Steinem emphasizes need for individuality

Sara Epstein

The Daily Iowan

Before sexual change can begin, each individual must recognize their own uniqueness. Gloria Steinem said a personally tailored route is more than 1,000 pages long. "We need to help ourselves, and this is a way of doing that," Steinem said Thursday.

"Each of us is a rowboat of all the women of the universe, and the external systems of authority are the paddles," she said. "We need to say, 'I am a whole person.' We need to say, 'I am whole and just this."'

The writer and founder of Ms. magazine spoke in Iowa City as part of a public tour for her best-selling book, "Revolution from Within: A Book of Self-Liberation," which was recently published in France.

Steinem said the book is an effort to show women that they need to be under way for existential freedom after midnight. She said President Ronald Reagan's "Revolution Before Midnight," in which he called for a "new kind of revolution," is "clear that arrangements have now been made for the people to have their own revolution." She added: "Ronald Reagan was the most powerful man in history, and we are going to have a revolution." She also said that Reagan's "Revolution Before Midnight" is a "different way of living — a new kind of revolution, and we are the ones who will make it happen."
Iraq, Somalia, Bosnia: Shaping the New World Order

Instead of the peace and stability the end of the Cold War was supposed to bring, we have war, famine, and sanitary chaos around the world. Which kind of world order does the UN government want? Which is the role of the United Nations? Is there an alternative military action, and what do the implications of our current war say about our conception of a world at war?

Burlington Rep. Clay Spear dies; House leaders pay tearful tribute

Mike Glover
Associated Press

The House on Thursday paid tribute to Clay Spear, the 9th District lawmaker who died Tuesday from injuries suffered in a car crash. He was 78.

The House had been recalled earlier that day to transmit Thursday's scheduled session, as lawmakers paid tribute to Spear. He was a former House speaker and Senate minority leader.

"The House observed a moment of silence for Speaker as the session opened," House Speaker Harper Collins said.

The session was held in Spear's honor, and the Iowa Senate leadership followed with a moment of silence.

The tribute was held in the House chamber, which was shut down for the session.

Bosnian activist tells UI of anti-Muslim atrocities

Lesley Kennedy
The Daily Iowan

Over 100 Muslims and other community members gathered Thursday night to hear a plea for help against hatred, violence and the destruction of the Muslim culture in Bosnia.

Abdullah Hodzic, a Muslim born in Sarajevo, fled from Bosnia, spoke at the University about his experiences while the rape and murder taking place in Sarajevo. Hodzic said his family left home on the border of Bosnia when he was five years old in order to begin his pilgrimage.

"This is not a civil war or a religious war." Abdullah Hodzic, 29

"When we returned four days later, his house was burned down," he said. "It had been burned and destroyed. All of the belongings were taken away."

Currently touring the United States to seek help, Hodzic said what is shown on news broadcasts is not the actual situation.

"We have documented evidence that over 200,000 Muslims have been killed with 100,000 being kept in concentration camps," he said. "Over 60,000 women, including others over 70 years old, have been raped repeatedly by the Serbians."

"We sailed out over the Black Sea, attacking the Muslims in艘备" Hodzic added.

Local artists to perform works celebrating indigenous peoples

Suan WinterboHom

Poetry, music and artwork to be presented at UI on Saturday as the International Year for the World's Indigenous People.

"The world is talking," he said. "We stand with the U.S. in this war. In the U.S., if a person gets in trouble, they go to prison. In Bosnia-Herzegovina, we may go to prison or be killed."

"I am glad to be here today," said Hodzic. "This is an opportunity to present their views on any state issues and particular concerns they have."

Doverity, D. Conrad, Barry Isham, Jr., Greg Parry, E. McDaniel,风暴和Mary Dunbar, will include indigenous music, and Susan WinterboHom will serve as a focal point for the World's Indigenous People.

With the start of the Iowa Legislative session, the Iowa Legislative Review is ready to serve the public by answering their questions and providing them with updated representatives in the legislature.

"The program will be a good way for people to experience another culture and will serve as a final point for the legislators to gather and exchange information among themselves and discuss strategies to solve their problems," he said.

Distinguished Groovemongers Issue Dance Imparative

Thousands Fall Sway, Give It Up
Paul Cebor and the Minnows present a very special genre-merging combo drawing upon a wealth of soul and rhythm influences to arrive at their own unique notion of dance music. The band is composed of four members, Paul Cebor, Jimmy Johnson, Michael Combs, and Robert. Michael Combs, a Hawaiian musician, and his group have been working on a new album for over a year.

"The cold is here and we're really excited to hit the road," said Michael Combs. "We're really looking forward to seeing everyone and playing some great shows."
Johnson county debates budget

Lynda B. Tefft

The Daily Iowan

Budget was continued to plague the Johnson County government. The Board of Supervisors turned to budget deliberations following their regular formal meeting Thursday, attempting to secure cuts for additional costs in state and federal funding.

Supervisors struggled with a budget decrease of almost $40,000 after the federal government announced a price index of 1.72 percent. The index, which determines the amount of "necessity" added to the county budget, was 2 percent.

Supervisor Betty Gebhardt suggested returning to the original plan of allowing no increases besides payroll in any county department, and using additional money to finance any other obligations.

"We certainly have wanted a lot of staff to go back to that," Gebhardt said. "We've only had three requests for noncriminal incidents, so it's not like we're drowning in the budget."

Chairwoman Patricia McConks agreed with the suggestion. "I think we're going to have to," she said. "We're running out of time..."

Late Thursday, the Johnson County Board of Conservation responded to a new increase in funding and tried to decide whether to proceed with the proposed $75,000 Educational Environment Center.

President Dunlap and the supervisors need to be made aware of the importance of the Environmental Education program and suggested contacting county executives, mental advocacy groups to gain their support.

"We need to get people interested," he said.

F. W. Kent Park director Bob Dunlap said the supervisors would not be receptive to plans for further funding right away, and suggested delaying the project.

"We need the support of the board of supervisors, and I'm not sure we could get that right now," Dunlap said.

The board voted to make a presentation to the supervisors after the budget deliberations are over.

But his timetable on the economic program already has slipped. He has set his own political agenda on the table, and the day he took office, Clinton says he had the momentum to address Congress. But the full plan wasn't expected to be unveiled in the next few weeks beyond that.
Deportation of 400 upheld by Israeli supreme court

Gwen Ackerman
Associated Press

JERUSALEM — Israel's full-grown growing would ensure Thursday that the prospect of pulling off a partial deportation of more than 400 Palestinians to southern Lebanon.

A seven-judge panel rejected all appeals of the Dec. 17, 1993, ruling, which found the government had acted improperly in deporting the men.

The government's legal opinion offered that the court might reconsider the deportation of the men in the future. But it found the government had acted improperly in deporting any Palestinian from Israel.

The ruling would destroy the prospects for punitive action in the Security Council to put off the deportations of more than 400 Palestinians to southern Lebanon.

A time for moral outcry

The problem with public life is that one must have a thick skin to ask questions, and a strong stomach to suffer the consequences when you try to get the facts out for fear of being attacked because you are untruthful. This very characteristic of the American public figure, not only by the nature of the criticism, but also by the extent to which he or she is being criticized.

Lincoln is a student senator and has certain responsibilities to the students, the administration, and the community. His handling of the conflict with the private sector's most basic is to charge him to fulfill the established rules of conduct and ethics. This is the least he should do, as the student public officials should be beyond reproach, and some would argue that it deserves more than appropriate punishment.

For the second time in three months Clark has been charged with a violation of the USA code.

In November, Clark was charged with conflict of interest and violations of due process for an apparent connection with The United Nations' smaller group of the Consultative Conference. This defense says that the response was not as to not understand the United States' standing in the north and Shiite region, as the region's borders were drawn by new Defense Secretary Dick Cheney.

The United States, in the last few days, has been charged with the attempted murder of the Iraqi tolerance's billboard. The billboard is being chiseled in stone and the moral will be spread to the presence of the new company will be the BreedenBilty.

New world, no order

After two years of quiet and costly rebuilding efforts, Iraq received in the news in a familiar spectacle last week, fresh fighting raged on the streets of Baghdad. U.S. inspectors searched Iraqi nuclear facilities prompted a new crisis.

The U.S. military has been increasingly concerned about the long-term effects of its continued operations in the country. The Iraqi government has been under increasing pressure to make progress on the issue of weapons of mass destruction and proliferation.

The United States has been working with the United Nations to ensure that all efforts are made to prevent the spread of weapons of mass destruction. The United States also has been working with the Iraqi government to ensure that the country is not a threat to the region.

IOWA CITY'S MORNING NEWSPAPER

FAN-TASTIC

The Smith and John Whelan cheer during the Hawkeyes' 88-80 upset basketball victory over the fifth-rated Michigan Wolverines Sunday in Carver-Hawkeye Arena. For Smith, a fourth-year dental student and Whelan, a fourth-year medical student, this is the eighth consecutive year they've held Iowa basketball season tickets. Stories Page 18.

STEVE JAYNE

Imagine this: As you're driving home from work, you see a new dumpster sitting in your driveway. You think to yourself, "What's going on here?" Suddenly, you realize the dumpster is not there. You begin to feel relieved. But then you hear a noise coming from the dumpster, and it's not what you expected.

Your heart starts racing as you quickly pull over and approach the dumpster. As you get closer, you can see that there's something inside. You try to ignore your instincts and think logically. You call the police, but they tell you there's nothing they can do. You're left with a feeling of unease.

What could be inside the dumpster? It's a mystery that keeps you up at night. You start to imagine all sorts of scenarios. Are there animals trapped inside? Is there a body? You don't know what to think.

The next day, you're still thinking about the dumpster. You decide to do some research. You find out that dumpsters are often used to dispose of hazardous materials, such as chemicals and waste. You wonder if that could be the case here.

You start to feel like you're on a mission. You want to know what's inside the dumpster. You spend hours trying to figure it out. You even call around to different people, but no one seems to have any answers.

Finally, you decide to take matters into your own hands. You hire a team of investigators to come and look inside the dumpster. They carefully remove the lid and peer inside. What they see is shocking.

There's a baby inside the dumpster. The baby is alive, but it's not in good condition. You quickly call 911 and the baby is taken to the hospital. It turns out the baby was abandoned.

You're relieved the baby is alive, but you're also angry. How could someone do this? You start to think about the consequences of this action.

You're left with a newfound sense of empathy for those who have to deal with this kind of thing. You realize how important it is to support those who are working to help others.

The next time you see a dumpster, you'll think twice. You'll remember the baby and the story that came with it. You'll be more aware of your surroundings and the people around you.

Women head south for ASU Triangular

Sports

JAY DONOVON

The Iowa women's tennis team began its spring season with a trip to Tempe, Ariz., this weekend for the Arizona State Invitational. The Hawkeyes are hoping that the mild winter weather and the hard courts they face on the courts in Tempe will help the team prepare for its Big Ten season.

"I'm very, very optimistic about the team's overall experience against the second-ranked University of Arizona," said Schillig. "We'll be coming off the triangular can help her prepare them for their 1993 season;" the triangular can help her prepare them for their 1993 season.

They played really aggressively in Minneapolis," Schillig said. "I feel that really helped us win some matches. I think that coming into the Big Ten season, that's really helped me play well.

"I really believe the Hawkeye Buenos Aires team will return to the Big Ten this year," Schillig said. "They have kept their team scores at that level."

"Overall, overall," Schillig said. "It was the best five matches we have had this fall."

"This year's seniors and juniors have been so much better," Schillig said. "It really will pay dividends for us during the Big Ten season."

"The Hawkeyes played particularly well in the fall season," Schillig added. "The Hawkeyes finished fourth in the Big Ten Tournament." The Hawkeyes have already captured the singles title, finishing second in a field of 95 players.

"As a team, we did really well in that event," said Schillig. "If they had been in the downsoil at that event, we certainly would have finished among the top two or three teams."
Hawks prepare for Minnesota

The Daily News

In coach Pete Kennedy doesn't have much to crow about, Hawkwyn women's swimming and diving teams must be seen in Minnesota Golden Gophers on Saturday at 1 p.m.

"We're not going to make a lot of noise," Kennedy said. "We could get a good result, but we won't get a good grade.

A week-end Iowa-Big Ten Test of 1st place to second place.

For the Hawkeyes, the races will have to be the same as in the past two seasons, with Kennedy in tow.

"We have a good record with Minnesota," Kennedy said. "We always try to win.

"This is a very tough team," Kennedy said. "They have a lot of talent, and they're coming off a 17 home wins.

"They are led by Laurie Johnson, one of the most talented women in the Midwest."

"Johnson's specialty is freestyle and backstroke, but she's versatile as well."

"We need to find a way to control her,

"It's been a good week for us. We've been practicing hard, and we're ready to go.

"Our biggest challenge will be to stay focused and not get distracted.

"We have a lot of young talent on our team, and we want to see them improve.

"Our goal is to finish in the top 16.

"I'm optimistic about our chances of winning.

"We just need to stay focused and execute our plans.

"Thank you for your support."

One-man play looks at Jack London's life

Senja West

The newest play, "The Dying of the Light: Londoning with Jack London," promises to be more than just an ordinary biography of a legendary American author.

The play, written and performed by Senja West, is a unique way to engage with London's life and work. West began developing a relationship with London over four years ago and found his personality interesting. She was drawn to his extraordinary American spirit and felt a strong connection with London, who is 37, three years before the accident that took place.

"I was fascinated by his dexterity that allowed him to play by the end of the first year," West said. She was particularly impressed with his intense love of music.

Drayer, a UI graduate acting student, had the opportunity to perform with theui School of Music faculty, including Dr. Antoine McDowell, and the UI School of Theatre.

London is a key figure in West's life, and she has been writing a play about him for over two years. She was inspired by his ability to deal with his daughters and his commitment to music. West found out just how much money he had to buy his way out of prison. She was excited. She's booked shows in Chicago, London, and New York, and he's busy writing a new play set in the 1940s.

London is known for his intense love of music and his commitment to his daughters. "He's right on time," West said. "He's been performing with the UI School of Music faculty, including Dr. Antoine McDowell, and the UI School of Theatre."

West said that London's accident required him to go through four skin graftings and kept him in the hospital. "I'm optimistic," West said. "I've booked shows in Chicago, London, and New York, and he's busy writing a new play set in the 1940s."
