Undergrads worried about teaching quality

By John Dankowski

An atmosphere of uncertainty has hung over the campus as many students are preparing to spend the next term teaching. It’s true that undergraduate education is undergoing a renaissance, with more students enrolling in courses that emphasize lectures and seminars over traditional lecture halls. However, with the increase in teaching load, many undergraduates are finding themselves in unfamiliar situations, struggling to balance their academic and teaching responsibilities.

Despite pleas from many students and their professors, the administration has insisted that the changes are necessary for the long-term health of the institution. The idea that undergraduate education is in a state of crisis is echoed by the fact that the number of students enrolled in courses that emphasize lectures and seminars over traditional lecture halls has increased by more than 50% over the past decade.

The changes are not without their detractors. Some students and faculty members argue that the increase in teaching load is causing a decline in the quality of education. They point to the fact that many classes are now taught by graduate students, who are often overworked and underpaid.

Despite these concerns, many students and their professors are committed to improving the quality of undergraduate education. They believe that the changes are necessary for the long-term health of the institution, and they are working hard to ensure that the new educational model is successful.

But for some students like John Daniszewski, the changes are just too much to bear. "I don't understand why they have to put us through this," he said. "We're just trying to do our best, but it's just too much."

WATERLOO — Much of Iowa's pumpkin crop is still green, and if farmers don't see more orange before Thanksgiving, the pumpkins may be hard for some of them to sell by the end of the month.

John Panchala, a pumpkin grower near Waterloo, said it's still too early in the growing season for the pumpkins to have turned orange.

"They're still growing," Panchala said. "They're still growing."
The University of Iowa Chinese students want visas extended

The students are waiting to see whether President Bush will pocket a bill that will allow them to stay in the United States.

Yesterday for the first time

The possibility of returning to their home country remains uncertain, as, on the one hand, the bill is still in the Senate, and on the other, the students will have to travel to the United States to apply for visas.

I've worked in the United States since August 1989 and now I hope to stay here. I was surprised to see the bill in the Senate.

The Chinese Student Protection Act of 1992 passed through the House and Senate last month, passing all visas for Chinese student visitors to the United States. The bill allows for the extension of visas for students who are enrolled in the United States.

President Bush signed a similar bill in the summer of 1990 after the Chinese Students Association presented a bill allowing visas for Chinese students visiting the United States.

The bill is not an immigration bill, according to Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., who said it would prevent the Chinese from being students here. The Senate passed the bill after negotiations with the Chinese government.

The bill has also met with opposition from some Americans, who have expressed concerns about the possibility of more Chinese students visiting the United States.

As Bush was to address the Chinese students at the University of Iowa yesterday, he said, "I have some additional news to offer to the Chinese students." The White House is "hopeful" for the extension of visas for Chinese students.

"We haven't heard anything official to offer to the Chinese students," Bush said. "I don't know if they have heard of the bill, but we are working hard to extend the visas for Chinese students."

"The bill will just become official if the Chinese government accepts it," said one Chinese student. "That's the only thing that will happen." The Chinese government has yet to respond to the bill.

"The Chinese government has accepted the bill," said a second student. "We're just waiting for the Chinese government to accept it." The Chinese government has yet to respond to the bill.

"The Chinese government has accepted the bill," said a second student. "We're just waiting for the Chinese government to accept it."

"This is encouraging for the Chinese students," said another student.

"We are hopeful for the extension of visas for Chinese students," said a third student. "We hope the bill will pass in Congress."

"We are very grateful to the Chinese government," said a fourth student. "They have accepted the bill, and we hope the bill will pass in Congress."

As the 500th anniversary of Columbus’ exploration of the New World approaches, a lot of activity will be coming from the area.

"There were people here already, it’s a bit tar-latched to say he discovered America. It’s even the first European to come to the area," said Rex Henry, UI geography professor.

Columbus’ first voyage to the Americas took place in 1492. The purpose of the trip was to find a shorter route to Asia. Instead of the long, established trade route through the Mediterranean Sea, he sought a sea route from the Spanish government.

With all the commemorations of Columbus’ expedition, the press controversy has developed about whether to honor Columbus’ journey to the New World. While there has been a lot of discussion on the benefits of Columbus’ voyage to the New World, it also led to the exploitation of American Indians in Latin-American countries.

Charles Hale, UI professor of history, said that there have been questions raised over the ethics of celebrating Columbus and his journeys.

"The controversy arises over essentially what are we celebrating and not only are we celebrating but also what we should be celebrating," said Charles Hale, UI history professor.

Iowa lawyer given 60-year sentence

Associated Press

POLK CITY, Iowa - A disbarred Iowa lawyer charged last week with murder has been sentenced to 60 years in prison.

Judge Henry D. Bloedel sentenced Richard L. Whitaker on Thursday to the maximum term of life imprisonment for the December 1999 shooting death of one of his former clients, Richard W. VanBuren. The 52-year-old Whitaker, who is married and has no children, was found guilty of first-degree murder earlier this month after a jury trial. He was arrested the day after the shooting in the Des Moines suburb of Ankeny.

Whitaker, who is known by his nickname "Dick," was charged with murder in the death of VanBuren, a 58-year-old house painter from Des Moines. The shooting occurred after a dispute over a $25,000 lawsuit against a real estate developer.

Whitaker is one of four Iowa lawyers who have been disbarred in recent years. The others are:

- John C. Dick, 52, of Des Moines, a former attorney for the Iowa Supreme Court, who was disbarred in 1997 for failing to pay a $75,000 judgment against him.
- David L. Doenges, 48, of Des Moines, who was disbarred in 1995 for failing to pay a $15,000 judgment against him.
- Robert W. Johnson, 49, of Cedar Rapids, who was disbarred in 1993 for failing to pay a $100,000 judgment against him.
- Charles L. Smith, 39, of Davenport, who was disbarred in 1991 for failing to pay a $25,000 judgment against him.

The disbarments were announced by the Iowa Supreme Court on April 5, 2000. The court ordered all four disbarred attorneys to cease the practice of law and ordered them to pay the costs of the court proceedings and attorney fees.

In addition to the disbarments, the court also ordered all four attorneys to pay a $10,000 fine for each offense.

Whitaker is a former law professor at the University of Iowa College of Law, where he taught first-year law school students for five years. He is also a former associate dean at the University of Iowa College of Law and a former assistant dean at the University of Iowa College of Law.

Whitaker was also a former assistant professor at the University of Iowa College of Law and a former associate dean at the University of Iowa College of Law.

The court ordered Whitaker to pay $25,000 in restitution to VanBuren's estate and to pay $25,000 in attorney fees. The court also ordered Whitaker to pay $50,000 in court costs.

ISRAEL ACCUSES

Palestinian diaspora now invited to talks

TEL AVIV, Israel — In a major policy shift, Israel and the United States plan a public participation of Palestinians from outside the occupied territories in the regional peace talks.

The announcement by Foreign Minister Amr Moussa with Israeli Prime Minister Ehud Olmert follows a personal appeal for Palestinian inclusion by the Bush administration in Washington.

Israel still opposes the inclusion in the main peace talks in Washington of Palestinians from outside the occupied territories.

It is the first time that Olmert and Moussa are taking part in the regional peace talks being held within the framework of the U.N. resolution to end the Israeli occupation.

The Palestinians are expected to voice their opinion on the peace process and the peace agreements.

Sanders still mulling about pulling double duty

Tom Salazar 38

ATLANTA - Deion Sanders flew to Pittsburgh with the Atlanta Falcons for just the usual practice and leaving unconfirmed the notion that he plans to play in both an NFL game and a National League playoff game Sunday.

Sanders' attorney, Eugene Parker, had said earlier that Sanders would be available for the football club. "He hasn't told me anything to think otherwise," Parker said. "As of today he says he'll make a decision when he's back. I'm assuming he'll make a decision when he's back."

Brews third baseman Terry Pendleton, however, thought a decision has been made. "He went pretty sure reaction will be with sports Sunday," he said. "I've been known that for a week now." Thursday was an off day to the NL playoff series between the Braves and Pittsburgh Pirates, which Sanders had been with all season. Sanders and teammates arrived in Pittsburgh on Friday. Sunday, Sanders did not attend at meal at Atlanta Falcons training facility. Sanders' attorney, Eugene Parker, said Sanders would be available for the football club. "He hasn't told me anything to think otherwise," Parker said. "As of today he says he'll make a decision when he's back. I'm assuming he'll make a decision when he's back."

Sanders, however, was not available for interview requesting the most recent information. Sanders, who has been talked to the Falcons in recent weeks, said he was not ready to talk with Sanders about the team possibility of Sanders to play for the Falcons. Sanders is one of the team's leading receivers.

Sanders left the Falcons last week for a break from family. Sanders said Sanders would be available on the team: "That's the last I know of Sanders' or mine," Parker said. "I spoke to Sanders earlier informed the Falcons that Sanders would be available for the football club. "He hasn't told me anything to think otherwise," Parker said. "As of today he says he'll make a decision when he's back. I'm assuming he'll make a decision when he's back."

Eagles look to win fifth straight vs. K.C.

Dave Goldberg

Under Reid Ryan, this game would have been "ugly" - the Mushroom Eagles ending a five-game losing streak. But with Reid Reid at the helm, Monday night's game is a must-win.

So here comes the Eagles, one of the two unbeaten teams in the NFL. The other is the Dallas Cowboys. But the Eagles have a 2-0 "good record," while the Cowboys are 1-1.

This is a game that's been played since the early 1960s, and it has become a rivalry between two teams that have dominated the NFC East, with the Eagles winning the last two meetings.

The Eagles are coming off a 31-28 loss to the Green Bay Packers last week, while the Cowboys won 27-24 at home against the New England Patriots.

This game is a must-win for both teams. The Eagles need to win to keep pace with the Cowboys in the NFC East, while the Cowboys need to win to remain in contention for the NFC East title.

The Eagles have won four consecutive games, while the Cowboys have won three straight.

For fans of both teams, Monday night's game will be a battle of two defenses. The Eagles have a strong defense that is ranked second in the NFL, while the Cowboys have a solid defense that is ranked fourth.

The Eagles lead the season series against the Cowboys, winning two games this year. The last meeting between the two teams was in September, and the Eagles won 28-20.

Eagles coach Reid Ryan has issued a challenging warning to the Giants, saying it's time for a "dramatic" improvement from the team that blew a 13-point lead in last week's game at Washington.

Hawkeyes put a little ‘O’ in their ‘D’

Concerning the problems Iowa has had recruiting defensive linemen in his tenure as coach, Hayden Fry had these insights: "That's been the most difficult position for us to recruit since I've been here, getting big guys who can run. If you go back and remember some of the better defensive players that we had here, really they were offensive linemen. That's the only way I could sell Mike Ditka (Chicago Bears coach) on Mark Bortz (ex-Hawk now with the Bears) was the fact that he probably didn't have the speed that you want from a defensive pass rusher, and I told Mike 'If you put him over next to Hilgy (Jay Hilgenberg, ex-Hawk now with Cleveland Browns) and Hilgy can tell him who to block, 'cause he is so aggressive and tough that he'll probably do you a pretty good job.' Of course, everyone knows what he's done."

Mighty Michigan

Fry on last week's opponent, Michigan: "They were just awesome. They were as fine a college football team that I've seen from the Big Ten. They do everything in every phase of the game exceptionally well."

Offensive Recovery

Fry on the Iowa offense which came to life in the second half against Michigan: "Our offense really did a super job of moving the ball in the second half. Very few people, if any, have ever had game like Hartlieb had throwing the ball."

Defensive Letdown

The Hawkeye coach commenting on the poor defensive showing against the Wolverines: "The defense is a different story. We haven't experienced anything like that since I've been here to my knowledge. We had a lot of substitutes."

Secret Weapon

Fry on nose tackle John Oostendorp, who is also a Big Ten heavyweight champ wrestler: "He may not necessarily split time at nose tackle this weekend, but he's going to play an awful lot in the ball game. He's a hard-nosed football player. Of course, you can imagine being a heavyweight wrestling champion that he's a great competitor."

Danan Dilemma

Fry on star receiver Danan Hughes, who often plays through pain: "Danan's the kind of guy who, because he likes the game so much, will lie to the doctors. And we have to be careful that he doesn't play if there is any opportunity that he can really aggravate that injury."

Big Ten Parity

Fry on the parity in the Big Ten Conference this year: "Personally I think that's great. I don't know how long it's going to stay that way. We'll have to wait and see when the smoke clears. It's been that way off and on various years, but when the smoke clears we've always been 1, 2, or 3. We've got a long way to go."

Retirement Plans

Fry on the high goals of his football team despite their 1-4 start: "If we ever start playing for fourth, fifth or sixth place, I'm gonna break out my fishing pole."

And who would win?

Harold Jasper when asked if he and Danan Hughes have a contest about who can break one for a touchdown first: "No. But maybe we should. We need to get something going."

Hawkeye Profile: Jason Dumont

Lineman doesn't mind being a reserve

Mike Watkins
The Daily Iowan

When Iowa starting right tackle Mike Wells went down with an injury following the Hawkeye's victory over Iowa State three weeks ago, backup Jason Dumont was there waiting in the wings — ready and willing.

"I'm kind of the 'swing guy',' said the 6-foot-4, 262-pound defensive lineman out of Wellman, Iowa. "If either one of them (Wells or defensive end Larry Blue) go down, my job is just to step and fill the vacancy."

But this role on Iowa's starting defensive front was far from being a new experience for the senior physical education major. He started at defensive end in seven games as a redshirt freshman in 1989, and made a starting appearance versus Minnesota the following year before switching to defensive tackle behind Wells last year.

Even with his limited playing time over the past two seasons, however, Dumont says that he is content as the backup behind someone of Wells' caliber.

"Sure I'd rather be a starter, but when you've got Mike playing in front of you, there's not much you can do," said Dumont, who made two tackles including a 15-yard quarterback sack in last year's spring game. "But I knew coming into this season that I would be playing in a reserve role, and I just decided to make the best of whatever's given to me."

"My goals are to just contribute to the defensive line wherever I am needed. If I can step in and help out, then I am more than ready to jump at the opportunity."

Having grown up on a farm just south of Iowa City, Dumont was encouraged to get involved in football and other sports (he also played basketball) in junior high — but not by his father.

"My mom talked me into playing football, but my dad wanted me to stay around and help out on the farm," said Dumont, who tallied 70 tackles and 10 sacks his senior year in high school.

"But then when I started to gain recognition and proved that I was good, my dad also started to encourage me. Now he's one of my biggest fans."

Throughout his junior and high-school football career, Dumont was always a big Hawkeye fan, cheering Iowa's victories as well as suffering through its defeats. So when the time arrived to select a college or university with the potential to play football, he just looked north.

"I grew up with black and gold running through my veins. Every Saturday I would watch the Hawks games, always wanting to someday play for Iowa."

-- Jason Dumont

In the opposition's defensive secondary as Prairie High's tight end.

In fact, as a two-year starter at the offensive position in high school, Dumont's recognition as a solid tight end further complicated his decision whether to remain on the offensive line or concentrate on making the most of his defensive talent. The defense won.

"I was being recruited as both a prospective defensive and offensive player, but when it came right down to it, I've always preferred playing defense," said Dumont, who has 16 tackles and one quarterback sack for 10 yards in two starts this season.

"I have more fun on defense. It's more reaction than strategy and you get to play on raw instinct."

Dumont says that when he takes the field, whether it's at Kinnick Stadium or another locale, his motivation to get school either here or at Iowa State. Originally, Iowa State had offered me a scholarship, but I was holding out for a better offer from Iowa. When Iowa finally did call, I knew that my decision was made."

In addition to stopping running backs and deflecting passes at the line of scrimmage as a third-team all-state defensive end, Dumont also found success catching passes in the secondary as a solid tight end.

"I would watch the Hawks games, always wanting to someday play for Iowa."

Iowa defensive tackle Jason Dumont celebrates his sack of Miami Hurricane quarterback Gino Torretta. Dumont is content to play backup to either Mike Wells or Larry Blue, and says that he just appreciates contributing to the Hawkeye defense. (Al Goldis/The Daily Iowan)

Hawkeye Profile: Jeff Antilla

Antilla looks toward home state Badgers

John Kenyon
The Daily Iowan

Wisconsin native Jeff Antilla doesn't only have to fight off Badgers when he ventures north, he has to fend off a few bears as well.

"Wildlife is very abundant where I live, we live right on the mouth of the Brule River," Antilla said. "Black bears can be walking right up to your door, and deer are always walking through the yard."

Antilla says he loves to hunt and fish, something he grew up doing as he grew up in northern Wisconsin.

"I just love the outdoors, but I haven't really had time to get up there much this year," he said. "So I'm looking forward to Thanksgiving."

There are numerous reasons Antilla has been busy this season, and football is one of them. He is a junior wide receiver for the Hawkeyes, and has been seeing consistent action in every game.

"I'm happy to be seeing more playing time this season, I hope to continue getting in consistently for the rest of the season," he said. The increased time is certainly helping his game, as Coach Hayden Fry has offered rare praise for his receivers, including Antilla, Harold Jasper and Danan Hughes.

"It's exciting, and it is helping me gain more confidence on the field, and I just enjoy it all around," he said.

Football was a big part of Antilla's life in high school as well; he racked up stats impressive enough to be named USA Today and The Associated Press Wisconsin Player of the Year his senior year. These honors led to a recruiting battle won by Hayden Fry and his Hawkeyes. Antilla was "recruited pretty hard by Wisconsin," but he is happy with his choice to become a Hawkeye.

"The quality program here, the tradition, the fan support, there are just so many things that you can look at and say, 'that's where I want to be,'" Antilla said. "This gives me a little more incentive, to let them know that I made the right decision."

It seems to have been the right one, as Antilla and Jasper are becoming an integral part of the offense. Antilla played on the special teams his freshman year, and was hurt most of last year with a hamstring injury. In 1992, he is healthy and happy with his junior season.

This year, I'm healthy, and I'm ready to get out there and do as much as I can to contribute to this team," Antilla said.

"We have been able to take some of the pressure off of Danan, and Harold and I can open up the offense by making sure there is more than one receiver out there, we're ready every single down," Antilla said.

The Wisconsin game offers Antilla the chance to contribute to the team, and show the folks in his home state that he is doing well. Antilla hails from Brule, Wis., in the northern part of the state.

"This is a big game. I am excited to play in this game, I am really looking forward to this weekend," he said. "I have played with and against many of the Badger players while we were all in high school."

He also is looking forward to playing in front of his family, even though that is not uncommon.

"They make it down for most of the games here, and they also get over to Minnesota quite a bit too, so this is more just a homecoming," he said.

Antilla is balancing more than the Hawkeye offensive attack this year, and more than football and academics. He and his wife have a 10-month-old daughter vying for their every moment.

"She is just loads of fun, she's already walking, and she's getting into everything. There is something new and fun every day," he said. "She's a little too young for football yet, but we have brought her out to a couple scrimmages to see what's going on."

He is working on a degree incorporating leisure studies and business, and hopes to get into the fitness therapy industry. As for the future, he says a lot could happen between now and the time he graduates, and he wants to keep his options open.

"I do know that all of this I have going on has made me really put things into perspective," he said. "I am trying to make time for everything."

While it might seem Antilla couldn't have enough minutes in the day for everything, he says it helps to have something, and someone to go home to.

"It gives me a place to get away from academics and football, to relax, and take a lot of pressure off," he said.

"When I can go home and see a big smile on her face, that puts a smile on my face, I just love every minute of it."

Tight end proves he's no 'pipe cleaner'

Jeff Darby
Sppt 11 to The Daily Iowan

Take one look at Alan Cross’ 6-4, 235-pound frame and it’s hard to imagine anyone calling him a "pipe cleaner."

But that’s exactly what Hayden Fry labeled the senior tight end when he enrolled at Iowa in 1988.

"I knew I had to put on weight," Cross said. "I was a wide receiver and a defensive end in high school, so I was only 195 pounds."

Cross recalls meeting his freshman roommate, Bret Bielema.

"He was 210 when I came in," Cross said with a laugh, "so we went on the same weight program."

Bielema, a nose guard, is now 265 pounds and a Hawkeye co-captain.

Like Bielema, Cross began his Hawkeye career as a walk-on. In high school he received a handful of Division I offers, but mostly Division II and III. Cross decided to take a gamble on Iowa.

"I had a lot of family in the Midwest," he explained. "There was also the tradition that Iowa has, being a winning program. And it is one of the best programs in the nation for tight ends."

Cross was redshirted his first year and had the luxury of watching one of Iowa’s finest tight ends, Mary Cook. Cook caught 126 passes for 1,825 yards during his Hawkeye career and has moved on to the NFL, where he was an All-Pro selection with the New England Patriots in 1991.

"He was the best tight end to play here," Cross said. "When I came in he took me under his wing and showed me what I had to do to play. He still calls and gives me tips once in a while."

Not that Cross has needed any advice. He owns 59 career receptions for 647 yards, an average of 11 yards per catch. Last week he put together his finest outing of the season, a five-catch, 44-yard performance at Michigan. Cross also scored a touchdown against the Wolverines.

But the highlight of Cross’ career was a 61-yard score in a 16-9 win at Ohio State last year. The Hawkeyes were knotted with OSU 7-7 late in the first half and facing a third down situation from their own 39-yard line. Wide receiver Danan Hughes went in motion, guarded by Buckeye free safety Chico Nelson. Cross was left to decoy strong safety Roger Harper. Cross faked a block, drawing Harper across the line of scrimmage, then it was off to the races.

"As soon as I saw I was in the flat, Matt Rogers got me the ball," Cross said. "All I saw was wide-open field. The coaches watched that play on film all week."

The Hawkeyes need to regain some of the magic they found in Columbus that day. Iowa is 1-4 this season, with all four losses coming to nationally ranked teams.

Cross said the team has learned a lot after North Carolina State, Miami, Colorado and Michigan in the season’s first six weeks.

“We’ve learned that against certain teams you can make mistakes and get away with them, but not against those teams,” he said. “You have to upgrade your game to another level. At times we looked really great and other times we looked bad. We need to be consistent.”

Cross is doing his part to help the Hawkeyes rebound from a slow start.

“I’m working on my blocking — staying low and keeping my feet planted,” he said. Cross said new tight ends coach Carl Hargrave has also helped him improve as a player.

“Coach Hargrave came in from Houston and has given us a lot of information as far as recognizing coverage,” he noted. “He’s really been a beneficial addition to the team.”

Cross will earn a bachelor’s degree in business in May. He admitted that he’s not sure what his future holds.

“If I get a shot at the NFL, I’d love to give it a try,” he said. “But I’m not counting on it. I’d like to get into real estate in San Diego, Calif.”

Hawkeye Profile: Thomas Knight

Frosh thrives on thrill of anticipation

Theris Riggs
Ia e Daily Iowan

Defensive backs are individuals.

Former San Francisco 49ers cornerback Eddie Lewis was speaking of the isolation that a defensive back feels when he said, "Playing cornerback is like being on an island; people can see you but they can't help you."

You can hear the excitement creep into Iowa cornerback Tom Knight's voice when he talks about the mindset of a defensive back. Knight lives for the thrill of shadowing his opponent downfield, anticipating his every move.

"The best part about being a cornerback is that it is you and another guy when it's man to man," the freshman from Marlton, N.J., said. "It's me against him."

It was a baptism by fire for Knight in his inaugural game as a Hawkeye when he took the field at Kinnick Stadium to face Gino Torretta and the Miami Hurricanes.

"Just that in itself was a thrill, the fact that Miami is Miami. I think that anytime you hear that you are going to have a chance to play against Miami, it's great," the all-East Coast SuperPrep selection said. "Their receivers and quarterback are great. I had never faced anyone like that, that's a whole other level."

Being able to face the top teams in the nation was one of the magnets that pulled Knight to the UI.

"The type of competition that you face here is one of the things that attracted me to the University of Iowa," the New Jersey all-state pick added. "The level of competition is just phenomenal."

Knight said that his favorite thing about the Iowa City area is its inhabitants.

"The football here is great and academically it's great. But more or less it is the people," said Knight, who attended the same high school as current Iowa all-American Mike Devlin.

Knight also cites the people at the UI for making his transition from high school to college less painful.

Fry keeps focus on injured Hawkeyes

You can always tell when Hayden Fry is worried about his football team getting upset. It’s when he doesn’t say much about his opponent.

Fry will wax poetic about the Michigans, Miamis and Washingtons when the Hawkeyes are underdogs. And he’ll build up the Cinncinatis, Kansas States and Northern Illinois’s when his team is a three-touchdown favorite.

But bring in a team like his season’s Wisconsin squad and he practically shuts up.

“Wisconsin certainly is to be congratulated on a big win last Saturday,” Fry said. “They defeated a very fine Ohio State team (20-16) and they looked good doing it. It wasn’t a fluke.

“I’m not trying to say that they’re another Michigan, because they’re not. But they are very good.”

That was it. Oh, he spent some time praising freshman quarterback Darrell Bevell and fretted a little about half his old staff now coaching in Madison, but the rest of his weekly press conference was spent either talking about his own hurting players or the possibility of playing Northern Iowa.

“I’m a lot more concerned about my injured people,” Fry said. “I know that (Wisconsin) has improved, that’s on the film. But I can’t control that.”

A classic case of Fry subterfuge. He has reason to be worried. The Badgers (3-1) are in the third-year of rebuilding under former Iowa and

Field Hockey

The No. 2 Iowa field hockey team has run its record to 9-0 on the season. They have victories over several Top Ten opponents such as: North Carolina, Temple, Ball State, Northwestern, Maryland and Penn State. Junior forward Kristy Gleason, Amesbury, Mass. has moved into second place on the all-time career scoring list with 79 career goals. She began the season by garnering three hat tricks in three consecutive games. She currently has 19 goals on the season and has earned the Big Ten Player of the Week twice this season.

The Hawkeyes are bolstered by the return of three all-Americans; goalkeeper Andrea Wieland, forward Kris Fillat and Gleason, who sat out last year to play with the U.S. National Team. Wieland has a .833 save percentage on the season and 35 saves. Coach Beth Beigel's club has out scored opponents 37 to 10 and has four shutouts on the season. The squad currently has a 25 game home victory string at Grant Field.

Men's Tennis

Todd Shale, Neil Denahan and Mike Marino won singles titles at the Iowa State Invitational Tournament in Ames in late September. The top seeded doubles team of Eric Schulman and Ville Nygard won the flight 1 doubles competition at the ISU meet. Denahan and Shale won the doubles competition in flight 4. Marino got to the finals in flight D.

Construction alters path for Iowa fans

Some University of Iowa fans will follow a different pedestrian route on the east side of the campus to Kinnick Stadium, starting with this Saturday's home game against Wisconsin.

Construction projects at the University of Iowa Hospitals and Clinics have closed the pedestrian routes through the Field House and north of the Field House.

Starting with Saturday's game, UI Department of Safety officers and signs posted in the Field House area will direct pedestrians to the sidewalks along Melrose Avenue, an east-west street just south of Kinnick Stadium.

A second option for fans who park downtown is to ride the free Cambus shuttle from the Washington Street side of the UI Pentacrest to the Kinnick Stadium area.

fired-up and play comes from himself — and the crowd.
"I really like to get myself pumped and get the crowd into the game," Dumont said. "I'm not the kind of player or person who goes out and screams, but I try to get my adrenaline going by motivating myself, which also helps the team."

"Jason is kind of the quiet leader on the team," Coach Hayden Fry said. "He's well-respected by his teammates, and he's never been afraid to play wounded. He's done exceptionally well for us over the last four years."

Speaking of Kinnick, Dumont says that his memory of the first time he stepped onto the field is one that will linger in his mind for a long time.

"The first time I ran through the tunnel into Kinnick, I got goose bumps up my spine," Dumont said. "The feeling of excitement was such a high feeling that even though it was my first game, there was no time to feel scared."

"I still get that same feeling every time I take the field. In my opinion, if you don't get that feeling every time you step into Kinnick and play Iowa football, then you shouldn't be a Hawkeye."

With little expectations of making it to the NFL, Dumont says that once he graduates next May he hopes to continue his involvement in the game he's come to love.

"I'm getting my teacher certification in physical education, and I'd like to either coach high-school football or work with little kids," said Dumont, who also has a younger brother.

"Last year I worked with some little kids in physical education and I really liked it. But my ultimate goal would be to eventually get my master's degree and coach at a Division III school."

Cross grew up in San Diego and played football at Mt. Carmel High School, where he was an all-conference. He said his father, Jerry Cross, was most instrumental in his success as a prep.

"When I was in high school, he said if you do as much as everyone else you'll be just as good, but you have to do more," Cross said. "He helped by setting me up with a strength coach. I also remember running a mountain outside our house to build up my endurance and speed."

Cross' dad now lives in Moline, Ill. and his mom, Donna Rudd, lives in Columbus, Ohio, but she still gets to see her son play.

"She's been coming to all the games," Cross said.

Despite his collegiate success, Cross hasn't forgotten that he was once last on the depth chart. The recent decision by the UI to strive for gender equity by 1997 means that scholarships will be limited for potential walk-ons.

"I think right now there are 147 guys on the team, and 45 of them are walk-ons," Cross said. "You have to work much harder to make it as a walk-on. One of the greatest accomplishments of my life was coming in here and earning a scholarship."

Sophomore Amy Jahn won the 4 singles competition at the Indiana Invitational Tournament in late September. The Hawkeyes defeated Northern Illinois 9-0 at Klotz Courts two weeks ago. Last Sunday the Hawkeyes beat Nebraska 5-0.

Men's Cross Country
Kevin Herd was named the Big Ten's Cross Country Athlete of the month for September. Herd won the Illinois Invitational and the Minnesota Triangular last month.

Women's Cross Country
The No. 16 Hawkeyes won the Illinois Invitational meet last month. They placed fourth at a meet at Illinois State. Tracy Dahl-Morris placed first at the Minnesota Nike Invitational.

Women's Golf
The Hawkeyes placed sixth out of 12 teams at the Lady Buckeye Invitational in Columbus, Ohio last weekend. Coach Diane Thomason will coach the U.S. team at the World University Championship in Palma de Mallorca, Spain later this month.

Men's Golf
Coach Lynn Blevins squad finished sixth at the Midwestern Invitational in Dekalb, Ill. in late September. Jon Frommelt had the sixth lowest tournament score at this meet.

Women's Volleyball
Linda Schoenstedt's club has already won more games this year than they did in all of last season. The Hawkeyes are currently 8-7 on the season. They won the Hawkeye Challenge, held in Iowa City. Freshman center Lisa Dockray, Ontario, Canada, is in fourth place on the all-time career list for assists.

Notre Dame defensive coordinator Barry Alvarez and have lost to only No. 1 Washington this season, 27-10 in Seattle.

But beating the Buckeyes is nothing new to Wisconsin — the Badgers have done it five of the last six times they've met. But that doesn't necessarily scare Fry, because beating the Badgers is nothing new to Iowa. Fry is 12-0-1 against Wisconsin and the Badgers haven't beaten Iowa since a 38-21 win in 1976.

"That's happened four or five other times since I've been here, that they've beaten Ohio State," Fry said. "It didn't help them against us."

Wisconsin is averaging close to 170 yards rushing per game and giving up only 96.8. Tailback Terrell Fletcher leads the team with 297 yards and a 4.9 average, but fullbacks Brent Moss and Mark Montgomery have combined for another 296.

Iowa has lost starting nose guard Bret Bielema for what may be the season. The fifth-year senior underwent successful knee surgery Monday. Starting tackle Mike Wells has missed the last two games with an injured neck, but is listed as a starter for Saturday.

Senior linebacker Teddy Jo Faley is out for the year and linebacker Matt Hilliard has been sidelined on and off with a deep thigh bruise but is slated to start. Fry's offense is banged up, too. Starting wide receiver Danan Hughes and tailback Marvin Lampkin spent most of this week with casts on their left and right foot, respectively, and starting offensive guard Scott Davis will miss his second-straight game Saturday.

"We're crippled," Fry said. "But we're going to have bodies out there and, whoever those bodies are, are going to have to play well."

"I was nervous about coming to college in itself," the engineering major said. "Coming to Iowa made it easier because of the people and the coaches.

Knight also enjoys the difference in the lifestyles between the East Coast and eastern Iowa.

"A lot of people ask me how I feel about Iowa and if I made a good decision," the only freshman currently in the two-deep alignment said. "I think by far this is the most important and best decision that I have ever made in my life."

Another person is ecstatic about Knight's having become a Hawkeye is Hayden Fry.

"There is no question that Tommy Knight will be a mainstay in the defensive secondary for years to come," last year's Big Ten Coach of the Year said. "He is a very gifted young man. He has great speed, agility and good hands."

"Iowa is everything I had anticipated it being. It is great the way they treat the athletes. The things you can take advantage of academically are tremendous. Class is class and is just something you have to deal with."

-- Thomas Knight

Fry added that, "Tom Knight has really made great progress in the defensive secondary and is really coming on."

Knight said that it is his mental approach to the game that sets him apart from other football players.

"It is not so much my physical attributes as my competitiveness," the cornerback who has a 4.4 time in the 40-yard dash added. "The fact that I love to compete brings out everything, the speed, the agility, everything."

Seeing the Hawkeye football team play on television helped Knight narrow his choice of colleges.

"My junior year I started to zero in on a lot of schools and I saw Iowa a lot," the three-sport star in high school added. "I have the highest admiration for the program and Coach Fry."

Being less than 25 miles from Philadelphia helped shape Knight's allegiance to professional sports teams, but like his decision to come to Iowa, Knight is not afraid to go against the norm and not be fanatical about the local team.

"I follow the Eagles, obviously, because they are right there and the Giants," the 6 foot, 180-pound cornerback added. "But I am pretty much a West Coast fan. I like the Raiders and the 49ers."

Being part of the Iowa football program has not been a disappointment to Knight.

"It is everything that I had anticipated it being. It is great the way they treat the athletes," the holder of a 3.5 high-school GPA said.

"The things that you can take advantage of academically are tremendous."

Football is not Knight's only priority at the UI. He has a pragmatic approach to his education.

"Class is class and is just something that you have to deal with. I want to get my degree pretty much when I am supposed to and whatever works out with football is OK with me," Knight said.

"I will be very proud to be able to say that I came to the University of Iowa, and say that I played football here as well."
