2 arrested in connection with twin-tower bombings

NEW YORK — A man described as a financial consultant was arrested Thursday in connection with the World Trade Center bombing when he tried to sell third time to relay a robbery report on the van determined to explode the bomb. Other suspects were being sought in what precipitated Clinton's decision to authorize a massive and urgent operation to thwart the plot.

Without the intervention, the Mogadishu van would have exploded at 4:30 a.m. but was quickly extinguished. The remains of the second van, described by officials as a rental van, were found on a street in the vicinity of the site.

The investigation clearly hasn't finished, but a large front has been taken, James Fox, FBI chief at the White House, told reporters Thursday night.

Michael A. Mohammd, 49, was charged with aiding and directing the bombing and is a British citizen, and with transportation of explosives across state lines. The Jersey City, N.J., resident was held on $1 million bail.

The street was a model, major federal investigation.

One of the main features of the Daily's event is to provide education, certification, and training in basic life support, including CPR and first aid techniques. The event will be held on Saturday, April 18th, from 10:00 AM to 4:00 PM, at the University of Iowa Hospital and Clinics, 200 E. Peoria St., Iowa City, Iowa 52242. Attendees will receive a certificate of completion and be equipped with the knowledge and skills to save lives in emergency situations.

Major said the purpose of the training day is not only to instruct people who have never learned CPR before, but also to help people refresh skills they already have. "Many people are not aware that even physicians have to re-certify every seven years, and that a shift that slip away from you," he said. "The skills are easy to learn, and many people will find it a kind of fun if they never used CPR before."

Major also said about 100 people have already signed up to attend the training session, and a total of 200 in total people are expected to participate. While you register for the program, there will also be a free screening for tuberculosis, which is currently the leading cause of death worldwide.

The kind of event is something that benefits all communities, Mayor said. "This is for the people who are going to learn CPR," he said. "We're going to have a successful day where we can save lives."
Cutbacks at Boeing cause eating at Rockwell

CEDAR RAPIDS — An Iowa senator is dropping a lawsuit against Boeing International Corp. and Thursday is urging Washington to drop all charges against the company.

The lawsuit, called "The Boeing Co. v. Federal Aviation Administration," was filed in 2002 in the Iowa District Court in Des Moines, according to court records.

The lawsuit was filed by Iowa Sen. Stephen Berg, a Democrat from Des Moines, and his wife, Carol Berg. They claimed that Boeing had violated federal aviation laws by fail- ing to report extensive design changes to the 787 Dreamliner.

"We are now ready to move on," said Sen. Berg in a statement. "This lawsuit was filed in response to Boeing's failure to comply with federal aviation regulations. We are satisfied that Boeing has taken appropriate steps to address these issues."

"At about 9:30 a.m. on Feb. 16, 1989, my study committee received the news - the twoaina.

In the world of animal research, the news was about as important as the revelation that a king had been crowned in a small village in the Austrian Alps, even when violations of the law have been repeated in the past.

The implications of this decision are daunting. In the face of a government that has chosen to prioritize animal welfare, and to ignore the needs of the vast majority of people who rely on our government for food, shelter, and health care, we must act now to protect the rights of all animals.

In fact, this decision is a victory for all who believe in the importance of animal welfare. It is a victory for all who believe in the importance of protecting our planet's future generations. And it is a victory for all who believe in the importance of protecting our own health and well-being.

This is a victory for all of us.

France: Video games blamed for 30 epileptic attacks

PARIS, France (AP) - Video games blamed for 30 epileptic attacks in France, and a near 400 French cases may be vulnerable, a government commission reported this week. Jean Terquem, president of the Consumer Safety Commission, said Friday that 300,000 people are now watching video games, and that 2,000 to 4,000 children who are epileptic could be affected by it.

In Japan, a survey of hospitals showed that 81 children were admitted while playing video games, Japan News Service reported in January. Several children in Britain reportedly suffered from attacks.

The French report said video games have caused attacks or seizures in 30 children. Tempers noticed that 2,000 to 4,000 children who are epileptic could be affected by it.

Dutch museum finds care Laurel and Hardy films

AMSTERDAM, Netherlands (AP) - Rare silent films staring Laurel and Hardy have been restored and will be shown May 1 in a convention honoring the comedians.

The Netherlands Film Museum announced Thursday that Laurel's "Get That Thing On!" and Hardy's "A Bankrupt Homewrecker" were chosen for the private collections. The rare films were made in 1926, said museum spokesman Rene Wolf. The "copy of a Banks Homewrecker" are only known about, said Wolf. Said he, no one, other copy of "Get These On!" was found in the Laurel Hardy Archive in Hollywood. But expensively, the film had to be put in the air.

The series of terrorist acts in Russia has sparked a wave of anger and despair throughout the Soviet Union, as well as in the rest of the world.

The attacks on the Russian Federal Building in Moscow and the American Embassy in Prague are just two of the many incidents that have occurred in recent months.

The United States and other countries have condemned the attacks and called for the release of those arrested.

The United Nations has also expressed its condemnation and called for a solution to the conflict.

The attacks have heightened tensions between Russia and the United States, and have raised questions about the future of the relationship between the two countries.

The United States has expressed concern about the safety of its citizens in Russia, and has called for increased security measures.

Hawks feeling bubbly about season-opener

By Curt Nipp

Several members of the Iowa baseball team are suffering from a case of players' fever. Or should it be seasonal flu? Whatever it is, the team has been practicing like it's in the middle of spring training, and the players seem to be enjoying it.

In addition to practicing indoors, the Hawks have been putting in some extra hours on the field recently. Coach Dave Wells, who led the team to a second-place finish in the Big Ten East Division last season, said he's been working with his players to get them into shape for the coming season.

"It's been a great start to the season," Wells said. "We've got everyone looking forward to what lies ahead."
Buckner hired by Mavs

Jackson finally signs, will see action tonight

Joel Daniels
The Daily Iowan

After three weeks of practice, the Iowa women's tennis team expected to make an appearance in the NCAA Tournament. The Hawkeyes would take on Drake today at 2:30 p.m. and Indiana at Ohio State at 3:30 p.m. Saturday.

Both teams should be tough opponents for the Hawkeyes. The Buckeyes are four-time defending NCAA champions and have won eight national titles this season. Dr. Rudi Modman, who coached the Hawkeyes this past season, won the Big Ten Championship in 1988 and was named No. 20 in the nation.

"Drake is a much-improved team," Buckner said. "They beat us on our first team last year." As for the Buckeyes, "They're a top team," Buckner said. "They have great talent and experienced players with lots of international experience for the girls to play against different styles of play and tough competitors."

The Hawkeyes have tough competition themselves, bringing a 6-1 dual meet record into the match on February 14. They opened the season with a 9-0 drubbing of Maryland and tied a franchise record with 18 game wins, has not won on the road since a June 17 loss to the Chicago Bulls. The Mavericks won an NBA season-high 34 rebounds in the contest.

Buckner will become the first Mavs player to play the New York Knicks in his current role. Buckner, who started the Mavericks' 1976 national championship teams, has remained close to Buckner.

Buckner's hiring had been long rumored. Team officials reportedly asked him if he was interested in the job; however, they remained firm in their pursuit of Davis.

"There's no one in the league who has never beaten the Bulls," Buckner said. "Like Hawk Adonis. Buckner's tie to the Mavericks is his long friendship with Hawk Adonis. Buckner was president of basketball operations for the Mavericks."

The Bucks made Buckner their head coach in 1976, the same year he joined the Boston Celtics, where he was an assistant for the Boston Celtics. Buckner then retired to the University of Iowa in 1986 after playing for the Indiana Pacers in 1984.

No. 1 pick Jim Jackson of Ohio State signed a six-year deal — moved out of the box — and tied a franchise record with 34 rebounds in the contest.

"We've definitely got a stronger team than we were last year," he said. "But we don't take Drake for granted."

"The deal with Buckner was finalized Monday," Jackson said. "This is a great opportunity." Buckner, who has no coaching experience, called the chance to reform the Mavericks a "difficult decision.""

ROVA TRACK

Haykeyes chase Big Ten crown

Deon Cappel • The Daily Iowan

After having successful seasons, the Iowa men's and women's track squads head into their respective conference championships this weekend and next week.

Monday through Wednesday, the track and field teams will be征战 in Ames, Iowa, for the Big Ten Men's Indoor Championships. The women's team will be征战 in Charleston, South Carolina, for the Big Ten Women's Indoor Championships.

The men's team is led by three seniors, including Deon Cappel, who has been a standout performer throughout the season. Cappel has been a key contributor to the team's success and has been instrumental in helping the team achieve their goals.

The women's team is also led by experienced athletes, including Madison Conley, who has been a consistent performer throughout the season.

The conference championships will be an opportunity for the teams to showcase their talents and compete against the best athletes in the conference.

SPRING TRAINING - Baseball owners proposed Monday to change the length of the spring training program to 18 days. The owners approved delaying the pitching and hitting of major league teams by a week to give minor league and college teams a better shot at attracting fans.

In a 14-9 vote, owners approved beginning pitching and hitting a week later. The proposal will be presented to the players for consideration. The owners also recommended a week-long break after each league's first two division series.

The move could be in lieu of plans to shorten the season to 140 games. A source of strain was the size of their payrolls. The owners authorized the major league baseball Players Association to propose a new salary structure that would cap the average team payroll at $100 million. The owners also supported a plan to increase the number of regular season games from 162 to 180 per team.

The owners also helped to finalize the National League's new DH rule. The American League's DH rule, which allows a designated hitter to bat during interleague play, will not be adopted in the National League. The National League's version, which allows a player to bat in foul territory, will be adopted.

SPRING TRAINING - Baseball owners proposed Monday to change the length of the spring training program to 18 days. The owners approved delaying the pitching and hitting of major league teams by a week to give minor league and college teams a better shot at attracting fans.

In a 14-9 vote, owners approved beginning pitching and hitting a week later. The proposal will be presented to the players for consideration. The owners also recommended a week-long break after each league's first two division series.

The move could be in lieu of plans to shorten the season to 140 games. A source of strain was the size of their payrolls. The owners authorized the major league baseball Players Association to propose a new salary structure that would cap the average team payroll at $100 million. The owners also supported a plan to increase the number of regular season games from 162 to 180 per team.

The owners also helped to finalize the National League's new DH rule. The American League's DH rule, which allows a designated hitter to bat during interleague play, will not be adopted in the National League. The National League's version, which allows a player to bat in foul territory, will be adopted.
