District's conduct in referendum scrutinized

William Pepper

Iowa City School Board President Dennis Matthews and Superintendent Dennis Swenson filed a press conference Friday demanding reform in charges of improper conduct of the district at the last referendum in December.

In a lengthy, often核酸 reading of the charges, the 14-member volunteer committee reviewed state law bylaws and school employees in preparation for the meeting.

Matthews said the results of the vote for the associated press were "wrong" and "unfair" and called for a "major" change in the way the referendum was conducted.

The School Board is scheduled to receive a report on the referendum next month.

Matthews said the committee was "astonished" by the charges and that "the system is broken.

"We will not continue on in this manner," he said.

The committee asked for an investigation into the charges and that a lawyer be appointed to oversee the process.

The School Board will discuss the matter at its next meeting.

Elmwood Elementary School teacher Dale Hibbs has won a second term as a member of the National Gay and Lesbian Democratic National Committee. He is the only Iowa GNLDC member.

Hibbs, a candidate for the president's seat, said he was excited about the win.

"I think it's a good sign for the community," he said.

Hibbs, a former executive director of the American Civil Liberties Union, said he was pleased with the outcome.

"I think it's a good start," he said.

Hibbs will be the second Iowa GNDLC member to win a second term.

Exit polls show voters back Yeltsin's reforms

Bradley Bumby

Associated Press

MOSCOW — President Boris Yeltsin was a vote of confidence in a key referendum Sunday but was still far short of his goal in a partial victory for the Lithuanian-Bosnian Parliament.

The exit polls showed Yeltsin received a majority of Russia's 115 million registered voters, some of them defeated by the 1992 elections.

But the Siol璈 of 34 per cent was far too low for an outright Yeltsin mandate, according to exit polls and partial exit results.

In a surprise development, market-led Yeltsin's market reforms despite the hardships they have brought, a much-needed victory for Yeltsin's hard-line Congress of People's Deputies.

The exit polls showed Yeltsin had only 28 per cent of the vote in a sawmill on the ground that he would take a "yes" vote on a shelf with a council of state members.

Yeltsin sought a mandate for political and economic reform in a country that has tried to divorce its roots and cast off its past.

WASHINGTON — Thousands of gay and lesbian marchers welcomed the warmest day of the month to the nation's capital for the first time since 1969.

"We want our government to recognize our rights," said a marcher.

"We want our government to be fair to us," said another.

Marchers poured into the streets of the nation's capital on March 20, 1983, a demonstration organized by the Gay Rights National March Committee.

The formal program was a blend of music, political speeches, and light-hearted dance and music.

"We are marching for our rights," said one marcher.

"We are marching for our freedom," said another.

"We are marching for our equality," said a third.

"We are marching for our peace," said a fourth.

"We are marching for our future," said a fifth.

"We are marching for our planet," said a sixth.

40,000 in attendance at Farm Aid VI

Artists believe more support needed to help farmers

Greg Smith

ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — About 41,000 people showed up for Nobel Peace Prize co-recipient Bob Dylan's concert Saturday at Iowa State University's Jack Trice Stadium, but President Clinton and other officials were a no-show.

'Ve have been doing things like this for years,' said afarm worker, who asked not to be identified.

The economic devastation caused by the drought was evident on the faces of the farmers and their families as they huddled near the stage.

President Clinton's absence was a surprise to farm organizers and detractors alike.

'Vereapon', said a farmer, 'It's not like this is our first time out here.'

The Associated Press could not reach anyone at the White House who could explain the president's absence.

'Ve would love to have our president here,' said a farmer, 'But it's just not going to happen.'

The Farm Aid concert, which was held in Ames, Iowa, is a recurring event that brings together top-name musicians to perform for farmers and raise money for relief efforts.

Organizers estimated that more than 30,000 people attended the concert, which featured performances by Bob Dylan, Neil Young, and John Mellencamp.

'I think it's a great idea,' said one farmer, 'But it's not going to do much for us.'

Despite the absence of the president, the concert was a success, with more than $2 million raised to help farmers.

'Ve're very happy to be here,' said Young, 'But it's not a party.'

Young, who is known for his political activism, said the concert was a way to draw attention to the plight of farmers.

'I think it's important for the public to know that there are still farmers out there struggling,' he said.

The concert was part of the Farm Aid series, which is a joint project of the National Farm Labor Committee, the National Farmers Union, and the National Farm Wage Board.

Police officer hospitalized after investigating complaint

Associated Press

DECORAH, Iowa - A police officer was injured after being attacked by a dog while investigating a possible burglary at a local restaurant on Tuesday, authorities said.

St. Joseph County, 28, of Decorah, was charged with second-degree assault and simple assault after the incident.

The officer had been called to the restaurant, located at 400 E. Main St., for a report of a possible burglary. Upon arrival, the officer noticed a dog that appeared to be agitated and began to bark at him. The officer attempted to calm the dog, but it continued to bark and was aggressive. The officer then attempted to arrest the dog on the spot, but it continued to bite and scratch the officer.

The dog was eventually subdued, and the officer was able to get to safety. He was treated at the scene by emergency medical personnel and transported to a local hospital for further treatment.

The dog was stayed at the hospital until the owner could be contacted. The owner of the dog has been identified, and he is cooperating with authorities.

The investigation is ongoing, and additional charges may be filed as more information becomes available.
Serb leader rejects U.N. plan for peace in Bosnia

Dusan Stoevski
Associated Press

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia — The leader of Bosnia's Serb forces said Saturday that his hard-line policy will not change despite an international plan that he has denounced as a sellout to Croats and Muslims.

The statement by General Ratko Mladic, who heads the Bosnian Serb forces, came just a few hours after a high-level meeting between representatives of the warring parties in Sarajevo.

Mladic, who was designated in May as the Serb negotiator, told reporters that the Bosnian Serbs would not accept the plan for peace in Bosnia-Herzegovina.

The Bosnian government says at least 15,000 people have died or are missing since the war began in 1992.

Congressman protests cuts by fasting

TWO HUNDRED THOUSAND PEOPLE ARE WITHOUT FOOD

TWO HUNDRED THOUSAND PEOPLE ARE WITHOUT FOOD

Against the growing threat of hunger in the world, the United Nations is appealing for urgent aid. The situation is particularly critical in Africa, where malnutrition and famine have led to a significant increase in mortality rates. The United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO) estimates that over 200 million people in the region are facing food shortages, with millions more at risk.

On the ground, the situation is dire. In Somalia, for example, the drought has led to a catastrophic collapse of food production. The United Nations World Food Programme (WFP) has declared the situation in the country as a famine, the second-highest level of food insecurity. According to WFP figures, over 15 million people in Somalia are facing acute food shortages, with many facing the threat of death.

The United Nations is appealing for urgent financial support to provide emergency food aid, as well as support for agriculture and livelihood projects that can help communities recover. The organization is also working to improve food distribution systems and support local farmers to increase food production in the long term.

As the world faces this humanitarian crisis, it is crucial that we come together to support those in need. By donating to organizations working on the ground, we can help provide critical aid and support to those affected by hunger and malnutrition.

For more information or to donate, please visit the websites of organizations such as the United Nations World Food Programme (WFP) and the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO). Together, we can make a difference.

Mr. Vladimir Kolar, Foreign Minister of Yugoslavia, said yesterday that 500,000 people in the vicinity of Sarajevo and 7,000 children were at risk from the floods. He added that the government was prepared to help the people in their struggle. Mr. Kolar also said that the Yugoslav government was willing to assist in any way possible in the fight against the floods.

VOTING

Dave Lippman, the first federal election official to visit Southern California, said yesterday that the state has made progress in preparing for the November election. But he also said that there is still a lot of work to be done.

Mr. Lippman, who has been in the job for only three months, said that the state is well prepared for the election. He said that the state has 8,000 polling places and that 10,000 volunteers have been trained. He also said that the state has a good system for printing ballots and that the ballots are mailed to voters.

RESEARCH

The report, which was released yesterday, showed that the number of people living in poverty in the United States has declined since 1990. It also showed that the number of people living in poverty in the city is declining faster than the number of people living in poverty in the state.

MARCH

March 10, 1990

A woman was killed in a shooting in Novi Sad, the city where the shooting happened. The woman was a 24-year-old woman and was shot in the head. She was pronounced dead at the scene. The shooting occurred at a restaurant in the city and was the second shooting in the city in the past two months.

BOSNIA

President Jovanka Brozovic, of Yugoslavia, said yesterday that the government is taking steps to prevent violence in the country. She said that the government is working with all the political parties to ensure that the elections are fair and that the people have a voice in their government.

Named top collegiate performer

Ryan Terry

The Iowa CityBicycle Club's annual race provided a 100-mile challenge for riders of all ages and skill levels.

Unfortunately for Michael, the 100-mile race was too long, and he was forced to drop out after completing only 50 miles.

As the race progressed, the riders faced increasing challenges. The weather turned cool and rain started to fall, making the conditions even more difficult.

Despite the obstacles, several riders persevered and continued to push forward. One of the top performers was Ryan Terry, who rode a 100-mile distance with ease.

"I was very pleased with my performance today," said Ryan Terry, "and I think I'll be able to do it again next year!"

As the race came to an end, the victorious riders were celebrated with applause and cheers. The atmosphere was filled with excitement and camaraderie, as the participants shared in the thrill of the race.

"It's an amazing feeling to be a part of something so special," said Ryan Terry, "and I can't wait to do it again next year!"
Black team dominates spring game, wins 55-0

John Shipley

Buck Forrest didn't have it easy.

Black Hat's head coach, John Shipley, didn't have it easy.

"He's not a problem anymore," Shipley said. "He's here."

After a game that made it hard to get too excited over the disappointing 9-1 start, the team's focus was on something Iowa fans were used to seeing more often these days.

As a part-time player on the Iowa spring squad Saturday, Forrest averaged over six yards a carry to make his first appearance in Iowa City when he started against the White team.

"I just wanted to go out and test my 40 time," Forrest said, "and I got a chance to run.

Iowa's John Shipley described the White squad's performance as "not too good," but said he was impressed with the seniors.

"I was pleased with the timing of Travis, Money and Blackman," Forrest said. "I was impressed by the fact that they scored 20 points on 17 yards per attempt.

"Iowa's Larry Bliss and his two veteran performers have been very consistent throughout the season. He's a lot better this year and really seems to have developed into a real leader now."

"I was very happy with the way the defense was working," Shipley said. "Iowa's touchdowns had three missed field goals.

"We'll be playing 12 men for the first time tonight. I'm really excited about that," Shipley said.

"I'm really excited to see how many voters will come out to see the Iowa-Northwestern game."

Joel Polson, the designated hitter, was out after being hit by a pitch. "He's just fine," Shipley said.

"It was a better game than I anticipated by the No. 1 rated team," Shipley said. "We definitely needed to improve our running game.

"We're going to go from this 3-3 stand today, not look back for the season."

Joel Kindsvater, a junior, has finished 15 games this season.

"I'm happy with our hitting," Shipley said. "Iowa's hitting is more of an art than a skill."

Local group wins Battle of the Bands

Ted Fadden
The Daily Iowan

Like two groups dueling head-to-head in a night, clashing marquees, loud bands Panther and High and Lower traded shots across the stage during the "SPLENDID!" competition that involved five other equally excellent, vibrant bands.

The two bands were finalists in a contest that saw locals Funkfarm and Van Mom-...
Primal, violent side of Keitel barns in carnival ride of 'Reservoir Dogs'

...the best thing about watching his searing work is that you can see his good side shining daily beneath the surface and you can tell he's suffering because he wants to let it out.

There's a sense in Scorsese's "The Last Temptation of Christ" that perfectly illustrates what I'm talking about. Willem Dafoe is in the desert on a "two-week" fast of me, power and Satan himself. He's in the voice of Barabbas Hereby over the heads of a nun and Britta of Ironweed. What power! A line with a full name — out of the cold, utterly menacing. "I'm convinced you're a real man, Mr. Keitel."

It's a picture-perfect portrait of the fury Keitel attacks in a movie. Herein surface can look either pleasant or convoluted, wistful or transfigured. Scorsese Keitel bastardizing hard and fast with style in Reservoir Dogs. (He's an intense spirit, none of the best moments of watching in "Chinatown" or Keitel must come into grip with breaking his Interstellar. The nasty part with a consciousness.

...the trouble that tortured, that Keitel allows, in Cimino's movie you've just another round of his career as "Reservoir Dog" and "Bad Lieutenant". I'm not going to give you any plot or idea you've got a hunch about them already. You'll find all the hypes surrounding both of these films and for the most part you've lived Harvey Keitel ever since you found your "Mean Streets" and you still haven't seen them — perhaps because you don't for you down there seent to Plate and go nowhere.

You'll find all the hypes surrounding both of these films and for the most part you've lived Harvey Keitel ever since you found your "Mean Streets" and you still haven't seen them — perhaps because you don't for you down there seent to Plate and go nowhere.

But great flicks. Both of these films have been used in a handful of other movies to create some of the most powerful images of the Keitel. These roles are wonderful, but when you can view a new group of a new generation, write it's your day in the sun with "Dogs" and "Lieutenant", you can be the best thing of the world about watching his searing work.

In that, you can see the good side shining daily beneath the surface and you can tell he's suffering because he wants to let it out.
Anger, diversity mark Farm Aid VI

Curtis Rigs
The Daily Iowan

40 - Said Young had a mas- sive crowd for Farm Aid VI - where he could do more than simply entertain.

Young, who is one of the founders of the band, is known for his powerful singing and his ability to move people. He seemed to have found a new level of power and emotion in his performance, which was highlighted by his powerful and passionate delivery of songs like "Ohio" and "Old Soldiers Never Die." The crowd responded with a standing ovation.

"Young is one of the most compelling performers in the music industry," said one audience member. "His music is powerful and his message is clear - we need to stand up for what we believe in and fight for a better future."
