Residents speak out at cable TV forum

Jode Sanderson

Supporters of Public Access Televison, a Cablevision cable project, packed the City Council chambers Wednesday evening to voice their views for and against public-access cable.

The hearing was held to seek public comment on a proposal to open the channel to non-profit use. The channel is being offered by Cablevision under a five-year, $510,000 contract with the city.

Dr. Larry Schlesinger, associate professor of civil and engineering at the University of Iowa, said the network would be a valuable tool for the public.

"We're avoiding serious problems
by not giving them the channel,
" he said, "but I tell you, if it's not used, it's expensive.

"I don't know what to do with them now, but if they don't provide with any money to make something productive, we need something.
" Schlesinger added.

"We're giving away problems
now in the public-access area,
" he said, "but we've got to be careful.

"I think it's a good balance of pros and cons, and we should be looking at the positive.
" Schlesinger said.

The network would give voters a chance to see the candidates and would be a way to discuss problems.

"I think it's a good idea
to have the candidates on TV," he said.

"What I'm looking for is how we can use this medium as a way to communicate with the public.

Students attend 'Malcolm X' without cutting class, work

The Daily Iowan

"I flew out and people didn't know what we were doing so we didn't have to cut class," said the director of the show, Sandy Lee. "Everyone that was at the performance was there voluntarily."

Lee said that she and her crew had a hard time finding good actors for the show, and that they had to audition all of the students who wanted to participate. "We had to do a lot of auditions and try to find people who were willing to learn."

One of the main challenges of putting on a show about a controversial figure like Malcolm X is the language. "I had to make sure that the language was appropriate for the audience," said Lee. "We had to be careful not to offend anyone."

Despite these challenges, Lee and her crew were able to put on a successful show. "I'm really proud of the students," said Lee. "They all worked really hard and put in a lot of effort."

The Daily Iowan

"I was excited to see the show," said the assistant director, Loren Keller. "I thought it was really well done."

Keller said that the students had put in a lot of effort and that the end result was worth it. "It was a lot of work, but it was all worth it in the end," said Keller.

Confronting race issues
lock-in's aim

Sara Epstein

UI graduate student Duede Landry led a discussion on race issues in an event on Friday, November 18. Landry and a handful of students have agreed to continue the discussions during a 12-hour lock-in that began on Friday.

"Growing up in a town that didn't have a lot of blacks, I didn't think I had to participate in the lock-in," he said. "I thought racism was improving." Extra-Grape, a UI student, said this is the attitude to improve race relations.

Matthew Polson, a UI senior and resident national at Quadragre Hall, helped arrange the filmmaker presentation and will also participate in the lock-in.

Questioning the ‘end to the gridlock’

O. Nov. 3, the Republicans captured a decisive win of the House of Representatives. The Democratic majority in the Senate, however, stood firm, and the two parties are now gearing up for the upcoming elections. The outcome of these elections is crucial for both parties, as it will determine whether the US government will continue to operate under, or break free from, the so-called ‘gridlock’.

The gridlock refers to the situation in which the two parties are unable to cooperate, resulting in legislative gridlock. This has been a common occurrence in recent history, with the two parties unable to agree on key issues such as immigration, healthcare, and fiscal policy. The result is that important legislation is often not passed, and the government is unable to address the needs of the American people.

The gridlock has been exacerbated by the fact that the two parties are ideologically divided. Each party has its own agenda, and is often unwilling to compromise on key issues. This has resulted in a situation where the government is unable to pass legislation, and the American people are left to feel frustrated and disappointed.

However, the outcome of the upcoming elections is crucial for the future of the US. If the Democrats win, they will be able to gain control of the House and the Senate, and will be able to pass legislation that is important to the American people. On the other hand, if the Republicans win, they will be able to continue to block legislation that is important to the American people.

Regardless of the outcome, it is clear that the gridlock must end. The American people deserve better, and it is time for the two parties to come together, put aside their differences, and work towards a better future for all Americans.

Women make up record 20% of legislatures

Women now represent in record numbers in the state capitols across the country, giving them the opportunity to influence political decisions. "Women tend to focus on issues that are closer to their hearts," said one legislator. But women also drive a different political agenda. When women hold the majority, they are more likely to focus on issues such as health care, education, and the environment.

Women were constitutionally entitled to vote in 1919, up from 5 percent in 1973 and 13 percent this year, the source said. In 1920, 50 percent of states allowed women to vote. Today, women hold 13 percent of all state legislative seats. Women now make up 19 percent of Congress and 20 percent of state legislatures.

Acting Secretary of State Law of Washington, an expert in women's policy issues, was quoted as saying, "Women are more collaborative, open-minded, and have a more positive attitude toward change." The Illinois Women's Caucus, which is pushing for more representation, said, "Women make a significant difference in the political process." The Illinois Women's Caucus has more than 100 members.

Bonds, 31, is a three-time MVP who has won 314 games and topped 500 home runs in 12 seasons. In 1992, he had 31 home runs, 111 points and a .362 average.

Bonds said his main goal was to win the NL MVP award, something he hadn't done since 1992.

"We're not in the same league," Bonds said. "He's had success for five years. I have worked hard for five years. I think it's about time for the people to recognize me.

The difference this season is that Bonds is preparing to play for a new team in 1993. The new outfielder will be looking for a contract that pays him at least $250,000 per year, and it's unlikely the Pirates will match that.

"Bonds said, 'I don't really want to talk about that."

The team most interested in Bonds is the Baltimore Orioles, which is among the 15 daily payroll. Bonds went season-ending on the Accessories, Hernandez, Hernandez.

Bonds has earned $250,000 and won MVP honors in each of the last three seasons.

Bonds is confident in his ability to win his 200 home runs in a season.

"I think it is probably the most stable year of my career. This season, I feel more comfortable. I feel more at home."

Bonds, the son of former major league pitcher Bobby Bonds, led the Pittsburgh Pirates to their third World Series title in consecutive years.

Bonds, who was MVP in those years, was 25 when he began his career as a pitcher for the Atlanta Braves.

Bonds told the Associated Press, "I'm not sure if I'll ever talk about the past."

"What I'm trying to do is make a comment. I'm not sure what the team needed. If they need me to play second, then that's fine."

Bonds has emerged as one of the best players in the major leagues, because of his at-bat-around hit power.

Bonds, who was once a left-handed batter, has hit .299, while Dibble's average was .281.

Bonds said he would like to hit 40 home runs, 110 runs and a .362 average.

"I want to be the first to do it four times," Bonds said.

It wasn't a bad loss. Ray Handley said after Oklahoma couldn't score the last drive against Texas. "But we still control our own destiny."

Missouri, which had averaged 14 points a game, got routed 48-10 in the Orange Bowl Friday night.

"The situation isn't as bad as it seems, " said Missouri coach lan. " We had a good start and were up 28-10 in the first quarter."

The Missouri fans decided to press their advantages, not allowing the Sooners to win.

Bob Dylan's "Good as I Been to You" is for those who speak his language

Tina Kossman
The Daily Iowan

Bob Dylan's newly titled release, Good As I Been To You, marks a return to the roots that made him a star over 30 years ago. It's also the first of his albums in more than a decade.

Known in the 1960s for folk music dealing with modern issues, he was referred to by John Lennon as "the only person who's really stuck with the Beatles." In the 1970s, he became known more as a folk artist, but four albums ago, in 1985, he went in the opposite direction with Oh Mercy, his first rock-oriented album in more than 20 years.

Putting aside his traditional folk music in favor of more complete musical arrangements which included horn and electric instruments, he felt the move caused a transformation. And with shows where typically soft-spoken Dylan is known to产业园区 to产业园区 to产业园区 to产业园区, his live shows are now an arena, with fans often singing along even as he is seated on a piano and playing a solo acoustic guitar.

"Dylan has been in the business for almost 30 years. He's been able to grow without losing his fans, which is a rare feat," said Jeff Copeland, a 1987 graduate of the University of Iowa who is now a record producer in New York City. "It's remarkable that he's been able to make albums both for his own enjoyment and for his fans." He's also been good at that"

Bob Dylan's "Good as I Been to You," the best selling of his nine albums, now has the same name as his new release. It will be released in May, and it's his first new album since "Oh Mercy" was released in March.

Dylan's new album, "Good As I Been To You," is a collection of songs that he has recorded in the past 40 years, many of which were used in his early career. The songs are arranged in a way that captures the essence of each song and the era in which it was written.

Dylan's music has always been a mix of folk, rock, and country, and his new album reflects that. The songs on the album range from simple acoustic numbers to more complex arrangements with horns and electric instruments. The result is a fresh and exciting take on his classic material.

"I think Dylan has always been a great musician," said Copeland. "He's able to capture the essence of each song and make it his own, which is really remarkable."

15 students and Iowa City residents will have an opportunity to hear writer and novelist Richard Ford read from his new work tonight at Shankus Auditorium under the sponsorship of the Union Board. Ford is the author of the books, "In the Order of Their Departure," "The Sport of the Gods," and "Wild Life," and won the 1990 National Book Critics Circle Award for Fiction for "Wild Life." He read from his latest book, "The Sport of the Gods," last October at the University of Iowa.

Ford's short stories have appeared in The New Yorker, The Paris Review, The Atlantic Monthly, and many other publications. He has received many awards, including the National Book Critics Circle Award, the PEN Faulkner Award, and the National Medal of Arts for his lifetime achievement in writing.

Ford's work is known for its realistic portrayal of ordinary people and their struggles. He is known for his precise language and his ability to create a sense of place. His stories often explore themes of family, love, and the human condition.

The event will begin at 8 p.m. Tickets are $5 for adults and $3 for students. The event is free for members of the Iowa City community.
