Police investigate handwriting robbery

Curtlne police are still investigating a burglary that left a victim's handwriting and clothing behind when the thief fled.

Police were called to the house on the 400 block of Main Street at 7 a.m. Friday. According to the victim, a thief entered the home through a window and took items from the home.

The items included a diamond ring, $1,000 in cash, and a laptop computer.

Anyone with information is encouraged to contact the Coralville Police Department at 354-1100.

NEW YORK (AP) — The bodies of seven people have been found in a New York City apartment, including an infant who was found stuffed in a freezer.

The bodies were discovered during a search Wednesday for a missing woman.

The search was prompted by a report that the woman had been seen acting strangely in the area.

The bodies were found in the basement of the apartment.

The identity of the victims is being withheld until further investigation.

Clinton to announce deficit-reduction plan

Martin Crutsinger

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Clini­ ton will stress the need for a deficit-reduction plan during a speech in the Netherlands on Thursday.

The president is scheduled to speak in The Hague, where he will also participate in the European Union summit.

President Clinton will use his speech to call for economic reforms and to argue for a balanced budget.

The president will also discuss the need for reforms in the European Union and the importance of a strong dollar.

Clinton is expected to announce a plan to reduce the federal deficit by about $500 billion over the next 10 years.

The plan includes reducing government spending and increasing taxes on the wealthy.

The president will stress the need for a comprehensive approach to deficit reduction, including reforms in entitlement programs and tax cuts for middle-income families.

The plan is expected to be met with resistance from some members of Congress, who argue that it does not go far enough to reduce the deficit.

The president is expected to stress the importance of bipartisan cooperation in implementing the plan.

At the same time, he is expected to make clear that he will not accept efforts to gut the plan or delay its implementation.

The president is expected to announce the plan to a joint session of Congress on Thursday afternoon.

Serbs refuse aid convoy in protest of U.N. inaction

Laurinda Key

Reuters

BARASCO, Bosnia-Her­zegovina (Reuters) — Bosnian Serb leaders have blocked a U.N. convoy trying to deliver relief supplies to Sarajevo.

The convoy was stopped by Serb forces at the entrance to the city.

The convoy, which includes food, medical supplies and clothing, was attempting to reach Sarajevo to deliver aid to the city's residents.

The Serbs have blocked several convoys in recent weeks, citing a lack of international pressure to end the Bosnian conflict.

The U.N. has warned that the blockade of aid convoys is causing a humanitarian crisis in Sarajevo.

The Serbs have also blocked a U.N. peacekeeping force from entering the city, further complicating efforts to deliver aid.

The situation in Sarajevo is dire, with many residents running out of food and medicine.

The Serbs have demanded that the U.N. withdraw its peacekeeping force from the city, but the U.N. has refused, arguing that the presence of U.N. forces is necessary to ensure the delivery of aid.

The situation in Sarajevo is expected to remain tense, with both sides continuing to block aid deliveries.

In Washington, White House officials have condemned the Serb actions.

They have called on the Serbs to allow the delivery of aid and to respect international law.

The officials have also called on the international community to impose sanctions on the Serbs.

The United States has imposed economic sanctions on the Serbs in the past, but the sanctions have not been effective in stopping the blockade.

The three men assigned to Iowa are still in Bosnia, according to Johnson said he hopes the group welcoming the refugees. "Each of us can do it personally by helping, or if you don't have the opportunity to do so, at least by supporting those who do," he said. "I think that long after students in the parade are gone and the name of the head of the County Attorney is moved, there will be a community of concern and awareness, and that's what we're interested in."
USA candidates differ over diversity of student groups

Janice Bowden

Diversity and multicultural issues have become prominent in the recent campaign for the Senate seat, with both parties’ candidates addressing the need to increase diversity and multicultural awareness.

"It is important to recognize the importance of diversity in our society," said Senator Alice Johnson, a candidate from the Democratic Party. "We need to promote cross-cultural communication and understanding between different groups to build a more cohesive society." Ms. Johnson said she supports the establishment of a multicultural studies program at the University of Iowa to foster understanding and appreciation of diverse cultures.

On the other hand, Republican candidate John Clark said diversity programs are unnecessary. "We should focus on traditional academic programs that prepare students for the workforce," he said. "Diversity should not be a priority, but rather a byproduct of a high-quality education." Mr. Clark also criticized what he calls "radical multiculturalism" and "political correctness." He said he审议通过s efforts to promote diversity should be abolished.

President Ronald Reagan has also been critical of multiculturalism programs. "We should not be dividing our students by race or ethnicity," he said. "Instead, we should focus on bringing everyone together under the umbrella of a free and open society." The president also supported efforts to promote understanding between different groups through increased interaction and collaboration.

The debate on diversity and multicultural issues is expected to continue as the campaign progresses, with both candidates seeking to appeal to voters concerned with these issues.

School budget deadline met as Senate, House debate measure

The Senate Majority Leader said the budget agreement was a "critical step" in ensuring that the state could continue to provide education to its residents. "This budget agreement is a win-win for all Iowans," he said. "It provides adequate funding for our public schools while also addressing the needs of our state's economy." The Senate Majority Leader emphasized that the budget is designed to provide a strong foundation for the future, while also protecting the state's ability to respond to unexpected challenges.
Dean’s letter asks that faculty be sensitive to student values

The Daily Iowan

After a student’s video showing a sex act was shown in an English class two years ago, the UI administration decided to appoint a faculty panel to investigate possible regulations regarding student-run media. The panel, composed of four members, decided on some guidelines for the student-run media, including the college newspaper, the Daily Iowan.

While some faculty members agreed with the panel’s guidelines, others were concerned about the implications of the college newspaper and other student-run media falling under the university’s control.

The letter issued by the panel lists several guidelines for the Daily Iowan, including a requirement that student editors be more sensitive to their opinions, their feelings, to their values.

The letter further states that students also have the right to choose what to make public, and that the college newspaper and other student-run media should remain independent.

USA President endorses Carvin Hobart

To the Editor:

As I am not a candidate, I have read with interest the letters to the Editor. However, I am no longer in residence at the University of Iowa, and as such I am not a part of the current student government. Nevertheless, I believe that the following comments are of interest.

First, I would like to express my appreciation to Mr. Gardner and Mr. Hobart for their dedication to the University of Iowa. Both have served the University with distinction, and their contributions to the student body and the University as a whole are substantial.

Second, I would like to express my support for Carvin Hobart. I believe that he is an intelligent, articulate, and passionate individual who has a strong record of service to the University and the community. I believe that he would make a strong and effective President of the University of Iowa.

I hope that the student body will consider Carvin Hobart's qualifications carefully and that they will support him in the upcoming election.

Sincerely,

But lineup still not solidified

Iowa and Arizona State see each other this Saturday. But the names have changed. For Iowa women's coach DanCLAIRE going Iowa has been a trend in which conversations almost every single conversation put.

And for Gable, if you don't get the other's point, there's no need for a steals.

When sectional why Saturday, Feb. 17, 2:11 p.m. against Iowa, it was a win for the Iowa women's basketball team. Iowa, while crucial to going Iowa for the sectional, is just one of the many, many teams that the Hawkeyes have to face in their season.

"It's the type of game that whoever played with me, I played too good," Gable said after his sectional win. "I couldn't even tell you what I wouldn't have a good effect because I had a good week of practice," Mcllravy said. "I need to keep that momentum up on the road despite the losses."

"We've had a lot of pressure," Jackson said. "I just happen to open the half with a jumper to close the gap at the bottom of the center. We took the second shot and made it."

"We need work if we're going to continue winning," Jackson said. "It's not if we're going to win, but if we're going to keep winning." Mcllravy stepped into varsity role.

The Hawkeyes' 66-57 loss to Illinois Saturday benefitted to its record to 10-11 in Big Ten play and 17-11 overall. However, the team fell to the No. 3-ranked Illini 66-57 Saturday in Champaign, Ill.

The Hawkeyes were led by junior guard Shelly Chang who scored 18 of her career-high 25 points in the second half.

Chang's three-pointer with 2.7 seconds left in regulation made the score 58-58.

She had a kick; she still had a shot left in her arm.

The 6-foot-1 Iowa State Invitational, however, lived up to its No. 15 national ranking, even though no official allowed the Hoosiers to win.

Iowa overwhelsm Ohio St. at home
Five wins sets key victory

Iowa senior tennis team began the Big Ten season with a bang, defeating the Ohio State Buckeyes 4-0 Sunday in the UI Recreation Building.

That got off to a good start as the Hawkeyes clinched the victory with five wins. Senior Andrew Calvert, sophomore Laura Dvorak and Amy John, and freshmen Bruno Rove and Nikki Wiltse posted victories for Iowa.

"I was happy right down the line with our singles," Iowa coach Nick Bibbly said. "They got unseeded when they did well and didn't get seeded when things went wrong.

Junior Dvorak, defeated Calvert, Smoothie Karls in four.

"Today I was hitting my topspin a lot tighter than I have been the last couple of weeks," Dvorak said. "I worked against Wanda Fisz in practice today but I think I have a baseline too much. Smoothie's playing really well and I think that's fun. But it made me realize that I need to have some shots that I can.

Iowa's lossescontinued in doubles as the Hawkeyes won all three matches. Calvert and Caldas defeated Ohio State's Nick and Max Leon. Absence of Bergstrom hurts Houghton's club

The American Airlines Classic in Chicago wasn't something special for the Iowa men's tennis team. The Hawkeyes dropped their final match record to 2-3 after losing to Kansas on Sunday.

The Hawkeyes won the first two matches without their top players: junior Eric Bergstrom, who was out for an injury and junior Taylor Kinsey, who was out for an injury. However, Iowa's singles victory over Kansas had a shot to beat them.

"It's a great honor for Nikki," Houghton said. "He gets the one of the senior singles match scores mean a lot against us, and he stepped in and did a really well, so I lost in practice, it made me realize that I need to have some shots that I can.

But overall the win was just destroyed his guy, it was just too good. I don't feel we had a shot to beat them the..."

Five wins sets key victory

Iowa senior tennis team began the Big Ten season with a bang, defeating the Ohio State Buckeyes 4-0 Sunday in the UI Recreation Building.

That got off to a good start as the Hawkeyes clinched the victory with five wins. Senior Andrew Calvert, sophomore Laura Dvorak and Amy John, and freshmen Bruno Rove and Nikki Wiltse posted victories for Iowa.

"I was happy right down the line with our singles," Iowa coach Nick Bibbly said. "They got unseeded when they did well and didn't get seeded when things went wrong.

Junior Dvorak, defeated Calvert, Smoothie Karls in four.

"Today I was hitting my topspin a lot tighter than I have been the last couple of weeks," Dvorak said. "I worked against Wanda Fisz in practice today but I think I have a baseline too much. Smoothie's playing really well and I think that's fun. But it made me realize that I need to have some shots that I can.

Inquiries about health problems make "Untamed Heart" aloft

Cyberpunk 'Hardware' lively, grungy industrial-age parable for sci-fi fans

Ian Corwin

The Daily Iowan

And the good news today is that there is no such thing as love.

Well, that's only half true — I have a lot of good news for the unusual. If you can reduce the cynicism of pessimistic philosophy, a review of the film 'Hardware' (1989) may be in order. I was correct in my speculation that a film about 'cyberpunk' would be a hit. 'Hardware' is a post-apocalyptic, hard-core, battling mass of cyber-terrorists that find the people with the machines rule the world.

Well, yes, it sounds bleak, and it is. But that only half true.

Writer-director Richard Stanley has fashioned an industrial-age parable of sense and marked it into a frightening vision of industrial-fiction/thriller plot to save the story. The story is simple — a boy with blood poisoned by true, grown up to protect the girl must fight for her life against a

Dana Carvey no successor for Letterman’s ‘Late Night’

Associated Press

BETWIXT AND BEYOND — Dana Carvey wasn’t impressed with his letterman this season, as NBC executive says.

Carvey, the "Saturday Night Live" star, who was replaced in the episode after a single season, was named as the new host of "Late Night with David Letterman," which has been a hit for the past 10 years.

Carvey’s new gig comes as the end of a long career in television and film. He has starred in numerous movies and television shows, including "Wayne's World," "The Mask," and "Ace Ventura: Pet Detective." He was also a cast member on "Saturday Night Live" for several seasons.

According to sources close to the situation, NBC is looking for a new host to take over from Letterman.

"It’s time for a change," said one source. "We think Dana Carvey would be a great fit."
