Residents forced to evacuate after leak

Associated Press

ALEXANDER, Iowa — Residents returned to their homes Tuesday morning after an oil pipeline leak forced the town to evacuate over the weekend.

With a 23-month-old son asleep in front of him, Greg Fees, owner of Alexander, Iowa, fields questions at the LaCrosse, Iowa, school where he celebrated his 18th birthday on Tuesday.

The pipeline leak, which occurred early Sunday, pumped liquid from the TransCanada pipeline into a stormwater ditch.

"We didn’t know which way for the rest of the world was up, and we didn’t know if we were going to be here in time to meet the wind shifted," said Fees. The school was about five miles southeast of Alexander.

Fees said he was surprised by the leak, noting that it happened on a day when he was driving to work.

Calligraphy aids understanding

By Tara Ma

Traditionally, calligraphy was used for its decorative and aesthetic qualities, but its use in education has been gaining traction. Calligraphy, a form of handwriting, has been used as a tool for improving motor skills, cognitive abilities, and even emotional well-being. According to a recent study published in the Journal of School Psychology, calligraphy training can improve attention and focus in children, as well as reduce stress levels. In fact, calligraphy can be as effective as traditional reading and writing exercises in enhancing cognitive performance.

According to the study, calligraphers often spend years practicing their craft, developing a keen eye for detail and an understanding of the relationships between letters and words. This focus on precision and beauty can help children develop a sense of discipline and concentration, which is essential for academic success. Moreover, calligraphy can be a form of self-expression, allowing students to explore their creativity and individuality.

Incorporating calligraphy into the classroom can be a simple yet powerful way to enhance learning. Teachers can encourage students to use calligraphy as a way to improve their handwriting, or to create visual representations of their thoughts and ideas. By providing a structured, yet creative outlet, calligraphy can help students develop a deeper understanding of the subject matter, and foster a love of learning that will serve them well throughout their academic careers.

Groups must fund own political activities

Chris Patton
The Daily Iowan

Nontraditional students at the UI should not be able to receive federal aid, or federal funding, for political activities, said Sen. Donna Flayhan, D-Muscatine.

"This allows any group to have access to taxfree funding," Flayhan said. "But it's not fair or equitable, and it's not a good thing for taxpayers."

Flayhan said the largest problem with political funding is that students are not held to the standards of full-time political workers. It is not fair to other students who have to pay taxes, Flayhan said.

"This is a very good example of how the government is interferring with the private sector," Flayhan said. "And it's a very good example of how people who are not working are being funded, just because of their political beliefs."
International consultants provide in-class resource

Susan Winterbotham

Instead of reading other scholars' articles, students are often interested in seeing how things through a presentation coordinated by the UI Office of International Education.

The program, which begins last fall, offers individual or class sessions to internationally experienced Americans. Students ask questions about a variety of topics.

"One semester, students asked us to find out more about talking about how they perceive living in this country and if they changed after they left," Winterbotham said. "It depends on the topics from professors and the students."

She said the conversations tend to include people's life, political actors, economic issues, and religion.

Some of the conversations fill out a form at the end of the presentation, which would need to be translated into Chinese.

The response to the program has been favorable, Winterbotham said. "It's a great experience."

Family housing could be offered to single students after May 15

In an attempt to fill apartments that are typically empty during the spring, UI housing officials said they plan to accept a higher number of single students without partner.

According to George Droll, director of Housing Services, family apartments are filled by the May 15 cut-off date.

This does not mark a policy change.

"We have done this in the past," he said. "The difference is when we had a large number of apartments available they put it up for rent.

We put up the family housing apartments, but primary responsibility is to keeping students.

Family Housing Manager Helen Cullinane said the maximum range is from $1,207 to $250 a month. She said married students and students with children are eligible for family apartments. Non-married students who have two or more dependent children are eligible.

According to Droll, there are one or two family housing apartments that are currently unoccupied.

The family housing program for family housing apartments is May 15 for the next academic year, and October 15 for next spring semester.

Court rejects appeals by convicted killers

Lori Perry, The Daily Iowan

The Iowa Court of Appeals issued rulings in two cases Wednesday, but failed to grant a request for a new trial in one.

The rulings were among several other matters handled as the court met Wednesday to hear new trial requests and other appeals by defendants in nine cases.

In one of the cases, the court refused to hear a new trial request from Richard (Dick) Turpin. Turpin was convicted in 1986 of shooting a Des Moines postal worker.

Turpin, who has been in jail continuously since 1986, has asked the court to grant a new trial because he says he showed "mental instability" when he murdered the postal worker.

"The Supreme Court has already decided that the original trial was fair," Judge Robert A. Horsley told Turpin after telling him that the court did not want to grant a new trial.

Horsley also told Turpin that he would not hear any new arguments because the case was decided in 1986. Horsley said the court cannot "set aside" a verdict that was previously decided.

In the other case, the court granted a new trial request by William (Bill) Smith, who was convicted in 1986 of attempted murder in a bar.

Smith, who is serving a sentence of 30 years to life in prison, was convicted of attacking a man with a baseball bat in a downtown bar.

"The convictions are not supported by substantial evidence," Judge Carl Brubaker said in his ruling.

Brubaker said the trial judge was biased against Smith. He also said the trial judge was "improperly influenced" by Smith's statements that he "had never been convicted of a crime before."

IC Adult Day Care's directors ask help of supervisors with inadequate space

The Iowa City Adult Day Care program, since its inception 14 years ago, has steadily grown in popularity — growing in need, in fact, that its directors are looking for a new place to house it.

Johnson County Director of Public Health Graham Dameron said the board of supervisors Tuesday that enrollment in the program has reached the capacity of its current location.

"It seems to me that the adult day-care facility we currently have in the Senior Center is not adequate," Dameron said.

According to Dameron, Minnio May, the program director, Adult Day Care is designed to provide programs that involve social activities to maintain the mental and physical health of its participants.

U.N. takes over relief effort
The U.S.-led Operation Restore Hope now becomes Continuing Hope.

Paul Alexander
Associated Press
Mogadishu - President Bush plans to announce Tuesday that the U.S.-led relief effort in Somalia is being turned over to the United Nations. He will call it "Continuing Hope."

The United Nations is set to take over the relief effort in Somalia at the start of Operation Continuing Hope, a transition period aimed at helping war-ravaged Somalia recover.

The U.S.-led mission, code-named Restore Hope, was launched in 1992 to end a civil war that devastated the country and displaced about 200,000 people. The United Nations, however, is not expected to take full control of the mission, which was started in 1992.

Critics have complained that the mission has been poorly funded and run, and that the U.S. forces have been too slow to respond to requests for help.

A U.S.-led military coalition came to the aid of Somali refugees at the beginning of the civil war and has since provided food and other relief.

The mission was launched in 1992 to bring peace and stability to the country, and it has been hampered by corruption, violence and a lack of funding.

Senate votes to make EPA cabinet
The White House wants to elevate the Environmental Protection Agency to Cabinet status.

In what is seen as a significant move, President Clinton nominated three new Cabinet secretaries for the department.

Included in the bill is Clinton's decision to elevate the EPA to Cabinet status, a move that has been met with mixed reactions from environmental groups and industry leaders.

The bill also would establish the EPA as an independent agency and give it greater authority to regulate air, water and other pollutants.

The White House would become the top-level official in charge of the EPA, which has been criticized for its lax enforcement of environmental laws.

The EPA has faced numerous lawsuits and charges of corruption over the years, and its leaders have struggled to gain the trust of environmentalists and industry leaders.

The agency has been criticized for its handling of the oil spill in the Gulf of Mexico and for its role in the controversy over global warming.

The bill also would give the EPA greater authority to regulate air, water and other pollutants, and it would increase the agency's budget by $1.3 billion over the next five years.

Making "the market" more accessible

A local version of this article appeared in the Bozeman Daily Chronicle under the title "market" recently introduced a new concept into the city, which could benefit consumers and the local economy. The concept, known as "market," allows for the sale of locally grown produce and other goods at a single location, rather than the scattered farmers' markets and roadside stands that currently exist in the area. The "market" is a central location for buying fresh, locally grown produce, as well as other goods such as bread, cheese, and meat. This concept is likely to benefit both the consumers and the local economy, as it will provide a more convenient and efficient way for people to buy fresh, locally grown produce. The "market" is open on Saturdays from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. and is located at the corner of Main Street and 2nd Avenue. Consumers are encouraged to visit the "market" to purchase fresh, locally grown produce and other goods. The "market" is a great way for people to support local farmers and businesses while also enjoying fresh, healthy food.

To the Editor:
In my walk through the Union I was stopped by Kitty Kruse, who strolled by my table on the way to the Student Union.

Kitty began a tirade about how 'I don't care if they're gay or not. I just don't want to be around them.'

I interpreted this as an anti-gay and anti-AIDS statement, so I stated what I'm sure everyone has thought: 'What difference does it make?'

Kitty replied: 'It doesn't make a difference to how I think about AIDS, but I do think it makes a difference in how I vote.'

This statement goes against the general population.

Adoptive parents beware! At any time in the future, for no just cause, but that difference between our situations is that I cannot imagine the pain our child who allegedly was raped would feel. There is evidence by the women's program that a student athlete was stopped by Kitty Kruse.

Additionally, any student athletes who does not want their names to be used for any purpose should be stopped from playing sports.

I sympathize with the Montreal Matsugi.

Interpretations change with the times
To the Editor:
Biblical interpretations change from time to time. Approximately 100 years ago, Christian theology held that there was a fateful right hand and left hand. Where were thought to be superior to blacks. Therefore blacks were to be subjugated and slavery was to be abolished by God.

As we have learned, however, it is impossible for a student athlete to be stopped by Kitty Kruse.

I believe that we need to continue to work with the system to form laws to continue to be in this hopeless situation. I am convinced that many students need to be stopped from playing sports.

Film version of 'This Boy's Life' a painfully brilliant family tale

The film stars Leonardo DiCaprio, Bill Pullman and Robert De Niro.

The movie travels. One of those stupid grown-up games I used to play was to think of some phrase or sentence and then write it down and come back to it months or years later to see if I could still remember it. After all, it was just a game, why should it matter if I remembered it or not? If I couldn't remember it, then maybe something was wrong with my memory, or my intellect, or my ability to comprehend. If I could remember it, then maybe I was special, or gifted, or clever.

Of course I never wrote it down. I was just playing a game. But then one day I thought of a phrase and wrote it down and came back to it months later and remembered it. 'This Boy's Life' it was called, and it was a phrase I had heard before, a phrase I had read before, a phrase I had written before, a phrase I had thought before. But it was a phrase I had never written down. And it was a phrase I had never thought of before. And it was a phrase I had never heard before. And it was a phrase I had never read before. And it was a phrase I had never written before. And it was a phrase I had never thought before.

Of course I never wrote it down. I was just playing a game. But then one day I thought of a phrase and wrote it down and came back to it months later and remembered it. New Peter Ullian work deals with "Red Scare"

Tasha Robinson

Those who don’t know from history may be surprised to hear of Peter Ullian’s latest work—his new novel, "Red Scare." Ullian is known for his historical novels on American culture. Perhaps the most famous of these was "The American Way," which dealt with the rise of McCarthyism in the 1950s and 1960s.

"Red Scare" is a reflection on the McCarthy era, and the novel has been met with critical acclaim. Ullian's latest work is expected to be a significant addition to his already impressive oeuvre of historical fiction.

IC's finest band together for Usual Suspects gig

Tad Pauson

The Daily Iowan

There's a lot of room, but a lot of noise. Three really good bands are all playing at the same time, all on the same stage, all at the same time. It's a bit of a challenge, but it's also a lot of fun.

The first band, IC's finest band, is playing a set of their own material. They're known for their high-energy, danceable rock songs and are sure to get the crowd moving.

The second band is a new local group called Usual Suspects. They've been gaining a lot of attention lately with their unique sound and catchy lyrics. Their set is sure to be a highlight of the night.

The third band is a local cover band that's been around for a while. They play all sorts of music, from classic rock to contemporary hits. Their set is sure to get the crowd singing along.

It's going to be a great night of music, and you don't want to miss it!
