Forum to focus on unity for black students, athletes

Terry Collins
The Daily Iowan

Strengthening ties and developing new unity will be some of the issues concerning black athletes and students at the University of Iowa and across the nation.

At Iowa, the Black Student Alliance, a group of black students, athletes and intellectuals, has been formed to bring black students together.

"We need to bring black students and black athletes together to establish some kind of body in which problems such asSYS are split," said Collins.

The forum will feature speakers from a variety of backgrounds, including black students and athletes.

"We're trying to make the black student athlete aware of their situation here on campus as well as how to seek out solutions for the problems which plague us," said Collins.

One of the topics for discussion will center on the matter of unity.

Prescription for disaster

Some of the most difficult questions of our time occur in the debates over medical ethics. With the advancement of technologies that permit doctors to keep people who are extremely ill alive, questions over endgames and other such matters are now at all-time center stage. This debate has been exaggerated by the presence of Dr. Jack Kevorkian and has created a phenomenon which could be described as suicide device. The plain truth is, Kevorkian’s practices are discussed, often justifiably.

Kevorkian has assisted 15 people (as of Sunday) in the taking of their own lives. Every time he helps someone die, it generates, plenty of headlines. Then, he uses this publicity to promote his point of view. What is known is not what effect promotion of suicide has on people who are not emotionally stable, but it is hard to imagine that it has a positive effect.

Kevorkian’s suicide-on-demand service is now occurring almost daily. This is due to a new law in Michigan, where I practice – making doctor-assisted suicide a felony. That line grows ever thinner as March 22nd approaches. Kevorkian’s actions have added an issue of gladiatclusion. The situation boils down to people riing to best the deck, so they can end their lives. A scrupulous life is too precious to have its end complicated by what some call “suicide-on-demand” services, who could permit – making suicide a felony. That law is understandable as long as these disorder, from the sirens night and the distribution of wealth, the type of democracy that we have a hand in shaping, and a modern form of democracy – with an optimlet; he met.

But Cohen believes that our society where suicide is legal, to a certain extent, is the end of the matter is Kevorkian plays God. This is because, to take death among many age groups (most notably teen-agers), has almost completely turned our lives into that of a partici- "from the homicidal bitchin’ that or worse, that permit those who do not have a terminal illness to end their lives. Cohen is saying that if a person wishes to end their own life, it is their right to do so. However, if they do have a terminal illness, Cohen believes that they should be able to receive the help they need to deal with their illness, rather than be forced to end their own life.

To me, asking something vital for the life of a person who is either physically ill, but also sufferings, is understandable. War crimes tribunal to be formed

The war crimes tribunal will be the first created to try World War II.

Lawrence Klobuchar

INTERNATIONAL — The Soviet Union has begun the process of bringing to justice those responsible for war crimes committed during World War II, in a move which may lead to the trial of Nazi leaders and the Tokyo war criminals.

A tribunai was announced last week in The Hague, the Netherlands, to try war criminals, including Nazi leaders, and those responsible for war crimes.

The United Nations' new tribunal will be based in The Hague, and will be composed of a panel of judges, including those responsible for war crimes.

Despite the political signals, many are skeptical about whether the international community will actually make use of such a tribunal, and whether it will be able to achieve its goals.

The United Nations' human rights committee has been pushing for the creation of a war crimes tribunal for many years, but has met with resistance from some countries.

The treaty, which was signed in 1945, is the first international agreement to prohibit war crimes.

The treaty was signed by 16 nations, including the United States, Britain, and the Soviet Union.

The treaty was initially seen as a way to prevent future wars, but it has been criticized for being too vague and not being enforced.

The treaty was signed in 1945, and it was later amended in 1977.

The treaty is based on the idea that war crimes are crimes against humanity, and that they must be punished.

The treaty was signed by 16 nations, including the United States, Britain, and the Soviet Union.

The treaty was initially seen as a way to prevent future wars, but it has been criticized for being too vague and not being enforced.

The treaty was signed in 1945, and it was later amended in 1977.

The treaty is based on the idea that war crimes are crimes against humanity, and that they must be punished.

Antiquity & Modernity

Aeneid debates choice between destiny, love

E.H. Dobruck

To assess the influence of Homer and Hesiod on Vergil's "Aeneid" 1.6-505.

Dobruck identified 26 features shared by Homer, Hesiod, and Vergil. These include:
- The importance of destiny and fate
- The role of gods and goddesses
- The examination of human actions and their consequences
- The exploration of moral and ethical principles

These features suggest that Vergil was influenced by Greek epic traditions.

Social and Community Studies

Neil Crook

In this chapter, Crook discusses the role of social and community structures in understanding Archaic Greek society.

Crook highlights the following points:
- The significance of family and kinship networks
- The impact of political structures on community life
- The role of civic institutions in shaping social behavior

Crook argues that a deeper understanding of Archaic Greek society can be gained by examining these structures.

Richard Hogg

Richard Hogg focuses on the interplay between personal choices and social structures in shaping human behavior.

Hogg emphasizes the importance of individual agency in understanding social outcomes.

He argues that while social structures provide constraints, they also offer opportunities for agency.
