jeopardized. One reason for this may be the developing number of single-parent families and the increase in child neglect and child abuse."

When those polled were asked whether they felt children had a rougher time or an easier time growing up than they did, 75 percent said children today have a rougher time.

Crawford also added that he believes Iowa does well in terms of child care, compared to other states. However, he said the quality of child care in Iowa was diminishing, comparing Iowa to being on top of the sinking Titanic.

Dr. Brenda Cruikshank, a pediatrician with the Department of Pediatrics at the UI Hospitals and Clinics, said that in terms of health care, there is an increasing problem with accessibility. She said that with cutbacks in the Department of Human Services, families needing care have nowhere to turn.

Study: Variety key to retail success

Jude Sunderbruch
The Daily Iowan

America's department stores are headed into troubled waters if they continue to focus almost entirely on apparel goods at the expense of more diversified offerings, according to a study published this summer by UI marketing Professor Tom Gruca.

In "Department Stores and Detroit: Is it Déjà Vu All Over Again?", Gruca and his co-author, Charles Schewe of the University of Massachusetts, draw parallels between the problems of the U.S. auto industry and the difficulties of America's department stores.

"Stores are evaluated on their ability to maximize dollars sold per square foot, and things like electronics, appliances and hardware have relatively low dollars per square foot, per year," Gruca said.

This has led many retailers to concentrate almost entirely on fashion apparel, a market which can either create large profits or lots of red ink, according to Gruca.

He said that by abandoning hard goods, which offer a lower sales per square foot ratio, retailers are losing out on long-term revenues which these products help create in the form of service arrangements and follow-up sales.

Daryl Marshall, manager of JC Penney in the Old Capitol Center, said his store focuses on apparel due to limited space and because, at a nationwide level, JC Penney has decided to concentrate on clothing sales.

Marshall noted, however, that larger stores, such as the one in Cedar Rapids, can also feature furniture and other household items.

"Our roots were developed in the apparel portion of the business," he said. "When we delved into other areas, we weren't as successful."

While this may be true in some cases, Gruca said he believes more and more department stores will go out of business as consumers, sick of becoming slaves to fashion, turn to direct marketers and other vendors of classic clothes that don't go out of style every few months.

Marshall said he thinks such a shake-out of bankrupt stores, such as the Macy's chain, will be good for the industry as a whole, and is indicative of what is happening across the whole spectrum of business in the United States.

"Probably in the long run it's good for retailing and other industries to cut some of that waste out," Marshall said.

Gruca offered some solutions for the marketers in his report. These include taking account of demographic trends in the United States, as well offering clothes that fit the average American.

Armed man holds Kmart customers captive

The shotgun-wielding man was believed to be upset over a domestic dispute.

Associated Press

SHIPPENSBURG, Pa. — A man with a shotgun took 24 people hostage today during a five-hour standoff inside a Kmart store. About 30 other people escaped out a back door before he surrendered, witnesses said. Fifteen people were released by mid-afternoon, and the man — who police identified as Larry Fry, 28, of Carlisle, Pa., — walked out of the store at about 3 p.m. Nine people were still in the store when Fry surrendered, police said.

Eight elderly people, a pregnant woman and a man with heart trouble were among those released earlier. No injuries were reported.

Police contacted Fry by calling the store. State police Sgt. Richard Morris said he made no demands and was "cooperative" during the incident.

State Police Trooper Karen Dutrow said Fry was believed to be upset over a domestic dispute.

Police said Fry could face such charges as kidnapping, reckless endangerment and making terroristic threats.

The gunman entered the store about 9:30 a.m., said Kmart employee Karen Weagley. The other stores in the shopping plaza were evacuated.

Weagley said the man went to the sports department and asked to see a 12-gauge shotgun, then took a box of shells off a shelf, loaded the weapon and demanded to see the manager.

The manager immediately announced over the store's public address system that everyone should leave the building, witnesses told the Chambersburg Public Opinion newspaper.

Weagley said the gunman then told the manager to lock the front doors. She said she and about 30 employees and customers escaped out a back door.

Shippensburg, in south-central Pennsylvania, is home to small Shippensburg University.

Larry Fry, 28, of Carlisle, Pa., hits the ground as he is pushed down in a Kmart parking lot following his surrender to police in Shippensburg, Pa., Thursday. Fry held 24 people hostage with a shotgun during a five-hour standoff inside the store. State Police Trooper Karen Dutrow said Fry may have been upset over a dispute with his wife.

MIDEAST TALKS

Israeli delegat by Syrian pe

Ruth S. Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Israel's most implacable enemy has proven unexpectedly, its most accommodating Arab partner in this round of peace talks. So much so, that Israeli negotiators were going home Thursday to seek instructions on how to proceed.

Specifically, Israel's negotiators need guidance on how to fashion a written response to a Syrian proposal — presented this week to Israel's surprise and delight — outlining a peace agreement.

"We have finally started a dialogue, a real negotiation of give and take," said a senior Israeli official. "Until now, it was just a hurrying of accusations," he added, speaking only on condition of anonymity.

Syria, the most powerful of Israel's Arab neighbors, holds the key to progress in Israel's three other sets of negotiations — with the Palestinians, the Jordanians and Lebanon.

And Syria's historic presentation of a peace proposal to Israel presented the Jewish state with hope. But it also reminded Israel of the severe dilemma of deciding whether it could trust the country with which it has fought four times in the past 44 years — trust enough to seriously consider relinquishing captured lands in return for a durable peace.

"We decided to put forward a challenge for peace in order to see the depth of sincerity claimed by the new Israeli government," said Syria's chief negotiator Muwaffiq al-Allaf.

Israeli officials were encouraged by two things — the very fact of a written Syrian proposal for the first time since talks were launched, and the fact that it offered to take into account Israel's security concerns as part of a peace accord.

Israeli negotiators also pointed to two substantive drawbacks: the document still demands that Israel relinquish the strategically located Golan Heights captured in the 1967 Arab-Israeli war, and it fails to specifically say that Syria would sign a peace treaty with the Jewish

Aid plane crashes near Sarajevo

John Pomfret Associated Press

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina — An Italian transport plane crashed Thursday while carrying blankets and other emergency goods to besieged Sarajevo, and a U.N. official said there was no sign that the four crew members survived.

U.N. officials suspended humanitarian flights to the city pending an investigation of the crash. But Fernando del Mundo, a U.N. spokesman in Geneva, Switzerland, said there was no indication the plane had been hit by gunfire.

Four U.S. Marine helicopters came under fire as they searched for the wreckage and were forced to leave the scene, U.N. officials said. The helicopters were not hit and there was no indication of who fired at them.

In Washington, D.C., a Pentagon spokesman released a statement that said two CH-53 rescue craft reported seeing flashes on the ground coming from the muzzles of small arms. It said two Cobra gunships which were low on fuel had earlier broken off from the search.

All four aircraft, which joined the search at the request of the Italian government, returned unharmed to the amphibious assault ship USS Iwo Jima off the Adriatic coast, according to the statement. The Iwo Jima is monitoring compliance with a U.N. trade embargo against Yugoslavia.

The crash of the Italian plane and apparent loss of its four crewmen dampened spirits raised earlier in the day by the arrival of the top U.N. peacekeeping official to discuss the latest agreement on curbing ethnic fighting around Sarajevo.

The official, Marrack Goulding, U.N. undersecretary-general for peacekeeping, expressed his own discouragement over the halting moves toward a peaceful settlement. He said there were no signs of Serb fighters turning heavy weapons over for U.N. supervision as their leader promised Wednesday.

Serb militias ignored similar agreements in the past.

But Goulding said, "I will go on trying to talk as long as I possibly can. . . . You can't expect us to build Rome in a day."

U.N. officials said he would warn both sides to stop fighting and continue a process of lessening hostilities that began last week at peace talks in London, England.

Much of Bosnia-Herzegovina was relatively calm Thursday, but Serb and Muslim forces were reported fighting west of the capital.

An undetermined number of Moslems were reportedly killed in a village between Skender Vak and Travnik in western Herzegovina, and bodies were seen floating down the river Thursday, journalist Sanja Puljiz reported. She said people were fleeing the area.

She spoke by telephone. The conversation ended abruptly as shelling was heard in the background.

The twin-engine Italian air force turboprop went down on a flight to Bosnia's capital from Split, a Croatian port that is serving as the base for the U.N.-organized mercy flights. U.N. officials said there was no sign of life at the crash scene.

Twenty-two planes flew into Sarajevo on Thursday before the operation was halted pending an investigation of the crash. Weather conditions were reported to be good when the plane went down.

It was the first crash involving the airlift, although other planes have been shot at.

"We don't suspect this is the result of belligerent action," del Mundo said.

Study: Kids affected by mom's smoking

Brenda C. Coleman Associated Press

CHICAGO — The more cigarettes a mother smokes, the more behavior problems her children are likely to have, researchers say.

Women who smoke at least a pack a day have children with twice the rate of extreme behavior problems — such as anxiety, disobedience or conflict with others — compared with children of non-smokers, the researchers say.

Refraining from smoking only during pregnancy didn't help, according to the study published in September's Pediatrics journal.

Children of pack-a-day mothers who smoked after the child's birth had problems just as often as children of pack-a-day women who smoked during pregnancy and afterward.

Smoking less than a pack a day also was linked to elevated rates of behavior problems, but the rates were not as high as for heavier smokers, the researchers said. They used data from a Labor Department survey in which parents of 2,256 youngsters ages 4-11 were interviewed. The survey didn't ask about fathers' smoking.

"We are aware of no other study to date that has investigated the relationship between maternal smoking and behavior problems in children," said the authors, led by Dr. Michael Weitzman, associate chair of pediatrics at the University of Rochester School of Medicine in New York state.

"It does not surprise me at all that this association exists," said Dr. Loraine Stern, an associate clinical professor of pediatrics at the University of California-Los Angeles.

Data from biased observers, such as mothers, have problems, she cautioned Thursday by telephone from Newhall, Calif. But she said the researchers appear to have used as reliable methods as possible, given the limitations of the data.

"There's thousands of toxins in cigarette smoke," any one of which could affect behavior in children, she said.

Surprisingly, Weitzman said, smoke exposure rivaled other major stresses on children — very low birthweight, poverty, chronic illness, parents' divorce — in being linked with elevated rates of serious behavior problems.

"When you add these up, they cluster together and multiply each other," Weitzman said.

For example, a boy born weighing less than 3.3 pounds to a mother who smokes at least a pack a day was eight times more likely to show extreme behavior problems than a normal-weight boy of a non-smoking mother, the study said.

If that high-risk boy also had asthma, his likelihood of having extreme behavior problems was 19 times higher than the normal-risk boy, the study said.

Weitzman's team said maternal smoking during and after pregnancy may alter brain structure or function, with long-term effects on children's behavior.

Smoking also might alter maternal behavior in such a way to elicit problems in children, the researchers said. Or the findings could even mean that mothers who smoke are more intolerant of children's behavior and more likely to report it bothersome, they said.

Richard Pyle Associated Press

NEW YORK — Vivian Andersen sat on her stoop, framed by the pockmarks of bullet holes in the stone doorway. Her face was distorted by pain and she was crying.

"It hurts," said Vivian, fingering the cast on her right foot. It was covered with graffiti-like scrawls of friends who had wished her a speedy recovery.

In another setting, she might have been a 17-year-old college kid recovering from a skiing accident. But this was New York City's blighted South Bronx, a university of hard knocks.

Vivian was among 12 people who survived, somehow, a shooting spree of such ferocity and randomness that even the case-hardened cops of the 41st Precinct were amazed.

The attack reflects a relatively new and terrifying fact of life on New York's mean streets: spray shootings, in which bystanders are killed or injured.

Law enforcers say such shootings reflect the increasing availability of illegal automatic weapons and their use by proliferating drug gangs.

"It's a trend," said Assistant Police Chief Thomas Gallagher, the Bronx's top cop. "One thing is that there are a lot of younger people involved and when you're young you think you're immortal and you have little regard for people other than yourself."

Slightly more than 4,000 people in the city have been killed and wounded in gunfire this year, compared with about 3,900 for the same period in 1991, police said. Although no breakdown was available, many were bystanders.

About 1 a.m. on Aug. 26, a van pulled up on Longwood Avenue and let out passengers who, without warning, began spraying the pavement with gunfire.

Some 20 people, hanging out on the sidewalk and fire escapes on a hot night, scattered in panic. Twelve were hit, none fatally, as bullets ricocheted off the street and buildings. After a mad minute, the van sped away.

Israeli delegates surprised by Syrian peace proposal

Ruth S. Hanft
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Israel's most implacable enemy has proven, unexpectedly, its most accommodating Arab partner in this round of peace talks. So much so, that Israeli negotiators were going home Thursday to seek instructions on how to proceed.

Specifically, Israeli negotiators need guidance on how to fashion a written response to a Syrian proposal — presented this week to Israel's surprise and delight — outlining a peace agreement.

"We have finally started a dialogue, a real negotiation of give and take," said a senior Israeli official. "Until now, it was just a hurrying of accusations," he added, speaking only on condition of anonymity.

Syria, the most powerful of Israel's Arab neighbors, holds the key to progress in Israel's three other sets of negotiations — with the Palestinians, the Jordanians and Lebanese.

And Syria's historic presentation of a peace proposal to Israel presented the Jewish state with hope. But it also reminded Israel of the severe dilemma of deciding whether it could trust the country with which it has fought four times in the past 44 years — trust enough to seriously consider relinquishing captured lands in return for a durable peace.

"We decided to put forward a challenge for peace in order to see the depth of sincerity claimed by the new Israeli government," said Syria's chief negotiator Muwaffiq al-Allaf.

Israeli officials were encouraged by two things — the very fact of a written Syrian proposal for the first time since talks were launched, and the fact that it offered to take into account Israel's security concerns as part of a peace accord.

Israeli negotiators also pointed to two substantive drawbacks: the document still demands that Israel relinquish the strategically located Golan Heights captured in the 1967 Arab-Israeli war, and it fails to specifically say that Syria would sign a peace treaty with the Jewish state, in return. "There are alternative expressions but the word treaty... has not been heard," said Itamar Rabinovich, a Syria expert who heads Israel's team.

Arab diplomats say the English text of the Syrian document uses the words "peace agreement" rather than treaty, a term of more general meaning that encompasses Syria's oft-repeated demand for an Israeli withdrawal from all lands captured in 1967 — the West Bank it took from Jordan and the Gaza Strip it won from Egypt.

But these diplomats, who spoke only on condition of anonymity, noted two changes in Syria's approach: Syria no longer was demanding a settlement of the Israeli-Palestinian dispute as a precondition for agreement with Israel, and its proposal included references to such bilateral arrangements as flying each other's flags in the other's capitals.

Syria's al-Allaf confirmed that his country's document did not set preconditions for peace, saying it envisioned a peace agreement being implemented simultaneously with an Israeli withdrawal from the Golan. He noted that such things as flags, embassies and border crossings could come after a peace agreement as part of normalizing relations between the two countries.

Winding up the first 10 days of talks, both sides pointed to agreement on two principles — Syria's demand that talks be based on U.N. resolution 242 which envisages an exchange of Israeli-held territory for peace with the Arabs, and on Israel's demand that a peace arrangement take into account its security needs.

Syrian officials praised what they described as the tone of the Israeli team sent by the left-leaning government that took office last July — although they criticized the substance as no different than that of its hard-line predecessor.

But Israeli officials dismissed the criticism as typical of any negotiation, pointing instead to Syrian actions and words behind closed doors.

Relief effort under way for Nicaraguan victims

Fildelfo Aleman
Associated Press

MANAGUA, Nicaragua — Foreign help poured in by air Thursday for victims of Nicaragua's killer tidal wave. Cargo planes brought food, medicine and construction materials for the residents of the battered Pacific coast.

A Texas National Guard plane arrived with 23,000 pounds of emergency supplies from the U.S. Southern Command in Panama, including water containers and large rolls of heavy plastic for emergency shelter.

A Mexican Air Force C-130 flew in before dawn with five tons of medicines, powdered milk, tents and two seismographs, said Foreign Aid Minister Hernan Barrios. Mexico also sent four small planes for Nicaragua's use in the relief effort.

At least 116 people died in Tuesday night's wave that followed an offshore earthquake; 350 were injured; 150 or more were missing.

Capt. Guillermo Guevara, Nicaragua's civil defense chief, said Thursday, "We could find more dead and injured, the coast is very long with a very dispersed population."

U.S. Embassy spokesman Steve Monblatt said future American aid shipments will depend on the assessment of a U.S. disaster analysis expert, Paul Bell.

Washington also authorized an emergency delivery of $25,000 to President Violeta Chamorro's government to buy food for victims.

In addition, the United States has promised $104 million in aid to Nicaragua, but the money has been frozen because of congressional objections.

A U.S. State Department team is looking into charges, by Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., that American aid is winding up in the hands of the leftist Sandinistas, whom Chamorro defeated in elections in 1990.

Among those offering help were the United Nations, Britain, El Salvador, Guatemala, France and Norway.

Nicaragua's National Emergency Committee said more than 16,000 people suffered property damage. Hundreds of homes were lost.

The International Federation of Red Cross and Red Crescent Societies said it launched an appeal for more than $450,000 to provide help for 1,500 families left homeless.

A refugee from the Nicaraguan Pacific coastal town of Masachapa walks away with a package of food and clothing Thursday morning in San Rafael, about five miles inland from the damaged area.

Some 20 people, hanging out on the sidewalk and fire escapes on a hot night, scattered in panic. Twelve were hit, none fatally, as bullets ricocheted off the street and buildings. After a mad minute, the van sped away.

A week later, police reported no new developments. But authorities believe some drug gang was trying to scare off rivals.

Joshua Burrell was at his front door after closing up the grocery store where he works as a clerk when the shooting started. "I was putting the key in the lock and I heard it and I came running," he said.

He found Vivian bleeding from head and foot wounds, and others lying about with a variety of wounds.

"I got all hyped. There must have been 80 shots fired," Burrell said.

Lillian Santiago heard the noise while in her apartment, third floor rear, and raced downstairs fearing her husband, José Cortés, had been killed. To her relief, he wasn't. "He was the first one to run," she said.

Bullets smashed the window of a second-floor apartment and narrowly missed Leoncio Acosta, 10, and his 8-year-old brother, Frankie, asleep in bunk beds. They couldn't get back to sleep afterward, Frankie said, "so we watched TV."

Leoncio said that that night, he's had "bad dreams, with people getting shot."

One girl was hit in the back and was reported to be paralyzed, but most of the victims suffered remarkably light wounds.

"Let's put it this way — God took a hand," said Santiago.

Because nobody died, some officers suspect the gunmen aimed low on purpose, although Gallagher dismissed that theory as "total speculation."

Police call the once-quiet block of tenement apartment buildings, stores and vacant lots a "known drug location" where 25 felony narcotics arrests were made since October.

The residents, predominantly Puerto Rican, insist that the drug activity mainly involves Dominican gangs from other neighborhoods.

"A guy comes in and gets a soda and walks out," Burrell said. "You can't just say, 'Hey, he's a drug dealer.' You don't point a finger at anybody — if you want to stay alive."

SMOKING POLICY

Choking obedience

UI President Hunter Rawlings set up a committee in early 1991 to "review and evaluate existing university policies on smoking and to recommend any changes deemed necessary." The committee reported back three months later and the effective target date for the report's recommendations was early this summer.

(Excuse me while I take a hit off my Marlboro.)

As of Aug. 24, after a two-month delay, the UI has officially been a smoke-free campus. UI officials warn that they will not be "policing" traditional smoking areas immediately, but they will ask for compliance from smokers. Exceptions to this dogmatic policy will be considered only for specific areas by an ad hoc committee. We will have to wait and see how tenuous this procedure will be.

The oligarchical policy they decided to implement is thus: "All buildings and vehicles, regardless of location, which are owned or leased by The University of Iowa will be entirely smoke-free. This policy will apply to all indoor air space, including individual faculty and administrative offices, and outdoor spaces as designated, specifically the immediate air around fresh air intakes."

The committee's justification for proposing and enacting such an omnipotent policy is that in their eyes, the university is "responsible for providing faculty, staff, and students" (notice, once again the third-class status of students) "with a safe environment in which to work and study." Okay, fine. However, the policy goes on to say that the university, as a public institution, has a duty to promote good health within the university community.

Yeah, right. We might not be able to inhale toxic tobacco smoke on campus any longer, but we can go down to the Union and fill up on onion rings, which look like they're fried in liver bile, potato chips chock full of fat, Suzie Q's with enough sugar to make us diabetic, hamburgers glistening with cholesterol, and drink enough alcohol to drown a whale. Or we could get a job burning radioactive dog carcasses. Even better, we could work at the Physical Plant and, within 10 or 20 years, be sterile because of poor insulation around some pipe.

This is a hypocritical, self-righteous policy that does not need to be implemented in a public institution. If smokers want to kill themselves slowly, let them. True, smoking does bother others, but by banning it outright, the university is castrating those of us who enjoy a good smoke. If push comes to shove and those of us who smoke begin paying outlandish fines for lighting up on campus, I think we will have to resort to civil disobedience — like holding a "smoke-in" at the Union. We could choke them with our displeasure.

Put that in your pipe and smoke it.

CAMPAIGN '92

Give 'em hell, George?

Listening to the war of words waged during the course of this presidential election process, one must pause and wonder what candidates intend when they compare themselves with former presidents. It is especially interesting to consider incumbent Republican George Bush and his likening of himself to Harry S. Truman. Candidates have always sought to compare themselves with former greats, favorably if possible, but it is asking too much for the American electorate to accept this bit of crass political showmanship. Give-'em-hell Harry was a Democrat.

Bush was preceded at the Republican National Convention by a film intended to portray him as a strong, decisive leader. The voice-over heralded the virtues of a strong executive as the images of Thomas Jefferson, Franklin Roosevelt, Harry Truman, and John Kennedy were interspersed with Abe Lincoln, Calvin Coolidge, Dwight Eisenhower and Ronald Reagan, among others.

How could someone blame the opposition party for all our current problems and at the same time, with a straight face, attempt to brazenly expropriate the good will so many Americans hold for that party and its leaders? George Bush is either so foolish as to believe that he could be the heir to the gains brought through Democratic leadership, or he is so ill-liberal as to think that the American people are ignorant and boorish enough to believe him.

Harry Truman was known as a decisive and principled man whose understanding of the presidency was summed up in the sign on his desk which read, "The Buck Stops Here." Perhaps Bush only seeks a set of principles of his own and at this late stage in both his life and in his term he has turned to the Democratic Party. Many were turned off by the exclusionary and regressive speeches of Pat Buchanan, Pat Robertson, Phil Gramm and others; why should Bush not have been equally appalled? Jewish Republicans such as Mary Fisher (the woman who spoke about AIDS) and her father Mel, must have been surprised to learn that there have been only 2,000 years of Judeo-Christian tradition.

Ironically, George Bush's running mate attempted to do the very same thing four years ago. J. Danforth Quayle tried to sell himself to us as another John F. Kennedy during a debate with Sen. Lloyd Bentsen. Quayle implied that he had the same energy, hope, intelligence and commitment to progress, but was quickly corrected by the senator from Texas.

George Bush, this country has known Democrats. Democrats have been good friends to this country. George Bush, you are no Democrat.

Remember when grade-school teachers used to hand out papers for the kids who were "only or oldest"? This one's for the oldests.

Little Bro recently embarked on his freshman year of life. Unlike his two big sisters, all of his stuff fit in ONE van load and he even managed room to spare for Grandma's surplus produce. Yes, it's true — they just don't sell potatoes like these in the big city; better take as many as you can.

He and Dad did the macho moving tour from Champaign, Ill., to Minneapolis, Minn., about a month ago. While there, Dad gave his opinion of the new apartment ("A hell of a lot nicer than anything YOU have ever lived in") and went out with him and bought a nice new-ish dining room set.

Little Bro has since been decorating the walls with his numerous posters and bong letters from Esquire's editorial department. ("It's so cool, Mandy. Everything in my bathroom matches my Clash poster. It's all black, white and red. I hung a red towel in the middle of the rack. It's so cool.")

Not to be outdone in the art of towel decor, I volunteered my critiquing services a couple of weeks ago and crossed the mighty wagon trail from Iowa City to the "Mini-Apple."

Along the side of the road I saw the markings of the countless other Iowa Citians who have made the trek a legend. It seems people who move from here initially know only three directions on their compasses — these read Seattle, New York and Minneapolis. All three of them are solid choices and not to be scoffed at, but I find the strong magnetic attraction peculiar.

I digress. Eventually I pull up to the modest brownstone apartment building in an area my brother calls "not so good." Anyone can tell you, whether their magnetic pull has taken them to New York or not, that there is no such thing as a "bad" neighborhood in Minneapolis.

Late night drug stores aside, the place has a quaint charm. The streets are lined with gingkos and air-efficient cars and every other window has a fan or a flower box. Little Bro managed to find a first apartment with both a front and back door that work, as well as usable porch space and regular garbage pickup. His sisters are regularly reminded that they never did this well when they started out.

Once settled in my temporary digs, I pick up my brother's phone for the all important call — to our other sister.

"What's the verdict?" she asks with fear in her voice.

"It's nice," I say conspiratorily. "Really nice." "Cut it out," cries Little Bro, still breathing heavy from bringing up my luggage.

"How nice?" asks Sis.

"Very picturesque," I say. "The bathtub is in his bedroom and he's got a Venetian blind and all of his girlfriend's plants on the windowsill behind it. I'd like to photograph him playing his saxophone in it."

"Très artsy."

"Thank you."

"What did she say?" inquires Little Bro.

"Mind your own beeswax and get me a mineral water. I've been driving all day."

"Get it yourself."

"I don't have to. I'm your guest, remember?"

"You tell him, Mandy," says Sis. "How's the table Mom was gushing about?"

"It's okay. Wood, glass and brass, not my style, but okay. He's got all his stuff spread out on it. Let's see, Spy magazine, Mother Jones magazine, Utne Reader. Hey! He's even got rain-forest checks."

"Stop going through my stuff!" (from the kitchen)

"I don't believe this," says Sis. "He gets new furniture and magazine subscriptions and I get the same stuff I've been looking at since I was two years old."

"Tell me about it," I say between sips of water. "Hey," I pause. "When did you get these new drinking glasses?"

By now some of you may be saying, "How rude of you!"

Au contraire, mon frère. As older sisters, it is my sister's and my duty to make our little brother's life a living female hell.

Little Bro will never have the difficulties I've witnessed in so many male only children or big brothers. He'll never shake his head slowly and say, "Ugh. Women." He'll never leave the seat up. He'll never get into an argument with a woman without first checking the bathroom wastebasket, the M&Ms supply and a calendar.

In many ways, by being such juvenile harpies, we've simplified his life with the opposite sex and blessed nubile young women he encounters throughout the rest of his life with his divine understanding.

Sure, Mom and Dad like to think it's because they've had so much practice and patience with their first two offspring that the last one has turned out so well, but we all know better. I'm sure it also helps that he doesn't have to set his table with the same china we all used to fight over when it came time to wash and clear, either.

This latest rash of sisterly domination was just my sister's and my way of showing Little Bro who's really in control.

He may THINK he's in a brand-new city with a brand-new table and a brand-new life but behind every successful man there's a bossy big sister, or two.

Why don't you call her and thank her?

A sorry saga: Lavender Hill Mob vs. IRS

Sometimes, even though we love America, with its amber waves of purple mounted majesties fruiting all over the plains, we get a little ticked off at our government. Sometimes we find ourselves muttering: "All the government ever seems to do is suck up our hard-earned money and spew it out on projects such as the V-22 Osprey military aircraft, which the Pentagon doesn't even WANT, and which tends to crash, but which Congress has fought to spend millions on anyway, because this will help the re-election efforts of certain congresspersons, who would cheerfully vote to spend millions on a program to develop a working artificial hemorrhoid, as long as the money would be spent in their districts."

government action. I got this story from one of the men, Al Oliver, a retired Navy chaplain. In fact, all 10 are retirees (or, in Al Oliver's words, "chronologically disadvantaged").

The men live in the Azalea Trace retirement center in Pensacola, Fla. For years they've gathered together every morning to drink coffee and talk. In 1988, they formed a pact: Each would buy a Florida lottery ticket every week, and if anybody won, they'd all split the money. They called themselves the Lavender Hill Mob, and stamped that name on their lottery tickets.

For three years they won nothing. Then, in 1991, one of their tickets had five out of six winning numbers, for a prize of $4,156. Oliver took the ticket to the state lottery official in Pensacola, where he had to fill out Form 5754, indicating who was to get the money. He wrote down "Lavender Hill Mob."

A while later, he got the form back from the state, along with a letter stating that the Lavender Hill Mob was a partnership and could not be paid until it obtained an Employer Identification Number, or EIN, from (ominous music starts here) ... the Internal Revenue Service.

At this point you readers are like an audience watching the scene in a horror movie wherein the woman trapped in the house at night is about to go down into the basement. "NO! NO!" you're shouting to Al Oliver. "Don't get involved with the IRS! Better to just throw the ticket away!"

But Oliver went to an IRS office and applied for the EIN by filling out Form SS-4. "I had to list everything on all 10 of us except, I believe, our cholesterol count," he recalls. The IRS then gave him the EIN, which he sent along with Form 5754 to the state lottery, which sent him the check, which he took to the bank which, after balking a little, finally gave him 10 cashier's checks for the Lavender Hill Mob members.

Now you're thinking, "Okay, so it was an annoying bureaucratic hassle, but everything turned out fine."

Please try not to be such a weinerhead. Of COURSE everything did not turn out fine. In February, Oliver began receiving notices from the IRS demanding to know where exactly the hell were Lavender Hill Mob's 1065 forms showing partnership income for 1989, 1990 and 1991. So Oliver went to his CPA, who filled out the forms with zeros and sent them in.

Of course this only angered the IRS, because here the Lavender Hill Mob was just now getting around to filing forms for as far back as 1989, which means these forms were LATE. You can't allow that kind of flagrant disrespect for the law. You let the Mob members slide on that, and the next thing you know, they're selling crack on the shuffleboard court.

So in June the IRS notified the Mob members that, for failing to file their 1989 Form 1065 on time, they owed a penalty of $2,500. Oliver's CPA, who is not working for free, wrote a letter to the IRS attempting to explain everything. Then in July, the Mobsters got another notice, informing them that they owed $2,500 PLUS $19.20 in interest charges, which will, of course, continue to mount. The notice stated that the government may file a tax lien against the Mobsters, and added "WE MUST ALSO CONSIDER TAKING YOUR WAGES, PROPERTY OR OTHER ASSETS."

That's where it stood. I had heard from Oliver. Since his whole thing is obviously a simple matter of understanding, we can safely assume that it will never be resolved. The wisest course for the Mobsters would be to turn all their worldly goods over to the government right now. Because if they keep attempting to file the correct form, they're going to wind up in serious trouble, fleeing through the swamps around Pensacola, pursued by airborne IRS agents in the new V-22 Osprey, suspended via steel cables from some aircraft that can actually fly.

Poll: Majority of Brazilians want Collor to resign

1 BRASILIA, Brazil (AP) — A polling agency run by a confidante of President Fernando Collor de Mello indicates more than half of Brazilians surveyed want the scandal-plagued president to quit, according to results released this week. Collor has been accused of illegally receiving millions of dollars and a congressional committee last week recommended he be impeached. The poll by the IBOPE institute, which appeared in major newspapers, found 69 percent of those questioned didn't trust Collor and 59 percent thought he should quit. Argentina's government again to press Falklands' sovereignty claim

2 BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — The government will press its case for sovereignty over the Falkland Islands next week at the Interparliamentary Union meeting in Stockholm, Sweden, Sen. Eduardo Menem said Monday. The aim is to pressure Britain, which rules the remote South Atlantic territory over which the two nations went to war in 1982, to "sit at a table at which the issue of sovereignty is discussed," Menem said in an interview. The senator, who is the brother of President Carlos Menem, said he is optimistic that Britain eventually "will have to accept that the world conscience will not accept situations of colonialization." The Interparliamentary Union is a group of legislators from many nations. Their recommendations are non-binding. The six-day meeting in Sweden is set to begin Sept. 7.

The continued presence of the apes has been threatened from time to time, but they always survived. These days, the population is growing. During World War II, Winston Churchill ordered that the number of apes on the Rock not be allowed to drop below 24, no matter what the cost. Now, for the first time anyone can remember, there are more than 100. By the end of this year's breeding season, the number may reach 120. The animals are not really apes, but tailless monkeys of the genus Macaca sylvana, once common throughout Europe and North Africa. Barbary apes have lived on Gibraltar since Berbers settled it in the eighth century, surviving countless battles between the Spanish and the Moors, and later between the British and Spanish.

Gibraltar's endangered apes holding on to their enclave

3 GIBRALTAR (AP) — If Spain hopes the Barbary apes will die or leave so it can regain this rocky fortress from Britain, the wait may be a long one. Folklore has it that the British will disappear from the Rock when the apes do. Spain already has waited nearly 300 years, since Britain conquered Gibraltar in 1704, during the War of the Spanish Succession.

Extremists burn down refugee shelter outside Berlin

4 BERLIN, Germany (AP) — In one of the worst episodes of nearly two weeks of attacks on foreign refugees, right-wing extremists firebombed a crowded shelter outside Berlin, burning the building to the ground, police said today. In addition to the fire bombing late Wednesday in Ketzin, 10 miles west of Berlin, attackers broke windows at two refugee shelters in the town of Northeim, police said. No injuries were reported. In Cologne, the country's internal security agency confirmed that three men arrested in recent riots against refugees in the northern city of Rostock once belonged to East Germany's secret police. Vera Wollenberger, a leftist lawmaker from eastern Germany, repeated her long-standing assertion that some members of the once-dreaded Stasi Secret Police hold "key positions" in the rightist extremist organizations.

Russia to abandon restrictive internal passports

5 MOSCOW, Russia (AP) — Russia will abolish the system of internal passports that dictated where citizens could live and travel, the Interior Ministry said today. The passports will be replaced by identity cards that will no longer list an individual's ethnic background, marital status or criminal record, the ITAR-Tass news agency said. Such information is currently required on internal passports, and members of ethnic minorities complain that it is used to discriminate against them. All Russian citizens over the age of 16 must have internal passports. The passports are both identity cards and residence permits, and are required for such things as buying domestic airplane tickets, registering marriages and obtaining public health care. Residence permits date to czarist Russia and were used to control the movement of non-Russians. The system was revived by the Soviet Union in 1932 to stem the flood of impoverished peasants into the cities. Russian lawmaker Mikhail Arutyunov told ITAR-Tass that the new plastic identity cards could be issued in early 1994. He said foreigners living in Russia will receive temporary identity cards that could cost as much as $150 a year.

Faithful dog follows master to prison, waits for his release

6 DHAKA, Bangladesh (AP) — A dog swam three rivers, walked eight miles and then kept a week's vigil outside a jail where his master was imprisoned, a newspaper said today.

When Sohrab Ali was arrested, Ali's dog swam behind the boat that ferried him across the first river to prison, said the Sangbad newspaper. The boatman, trying to drive the dog away, hit him on the head with an oar but he kept swimming. At the prison, the dog waited at the gate until his owner was released from a one-week sentence on Aug. 21, the paper reported. "The dog often used to cry outside the gate, but it would wag its tail in joy when his master would send it half his prison food," the newspaper said. The dog, whose name was not given, barked in joy and licked Ali's feet when he was freed. Ali was jailed for critically wounding a neighbor in a land dispute in his remote village 80 miles northwest of Dhaka, the paper said.

First Chinese private school opens since Communist revolution

7 BEIJING, China (AP) — An educator in northeast China's Heilongjiang province has opened the first private school in China since the Communist revolution, an official report said today. Wang Zhicai, formerly vice president of the public high school in the city of Shuangcheng, invested $442,000 to establish the school, the state-run Xinhua News Agency said. Wang hired 32 teachers, including many retired from public school, and rented classrooms from a local secondary school, the agency said. The school charges 3,300 yuan ($610) for three years of study. The average urban worker would have to invest nearly a year and a half's wages to pay that tuition, but the school has promised refunds if at least 40 percent of its students are not accepted into colleges. After the Communists took control in 1949, Chinese relied on the state for all social services and education was strictly controlled by the government.

Never trust those pigeons!

8 SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — Call it the mystery of the wayward birds. More than 8,000 racing pigeons went astray during a weekend competition, and no one knows what happened to them. Only 80 out of 8,100 birds turned up in Sydney after leaving Saturday from Hay, about 360 miles away in southwestern New South Wales state. The pigeons, worth about $864,000, should have reached Sydney by Monday or Tuesday. "I have had 61 years of experience with racing pigeons, and I have never seen anything like this before," Sam Beggs, the director of the Australian Pigeon Fanciers Association, said Thursday. He said a combination of strong winds, radar interference from the Parkes Observatory near Canberra, distraction from other racing pigeons and shooters' clubs were likely to blame. "I am afraid a lot of them may have been killed by these thugs in the gun clubs," Beggs said. "This is a tragedy for the owners, who become very attached to their birds." He also said some of the pigeons may have been attacked by falcons.

 Department should be placed in charge of disaster relief.

The Maryland Democrat, who heads the Senate Appropriations panel that oversees FEMA, said she was prompted by the federal government's "pathetically sluggish and ill-planned response" in the aftermath of Hurricane Andrew's rampage across Florida and Louisiana.

"It is time for the confusion and chaos to end," she said.

"We have had too many congressional hearings after recent major disasters with FEMA confessing too many 'lessons learned,' while in reality it appears they have learned nothing," she said.

Responding to Mikulski's criticism, the agency noted in a statement that since last Oct. 1 it has responded to 41 presidentially declared disasters and is now working around the clock on Hurricane Andrew, an effort it called "the challenge of the century."

The agency said it has made significant improvements in planning and training for disaster response and recovery over the past two years.

But it said it welcomes "constructive criticism" on its performance from Congress and disaster victims.

Asked if her criticism extends to President Bush, she noted that Bush has asked for an end to the "blame game" in the aftermath of the disaster and said she was willing to join him in that.

But she added that it took Bush 18 months after his administration began to name a FEMA director.

And she noted that a recent study of the agency by the staff of the House Appropriations committee found that FEMA had a far greater ratio of political appointees than most federal agencies.

The House report concluded that FEMA had become a "political dumping ground" for political appointees with no experience in disaster relief. It called the agency "a turkey farm."

FEMA has dismissed the report as "innuendo" and "hallway gossip."

Mikulski said she had no criticism at all for FEMA's professional staff, whom she called "hardworking and dedicated."

But she said she faulted the agency for "a lack of leadership and organization."

Stickney, FEMA's director, said in a memo to all employees that criticism of the agency for its alleged slowness to respond is inaccurate and unjust.

Kids stand with a soldier as they watch an airplane pass overhead spraying for mosquitos Thursday at the tent city area in Homestead, Fla.

Mikulski asked the GAO to:

- Determine the best way for the federal government to preposition disaster relief supplies "for rapid deployment as soon as a disaster passes."

- Recommend how the current "cumbersome" system of damage assistance can be changed.
- Chart a clear chain of command to remove "the existing bottlenecks that now impede the prompt use of federal resources."

- Hadn't yet celebrated your 18th birthday.
- Lived outside the suburbs.
- Hailed from the South.
- Lived alone.

Women were more likely to be poor than men. One woman in six lived in poverty, compared to one man in eight.

Women are especially vulnerable financially when their marriages break up and they're left with the kids. Seventeen percent of families headed by women are poor.

Mrs. Loews, 36, mother of three in Stamford, Conn., fell from middle-class living into poverty when she was separated from her husband last year. She's preparing to send her children back to school.

"I had to buy sneakers for them this week, so I couldn't buy food," she said, asking that her first name not be used.

Her children ask "Why is this happening to us?" and I can't give them an answer," she said. "It's degrading. You're in this position you never thought you'd be in."

Graduating from high school was the surest way to avoid poverty, said Daniel Weinberg, the Census Bureau's housing and household economics chief. "Additional education seems to have the biggest impact on their later earnings. The second thing is to get married and have the spouse work. And if you do those two things, you'll be okay."

Two poor Americans out of five age 15 and older worked. But fewer than one in 10 held a full-time, year-round job.

"A lot of them are underemployed in jobs that pay minimum wage," said Laurel Weir of the National Law Center on Homelessness and Poverty, a Washington issues group. "And it's not enough to live on."

The national minimum wage is $4.25 an hour, or $8,840 a year before taxes.

More than a fourth of the poor lacked health insurance.

"It's sort of a vicious cycle," Weir said. "If there's a health crisis, all their money will go into that. A lot of families end up on the streets because of a health crisis."

Nearly three-fourths received public assistance.

Jacqueline Hopkins, 33, of Raymond, Miss., is a mother of five. The $200-a-week salary of her construction-worker husband, Wilbert, means the family is officially poor by federal standards.

The family gets food stamps, but can't qualify for a welfare check.

Devlin nominated for Lombardi

Iowa center Mike Devlin is among 12 nominees for the Lombardi Award, given annually to college football's top lineman. Devlin is a 6-foot-3, 280-pound senior from Marlton, N.J. He was a third-team All-American last season.

The other offensive players nominated this year are center Mike Compton of West Virginia, tackle Lincoln Kennedy of Washington, tackle Tom Bott of East Carolina, guard Will Shields of Nebraska and guard Aaron Taylor of Notre Dame.

Defensive players nominated are end Eric Curry of Alabama, linebacker Marvin Jones of Florida State, end Rusty Medearis of Miami, tackle Coleman Rudolph of Georgia Tech, end Chris Slade of Virginia and nose guard Jeff Jonina of Purdue.

Four finalists will be chosen in November. The winner will be announced Dec. 3 in Houston.

Navratilova eliminated

NEW YORK — Magdalena Maleeva's line-kissing groundstrokes, an untimely cloudburst, and a touch of age conspired Thursday to hand Martina Navratilova her earliest U.S. Open loss since 1976 — a year after Maleeva was born.

A finalist last year and in 1989, a four-time champion, Navratilova went out 6-4, 0-6, 6-3 in the second round when her last backhand return plunked into the net.

The 17-year-old Maleeva is the youngest of three Bulgarian-born sisters on the women's tour. Navratilova joked that she'll go down in history as one of the few players to lose to all three Maleeva sisters.

"I'm glad she's the last one," she said. "But I beat their mother around 1970. I never lost to their mother."

"She's still a great player," Maleeva said of the 35-year-old Navratilova. "She is my favorite player."

Owners: Vincent should resign

Ronald Blum
Associated Press

ROSEMONT, Ill. — Baseball owners asked commissioner Fay Vincent to resign by an 18-9-1 vote Thursday, saying they no longer had confidence in him.

Following a four-hour meeting at an airport hotel outside Chicago, Toronto Blue Jays president Paul Beeston, who chaired the special session, read the resolution and declined to take questions.

"The major league clubs do not have confidence in the ability of the present commissioner, Fay Vincent, to carry out the responsibilities of the office of the commissioner, and that under his direction it is impossible for baseball to move forward effectively and constructively," the resolution said.

The resolution said those clubs opposing the commissioner would not vote in favor of Vincent's re-election if it is proposed next year. Vincent's 4½-year term runs through March 31, 1994.

"(It is) further resolved, that commissioner Fay Vincent be requested to resign effective immediately and that the commissioner be offered in the event of his immediate resignation a severance agreement consistent with his employment agreement Dec. 13, 1989."

Vincent immediately issued a statement saying he would continue in office.

"I believe strongly that a baseball commissioner should serve a full term as contemplated by the Major League Agreement," he said. "Only then can difficult decisions be made impartially and without fear of political repercussions."

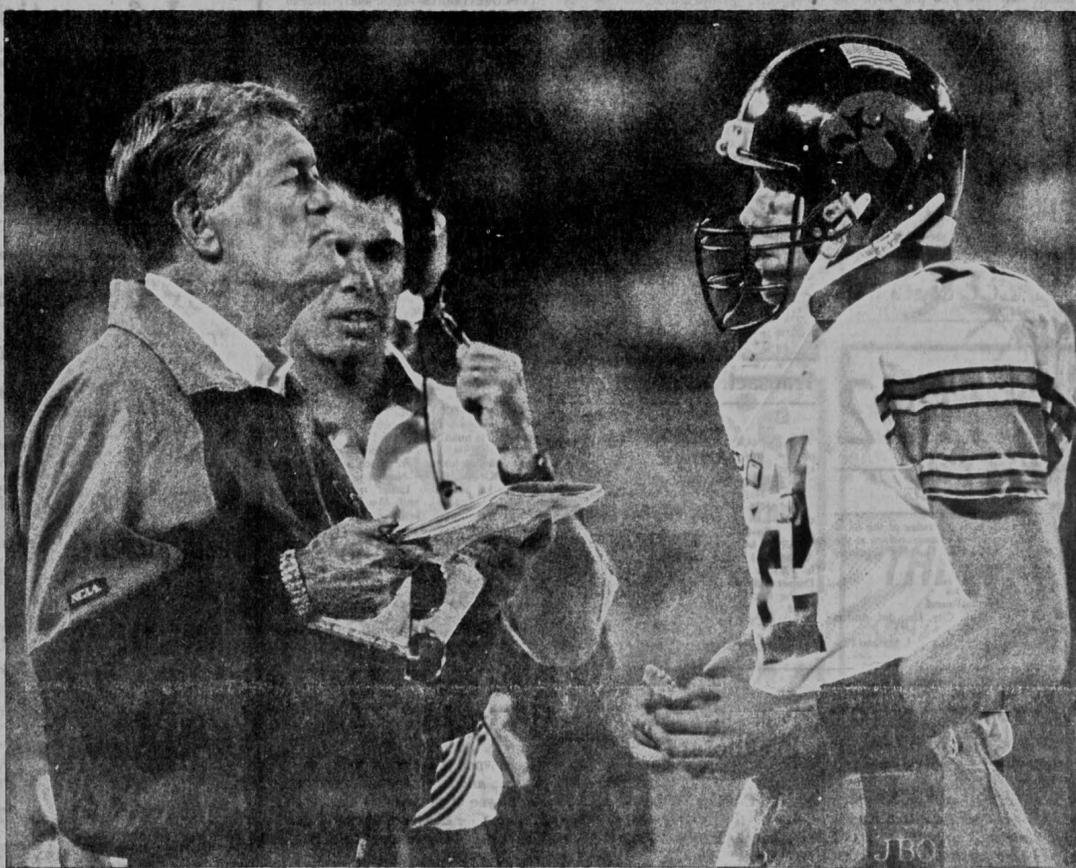

The owners also said their executive council would appoint a committee next week to study the restructuring of the management of major league baseball. The committee is to report to all owners by Nov. 1.

In a letter sent to major league owners prior to the meeting, Vincent said he would not resign and vowed to go to court if necessary.

American League president Bobby Brown and National League president Bill White called the special meeting over Vincent's objection. The commissioner did not attend because he said the Major League Agreement prohibits discussion of the terms and duties of the incumbent.

Vincent's opponents were quiet entering the meeting, but Texas Rangers owner George W. Bush See VINCENT, Page 2B

Distracted 'Canes up for Iowa

Chuck Schoffner
Associated Press

IOWA CITY — Displaced, distracted and disabled.

That's how the top-ranked Miami Hurricanes begin defense of their national championship in Saturday's opener against No. 23 Iowa.

Hurricane Andrew sent the team fleeing to Vero Beach to finish preparing for the season. It also exacted an emotional toll that still lingers. Some key players will miss the game and the offensive line lacks experience.

Some might see it as a chance to surprise the Hurricanes, but Iowa coach Hayden Fry isn't one of them. He sees a team that even at 80 or 90 percent is better than most. He says the Hurricanes remind him of the Marines.

"When you're being prepared for combat, your heart, mind and soul rise to a nearly mysterious level of aggressiveness," ex-Marine Fry said. "You just kind of blank out the rest of the world around you except for the mission that you have."

"The Miami football team reminds me a lot of that type of environment. They just blank out everything except the mission at hand. I've never seen football played like Miami plays it. It's like they're obsessed."

Even without the psychological drain of Andrew, coach Dennis Erickson's team would be unsettled.

Running back Stephen McGuire, the team's leading rusher last season, is still recovering from a knee injury. Sophomores Larry Jones and Donnell Bennett will take turns filling his spot.

Top receiver Lamar Thomas, indicted in a financial aid scandal, is out until his case is resolved. Another starting receiver, Darryl Spencer, is likely to miss the game because of a knee injury.

The offensive line is a concern, too. The first unit includes a freshman and two sophomores and only one starter from last year, junior guard Rudy Barber.

"They call this place Quarterback U and Defensive Line U. You can also call it Adversity U," defensive end Rusty Medearis said.

"Hopefully, by the time we get ready to play, we'll be concentrating on what we have to concentrate on," Erickson said. "I think the closer it gets to game time, the more focus we'll have."

Hurricanes invade Kinnick

John Shipley
The Daily Iowan

Over the past 10 years, the Miami Hurricanes have come to symbolize — for better or for worse — the future of college football.

Their combination of raw athletic talent, go-for-broke coaching and don't-tread-on-me attitude have garnered them four national titles in nine years, and there has been no indication that the No. 1-ranked Hurricanes are ready to stop now.

Metallic and sleek, the Hurricanes have consistently ripped through the most difficult schedules in the country with the ease and speed of a bullet train. So successful have the Hurricanes become that Miami is the closest thing there is to an NFL farm team. There are 52 ex-Hurricanes on NFL rosters, three of them starting quarterbacks.

Iowa, itself a proud supplier of NFL talent, has 19 ex-players on pro rosters.

Currently, the Hurricanes boast last season's first-team All-America quarterback in Gino Torretta and last season's top-ranked defense, which gave up only 9.1 points per game.

Says Iowa coach Hayden Fry of Miami football, "It's like ... belonging to a religious cult that gets all their messages from God. 'It's a different level.'"

This season the Hurricanes will attempt to become the first team to win back-to-back titles since 1956, and their first stop is Kinnick Stadium, where they will be greeted by the 23rd-ranked Hawkeyes, 70,000 fans and a national television audience.

Though they looked soft in their season-opening loss to North Carolina State, the Hawkeyes are not afraid of taking aim at the tough-talking, hard-hitting Hurricanes.

"I've never been afraid to play anybody since I've been here, and if I had, I wouldn't step on the field," senior linebacker Teddy Jo Faley said. "They have 11 guys that they have to put on the field, we have 11 guys that are going to try to stop them from moving the ball."

Said junior defensive tackle Mike Wells, "I don't get intimidated by anybody. I don't think anybody on the team does."

Fry says that Miami's reputation of intimidating their opponents through late hits and talking trash is overrated.

"The major intimidation by Miami is just kicking everybody's rump real good," he said. "If you're intimidated from getting your rump kicked, then you're intimidated."

If the Hawkeyes felt an aura surrounding the Hurricanes, it was destroyed two years ago when Iowa traveled to the Orange Bowl and played even-up. See HAWKEYES, Page 2B

No. 1 Miami vs. No. 23 Iowa

The top-ranked Hurricanes travel to Iowa City to begin their season at Kinnick Stadium. The Hawkeyes lost their opener to North Carolina State, 24-14.

■ Miami finished last season 12-0 and ranked No. 1 in the Associated Press poll, sharing the national title with Washington. They beat Nebraska, 22-0, in the Orange Bowl.

■ Iowa finished the season ranked 10th by the Associated Press with a 10-1-1 record. The Hawkeyes tied BYU, 13-13, in the Holiday Bowl.

■ This is the first time Miami has been to Iowa City. The Hurricanes beat Iowa, 48-21, at the Orange Bowl in 1990 and are 3-0 vs. Iowa.

HAWKEYES: Not afraid of Miami

 with Miami for three quarters, before turnovers did them in late in a 48-21 loss.
 "We looked at that as going down there to give them a game," Faley said. "And we did. A few things go the other way, maybe we win that game."
 Fry says the key to Miami's success is its athletes.
 "They have so many great people. And what they do on offense and defense is really not that complex," Fry said. "They just try not to foul up the guys. Keep it simple and let them play football. And that's what they do, and they love it."

 After the 24-14 loss to the Wolfpack in last week's Kickoff Classic, Fry knows he's got his hands full in preparing for the No. 1 team in the nation. The Hawkeyes lost six all-Big Ten players to graduation and it showed at the Meadowlands.
 "It's without question the most difficult preparation that we've ever had here," said Fry, now in his 14th season at Iowa. "It doesn't mean that we're going to lose the game. I'm just saying it is the most difficult preparation."
 It could be a long road ahead, too. After Miami, the Hawkeyes host Iowa State before traveling to No. 12 Colorado and No. 5 Michigan. An 0-2 start would only make it that much more difficult.

 "The more knots you get put on your head, the more difficult it is to bounce back," Fry said. "Somewhere down the way, the normal thing to do is lose faith."
 But the Hawkeyes are convinced that last week's loss was deceiving.
 "We knew N.C. State was a good team, but we just didn't play like we could," sophomore receiver

Harold Jasper said.
 "Not to demean N.C. State," Wells said, "but we didn't play as if we were playing a Michigan or an Illinois — a big-type team that is going to come out and hit you in the face."
 The Hawkeyes know that Miami is that kind of team, that the Hurricanes have a reputation for a reason.
 "Well, everything's true. They're great athletes," center Mike Devlin said. "They have great speed and they love to play the game. But we love to play the game, also. We'll come out firing and see what happens."

MAJOR LEAGUES

McDowell nears 20th win; Boddicker hurt

Associated Press
KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Jack McDowell scattered 10 hits over 7½ innings for his 19th victory and Lance Johnson drove in three runs to lead the Chicago White Sox past Kansas City 7-3.
 McDowell (19-7) moved back into the American League lead in total victories ahead of Toronto's Jack Morris and Texas' Kevin Brown. McDowell is tied with Atlanta's Tom Glavine for the major league victory lead.
 McDowell, 5-1 lifetime against the Royals, gave up two hits in each of the first two innings but only one run. He struck out three and walked none and beat Luis Aquino (2-4), who fell to 0-5 lifetime against the White Sox.
 Royals' reliever Mike Boddicker had to be carried off the field in the sixth inning when he was hit in the right shin by Estaban Beltre's line drive.

The low line drive caught him on the shin with such force that the ball bounced almost back into the Royals' dugout. He was grimacing in pain as he was carried away and taken to a hospital for X-rays.
 Beltre singled with one out in the fifth, took second on a fielding error by right fielder Juan Samuel and scored on Steve Sax's single.
 George Brett was 1 for 4, leaving him 26 hits short of 3,000.
Expos 11, Braves 2
ATLANTA — Felipe Alou says the Montreal Expos probably are sending a message.
 The Atlanta Braves got the message loud and clear, enabling the Expos to win the season series 8-4.
 "We've been sending a message for a long time, but we're still behind," Alou said after Montreal's fifth victory in a row kept it hot on the heels of NL East-leading Pittsburgh.
 "We got wiped out today," Atlanta manager Bobby Cox said. "We got behind way too far too soon."

 It was the most lopsided loss for the Braves this year.
 The Expos have won 20 of their last 28 games and have a 40-28 record on the road, best in the NL.
 Montreal's two stolen bases lifted the season total to 168, best in the league. The Expos have led the league in steals in each of the previous three seasons.
Pirates 9, Giants 3
PITTSBURGH — Orlando Merced drove in five runs as the Pittsburgh Pirates continued to match the Montreal Expos win for win, completing a three-game sweep of the San Francisco Giants.
 The Expos have won five in a row, but remain three games behind Pittsburgh in the NL East because the Pirates have also won five straight, 7 of 8 and 24 of 32.
 The Giants have lost nine in a row, their longest losing streak since they dropped 10 straight June 10-20, 1985, and are 8-17 since announcing their planned move to St. Petersburg, Fla., next season.

Reds 4, Mets 3
CINCINNATI — Paul O'Neill doubled home the tying run in the ninth inning and scored the winning run when New York failed to turn a double play as the Cincinnati Reds ended their seven-game losing streak.
 New York had won 116 straight games since Sept. 30, 1990, when it took a lead into the ninth.
 Anthony Young (2-10), who was perfect in 12 save opportunities, blew it in the ninth by giving up a leadoff walk to Reggie Sanders and a double to O'Neill that tied it 3-3.
 Rob Dibble (3-5) pitched the ninth to get the win.
 The Mets' bullpen wasted a great performance by Dwight Gooden who allowed just three singles over seven innings, striking out a season-high nine before turning a 3-1 lead over to the relievers.

 Off the exhibition season, the Minnesota Vikings will be the scourge of the NFL, a juggernaut that will continue to outscore opponents by an average of 35 to 1.5. And the Washington Redskins will be the dregs after a 1-4 preseason.
 No, it doesn't work that way. Washington (minus 2½) at Dallas (Monday night)
 The Redskins were horrible in losing to the Vikings 30-0 last Saturday night. That's because the Vikings tried and the Redskins didn't.
 The Redskins will try this week. Something about seeing helmets with stars brings out the mean streak. Last year, they went into Dallas on a Monday night and won 33-31.
REDSKINS, 34-31.
New Orleans (plus 4) at Philadelphia
 The Saints won this one 13-6 last year when the Philadelphia quarterback was the forgettable Brad Goebel. The quarterback's name is Randall, there's a running back named Herschel, but ... the Eagles' offensive line is the same ho-hum bunch as last year.
EAGLES, 17-10.
Los Angeles Raiders (plus 3½) at Denver (Sunday night)
 Caution: Five of the last 16 games between these two have gone to overtime and 13 of those 16 have been decided by less than a touchdown. Last year, the Raiders won both games ... by a combined total of four points.

No, it doesn't work that way. Washington (minus 2½) at Dallas (Monday night)

The Redskins were horrible in losing to the Vikings 30-0 last Saturday night. That's because the Vikings tried and the Redskins didn't.

The Redskins will try this week. Something about seeing helmets with stars brings out the mean streak. Last year, they went into Dallas on a Monday night and won 33-31.

REDSKINS, 34-31. New Orleans (plus 4) at Philadelphia

The Saints won this one 13-6 last year when the Philadelphia quarterback was the forgettable Brad Goebel. The quarterback's name is Randall, there's a running back named Herschel, but ... the Eagles' offensive line is the same ho-hum bunch as last year.

EAGLES, 17-10. Los Angeles Raiders (plus 3½) at Denver (Sunday night)

Caution: Five of the last 16 games between these two have gone to overtime and 13 of those 16 have been decided by less than a touchdown. Last year, the Raiders won both games ... by a combined total of four points.

BRONCOS, 17-16. Detroit (plus 3½) at Chicago

The Bears' defense has been soft up the middle without William Perry.

The Lions' offense is soft up the middle because of the tragic events that left them without Mike Utley and Eric Andolsek.

BEARS, 20-10. New York Jets (plus 3) at Atlanta

The Jets may have been unbeaten in preseason, but Browning Nagle hasn't seen anything like what Jerry Glanville will throw at him in the official opening of the Georgia Dome.

FALCONS, 24-20. San Francisco (minus 3) at New York Giants

The Giants lost their final exhibition 24-3 last year, then beat the 49ers 16-14 in the opener. So they went out and lost their final exhibition 24-3 again.

49ERS, 17-9. Los Angeles Rams (plus 11) at Buffalo

If the Rams could run the ball ... They'd probably still lose by two touchdowns.

BILLS, 38-20. Pittsburgh (plus 10½) at Houston

Bill Cowher is bringing an inexperienced, injury-plagued secondary to the wrong place.

OILERS, 27-10. Minnesota (minus 1½) at Green Bay

VIKINGS, 20-7. Kansas City (minus 2½) at San Diego

CHIEFS, 13-6.

BASEBALL

Yeah, but can he hit like Jose? Cardinals hope so

R.B. Fallstrom
Associated Press

ST. LOUIS — He looks just like Jose Canseco, talks just like Jose Canseco, walks just like Jose Canseco and is powerfully built just like Jose Canseco.

Now, the St. Louis Cardinals are hoping and praying, if only Ozzie Canseco can just hit like his twin brother Jose.

Ozzie Canseco, who's two minutes older but infinitely poorer than his famous brother, says he just wants a chance after being called up from Class AAA Louisville for the last month of the season. And he certainly talks a good game.

"I've been given the gift of the long-ball power," Canseco said. "I do use it on occasion. That's what I do. I'm just looking forward to the last month and maybe making my mark here."

Canseco showed he wasn't just a 6-foot-3, 220-pound mirror image without the goods at Louisville, where he hit 22 home runs and had no trouble reaching fences that measured 360 feet down the left-field line, 30 feet farther than at Busch Stadium.

He's also had no trouble reaching the fences in batting practice at Busch since his arrival, even though it's hardly a home-run hitter's paradise.

"It's a nice spacious ballpark,"

Canseco said. "But just hitting batting practice for the first time here you can tell the ball does not carry as well as a hitter would like it to carry."

He was up with Oakland for two weeks in 1990, playing with his brother. He went 2 for 19 with a double and was released after the season.

"I had a great time, although it was a very short stay," Canseco said. "It was just a brief cup of coffee."

Ex-Ranger lashes out at trade

Associated Press
 ARLINGTON, Texas — Ruben Sierra says he's bitter about the way his seven-year career with the Texas Rangers ended.
 Sierra, in his first public comments since he and pitchers Bobby Witt and Jeff Russell were traded to the Oakland Athletics for Jose Canseco, said the Rangers and their fans made him feel unappreciated and unwanted this season.
 "I gave 100 percent every day," Sierra said in Thursday's editions of the Fort Worth Star-Telegram. "They expected me to carry the team. They say 'Ruben, you're making so much money, why can't you play better?'"
 "I am one player. I have four at-bats. How can I carry the team by myself?"
 But the Rangers did expect a major contribution from Sierra, especially after he won a $5 million salary settlement in arbitration last February. And Sierra failed to deliver. He struggled at the plate throughout the season, hitting just .278 with 14 homers and 70 RBIs.
 His frequent failures with runners in scoring position and lackluster play in right field, including seven errors, began to draw the wrath of fans. He recently reacted by sarcastically tipping his batting helmet after a pop-out.
 Sierra said his large contract meant he unfairly took the heat when the team's fortunes went south with his production.

Former Ranger Ruben Sierra

 "Why is Oakland in first? Because they pay several players a lot," he said. "They keep them happy. They play well. They go out and do a good job and play happy. One person does not have to carry that team."
 The 26-year-old Sierra also said the Rangers never treated him as well as they do Nolan Ryan. He accused the team of failing to promote him in the community with posters and events.
 Ryan, however, is promoted heavily, including a giant poster that hangs on the front of Arlington Stadium.
 "Everything I am is because of what I have done, with my talent," he said. "It isn't anything anyone else has done for me. I was never promoted."
 Ryan's recent performance, 0-5 with a 7.16 ERA in six August starts, illustrates his point, he said.

 For those out of their funk for something to do this weekend, Minneapolis bands Sam Iam and Holiday Ranch offer relief. Both will be hitting the snazzy, fret-slapping Iowa City nightscape this weekend.

Pay-per-view access just one of many changes

Rick Warner
 Associated Press

NEW YORK — It's time to relearn the A-B-C's of college football.
 In a groundbreaking experiment, ABC is supplementing its regular college football coverage with pay-per-view this season. In addition to free, over-the-air telecasts of top games every week, viewers will be able to watch other games for a small fee.
 "I think it's the wave of the future," said commentator Bob Griese, who will team with Keith Jackson on ABC's featured games. "Ten or 15 years from now, I think you'll be able to buy any game you want."
 For now, pay-per-view selection will range from one to three games per week, depending on your local cable system. Viewers can buy one game for $8.95, all available games in one week for $9.95 or a season package for $59.95.
 This Saturday, for instance, ABC will televise one national game (Miami-Iowa) at night and three regional ones (Texas A&M-LSU, Notre Dame-Northwestern and Southern Cal-San Diego State) during the afternoon.

 If you don't have pay-per-view, that means you'll get the Miami-Iowa game and one regional telecast. With pay-per-view, you'll be able to watch at least one other regional game carried by ABC, not just the one selected for your area.
 So who's going to pay to watch a college football game when so many other games are being shown for free? Well, how about a big Southern Cal fan who lives in Texas? If he wants to see Southern Cal-San Diego State on Saturday, he'll have to pay for it because his free regional game will be Texas A&M-LSU. ABC is banking on that kind of team loyalty to provide many of its pay-per-view customers.
 "It's a modest plan, but I think it's a very good idea," Jackson said. "The only problem is how many games your cable operator can deliver. I'm sure there's going to be places where people scream bloody murder because they can't get all the games."

 Jackson said he's surprised the NFL hasn't tried a similar pay-per-view plan.
 "It's tailor-made for them," he said. "They've only got 28 teams to deal with, so it wouldn't be very hard."
 Pay-per-view is one of several significant changes in college football this season. A new bowl alliance will alter the postseason picture and the Southeastern Conference will hold a first-ever playoff to determine the champion of its expanded, 12-team league.
 By setting up a detailed selection system, the alliance will eliminate last-minute, wheeling and dealing for teams and improve the matchups on New Year's Day.
 Griese likes the alliance, which includes all the top bowls except the Rose.
 "It's probably the best way to keep the bowl system as we know it and still make an effort to get a 1 vs. 2 game for the national championship," he said.
 Jackson thinks the SEC playoff, which will be shown by ABC on Dec. 5, was inevitable after the league added Arkansas and South Carolina. But he knows it won't please everyone.

 If the trend toward "superconferences" continues, Jackson said, it could lead to a Division I-A playoff system.

BANDS

Bands offer relief for beginnin'-school blues

Kevin Ruby
The Daily Iowan

For those out of their funk for something to do this weekend, Minneapolis bands Sam Lam and Holiday Ranch offer relief. Both will be hitting the snazzy, fret-slapping Iowa City nightscape this weekend.

Sam Lam formed in 1989 in the Twin Cities, naming itself after the infamous line from Dr. Seuss' kiddie book "Green Eggs and Ham." Consisting of vocalist/rhythm guitarist Rick Meyer, bass man Paul Boblett, lead guitarist Tim Pitschka, and percussionist Andy Deckard, the group has been a Midwest/Great Lakes mainstay on the live-music scene for several years. The group also banged their hearts out to several nightclub awards, leading to bigger and better juke jams elsewhere.

The group plays a variety of spastic funk riffs that cater towards the get-naked, get-slammed crowd. A demo tape in circulation echoes shades of everything James Brown, the Chili Peppers, Lenny Kravitz and funk pioneers Funkadelic, while occasionally ripping into an Aerosmith ditty. Definitely worth checking out.

Holiday Ranch originally started out with guitarist Erik Newman and vocalist Karen Paurus performing as an acoustic duo. In 1990, they expanded, adding bassist John Schech, guitarist/saxophonist Eric Moen, and skin man David Ross. Hard to classify, Paurus' voice is reminiscent of 10,000 Maniacs' Natalie Merchant, minus the whine, and the group's overall sound is a blend of laid-back folk/rock influences.

Sam Lam and Holiday Ranch perform at the Yacht Club, tonight and Saturday night, respectively. Cover is three bucks, and the shows will start somewhere between 10 p.m. and 11 p.m., or when people get anxious and start demanding their money back. Party, party, party. Rah.

Skip the bars, strip at No Shame instead

Tasha Robinson

Prepare yourself for something unique. Well, if you can imagine something unique that occurs on a weekly basis.

No Shame Theatre begins tonight at the Theater Building in Theatre B. A weekly late-night theater forum, No Shame was founded on the concept of an audience providing its own entertainment.

In keeping with this policy, anyone can perform. There are no advance requirements for performers; it's not necessary that you be a published professional or a theater student, or even that you have previous stage experience. It's also not necessary for audience members to perform — most don't on any given night — but should they choose to, they should be aware that the only requirements for pieces is that they be original, short (3 to 5 minutes long) and ready to be performed at the drop of a hat. Lighting and staging is you see a nude man on-stage, it's a big shock," says Barnard, who has attended and performed regularly. Pieces performed at No Shame in the six years since then-student Todd Ristau founded the show in the back of a pickup truck in the Theater Building parking lot range widely from parodies of musicals, standup comedy, songs and dances, to political satire, absurdist, Dada, and avant-garde skits. There have been pie-fights, experimental works, storytelling, instrumental pieces, short plays in installments . . . you name it, it's probably been seen at No Shame at some point in the past.

Scripts are collected starting at 10:30 p.m.; the show starts at 11. The first 15 pieces to be turned in each night will be accepted; unless there are fewer than 15 scripts turned in, no performer is allowed to submit more than one piece per evening. Admission is $1.

BANDS

The first Iowa Blues Gathering, which takes place this weekend in Muscatine, will feature the devoted and daring Blues Instigators. Band members are (clockwise from left) Ed English, Eric Madison, Dan Laughlin, John Klinkowitz, Jeff Daniels, Matt Paneck and the famous Kevin "B.F." Hunt.

Blues junkies travel and unite for first Iowa Blues Gathering

Tim Rissman
The Daily Iowan

The first Iowa Blues Gathering will take place on Saturday, Sept. 5 at Riverside Park in Muscatine. The one day festival will feature a line-up consisting entirely of home-grown Iowa blues musicians. There will be both electric and acoustic stages, offering a diversity otherwise impossible on a one-stage forum.

Playing on the electric stage, in order of appearance, will be the Unemployed Blues Band from Waterloo; The Unidynes from Clinton, Iowa; Audrey & The Blue Cats from Muscatine; Louis McTizic from Waterloo; The Blues Instigators from Iowa City; Bo Ramsey & The Sliders from Washington, Iowa; and The Blue Band from Cedar Falls. Performing on the acoustic stage, in order of appearance, will be Two Point Five from Davenport; Catfish Keith from Iowa City; Dean Sires from Waterloo; Joe Price from Lansing, Iowa; and Patrick Hazell from Washington, Iowa.

The program is supported, in part, by a grant from the Department of Cultural Affairs' Iowa Community Cultural Grant Program. The grant was obtained by the Mississippi Valley Blues Society, and the event is co-sponsored by the MVBS and the Muscatine Chamber of Commerce.

If you missed Bluesfest '92 this summer in Davenport, this is a great way to make up for it. Grab a blanket and a cooler, or whatever your pleasure, and get out there. With the reputation and following some of these bands are getting, my guess is that you'll have to travel to Buddy Guy's "Legends" in Chicago to see them in the near future. Hell, the Blues Instigators alone are worth the 45-minute drive.

There is a lot to look forward to this weekend in the Iowa City area. We've got the Iowa Blues Gathering, a professional football team masked as collegiate athletes coming to town, there's a faculty art exhibition opening at the museum, and there's a sale at JC Penney. The choice — or choices — will not be easy, I grant you that. But if you enjoy live blues at all, check out the Iowa Blues Gathering. It's well worth the trip.

Performances go from noon until 11 p.m. Admission is $5 per person. Children aged 14 years and under are admitted free if accompanied by an adult.

Hancher's 25th anniversary season funded by $92,670 in public grants

The Daily Iowan
Hancher Auditorium has been awarded $92,670 by public funding agencies to support the auditorium's 25th anniversary performing arts season.

The grant total includes $53,000 from the National Endowment for the Arts, $37,670 from Arts Midwest and $2,000 from the Iowa Arts Council.

The largest single-event award is $25,000 from the Arts Midwest Dance on Tour program to support the production and January 1993 world premiere performances of the Joffrey Ballet's "Billboards," with music by pop star Prince. The Dance on Tour grant is the largest grant ever received by Hancher from Arts Midwest, a regional funding agency with headquarters in the Twin Cities, to support a single event.

A grant of $17,500 from the NEA dance program will also help to support the "Billboards" project with the Joffrey, as well as performances by the American Indian Dance Theatre, the Paul Taylor Dance Company, Doug Varone and Dancers, and Pilobolus Dance Theatre.

The NEA Inter-Arts program awarded Hancher $30,000, which will support a variety of performances and residencies in music and theater.

A $5,500 grant from the NEA music program will support 13 concerts in classical music and jazz, including the "For the Love of Hancher" 20th anniversary gala featuring soprano Kathleen Battle.

Arts Midwest contributed $12,670 to support the Children's Theatre Company performance of "The Jungle Book," the residency of Roadside Theatre and Junebug Productions, and the Paul Dresner Ensemble's new production, "Awe Behavior." Arts Midwest funds combine resources from the NEA with money from other sources.

A $2,000 grant from the Iowa Arts Council will also support the Roadside/Junebug residency. Roadside Theatre from Appalachia visited Iowa last spring, holding workshops and performances in West Branch, Wilton, Amana and Kalona, where artists from Roadside worked to revive pride in the history and folk-art traditions in those communities. In a September-October residency, Roadside will continue its work with those communities, leading up to two performances with Junebug Productions in Hancher.

Hancher Auditorium receives no direct programming subsidy from funds appropriated by the Iowa Legislature. The auditorium's programming is supported by ticket sales; grants won competitively from public agencies and private foundations; the Hancher Auditorium Enrichment Fund, an endowment administered by the UI Foundation; series sponsorships by area businesses and individuals; and the Hancher Auditorium/UI Foundation annual fund-raising campaign, known as Hancher Circle.

From the Mouths of Hawkeyes

Hawkeyes ready for stormy weather

Concerning the continued dominance of the Miami Hurricanes, Iowa head coach Hayden Fry had this to say about his No. 1 ranked opponent: "What they do is not really that complex. They just blank everything out except the mission at hand and everything is 110 miles per hour whether it's blocking, or running pass patterns, or blitzing the linebackers ...whatever. I've never seen football played like Miami plays. It's like they're obsessed."

Tough schedule

Fry concerning the Hawkeyes brutal schedule: "I think we have a good football team. But the quality of our schedule means our won-loss record may not indicate we have a good team."

Cyclone warning

Fry on playing Iowa State next weekend: "Coach Walden has said this is his best ball club. He has put in a new offense and Iowa State opens with Ohio before playing us. That game really concerns us."

Get a life

The Hawkeye coach commenting on football prognosticator Beano Cook, who failed to mention Iowa in his pre-season analysis: "Who's Beano Cook? Beano Cook never played a down of football."

Commitment

Fry about his players' work ethic: "A lot of players stayed around Iowa City this summer and worked out. That indicates to me that this team really wants to win."

Recruiting

Fry on his method of recruiting: "We try to recruit players to fit the system. To me that makes a lot more sense than changing the system all the time to fit the players."

Classic blues

Fry after the Hawkeyes lost to North Carolina State 24-14 last weekend: "We probably had more communication breakdowns against them than in any other game since I've been at Iowa."

Hurricane watch

Fry on the speed of the Miami team: "Miami's three linebackers could challenge their wide receivers to a 4X4 race, their speed is so unbelievable. Medearis may be the fastest defensive lineman in the history of college football on the pass rush."

Hayden Fox

Fry when asked what he thought of Craig T. Nelson's Emmy for the show "Coach," a sitcom whose main character, Hayden Fox, is a football coach at a Midwestern university: "I think that's fantastic. If you know Craig's life story, how he lived in the eye of the hurricane for seven years of his life, and then to watch him come back and not have any alcohol or drugs for the last seven years of his life up to an Emmy ...it's really inspirational. The man has lived it."

Hurricane watch II

Fry on Miami quarterback Gino Torretta: "He's the carburetor. He's the guy that makes the offense go. He's extremely intelligent and he gets rid of the ball so quickly. He also loves to throw the deep ball."

Speed

Fry on the importance of speed in sports: "If you're going to run the fast break in basketball, or you're going to run the bases in baseball ...speed is probably the greatest asset you can have."

Hawkeye Profile: Danan Hughes

Hughes does double duty for Iowa

Michael Watkins
The Daily Iowan

Former President Theodore Roosevelt once said that when you wish to get a message across effectively or get someone's attention, it is important to "speak softly and carry a big stick."

Well, in case you haven't noticed lately, Iowa's soft-spoken wide receiver Danan Hughes has been doing just that — and the stick that he's been talking with just happens to be a baseball bat.

Aside from being named first-team all-Big Ten at wideout and leading the conference with an 18.7 average per pass reception last season, the 6-foot-2, 202-pound Hawkeye centerfielder out of Bayonne, N.J., spent the past summer playing baseball with a Milwaukee Brewers farm team in Montana — and really enjoyed it.

"It was a real good experience and I'm glad that I got the opportunity to go there," said Hughes, who hit .317 in 33 games including one home run, 22 RBI, four doubles, two triples and two stolen bases.

"It was a place full of nice people and good, loyal fans. It wasn't like the big city, but it was a place where you could concentrate on what you had to do and get it done."

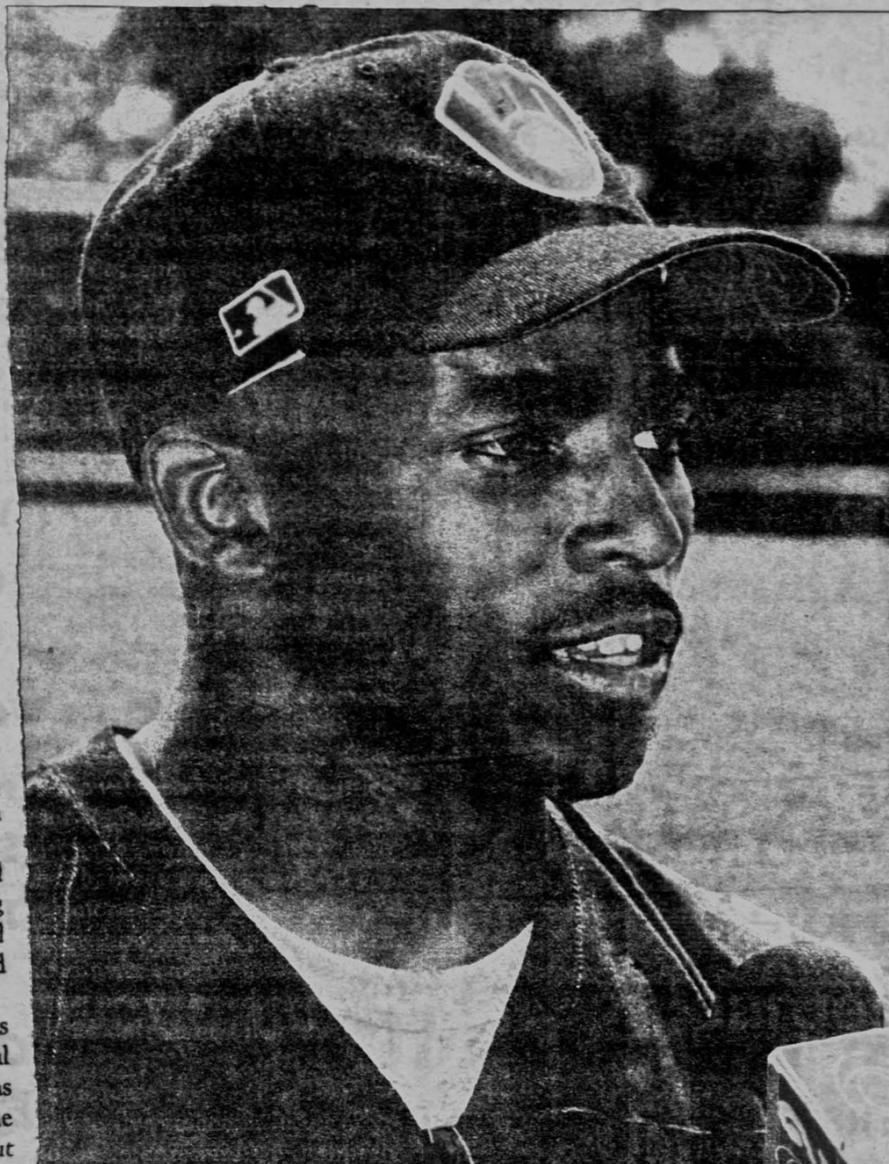

For Hughes, however, this dual role as college football standout and potential major leaguer is nothing new. He was chosen by the San Diego Padres in the 1991 Major League Baseball draft but decided that it was in his best interests to pursue a career in pro football as well.

"It's always been a dream of mine (to play both sports on a professional level)," said the 1991 third-team all-Big-Ten baseball selection. "It didn't really start becoming a reality until the last couple years when I started doing well in baseball, especially last year."

"When I started having such a successful sophomore season in baseball, I really started believing that I was one of those elite people that could successfully do both."

But according to the Iowa first-team and preseason all-Big Ten receiver, the difficult selection between a life behind the plate or in the end zone is way off in the distance — at least for now.

"I hope I won't have to (choose) any time soon," said the Iowa career leader in touchdown receptions with 17. "It's a problem that a lot of people would like to have, and I'm just glad that I'm in that situation. When the time comes and I have to make that decision, it's going to be a tough one.

Iowa receiver Danan Hughes is an integral part of both the Hawkeye football and baseball teams. (Al Goldis/The Daily Iowan)

"Right now I think that I'm still too young to make that decision. Hopefully I won't have to make it for a few more years."

Iowa coach Hayden Fry, who's seen Hughes mature and improve in both sports, says that he believes that the team reception leader with 43 catches for 757 yards and eight scores in 1991 has what it takes to become the next "Deion" — if he wants to.

"Danan is an extremely consistent big-play maker who you can always count on to get open," Fry said. "As far as his playing two sports professionally, from an ability and attitude standpoint, he can do it."

"He's not a flashy player, but he has more than adequate ability. I know that he'd like to do both, but that's got to be his own decision."

For right now, however, in the opening stages of another season of Iowa football, Hughes has set his sights on becoming the Hawkeyes' version of Desmond Howard, last year's Big Ten scoring leader.

With touchdowns of 23 and 9 yards in Iowa's opening game against North Carolina State last weekend, the potential all-American has already paid testament to this comparison.

But according to the all-county pick in both football and baseball at Bayonne High School, just making progress from game to game is his goal this season.

"I just try to go out there and improve every game," Hughes said. "Making all-conference and having one good game really don't satisfy me. I like to go out there and if I have five or six catches in one game then I'd like to have seven or eight the next. And if I don't get that, which is not always going to happen, then I don't get down on myself. I just go out the next game and try to improve. "I think that I have the potential to be (all-American), but I have to go out there and play on top of my game all of the time. Most all-Americans that came through here and at other schools played consistently above everyone else and that's the type of game that I'd like to play this year."

One thing that Hughes as well as the members of the Hawkeye offensive line have had to adjust to this season is the presence of a different, but not new quarterback in Jim Hartlieb. But according to Hughes, however, seeing Hartlieb dropping back to pass instead of Matt Rodgers is anything but foreign to him.

"It's not like Jim and I are brand new to each other," said the sixth-rated Iowa receiver in career yards with 1,725. "We've been working together since our freshman year. Matt and I worked together a lot the last couple years, but I always made sure that I got in some time with Jim."

"We know how we can play together. He knows what I'm going to do, and I know what he's going to do. We've just got to build on that and help the team win."

Hartlieb agrees.

"Danan really presents a lot of problems for a defense and we definitely have to get him the ball," said Hartlieb, who completed seven of his 22 passes versus North Carolina State to Hughes for 87 yards.

"We've been concentrating on that this whole fall camp, and we've been hitting on all cylinders."

In addition to wearing the title of leading receiver for the Hawkeyes the last two seasons, Hughes says that he pictures himself as wearing another cap of leadership on and off of the field.

"I think that I am real uplifting to the team," said the co-offense Mr. Hustle vs. Minnesota last season. "I consider myself one of the leaders on the team. I always keep things up tempo and keep everybody's head up no matter what goes wrong."

"I mean, people are going to drop passes, and people are going to miss blocks. But you've just got to be there and pat them on the back and say 'it's going to be alright,' and that's the type of player that I am."

Hawkeye Profile: Jim Hartlieb

Hartlieb ready to fill big shoes at QB

By Dave Taylor
The Daily Iowan

If Jim Hartlieb feels a bit nervous stepping in at quarterback for the Hawkeyes, who can blame him?

The fifth-year senior from Woodstock, Ill. will have to contend with just a wee bit of tradition every time he takes the field this season as Iowa's field general.

It all goes back to Chuck Long, who started the whole mess for Iowa by passing for over 10,000 yards in his career and nearly winning the Heisman Trophy in 1985.

Then there was Mark Vlasic who stepped in after Long and had a brilliant, if brief, stint as Iowa's quarterback, leading the team to an exciting Holiday Bowl victory in 1986.

The next season brought the first sign of uncertainty in the coveted position as Dan McGuire, Tom Poholsky, and Jim's big brother Chuck competed for the spot. Chuck Hartlieb seized the opportunity and never let go, later enjoying a tremendous season and rewriting many of Long's records.

When it finally seemed like the well was dry, in walked Matt Rodgers who was named all-Big Ten his final two seasons at Iowa, leading the Hawkeyes to the Rose Bowl after the 1990 season and the Holiday Bowl last year.

Yet Hartlieb shrugs off the pressure of following such a talented bunch. For him, post-season honors are not something he is overly concerned with at the moment. He just wants to focus on the season at hand.

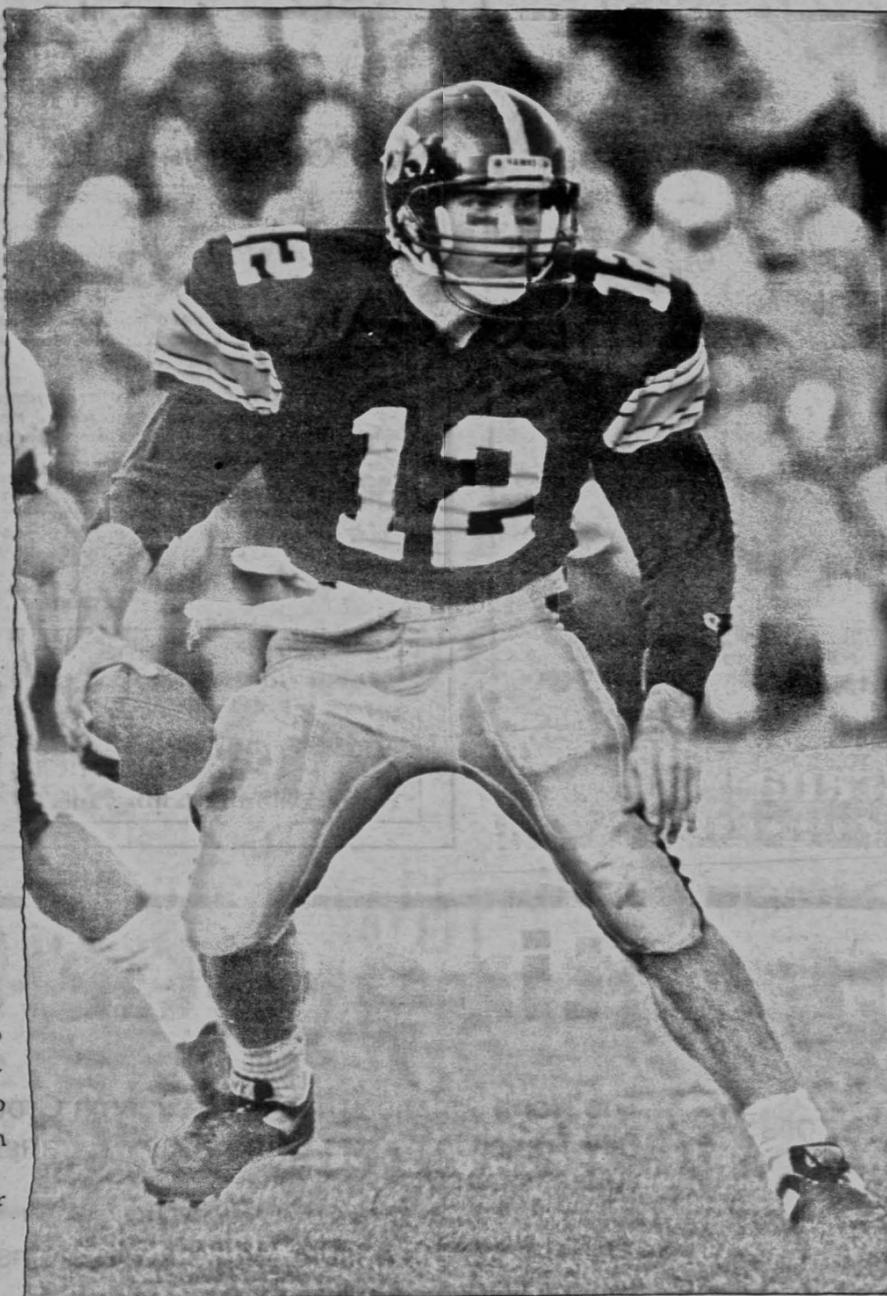

"Obviously I just want to do the best I can. If I can go out and be satisfied with myself and the way I played, I think the other things will fall in line," he said.

"I'm not really worried about holding up the all-Big Ten quarterback tradition because there are so many great quarterbacks in the conference this year."

"If that does happen, I won't be upset about it," he added.

Hartlieb is no stranger to performing under pressure, having played in three games last year after Rodgers went down with an injury, and leading the Hawkeyes to wins in each game.

He has also served valuable time on the sideline, watching and learning the Hawkeye attack.

"Jim Hartlieb has all the qualities needed to become an outstanding quarterback. He just needs to play," Iowa head coach Hayden Fry said.

"He really has no flaws. He is certainly the best running quarterback we've had in my time at Iowa."

Such high praise elicits little more than a nod and a shrug from Hartlieb.

"Maybe that means we'll have more of a balanced attack this year, or a few more running option plays, but we'll still have the threat of throwing it deep on 'em and the same drop-back passing game," Hartlieb said. "The offense will remain pretty consistent with what it has been in the past."

"I'm willing to do whatever it takes; whatever coach Fry wants to call, I'm willing to do it," he added.

"If he wants to use my mobility to our advantage or not, I don't know, but I don't really care as long as we win."

With the mobility of Hartlieb, fullback Lew Montgomery becomes even more of a threat, as he often comes out of the backfield to catch passes. Hartlieb said that he felt this would make the Iowa offense more dangerous.

"That's going to help us a lot knowing that the defense has to worry about those two different things," he said. "That will open up other parts of our running game and our passing game downfield."

"With four or five returning offensive linemen and almost all of the backs it gives me a lot of confidence knowing that they have so much experience. I also think the receivers are as deep as Iowa has had, and I feel good all the way through the third-stringers. It will make things much easier with the schedule that we have."

Aside from following numerous all-conference performers at his position, Hartlieb also has to contend with two other factors that could make the bravest man shudder: the killer schedule that includes Miami, Colorado and Michigan all in a month, and the rabid Hawkeye fans who demand perfection and expect nothing less than a bowl berth and a Top 20 ranking.

"I've waited four years and tried to learn from every situation I've encountered," Hartlieb said.

"It would be really nice to have a year to mature and make the mistakes that Matt (Rodgers) did in the first year he was playing, but I won't be afforded that luxury."

"But that's fine, I've been around long enough and I shouldn't need it. I'm just going to hit the ground running and get after our opponents."

An R.I.P. player's reaction:

Our family played "R.I.P." for the first time at our family reunion this summer. It was the hit of the week. It's true what the directions say--it's not important to know the exact year some famous person died. We almost never did. But we would usually have strong hunches as to the decade, and would often come within three or four years of the correct year.

This is a game for the baby-boom generation and their elders. The longer you've lived, the more you've experienced, the better a player you will probably be. Our family found out that inter-generational teams are the best, so that we had seven decades of memories to draw on.

What makes this game so much fun is the discussions you have with your teammates trying to decide amongst you the most accurate date. Even if you don't consider yourself a "Trivial Pursuit" kind of person, and even if memorizing dates scared you away in history class, you will have fun playing this game!

Hawkeye Profile: Marvin Lampkin and Ryan Terry

Lampkin arrives while Terry waits turn

By Chris Riggs

The Daily Iowan

It is a good thing that Hawkeye tailback Marvin "Scooter" Lampkin believes in the adage "good things come to those who wait."

He has been an understudy to three all-Big Ten tailbacks since he first laced up the cleats for Iowa in 1988. Now that he is No. 1 on the depth chart, he can put what he learned from watching ex-Hawkeye Tony Stewart, Nick Bell and Mike Saunders to good use.

"It seems like I've been waiting forever," the senior from East St. Louis, Ill., said. "But it has given me a chance to mature, learn patience and look at how much it takes to be No. 1."

Lampkin rushed for 220 yards last year while playing in only seven games after going down with a stress fracture. He has taken steps this year to see that this injury does not come back to haunt him.

"I'm in the best shape that I have been in my entire life," the muscular 202-pounder emphasized. "I've concentrated on being more consistent this summer and have focused more on workouts."

Lampkin's eyes brighten when he speaks of running behind Iowa's mammoth offensive line. He even says that 1,000 yards may be possible this year.

"Oh definitely, with the guys that are up front, without a doubt," he added. "I am just going to try and work at whatever helps this team win and if 1,000 yards helps this team win, I'll do it."

Lampkin is used to having his running style compared to players like Bell and Saunders.

"My style is a combination of both," Lampkin said. "I think most people probably look at me and think that I am more of a scatback, but I do try to

Hawkeye Profile: Mike Wells

Wells goes from small to X-large

Jaime Janda

The Daily Iowan

Just looking at Mike Wells, it's hard to believe he didn't originally plan on being a defensive lineman. Heck, he didn't even dream of playing football. Yet just looking at him, you can't help but take his word for it.

"See, when I was little, I wanted to play soccer. I was a real little skinny guy," Wells said. "I started out as a center when I was real skinny. The next year I got a little heavier and I moved up to a wing, then fullback. The next year I played fullback and goalie."

That was between the first and sixth grades. Shortly thereafter, a new-look Wells had undergone a similar transformation to that of Tom Hanks in a movie whose title could have projected the physical stature of Wells — "Big."

"One time I just got fat and somebody said, 'Hey, you're fat. Why don't you play football?'" Wells recalled matter-of-factly. "So, I did and I loved it and I just kept getting better and better."

These days, the once puny Wells has developed into a 6-foot-4, 280-pound behemoth expected to anchor an Iowa defensive unit which has bid farewell to first team all-American and Big Ten Defensive Player of the Year, Leroy Smith, as well as all-Big Ten first teamers and Hawkeye co-MVPs John Derby and Ron Geater.

Still, Wells' intentions are to let his on-field exploits do the talking without attempting to fill the shoes of past Hawkeyes.

"I feel like there's some people looking up to me," Wells said. "I don't plan on being a leader, but I know there's people that are gonna follow my example."

Following his father Rich's initiative of taking the gridiron for another Big Ten school is something the Arnold, Mo., native considered, but ultimately turned down.

"My dad went to Purdue for a short time (two years)," said the noseguard-turned-defensive tackle. "He played ball there 'til he got his back hurt. He told me if I was into engineering, he'd really push Purdue. But I wanted to enter the communications study field. Plus, I was a little apprehensive about going too far away from home."

So it was on to Iowa City for a man whose football credentials weren't too shabby, considering he was a state discus champion who never played football "until my freshman year in high school."

At Fox High School, Wells reaped Parade, USA Today, and Prep Report first team all-American honors, in addition to USA Today all-sports Missouri state Athlete of the Year, SuperPrep Midlands Defensive Player of the Year and St.

Hawkeye Profile: John Oostendorp

Mat champ tries his luck at football

By Nanda

The Daily Iowan

The head gear has been swapped for a helmet, shoulder pads and jersey No. 53. Gone are the two-a-day practices under a Hall of Fame coach, and the flinging of a grappling dummy has been substituted for head-on collisions with tackling machines ... for now.

As if that wasn't enough, perhaps no other dimension is greater than having to adjust from Big Ten champion and all-American to relative unknown. Such is the athletic endeavor of one John Oostendorp.

Most Iowa fans are accustomed to seeing "The Big 'O'" on the wrestling mat rather than the football field, but just like the fans that will be watching him, the gridiron will provide Oostendorp with a learning process.

"When you miss experience, it's definitely gonna hurt but hopefully I'll learn a lot this fall and things will work out alright," he says.

After being the only Hawkeye starting wrestler under legendary coach Dan Gable not to attain all-American honors during the 1990-91 season, Oostendorp kicked it in gear last year, winning his first-ever Big Ten championship with a 9-6 hard-fought tussle over 31-year-old U.S. Marine Sergeant Larock Benford of Purdue.

Oostendorp followed that up with a fifth place performance at the NCAAs, capturing that seemingly elusive all-American bullet to put in his holster and picking up the Hawkeyes' Most Improved Award.

"It could've been better," says Oostendorp, who finished with a 29-7 record and 12 pins. I wasn't satisfied with fifth place."

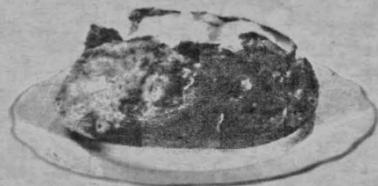

But even back then, Oostendorp, a native of Nichols, Iowa, had flirted with the possibility of playing football

Miami Leaders

Hurricane quarterback Gino Torretta returns this season with one eye on the Heisman Trophy and the other on a repeat National Championship. Torretta is 15-1 as a starter and passed for 3095 yards and 20 touchdowns last year.

On defense, junior defensive end Rusty Medearis leads a unit that allowed only 8.3 points per game. Medearis and senior linebacker Darrin Smith provide the stoppage up front, while senior cornerback Ryan McNeil will anchor the secondary. McNeil led Miami with 5 interceptions last season.

Game Preview: Iowa vs. Miami

John Shipley
The Daily Iowan

As a freshman, Iowa defensive back Olejniczak had a crash-course in college football. The second game he ever played was against Miami in the Orange Bowl.

What he remembers from that game might come in handy Saturday when his 23rd-ranked Hawkeyes take on the No. 1-ranked Hurricanes for the second time in three years.

"Anytime you gave them the chance to make a big play, they made it," Olejniczak said. "I think that's the key to their team."

The Hawkeyes lost the last meeting, 48-21. They'll try to improve on that in front of a national television audience in the first night game of Kinnick Stadium's 63-year history.

This is the first in Iowa City for the Hurricanes, who own a 3-0 record versus the Hawkeyes. Iowa coach Hayden Fry says the key to Miami's big-play proficiency is its speed.

"They've got four people that are probably the fastest four receivers in the history of college football on one team," Fry said. "(And) it just goes on and on and on. The four linebackers would challenge the four receivers in a 4x4 relay race. We're talking about linebackers that can run 4.2, 4.3, 4.5. Just phenomenal."

But the one player that pulls it all together, according to Fry, is All-American quarterback Gino Torretta.

"He's the carburetor. He's the guy that makes the offense go," Fry said. "He loves to throw the deep ball. And who wouldn't with those guys?"

Torretta, a fifth-year senior from Pinole, Calif., is 15-1 as a starter and threw for 3,095 yards last season as the Hurricanes finished with a 12-0 and a piece of the national championship.

But the Hawkeyes say they're ready, despite losing their season opener to then-unranked North Carolina State in last week's Kickoff Classic, 24-14.

"Everyone's looking to bounce back strong. It was a disappointing loss," sophomore wide receiver Harold Jasper said. "You don't really make (Miami) a big deal. They're the same age, the same people. They put their shoes on the same way we do. You can't look at them as any higher than us, because we're a good football team, too."

In fact, the Hawkeyes say that a game against the No. 1 team in the nation is just what they need right now.

"I think that after ...the low caliber we played at last week, we need a monumental task to come out and play better and show people that we can play better," senior linebacker Teddy Jo Faley said.

•Miami players to watch: Defensive end Rusty Medearis, an All-American candidate that Fry calls, "maybe the fastest defensive lineman in the country as far as rushing the passer.

...Michael Barrow, fifth-year linebacker, had 64 solo tackles last season, 115 overall. ...Senior cornerback Ryan McNeil had five interceptions last season. ...Junior All-American Kevin Williams is the fastest Hurricane, with a 4.2 40-yard dash. Scored three TDs on punt returns. Can start at flanker or tailback.

•Iowa players to watch: Senior defensive end Larry Blue had three sacks last week vs. N.C. State. ...Senior wing back Danan Hughes became Hawkeyes' all-time leading TD receiver (17) with two last week vs. Wolfpack. ...Junior defensive tackle Mike Wells is the team's leading returning tackler, with 42 solos and 75 overall. ...Fifth-year quarterback Jim Hartlieb threw for 212 yards and two TDs vs. Wolfpack.

Fry is also interested in getting time for backups Matt Eyde and Paul Burmeister.

"You may see them in the game this week," he said.

Game Day Guidelines

Parking tips offer help for motorists

All fans driving to home games at the U of I this fall are again advised to start early and be patient if they encounter delays. Information on the status of highway construction projects is available from the Iowa Department of Transportation (DOT).

Kickoff times for the six UI home games will vary due to television coverage of the games. The Sept. 5 home opener with Miami (ABC-TV) begins at 7 p.m. while the Sept. 12 contest with Iowa State (ESPN) has an 11:35 a.m. start.

William Fuhrmeister, UI director of public safety, had these tips for fans driving to Hawkeye home games:

- I-80 eastbound, use Highway 218 South or exits 240 or 242.
 - I-80 westbound, use exit 244 or 246.
 - Follow DOT "Football Stadium Exit" signs along all routes.
- Fuhrmeister says UI parking areas will open at 7 a.m. and traffic control will continue for two hours after the game. For safety reasons, beer trucks and open bars are not permitted in any UI parking area. Amplified sound and cooking fires are not permitted in UI parking ramps.

• Free UI parking for autos is available at Hancher Auditorium (North Riverside Drive and Park Road), Finkbine Golf Course (Melrose Avenue), and the UI Softball Complex (Mormon Trek Road near Highway 965).

• Free RV parking is available at Finkbine Golf Course (there is an $8 charge for RV parking in the Finkbine commuter lot on Hawkins Drive).

• Free UI CAMBUS service will shuttle fans from downtown Pentacrest and Hancher to the stadium area, starting two hours before game time (the return pickup point is at the Hospital School on Newton Road).

• The free shuttle also serves fans who use the two municipal ramps on Burlington Street (1,450 cars) or parked elsewhere in downtown Iowa City.

• Public parking is permitted in the UI Main Library lot on football Saturdays. The charge is 30 cents per hour.

• Parking for persons with disabilities will be reserved in Hospital Ramp II until 30 minutes before kickoff. The charge for UI ramp parking near the stadium is $5 per vehicle.

• Space for 2000 cars is available in UI surface lots near the stadium, weather permitting. The charge is $5 per vehicle.

• Surface parking will not be permitted in the construction area east of the stadium and south of University Hospitals and Clinics (UIHC).

Fuhrmeister said that an east-west pedestrian route will again be provided through the Field House Addition for the first two home games. The passage-way through the UIHC will be closed to football fans.

For the safety of pedestrians, the street north of the stadium will be closed to vehicles when pre-game traffic becomes heavy.

U of I football fans are also being asked to cooperate in following the "Safe Saturday" guidelines in Kinnick Stadium and UI parking areas.

• Alcoholic beverages, botas, all coolers, all canned or bottled beverages, banners, seat backs, noisemakers, horns, bugles, video cameras, or any other disruptive device are prohibited from the stadium.

• No objects may be thrown from the stands.

• No "body-passing" is permitted in the stands.

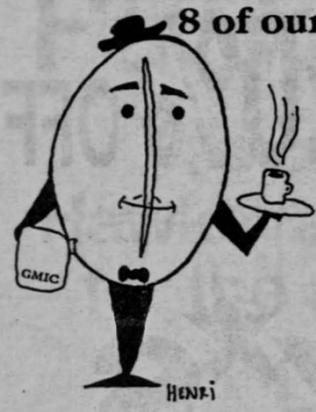

• No beer trucks, kegs or open bars are permitted in UI parking areas.

Fuhrmeister also urged fans to stay off the playing field at all times.

Hawkeye Profile: Larry Blue

Larry Blue has overcome numerous injuries to become a defensive leader for the Hawkeyes. (Al Goldis/The Daily Iowan)

Hawkeye defensive unit doesn't miss a beat with Blue in '92

John Kenyon
The Daily Iowan

Larry Blue started his career off as a Hawkeye with a bang. He wants to end it with one as well.

He started eight games at defensive end as a true freshman in 1989, amassing 36 tackles, eight against Iowa State. On his way to being a four-year starter and solid contributor for the Hawkeyes, Blue got sidetracked at the beginning of his sophomore season.

That year Blue played in only one game, sitting out the rest of the season with injuries in both knees. He had surgery that year, and came back in 1991 to start all twelve games.

"It was tough after the surgery because I still had pain. I had doubts, didn't know if I would come back 100 percent," Blue said. "After a while, a few months, the pain was gone and my strength was coming back, and I started thinking about football again."

The surgery didn't seem to slow him down much. Blue had 38 tackles last season, and was tenth in the Big Ten in quarterback sacks.

But last year he had all-American Leroy Smith at the other end of the defensive line to help out. Blue dismisses suggestions that he needs to fill Smith's shoes.

"Leroy did a great job for us, and I am trying to help us out this year," Blue said.

He did want to be able to fill his own shoes again. Blue felt that his legs were still weak as a result of his sophomore year surgery, so he hit the weights.

"I stayed here in Iowa City and took advantage of our facilities," Blue said. "I really worked at increasing my leg strength, and I think it helped me out a lot."

Blue said he doesn't really think about his legs anymore.

"I think my legs are stronger. I don't worry about being out there and being injured," he said. "You've got to work
