Peace Talks continue

Israel willing to negotiate with Syria over Golan Heights

Barry Schofield

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Israel declared Thursday that it is willing to talk to Syria about withdrawing its forces from the Golan Heights, a key area of contention in the Israeli-Palestinian conflict.

"We hope there will be a comprehensive agreement on all issues," Prime Minister Ariel Sharon said.

"The United States can help us reach a just peace agreement that will benefit all the peoples of the region," he added. "We will work hard to achieve this goal."
Tailgating a Hawkeye-football tradition

Held Pedersen
The Daily Iowan

Hawkeye football is an emotional roller coaster. The ups and downs of each season are followed by fans across the country. For Hawkeye fans, the tradition of tailgating is an integral part of the overall gameday experience.

For the past three decades, tailgating has been a well-known and beloved tradition for fans attending Iowa football games. This unique and portable ritual allows fans to enjoy the game in a relaxed and social setting, away from the pressures of game day.

Tailgating was officially recognized as an Iowa tradition in 2004 by former Hawkeye football player and tailgating enthusiast, B.J. Kabbes. Kabbes, along with the University of Iowa Athletic Department, designated the area around the Iowa Memorial Union as "tailgating land," officially recognizing the tradition.

Tailgating is a major attraction before every Hawkeye football game. The University of Iowa estimates that approximately 40,000 fans attend each game, with many of them tailgating in the designated area.

The University of Iowa estimates that approximately 40,000 fans attend each game, with many of them tailgating in the designated area. Tailgaters typically start arriving hours before the game begins and spend the entire day enjoying the Hawkeyes' tradition of tailgating.

Note: The information provided is based on publicly available sources and the University of Illinois's report on tailgating traditions. The data and figures are as of 2012 and may vary in recent years. The University of Iowa's report on tailgating traditions includes information on the tradition's history, popular pastimes, and University policy.

The University of Iowa reported that tailgating is not only a beloved tradition but also a major contributor to the local economy. The university estimates that fans spend an average of $200 per person on gameday, with a total of $8 million spent by all tailgaters.

The tradition continues to evolve, with new amenities and services being introduced to enhance the experience. Tailgaters can now enjoy a variety of food and beverage options, as well as entertainment and event-specific activities.

In summary, tailgating a Hawkeye-football tradition is a beloved and longstanding tradition that brings together fans and creates a unique gameday experience. As the tradition continues to evolve, it remains a crucial part of the Hawkeye football experience.

GROUPS CONSIDER AMENDMENT

Concern over implications of ERA focus of Wednesday night meeting

About 20 people, many wearing "Stop ERA" buttons, attended the informational meeting at the Union.

Thomas Watan

Despite having their meeting moved to the Old Capitol Center because of the presence of equal rights amendment supporters who had threatened to use the meeting as an inflammatory issue for those who would like to see the ERA proposed.

"The last time ERA was in Iowa was in 1980, when it was narrowly defeated for many of the same reasons that I saw Iowa lose this 1987 version," Leslie Alexander, a member of the Republican National Committee for Iowa and the Iowa Committee to Stop ERA.

"The ERA is attempting to define what constitutes marriage, in spite of the fact that Iowa women are fully protected now by the Iowa Constitution," Alexander said.

Mike Clark, a member of Student Action Against ERA, said he had a little different impression of the small turn-out.

"But I think all the people here are really energetic and we're going to get the message out," Clark said.

Clark added that they had offered to debate Eleanor Smith but she had declined.

"I wonder what's happened because the truth is on our side," said Clark. According to Clark, the proposed ERA would create a legal situation in which co-owners would be forced to pass the ERA for their property.

NIH defends risky breast-cancer drug study

Researchers pointed out that the drug, tamoxifen, may prevent 40 percent of breast-cancer cases.

Richard L. Vernaci Associated Press

WASHINGTON - Government researchers Thursday and again on Friday recommended that the drug be used despite adverse side effects to save lives in the end if it performs as hoped and prevents 40 percent of breast-cancer cases.

"There are things we don't know about tamoxifen - that's the name of the drug," Dr. Berend Brozek, deputy director of the National Cancer Institute's breast-cancer branch, told a Senate panel.

NIH and the National Cancer Institute's board of scientific advisors will conduct a new clinical study that will give the drug to 6,000 women to see if a preventive breast cancer. It has been used for 30 years in men, but not yet in women.

Last June, a new research has been published on the dangers of tamoxifen and new concerns about the study have been raised, said East Donald Payne, D.D.S., chairman of the Senate Government Operations subcommittee in human resources.

"To put, public health service experts long believed the study could expose women to risks that outweigh the likely benefits," Payne said.

But Brozek and his colleagues, disagreed with that, saying even drug therapy can be preventative.

"There is no intervention in which risk and benefit do not have a potential side effects," said Peter Greenwald, a National Cancer Institute's breast-cancer preventive. "This is one in which the contribution of risk and benefit do not have a potential reason for the trial - no intervention has to be made for breast cancer incidence and maintenance of its beneficial effects.

Women volunteering for this study were screened to ensure that they were healthy but considered at increased risk for developing breast cancer.

Sinead O'Connor to release album of rap during the 80's

Sinead O'Connor has announced that she plans to release an album of rap music during the 80's

She will be releasing her new album, "Rap Legends," which is a collection of her hit songs remixed in a rap style.

The album includes songs like "War," "Nothing Compares 2 U," and "The Edge of the World." O'Connor will also be performing live at select venues around the world to promote the album.

"I'm excited to see what people think of this album," O'Connor said in a statement. "I think it's a really unique project and I'm looking forward to seeing how people respond."

O'Connor has been known for her emotive singing style and her willingness to experiment with different genres. Her new album is a departure from her usual style, but she hopes it will appeal to a wider audience.

"I wanted to do something that was different and challenging," O'Connor explained. "I think people are ready for something new, and I'm excited to be a part of that."
Navy exercises off Seattle damage sea lions' refuge

Now, raise interest dancing but mest about: to enter a three-point Japanese freighter was..."
President Bush meaning a decision may fall to him. An American official, describing the situation, said that the government was considering a policy that would make it possible for a president to use military force. "No one should be surprised," he said, "that a president from the United States will have the authority to make decisions in this area." The official added that such a policy would allow the president to act in the "best interests of the United States and the region." He also noted that the policy would be subject to review by Congress.

The official's remarks come as the United States continues to assess the situation in the Middle East. The administration has been under pressure to respond to the crisis, which has included an Israeli offer to annex territory in the West Bank. The Israeli offer was made in response to a Palestinian peace initiative, which was launched earlier this month by the Palestinian Authority.

The official noted that the United States and other countries have been working closely with the parties involved to find a peaceful resolution. "We are working with all parties to ensure that a lasting peace is achieved," he said. "The United States is committed to the two-state solution, and we will continue to work towards that end."

TORONTO—Lennie Smith was nearly his alone before this one. He has tried in each of the last five games to see if he can do it again.

With another chance in the World Series, Smith has been more successful than usual in the first three games. He has driven in eight runs in the last three games, including three in the first game.

The Blue Jays had a second chance to win the World Series, but Smith's solo home run in the fifth inning gave them a 2-1 lead. Smith has driven in four runs in the last three games.

Iowa hosts Ohio State and Penn State this weekend in a pair of critical matches.

Iowa hosted Ohio State in its home opener. The Hawkeyes lost 16-0, 15-13 and 15-12, 15-8.

So far this season, Ohio State is 6-2 and Penn State is 4-4. Ohio State and Penn State are both in the top 10 in the Big Ten.

"Iowa is a tough team," said Ohio State's head coach. "We're going to have to play our best to beat them."

Four Iowa women make first trip to Riviera tourney

Michael Watkins
Iowa's tennis star

Prior to this weekend, the Iowa women's tennis team has never participated in the Riviera All-American, one of the nation's most prestigious events. Watkins' participation is significant because it marks the first time an Iowa player has ever qualified for the tournament.

Schulman: Hawkies off to a good start

Erin Schulman, a junior on the Iowa women's tennis team, believes that the team's performance at the Riviera Tournament is a positive start for the season. The tournament is one of the team's main goals for the year, and their success can be attributed to the strong team dynamics and individual skills.

Saturday's action

On Saturday, the Iowa women's tennis team faced tough competition, including opponents from other leading universities. Despite the challenges, the team showed resilience and determination, and their performance was promising.

Sunday's schedule

On Sunday, the team's schedule was less intense, with fewer matches and more time for rest and recovery. The team celebrated their hard work and focused on their next goals, ready to take on new challenges in the future.

The journey continues...

The Iowa women's tennis team has proven their ability to compete at a high level, and their success at the Riviera Tournament is a testament to their dedication and hard work. The team is looking forward to the next stage of their journey, eager to continue their impressive performance and make their mark on the tennis world.
Mr. Gregerson failed to find evidence of a conspiracy at that time or elsewhere in the case.

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — NBA star Michael Jordan testified in federal court Thursday that a $17,000 order of his drug was given to an undercover drug dealer named "Hugo" Brudevisted gambling losses to his boss, as an exclusive South Carolina lawyer said.

The government claims Brudevisted, 41, a real estate manager in New York, said Thursday, and his co-defendant, and was a friend of Jordan, who is drug and tobacco company, the government in court.

On Thursday, when defense attorney, 8-year-old Jordan's $17,000 order was free, he responded: "For what I feel, I'm not sure, but later in the game, I didn't have any money.

The Daily Iowan

The 1981 film "The Man" follows the 1981 film "The Man." However, "The Man" is a classic, "the man with the sound," the Daily Iowan said.

The program opened with a scene of a man in a hat and glasses, "a man with a hat, a man with glasses."

The time is the Iowa 1992 election, the Daily Iowan said.

THE MEETING places the audience into a further scene where everything seems simple, where people are always old enough, have no jobs, are not kids, go to church, drink tea on the porch and listen to Elvis Presley. By the time the plot reveals that even in this world of many disheartening lies, it is too easy to return to the day of some bygone innocence because the characters and the events in their lives have become too real.

"The Man in the Moon" isn’t the only show that uses its setting to its advantage. Its power comes from its underlying innocence and the agency it gives to its characters. The main event in this film is basically unnecessary, but it is the natural and necessary actions of the characters which most readily supply the drama of the film, not the events that occur in it.

I'm not Doc, he's Branford Marsalis.

That's the Branford Marsalis Homecoming!

He's not Doc, he's Branford Marsalis.

Many viewers are pleased with the wordless grandes that Doc has been putting Marsalis into settings with the past to build on, as a launching pad for our own music."

The ability to take enormous space in a blues form, but more as the blues relate to jazz. Branford's always in the past - that's what he's used to tell a good story. That's what blues music is.

Another motivating factor for making this record was Marsalis' desire to "reinvent the tile, and peasant aspects of black society. That means you're just playing, you're just playing music as a possible," as he told the Philadelphia Inquirer. "The blues are in general run away from the blues, it's unbelievable they're stuck on slavery, and the blues are a money-maker.

"What makes the blues so enviable to any sidekick, Garth Algar. A comic relief team was a prerequisite. Then, the second part of the record, making this record Marsalis' younger brother, Marquis, is counting off his first You've found your own style?" asked Marsalis. "I think, even Les Nuls admit it, the 17th-century dramatist, which syllables are reversed."

It's a very

To make the French go "Eh, c'est la vie!" and make a lesson in Francophone: "Nul's" distributors turned to "Malcolm X" and his home video release. But he will have more time to develop his skills in film and television work. He has acted in a few films and television shows.

What Marsalis has enjoyed the most is working with Wynton Marsalis, who is encouraging the young saxophonist to "find his own voice in jazz; it takes a lot of time - that's what a lot of people don't understand."

The "Thank You, Father" surrounding Marsalis with his brother, Marquis, is counting off his first.

When Marsalis was asked if there was still room to go "Tain", the thing that Chabat said unequivocally, "There is always room to go. .. every time you're 32 now, do you think you're facing the past is some­thing that Doc has been putting Marsalis into settings with the past to build on, as a launching pad for our own music."

When asked about what difference size makes in his qualifications for a football player, Iowa coach Hayden Fry told the following story: "Coach Landry (ex-Dallas Cowboys skipper Tom Landry) and I were real close when I was coaching at SMU. He had a chance to observe a little fellow by the name of Jerry Levias that we advertised. Levias was 5-foot-8 or 5-foot-9, 165 pounds or so. He led the nation in receiving with 88 catches, and was just a phenomenal athlete. So on one of the few times I guess I ever mowed my lawn, I was out in the front yard and Coach Landry came by. He stopped, and got out and he said 'Coach, do you really believe Jerry Levias is big enough to play professional football?' And I thought about it for a couple of minutes, and I said, 'Coach, do you measure the young man when he crosses the goal line?'

Medical Miracles

Fry on how fast some of the Hawkeyes have been able to recuperate from injuries: "You see guys like Bret Bielema come back two weeks ahead of time; Scott Davis came back three weeks ahead of time. ... All of the running backs and fullbacks didn't practice and we were using scout team personnel and we still got 128 yards out of our tailback tandem."

Improving Defense

Fry concerning the quality of the defense in recent games: "Certainly our defense is really coming on now, after a slow start against some of the best teams in the nation. They gave up a 48-yard drive and a one-yard drive, and that was it. When you hold Illinois to 14 points and only two drives over 30 yards, that was a great accomplishment."

When You're Hot...

Fry commenting on Purdue's 41-14 thrashing of California earlier this season: "They led California 38 to zip at halftime of their opener. Evidently California underestimated their ability, but that gives you an idea of when I say that they have the ability to be very hot. When they're hot, they're hot. They really took care of California."

Secret Weapon

Fry on center Mike Devlin: "He's kind of like a groundhog. The dirtier, the mudier, the more pain, the more he loves it. He's the most dedicated football player I've ever been around."

Hawkeye Profile: Scott Plate

Plate surprises everyone with speed

Michael Watkins
The Daily Iowan

Iowa defensive back Scott Plate is no stranger to covering some of the fastest, most elusive receivers in college football.

Just take a look at the list of “Who’s Who in College Receivers” for which he and the Iowa secondary have been responsible over the past two seasons: Desmond Howard, last year’s Heisman recipient, burner Michael Westbrook of Colorado, and the entire receiving corps of No. 1 ranked Miami.

Plate looks more like a strong safety than a cornerback. He stands 5-foot-ll, weighs 195 pounds and can bench press 400 pounds - he’s built more like Doug Plank than Rickey Green. Yet Plate and teammate Carlos James are anchoring an Iowa secondary that has already collected 12 interceptions - the same number Iowa had all of last year.

Plate says his stocky appearance can work to his advantage.

"I may get overlooked by a lot of teams when they come out and run a pattern on me," said Plate, who runs better than a 4.5 40-yard dash. "But I think that I’ve proven that I can cover anybody I go up against. I just try to let my play speak for itself, and try to get respect from that."

Plate ran the 100 and 200-yard dash and the relays with brothers Rick and Todd for the Columbia Central High School track team in Brooklyn, Mich., and says that when it comes to mirroring receivers down the length of a football field, speed is the name of the game.

Ironmen remember Iowa hero Kinnick

By Ken L. Karados
The Daily Iowan

He is described by his teammates as having been one of the slowest guys on the team.

He was small according to football standards, standing 5 feet 6 inches tall and weighing 175 pounds, yet he became an all-American football player, won the Heisman Trophy and the Maxwell Trophy, and even more notably, the University of Iowa re-named Iowa Stadium in his honor.

The man was Nile Kinnick, tailback on the 1939 Iowa football team.

Five of the remaining seven players from this 1939 team showed up at their sixth reunion to reminisce about this great athlete and one of the most celebrated teams in Iowa history. A program entitled "A Celebration of Nile Kinnick and the Ironmen," was held at the Johnson County Senior Citizens Center on Oct. 9.

The title of "Ironmen" was coined because twelve members of the 37 player team played the full 60 minutes in at least one of the eight games.

"Back then you didn't get to go on the sidelines and rest," explained Bill Green, 1939 fullback.

Although Kinnick may have been slow and small for this sport, his discipline, determination and knowledge of the game helped him to overcome his physical attributes.

"He had no speed, he really wasn't a natural athlete like Michael Jordan is, but he was very, very tough," said Erwin Prasse, the team captain in 1939. "He mowed over people who weighed 250 pounds and you could see the surprised look in their eyes. He was about 175 pounds and he used every ounce of that weight in what he was doing."

"He had little hands, yet he was the greatest passer in the country that year. Nile had the ability to adapt and make things happen and make things happen the right way. He had unbelievable leadership," Green said.

Kinnick, who was killed as a Navy fighter pilot in World War II, remains spiritually among his former teammates.

"Al Coupee has always said that any day now Nile is going to be walking out of the jungle some place apologizing for being late. I think that suggests that this guy was such a brilliant person," Prasse said.

The Iowa football team won only 22 games between 1930 and 1938. The 1939 season was a complete turnaround as the team compiled a 6-1-1 record.

"We had come out of the tough times of the depression and so forth and it was a very poor period of time for the football program at Iowa, and to be able to make a comeback contribution meant a lot to us guys," Green said.

Iowa vs. Purdue: Bowl Implications

FYI: There will be bowl scouts present at Kinnick Stadium Saturday when Iowa hosts Purdue. That's good news for a team that started 1-4, assuming that the Citrus and Holiday Bowl reps will be more interested in the Hawkeyes than the Boilermakers.

The chances of Purdue (2-4, 1-2) going to either the Citrus or Holiday Bowl are slim, but they could spoil Iowa's chances. The conference runner-up will win an automatic Citrus berth if the team has eight wins. The third-place finisher will earn an automatic Holiday berth if the team has eight wins.

Both bowls can pick a Big Ten team with at least eight wins over a second- or third-place finisher. The best Purdue can finish this season is 7-5. Iowa (3-4, 2-1) is still in good shape. If the Hawkeyes win their last five games, they will go to a bowl game, probably the Citrus Bowl. Only Michigan State (2-4, 2-1) can tie Iowa for second place if the Hawkeyes win the rest of their games, but the Spartans can only finish 7-4 at best.

The Spartans are currently tied with Iowa and Wisconsin (4-2, 2-1) for second, and Iowa already beat the Badgers head-to-head. The Hawkeyes and Spartans won't meet this season.

The Big Ten's Citrus representative will play the loser in the Southeast Conference championship game. The SEC is divided into East and West divisions, with the winner of each playing for the title. Currently, seventh-ranked Georgia leads the East at 4-1 and No. 4 Alabama leads the West at 4-0.

The Big Ten's Holiday Bowl representative will meet the Western Athletic Conference champ, which could be any number of teams — Wyoming, San Diego State and BYU. Iowa is no stranger to the Holiday, playing there three times and earning a 2-0-1 record, with last season's 13-13 with BYU the only blemish.

After losing to Michigan 52-28 on Oct. 3, the Hawkeyes talked about just finishing the year with a winning record. But the fact is, a Citrus matchup between an 8-4 Iowa team and either Alabama or Georgia would be a major bowl game. Somewhat less important (but perhaps a better game) would be a Holiday matchup with a scoring machine like San Diego State, which is led by Heisman candidate Marshall Faulk.

Though third-ranked Michigan is running away with the Big Ten — and possibly setting up a national championship Rose Bowl with top-ranked Washington — Iowa is shaping up as the best of the rest. ESPN analyst and former N.E. Patriot Craig James may have put it best when he said, "You've got Michigan, then you've got everybody else, and Iowa is the best of everybody else."

Olejniczak follows older brother's lead

Jeff Darby
Special to The Daily Iowan

OK, Iowa fans, it's time for a little quiz on your football team. Who is currently leading the 1992 Hawkeyes in tackles? Mike Wells? A likely selection, but no. Doug Buch? Close. Jeff Nelson? You're getting warmer. Not many people will guess Jason Olejniczak, even though he's at the top of the statistical chart.

Olejniczak had 72 career tackles in 12 games entering the 1992 season. He's nearly duplicated that number in just over half as many contests this year. What happened to cause such a drastic turnaround? "Well, I stuck around during the summer and worked with the weight coaches," Olejniczak explained. "It didn't increase my strength, because I try to maintain my weight (195 pounds). But it did help increase my speed and quickness working with strength coaches Paul Longo and Ray Moran."

Olejniczak's dedication to the gridiron also meant sacrificing his job as an outfielder for the Iowa baseball team. Olejniczak appeared in 17 games for Duane Banks' Hawkeyes in 1991, making 12 starts. "I felt coming into football this year that I had a chance to start," Olejniczak, a reserve for two years said. "I needed to go through spring ball and show the coaches I could play. I'd like to give baseball another chance sometime."

With all of Olejniczak's defensive accomplishments in 1992, it's hard to believe he received most of his high school recognition as a quarterback. Olejniczak lead Decorah High School to a 31-2 record and two state titles as a starting signal-caller.

When Olejniczak came to Iowa, the coaches told him he would be given an opportunity to battle for the quarterback job. However, guys like Matt Rodgers, Jim Hartlieb, and Tom Poholsky were listed above him on the depth chart. "I would have had to wait a long time," Olejniczak said. "I didn't want to do that, so in August 1989 I switched to defensive back."

Ironically, Olejniczak's decision

Many new activities for '92 Homecoming

Many people will be in town just to see Iowa’s game against the Purdue Boilermakers, but there are several other things to do during Homecoming Week at Iowa.

(Carl Bonnett/The Daily Iowan)

The Executive Council planned some new events to celebrate the week. The Executive Council will provide a designated driving program in cooperation with downtown businesses for those who do not choose to drink alcohol during the celebration. "The Homecoming Council has provided us with Homecoming cups that we sell for a dollar," said Chris Dawson, assistant manager at The Deadwood. "Then we'll continue to refill the cups with pop all night long for free."

The Deadwood is only one of several bars that are sponsoring the program which began Oct. 16 and continues until Sunday. Fata Teganem, owner of Vito’s, said that the program is a good idea so "people won’t think that they’re not part of the bar." He said that people are already taking advantage of the deal and that Vito’s sold about 12 of the cups last weekend. "It’s a nice looking cup and we hope people are drinking pop in it," he added. "We’ll make sure of it."

Dawson said that the program should benefit everyone because it promotes "safety and responsible drinking."

The Executive Council has also sold the cups to the fraternities and

Boilermaker Leaders

Senior wideout Ernest Calloway has caught 20 passes for 321 yards this year, and ranks 11th on the all-time Purdue leaders list with 91 receptions. All-Big Ten cornerback Jimmy Young ranks second in the conference with seven passes broken up. Walkon kicker Joe O'Leary has made all nine of his field goal attempts, and has not missed an extra point attempt in 13 tries.

Field hockey team remains undefeated

Field hockey

The Iowa field hockey team improved to 13-0 on the season with a pair of victories last weekend at Grant Field.

The No. 2 ranked Hawkeyes stopped Michigan by a 7-1 count before beating No. 3 Penn State 3-2 in double overtime. All-American Kristy Gleason scored two goals against Penn State, the last one coming at the 13:30 mark of the second overtime.

“We had to step it up and play another level. I think that showed a lot of character,” Gleason said.

Women’s tennis

The Iowa women’s tennis team kept their perfect record against Iowa State intact with their 25th victory in as many meetings last weekend in Iowa City.

The Hawkeyes blasted the Cyclones 9-0 at the UI Recreational Building, and upped their dual meet record to 3-0 on the season.

Iowa team captain Andrea Calvert whipped Iowa State’s Connie McGough 6-1, 6-2 at No. 2 singles.

“The entire team showed me that they were intense and meant business despite our past meetings with them,” Iowa head coach Micki Schillig said.

Volleyball

The Iowa volleyball team dropped to 1-7 in the conference and 9-11 overall as they lost to Michigan and Michigan State on the road last weekend.

Iowa lost to the Wolverines 15-12, 4-15, 11-15, 15-7, 15-11.

“We just didn’t start out playing well,” freshman Jennifer Welu said. “That’s all it’s been this season. Once you dig yourself a hole, it’s hard to get back up.

Men’s cross country

The Iowa men’s cross country team defeated Western Illinois and Coe College in a double-dual meet last weekend at Finkbine golf Course in Iowa City.

Hawkeye Kevin Herd took his fourth individual title in four meets, with a time of 25 minutes, 21 seconds.

“I was really happy with the effort of our top five guys,” Iowa coach Larry Wieczorek said. “I’m happy with where we are at and I feel really good about us going into the Big Ten meet.”

Women’s cross country

The Iowa women’s cross country team posted a perfect score as they won the Iowa Invitational last Saturday at Finkbine Golf Course.

Iowa took the first five places, with senior all-American Tracy Dahl Morris capturing first place in a time of 18 minutes, 42 seconds. Junior Jennifer Johnson placed a close second with a time of 18 minutes, 43 seconds.

“We’re putting things together that will help us run well at the championship meets,” Iowa coach Jerry Hassard said.

"While we only contributed a small portion to Iowa football history, it was unique. It came at a unique time and we had a unique year."

Part of the team's success had to do with the new head coach, Dr. Eddie Anderson. As a result of his stringent spring training, only 37 of the 80 candidates remained on the team.

Eddy brought a new excitement to the program. He brought a lot of knowledge and he knew what he wanted.

"He had worked out a plan and he knew how to implement it and he was very forceful in the implementation," Green said.

Green says that the greatest accomplishment of this team was putting together a group of guys that relied extensively on one another.

"The ability of that team to hang together and to count on each other has been ever-lasting, that's the remarkable part. We've remained unforgettable to each other and it was an unforgettable experience," Green said.

"I think that this is probably the only football team that I've heard of that actually has a five year reunion and we've done it for 45 years," said Couppee, author of "One Magic Year, 1939: An Ironman Remembers."

"We'll be having our reunions in 1994 and 1999, as long as there's a couple of guys left."

"Although the remaining players are dwindling, they are not worried that the legend of Nile Kinnick and the Ironmen will be forgotten. "The fans are the ones who I see will continue to reminisce about the Ironmen and Nile Kinnick in particular and they will pass it on," Couppee said.

...to switch from quarterback to defensive back paralleled that of his older brother Lon, who played for Iowa from 1979-83. Lon also came to Iowa as a quarterback before swinging to defensive back and ultimately becoming a wide receiver. Today, Jason looks to Lon for guidance and support.

"When things aren't going well, he picks me up, and he keeps me level-headed when things are going great," the younger Olejniczak said.

"He's been a stabilizing factor."

Olejniczak's football success has carried over into his classwork. A business major, Olejniczak entered the fall semester with a 3.34 grade-point average. He has also been an academic all-Big Ten selection each of the last two years.

"The last couple of years I haven't been a starter, so it's been easier to work on school," Olejniczak admitted. "This year is the test."

Olejniczak is on the verge of earning a marketing degree, but is taking a lot of science courses. With that combination, he hopes to advance to either medical school or optometry school.

Naturally, he would appreciate a chance to play in the NFL as well, though he still has a year of eligibility remaining.

"It has always been my dream, but you can't bank on it," he said.

In the meantime, Olejniczak will concentrate on helping his team secure a bowl bid.

"It's a cliche, but we need to take each game one at a time," he said.

"Realistically, we are evenly matched with every team from here on out.

"If we win every game, we'll get to a bowl. If we could come out of the season 8-4, that's not bad."

Comedy Night was also added to this year's activities.

Owner of Walaby's, Art Ross, said that the program was a combined effort of the CCB and the Walaby's Comedy Club Tuesday.

Comedy Night was also added to this year's festivities.
Amateur comedians competed at Wallaby's Comedy Club Tuesday night for various prizes. First prize included $25 dinners for two at The Kitchen and two tickets for the Homecoming game.
Owner of Wallaby's, Art Floss said that the program was a combined effort of the club and the council. "We provided a venue and they came up with some extra advertising and prizes," Floss said.
Floss said that the event should catch on as a new tradition for Homecoming Week.
Lastly, a Hayden Fry impersonation has been added to the week's celebration. Students and all others had a chance to dress and imitate Iowa's football coach during intermission of the Iowa Shout Contest Wednesday night.
According to Leinberger, Fry "approved" of the contest. Recreation Director Jill Johnson said that the contest was a fun idea to get people involved in Homecoming.
"I think it was a suggestion from last year that's never been done before," Johnson said. "It should get a little more involvement and promote spirit for the week."

so Icicles on campus.
"I'll use it because I go out a lot and sometimes I don't drink," said junior Jodi Cohn, a member of Alpha Xi Delta. "I go to the Airliner a lot and just drink pop."
Homecoming Director Karl Leinberger said that the council had 10,000 cups printed and that about 8,000 of them will be sold during the game at the stadium Saturday.
"We wanted to get some more exposure, other than the buttons," Leinberger said.
"We could get the cups at low cost and they are more useful to the people."
Leinberger borrowed the idea from a similar program that two radio disc jockeys designed in his hometown of Jacksonville, Ill.
"It raises awareness and gives people an option not to drink," Leinberger said. "It also shows the responsibility of the bars."
In addition to the designated driver program, an Amateur

FOUR FLOORS • DOWNTOWN IOWA CITY • 338-3145

"I think that without speed, there's only so much technique you can play, and if you don't match up well man-for-man, you're going to get eaten up," said the second-team all-state, all-area selection at both corner back and tail back in high school.

"I think that even though you know that the receivers are really fast and quick and you think that you can rely on speed, you still really have to concentrate on your technique."

The major thing as a defensive back is just to keep your shoulders low and square. If you're up high, then you really can't break on anything. So I think that keeping low and keeping your weight out over your feet helps a lot.

"It's also important not to play so soft where they can complete a lot of passes on you, but also not to play so aggressively that they can play an out an up and burn you. In certain situations you've just got to let it loose and go for it."

Even though he owns the black and gold proudly for Iowa now, Plate, whose older brother Todd and cousin Troy played for Michigan, grew up cheering on the Wolverines and aspired as a child to one day wear the blue and maize.

"I wanted to go to Michigan when I was little and I use to watch them on TV all the time," said Plate, who is currently fourth in passes defensed and tied for sixth in interceptions in the Big Ten.

"But when I started getting recruited and Iowa started talking to me, I was definitely more interested in Iowa."

"A lot of influence in coming to Iowa instead of Michigan was from my brother (Todd). Even though he really loved going to Michigan, he told me about the ins and outs and what they looked for. When he was at Michigan, the coaches never really got to know my family, and Iowa was totally different. They really cared about me both as a person and a football player."

"Scott has just done a tremendous job for us the past two seasons, this season in particular," Fry said.

"The secondary has definitely been one of the strongest parts of our team this season. Scott has kind of been the field general back in the secondary, and he has really stepped up his play this year. And he's done it against some of the nation's premiere receivers."

One of the reasons that Plate says he's playing better and his results have improved this season is that he's taking more chances and going for the ball more.

"The last two years, I didn't really make some big plays, I just did my job, so to speak," said Plate, who is 10th on the team with 27 tackles, has defensed six passes, has a fumble recovery, and is tied for second in interceptions with two.

"Now I believe that I can make a big play and go out an execute, and sometimes that means you have to gamble a little bit. If you do, then you're great, and if you don't, then you just need to try it again."

With seven games gone and the season more than halfway over, Plate says that because of the standings in the conference and each game being more and more important, the Hawkeyes will have to buckle-down this weekend against Purdue.

"Being back here and playing against Purdue, I know that they'll play us tough," Plate said. "The way it looks right now in the Big Ten, no one can mess up, so we're going to be coming in here with the attitude that we're playing Michigan."
