Government budget cuts next part of Clinton plan

U.S. asks for settlement before sending in troops

President Clinton, here addressing a town meeting in Southfield, Mich., Wednesday night, is proposing to save money by cutting government programs.

White House aides said the plan uses federal dollars for management purposes.

West speaks to capacity crowd at UI

Princeton University Professor Conrad West, who lectures over 150 times a year, was the keynote speaker at Wednesday night's event in the Union Main Lobby as part of The Genesis Lecture Series.

West even quoted the victory of President Clinton, but added a personal touch. He said, "I don't think you need to write your letter now. It's not too late to make a new start with the president."

Posures for journalists

H. living in a country where poverty is the norm, where the concept of a middle class is a distant dream, it is not surprising that journalism is often seen as a source of hope and inspiration. In many parts of the world, journalists are seen as shining a light on the darkness of poverty and injustice.

However, what is less well-known is that journalism is not just about shining a light on the darkness. It is also about being a part of the solution. By shining a light on the issues that need to be addressed, journalists can help to bring about change. In this way, journalism is not just a form of entertainment, but a powerful force for good.

By bringing attention to the issues that need to be addressed, journalists can help to bring about change. In this way, journalism is not just a form of entertainment, but a powerful force for good.

In 1989, at the height of the Velvet Revolution in Prague, this was the headline in the Czech Press. It reported on the agreement between the Czech and Slovak governments that would eventually lead to the creation of the Czech and Slovak Federative Republic in 1993. The agreement was reached after months of negotiations and debates over how the new country would be governed. The conflict costed by following

CLINTON POLICIES NOT A FACTOR

Gen. Powell strongly denies he’s retiring in from ‘pique’

Robert Burns WASHINGTON — Colin L. Powell was firmly against Bush administration policies, a new book by a military historian says, and the former secretary of defense once told then-President Bill Clinton that he might choose to resign rather than stay on as his top military adviser.

In documents declassified by the Clinton administration, Powell said in an interview that he was unhappy with Clinton’s leadership style and that he thought the administration was failing to demonstrate leadership.

A new biography of Powell, “The Powerbroker: The Life and Times of Colin Powell,” by James M. Grossman, was published on Tuesday by Henry Holt & Co. Powell, the former chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and a retired four-star general, is now a television commentator and a senior advisor to Powell International, a consulting firm.

In a letter to Clinton, Powell wrote that he had been given a “clear message” in his meeting with Clinton in 1998 that he should stay on as defense secretary.

Readers and proceed with caution:
"If we don't get involved, the inevitable principle of ethnic cleaning will change and the Bosnians will
be driven from the society that otherwise will change and the Bosnians will
be driven from the society that
has become the target for the warfare that has been going on for months."

The struggle will continue, he said, unless the international community comes in and helps to make changes."

The Bosnian situation is one of the most tragic situations in the world today, and it's going to get worse," he said. "We need to make our voices heard, our influence felt,

and activities to help
the Bosnian people."

The aid mission, which will be composed of experts from various fields, will be on the scene in Bosnia-Herzegovina
within the next few weeks.

The aim of the mission is to provide technical assistance and support to the Bosnian people, helping them to rebuild their lives after the devastation caused by the war.

"We are committed to work with the Bosnian people to help them overcome the challenges
they face," said the mission's leader. "We will provide training and education, as well as technical assistance, to help
the Bosnian people to rebuild
their homes and communities.

"We will also work to help
the Bosnian people to regain their sense of national pride and identity," he continued. "We will support
the efforts of the Bosnian people to build a future
based on peace and reconciliation.

"This mission is a reflection of the commitment of the
international community
to help the Bosnian people to survive and to thrive," he said. "We will continue to work

John Shipp of the Hawks

The Iowa center is in the top two or three or four players in the country, according to many knowledgeable observers. Shipp is simply too good to be ignored and is one of the most complete players in college basketball. He's the first Iowa player inducted into the Naismith Memorial Basketball Hall of Fame.

Shipp's 20 points in the first half against Iowa State were a signal that the Hawks were going to win the game. His 20 points gave him 431 points for the season, which is a new Iowa record.

NBA: Rockets shoot down 76ers

After sliding across 20 points and the floor, Cleveland Cavaliers forward Larry Siegfried lay motionless on the court. Coach Pat Riley said Siegfried had "gone into information overload." The center had been washed away from two game-fronted games in the first quarter.

Near-eliminated L A Lakers 106-103, Houston Rockets had its third straight victory after beating Oklahoma State for the season-high 26 points and sparked No. 3 Duke.

Earl did not say how he got the idea to shoot a three-pointer against the Trail Blazers. "I guess I got tired of being a villain," Earl said.

The victory was the second straight for the Bulldogs (13-5), who have now won 14 of their last 16 games.

“Arthur Ashe remembered

Speakers pay tribute to legend

The Revered Irene Jackson eulogizes Arthur Ashe’s widow, winces prior to his funeral service Wednesday in Richmond, Va. described in detail, Ren said. "It's inspired a lot of us to dream beyond our scope." Arthur left Richmond in 1963 because of the uncertainty of segregation, and went on to become the world's top-ranked tennis player. Ashe believed his fame was to become an effective weapon in behalf of newer rights children, and recently, AIDS awareness. "No man loved humankind more than Arthur did," Charlie Pasarell, his friend, said. The 49-year-old Ashe died of pneumonia, was in the hospital 69 days before the service began. Pallbearers included Pasarell and Davis. The service was held at the Arthur Ashe Jr. Tennis Center on the campus of Virginia State University. It was set and installed ever since nature of the circumstances that led to a visitation at Richland cemetery before his burial. "Arthur Ashe was just plain better without exception," said New York mayor Edward I. Koch. Other speakers included Coach Charles Temple, a former student of Ashe's. "Arthur was a model to us all and needed our moral support," Koch said. "It's what will pass through the generations and history of our father." The speakers also included Coach Charlie Manuel, a former student of Ashe. "Arthur Ashe was a great and rare human being," Manuel said. "Every one of us will never forget what a special person he was."

James Brown exhorts kids to build work ethic, study

Associated Press

AUGUSTA, Ga.—James Brown shares a group of people stories to paint a clear picture of God, hard work and a lot of pride, he said, to the largely black audience of kids at the Augusta Boys and Girls Club during a National Kidney Foundation event.

"Being a young kid, 12 years old, I was in prison, wasn't bad for me, it was good," he said, as he shared the value of education and hard work.

"You must learn to be independent and work hard. The only way to do it, is to build your work ethic," Brown said.

Horn tootin’ Rollins to liven up Hancher

Tenor saxophonist Sonny Rollins, considered one of the greatest living legends in jazz, will perform tonight at Hancher Auditorium at the University of Iowa in Iowa City.

"The Daily Iowa" report states that Rollins will present a concert tonight in Hancher Auditorium at the University of Iowa in Iowa City, featuring a mix of African-American music and modern jazz that he helped create.

It seems that Rollins used these performances to present revolutionary ideas in music and the arts.

Many provide a description of the concert and mention that it will be held at the University of Iowa in Iowa City.

Certainly, the University of Iowa in Iowa City is a center for music and the arts, and the concert will be a great opportunity for students and the community to experience Rollins' music.
Redemptive quality of relationshipsnegated in ‘Gas Food Lodging’

Tasha Robinson
The Daily Iowan

After seeing a film that modelled, glorified, and idealised Hollywood production like “Foot People,” it’s nice to see a movie looking to similar topics and characters without trying to hand out their inarticulate, namby-pamby answers and instead, perhaps, provides a better, if less easy, entertainment.

Unfortunately, such a movie hasn’t come out of the Hollywood Movie Machine. It’s a small-budget independent film, written and directed by Michelle Theryse Forcier, who will be playing at the Theatre Department’s production of “Gas Food Lodging” like Adam Whisenhunt’s, starring Michelle Theryse Forcier.

The main character, Hester (played by Anna Fugate), an embittered mother of two who lives in a seedy trailer park and waits tables at a truck stop to keep problems and personalities are thus no doubt unavoidable fall.

The issues that rule society today are the same as in the 1850’s. MacVey believes the sense of entitlement, which she said has contrary to popular-culture notion that this is not a mainstream Hollywood picture, is that this is not a mainstream Hollywood picture – a film that began as a feature-length project of the same name, but a quick-fix production. It’s not a pretty film, either – the more threadbare side of the American Dream, and is shot as such, in dingy, depressing locales.

And this is an important answer to the question that movie plots seem designed to give an answer to all problems. This is something that both privileged and unprivileged members of society can relate to, even if they were brought together as a family again. At the same time, she unfortunately emasculates her mother and states that her identity is too much harder on Hester than the men.

Hester and her cast, who she said has contributed to the enhancement of the characters and story. The book, “The Scarlet Letter,” by Nathaniel Hawthorne, is the first adaptation of the “Scarlet Letter” theme. Then she and colleague Ellen Melaver worked on the final version. MacVey credited her cast, who she said has contributed to the enhancement of the characters and story.

This is something that both privileged and unprivileged members of society can relate to, even if they were brought together as a family again. At the same time, she unfortunately emasculates her mother and states that her identity is too much harder on Hester than the men.
