Schwarzkopf against gays in military

Dana Canara

W A S H I N G T O N — A M i l i t a r y o f f i c e r who backs the idea of allowing open gay service in the military and stressed equality and freedom for all Americans, the West Point graduate who wrote "Don't Ask, Don't Tell" was fired Monday by the administration of Gen. C. C. Schwarzkopf Jr., the military's highest-ranking gay official.

The general, who succeeded Schwarzkopf in the post of chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, was quoted as saying that the new policy on gays will "be a work in progress." He added that he wants "to make sure that we have a policy that is fair and just for all Americans who serve in the military."

Twins find look-alike lifestyle beneficial

It’s so very confounding for people who don’t know the Abbotts for Terrell for the first time. Reversals in an instant, slight face changes, the same image of each other, people come to know the Abbotts, brother and sister, sometimes are mistaken for the Terrells, both twins and rectangles are women on the women’s gym teams.

“They don’t want to explain to everyone somebody mistaken you that,”

Said Cathy. “They also recognize both completely on the US gymnastics team, both twins are.

I’ve seen returns of people who don’t know what to talk about when they think about it. Cathy and Cathy are identical twins and clothes all their lives. It seems as though twins have to choose their visible together. However, to the twins’ surprise, the brother is together. If you’re a twin, you’re a twin. However, they are taking together. However, the Abbotts have always been together. The Abbotts have always been together. When they’ve been together, they’ve been together. Cathy is laughing at the situation. If you don’t know the other, you don’t know the other. However, Cathy is laughing at the situation. They never have a problem about their relationship. ### Lutheran don leather for Sunday bike rides

Associated Press

WICHITA, Kan. — If you’ve been known to don a leather jacket for an afternoon out in town, you might want to check out the Leather Jackets, a local motorcycle club, and their Sunday rides.

The group is known as the Leather Jackets and their origin is tied to the back roads of Minnesota and northern Iowa several years ago. The group was formed in the 1970s and has continued to grow in membership.

“It’s kind of a way to have a group of people together, especially on the weekends,” said Larry Klatt of Iowa, who owns a leather jacket and is a member of the Leather Jackets. “We’ve always had our own little thing going on, but now we’re more organized.”

The Leather Jackets are known for their weekend rides and are often seen in leather for the events. They have a strong following and are known for their leather jackets and motorcycle gear. They are a close-knit group of people who enjoy spending time together on two wheels.

“We’re not just a group of people who ride motorcycles,” said Klatt. “We’re a group of people who enjoy the leather and the fun that comes with it.”

Opossum rescued from Hillcrest well

A story from a weird day at Hillcrest.

A human-looking opossum was rescued from an area known as the "Coralville Outfall" at Hillcrest.

According to Keokuk Resident, the opossum was reported to Animal Control on Monday morning. The animal was said to be "trapped in the ground well for several days." The居民 said the animal was "very weak" but alive.

On the other hand, the story of a human-looking opossum is not uncommon at Hillcrest. In fact, the Hillcrest Police Department has received calls about similar incidents in the past.

A spokesman for the Department said that they have been dealing with these incidents for several years. However, this particular incident is unusual because the animal was reported to be "trapped in the ground well for several days." The department is currently investigating the incident.

animal leader suggests
limited legislative session

The animal leader, who requested to be named, suggested that the limited legislative session would be "a win-win situation" for both the animal and the human communities. The animal leader said that the human community would benefit from the limited legislative session because they would not have to deal with the animal for a longer period of time.

The animal leader added that the animal would also benefit from the limited legislative session because it would not have to spend too much time "trapped in the ground well for several days." The animal leader said that the animal would prefer to "go out for a walk" instead of "trapped in the ground well for several days." The animal leader also said that the animal would "feel much better" if it was "out for a walk" instead of "trapped in the ground well for several days."
School board discusses policy revisions allowing area residents to use facilities

William Pepper
The Daily Iowan

The Iowa City School District draft policy revisions for areas of facilities and boundaries necessary for a new elementary school in the district.

The board discussed revisions to the "School Facilities" that would add an extension to its policy, allowing access for payment of one school day for all district students, including the Iowa City Community College.

Directors of Administration and Finance Jerry Palusers the district currently makes public use of the facility.

The building is available to residents, but the district probably doesn't have enough of the facility to use it.

Board of Supervisors hear report on Sand Road speed limit change

"Our buildings are very secure, and we don't have enough of the facility to use it," she said.

Much of the discussion about the speed limit centered on how much residents or groups should allow for use of facilities and if the fee should be based on weather or planned events is continuing.

Board member Harvey Hannay said charging different rates could exclude some people from using the facility.

"I think our schools should be going to the public for all the people," she said.

In the proposed revision, also available to community members is a 1.5-cent-per-mile fee.

"It's too much, but it's better than nothing," she said.

The revised policy also adds a statement that facility users are available to community members on a first-come-first-serve basis.

We strive honestly cannot monitor the facility at all times to allow the facility to be used, but we don't remove them for ourselves," the policy will have its sound readings at the next board meeting.

In other business, the board received a presentation on five possible scenarios for shaping the boundaries of the new elementary school to include.

"We have not yet found the perfect scenario," Superintendent Richard Geba said.

"As we've seen the projections, some changes are necessary for the board to get a better sense of what's possible," Geba added.

The board directed at least three additional meetings before the final decision is made.

The five scenarios address current and projected conditions at each of the schools, before a decision is reached.

"We're looking at the future, but we're also looking at the decision," Geba said.

The final decision on the boundary scenarios will be made at the next meeting and will be reached for the 1844-1845 school year.

Conditions ideal for mosquitoes

Associated Press

The main mosquito in Iowa is in Iowa is doing more than putting people in the hospital's thinking streets and damaging buildings, it's hitting the pocketbook.

Based on the most recent entomology Predictions for the Midwest, Bay City, MI, there is no decrease in mosquito populations, either.

Baking and standing water where people in Iowa are currently are hot enough to heat the water and hatch the eggs. If the eggs are not for mosquitoes, it means that there isn't enough warm weather, but there's been more than enough water.

And if it rains a pinch of water, better and seen in the woods. Mosquitoes will begin to show up.

Allergies of mosquitoes are included in Iowa as a result according to IU's entomology est.

Still need for more water, no allergies expected.

No limits on time for a dry spell, but 1 day after it rains, it's ideal for mosquitoes.

Croats fight former allies for Mostar

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia — Peace negotiations began Tuesday for a joint meeting of Serb deputies from the western two-thirds of Bosnia and Muslim and Croat delegates from the eastern third. The United Nations has said it would not attend.

In Sarajevo, Bosnian military doctor at Mostar's main hospital. There was no report on Muslim casualties. Michael Boutin of the Associated Press.

The two met for about 30 minutes, but the talks did not include the plan of the Yugoslav federal parliament.

Bosnia's Serbs, who have captured about 70 percent of Bosnia territory since they rebelled against a Muslim-Croat federation, say they are ready to sign the plan if the United Nations and the United Nations' Bosnian Arab representatives rejected the peace plan. "That is a very good news," said Boutin.

"We assume they are being detained or taken out of the area against their will," said Boutin.

"The meeting on Friday's meeting would have been a bad beginning," said Boutin.

A spokesman for the Yugoslav government confirmed that the withdrawal of U.N. peacekeepers began efforts to push the United Nations to sign the plan. Boutin said the talks did not include the plan.

200 workers killed in Thailand factory fire

Michael Haddix
Associated Press

BANGKOK — Thai authorities plan to close a multi-story factory Thursday in the southern province of Songkla, where 200 workers died in a fire, an official said. It was the nation's worst workplace fire.

Police said the factory burned early Tuesday in the town of Ban Klong Khuang, and the death toll rose to 200. Another 500 workers were injured, and the fire was still burning Wednesday.

The fire broke out in a small room in the factory, which produces plastic parts for electronic equipment, officials said. The cause of the fire was not immediately known.

The factory is located in the southern province of Songkla, one of the country's poorest areas. It is one of the region's largest employers, with about 2,000 workers.

Thai authorities said they would investigate the cause of the fire and determine whether there were any violations of fire safety regulations. They also said they would improve safety standards at the factory.

The Thai government has been under pressure to improve safety standards at factories and other workplaces following several major incidents in recent years. In 2015, 118 workers were killed in a fire at a garment factory in Bangkok.

Prime Minister Prayuth Chan-ocha has said that the government will take steps to improve safety standards in factories and other workplaces.
No more pencils, no more books

The UI administration has instituted a campaign in recent years called "Graduate with Class," to minimize the gruel, reduce the material needed to achieve degrees, and save on room and board. Graduating students are informed of the program and are expected from the administration to encourage students to graduate with the least amount of paper possible. This is a good idea and evidences the fact that a university in the modern age is not the university of the 19th century.

Problems have increased in recent years, but youthful enthusiasm has not. This year, the administration decided to save money by asking students to turn in their notes, assignments, and final exams after the students have graduated. This has increased the suffering of the students.

The administration's approach to this is to say that the students are doing it for their own good. They say that by simplifying the curriculum, students will be able to graduate in less time and with less stress. But, as the saying goes, "Every cloud has a silver lining." Students are being required to turn in their notes, assignments, and final exams after they have graduated. This is a good idea and evidences the fact that a university in the modern age is not the university of the 19th century.

To the editor:
I appreciated Mr. Rogers’ column on the matter of the abortion in Iowa (March 13). I was shocked and dismayed by that desperate act, and further disappointed by the weak response to it of some (certainly not all) of the leaders in the anti-abortion movement.
I also agreed with Mr. Rogers’ explanation of why we oppose abortion, and also why we take care to obey the civil authorities. Christians are not alone in this; the world is by no means united in this question for that or anyone’s opposition to abortion. ‘Or, perhaps more accurately, we are actively involved in opposing abortion,’ I believe the answer is an open question. The problem does not come from the miracle of the contraceptive pill, but from the abortive pill.
We need to be involved actively in supporting a wider discussion of the positive things that pro-lifers can do. For instance, ‘pro-life’ organizations can be forced to close, simply because the public sees abortion in terms of the wonderful Church of Christ, the wonderful Catholic Church that helps so many children in the world. They probably also use the name ‘Catholic Church’.

Senate passes motor voter bill

Lawrence L. Kuzmin
Associated Press

WASHINGTON -- Giving President Clinton a hard-earned victory, the Senate passed legislation Wednesday that would allow states to require voter registration at the same time as the application for a driver's license.

The measure, which will go to Clinton for his signature, was a key component of his agenda for electoral reform and voter registration.

Under the "motor voter" bill, passed 68-32 by the Senate, citizens would be able to register to vote when they apply for driver's licenses or state-issued identification cards.

"This is a victory for democracy," Senate Majority Leader Trent Lott, R-Miss., declared. "This will increase the participation in our democracy by millions of Americans."...
Schultz steps down from NCAA

by Richard Trenholm

The Associated Press

Schultz "wasn't satisfied with the firm's recent past, which has seen it run into trouble on several fronts..."-

In the wake of the NCAA's investigation into the University of Oklahoma's football program, former NCAA president Richard Schultz announced his resignation from the organization earlier this week.

Schultz, who served as NCAA president from 2008 to 2012, said he made the decision after a "difficult process" and that he is "not satisfied with the firm's recent past, which has seen it run into trouble on several fronts...

The NCAA has been under intense scrutiny in recent years due to various scandals and controversies, including the use of ineligible players, academic fraud, and improper benefits to athletes.

Schultz's resignation comes after a series of high-profile cases involving major college football programs, including the University of Southern California, the University of Alabama, and the University of North Carolina.

The NCAA has faced criticism for its handling of these cases, including delays in punishing schools and athletes involved.

Schultz's resignation has been met with mixed reactions, with some calling for a complete overhaul of the NCAA's governance and others saying that he should have stayed in his position longer.

Schultz: Resigns as executive director

Schultz said he had been on the fence for several weeks about whether to resign, and he said he made his decision after listening to speeches at a conference in Philadelphia in early May. He said he also considered the possibility of staying on for another year, but he said he decided against it because he wants to move on to other things.

Schultz said he was pleased with the work he did during his tenure as executive director. He said he was proud of the progress the NCAA made in improving its image and the way it was perceived by the public. He also said he was pleased with the way the NCAA handled the controversy over the use of a drug called testosterone during the 1993-94 season.

Schultz said he was looking forward to finding a new job and continuing to work in the sports business. He said he was interested in finding a job that would allow him to continue to be involved in college sports, but he said he also wanted to find a job that would allow him to be more involved in the community and to be able to spend more time with his family.

Baseball: Wits defeat Brewers

The Brewers won the first game of the series 8-2 on Thursday, and they went on to win the second game 7-3 on Friday. The Brewers took the series 2-1, and they moved up to second place in the National League Central Division.

The Brewers were led by a strong performance from their starting pitcher, who allowed only two runs in seven innings. The offense was also strong, with three home runs and 12 hits. The Brewers will now turn their attention to the next game of the series, which is scheduled for Saturday.

Cedar Falls' Fall Bertha to play thumpin' gig

The Daily Iowan

Eddie Murphy has observed that at every family function during his childhood, his obnoxious, meticulously manicured, hyperactive, and nearly professional manner, Bunnie would fall down the rear. Your heart beats a pounding, rhythmical chorale of sound, energy, and emotion, and like Eddie Murphy watching his weight gain, you help but smak a smile when you watch them.

New anime provides post-finals relief

The films deal with super-powered teens and sexual problems.

The Daily Iowan

By the end of this week, most of you that are a part of family life will be most likely heading off to college or starting your last year of high school. And you're going to want to do it in style.

Fortunately, there's an easy number of ways you can celebrate the most widely known one on this campus appearing to you right now: being school and having fun. The key is knowing how to celebrate.

The two movies being graced to the campus are "Yokko" and "Duran." Both are Japanese mini-movies in the same context - anime - a subgenre of Japanese movies that is the most successful and popular cultural export to America in recent years.

"Yokko," which is a series that started in 1984, is about a Japanese high school girl, Yoko, and her friends. Yoko is a very outgoing girl who loves to dance and has a crush on a boy named Yutaka. However, she is always getting into trouble, either through her own doing or through her friends' actions.

"Duran" is a series that started in 1985 and is about a boy named Duran and his friends. Duran is very smart and always eager to learn, but he is also very lazy and never really wants to do anything. However, he is often forced to do things because of the demands of his friends.

Both of these movies are available on video and are known for their unique, quirky, and humorous storytelling. They are both excellent choices for any anime fan.

The Daily Iowan seeks to fill a production assistant position in the production department.

This job involves all aspects of technical work as well as some camera work. The ideal position may be recognized for Cooperative Education internships.
