Program pairs students, elderly homeowners

Students provide small services in exchange for reduced rent.

Susan Schriver
The Daily Iowan

11 students seeking an affordable place to live this semester may want to check into the University's Housing Program, which pairs students and elderly homeowners.

The program fills two needs: It offers housing for students in need of support and provides support and comfort for elderly homeowners who could not manage to live alone.

"Many of the students who are part of the program say they love being an essential part of their homeowners' lives and enjoy the companionship of an elderly person," says Rawley.

Students earn up to $2.25 an hour for services. If they receive more than $20 per month, they must fill out an IRS w-9 form and send it to the Daily Iowan. Some students report earning $100 per month.

Though there are employers in the program, the Daily Iowan found that there are no significant challenges for either in the program.

A new rate of $100 is now offered in exchange for $100 in services for two to three hours of work per week. Services may include cooking, cleaning or driving to appointments. The program includes a service agreement and provides a list of potential students.

"The program is helping both sides," Purdy says. "It's a win-win situation."

The program also helps---in exchange for two to three hours of work per week, the homeowner receives such services as laundry, errands or tutoring. The student receives a check, paying $100 per month for the job, as well as the satisfaction that comes from helping a person in need.

"We've had a few success stories," Purdy says. "I heard about a student who moved into a new apartment and was overwhelmed with the workload. The homeowner contacted the student to help with setting up the apartment and even made a trip to the store for the student. The student was grateful, and the homeowner was pleased with the help.

"The program is a great opportunity for students to gain experience and make a difference in someone's life," Purdy says. "It's a great way to give back to the community and make a positive impact on someone's life."

USA meeting to settle student funding issue

The Daily Iowan

The future of funding for US student organizations will be determined by the University of Iowa Student Government at its regular meeting Tuesday. The Student Government would receive funding by student fees, or by a grant from a federal or state organization. The United States of America and the US are marketed from this grant.

The nature of the Beast

Joe Day, the now-still-quiet, America-lover of the people, seems to insist to think again that most of us are nothing but a bunch of mindless sheep. For years he's been strutting about with his ‘Branson’ of a word and his ‘normal’ of a theatrics, trying to make himself look important and his views sound good. But it seems that these days, people are growing up and realizing that they don’t have to follow blindly without thinking what he says or does.

The Beast is a creature that is always lurking around, waiting for the right moment to strike. It’s been in our midst for as long as we can remember, but only now are people starting to see it for what it is. It’s a force of evil that seeks to control and manipulate the minds of the people, to keep them in a state of ignorance and fear.

The Beast is a force that is always trying to take advantage of the people. It’s been doing this for a long time, using all sorts of tricks and deceit to get what it wants. It’s a force that is always trying to divide and conquer, using fear and hatred to keep people from coming together.

But now, people are starting to see through the Beast’s tricks. They’re starting to realize that the Beast is nothing more than a force of evil that seeks to control and manipulate the minds of the people. And they’re starting to stand up against it, to fight back against the forces of evil.

The Beast will never go away, but with the help of the people, it can be controlled and defeated. It’s a force of evil that can be overcome, with the help of the people who are willing to stand up and fight against it.
Slovak officials escape arrest, death after revolution topples Communists

Slovenia — A plan to make prison inmates of 14 Slovak officials who were accused of being members of the Soviet KGB and ordering political deaths was thwarted by the officials who overthrew the communist government.

According to Viki Fikov, high-ranking Communist Party officials in Moscow were aware of Norbert Stryko and knew that the plan was approved when either Leonti Bukhman or Yuri Andropov was the KGB's head of state.

As a member of the Communist Party Central Committee, Stryko was able to influence the actions of the party in Moscow.

MAJOR LEAGUES

Gallraga credits

John Masneck

Associated Press

DENVER — Just a turn of the page in the newspaper or the TV guide needed to turn him into one of the major offensive players of the 1990s.

The right-fielder, traditionally not known for his attack, could have been an offensive force in the majors with a long-standing 75 hits, 90 RBIs and 10 home runs.

A veteran of 13 seasons, the 36-year-old Gallraga was reunited with Don Baylor, the manager of the Colorado Rockies, on Tuesday, the day after the Rockies announced a deal for him to return to the Colorado Rockies, the team he played for from 1985 through 1990.

The Rockies announced that the team has signed a three-year contract with Gallraga, who has been in the minors with the Kansas City Royals for the past two seasons. He hit .255 with 15 home runs and 65 RBIs in 1994.

But the Rockies already have a solid first baseman in Todd Helton, so Gallraga will likely be used as a right fielder.

"I'm trying not to think too much, just hit the ball and play baseball," he said, "I've never gotten a chance to play in the Colorado Rockies or in the majors, so I just want to play in the majors."
Splitting Heirs' has top cast, bland plot line

One of the most revolting scenes in recent movie history is when, in a desolate town, a group of children are absorbed in a game of "Piggy in the Middle." They rip into each other with razor-sharp messengers of death. This is the plot thatMessenger in the Middle.

The opening scene is really worthy of afterworld. Candy and Pfeiffer are both capable of winning roles while yelling and wailing, as they've proven with a number of Barry Levinson's films. Moranis and Griffiths in "Adventures of Baron Munchausen," as well as Pfeiffer in "I Love You, I Love You Not," have played some tagged roles, but not here in "Little Shop of Horror." in his bit part in it. The final plot line of "Little Shop of Horror" is flat and the jokes are too sophomoric, as is the event that Moranis would call "fun." What follows is a predictable mishmash of crass comedy and soporific serial killings, with a title that should have been a more appropriate tag line.

IT\'S NOT THE TIME

I would like to comment on the recent article by Mr. Drescher and Mr. Griffen in the May 4th issue of the Daily Iowan. The article was titled "The Daily Iowan seeks to fill five positions in the production department. This job involves advertising paste-up as well as some camera work. This unpaid position may be recognized by Cooperative Education internship or the Communications Center."

There are some important points that I would like to bring to your attention. First of all, the job description does not clearly state the qualifications required for the position. It is important for an individual to have a clear understanding of the responsibilities and requirements involved in the position.

Additionally, the job description does not mention the duration or the specific dates for the internship. It is crucial for the applicant to know the length of the internship and the expected start and end dates.

Furthermore, the job description does not specify the level of compensation for the position. It is important for applicants to have a clear understanding of the financial aspects of the internship.

In conclusion, I would like to reiterate the importance of clear and concise job descriptions. It is essential for an individual to have a clear understanding of the responsibilities, requirements, duration, and compensation before applying for any position.

Sincerely,
